Q. When were you red carded? A. In February, 1936.

Q. Do you know the circumstances under which you were red carded; that is, from your standpoint? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know the transaction that was pending at the time that you were red carded? A. I do not.

Q. You were not in that department at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 382-A to E for Identification and ask you if you can identify that as correspondence between the Guild and your store on this question of returns? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Taylor, I call your attention to Commission's 3777 Exhibits 393-A and B, 394 and 395. A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to the use of the word "slips" in these exhibits, and ask you if that has reference to the use in the context of these letters to any particular type of slip, and if so, if you can explain what it is? A. I am sorry. I did not get the question.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibits 393-A and B, 394 and 395, I call those to your attention and therein to the use of the word "slips" in these exhibits. I ask you what that word refers to as used in the context of these letters? A. It refers to a slip which was taken out of a book carried by the shopper, and these slips with the certain notations on them were made by the shopper, and in turn we were asked to sign it, and the other copy, a duplicate copy, remained in the book; that was another copy

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 359, and ask you if that is the slip, or a slip of the type of slip that you had reference to in your answer previously given? A.
3779 This is the same type of slip.

Mr. Weisman: Now, if your Honor please, the witness has now identified the slip as the slip that is already in evidence, and a good lawyer and any lawyer does not have to be a mind reader or a prestidigitator to know what was in evidence, and I move to strike it out, the answer of the witness, in which he attempts to describe the contents of a slip, on the ground that the slip itself is the best evidence, and the slip is in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness did not describe the contents of the slip. That is where you made your mistake again.

Mr. Weisman: His answer is one which would 3780 constitute that very thing.

Examiner Bennett: Read the answer.

(Answer read.)

Examiner Bennett: Denied. The rest of this discussion is off the record.)

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: The question was perfectly proper. The answer was also perfectly proper. He was asked concerning the slip, and his answer was concerning the operations which took place in connection therewith.

Mr. Weisman: I am sorry to differ with your Honor but I must. I ask an exception.

Examiner Bennett: Noted.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you what the fact is with respect to your knowledge of the relations between the Guild and Strawbridge & Clothier subsequent to January 1, 1936?

Mr. Weisman: I object as not proper direct examination, now having refreshed the witness' mind by an ex parte statement not made under oath, he now proceeds to go on and seeks to contradict something that he said before, and I submit it is highly improper and ask that the question be excluded. 3782

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Is it your recollection? A. As to what?

Q. Has your recollection been refreshed so that you can testify on that proposition? A. Sir, I do not believe that I said January 1. I did say, and I believe I did say after January.

Mr. Haycraft: That is probably what my understanding should have been. I was a little confused about it, and I just wanted to clear it up.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. After January is what I recall. 3783

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In other words, you did have knowledge about the relations between the Guild and Strawbridge & Clothier during the month of January, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: I think that is what he testified to in the beginning. That is the way I understood.

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Now, I have no record of what was done with Commission's Exhibits 383, 384 and 385. What was done with them? Were they offered in evidence?

Mr. Haycraft: I think they are in the record, if your Honor please. I am not certain about it and I will check that matter up.

Examiner Bennett: You may do so. We will take a recess for ten minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. From January 1, 1933, until February, 1936, who was your superior officer at Strawbridge & Clothier? A. Mr. Frank Smith.

Q. What is his title? A. He is the general merchandise manager of the store.

Q. Did you report to him what you did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you report to anyone else in the organization? A. I took up all matters through Mr. Smith, with Mr. Smith.

Q. Did you have an assistant during that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall the buyers that worked under your supervision during that period of time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you name them and give the different departments that they represented in their activities? A. 331 Department, Women's Better Dresses, Miss Flynn.

Mr. Weisman: Who?

The Witness: Miss Flynn.

350 Department, Misses' Better Dresses, Miss Ransdell. In that department there was a change somewhere about January or February. I believe it was in January. And we had a new buyer there, a Miss- -ah, ah, ah——

Mr. Haycraft: May I suggest to the witness——

The Witness: I will come back to her in a minute.

Mr. Haycraft: May I suggest the name to the witness?

Mr. Weisman: Certainly.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Miss MacAlney. A. Miss MacAlney. 3788

Mr. Weisman: Would you also suggest to him that he tell us whether January or February was 1936, or three or four or five?

Mr. Haycraft: No. I will let him testify to that himself.

Mr. Weisman: I said that you suggest that he tell us.

The Witness: '36.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. All right. Proceed. A. 338, Women's—Women's Inexpensive Dress Department. And 358, Misses' Inexpensive Dress Department, Mr. Cohn.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. 338 and what? 3789

The Witness: And 358.

Mr. Weisman: What was the name?

The Witness: Mr. Cohn.

Mr. Weisman: C-o-l-e?

The Witness: C-o-h-n.

371 Department, Junior Miss Department, Miss Morgan.

Mr. Weisman: Morgan.

The Witness: 491 Department, Economy Dress Shop, Mr. March.

492 Department, Daytime Dress Department, Mr. Chance.

Mr. Weisman: Mr. who?

The Witness: Mr. Chance.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I don't believe that you mentioned that before. What price range was that? A. That takes in the Daytime Dress Section in which we carry dresses up to no limit on price, but there are certain types of cotton dresses that we place 3791 in there. The business is principally done on the uniform house dress, cotton dress line of goods.

Q. Did Mr. Chance have any other duty besides? A. Just buyer of Departments 492 and 493. 493 is your uniform department, uniform and apron department.

Q. Who succeeded you when you left as the supervisor of that group? A. Mr. Chance.

Q. Mr. Chance succeeded you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he now in charge of that department? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: What department?

The Witness: He is in charge of the group of departments which were under my supervision up until about February 1, 1936.

3792

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you testify, or have you made any research so that you may testify as to the number of garments that were returned to manufacturers pursuant to the direction of the Guild?

Mr. Weisman: Oh, no. I submit that that question was entirely incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, contrary to the facts. Both the eminent

Mr. Tily and this witness have testified that no dress was returned until they were proven to be copies. Now we are having this issue brought in by detail again. I again object both on the grounds that the stipulation doesn't permit it, and, furthermore, this witness has testified that he wouldn't return anything until it was proven that that was a copy, that that was the right that they reserved; and, second, Mr. Tily in his testimony was very explicit and direct on that point. And I submit that this question is entirely improper, and improperly framed.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. 3794

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

A. I wouldn't know as to the number. I know there were dresses returned.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out as irresponsive.

Examiner Bennett: It may stand.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is there anyone in your organization that does know who would have that information? A. I believe there are records available, and Mr. Chance may know. 3795

Q. Well, now, directing your attention again to Commission's Exhibit No. 362, the letter of June 30, 1933, from Mr. Tily to the Guild, I will ask you whether or not you were consulted with respect to the sending of that letter, or one similar to it to the Guild?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where did this conference take place?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as being incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: We weren't present. Exception.

A. Mr. Frank Smith's office.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you give us the approximate date?

3797 Mr. Weisman: I object to it as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Just a short time before the date which appears on that letter.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Had you made an investigation with respect to the situation involved in that letter?

Mr. Weisman: I object to it as being incompetent, immaterial, calling for a conclusion of the witness.

3798 Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What investigation did you make?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Incompetent. Exception.

A. Investigated as to what volume of business the Guild members, the ten Guild members—I tried to estimate how much volume the members of the Guild at that time did, and then what priced merchandise they made, and what effect it would have on our business if we signed it, and if we didn't sign it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, then, as a result of the investigation that you made, did you report the conditions that you found to Mr. Tily? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft. 3800

Q. What did you find and what did you report, Mr. Taylor, as to the percentage of your business of purchases from Guild manufacturers at that time?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to on the ground that it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and the question is in improper form.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. I found that the volume of business which we did in the price ranges, and which the Guild members at that time were active in, was a very, very small percentage of our business.

3801

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you give us an estimate of the percentage? A. Well, it was no greater than 5 per cent. I believe that is about what it was.

Q. Now, since that time did the membership of the Guild— A. Yes, sir.

Q. First, I will ask you this: I show you Commission's Exhibits 399-A and 399-B and ask you if you can identify that in any way? A. Well, I have seen this letterhead, and I have seen the various manufacturers on there, those manufacturers' names on this letter—letterhead.

Q. I call your attention to certain pencil marks striking out names on 399-B. Does that indicate anything to you? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Have you had an occasion to make a study to determine what percentage of the business—dress business—was done with Guild manufacturers, say, on or about January, 1936? A. I did not make a study; no, sir.

Q. Do you know of anyone in your organization that has done so and could testify? A. Made in January.

Q. On or about that time, January or February? A. Well, I do not know what study was made in February in regard to Guild manufacturers, sir. I do not recall of an investigation or study being made in those months of January or February.

Q. Going back, again, to the time in 1933 in the investigation that you made, did you consult with merchandise managers of other retail stores?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and no proper foundation laid. The question is obviously without meaning. He says that in 1933 the witness testified that he made a study. I do not know what it is—about which he tried to estimate the volume done in his own business, and now he is asking him if in making a study of his own business, did he speak to members of some other retail establishment, and I submit that I cannot see the relevancy or the competency of any of this testimony, and I must respectfully object to it.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer— A. I——

Mr. Weisman: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I sustained the objection.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you this, Mr. Taylor: Were you advised that the Guild had taken in—strike that out. At the time in June, 1933, what was the price range of the garment manufacturers that were members of the Guild?

Mr. Weisman: If he knows. The question is asking for a fact and I want to say to your Honor 3806 that the witness does not know, and I will be prepared to show so.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I think it would be well to lay a preliminary foundation for that, Mr. Haycraft. Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you make any investigation to determine the price range of the manufacturers who were members of the Guild in 1933? A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. What was that price range?

Mr. Weisman: I do not know what investigation he made. He may have made an investigation by 3807 trying to read the stars or reading a crystal, or going into a trance, or something of that kind.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. I will find out what you know. Did you learn what the members did, and if so, how? A. It was a list of manufacturers who were listed as having been and were members of the Guild. I took that list and I reviewed that list with our buyers and I asked each buyer what merchandise, what priced merchandise that he or she might be purchasing from those particular manufacturers, and from them I learned the price group of merchandise which they bought from the Guild was priced from $16.75 and up—from Guild members—with the exception of certain times in the year when those Guild members might have made lower priced merchandise.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Since June, 1933, have you made any investigation, or have you attempted to find out whether that same price 3809 range is observed among the members of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. What is the result of your investigation? A. That same price range is not observed in the Guild.

Q. Not? A. Not.

Q. What change has taken place? A. The Guild has increased its membership and taken in manufacturers who make—manufacture dresses in lower priced brackets.

Q. How low? A. I believe they take in all price ranges now.

Q. You believe they take in all price ranges now?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the witness stating what he believes; if he knows, let him state it. That is a matter of fact which may be determined with 3810 exact certainty, and I do not think we should have those speculations in the record. May we have the basis of that belief, your Honor, in the record? I think it is only fair.

Examiner Bennett: He stated in his opinion they took in all price ranges. I do not know whether it is correct or not.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When did that change take place in your—strike that out. When did it come to your knowledge that they had lowered the brackets? A. During the fall of 1935.

Q. Fall of '35? A. Yes.

Q. Before the fall of 1935, what was the lowest wholesale price the dress manufacturers, who were Guild members, sold dresses, to your knowledge? A. Prior to the time when they took in all price ranges they went down to $6.75, either $6.75 or $7.75.

Q. Before that, what was the lowest? A. $10.75.

Q. During 1933 and during 1934, and up to the middle of 1935, what was the lowest wholesale price of Guild 3812 members? A. Up to what point, sir?

Q. Say the early summer of 1935. A. It may have been in the summer months when that evolution started taking place.

Q. Then, what was the price before this evolution took place; what was the lowest price? A. It was either $6.75 or $7.75.

Q. Now, what—strike that out. Did this change in the wholesale price, the price range of manufacturers that were members of the Guild, have any effect upon the dress departments that you had under your supervision?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Haycraft: I will direct your attention to 3813
the fact that he answered the question as to the returns that were made pursuant to the request of the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: I still urge my objection. The witness a few moments ago stated that he did not know the number of returns that were made.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you know whether it had any effect? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do know? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Noted.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. Returns increased.

Q. Returns increased? A. Yes, sir.

3815 Q. Why was that true? A. Because it took in the price lines in which our store was more active in.

Q. I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 399-A and also Exhibit No. 399-B and ask you if you can give me the date or the approximate date that you received that letter-form from the Guild? A. I cannot say.

Q. I direct your attention, to refresh your recollection on that, to the printed matter on the left-hand column of Commission's Exhibit No. 399-A. Does that refresh your memory? A. I cannot place the time. It may have been in the spring of 1935.

Q. You say it was in the spring of the year 1935? A. What?

Q. Would you say it was in the year of 1935?

3816 Mr. Weisman: I object to counsel quarreling with his witness. He says this does not refresh his recollection. I do not blame him. There is nothing on the exhibit from which he can refresh his recollection.

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, yes, there is, and he said he could refresh his recollection from it. He did state the time. He has just now testified that he did.

Mr. Weisman: I did not hear him. I have good ears. If you can hear that you are certainly hearing the sounds of mental operations rather than spoken words. This witness just looked at it and it does not refresh his recollection. He has looked at it and it does not refresh his recollection and he wants to be left alo.

By Examiner Bennett:

Q. Does it refresh your recollection or does it not? A. It does.

Q. It refreshes your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When? A. I believe I received this in the spring— 3818 in the early part of 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: May I examine it? Here is a blank piece of paper. I ask your Honor's permission to examine on the voir dire.

Examiner Bennett: Granted.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Are you certain that you received that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you receive it? A. From the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., at New York.

Q. It was enclosed in an envelope? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: All right. No objection.

Will your Honor take a look at it? It is nothing but a blank sheet of paper with nothing on either side of it. How on earth anybody could identify it as to any period of time is beyond me.

Why anybody should send it to anybody is further just as difficult for me to fathom.

3820 Charles T. Taylor—For Commission—Direct.

Examiner Bennett: He identified it. It will be received in evidence.

(The front of a letterhead and the back of the letterhead was marked Commission's Exhibits 399-A and 399-B and were received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not this increase in numbers of members of the Guild to include lower bracketed lines of dresses which you have indicated in your recent 3821 answers had anything to do with the co-operation that you were giving the Guild in returning dresses to manufacturers that they claimed to be copies of dresses manufactured by members of the Guild?

Mr. Weisman: I object. The question has already been answered. He said that they had made returns, and that the returns of dresses had increased since more dresses were involved. What is the use of simply encumbering the record and taking up unnecessary time? This appears to me to be not only iteration but reiteration and re-reiteration of the very worst type.

Examiner Bennett: No, I think not. There is a difference there. You may answer.

3822 Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Answer the question. A. What is the question?
Q. You do not remember it? A. No, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that the question be read.
(Question read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you remember that question? A. Yes, it simply forced us to return more merchandise to the manufacturers.

Q. It simply forced you to return more merchandise to the manufacturers? A. Right.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Mr. Weisman: No cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: What? No cross-examination?

Mr. Weisman: No, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may be excused.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Haycraft: May I have five minutes to get a new witness?

Mr. Weisman: Get a better one than this one for you.

Mr. Haycraft: No, I do not need a better witness than this one. He was a very good one.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess for not more than five minutes in which to get another witness.

(There was a short recess taken.)

3825

SAMUEL J. CHANCE was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you given your full name to the reporter? A. I have to the Examiner, sir. Did you hear it, sir?

Mr. Weisman: We all want to hear it.

The Witness: Samuel J. Chance, also known as Samuel J. Cianciarulo, C-i-a-n-c-i-a-r-u-l-o.

By Mr. Honeycraft.

Q. How long have you been known as Samuel J. Chance? A. For about eight years.

Q. Am I to understand that you had your name changed? A. No, sir; not legally, simply a name that I was asked to change in the matter of making it easier for my associates in business. My correct name is a little difficult to pronounce.

3827 Q. First I will ask you where you live? A. In Philadelphia.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am employed by Strawbridge & Clothier as a divisional merchandise manager.

Q. How long have you been employed by Strawbridge & Clothier? A. Three years, seven months.

Q. When you were first employed by Strawbridge & Clothier, what were your duties? A. At that time I was employed or hired to buy for their house-dress department.

Q. How long did you stay in that position? A. Approximately three years.

Q. How long have you been in your present position?

3828 A. Officially, since February 1, 1936.

Q. Do you have charge at the present time of Departments 331, 350, 338, 358, 371, 491, 492 and 493? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: Wait just a minute. This sort of examining by code numbers is rather difficult for me to follow. Would you repeat those numbers, please? Would you repeat the numbers?

The Witness: The numbers that Mr. Haycraft mentioned to me?

Mr. Weisman: No, the numbers of the departments of which you are in charge.

The Witness: 331, 350, 338, 358, 371, 491, 373, 382.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. Yes.

The Witness: 382, 385.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: 491, 492, 493.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft. 3830

Q. Can you testify as to the sources of supply of dresses at the time you became divisional manager of Department 331?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

A. I cannot recall in my mind the sources of 331, the sources they used at that time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you prepared at the request of the Federal Trade Commission a statement giving that information? A. We have answered certain questions that were submitted to us by the Federal Trade Commission. 3831

Q. I ask you whether or not the paper I hand you will refresh your recollection on that point.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you personally prepare the answer that was sent to the Federal Trade Commission in reply to the questionnaire? A. No, sir.

Q. No. Thank you. That is sufficient. Now, did you see the answer that was sent to the Federal Trade Commission in the form that it was sent to the Federal Trade Commission immediately before it was so sent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you see it? A. In Mr.—in our attorney's office.

Q. When did you see it? A. I don't remember the date.

Q. How long ago would you say it was? A. I would say a couple of months.

Q. Would you say— A. Two or three months.

Q. Would you say it was last April? A. Possibly.

3833 Q. Do you know whether or not this is the original or a copy of any questionnaire that was sent? First, tell me whether you know it is an original or copy. A. It appears like an original, but the papers that were turned into the Federal Trade Commission had affidavits upon them.

Q. Do you know whether or not this is the original? A. I do not wish to testify if it is. I do not know.

Mr. Weisman: Now, I respectfully submit that the witness says he doesn't know what this is, and that he should not be shown this paper.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

3834 Q. Now, I will ask you— A. Now, what is the question?

(Question read.)

A. Yes. This appears like a list——

Mr. Weisman: No, no. I submit that the witness be directed to answer the question, not what it appears to be like.

A. These are sources that we use.

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. You were asked whether or not this paper refreshes your recollection, and I submit that the answer to that is "yes" or "no."

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: He has answered.

Examiner Bennett: Please don't get in front of counsel. Will you take your place over there?

Mr. Weisman: I will take my place over there.

Examiner Bennett: Now, go ahead with the examination.

Mr. Weisman: May I move that the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question? 3836
The question was——

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken. Get a direct answer.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Does this paper refresh your recollection as to the names of your sources of supply for your Department No. 331 on or about February, 1936? A. These are some of the resources. There were others also.

Q. Are those the principal resources?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as being incompetent, immaterial, irrelevant, calling for a conclusion of the witness and not basis therefor. 3837

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. These, I believe, appear to be resources used by that department at the time that they were members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America. Some of these resources I recognize as being very important ones.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the latter part of that answer be stricken out.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you read into the record from the paper which you have the names of the resources that you have of Department No. 331 at the time that Strawbridge & Clothier were members of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. Now, I submit that that isn't even a question. That is a direction. I ask that it be stricken out and excluded: "Will you do this and this" into the record. That is a new form. I have never been met with that kind of question, and I submit that he should not be permitted so to do.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may answer.

A. Herman Beispel, H. Gans, J. Greenberg, Baron Dress, C. H. D. Robbins, A. Goodman, Perles & Gilbert, Harry Frank, Dresden, Friedman Dress, Joseph Greenberg & Bettina, Julius Grossman & Greenberg, Joseph Halpert, Larue Dresses, Frank Starr-Friedlander, Dolces Dresses, Ed Gerrick Company, Max Heit, E. A. Jackson-Bienard, Rudolph Gowns, Matthew Kadetsky, Gardner Schwartz, Bernard Appel, Boston; Goldstein & Entin, Boston; Baron Dress, Boston; Robinson Brothers, Boston.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The others were located where? A. What?

Q. You did not indicate. A. No.

Q. You said that certain were in Boston. You said "Boston" for the l st few. A. Yes.

Q. Where were the others located? A. May I see that, please?

Mr. Weisman: May it please, your Honor, that the witness has been permitted to read into the record a paper which is not in evidence, so that I may have an equal access to it with my adversary I ask that I either be given a copy of this paper or that this paper be marked in evidence. This is a queer procedure with a paper which the witness says he cannot identify, and when that list is placed before him by the attorney to look at, and he reads that paper into the record, and still says it is a paper he cannot identify, I submit the least that can be done for me is that I can have a copy of it so that I may look at it, or that it be placed—that piece of paper be marked into evidence so that I may have access to it.

Examiner Bennett: I think that is fair. You 3842 can have a copy made, or it may go into the record as you desire.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you testify as to the price lines that were manufactured by these respective manufacturers that you have named? A. I cannot testify to the price lines that each of these manufacturers makes, but I can testify to——

Mr. Weisman: I think that that is the answer. He says he cannot.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the witness not being permitted to give all of his answer. I insist that he be allowed to answer.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objec- 3843
tion. You may answer your answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Noted.

A. I can testify to the cost price of the total sum, or the cost price that that particular department bought the merchandise in, which would naturally be the purchase price of goods purchased from all of these manufacturers.

3844 Samuel J. Chance—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Weisman: I move that the answer be stricken out as vague, incomprehensible, incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. A man can sell merchandise at six different prices and he might buy at one price. That would not be representative of the manufacturer, and would not be responsive to the question asked him.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Well, I think that is correct.

3845 By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. Will you give the price range of the garment manufacturers' products; in other words, the garments manufactured by this group of manufacturers?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that. He just stated he could not do that. He said he could not do that very thing. This witness could not possibly know at what purchase price these manufacturers sell their merchandise. He can only know the price at which he bought it. That is the vice of this question. That is why I objected to the last answer. It intimates that he knows the workings of other businesses that he could not possibly know.

3846 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will amend the question to say price ranges of garments purchased from these various manufacturers.

Examiner Bennett: You may do that.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. $10.75 and up.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. $10.75 and up? A. Yes.

Q. Can you testify as to the percentage of the orders placed by your No. 331 department that were placed with Guild manufacturers in February of —prior to February, 1936?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not within the issues of this case; highly prejudicial to the rights of the respondents herein.

Examiner Bennett: He can ask him whether he can testify. Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. I cannot testify to that department.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What? A. I cannot testify to that department.

Q. I will ask you whether or not your memory can be refreshed from the paper which I hand you; the same paper which you had before?

Examiner Bennett: I will let him refresh his recollection from that paper.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. 75 per cent. of the orders for Department No. 331 —331 department, as stated on this paper. 3849

Mr. Weisman: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive, as calling for a conclusion of the witness, and as based upon something in the document which is not in evidence; it is merely reading from a document without any knowledge on the part of the witness; hearsay, incompetent, illegal, immaterial; not proper direct examination, and having no probative value whatsoever.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think the objection even requires an answer.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you familiar with the red carding of Strawbridge & Clothier by the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 19 and ask you if you have ever seen it before? A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. You have? A. Yes, sir.

3851 Q. When did you first see it? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. First, I will ask you where did you first see it? A. New York.

Q. New York City? A. New York City.

Q. Can you give us the date? A. I can give you the approximate date.

Q. Give us the approximate date. A. Early part of February, 1936.

Q. Early part of February, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In whose possession was it when you first saw it? A. It was in the possession of Baron Brothers of Boston, Mass.

Q. It was in the possession of Baron Brothers of Boston, Mass.? A. Yes, sir.

3852 Q. Do you know the individual who had the paper at the time that you saw it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was he? A. Mr. Feldman, who was a representative of Baron Brothers.

Q. What was his first name? A. I do not know what Mr. Feldman's first name was.

Q. You saw, you say, Mr. Feldman, at the time? A. I did.

Q. Where was Mr. Feldman at the time you saw him with this document in his possession? A. You want to know the time that I saw Mr. Feldman when he had this paper with him?

Q. Yes. A. It was in the showroom.

Q. What was that? A. It was in the New York showroom that I saw Mr. Feldman when he had this paper in his possession.

Q. Did he give it to you at that time? A. I asked him for it and he did.

Q. Did he say anything to you at the time that he gave it to you? A. At the time he gave it to me; yes, sir; he did. He stated that we were red carded and he could not 3854 ship us any merchandise. I asked him what the reason for it was and he produced the card. I asked him whether I could have it, and he said, "Yes."

Q. This is the card that he referred to? A. Yes, sir; this is the card that he gave me at that time.

Q. Would he show you any merchandise at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. No? A. No, sir.

Q. Has he done so since? A. I believe he resigned from the Fashion Originators Guild since then and we have transacted business with him.

Q. How long ago? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. More than a month? A. I would not hazard a guess. 3855
It would only be a guess if I stated it.

Q. Well, what did you do after you were given this card by Mr. Feldman?

Mr. Weisman: I object.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Strike that out. Did you attempt to get any dresses from any other of your sources of supply for your Department No. 331? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what manufacturers you attempted to get it from? A. C. H. D. Robbins was one particular manufacturer that I recall. And also I wrote to several others which I do not remember. Those were manufacturers that we took affidavits from; certain other ones.

Q. Do these papers refresh your recollection on that?

(Witness handed certain papers.)

A. No, sir; those are not the affidavits.

Q. I show you this same paper that I showed you a moment ago and ask you does that refresh your recollection? A. No, sir; it does not.

3857 Q. I call your attention to No. 9 at the bottom of the page. A. No, sir.

Mr. Weisman: He still says "No, sir."

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who made the affidavits which you have in mind which would refresh your recollection? A. What?

Q. Who made the affidavits which you have in mind that would refresh your recollection?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that. He did not have any recollection. How can he refresh his recollection if he does not have any?

Mr. Haycraft: He said it was an affidavit. He tried to get affidavits, if I understood his question.

3858 Mr. Weisman: I do not remember him saying anything about having an affidavit. That is not what I recall him saying.

The Witness: I said we took affidavits.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is this the affidavit which you referred to? A. What?

Q. Is this the affidavit which you referred to? A. This one was taken in conjunction with Miss Flynn. It is not this one.

Q. Does this paper refresh your recollection (indicating)? A. No, sir. This is the affidavit of Miss Flynn.

Q. That does not? A. No, sir.

Q. Ah, ah. I see.

Mr. Weisman: Will you put that negative shake of my friend's head into the record showing his disappointment that the witness refuses to say that this refreshes his recollection?

By Mr. Haycraft. 3860

Q. Are those the papers that will refresh your recollection—the affidavits which you had in mind? A. These two are. These others are not.

Q. Which two are? A. These that you have in that hand. Not the ones that you have in the other hand.

Q. Now, refresh your recollection from the papers that you have in your hands, and having refreshed your recollection from the papers which I have just shown you, will you testify as to your attempts to get dresses, or other goods, from other Guild manufacturers or resources of your Department No. 331? A. Yes, sir. We have attempted to get dresses from C. H. D. Robbins as this affidavit——

Mr. Weisman: No, no. 3861

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I do not want to know anything about the affidavit.

Mr. Weisman: Never mind about the affidavit, Brother Chance.

Mr. Haycraft: Let me conduct my own examination.

A. (Continuing) We have also attempted to buy dresses from Robinson Brothers of 498 Seventh Avenue. I say "We." I accompanied a friend on a buying trip. This friend was buyer of 331 department.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And with what success did you meet in your attempts to buy from Robinson Brothers? A. We were informed we were red carded, and they refused to show us, or sell us any merchandise.

Q. Now, did you make any further attempts to secure merchandise from manufacturers who were your sources 3863 of supply of Department 331? A. I personally did not.

Q. Did anyone in your department under your supervision do so? A. Yes. The buyers have attempted at various times.

Q. With what success? A. They were informed in the same manner it was red carded, and could not be shown, could not be sold, could not buy any merchandise.

Q. And for what reason? A. Because of the red card.

Mr. Weisman: May we know who said this so we can controvert it if it isn't the fact? I think it is entirely unfair to be met with this omnibus type of testimony.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask you to be specific.

Mr. Weisman: What?

3864 Examiner Bennett: I will ask him to be specific.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you made an attempt to buy through your buyers?

Mr. Weisman: No. Just a moment. Will your Honor ask him to be specific without Mr. Haycraft testifying?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I think you should ask who they were.

Mr. Weisman: And may I have the last question and answer stricken out, with regard to those he will specifically identify as being those by whom this was said, because there will be a day when we will have our side in this case.

Examiner Bennett: All right. It may be stricken.

The Witness: Miss Flynn, Miss MacAlaney.

Mr. Weisman: No. No. You didn't understand.

The Witness: I am sorry. Can I hear the question again?

Mr. Weisman: The Court has asked you to be 3866 good enough to give us the names of those people who said that they wouldn't sell you or show you merchandise.

The Witness: I have given the names of people who I personally contacted.

Mr. Weisman: Well, now, do you know of any others specifically?

The Witness: Not by personal contact of my own.

Mr. Weisman: Well, do you know any others whom you can name even without personal contact?

The Witness: You mean through the experience of other buyers?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yes, provided you can give us the names of those people so that we may be in a position to controvert it if we don't think it is correct. A. Well, all members of the Guild to our buyers' approach.

Q. Well, we want to know who were the specific members of the Guild that your buyers approached? A. That is all in their affidavits. They had personally taken affidavits.

Q. Well, do you know it? A. I do not.

Mr. Weisman: May we have it from the people who know. Judge, instead of from this witness who is, I submit—he says he doesn't know, but somebody made an affidavit and that is the source of his knowledge.

Mr. Haycraft: I move, Mr. Examiner, that all of these questions improperly applied at this time by counsel for the respondent be stricken and I be allowed to continue the direct examination.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is perfectly apparent that I was acting as friend of the Court. The Court 3869 directed that they be particularized.

Now, I move that all of the testimony——

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't direct counsel for the respondent to do the particularizing. That is the point.

Mr. Weisman: Now I ask that with the exception of the testimony as applied to C. H. D. Robbins and Robinson Brothers, all statements about refusal to sell or show merchandise be stricken from the record, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I have a motion pending, Mr. Examiner, to strike all of this examination, cross-examination, at this time from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will now strike the 3870 cross-examination. Go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: Now, may I have a ruling on my motion, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Beg your pardon?

Mr. Weisman: I say, may I have a ruling on my ruling?

Examiner Bennett: Yes: I will deny the motion.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Chance, did you give any instructions to your buyers with respect to attempting to get goods from your regular source of supply, members of the Guild after they were red carded? A. Yes, sir. The early part of February I instructed our buyers to visit as many Guild showrooms as they possible could within a day and attempt to buy merchandise.

Q. Did you get a report back from your instructions? A. I have, sir. The report was that they could not be shown or could purchase any merchandise from Guild resources.

Mr. Weisman: All right. Thank you. 3872

(Whereupon, at 4.50 o'clock P. M., August 3, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Court Room No. 313,
U. S. Post Office Building.
Philadelphia, Pa.,
August 4, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 9 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

MILTON C. WEISMAN, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq. and M. A. ALBERT, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild or America, Inc.

ALLEN S. OLMSTED 2ND, Esq., of SAUL, EWING, REMICK & SAUL, 2301 Packard Building, Philadelphia, Pa., appearing for John Wanamaker of Philadelphia.

I. I. JAMISON, of SUNDHEIM, FOLZ & SUNDHEIM, 1632 Bankers Securities Building, Philadelphia, Pa., appearing for Lit Brothers, Philadelphia.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Gentlemen, we will be in order, please.

3875 Mr. Haycraft, you may resume.

Mr. Haycraft: I will recall Mr. Chance to the stand to testify further on direct examination.

SAMUEL J. CHANCE resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (resumed) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask the witness to testify as to what departments of this business, or what division of the dress department, whichever way that should be worded, were mostly affected by—strike that out. I will ask the wit-3876 ness to testify as to what departments of dresses handled Guild merchandise? A. Departments 331, 338, 350 and 358.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. 331.

The Witness: 350.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: 338.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: 358, 371, 373, 382.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, you have already testified as to the percentage of Guild merchandise handled in 331, have you not?. A. I testified as to the percentage of outstanding orders from Guild manufacturers at that particular time.

Q. Well, from your experience can you testify as to the departments, can you testify as to the percentage of merchandise of the Guild manufacturers that were handled by each of these departments that you named, if you can? I am asking you if you can; that is, at the time the red carding took place? A. No, I cannot for each—for all of the departments, Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you testify as to which of those departments 3878 handled principally Guild merchandise? A. I have named all of the departments that have been purchasing from Guild houses.

Q. Can you testify as to which of those departments handled principally Guild merchandise?

Mr. Weisman: I object.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. As distinguished from other manufacturers at the time the red carding took place?

Mr. Weisman: Obviously such testimony is incompetent. "Principally." I mean, he has testified that they all handled them. We have no opportunity to cross-examine on what is the meaning of 3879 the word "principally." We have no opportunity to cross-examine what is in his mind. What is in his mind as "principal" might be different than in my mind. I think it is a very unreasonable question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. 350 department. In my estimation that is the department that would handle more Fashion merchandise, or merchandise that would be purchased from Fashion Originators Guild of American manufacturers, members of that group.

Mr. Weisman: Just a minute. I ask that the answer be stricken out as giving an opinion of this witness. The question was, does he know on or about February, 1936, which one did.

Examiner Bennett: You are giving your best information?

3881 The Witness: I am sorry. I didn't hear you.

Examiner Bennett: You are giving your best information?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What would be the second? A. The second would be in the total—in the large number of dollars, would be 358 department.

Q. 358? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the next? A. 331.

Q. Well, now, referring back to 331 for the time being 3882 can you testify as to whether or not there were orders outstanding with Guild manufacturers at the time of the red carding, February, 1936, in that department? A. Are you referring to 331 department?

Q. 331. A. Yes, sir; I can.

Q. Can you testify as to what manufacturers the date of the orders were placed, the date when the orders were due, and the amount of the orders? A. Such a list was gotten up at the time.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this for identification.

(The list referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 400.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 400 for Identification. Is that the statement you have in mind? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that prepared under your supervision? A. That was prepared by Miss Flynn and turned in to me.

Q. Are you satisfied it is correct? A. I am.

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant whether he is satisfied it is correct. 3884

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: I object, no proper foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will receive it.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

(The list referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 400, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were these orders ever filled? A. No, sir.

Mr. Weisman: May it also appear in the record that Mr. Freeman is assisting counsel for the Commission. I want that to appear in the record and I will make it the subject of a motion at the proper time. He is prompting him with questions and advice, telling him with regard to what should be done and said. 3885

Mr. Haycraft: I don't think that it is necessary to be in the record.

Mr. Weisman: I insist upon it.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, now, Mr. Examiner, does counsel have the right to insist upon such things going into the record?

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Haycraft: Are you ruling this hearing or is counsel for the respondents?

Mr. Weisman: I am not ruling the hearing.

Examiner Bennett: It is not necessary to put it in in that sort of form.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that it be completely stricken from the record.

3887 Examiner Bennett: I think you jolly well know our rule here. I will, of course, decide as to these things. I see no harm in placing it in the record and I am going to let it stay in the record.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: Not particularly because of the wish of the attorney for the respondent.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: I take it this attorney is furnishing information to the other attorney. I see no particular crime in that.

Mr. Weisman: I see no particular crime; I—it was not my intent to impute to the Commission any crime. However, it may be that I may be mistaken—I believed the Government was investigating together with the power of the Government for a purpose which is highly improper, and which I cannot condemn too strongly.

3888 this situation. I say that when counsel for a particular firm such as this, which has had differences of opinion with us, and which we will prove, before this case is over, has been particularly vicious in its attempt upon us, that when and where counsel for such firm takes part so actively with counsel for the Commission that these proceedings lose their inquisitorial nature and become in effect and in fact a persecution, in which they seek to band themselves

Examiner Bennett: You have your statement in the record.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In view of the statement of counsel I will ask you this question: Are you sufficiently familiar with the type of garments handled by Department No. 331, testified to by you, so as to testify as to the characteristics of those garments? A. I do not understand. 3890

Q. In distinguishing them from the other departments? A. Yes.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Will you testify as to the type of garments that are handled by Department 331? A. Department No. 331 confines its business to women's sizes, or dresses that are made in sizes from No. 38 to No. 52 and half sizes which will be comparable to those sizes.

Q. Now, as to the styling or tailoring of the dresses sold in that department, are you in position to testify as to that?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant for any purpose whatsoever. It is obviously without any bearing upon this 3891 case, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. The styling of the merchandise that is handled in Department 331 is that which represents the highest style for women, in comparison with some of the other departments, and also dresses that are made in detail, in finish, in fabric, and everything else taken into consideration to make a finer type of garment.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, then, I will ask you if you know what effect the red carding had upon your department?

Mr. Weisman: I object as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and I would like to draw the Court's attention to the statement that I made while we were in this case at the opening; it is obviously an unfair effort on the part of counsel for the Commission to go into and get into the testimony something which your Honor ruled out, and, furthermore, it is not a fair thing to put in evi-3893 dence, in view of the fact that the witness has before him, and which I now see with my own eyes physically, and which is clearly visible, a statement showing the effect claimed by these people in regard to all of their business in the departments affected by Guild merchandising policies.

I submit to pick out one in this way is obviously unfair, totally unfair and unreasonable, and is directly and clearly and within knowledge of counsel and witness and everyone here present drawing an improper, untrue and incorrect picture of the situation to the substantive detriment of the vital interests of respondent in this case.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

3894 Mr. Haycraft: Shall I proceed?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. In analyzing our price lines, we have definitely noticed that there are certain price lines that we could not buy.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the witness be directed to answer the question and not give us a long speech about it. The question was entirely specific and now he is giving us a long story about it.

Mr. Haycraft: I move that counsel be instructed not to interrupt the witness until he has completed the answer.

Mr. Weisman: I wonder when we get to our case if you are going to be so kind, Mr. Haycraft, as to permit the witness to give a long answer.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly. I do not ask anything I do not expect to give. Such a suggestion I think is entirely unwarranted.

Mr. Weisman: We will see. We will see.

May we have the question read so that your 3896
Honor will see how improper it is? This question calls for the witness' knowledge as to the matter and not what the matter is. He is asked if he knows what the effect of red carding was upon his department; he can answer that he does know or does not know.

Examiner Bennett: No, no. I wish you would not interrupt until the witness finishes his answer, then you can move to strike if the answer is not responsive. I wish to say to the witness that he will answer as to the effect of that department.

Mr. Weisman: I do not think that is the question, your Honor. I should like to have the question read.

Examiner Bennett: No. 3897

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Start out and give the effect of the department, if you can give the facts, and do not go into your opinions about it at the present moment, at least. A. The effect of the red carding was a loss of sales.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you explain? A. I——

Mr. Weisman: I object to the explanation on the ground it is obviously not a matter for testimony with regard to a fact. If the witness knows the fact, he knows it, and he has stated what apparently, in his opinion, is the fact. I submit that that is one thing, but to put this witness in a position where he testifies as to a fact upon which one, with the knowledge that we all have, can now know, is only the subject-matter of opinion, I respectfully 3899 submit, is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and highly prejudicial to the substantive rights of the respondents.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. You may answer. Make it factual rather than opinionated. A. In analyzing our price lines, we noticed that in certain price lines we could not buy into it, and that they were manufactured by Guild houses, and that those lines showed a decrease in sales in the respective months of 1936 as compared with the same months in 1935.

Q. The facts upon which you base your statement you
3900 have stated? A. That is the fact that such papers were checked into and a report drawn up covering the entire situation for the store.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you issue any instructions to your buyers with respect to those price lines that you had been buying from Guild houses that you were unable to get as the result of the red carding? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were your instructions? A. My instructions were to attempt to build other manufacturers so we could replace Guild resources and go along with other resources in place thereof and not be shut out of business thereby.

Q. What did those buyers do with regard to that respect, pursuant to your instructions?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial, irrelevant, a matter of hearsay, calling for the operation of another person's mind, and for the operation of this person's mind as to the operation of another person's mind, thereby building vice upon iniquity. He can testify as to what he told his buyers, and they should testify as to what they 3902 did. I submit that this is going a little bit too far, your Honor, even for Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has knowledge of certain facts.

Mr. Weisman: I am addressing myself to the Court. I think that this is a legal argument, and that your statement does not add anything to the validity of the question or detract from the force of my objection, if there is any force in it.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Did the buyers report to you on their activities in the due course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you testify as to what they reported to you in 3903 that respect? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The Examiner has instructed you to testify as to what your buyers reported to you.

The Witness: What is the previous question?

(Question read.)

A. The buyers reported to me that they spent a lot of time in the market attempting to locate proper manufacturers that could make garments comparable to those originally purchased from Guild members, and it was a very difficult job.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Did they succeed? A. No, sir.

Q. And they so reported to you? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

3905 Q. As I understood you to say, or as I understood you to testify, the buyer for that particular department was Miss Martha Flynn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She will be here and will be able to testify as to what she herself actually did?

Mr. Weisman: She is in better position to state what she can testify to than this witness is. Counsel is now seeking to bolster up a witness who is not even here, and I submit it is highly improper. I object to it.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Yes, she will.

3906 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Returning to Department No. 350? A. Yes.

Q. Who is the buyer for Department No. 350? A. Miss McAllenny.

Q. How long has she been buyer for that department? A. She?

Q. Yes. A. Since some time in January, 1936.

Q. What is the name of that department? A. What?

Q. What garments are sold in that department? A. Misses' better dresses.

Q. Are you in a position to testify as to the resources of that department in January, 1936, just before the red carding took place? A. No, sir; I cannot do that.

Q. By that, you mean you have no knowledge or do not recall? A. I cannot recall.

Q. I will ask you whether or not this paper will refresh your recollection, either one of these papers? A. The names of those resources I recognize as resources used by that department.

Q. Now, having your memory refreshed, will you testify for the record the names of the manufacturers that you 3908 recognize as resources for the Department 350? A. Milton Altmark, Capri Frocks, Frank Star-Friedlander, Goldston & Entin, A. Goodman, Max Heit, Lipman, Parnas Levenson, Schulte Zuck.

Q. Can you testify as to the price range of the garments purchased from those manufacturers, the wholesale price? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. Can you testify as to the percentage of the garments sold in that department that were purchased fr.. m Guild manufacturers, Guild houses? A. No, sir; I cannot.

Mr. Freeman: I haven't discussed the matter with any witnesses who are to be called.

Examiner Bennett: I assume you haven't.

Mr. Weisman: And I assume you will not? 3909

Mr. Freeman: I make no remarks to you, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Well, then, I urge my motion that Mr. Freeman——

Examiner Bennett: It is denied.

Mr. Weisman: —be excluded, especially in view of Mr. Freeman's unwillingness to state for the purpose of the record that he will not discuss the testimony of this witness or the witnesses who went before him with such witnesses as he may have access to.

Examiner Bennett: He is a member of the Bar and in good standing, and as such does not require any such pledge.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully except.

Mr. Feldman: Your Honor, isn't there a method prescribed by the Commission for attorneys to intervene? Isn't there a form, a regular form that the Commission has for attorneys who wish to intervene with the Government in behalf of intervenors?

3911 Examiner Bennett: I do not think I want to go into a discussion of that right now.

Go ahead with the procedure here, with the examination.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Chance, do you know whether or not at the time of the red carding there were any orders outstanding with Guild manufacturers for Department 350? A. Yes, sir; there were.

Q. Can you testify as to the names of those manufacturers and the amounts outstanding? A. A list was made up at the time. I do not recall in my mind who those manufacturers were, or what amounts were outstanding.

3912 Q. I will ask you whether or not this paper refreshes your recollection on that?

Examiner Bennett: I will ask you the same question as I did about the other list. Did you direct the preparation of that list, or have any part in the making of it?

The Witness: This list was made up in my office, Judge, in presence of the buyer.

Examiner Bennett: At your direction?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Do you know it to be correct? Did you know at the time that it was correct?

The Witness: I do, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Having refreshed your recollection, will you testify as to what the paper is? A. This is the list that was prepared for me in my office.

Q. Will you give the name and the amount? A. A. Goodman, $538.75; Max Heit, $173.50; Capri Frocks, 3914
$193.

Mr. Weisman: May I see that?

(The paper referred to was handed to Mr. Weisman.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were those goods ever received? A. No, sir.

Q. I notice that you gave the name of Lipman as one of the resources of supply of the Department 350 in January, 1936.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. When was that?

Mr. Haycraft: He gave that testimony a while 3915 ago.

Mr. Weisman: Did he testify as to Lipman?

Mr. Haycraft: Altmark, Capri, and so on.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recall giving Lipman— A. I do, sir.

Q. Do you have an independent recollection of the type of garments sold by Lipman Brothers to that Department 350? A. I know one outstanding type of garment that we used from Lipman in Department 350 which consisted of a garment which was known on the market as a four-way suit.

Q. Had you been buying that garment from Lipman Brothers in January, 1936? A. There were such records; yes, sir.

Q. Were you able to buy it after the red carding? A. We were not.

Q. Are you in a position to testify as to the volume of business done with Lipman Brothers on that garment during January, 1936? A. Such a record was made.

3917 Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute, please. I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, picking out a manufacturer and saying, "Can you testify as to the volume of business done with that manufacturer?" It is obviously without weight in a suit such as this.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think that is much more enlightening than attaches to a general statement.

Mr. Haycraft: I might explain, Mr. Examiner, perhaps for counsel for the respondents' benefit as well as our own, that as probably can be observed, it is my intention to give a general statement, and then follow it up by detailed statements in the 3918 various departments that have been affected by the Guild activities, and that is the purpose of this line of examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to overrule the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: If he has any real knowledge of that situation.

The Witness: May I have the question, please?

(Question and answer read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will show you a paper and ask you if that is the record you have in mind? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that made under your supervision? A. This was made in my presence, copied from the original orders.

Q. Under your supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

(The list referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 401.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. This exhibit which you just identified—strike that out. The prices indicated on this exhibit, which you have just identified, are those wholesale or retail prices? A. That gives the prices. 3920

Q. The prices you paid the manufacturer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Cost prices? A. Cost prices.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You mean prices you would have paid the manufacturer? A. The prices we did pay.

Mr. Weisman: Did not he testify that he could not get them?

Examiner Bennett: In January.

By Examiner Bennett. 3921

Q. Was January an unusual month? A. I am sorry, sir.

Q. Was January an unusual month as to volume of business in that particular piece of goods? A. I would not say so, sir. On subsequent months following we would be expected to do greater than in January on that particular type garment.

Q. Your testimony is that it was not an unusually large month? A. It was not.

Q. It was not? A. No, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the custom as to the placing of re-orders? A. The custom of placing re-orders is judged by the activities, or selling activities of any particular style in stock.

Q. Do you know whether or not this was a re-order or an initial order, this January order? A. You have there an initial order and a subsequent re-order on that report.

3923 Q. And the initial order being January 14 for sixteen dresses? A. What is that?

Q. The initial order being under date of January 14 and for sixteen dresses? A. May I see it, please?

Q. Yes. A. This order was placed on 1-14-36, and is the original order for sixteen pieces of style No. 2900 and subsequent re-orders are the same style made out of different and in additional fabrics.

Q. Did you testify as to whether or not from that exhibit that was a popular number, or can you? A. I can.

Q. Will you testify as to whether or not, from that exhibit, that was a popular number? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant, and move to strike out the answer.

3924 Popular number assumes it was something—assuming it was or was not, what difference does it make?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Yes, sir. It was a very popular number. That was decided by the ready acceptance of that particular style in that price which is considered to be a fairly high-priced garment for that type, and in the manner in which it sold and the subsequent re-orders that were placed in a very short time.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that all of the answer be stricken out except "Yes, sir."

Mr. Haycraft: The Examiner's question asked for it.

Examiner Bennett: I think it was worded in a little different manner. I will confine it to the first sentence. It may be stricken out except for the first sentence, the words, "Yes, sir. It was a very popular number."

By Mr. Haycraft. 3926

Q. How did you determine it was a very popular number?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. That is determined by the "fast selling book" which each department keeps for its record to determine selling reported by a sub-system for the selling of each style in stock.

By Mr. Haycraft.

3927

Q. What basis do you have for selling— A. I beg your pardon?

Q. What basis do you have for saying that it was a fast selling garment? A. I——

Mr. Weisman: I object as already answered, incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, the question was asked before and now he is asking the question again, and he is proceeding crabwise to subsequently explain the answer, and the answer is in already, and I object to this form of testimony and ask that the question be physically stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Weisman: This is a cross-examination of his own witness. You will recall that the statement was made by the witness—that the statement was stricken.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly. You will recall that, if your Honor please, that the statement made by 3929 the witness was stricken, and I am trying to get it in in the proper way now.

Examiner Bennett: He has already answered that question. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Haycraft: Pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I say, I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you made your full explanation, Mr. Chance, of the reasons why you say this is a fast selling number?

Mr. Weisman: I object to it.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think we are through with that.

3930 Mr. Haycraft: I respectfully request that the answer of the witness which was struck out be reinstated so that the record will show the information which I am trying to elicit.

Examiner Bennett: You have it physically in the record if you want to argue that it is proper evidence, why, all right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you first what you did to obtain new dresses—new sources of supply for garments sold in Department 350? A. I instructed Miss McAllenny to attempt to get new resources other than Guild members to study the market and to be more careful and to review the shopping sources that we had not used before in attempting to locate the type of merchandise that we had to have for that department.

Q. What did she report to you? A. She reported to me it was a very difficult job, and that it would require a lot of time, and—resources are not built up overnight.

(Question read as follows: "Q. I will first ask you what she told you about that matter?")

A. Miss McAllenny reported that it was a difficult matter—that it was a difficult matter to replace Guild resources.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. You have testified to that before? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: That is my understanding.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did she make any report to you as to her ability to obtain a source of supply to replace the source of supply 3933 which she had been using in buying from Lipman Brothers?

Mr. Weisman: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Overruled.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Miss McAllenny purchased one number from another manufacturer which did not replace the garment which we had purchased from Lipman Brothers.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Was that part of the substitution? A. We had hoped that it would replace the garment purchased from Lipman Brothers but it did not.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you can testify as to the effect upon the volume of your sales in Department No. 350 as the result of the red carding? A. Yes, sir. Those records are available?

Q. Have you made any computation or compilation of such effect? A. Yes, sir; I have made a study as to the 3935 percentage increase for that department and an extensive study of the effect on price lines for that particular department.

Mr. Haycraft: I should like to have that answer read back.

(Answer read.)

The Witness: I said "decrease" and not "increase."

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I understood it to be "decrease."

Mr. Weisman: I am sitting here more closely to the witness than you are, and the court reporter is sitting right next to him, and neither of us heard it that way.

3936 Mr. Haycraft: What did you hear?

Mr. Weisman: I did not hear anything, but I do say that I did not say I heard anything. I say this much that I did not hear anything and you obviously did not hear anything if I did not hear anything, because you are much further away than I am.

The Reporter: I am only trying to get the matter straight, that is my only interest.

The Witness: If I said "increase," Judge——

Mr. Weisman: It is perfectly obvious that the witness is trying to fix up his answer now and that the reporter had it correctly in the first place. I simply call it to your Honor's attention and ultimately will call it to the attention of the Commission as to the character of testimony that is being presented here.

Examiner Bennett: The witness has clarified his answer. Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You testified as to the percentage that you have in mind? A. In a general way. 3938

Q. Can you testify as to the percentages that you have in mind in detail? A. I have made a copy of that particular operation.

Q. For this department? A. Yes, sir. This will show a comparative increase—or—decrease, I mean.

The Reporter: Did you say "increase" or "decrease"?

The Witness: I first said "increase" and then I changed it to "decrease."

Mr. Weisman: Now, let us get this straight because this witness seems to be switching around a little bit.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you say "increase" that time? A. I said increase, I seem to have it in mind, but I meant decrease.

Q. And that is what you said before, too.

Mr. Weisman: What did you hear him say this time, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: "Increase."

Mr. Weisman: I just wanted to make sure that you did not hear "decrease" this time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You can continue your answer. I will put it this way, then: The paper which you hold in your hand, was it prepared by you or under your supervision?

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. There are two questions there. Ask him one and then the other.

Mr. Haycraft: I think that is a proper question, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you can—— 3941

Mr. Haycraft: Either one is admissible, if he prepared it, or under his supervision.

Mr. Weisman: I want to know for the purpose of cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, let him say whether he prepared it himself or——

The Witness: This paper was prepared under my supervision, Judge.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You are satisfied it is correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prepared from the records of the Strawbridge & Clothier Company? A. Prepared from figures that are obtainable from Strawbridge & Clothier or from our 3942 records.

Examiner Bennett: Do you know them to be correct?

The Witness: Yes, sir. They were submitted to us by our auditing department.

Examiner Bennett: You are offering that as an exhibit?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

(The paper headed "Comparative Increase or Decrease for Dept. 350. Feb. 1 to June End 1936 as against 1935 for the same period" was marked Commission's Exhibit No. 402 and received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Reporter, will you get his previous answer?

(The previous answer referred to was read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, the exhibit which you just identified, Commission's Exhibit 402, is an exhibit indicating the effect upon the sales, and a decrease indicated in that exhibit is the decrease you had in mind in your reply a moment ago? A. Yes, sir. 3944

Q. Now, then, will you now direct your attention to your study of the effect upon the price lines in the departments? What is the result of your investigation in that respect? A. Well, I cannot recall to my mind what the effect was but such a list is available and has been made up.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive except that he doesn't know.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the answer.

(The answer was read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: Beginning with "what" may be stricken. We will have a recess of ten minutes. 3945

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this the next exhibit.

(The paper headed "Retail Price Line Comparison, Dept. 350" was marked Commission's Exhibit No. 403 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 403 for Identification, and ask you what that is.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute before you ask him.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a retail price line comparison for Department 350 for the months of February, March, April, May and June in 1935 and 1936, comparison of sales 3947 results.

Q. Who prepared it? A. This was prepared at my direction.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out.

Q. Did you check it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you satisfied it is correct?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial as to his satisfaction.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. I am satisfied this is correct.

3948 Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Have you offered the other one?

Mr. Haycraft: I think you let it in.

The Reporter: It was offered but no formal ruling was made on it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, it is received.

(Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 402.)

Mr. Weisman: (Referring to Commission's Exhibit No. 403.) Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. It may be received.

(The paper heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit No. 403 for Identification, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Referring to Departments 371 and 373, Mr. Chance, just to make the record clear at this point——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I ask——

Q. (Continuing) —as to what merchandise, lines of merchandise, price lines were handled in those two departments.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that that part of the question which is an explanation and not a question be stricken out because I don't think it makes it clear. I think it makes it more muddled. This testimony has already been offered by Mr. Taylor who testified very fully. It is merely cumulative in its effect, if anything. If it is offered for the purpose of bolstering up Mr. Taylor's testimony, I object to it, and call the Court's attention to the 3951 fact that he wasn't even cross-examined on that though he doesn't—or anything, so he doesn't have to be bolstered up. If it is for the purpose of contradicting him, I object to it because he may not contradict his own witness.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

The Witness: May I have the question, please?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: $3.95 retail and up.

Mr. Weisman: Wait just a moment. May I have his answer?

(The answer was read.)

Examiner Bennett: We haven't had the answer yet, go ahead and answer.

The Witness: I did answer, Judge. $3.95 retail and up.

Mr. Weisman: In what department?

The Witness: 371 and 373.

By Mr. Haycraft.

3953 Q. Who was the buyer of that department at the time you took it over? A. Miss Morgan.

Q. Are those the same departments because of a change in the number, or are there two departments all the way through? A. There are two distinct departments.

Q. Will you describe just what the distinction is between the two departments? A. 371 department is the department which sells dresses. The 373 department is known as the "coat and suit department" for junior miss.

Q. And 371 is the Junior Miss? A. Junior Miss Dress Department.

Mr. Weisman: The witness——

Mr. Haycraft: Now——

Mr. Weisman: Wait just a minute. If you want 3954 to make his testimony intelligible. The witness said the price was $3.95 and up. Will you let us know whether or not that is retail or wholesale?

Mr. Haycraft: He said retail. The witness has said retail.

The Witness: I said retail.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, did you? All right. I apologize. I didn't hear.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you buy any dresses from the Guild manufacturers to be sold by those departments? A. At what time?

Q. In January, 1936, prior to the red carding. A. Prior to the red card?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, we have.

Q. Can you testify as to the name of the manufacturer that sold dresses to Strawbridge & Clothier to be sold through those departments, which were sold to those departments? A. Referring to Guild members?

Q. Yes, to Guild members. A. I cannot remember them. Such a list was made up and is available.

Q. I ask you if this refreshes your recollection (indicating). 3956

Mr. Weisman: I didn't hear your answer. Will you please speak up? What did you just say?

The Witness: I asked him if he had any other record.

Mr. Weisman: I object to the witness asking questions. He was asked whether or not this paper refreshes his recollection.

The Witness: I will identify these resources as resources used by the Junior Miss Dress Department prior to our being red carded.

By Mr. Haycraft. 3957

Q. Then would you say that that paper did refresh your recollection? A. Yes, sir, it does.

Q. Then, are you testifying as to the resources of this particular department prior to the red carding with the members of the Guild; and, can you testify as to that from this document? A. Yes, sir.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Was that made up under your direction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know it to be correct at that time? A. It has been checked by me and our assistants at the time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you give those names, please? A. R. K. Junior Frocks, Ashley Frocks, Inc., Horowitz & Dubermann, Jane Junior Dresses, Inc., Jo-Anne Junior, Junior League Frocks, Silver Dresses, Will Steinman, Bon-Ray, Daniel 3959 Westheim, Junior Guild of Chicago, Rose-Anna Junior.

Q. And will you testify as to the price range, or can you testify as to the price range of garments purchased from those manufacturers? A. No, sir.

Q. Does this refresh your recollection? A. No, sir.

Q. Who, in your organization, can testify to that information?

Mr. Weisman: I object to it as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you testify as to the percentage of garments handled through those two garments that were purchased from the Guild manufacturers? A. No.

3960 Q. No? A. I cannot.

Q. Do you know whether or not these manufacturers that you have named have sold any garments to the Strawbridge & Clothier Company since February—since the red carding went into effect in February, 1936? A. I could not answer that.

Q. Turning to Department No. 332, can you testify as to whether or not any of the Guild manufacturers—can you testify as to the names of Guild manufacturers that were selling garments to Strawbridge & Clothier that were sold to that department? A. Only from the list which is available.

Q. I will ask you if this paper contains such a list (indicating)? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that paper refresh your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you testify from that? A. King & Weill, Star Maid, Banner Manufacturing Company, Davis, Adler & Adler, Mutual Rosenbloom, David Lowenstein, O. Noodleberg, Bernard Appel, Townley Frocks.

Q. Can you testify as to the price range of garments purchased from those manufacturers? A. No. 3962

Q. You cannot? A. No, sir.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection? A. I would not know if those are correct (inspecting the document).

Q. Can you testify as to the percentage of garments purchased and sold by your department, that department, rather, that were purchased from Guild manufacturers? A. No.

Q. Does this refresh your recollection (indicating)? A. No, sir; it does not.

Q. Turning to Departments 338 and 358, can you testify as to the names of Guild manufacturers that were selling Guild merchandise to Strawbridge & Clothier that was sold to that department prior to the red carding in February, 1936? A. From a list prepared I can.

Q. Is this such a list (indicating)? 3963

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that these documents be marked for identification.

(Documents were thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 404-A, 404-B, 405-A, 405-B, 406-A, 406-B, 407, 408 and 409.)

Mr. Weisman: May I see them, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: No. You have no right to see this. It is simply marked for identification. It is not offered in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: May I have that question and the reply by Mr. Haycraft on the record?

Examiner Bennett: You will notice it is on the record. If there is no necessity for a disclosure of course when they are being marked counsel may properly decline at that time. If there is an offer, of course you will be permitted to see them, or if they are the part of any testimony given by a witness.

3965 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you to identify each one of these for the record. What is 404-A and B? A. As I recall, this is a copy of questions submitted to us by the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Weisman: Now, wait just a minute. Now that the witness has identified this I would like to see it.

Mr. Haycraft: No, you cannot see it.

Mr. Weisman: I appeal to your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you may see it.

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Haycraft, the Court has said I may see it.

3966 Mr. Haycraft: No. It is not offered in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: It is the subject matter of testimony.

Examiner Bennett: There is a possibility of a question on identification as to its identification. If you are going into identification I think it is proper to let the attorney see it.

Mr. Haycraft: Is that your Honor's ruling?

Examiner Bennett: It is.

Mr. Haycraft: I take an exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is 405-A and B? A. 405 is a copy of a reply to those same questions from Department No. 331 prepared by Miss Flynn and myself.

Mr. Weisman: That isn't even courteous. I said, "Wait a moment until I look at them," and then he said, "No, I won't." Will your Honor tell him that he ought to?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him go ahead. 3968

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is Exhibit 406? A. 406 is the reply to the same set of questions prepared by the buyer of Department 350.

Q. Who prepared it? A. Miss McAllenny.

Q. Did you have anything to do with it? A. I supervised the preparation.

Q. 407. A. The same thing, answer to the same set of questions submitted by the Federal Trade Commission and prepared by Miss Morgan in Department 371 and Department 373.

Q. Did you have anything to do with it? A. I checked the resources and answered the question form. 3969

Q. 408? A. 408 is a copy of the reply to the questions submitted by the Federal Trade Commission prepared by the buyer of Department 382.

Q. Who prepared it? A. Mrs. Ransdell.

Q. Did you have anything to do with it? A. I assisted in checking the resources.

Q. 409? A. 409 is a—are the replies to the same set of questions submitted by the Federal Trade Commission and prepared by Mr. March, 358 department.

3970 Samuel J. Chance—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Did you have anything to do with it? A. I checked the list of resources there.

Q. Now, will you please testify as to the resources of that department with the Guild purchases; that is, members of the Guild prior to February, 1936? A. May I check with that list which I prepared, helped to prepare?

Examiner Bennett: Now, if you have any questions, Mr. Weisman, as to the identification—oh, well, all right.

Mr. Weisman: At the proper time I will make the proper motions.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

A. A—One Dress at 1400 Broadway; International Dress——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. It is perfectly obvious that the witness hasn't got a refreshed recollection. He has the ability to read English. He is just reading from it. If it is going to refresh his recollection let him look at it and have him put it down and tell us how his recollection is refreshed.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that is not necessary if he knows that the matter is correct, or did know that it was correct at the time that he made it.

3972 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know that that was correct? A. I testified as to that, sir. I helped to prepare this list of resources.

Examiner Bennett: And you know it to be correct?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: You did know it to be correct when you prepared it?

The Witness: International Dress, 1400 Broadway.

Mr. Weisman: What is that first one?

The Witness: Aywon Dress is the first one. Within & Schnider.

Mr. Weisman: What was the third one?

The Witness: Within & Schnider.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: I mentioned E. & M. Marcus Weinberg——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where are they located? A. E. & M. Marcus in 3974
Boston. Weinberg, Weinberg & Alpern, 1400 Broadway.

Q. That is New York City? A. New York City.

Q. Within & Schnider is in Philadelphia, is it not? A. Yes, sir. C. H. D. Robbins, 1375 Broadway; Rosen Brothers, 1400 Broadway; Bernard Appel, Boston; Lyttle Brothers, 1400 Broadway; George Hess, 1385 Broadway; Anderman & Bob Burns, 1385 Broadway; F. E. D. Dress, 1400 Broadway; Cecele Dance Frock, 1584 Broadway; Goldstein & Entin, 1410 Broadway; Schultze-Zuch, 1385 Broadway; Sheila-Lynn Dresses, 525 Seventh Avenue.

Examiner Bennett: That is a list of your sources of supply for what?

The Witness: Prior to our being red carded for Departments 338 and 358. 3975

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: I believe your Honor is slightly in error. He said right along that these were some of the sources. Your Honor has said the sources.

Examiner Bennett: Well, the sources of supply. They were sources of supply.

Mr. Weisman: That is right.

Examiner Bennett: I believe I said sources of supply.

Mr. Haycraft: With the Guild, from the Guild manufacturers.

Examiner Bennett: Well, they were sources of supply.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Of the Guild manufacturers.

The Witness: That is right, sir.

Mr. Weisman: There is no doubt we sold the merchandise. If we didn't we wouldn't be interested in it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

3977 Q. Have you prepared—strike that out. Have you had prepared a statement showing the total volume of business done with the various sources of supply, members of the Guild prior to February, 1936, during the year 1935? A. Yes, sir; I have.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark that for identification.

(List of Guild manufacturers and amount of business transacted from February 1, 1935, to January 31, 1936, with Strawbridge & Clothier was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 410.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

3978 Q. Is this paper I now hand you such a statement? A. Yes, sir. That is the list that was made by our accounts payable department.

Q. Who prepared it? A. Why, it was prepared by——

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to its competency, if that is what you want.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly. Thank you.

Mr. Weisman: Offer it and it is O.K. with me.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: It will be received.

Mr. Weisman: No objection. What is its number?

The Reporter: Commission's Exhibit 410.

(The list referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 410, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were the garments purchased from these sources of supply during 1935 and January, 1936, sold through the departments which you have referred to in your testimony here to-day? A. They were sold to the departments which 3980
I supervised.

Q. Would they include 331, 350, 371, 373, 382, 338 and 358? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute, please. Don't answer. I object to that question, "would they include that." I mean, the question is perfectly immaterial. If he states would they include that —he stated that they would cover all of the departments that he supervised. Now, his testimony on the point of what departments he supervised were departments 491, 358, 338, 371, 331, 350, 492, 493, 491, 473, 382 and 358. I submit that the question "Would it include those?" is perfectly immaterial. 3981

Mr. Haycraft: Well, his testimony was as to the Guild merchandise and what departments they were sold in.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. All right. The objection is overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark these for identification.

(Documents referred to were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 411, 412, 413 and 414.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 411 to 414, both inclusive, and ask if you can identify them? A. I can.

Q. What are they? A. They are retail price line comparisons for various departments which I supervised for the year 1935 as against 1936, February to end of June—February 1, to end of June, inclusive.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer these.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you give the department numbers? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer them in evidence.

The Witness: I said there were several departments which I supervised.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Department 331, Commission's Exhibit 414; Department 338, Exhibit 412; Department 358, Commission's Exhibit 413; and Department 371, Exhibit 414. Is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer those in evidence.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 411, 412, 413 and 414, were marked as exhibits and received 3984 in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this for identification.

(Document referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 415.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 415. I ask you whether you can identify it. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a comparison chart showing the increase or decrease——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I object to the witness testifying as to what it is. If he wants to identify it and then it is going to be put in evidence, that is one thing, or how it was prepared, but not a description of what a document is. That is for the Court upon its examination to state.

Examiner Bennett: He may characterize it in a general way.

Mr. Weisman: I except.

A. It is a comparison chart showing the increase or de- 3986 crease in a breakdown of departments that have formerly purchased from Guild manufacturers under my supervision, and those other departments that did not purchase from Guild manufacturers.

By Mr. Hayeraft.

Q. Those other departments are under your supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: That is, in the same line of merchandise?

The Witness: Same line of merchandise; yes, sir.

By Mr. Hayeraft. 3987

Q. Now, for what period of time? A. It is February 1 to end of June, comparison of 1935 and 1936.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the preparation of this? A. This is prepared by our statistical department.

Q. Did you check it in any way? A. Checked it against our own figures, sir.

Q. The first column there under February, 1935——

Mr. Weisman: I object to all of this identification of the first column or the second column and all of this. I submit either the paper is competent or it isn't competent. If it is competent it should go into evidence and thereafter speak for itself; if it isn't competent I think we have passed the bounds of propriety with regard to a description of it.

Mr. Haycraft: I think, Mr. Examiner, that there should be certain explanations of the figures.

Mr. Weisman: Well, you can give the explanations after it goes into evidence, if it is competent.

3989 Mr. Haycraft: I met with that same objection last time. That is exactly what I did before.

Examiner Bennett: It is all right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The first column there under February, 1935.

Mr. Weisman: May I have an exception?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing) There are certain typewritten figures. What do they represent? A. In February, 1935——

Q. What do they represent? That is dollars, cents? A. It represents the total dollar volume.

3990 Q. Expressed in units or dollars? A. Expressed in thousands.

Q. All right. In February, 1936, column, what do those typewritten figures represent? A. That represents total thousands of dollars of business, net sales for those departments for that particular period.

Q. All right. And the third column is Inc. Dec. What does that represent? A. That represents the increase or the decrease of the 1936 figure for the same period over the 1935 figure.

Q. If it is an increase what color is the type? A. Black.

Q. If it is a decrease what color is the type? A. Red.

Q. Does that same description apply to the balance of the exhibits and the other respective columns? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, on the right-hand, the lower right-hand column, there seems to be some totals drawn off. What do they represent? A. It represents the total of these figures above here for the period which this is drawn out for, five months.

Mr. Haycraft: That is offered in evidence, Mr. Examiner. 3992

Mr. Weisman: May I examine a moment on it?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know where the rest of this charming piece of paper is, this part that was cut off here? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what was contained thereon before it was cut off? A. That is the way it was submitted to me.

Q. Can you give me any explanation for the present seeming mutilation? A. No, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the use of the word "mutilation."

Mr. Weisman: It is perfectly obvious that it is mutilated. Something was here that has been cut off. 3993

I have no objection.

Examiner Bennett: What?

Mr. Weisman: I say, I don't object to this going into evidence.

Examiner Bennett: All right. It will be received in evidence.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 415, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What departments have you included in this Commission's Exhibit 415, the departments buying from Guild?

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. Just a minute. What is that question?
(Question read.)

A. 331, 338, 350——

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. 331, 338?
The Witness: 350.
3995 Mr. Weisman: 350?
The Witness: 371.
Mr. Weisman: Yes?
The Witness: 373.
Mr. Weisman: Yes.
The Witness: 358. Have I mentioned that?
Mr. Weisman: No.
The Witness: 358. That is all.

Q. How about the 382? A. 382 is not in that figure.

Q. Why did you not include No. 352? A. Because the total sum of purchases from the Guild in that department was very insignificant.

Q. Very insignificant? A. Very insignificant.

3996 Q. The balance of the departments that you gave in your original testimony are included in the statement "No Guild Resources"? A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. That is true.

Q. And——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): I ask—will you ask him why he did not include 491, Department 491?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In which division did you include Department No. 491? A. Department No. 491 is included in the division which is specified as "Non-Guild Resources."

Q. Why did you include 491 in that division? A. Because no purchases were made from Guild resources for that particular department.

Q. Now, Mr. Chance, have you formed an opinion as to the effect of red carding by Guild manufacturers selling Strawbridge & Clothier upon the business of the respective departments to which you testified this morning aside from 350, which you have already testified to, those departments being Nos. 331, 371, 373, 382, 338, 358, from 3998 the standpoint of price lines—the effect upon price lines sold by these various departments?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. The question is: Have you an opinion, that is what Mr. Haycraft wants to know. A. Yes, sir, I have.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state it, please? A. Our comparison chart 3999 which we have made up definitely shows that certain price lines that were red carded with the Guild resources show a decrease upon a comparison of 1935.

There are certain type of dresses or types of dresses that we had difficulty in securing at the time we were red carded and subsequently caused loss of sales.

In addition to that the cost of sending out buyers to various markets to try to develop or buy merchandise to replace our Guild resources was, in addition to our usual expenses, an addition to the expense or cost of doing business.

Mr. Weisman: I move that the answer be stricken out as irresponsive.

Examiner Bennett: I will let it stand.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you an opinion as to this red carding upon the good will of Strawbridge & Clothier with regard to Departments Nos. 331, 371, 350, 373, 382, 338, 358? A. Yes, sir, I have an opinion.

4001

Q. The question is just if you have an opinion. A. I do.

Q. Will you please state it? A. The Guild manufacturers represented the highest type of manufacturers in the United States, if not the world——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): I ask that the witness be directed to answer the question and not to give us a stump speech as to Guild manufacturers. He was asked a very simple question and I ask that he answer it. We all know that the Guild manufacturers are the best in the world, and that is the reason they are Guild manufacturers.

4002 By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Tell us your opinion and then you can make any explanation of it that you desire.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully object to the Court's direction of the witness to give an explanation.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. There are certain type of dresses that we had difficulty in securing——

Examiner Bennett: That is not an answer.

Mr. Weisman: I object.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was your opinion? I asked you to give your opinion as to the effect on the good will. A. It affected our good will.

Q. In what way did it affect your good will, adversely or favorably? A. Sir?

Q. Did it affect your good will adversely or favorably? 4004
A. Adversely.

Q. Explain how it did. A. The Guild resources represented the highest degree of styling and the better makers, all the better makers in the dress market. Our buyers had had a certain number of years' experience in conducting, contacting and buying from these same resources. They have, in turn, built up a certain following for certain type of dresses; customers have been over a period of years, in long period of years, accustomed to buying dresses of a certain calibre or character from the departments and from our store, and when they found that we did not carry that same type or class of merchandise in our stocks that has resulted in the loss of sales. When they found out that we did not carry in our stocks this same type of merchandise, we would lose the sales. 4005

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out as irresponsive and showing no foundation.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I believe you testified in respect of—strike that out—I will ask you, do you have an opinion as to the effect upon the good will of Strawbridge & Clothier in the divisions that you have under your supervision, or departments, as the result of the inability of Strawbridge & Clothier to place re-orders with Guild manufacturers for garments that they had had in stock at the time of the red carding; at the time the red carding took place?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and improper in form; the question is hardly intelligible, and I do not believe it is understandable.

Examiner Bennett: I do not think so. Overruled. You may answer.

4007 Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The question is, have you an opinion? A. Yes, sir, I have.

Q. The question was if you had an opinion. A. I said yes, sir.

Q. Will you state the opinion, and give an explanation of it? A. In the stocking of dresses——

Q. (Interposing) I believe I asked you first if you had an opinion and then to give an explanation for it. A. Well, may I have the question again, please? Maybe I did not understand the question.

(The question was read to the witness.)

A. Yes, it has affected our sales.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. First, have you got an opinion on that, Mr. Witness? A. Yes, sir, I have got an opinion on that, sir. It has an effect on our good will, adversely.

Q. Yes. Now, if you want to make an explanation, why— A. I would, sir. When a customer is in the habit of securing a product or dresses from any particular store and suddenly that particular type cannot be procured for them, particularly an item that is fashionable as dresses, and people do not wish to wait for them as styles change frequently, they are undoubtedly—go to other stores to shop, and whether—and there is no question in my mind that the good will of our store certainly is affected in that way.

(Whereupon, at 12 noon, a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M.)

AFTERNOON SESSION, 2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I believe you have testified, Mr. Chance, that there were outstanding orders in some—with Guild manufacturers who were furnishing garments for some of your departments, I believe 350, if I remember correctly. I will ask you whether or not, as——

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. May the beginning of that question be stricken out?

By Mr. Haycraft. 4011

Q. As divisional——

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to complete my question.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is all right. Let it stand. Overruled.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —as divisional manager whether or not you attempted to obtain garments on orders placed with Guild manufacturers that were pending at the time of the red carding? A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. Will you testify as to what efforts you made to have those orders filled?

Mr. Weisman: I submit that has already been answered.

Mr. Haycraft: No, it hasn't.

Mr. Weisman: This morning, unless you have something particular. I remember distinctly he 4013 testified that he told his buyers to go out and that they went out and found it very difficult, or words to that effect.

Mr. Haycraft: That was some specific department. Now, I am referring to his whole division, all the Guild manufacturers that are involved in this proceeding. That is the reason I prefaced my question with the remarks that I did.

Mr. Weisman: I submit the preface is wrong and the question is wrong, and I object to it in its form, and I ask that we have a proper question put on the record so that we may know what is what.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Go ahead.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you read the question, please?

4014 (Question read.)

A. We mailed letters to these manufacturers, registered letters indicating that we wished a return signature for the receipt of those particular letters urging the delivery of merchandise on order with Guild houses that we were red carded with.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you testify as to the name of the manufacturers to whom you sent such letters?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to unless the letters are offered, and they are the best evidence. He has them before him.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 416 for Identification, Mr. Chance, and ask you if that is one referred to in your testimony a moment ago? A. This is a duplicate of a letter which I have dictated and sent to H. Robinson. 4016

Q. You sent the original of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you send letters in exactly the same language to other manufacturers?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to unless he specifies the manufacturers. He has got the list there. He is trying to make a general statement when he knows there was only a particular number of letters sent. That is another exhibition of the way counsel for the Commission is trying to put innuendo in this case instead of evidence. Now he has got the letters in his hand. Why aren't the letters offered and then we will know who they sent them to. The word "others" might mean everybody or nobody or somebody. I object to this form of pro- 4017 cedure.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Please object and don't fill the record with a lot of harangue.

Mr. Haycraft: May I——

Examiner Bennett: Yes, go ahead.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Weisman: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask you to be specific. I wish you would say so and so, and so and so, and so and so.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you send a letter in exactly the same language to Gardner Schwartz, New York City; Goldstein & Enten, Boston, Mass.; Harry Genz, Inc., New York City; Harry Frank, New York City; Robinson Brothers, Boston, Mass.; Frank Star-Friedlander, Inc., New York; Herman Bistel, New York City? A. May I see the letters, please?

4019 (The letters were handed to the witness.)

A. Yes, sir. These are duplicates of letters which I have sent.

Q. Do they name the individuals indicated? A. The individuals cited are upon each copy.

Mr. Haycraft: All right. I will offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit 416 for Identification, the first one which the witness identified.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you receive any reply to those letters?

Mr. Weisman: I object to any reference to any letters not in evidence.

4020 Examiner Bennett: All right. I think probably your objection is good except as to that letter.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 416, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: Then I offer in evidence again Commission's Exhibits 417 to 423.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Received.

Mr. Weisman: No objection, if they are offered for the purpose of merely showing that he wrote to these people and requested merchandise, and without any offer that there is any truth of the statements therein contained, otherwise it would be merely hearsay what he wrote to somebody.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not restricting the offer in any respect.

Mr. Weisman: Then I object to them unless the offer is restricted to show a demand for the merchandise and nothing else. They are all the same, so if you read one, Judge, you have read them all.

Examiner Bennett: They may be received. If 4022 there is an objection it is overruled.

Mr. Weisman: May I ask whether or not they are received generally?

Examiner Bennett: They will be received for all purposes.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

(The letters referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422 and 423, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you receive any replies to those letters? A. Did not. 4023

Q. Did you receive the goods from those manufacturers? A. I am sorry. I didn't get the question.

Q. Did you receive any of the goods that were on order from those manufacturers? A. We did not.

Mr. Haycraft: Your witness.

Mr. Weisman: I would like to have the exhibits in this case commencing with Exhibit No. 400 right down.

(The exhibits referred to were handed to Mr. Weisman.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, Mr. Chance, what is your present position? A. Divisional merchandise manager for Strawbridge & Clothier.

Q. And I understand that you became divisional merchandise manager in February of this year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what part of February did you become divisional merchandise manager? A. Officially, February 1, 1936.

4025 Q. As such divisional merchandise manager, are you one of the executives of the Strawbridge & Clothier organization? A. I have not asked whether I am on the executive board or not. I am sorry. I misunderstood your question. May I have that again?

Q. Well, I understood that you said that you are not on the executive board. A. May I have your question?

Q. No. Answer that. Did you say you were not on the executive board?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Just answer responsively. If so, say so.

A. I am so considered.

4026

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. By whom? A. By the firm, my business associates.

Q. When you say "by the firm," whom do you mean? Strawbridge & Clothier is a corporation. It is an inanimate thing. A. I mean the officers of that organization.

Q. Who are those officers who so consider you? A. Mr. Tily as the president.

Q. Yes. A. We have various other officers, general merchandise manager, divisional merchandise manager, managers.

Q. What is the executive board that you refer to? A. That was simply a statement. I can't go into it, sir, not a secret; it is a misstatement.

Q. I want to know from you; I am asking you what is the executive board? A. I can't answer your question.

Q. What do you mean by that? You don't want to answer? A. I don't know.

Q. Where did you hear that term? A. Well, I have heard that term quite often in life.

Q. Did you ever hear it as applied to Strawbridge & 4028
Clothier? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you mean when you said you weren't one of the executive board if you never heard of it in connection with Strawbridge & Clothier?

Mr. Haycraft: I don't see, Mr. Examiner—he didn't say that. I object to the question.

Mr. Weisman: Will you please stop interrupting me until my question is asked?

The Witness: I corrected my statement and I said I was sorry I misunderstood you.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you understand me to ask whether you were a member of the executive board when you made that reply? 4029
A. I thought I heard that; yes, sir.

Q. Shortly after, or in the same week that you became divisional merchandise manager, Strawbridge & Clothier had this difference with the Guild; isn't that right? A. What do you mean by difference?

Q. Well, the Guild arrived at a conclusion, correctly or incorrectly, that it was no longer your policy to correct style originations? A. We were red carded by the F.O.G.A. in that early part of February.

Q. And that is what you understood by it? A. Well, I wanted to make sure.

Q. You did? A. Yes.

Q. Well, do you not so now understand it? A. What?

Q. In other words, that the Guild has red carded you, or that the manufacturers have received notification by red card, or by other colored card that it is no longer your intention to protect style originations of its members?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not within the knowledge of this witness.

Mr. Weisman: This witness has suddenly be-4031 come frightfully ignorant on his cross-examination, whereas on his direct examination his perspicacity was remarked to an extraordinary degree.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. That was at the discretion of the Guild that we were red carded. We took no part in red carding ourselves.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I did not say that you did. I did not say that you did. I say, did you not so understand that Guild members are now refusing to sell you merchandise because it is on the information, correctly or incorrectly, that it is no longer your policy to protect style piracy defenses; pro-4032 tect against style piracy? A. I so assume. I would assume such.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant as to what this witness understands.

Mr. Weisman: It is very important.

Mr. Haycraft: It is of no importance.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The reason that the Guild may have had for red carding was known to you, was it not?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. The reason that the Guild may have for red carding this witness, or his firm, I think are most important.

Examiner Bennett: I sustained the objection on the theory that the question has been answered. I see now that it has not been answered. I will let him answer. 4034

A. I assume such.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask your Honor to instruct the witness that he is not to answer until I have had an opportunity to get in my objection.

Examiner Bennett: Please do so.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, as an executive of Strawbridge & Clothier, do you not know at the present time that it is not the policy of Strawbridge & Clothier to protect style originations of members of the Guild? 4035

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. I do.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You do? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, that change in policy has been in force ever since February of this year; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to February, 1936, you know, and knew, did you not, that the firm of Strawbridge & Clothier caused all of its buyers to place on its orders the statement in word or substance that the seller warranted the goods as not being copies of originations originated or created by Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes.

Q. Is that so? A. Yes.

4037 Q. And you also know that Strawbridge & Clothier, prior to the date last referred to, also, by its orders, reserved the right to return any merchandise which was not as warranted; is that so? A. Prior to February 1, 1936, I am not in touch with whatever conditions or clauses or arrangements with the Fashion Originators Guild of America there were except as others explained it to me; namely, as it was explained to me by the divisional merchandise manager at that time.

Mr. Weisman: May we have Commission's Exhibit 306?

Examiner Bennett: You may.

Mr. Weisman: Here it is. Thank you.

4038 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That stamp in words and figures is as follows: "This order is placed upon the seller's warranty that the above garments are not copies of styles originated by members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. The purchaser reserves the right to return any merchandise which is not as warranted." Was it not in that form?

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Did you not say you had no knowledge of the relations between the Guild and your employing firm prior to February 1, 1936? A. No, sir. I said I did not know what the exact detail of the conditions were, but I do know of the stamp that we were asked to use by the divisional manager. I have a copy of that stamp here in my pocket that I would like to show if I may be permitted to do so.

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, prior to that time you were a 4040
buyer, were you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the course of the performance of your duties as buyer, were you not instructed to use this stamp? A. Yes, sir; I was.

Q. And did you use it? A. I did.

Mr. Haycraft: I object unless the witness is allowed to look at this copy, and the copy that he has of his own stamp to find out if the stamp was the same, the stamp that he was required to use was the same stamp that counsel is now referring to and reading from. I think that the witness has a right to compare the two in order to be certain that his stamp is the same as the other stamp. There is no indication here that it is the same. 4041

Mr. Weisman: It certainly goes to a test of his credibility, and to his knowledge for that matter, as to the knowledge that he had of the conduct of the business.

Examiner Bennett: One moment. Is that the same stamp used by this firm?

Mr. Weisman: No, I do not have a copy of the stamp but this was used generally.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you got a copy of that stamp with you? A. I have a copy of the one that we used. May I refer to that, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: You may refer to it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you do so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you a copy of the stamp that Strawbridge & Clothier used prior to February 1, 1936? A. This is the stamp (indicating certain markings on a sheet of paper).

4043 Q. Have you produced it? A. The stamp?

Q. Yes. A. No, this is not the stamp.

Q. Have you produced the legend? A. Yes, this is it.

Q. This is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you let me see it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I have it? A. Here it is.

Mr. Weisman: May I offer this in evidence, if your Honor please?

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled. It will be received in evidence as Respondents' Exhibit 20.

(The legend referred to was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 20 and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. At the time that you were using this stamp you were a buyer for Strawbridge & Clothier? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were not divisional merchandise manager? A. No.

Q. You were not? A. No.

Q. Now, are you sure about that? A. That is correct.

Q. That is correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What department were you a buyer for? A. The House Dress Department.

Q. House what? A. House dress.

Q. House department? A. No, House Dress Department.

Q. House Dress Department? A. Yes.

Q. What is the number of the House Dress Department? A. 492.

Q. Any other number? A. Yes, 493.

Q. 492 and 493? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 373? A. No, sir. 4046

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 382? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 385? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 491? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 358? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 338? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 371? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 331? A. No. 4047

Q. Prior to February 1, 1936, were you connected with Department No. 350? A. No.

Q. Since you have become divisional merchandise manager have you, in the course of the performance of your duties had occasion to ascertain what was the general conduct of your particular departments, those particular departments which I have enumerated prior to February 1, 1936? A. Well——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and no foundation, because this was not gone into on his direct testimony. So far as the direct testimony is concerned, he was asked about matters only during the time that he was divisional merchandise manager.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court said you may answer. A. I do not quite understand that question.

4049 Mr. Weisman: May I have it read to him? I will have it read to you if the Court so orders, and then say what there is you do not understand and I will try to explain it to you if you will tell me what it is that you do not understand.

Examiner Bennett: You may read the question. (Question read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is there you do not understand about it? A. What do you mean by "general conduct"?

Q. Well, do you know, from your examination of the operation of those departments prior to February 1, 1936, whether or not each and every buyer of those departments upon placing an order, had a stamp placed upon it similar 4050 to—no, not similar but exactly identical with respondents' Exhibit 20 in evidence: "yes" or "no"? A. I do not know.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. That is what I was afraid would come up. I move to strike the answer.

Examiner Bennett: He says he does not know. That would seem to settle that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you mean to say that you do not know whether or not prior to February 1, 1936, Strawbridge & Clothier attached to their orders for those departments, other than the one which you were buyer in, their so-called "warranty stamp"? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. I move the answer be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. I do not know.

By Mr. Weisman. 4052

Q. Did you, prior to testifying here, or upon your accession to the position of divisional merchandise manager, seek to ascertain whether or not such stamp had been affixed by the buyers to orders in the other departments?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. That is not my responsibility—that was not my responsibility at that time, I mean.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What? A. That was not my responsibility at that 4053 time.

Q. I do not care whether it was your responsibility or not. I asked you if you found that out to be a fact?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. I do not.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you,—strike that out. Did you not in the exercise of your duties as merchandise manager for Strawbridge & Clothier Company think that it was encumbent upon you to ascertain in some degree what had been the practice in these departments before you came there?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to on the same ground as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not a part of the direct testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

4055 A. That is one phase of the business that I did not check into and do not know and cannot answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you make any investigation of any kind, nature, or description as to what had occurred in these departments prior to the time that you got in there as divisional merchandise manager thereof? A. Examinations as to what?

Q. That is what I am trying to have; that is what I am trying to find out from you.

Q. When you became divisional merchandise manager on February 1, 1936, or at any time since then have you made any study or investigation with regard to the conduct of those various departments prior to your having 4056 become divisional merchandise manager, Mr. Chance? A. Is the word "conduct" left out. I do not quite understand. What is the meaning of the word "conduct"? What is meant by "conduct."

Q. No, the word "conduct" is not left out. Please answer it with the word "conduct" in it.

The Witness: Judge, I would like to know what is meant by the word "conduct."

Examiner Bennett: That has a meaning, a definite meaning, one or several of them, and one is the way in which the business was conducted.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: The routine and so on.

The Witness: I haven't made any, Judge, as to any specific routine as has been brought out in the way of the stamp, I mean, that is one specific instance that I can mention. The only thing that I was vitally interested in was reviewing at the time things came up, conduct, or the way sales fluctuated, price lines. I mean, that would generally interest me, that would be helpful in making my 4058 plans.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, let me ask you this: Do you know what was the budget of the Strawbridge & Clothier organization, the advertising budget for these departments for the months January 1, 1935, to June 1, 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant, immaterial and improper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you any knowledge of the number of promotional sales—— 4059

Mr. Haycraft: You did not make any offer of proof. I don't want to interrupt, but you didn't make any offer of proof.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, excuse me. Withdraw the question. I then make this offer of proof: If I had been permitted to query the witness along these lines, it would have developed, or I would have been enabled to develop that this witness had no knowledge of the amount of advertising done by Strawbridge & Clothier in the particular period referred to.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the number of promotional sales had by Strawbridge & Clothier during the period January 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, in the departments of which you are now divisional manager? A. I don't understand your question as to promotional sales.

4061 Q. Do you mean to tell us that as a divisional merchandise manager you don't know what a promotional sale is? A. My opinion may be different than yours.

Q. Do you know what the term "promotional sales" means?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. There is no foundation laid for that.

A. Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you get that information in the course of the performance of your duties as a person in charge of merchandising with Strawbridge & Clothier? A. It is a gen-

4062 eral term used in the business.

Q. And generally known to all who have dealings therein? A. Somewhat.

Q. Commonly known? A. Yes.

Q. Now, tell us what is meant by that commonly known term? A. My interpretation would be the purchasing of any amount of merchandise and promoting it for sales results.

Q. Yes. Well, that is, to—how do you differentiate from the ordinary purchases or ordinary transactions that you have in the store? A. It depends upon the amount of effort put behind an item.

Q. Tell us. We don't know anything about this and you do. Now, don't presume that we do know something. Tell us what you mean by the amount of effort put behind the item. A. Well, by an amount of effort——

Q. Speak up so we can all hear. A. By the amount of effort I mean advertising, selling effort placed behind it.

Q. What was that last? A. Selling effort. Display. Many things are taken into consideration.

Q. What do you mean by selling effort? A. By selling 4064 effort, that can be probably connected with advertising and display.

Q. You mean by that that stores holding promotional sales attempt to accelerate the sale of their merchandise by giving to the particular departments a greater amount of display space than they ordinarily have, a greater amount of advertising than their budget ordinarily carries, and generally pushing the department sales; isn't that so? A. I couldn't say that. That would depend upon the individuals.

Q. What do you do in your store when you want to promote the sales in a particular department as differentiated from your ordinary regular sale of merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. No founda- 4065
tion was laid that he knows about any other store, or whether he ever put on any such promotional sales. You had better find out whether he ever put on any such promotional sale.

Examiner Bennett: I don't think there is any foundation for this at Strawbridge & Clothier. I don't think you have brought out that Strawbridge & Clothier has any promotional sales.

Mr. Weisman: All right. We will find out.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you ever, while you were connected with Strawbridge & Clothier, learned that Strawbridge & Clothier do engage in promotional sales?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, unless it is confined to the time that he was divisional merchandise manager.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I am——

Mr. Haycraft: No. I am asking that he be restricted to that time.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

4067 Examiner Bennett: There is a reason why I have been very liberal in this matter. This witness at your solicitation has made certain comparisons running back to the early part of 1935, as I remember. Now, those comparisons might be affected by this sort of cross-examination, and that is the reason that I am entertaining the cross-examination, and I am going to entertain it as long as it brings out facts that will help us.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you. May we have the question and the answer.

(Record read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that unless it is confined to the period that the Examiner indicated. It should be restricted to beginning with January, 4068 1935.

Examiner Bennett: Of course, I expect you to to confine it to that time.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Bennett: That this witness started.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: As I understand it, it was some time in 1935.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not since January, 1935, in the dress departments, whether Strawbridge & Clothier have ever had any promotional sales? A. Yes, we have promotions in our departments from time to time.

Q. When you say you have such promotional sales in your departments from time to time, how frequently would you say that you have such promotional sales? A. I am not in a position to say.

Q. I want your best opinion. A. It would be a guess.

Q. I don't—what is your best guess? You are now divisional merchandise manager.

4070

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any guesses or opinions. I have no objection to the witness stating since he has been merchandise manager how many of those promotional sales they have had. If the question is restricted to that I am not objecting; otherwise, I do object.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask the witness to state what he knows about it.

The Witness: I can't judge. It is a question of carrying records around as to how many sales we have. If I stated one or ten, I may be wrong.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Let's see. Do I understand you to say that you have been divisional merchandise manager now for about six and a half months; isn't that so? A. That is right. 4071

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, as to the form of the question. I don't think we are interested in what counsel understands.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Didn't you testify that you were divisional merchandise manager for about six and a half months? A. I have.

Q. And isn't it a fact? A. Yes.

Q. Now, during those six and a half months, do I understand you to say in answer to the query given to you by the Court, that you don't know, and you couldn't say whether you had one promotional sale during that period in these departments, or ten promotional sales?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as to the form. We aren't interested in what counsel for the respondent understands, and I don't think the Commission is interested in that.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is perfectly all right.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

4073 The Witness: That is a fact, Judge.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, how many did you have in the last six months? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you have fifty? A. I wouldn't guess.

Q. Weren't they made, if they were had, under your direction? A. They were made, but I have many departments, and I cannot remember.

Q. Well, let's see. Did you have any promotional sales in February, 1936? A. I don't remember.

Q. If you had them, wouldn't you be inclined to remember them?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

4074 The Witness: Anything unusual I might.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Isn't a promotional sale unusual? A. I don't recall any that were unusual that month.

Q. Well, now, let's go on. That month was February, was it, that we covered? A. I don't know.

Examiner Bennett: That was February.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, what about March? Did you have any promotional sales in March, 1936? A. I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall any? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't say that, Mr. Examiner.

The Witness: I said I didn't recall.

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't say "any."

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you recall any?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner. If he doesn't recall, he can't recall specifically. 4076

Mr. Weisman: Oh, I don't know why—why don't you take the stand and testify. It would be a lot easier for all concerned.

Mr. Haycraft: You are doing very well for all of us.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you recall a single promotional sale in March, 1936? A. I do not.

Q. Coming now to April, 1936, do you recall a single promotional sale that you had in April in any one of these departments? A. I cannot remember that—when our promotions were in any month since I have been divisional 4077 manager.

Q. Well, let's bring you down to May. That is only two and a half months ago.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. He has already testified——

Mr. Weisman: I want a specific denial of this man who testified with such glibness to the way the good will was affected of this $50,000,000 institution, who doesn't remember whether 20 days ago they had a promotional sale.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, let's see. By the way, aren't these promotional sales also indulged in for the purpose of promoting good will, or don't you know that, either? A. I don't.

Q. Good. Notwithstanding that you think you are in a position to pass upon good will; do you? A. Depends on just what purpose one has in mind in promoting.

Q. I see. Now, in May, 1936—I will withdraw that.
4079 You already testified you didn't remember about May; isn't that so? A. I testified I do not know how many promotions.

Q. What about June, 1936? Did you have any promotional sales in June, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling. He may answer.

The Witness: We had a store—wide, promotion, if that may be considered.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You had a store-wide promotion? A. It is an anniversary sale.

4080 Q. Did that store-wide promotion indulged in in June, 1936, extend to the departments which came under your supervision and direction? A. Yes.

Q. So that you do remember in June, 1936, you did have a promotional sale? A. It is considered a store-wide sale and not a promotional sale of dresses, particularly.

Q. Well, in that store-wide sale, do you, as divisional merchandise manager, have a promotional sale in your dress departments? A. We take part in the store-wide sale.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know of any facts upon which you can base a comparison of the number of promotional sales had in these dress departments during the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, as compared to the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936?

The Witness: What is that question?

Q. (Question read.) A. Do I understand that to mean strictly promotional sales?

Q. Yes. A. I have none.

Q. Well, don't you know that promotional sales due accelerate the volume done in the departments? Don't you know that? A. You are telling me. 4082

Q. Well, do you know it? A. It depends upon the type of promotion and the effort placed behind it.

Q. Isn't the purpose of a promotional sale in a department for the purpose of increasing the sales in that department? A. It could mean almost anything.

Q. Well, no. What does it mean when you do it? Is that your purpose? A. No, it may have—it may have several meanings, so far as I am concerned, in promoting.

Q. Now, we would like to find out the several meanings that it would have so far as you are concerned. What are the several meanings? A. Well, we may want to promote a style——

Q. Not what "we may want." I want to know the purpose of your promotional sales, not what they might be, but what they are, or have been for. A. I may want to promote a specific style, I may want to promote a specific price line; I may want to promote a fashion item. It has many significances in the way of promotion. 4083

Q. Now, what is the purpose of seeking to promote these things? Is it not to accelerate the sale of them? A. There is no way that we can measure what the response is to any promotion.

Q. I don't ask you what the response is. I ask you what the purpose is. Are you trying to tell—I will withdraw that. Are you trying to tell us that a promotional sale is not for the purpose of increasing the sales volume? A. You are speaking of a definite time?

Q. I am speaking of what you do? A. At what time?

Q. At any time. A. The results in promotions are generally hoped to be sales.

Q. I am not asking you for the results. I am asking you for the purposes. A. They are the purpose we hope for them to give us sales.

Q. In other words, you indulge in promotional sales for 4085 the purpose of increasing your sales? A. We hope that they will.

Q. Isn't that so? Yes. And when you say you hope, that is your expression of purpose; isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. What was the volume of your advertising in these departments during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever seek to ascertain? A. I may have seen the figures.

Q. Do you have any recollection of them, if you have seen them? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see the figures of the advertising done in the departments during the period February 1, 1935 to June 30, 1935? A. I may not have seen that particular figure.

4086 Q. I don't ask you what may or may not. I ask you: Do you have any recollection of ever having seen them? A. I do not have any recollection.

Q. Did you ever compare the amount of advertising done in these departments now under your supervision during the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, with the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. May I have that question, please?

Q. (Question read.) A. No, I have not seen that relation.

Q. Now, don't you know as divisional merchandise manager that the purpose is of advertising? A. The purpose of advertising is to sell our customers, or the public, or offer for sale that which we have to offer.

Q. Why do you do that—is there any help being given to you over in this corner (indicating)? A. Do you see any?

Q. Why do you constantly look over there? A. I am looking all over the room.

Q. Well, please look at me; won't you try? A. I will try, yes.

Examiner Bennett: Please don't make that sort of reflection on the witness. 4088

Mr. Weisman: Well, it has happened about ten times.

Mr. Haycraft: There is nothing to it at all.

Examiner Bennett: I wish you would refrain from that sort of reflection on the witness.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Will you answer the question? A. May I have the question, please?

Q. (Question read.) A. We hope to increase sales.

Q. You hope to increase sales. And haven't you found in your experience as a divisional merchandise manager that a larger amount of advertising is prone to increase the volume done in particular departments? A. Not always. 4089

Q. Not always, but I want to know what it does generally. A. I coulda't testify as to what it does generally.

Q. Well, do you mean to say that you don't know that the purpose of your advertising is to increase your sales? A. I do.

Q. Well, then, why don't you say so when I ask you?

Examiner Bennett: He spoke of the departments. You are asking him now exactly a question that even a technical advertising man wouldn't answer with any confidence.

Mr. Weisman: I don't know. I know some that would.

Examiner Bennett: You haven't qualified him.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. To clear up the record, isn't it part of a merchandise manager's business to know the relation between advertising and sales? Isn't that part of your job? A. Yes.

4091 Q. Don't you know, as a part of that job, that in this business of merchandising dress departments, there is a generally accepted ratio between sales and advertising? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know that the amount of advertising is generally supposed to reflect itself in the amount of sales? A. You say generally, but that is not a true fact.

Q. What do you mean by that? I want your help. A. I mean this: that a buyer sometime or other may promote merchandise which the public does not wish to accept.

Q. Yes. That is sometimes. But I am speaking about generally without the specific exceptions. I know that you might advertise a cat or something that isn't wanted, but I am speaking of the ordinary run of garden variety 4092 type of advertising and merchandising. Doesn't it in the increased volume of advertising, generally, tend to increase your sales? A. There is a question there as to whether it will or not.

Q. Why do you do any advertising if there is such a question. A. We advertise hoping that results will be obtainable or obtained.

Q. Don't you advertise because you believe the more you advertise the more you are likely to sell in the advertised departments? A. My belief and my thoughts on that could be different than any one else's.

Q. Well, are they different from everybody else's? A. Sometimes in some instances.

Q. Well, on that particular question that I asked you, are your thoughts different from everybody else's? A. May I have the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. I have had differences of opinion.

Q. I didn't ask you that. I want to know whether you, as divisional merchandise manager of Strawbridge & Clothier, are of the opinion that the amount of your advertising bears no relation to the volume of your sales? 4094
Now, do you understand that question? A. I didn't say that it does.

Q. Well, now, I am asking you that. Does it bear some relation to the volume of your sales? A. There is a relation between those figures.

Q. Of course. And anybody knows that, don't they, in the merchandising business? A. I don't know whether they do or not.

Q. Well, is it generally known in the business? A. I couldn't answer.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, don't you meet other buyers and other mer- 4095
chandise men? A. I do.

Q. And from them don't you know that this is a thought that is generally held by the people in the industry? A. I am—I never discuss that with any other manager.

Q. You never discussed that. Did you ever hear of the N.R.D.G.A.? A. I have.

Q. What is it? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No. It is an association, in my estimation. I may not be given the complete——

Q. Isn't it the National Retail Dry Goods Association? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't your store a member of it? A. Yes.

Q. Why did you say a moment ago that you didn't know what it was? A. Well, you are asking me what it was and I am telling you that that is my——

Q. Now, don't they give you—do you receive monthly reports from them showing the relation generally throughout the country between advertising and volume of sales? A. I have never seen any such reports.

Q. You haven't seen them? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see them from the A.M.C.—I will withdraw that. Do you know what the A.M.C. ? A. Yes, I 4097 do.

Q. What is the A.M.C.? A. The A.M.C. is a group of stores associated for various exchanges of information.

Q. And various co-operative action? A. I can't attest to that.

Q. Group buying? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever buy merchandise through A.M.C. with others? A. I have not personally.

Q. Have you ever known whether any was bought for your store? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever learn that your store, acting with others, had shipped—using Mr. Tily's term—money, had shipped money into a common pot for the purpose of getting some merchandise and they shipped that money 4098 into the A.M.C.? A. I happened to hear Mr. Tily's testimony.

Q. Is that the first you heard of it? A. That is the first I heard of that fact.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that you are the divisional merchandise manager of all these departments, you never heard that that was done; is that so? A. That is right.

Q. That is the kind of divisional merchandise manager you are; is that right?

Mr. Hayeraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. During the period, February 1, 1936, to June, 1936, how much display space in the windows of Strawbridge & Clothier did your departments receive? A. I do not know.

Q. What? A. I do not know.

Q. Isn't your business to foster sales and to see that they should be increased and augmented? A. Now you are asking me a question.

Q. No. Is that your business? A. Yes. 4100

Q. Isn't it the purpose of the display of merchandise to aid in the sale and to foster the sale thereof? A. Yes.

Q. And notwithstanding that would you have us believe that since you have become divisional merchandise manager of these departments, you don't know how much display space your departments have obtained?

Examiner Bennett: If you can make an answer to it.

The Witness: I cannot answer that, Judge. I cannot answer it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You cannot answer because you do not know? A. I do not know right at this moment. 4101

Q. You do not know at this moment? A. No.

Q. But you might have known at some other time? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know at any time how much display space these departments obtained in the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935? A. I have seen the figures.

Q. You have seen the figures? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have the figures of the amount of the display space allocated to these departments? A. Figures are submitted to us, whether those figures check in that particular period I am not certain.

Q. You were at the head of the merchandising during the period I have asked you about—you were in charge as merchandise manager, and you— A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Let me ask you this first: You were, during the period I have just asked you about, you were in charge of the basement and how would you see the figures covering all of the other departments covered by that period of 4103 time? A. I believe you are wrong. I was not in charge of the basement.

Q. During the period that I have just asked you about you say you were not in charge of the basement, and that as such you would not see the figures covering all of the other departments covering that period? A. I have just said that I was not in charge of the basement.

Q. Were you not in charge of the basement in 1935? A. I have not said so.

Q. What? A. I have not said that.

Q. You have not said that? A. No.

Q. Did you testify that you became merchandise manager February 1, 1936? A. That is right.

Q. And before that what were you in charge of? A. Department 492 and——

Q. Yes. A. —and 493.

Q. Departments 492 and 493? A. Yes.

Q. What were Departments 492 and 493? A. Generally known as the house dress department.

Q. All right. Then, excuse me. Were those located other than in the basement? A. Yes.

Q. Where are the departments located? A. Departments 492 and 493 are located on the third floor of Strawbridge & Clothier's.

Q. During that period you were in charge of this particular department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you come to see the figures for all departments? A. I happened to review them with Mr. Taylor.

Q. What? A. I happened to review them with Mr. Taylor.

Q. When did you happen to review them with Mr. Taylor? A. I do not remember the particular day or date.

Q. How long ago? A. I do not recall.

Q. Was it done this year? A. No, it was prior to my taking over the position.

Q. (Question read as follows: "Q. In other words, prior to your taking over the divisional merchandise man- 4106 agership of all of these departments, you now state that you reviewed the figures showing the amount of display space given to all of these departments during the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935?") A. Well——

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the occasion for examining those figures? A. The examining of the figures was simply a matter that Mr. Taylor wanted to show me those figures.

Q. Did you ask him why he wanted to show you them? A. No.

Q. What happened? Mr. Taylor came in and said "Here are these figures"? A. No. Mr. Taylor would very 4107 often show me quite a few things.

Q. No. I want to know the occasion for his showing you these particular figures? A. There was no occasion. It was simply a matter of his showing them to me.

Q. Did he direct your attention to any particular matter generally in these figures? A. Not that I remember.

Q. Did you ask him why he showed them to you? A. No. I did not ask him.

Q. Did you make any copy of the figures? A. Sure.

Q. Sure? A. Sure.

Q. Do you know whether or not the paper he showed you is still in existence? A. I cannot answer that.

Q. Do you know when Mr. Taylor got those figures? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know where Mr. Taylor got those figures? A. No; I do not know that either.

Q. Did you ever ask him? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. What is your best recollection as to what those figures disclose? A. I have no recollection.

4109 Q. You have not? A. No.

Q. When did—I withdraw that—what is your personal recollection of when you first forgot?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is a fair question. I want to know when he forgot this. Maybe he forgot it just about ten seconds ago.

Mr. Haycraft: I object. It is utterly ridiculous and improper in every way possible.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know what was the relative amount of dis-
4110 play space allocated or given to these departments during the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, as against February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. I do not.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. Do you not know what the amount of display space given to these departments was, or would be, likely in some measure to be reflected in the volume of sales? A. Yes, it would.

Q. There is no question about that, is there? A. There is a question about it.

Q. There is a question about it? A. Yes, sir. It is a matter of opinion.

Q. What is your opinion? A. My opinion is that as far as its effect on sales was concerning—display space would have an effect on sales.

Q. State that again, so I can understand it. A. My opinion is that as far as it is concerned it does affect sales, display space does affect the sales.

Q. Now, tell me, do you not—I withdraw that question—as divisional merchandise manager, is it not your opinion that the volume of sales done in the dress department 4112
—I withdraw that question—I will not withdraw it—as affects—as it affects to some degree? A. I do not understand what you are talking about, I am sorry.

Q. I will restate it all over again. Now, tell me if you do not know, as divisional merchandise manager, whether or not it is a fact, in your opinion, that the volume of sales done in the dress department is affected to some degree by the mark-up which the store operates those departments upon? A. To some degree, yes, sir.

Q. In other words, all of the things I have called your attention to and that I have queried you about do, in some degree, affect the volume of sales? A. It depends on how intelligently it is done.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. If a poor job is done it has an adverse effect? A. 4113
Yes.

Q. Now, mark-up is a very important factor in the retail merchandising business, is it? A. That depends also, it is a matter of opinion.

Q. What is that that you say? A. That depends, it is a matter of opinion. Some people differ on that one opinion.

Q. I do not care what other people think about it. Do you not know as general merchandise manager and do you not concede as general merchandising manager—or rather as divisional merchandise manager, do you not concede that the matter of mark-up is very important in the merchandising of your departments? A. No. I would not concede that.

Q. Do you think that mark-up is unimportant? A. It is one phase of the business that has to be considered.

Q. Let us see. What do you think Strawbridge & Clothier are in business for? A. To make a profit.

Q. To make a profit. There can be no question about 4115 that, is there? A. That is right.

Q. You have not the slightest doubt but that they are in business to make a profit? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, is their profit in a large measure dependent on their mark-up? A. I do not know whether it is or not.

Q. Do you not know what the mark-up is—you said you were divisional merchandise manager of all of the departments? A. I know what mark-up is.

Q. What is mark-up? A. Mark-up is the difference between the cost and the selling price of merchandise.

Q. It is a fact—I withdraw that question—does the cost—difference between the cost of your merchandise and the selling price contribute in the largest degree to the profit factor of your business? A. I do not know whether it does 4116 or not.

Q. If you do not have any mark-up, can you tell us how there can be any profit? A. I do not say that we did not have any mark-up.

Q. I did not say that you did. A. No?

Q. I am asking you if mark-up is not one of the most important factors in your profit schedule. A. I will not say that it is. I do not know.

Q. Where can you make a profit in your business other than from mark-up? That is what I want to find out at the moment. A. I do not know. I am not managing the business.

Q. I do not care whether you are managing the business or not. You are divisional merchandise manager, are you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That means you are manager of the division comprising the numbers of these departments that we have referred to here; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. That means that it is your duty within the realm or boundaries of proper ethical handling of your business to show a profit in these departments, is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you able to tell us where your profits can come from in these departments except from the difference between the cost of the merchandise and the selling price; tell us that. A. Must I answer that question, Judge? 4118

Examiner Bennett: Well, I do not know. Can you answer it?

A. Those are business secrets and I would not answer that until I could speak to my counsel.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you mean that you have means of making profits other than through the difference between the purchase price and the sales price? A. I did not say that.

Q. I am asking you a very simple question. A. Well—— 4119

Q. I am asking you in these departments where you can make a profit other than through the difference between the cost of merchandise and the selling price.

The Witness: I cannot answer that, Judge, without consulting our counsel.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Why can you not answer it?

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the witness be directed to answer it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You do not mean that you steal merchandise, do you?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to insist on that because I do not see what difference it makes.

4121 If you are testing this witness as to his knowledge you have it in the record.

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor, I am going to prove in this case, and I hope to make a statement, I would like to make it privately to your Honor and in Mr. Haycraft's presence. This is not a matter of defense. This is a matter of cross-examination of this witness.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a short recess.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I understand you have refused to answer my question which was: That Strawbridge & Clothier in these depart-

4122 ments makes a profit where other than by the difference between the cost of the merchandise and the selling price: is that so? A. That is right.

Q. And am I to understand that you persist in that refusal? A. That is right.

Mr. Weisman: I now move to strike out all of this witness' testimony which went to the effect, or the alleged effect of the Guild program upon the sales volume of Strawbridge & Clothier.

Mr. Haycraft: Those figures are in exhibits in evidence, in testimony and evidence also. He testified as to the good will orally.

Examiner Bennett: The motion is denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know what is the mark-up, the percentage of mark-up over cost in these particular departments during this period? A. Which period are you referring to?

Q. The latter period, namely, February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936. A. I do not remember that.

Q. You do not remember that? A. No. 4124

Q. Did you say that? A. No.

Q. Did you ever know it? A. I have seen them.

Q. Do you not know that when you bring in merchandise to these departments what it cost, or what they cost? Not only that, but what your cost is and the price which you sell it at? A. I know what the average market price is, and I know what the average mark-up is.

Q. What is the average mark-up? A. I know what the average mark-up is.

Q. Is that what you mean to say; you know what the average mark-up is? A Yes.

Q. What is the average mark-up? A. At the time I had those in front of me on which they were shows, the papers, but I do not remember them now. 4125

Q. Do you mean, as divisional merchandising manager of these departments, you do not know what your mark-up is in these departments?

Mr. Haycraft: I think that is an unfair question. The witness said that he did not know now, but at the time he did.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, you are divisional merchandise manager now, are you? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to this question, anyhow. It has no connection with this case which we are now concerned with. Furthermore, the witness stated that he did not know now what it was, that he could not keep these things in his mind.

Mr. Weisman: This is becoming an absurdity. I do not desire to call upon the Examiner to direct counsel for the Commission not to make an objec-4127 tion in which he incorporates long stump speeches to the witness and suggests to him the possible way out of his dilemma. If counsel has a proper objection to make upon legal grounds, or factual grounds, I think he should make them, but I do not think we should have these long speeches to the witness. How long are we going to have to tolerate conduct of that character on the part of Commission's counsel?

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

Mr. Weisman: I will have to start all over again. I will have to start and frame my question all over again.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

4128 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your percentage of mark-ups during the—or what was your percentage of mark-up during the month of June, 1936, in Department No. 331?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as the witness has already said that he did not recall, that he knew at the time but he does not recall now. I object to any further examination upon that as useless.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, himself, if he can answer.

The Witness: I do not remember, Judge.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You mean you do not remember your mark-up in this department in the month of June, 1936? A. That is right.

Q. What was your mark-up during that period in Department No. 350? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you know it? A. I have seen it.

Q. What was your mark-up during that period in Department No. 338? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you know it? A. I did, yes. 4130

Q. What was your mark-up in Department 371? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you know it? A. Yes.

Q. What was your mark-up in June, 1936, in Department 373? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you know it? A. I do not remember whether I did or not.

Q. Did you ever know it at one time or another? A. I did.

Q. Have you got any way of fixing this mark-up that concerns you; do you have any hand in the fixing of this mark-up? A. Having a hand in fixing it does not always give you the mark-up after it is done.

Q. No. Answer my question: Did you have a hand in 4131 fixing this mark-up? A. Not necessarily.

Q. I do not care whether it was necessarily or unnecessarily, I want to know if at the present time if you had any hand in the fixing of the mark-up in these departments? A. I did have a hand in the fixing of the mark-ups in these departments.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that as recently as 30 days or 35 days ago, you had a hand in fixing the mark-up in these departments you say that to-day you do not recall what said mark-up was, or what such mark-up was? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes, that is right, I do not know.

Q. Will you give us, or are you giving us an honest answer, or are you seeking, in order to evade answering the question, to hide under the cover of assumed ignorance?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

The Witness: I am under oath.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

4133 Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever know the mark-up—I withdraw that—no, I will stand by it: Do you know the mark-up—that is, the price mark-up, in these departments? A. What is that?

Q. I have asked you this: do you know the price mark-up in these departments that I have mentioned? A. I do not. I do not know what it is.

Q. At any time? A. Well, I could not say.

Q. I will get at it this way: Do you know the mark-up, that is to say, the present mark-up in these departments? A. No.

Q. I want to ask you that again so there will not be any 4134 doubt about it: Do you know the present mark-up in these departments that I have enumerated a few moments ago by number? A. I do not know it in any of them.

Q. You do not know the mark-up in these departments that you are charged with to-day? A. That is right. I do not.

Q. Is that something that you have also forgotten? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever know? A. No.

Q. You mean that to-day you are the divisional merchandising manager operating that department, and you do not know the mark-up upon which they are being operated; those several departments? A. That is right.

Q. What are your duties as divisional manager, what do you understand your duties as divisional manager to be? A. I am responsible for the dress department in the way of sales and profit.

Q. How can you be responsible for profits and sales if you do not know the relation between the cost of your merchandise and its sale price? A. I am not expected to know that.

Q. You are not expected to bring in profits without 4136 knowing that, are you? A. I do not understand.

Q. You mean you are expected to bring in profits yet you tell me that you do not know what the merchandise costs in relation to what you sell it for? A. I am expected to remember that but not in detail. I only know it in the broad scope of it. I am not expected to remember that in detail.

Q. You mean you are not expected to remember what it is? A. No.

Q. Yet you are expected to bring in profits, yet you tell me, and let us get this perfectly clear, that you, as divisional merchandise manager, do not know what the merchandise costs in relation to what you sell it for? A. I am not expected to remember any detail, I repeat.

Mr. Hayeraft: He has answered that once.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you got a fixed policy in that regard? A. No.

Q. If you purchase a dress or a lot of dresses for $10.75 per garment, have you a fixed policy as to what you are going to mark those dresses up for? A. No, we have not.

Q. Do you have a general policy in that regard? A. I do not know the exact policy in that regard.

Q. I did not say exact policy. Do you have a general policy? A. We have got——

Q. What? A. We have not a general arrangement for the handling of the business of the organization.

Q. That is not an answer to my question. Can you answer that question or can you not answer that question? A. That question cannot be answered.

Q. That question cannot be answered? A. It cannot.

Q. What do you usually mark them up to? A. That question cannot be answered, either.

Q. You mean you cannot tell us what you usually mark them up? A. No, that cannot be answered.

4139 Q. Well, let us see whether it can or not. You buy—take a specific instance: You bought a lot of dresses from Lipman Brothers, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you pay for them? A. $12.75 each.

Q. When did you buy them? A. I did not buy them.

Q. When did your department buy them? A. What is that?

Q. When did your department buy them? A. Some time in January.

Q. Now, you remember that clearly; that some time in January you purchased this merchandise for $12.75 per unit? A. Yes.

Q. What was the sales price which they were marketed at? A. I do not remember.

Q. No? A. No, I do not remember.

4140 Q. Do you not recollect that they were sold at $19.75? A. I would not know because at that time Mr. Taylor was in charge of that division.

Q. Mr. Taylor: I thought you said you had charge of that from February 1, 1936. A. Yes. I said that we purchased these in January.

Q. When were they sold, that is what we are talking about? A. Later on.

Q. When those were sold you spoke about some reorders; when were they sold? A. I do not know. I could not attest to that.

Q. You said that this merchandise that you bought from Lipman Brothers was a very popular number; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. You remember it because of its popularity? A. Yes, that number was.

Q. And can you tell me—first, you had a long statement as to why it was popular and the reasons that gave it popularity? A. Yes, I remember.

Q. You remembered all of those things? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Notwithstanding that, you cannot remember what they sold for? A. I cannot remember what it was sold for. 4142

Q. You cannot remember what it was sold for? A. No.

Q. What is your best opinion?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

A. I would not make an opinion on it.

Mr. Weisman: I submit we should have an opinion for it to test the witness' credibility.

Examiner Bennett: I do not think it is a matter of opinion. It is a fact, and if he does not know the fact, he does not know.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman. 4143

Q. Now, do you know the relative mark-up—I withdraw that. As divisional merchandise manager, is it part of your duties to maintain the general mark-up in each particular department? A. We have.

Q. No. Is it part of your duties to maintain a general mark-up? A. Yes.

Q. That is one of your duties, you say? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please explain to us how you can maintain that particular mark-up if you do not know the cost price or the selling price in its relation— A. I——

Mr. Haycraft: I object. The question is not intelligible.

Mr. Weisman: I will withdraw it, and I will restate the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you please explain to us how you can maintain a general mark-up if you do not know the cost price or the selling price in its relation to the selling price; if you do 4145 not know the cost price in its relation to the selling price? A. No one particular cost price or retail price will affect the mark-up; mark-up is affected by competition.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that the best answer you can give to that question? A. It is.

Q. And you say that no one particular cost price, or retail price, will affect the mark-up; mark-up is reflected by competition, is it? A. It is.

Q. When you say mark-up is affected by competition, you mean if you mark your merchandise at a certain price in relation to its cost, and your competitor marks it at a lesser price in relation to its cost, then your competition 4146 makes you bring down your mark-up; is that what you mean? A. That makes us bring down the selling price of that garment.

Q. I want to know before such a force commences to operate, what the relation between your cost and your selling price generally in department, say, No. 331, was? A. That question cannot be answered.

Q. Well, I want to know from you how it is possible for you to be responsible for the profits from Department No. 331 when you do not know your maintained general mark-up; explain that to me. A. Well, knowing the maintained general mark-up is not going to aid you on that.

Q. I do not care whether it gives you any aid or not, but I want to know how it is possible for you to be responsible for profits from Department No. 331 when you do not know your maintained general mark-up? A. I do not know it.

Q. You do not know it? A. I do not know.

Q. Have you got a particular policy in your department with reference to, or with regard to your mark-up? A. 4148
I do not quite understand your question—"the policy." What policy do you refer to?

Q. You do not seem to understand very much. A. No?

Q. Give me Mr. Taylor's testimony, or my notes on it; what is your Department No. 491? A. Well, Department No. 491 is known as the "Economy Dress Department."

Q. What prices do you maintain in that department, generally? A. Merchandise retailing at $6.95, at various times of the year that price may change.

Q. Now, without going beyond $6.95 one way or the other, but taking this thing generally, on that particular situation, and in that particular department, without getting $6.95 on each and every particular dress when you have a sale—in other words, eliminating the sale feature from it, what is your average price? A. I do not under- 4149 stand that question, I am afraid. In the first place, I do not understand what you mean by "average price."

Q. What is your general price in that department, that is what I am trying to get. A. What period do you refer to? What period? What period?

Q. General price. A. I do not know what the average price is for that department.

Q. What is your most prevalent price in that department? A. The price that we sell most merchandise is at $6.95 retail.

Q. $6.95 retail? A. Yes.

Q. Are you certain of that? A. Yes.

Q. You are? A. Yes.

Q. Do you want to change your mind about it now? A. No.

Q. You think you can stick to that? A. Yes.

Q. Would you change your opinion if I told you that Mr. Taylor, to the best of my recollection, testified that in the Economy Dress Shop you sold your merchandise at an 4151 average price of $12.95 per garment?

Mr. Haycraft: I do not recall that testimony about $12.95 per garment.

Mr. Weisman: I think Mr. Taylor does because he is smiling in acquiescence to it, and there is no dark frown of denial.

A. I would not change my opinion. It is my opinion you are asking for and you are not getting it; not Mr. Taylor's. You will have to ask him for his.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You say that the average sales price in that department on your dresses is $6.95? A. No.

4152 Mr. Haycraft: I object. It is merely repetition and quite useless.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. No, it is not. Just tell me what that is?

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. $6.95 is the price we feature in that department.

Q. $6.95? A. Yes.

Q. What do you pay for the merchandise generally that you feature at $6.95? A. It is from the $4.75 cost market.

Q. It is from the $4.75 cost market? A. Yes.

Q. When I asked you what is the cost of your merchandise, you cast your eyes up at the ceiling and figured it mentally to ascertain that, did you? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. How did you arrive at the $4.75? A. Because I know that that is the market that that particular buyer works in to obtain that merchandise.

Q. Now, do you not know what your market mark-up is in that department; do you not? A. I do not know. I have not figured.

Q. You know that your average cost is $4.75, generally, and that your average sale price is $6.75 at retail? A. If you ask me for a comparison of the percentages I cannot give it to you; I would not be able to tell you that because I have not figured it up.

Q. Is that the difference between those two; the cost price and the selling price; your mark-up? A. Yes.

Q. Then, the difference between what you pay for the merchandise and what you sell it for represents your mark-up? A. It does.

Q. What is your average selling price in Department 350? A. I could not answer that.

Q. Why could you not answer that? A. There are so many prices of garments that are carried in that department, I would not know.

Q. What are the price ranges in that department? A. From $19.75 and up.

Q. $19.75 what? A. Retail.

Q. Retail? A. Retail.

Q. Up to what? A. Oh, it can go up to $100 or $125.

Q. Are you sure you go as high as $100 and $125 for a single garment? A. Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know what was the average mark-up in these various departments under your supervision—now, under your supervision, during the time that they were under Mr. Taylor's supervision? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know whether or not the mark-up in these various departments during the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, was greater than or lesser than the mark-up in these departments during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. I do not remember.

Q. What? A. I do not remember.

Q. You have no knowledge? A. No.

4157 Q. No? A. No, indeed.

Q. Do you know that such ratio of mark-up may, in some large degree, contribute to the volume of sales during those particular periods up or down? A. It might.

Q. Does it not, in general, Mr. Chance? A. You said it might.

Q. What do you say? A. It might.

Q. Does it not in general? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, where your mark-up is lesser, your volume has a better chance of being larger; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. When your mark-up is lower than ordinarily, your volume will go up ordinarily? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding that, you made no comparison be-4158 tween your general mark-up during those two respective periods in these various departments? A. I——.

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say so. I object to misquoting the witness in that manner.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, to save time I will withdraw it. We have got to get somewhere some time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you at any time compare your mark-up, the mark-up obtained in these departments during the periods February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936, with the mark-up that was obtained in these departments during the period February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935? A. I have reviewed the figures before.

Q. As a result of that review, how did they compare? A. I do not remember.

Q. You do not remember? A. No.

Q. How did you review them? What did you say? What did you do? What did you see? A. I reviewed them by actual figures submitted by our statistical department.

Q. You have such figures? A. What?

Q. You have such figures? A. Yes.

Q. Those figures are in the files of Strawbridge & Clothier? A. They are. 4160

Q. And are they there now? A. What is that?

Q. And they are there now? A. I think so.

Q. You think so? A. Yes.

Q. Were they at all times during this hearing there? A. I think they were, yes.

Q. Now, some of these departments—now, I withdraw that. As divisional merchandise manager would you say that the service rendered in a high-class dress department in some measure contributes to the volume of sales? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the service that is rendered in these departments consists of a number of sales people employed; is that so; among one of many other things; is that correct? A. Yes. It is one among many others. 4161

Q. The type and experience of the buyers? A. Yes.

Q. The comforts that are offered or conferred on prospective customers; is that so? A. It has a reflection in the sales; comforts.

Q. Yes. A. Yes, it has a reflection.

Q. Up or down? A. Accordingly.

Q. And the ability of your so-called—the experience of your so-called fitters and tailors; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That would most likely be the case in the women's better dress department, would it not; that is, No. 331? A. It would be the case in all of our departments.

Q. In all of your departments? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let us commence with No. 331.

Mr. Weisman: That seems to have been the favorite with Mr. Haycraft and I will take it for that reason.

Mr. Haycraft: No. No. 350 is my favorite.

By Mr. Weisman.

4163 Q. Well, we will withdraw that and come to 350. I am anxious to please Mr. Haycraft in that regard. Now, in No. 351, first, how many sales people do you have there, and did you have there during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you ever know? A. We never had such a department.

Q. You never had what? A. You said 350. Then you said No. 351. You were addressing your remarks to No. 351. You said 351? We never had such a department as No. 351.

Mr. Haycraft: I said 350. I did not say 351.

By Mr. Weisman.

4164 Q. Well, I mean 350. If I said something else please do not fence with me. You understood what I meant. A. No. You could have meant No. 58.

Q. No, I said— A. You said No. 351.

Q. Did I? A. Yes, you did.

Q. Then, addressing yourself to department No. 350, how many sales people did you have in your department by that number during that period? A. I do not know. There would be an average——

Q. You say you do not know? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever seek to find out? A. I know from day to day.

Q. How many did you have to-day? A. I do not know to-day.

Q. You said you knew from day to day; how many did you have yesterday? A. What?

Q. How many did you have yesterday? A. I do not know.

Q. What did you mean when you said you knew from day to day? A. I know from day to day at the end of the day, but as far as remembering all of that, I cannot remember that.

4166

Q. Did you know yesterday at the end of the day? A. I did not know yesterday.

Q. You did not know yesterday? A. No.

Q. You said you knew from day to day at the end of the day; why do you not know what it was yesterday? A. Well, we are taking in a period from February 1 to the end of June. We are speaking of that period.

Q. How many sales people did you have in that department yesterday? A. I do not know.

Q. No? A. No, I do not.

Q. How many sales people did you have in that department during the month of June, 1936? A. The figure varies from day to day and from time to time; I do not remember how many people that would be, the average number daily.

Q. Did you know how many people, and do you know how many people were employed as sales people in that department during the period June, 1935? A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Taylor ever show you a little piece of paper with that on it? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. Did he or didn't he? A. I do not think so.

Q. Are you certain you never saw any record as to that? A. I never saw any record as to the number of people employed in there.

Q. That is not what I asked you. A. No.

Q. The answer is "no"? A. The answer is "no."

Q. You never had any knowledge as to the number of people employed there during the month of June, 1935? A. That is right.

Q. Did he ever show you a paper with the number of people thereon employed or therein employed thereon noted during the month of May, 1935? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see that? A. No.

4169 Q. Now, what about the month of April, 1935? A. I do not know.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. What about the month of March, 1935? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. What about the month of February, 1935? A. I do not know.

Q. So you do not know how or what relation the sales force of your department, 350, during the period of February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, how that compared in relation to the same period during 1936? A. I do not know the number of people.

Q. Notwithstanding you do not know that relationship of the number of people employed in that department dur-4170 ing that respective period, you do know and have testified that you know that the number of people therein employed would bear some relation to the total volume of sales done in the department; is that so? A. I said it has some reflection on it.

Q. You have testified with regard to your lack of knowledge of such comparative figures with regard to Department No. 350? A. Yes.

Q. Have you got the same lack of knowledge with regard to Department No. 331? A. All of the departments; I do not know anything about it.

Q. In other words, with regard to each and every one of these departments you have not any knowledge of the number of sales people therein employed during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936, as contrasted with the number of people therein employed during the like period in 1935? A. That is true.

Q. True? A. True.

Q. What about the number of fitters employed in Department No. 350? A. I would not know anything about fitters. That is entirely a different division. 4172

Q. You do not know anything about the number of fitters employed in any department in 1936; that is, from February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. That is right.

Q. Correct? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know how that number was, or how that number would compare with the number employed during the same period in 1935? A. I have no control over those figures.

Q. But you do know, in line with your previous testimony that the number of fitters, their skill and ability, would in some measure be reflected in the volume of sales in this department; is that so? A. It would fall under the head of service.

Q. It would be reflected in the volume of sales? A. Yes.

Q. Who is the buyer for department—I withdraw that 4173
—No. 350 during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. Mrs. McAllenny.

Q. Who was the buyer in that department during the same period in 1935? A. Mrs. Ramsdell.

Q. Where is Mrs. Ramsdell now? A. Mrs. Ramsdell is now buyer for No. 382 department.

Q. What is the No. 382 department? A. The No. 382 department is the sportswear department.

Q. Do you know the reason why Mrs. Ramsdell—I withdraw that—was that a promotion or a demotion for Mrs. Ramsdell, if you know? A. Well, I could not answer that.

Q. What is your opinion? You are the divisional sales manager; these people are people that work under you? A. In my opinion it is a promotion. It is an opportunity for Mrs. Ramsdell.

Q. In your opinion it is a promotion? A. In my opinion it is a promotion.

Q. Why do you say that, again, now? A. It is an opportunity for Mrs. Ramsdell.

Q. Yes, what? We do not—you do not? A. Yes, I answered your question.

Q. In other words, she was promoted because of the exceptional ability and efficiency that she displayed in the operation of Department 350; isn't that so? A. Right.

Q. When was she promoted? A. I didn't get the question. I am sorry.

Q. I say, when was she promoted? A. The change was made, I believe, some time in January, 1936.

Q. The latter part of January or the early part of January? A. I don't remember.

Q. What is your best recollection? What? A. That was prior to my taking over the division.

Q. What? A. What happened before I don't remember.

Q. Before McAllenny—is that what you called her? A. McAllenny.

Q. Was promoted she was promoted, too, wasn't she before this? She was in a less important job; wasn't she? A. I don't know. I am not in a position to testify as to that.

Q. Well, let's see. Where was she? A. Where was who?

Q. Where was she before she came to be buyer of this department? What was she doing? A. Mr. Taylor made all arrangements for her appointment at the time.

Q. You mean she came from another store? A. Yes.

Q. Where did she come from? A. Lord & Taylor's.

Q. Where are they located? A. New York City.

Q. So that in February we had this new buyer come into this new department; isn't that so? A. Not in February.

Q. Early part of February or the latter part of January.

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't say that. Why put those words in his mouth?

Mr. Weisman: Well, wait a minute. That isn't so important. He said January, 1936.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Didn't you? A. Yes. 4178

Q. And it took her a little time to get broken in, as we say, in the business? A. I don't know.

Q. What do you think? She was working under you. A. I think she was a capable person.

Q. When she came there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What other departments did she take over from Mrs. Ramsdell? A. What other departments?

Q. Yes. A. She took over what is known as the Misses Better Dress Department.

Q. Just 350? A. 350 only.

Q. And she just operates alone in 350? A. That is right.

Q. And she works under you? A. I supervised her operation.

Q. She is directly responsible to you? A. Yes, sir. 4179

Q. You see how she does and what she does; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. What about Mrs. Ramsdell? Does she also work— A. Likewise.

Q. —under you? Without giving me figures, what comparative salaries do these two people enjoy? A. I couldn't answer that.

Q. You mean to say that you don't know what each one of these buyers get, what you pay your buyers who work under you? A. I do not remember the figures.

Q. I didn't ask you for the figures. I don't want to be charged with attempting to disclose secrets. I asked you for their comparative—wait a minute. We can get at it this way: Who gets more? A. I don't think that should be answered, Judge.

Q. I don't care what you think.

Mr. Weisman: I submit that it is a perfectly proper answer to give and it is a perfectly proper question.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain an objection to it. I don't think it throws any light on these proceedings.

4181 Mr. Weisman: I make this offer of proof: That if the witness had been permitted to answer this question, he would have testified that Mrs.—Miss, is it, Ramsdell?

The Witness: Mrs.

Mr. Weisman: —Mrs. Ramsdell receives a proportionately higher salary than Miss McAllenny.

The Witness: Miss McAllenny.

Mr. Weisman: I have a hard time with that name.

Examiner Bennett: That is wholly irrelevant to the proceedings.

Mr. Haycraft: It has no basis in fact.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is entirely relevant in 4182 view of the fact that the witness has testified that as divisional manager, one of the things that enter into the volume of sales that are created in a particular department is the experience and ability of the buyer and it is indicative of the fact that at this particular period there was a change in buyers which in human experience and from the general knowledge we have, we know that that is likely to manifest itself in some reaction in the department.

I think it is particularly relevant when it is taken into consideration with the fact Mrs. Ramsdell is a much higher paid employee, having a longer experience, no doubt, and I think that for that reason it is relevant.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the comparative length of experience in this particular business that Mrs. Ramsdell had against the other lady? A. I am not familiar with Miss McAllenny's previous responsibilities prior to joining our store. 4184

Q. How long had Mrs. Ramsdell been with your store? A. I couldn't name the number of years.

Q. Was she there long before you came? A. No, I doubt it.

Q. Would you say she was there for five years? A. I wouldn't say. It would be a guess.

Q. What is your best opinion? She works under you. You are her superior. Don't you know anything about her experience and her qualifications? A. I know what her qualifications are.

Q. Well, tell us what are her qualifications? Are they of the best? A. Well, that is comparative. What do you mean by the best?

Q. What do you think? A. I think she is an excellent person. 4185

Q. You think she is an excellent buyer? A. Yes.

Q. Do you think she is the best possible buyer that you could obtain? A. In her present position, yes.

Q. And when you wanted to replace her, you had to go out into the market and look for somebody else? A. I didn't do that.

Q. Your superior did that? A. I can't attest for what he has done.

Q. Didn't he ever tell you that? A. No.

Q. Did you ever discuss this woman with him? A. I have.

Q. Didn't he tell you what efforts he made to get a competent person in charge of this department? A. We have discussed Miss McAllenny.

Q. Now, as a result of that discussion, can't you answer my prior question? A. No, because the discussion does not pertain to your question.

Q. Well, what was the discussion pertaining to? A. May I have the question again, please?

(The question was read.)

4187

A. The discussion pertained to whether or not my opinion—what my opinion was of Miss McAllenny's capabilities in her new job.

Q. You told him you thought she was capable? A. Yes.

Q. What was the amount of merchandise, the average amount of merchandise that you had in all of these departments during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. I don't recall the figures.

Q. What? A. I don't recall the figures.

Q. I don't want the figures. I want your best opinion at this time.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the opinion.

The Witness: I won't guess.

4188

Mr. Haycraft: We want the facts developed.

Mr. Weisman: I submit——

Examiner Bennett: If he has any knowledge of it you may get his best recollection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Can't you give us your best recollection? A. No, sir. I have seen the figures; I have reviewed them——

Q. What? A. I have seen the figures and reviewed the average stocks, but I do not remember what they were.

Q. Look. As divisional merchandise manager, do you know what was your average stock, let us say, in Mr. Haycraft's favorite department, No. 350, during this period? A. No.

Q. You have no recollection of it? A. No.

Q. Do you know what the average stock was in the Department 350 during the period, the like period, in 1933? A. No; I wouldn't know that.

Q. That you never knew about? A. No.

Q. Didn't Brother Taylor show you a paper with the average stock that you had during 1933 in that department? A. Not that I remember.

Q. If he had, wouldn't you remember it? A. If he had— 4190

Q. You remembered the other paper. A. I probably would.

Q. So if you don't remember, you say he never showed it to you? A. Probably never showed it to me.

Q. As merchandise manager of this department or as divisional merchandise manager of all of the departments, wouldn't you say that the amount of stock carried in a department has a great relation to the volume of sales that were made in that department? A. It depends on what that stock consists of.

Q. We will come to that later on. But first, we will ask you as to the amount of stock. Isn't there a relation between the volume of sales and the amount of stock?

Mr. Haycraft: He has answered that. 4191

Mr. Weisman: No, he hasn't. Please don't seek to help him. We are getting along fine this afternoon.

Mr. Haycraft: I think it is repetition. He has already answered it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you answer it? A. Are you referring——

Mr. Haycraft: Wait a minute. I ask for a ruling on my objection.

Examiner Bennett: Now, what is the record on that?

(The record was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: It is the same.

Mr. Weisman: No, it isn't. I submit——

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer and be more specific.

4193 The Witness: Let me have that question again. I am sorry.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I am sorry, too. I think it will be easier if I repeat it, Judge.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I say to you, don't you know as divisional merchandise manager, exercising your functions, that the amount of stock that a store carries bears a relation to the volume of sales? A. Yes, it does.

Q. In other words, it is perfectly apparent that if you don't have a large stock of merchandise you can't make a large amount of sales; isn't that plain? A. It isn't apparent, no.

4194 Q. But it is a fact even if it isn't apparent? A. It is not.

Q. Is it your statement that when you have a slim stock that aids you in having a large volume of sales? A. If that is—if that slim stock consists of merchandise which is totally desirable as against a large stock of merchandise.

Q. I don't mean that. A. Which——

Q. Let me ask you——

Examiner Bennett: Just let him finish.

Mr. Haycraft: Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Weisman: He can finish it.

The Witness: As against a large stock, which is partly desirable, and the major part undesirable, I would say I would prefer a small stock that is totally desirable.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As between two stocks, both of desirable merchandise, one which is very slim and one which is large, which of those two would you prefer? A. I don't follow you. I am sorry. 4196

(The question was read by the reporter.)

A. I naturally would prefer the larger stock providing the ratio of sales demanded that large stock.

Q. All right. And I assume that—you say that you naturally would prefer the larger stock because a larger stock of fresh, seasonable merchandise is more conducive to a large sales volume than is a smaller stock of the same kind of merchandise; isn't that so? A. I didn't say that.

Q. Well, if you didn't say it, is that a fact? A. No, sir.

Q. In other words, you now say that a large stock of seasonable merchandise is not more conducive to a large volume of sales than is a slim, narrow stock of seasonable merchandise; is that what you say? A. May I have that question, please? 4197

(The question was read.)

A. I mean by relation——

Q. No. I want to know whether you say that latter thing? A. I did not.

Q. Well—let us start off again, then, because you say neither the one nor the other is the fact. I want to find out what the fact is.

Examiner Bennett: Now, Mr. Weisman, if you can get to a place where you can shut it off, we will——

Mr. Weisman: We will adjourn?

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn.

Mr. Weisman: I think——

Examiner Bennett: To to-morrow morning.

Mr. Weisman: I think this is as good a place as any. I will ask him one or two questions, maybe, because this thing is going on for some time.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

4199 Q. Isn't it your opinion that a large stock of seasonable merchandise in a store such as Strawbridge & Clothier is more conducive to a large volume of sales than is a slim stock? A. No, sir. There is a relation to the demand of desirable merchandise at the time.

Q. That is your best answer? A. That is my answer.

Q. Now, do you know what was the——

Mr. Weisman: Judge, we are getting into rather deep water at this point with this witness. I think maybe we had better adjourn.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until 9 o'clock Eastern Standard time, to-morrow morning.

(Whereupon at 4.45 o'clock P. M., August 4, 1936, 4200 the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

BEFORE THE

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

IN THE MATTER OF FASHION ORIGINATORS GUILD OF AMERICA, INC.; MICHIGAN AVENUE GUILD OF CHICAGO; MINNEAPOLIS FASHION GUILD; LADIES' READY-TO-WEAR GUILD OF BALTIMORE; NATIONAL FEDERATION OF TEXTILES, INC.; their respective officers, directors, and members.	Docket No. 2769.

Court Room No. 313,
U. S. Post Office Building,
Philadelphia, Pa.,
August 5, 1936.

(Met pursuant to adjournment, 9. A M.)

Before: HON. JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

4203

MILTON C. WEISMAN, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq., and M. A. ALBERT, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.

ALLEN S. OLMSTED 2ND, Esq., of SAUL, EWING, REMICK & SAUL, 2301 Packard Building, Philadelphia, Pa., appearing for John Wanamaker of Philadelphia.

PAUL FREEMAN, Esq., appearing for Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia.

I. I. JAMISON, Esq., of SUNDHEIM, FOLZ & SUNDHEIM, 1632 Bankers Securities Building, Philadelphia, Pa., appearing for Lit Brothers, Philadelphia.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Gentlemen, we will be in order, please. You may resume.

4205 Mr. Weisman: Mr. Chance, will you come around, please.

SAMUEL J. CHANCE resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Chance, by the way, are you here subject to the service of a subpoena? Was a subpoena served upon you in this proceeding? A. It was not.

Q. Do you know whether or not a subpoena was served upon Mr. Taylor? A. I believe there was.

4206 Q. You do? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see the subpoena? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether or not a subpoena was served upon Mr. Tily? A. Mr. Tily?

Q. Yes. A. I heard something in reference to that, too.

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Haycraft, will you make a statement for the record whether or not Mr. Tily was served with a subpoena, and whether or not Mr. Taylor was served with a subpoena?

Mr. Haycraft: If the Examiner wishes it.

Examiner Bennett: I have no wish whatsoever, one way or the other. You may make the statement or you may not.

Mr. Weisman: Are you trying to conceal something, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: No. Both Mr. Tily and Mr. Taylor were subpoenaed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When we adjourned last night I had concluded asking you a series of questions concerning your knowledge of certain matters and you stated you had not remembered. 4208
Then, I believe at the time we were discussing the size of the—strike that out—or the amount of stock carried in the departments which came under your supervision in February of this year? Do you recall that? A. There was some discussion about stocks.

Q. Have you, during the interval between yesterday's testimony and your appearance here to-day refreshed your recollection with regard thereto? A. I made no attempt to do so whatsoever.

Q. No attempt at all? A. No.

Q. You knew that we were going to continue along that line of inquiry to-day? A. I did not know what your plan was.

Q. Did you not expect us when we had unfinished questions to have the finish to-day; to continue and finish up 4209 the query to-day?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. We cannot expect the witness to be a mind reader.

Mr. Weisman: Exception—did your Honor sustain that?

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

May we strike from the record "We cannot expect the witness to be a mind reader?" I also want to make a formal further objection at this time to these constant statements by Mr. Haycraft as to what we can expect or what we cannot expect. It is perfectly manifest that it is highly improper. It is, and must be apparent to the Court as it is to anyone who shall hereafter read the record that one does not have to be a mind reader to do that, but only has—that is, one who can exercise ordinary common sense and judgment that God gives everyone who is not an animal below mankind to know that 4211 when I started an inquiry along a certain line that it may be expected to be continued if it is not completed, and I resent the statement that he is not expected to be a mind reader.

I ask that it be stricken from the record and that counsel be reprimanded severely by the Examiner for his manifestly improper and grossly discourteous conduct.

I want in the record that I am utterly fed up with that type of interruption which can have for its only purpose the throwing of dust in the eyes of those who may have to consider this matter at some time or another.

Examiner Bennett: Motion denied.

Mr. Weisman: He is an experienced lawyer, and 4212 his only purpose is and can be to annoy, harass, and clutter up the record with irrelevant matter.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, in the performance of your duties as divisional merchandise manager, have you any opinion as to the size, comparative size of seasonal stock of merchandise in relation to the volume—or, we will put it this way to make it a little more simple for you—have you any opinion as to whether or not the size, comparative size of seasonable stock of merchandise has any relation to the volume of sales that you will do ordinarily in those departments? A. It has a relation.

Q. Would you say that if you have a reasonably large stock of seasonable merchandise in one of your departments, then you are more likely to do a large volume of business in those departments than if you had a smaller or narrower stock of the same kind of merchandise in those departments? A. Not necessarily.

Q. I did not ask you whether it was necessarily so or not. I asked you whether or not it was not generally so. 4214
A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. In other words, it is your testimony that the amount of seasonable stock, whether or not the same be large or small, does not affect the volume of sales in those departments? A. It depends upon the traffic.

Q. Does it or does it not in Strawbridge & Clothier, under the circumstances that you have observed to exist there, have a relation to the volume of sales? Now, I want to call your attention to the fact you said no, and I asked you if you really meant "no," and you answered "no" again. I want you to think this over carefully, and in view of the fact that you have answered this twice "no" state if it does or does not. A. Well—well—well, it does. 4215

Q. Well, you finally got to it. A. It does.

Q. Now, do you know the comparative conditions of stock of Strawbridge & Clothier in these departments during the time they were under your supervision, to-wit, February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936, as compared to the time when they were not under your supervision, to-wit, February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935? A. Those figures are submitted——

Q. No, I did not ask you about these figures. Will you please pay attention to my question and give me an answer to it? A. Well, what is the question?

Mr. Weisman: I shall ask the Examiner to permit the question to be read.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, listen carefully, the reporter is going to read the question and I am going to ask you to follow it very carefully and give us an answer to it.

(Question read.)

4217 Examiner Bennett: "Do you know" is the question.

The Witness: I do not know it now.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you know it yesterday? A. No.

Q. Do you know—I will withdraw that. Did you know yesterday whether or not the stock of fresh, seasonable merchandise in the department of Strawbridge & Clothier, under your supervision, was larger or smaller in the time that it was under your supervision and as contrasted with the period in 1935 immediately before referred to? A. I do not remember.

Q. I asked you, did you remember it yesterday? A. No.

Q. Did you know it yesterday? A. No.

4218 Q. You stated in answer to one of my queries yesterday that another matter which would have a bearing on the volume of sales was the seasonableness of the stock and its freshness; is that correct? A. I don't remember making any such statement.

Q. If you don't remember making such a statement I will now ask you: Would the seasonableness or the freshness of the stock have a relation to the volume of sales of those departments? A. Yes, it would.

Q. Now, did Mr. Taylor at any time show you any paper as he did concerning some other matters which advised you with regard to the freshness and seasonableness of the stock of the departments now under your supervision during the period which they were not under your supervision, to-wit, February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935? A. He has not.

Q. Did anybody else? A. Not for that period.

Q. Do you know what was the condition of the stocks of those departments during that period with regard to their freshness and seasonability? A. You are referring to 1935?

Q. I certainly do. A. No, I don't. 4220

Q. So if you don't know, did you know it yesterday? A. I did not.

Q. Did you know how the freshness or the seasonability of the stocks in those departments under your supervision were comparatively during the period 1935, that we have referred to, and the period 1936? A. I did not.

Q. Did you know it yesterday? A. No.

Mr. Weisman: May I have just a moment?

(A short pause was had.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What priced merchandise do you handle in Department 331? A. Our line price that we buy into begins from $19.75 up. There are types—— 4221

Q. What is that? A. $19.75 and up. There are certain——

Q. Well——

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. Let him answer.

A. There are certain months in the year when we may bring in cheaper merchandise depending upon the season.

Q. Is that the wholesale price or the retail price? A. Retail price.

Q. What is the wholesale price? A. The wholesale price would be from $10.75 up, and a lower cost in the months which that merchandise would be in demand.

Q. What would that lower cost be wholesale? A. Could be as low as $3.75 for a certain type of cottons.

Q. I don't want to know what it could be. I want to know what it generally is. A. $3.75 and up.

Q. In other words, then, I take it, in this Department 331 you purchased merchandise from $10.75 up regularly, and in certain off season periods, or when you have certain types of sales you purchase dresses for sale there as low as $3.75? A. That is correct.

4223 Q. From how many firms would you say you purchase the merchandise that goes into this department? A. I couldn't say how many.

Q. What would be your best guess? A. I wouldn't guess.

Q. Would you say that you purchase it from more than 100 firms during the year? A. Different firms?

Q. Yes. A. That is possible.

Q. Would you say that you purchase it from more than 150 firms during the year? A. I wouldn't say.

Q. Do you think that the total number of firms with which 331 department does business is less than 150 firms? A. I believe it is.

Q. Would you say that it is between 125 and 150? A. I would rather stick to my hundred as being the best guess.

4224 Q. In other words, you deem it that the number of firms that you do business with in this particular department during the period of a year is about 100? A. Yes. There are certain firms we purchase more from than others, we consider regular resources.

Q. Well, what is your recollection of the total annual volume of business done in this department? A. 331?

Q. Yes. A. Approximately $100,000.

Q. Have you any idea or opinion with regard to the number of manufacturers in the City of New York who are engaged in the business of making merchandise, dresses, selling at the wholesale price of $10.75 and up?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, as irrelevant and immaterial and not proper cross-examination, not the subject-matter of opinion.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is not a matter of opinion. You may get his best recollection, if he has any, or knowledge.

The Witness: I have no knowledge, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not there are a thousand such manufacturers? A. I have not. 4226

Q. Did you in February, 1936, seek to inform yourself with regard thereto? A. The total number of dresses manufactured——

Q. No, I asked you, did you seek to inform yourself as to what number there was? A. I did not.

Q. Did you in the practice of your duties as divisional merchandise manager know that there were and are regularly issued a large number of directories setting forth the names and addresses and price lines of various manufacturers? Did you ever hear of that?

Mr. Haycraft: I interpose the same objection, if your Honor please, that I interposed to the previous question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You may answer the question. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you examine any such directories? A. I have quite a few directories that I went through—I went through quite a number of directories, yes.

Q. In going through those directories, did you not observe that there were at least in excess of 1,000 of such manufacturers located in the City of New York? A. I did not notice that.

Q. Did you notice that there were a large number of them listed there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your best opinion as to what that large number was?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to his giving an opinion. That is a matter of fact.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, that is a matter of fact. I do not think his opinion would be advisable there.

4229

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your recollection as to what that large number was? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know? A. I do not.

Q. Would you deny that it was in excess of 1,000? A. No.

Q. So, you would not deny that which you do not know? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. So, you would not deny that which you do not know? A. No. I do not know it to be a fact. I did not check it.

Q. Did you think it was important? A. The total number is not important, no.

Q. The total number is not important? A. Absolutely

4230 not. It is quite immaterial.

Q. Oh, you say it is quite immaterial? A. I certainly do.

Q. Very well. This is quite interesting. Did you ever hear of the Ace Dance Modes? A. I, personally, did not.

Q. Did you know that they make $10.75 dresses? A. No.

Q. Do you know that they make dresses of the same general style as do the members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. I do not.

Q. You do not know that? A. I certainly do not.

Q. Well, this is most extraordinary. Did you seek to ascertain whether or not they did on or about the month of February, 1936? A. I, personally, did not.

Q. Did you direct anybody to do so? A. Not that particular line; no, sir.

Q. Did you do so with regard to Ace-High Dresses, Inc.? A. I did not do anything with regard to any particular man.

Q. Do you know, or have you any idea—I withdraw that. Do you know the total volume of dress sales at wholesale in the City of New York made to sell at the price of $10.75 and up? 4232

Mr. Haycraft: The same objection as to the previous question.

Examiner Bennett: I think I will let him answer that. Overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: Exception.

A. I do not know the total volume of dresses sold at wholesale in New York City at $10.75 and up, no.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not the total volume of dress manufacturers engaged in the business of manufacturing dresses at $10.75 and up in the New York market is in excess of $175,000,000 annually? A. I do not know. 4233

Q. You do not know that? A. I certainly do not.

Q. How far are you from New York? A. Just from Philadelphia to New York.

Q. I see. Do you have any idea on that subject? A. I have not.

Q. You have no idea whatsoever? A. No.

Q. Just a blank. Do you know what was the total volume done by members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., annual volume of its members who were members of the Guild in February, 1936? A. I do not.

Q. Well, do you know that it was less than $20,000,000? A. No.

Q. If that were the fact, would that in any wise affect your testimony given yesterday? A. My testimony given yesterday is my experience——

Q. No, no, I am asking you if that were a fact if it would in any wise affect your testimony given yesterday? A. It would not.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

4235 (There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: Back on the record. You may proceed, Mr. Weisman.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I asked you whether or not if these figures I have given you were true whether or not that knowledge would affect your testimony that you rendered yesterday? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. It would not. Very well. A. No.

Q. Now, is the early part of the year, that is, the first six months of the year, a period during which a larger or a lesser volume of sales is done in your department than 4236 the latter six months?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, Mr. Examiner, unless it is confined to the five months about which the witness testified.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I ask that——

Mr. Weisman: What?

Examiner Bennett: I will ask that you designate the comparison.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I want to—may it please your Honor, this is a foundation question. I will withdraw that question, first.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Would you give us a statement of your opinion as to how the month of July compares in volume to the month of June? A. The month of July is considerably less than the month of June.

Q. Considerably less? A. Yes.

Q. When you say "considerably," what do you mean by that? What percentage? What does that mean? A. I don't remember per cent. It is much less in total sales. 4238

Q. How would you compare it with February? A. I don't recall.

Q. What is your best opinion, as the divisional merchandise— A. I am sorry.

Q. —manager? A. I won't guess. If—the figure of February against that of July.

Q. Well, what is your opinion as to the first five months of the year as compared to the last five months?

The Witness: The first six months as against the latter six months?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yes. A. Our total sales were about equal.

Q. How does January compare with February? 4239

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not being the month within the period.

Mr. Weisman: It is a foundation question, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let you answer that.

The Witness: I don't recall the comparisons.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Don't you remember testifying in answer to a question by his Honor that January was a very good month?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you remember so testifying?

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. Sustained as far as that is concerned. The record shows it.

By Mr. Weisman.

4241

Q. Do you remember?

Mr. Haycraft: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: I submit on the matter of credibility I should be permitted to ask him what happened yesterday.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well——

Mr. Haycraft: Apparently you can't remember what happened yesterday.

Examiner Bennett: You may test his memory very thoroughly.

Mr. Weisman: I am going to ask this question again, your Honor. I want to get it clear on the record.

4242

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you or do you not remember that yesterday you were asked by his Honor, Judge Bennett, as to whether or not January was a good month?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection as I did before. I think that the purpose that is being served by this question has been worn threadbare, as it were.

Mr. Weisman: I think—I take it, then, your Honor feels that I don't need to further show that his recollection is of the worst? It has been worn threadbare.

Examiner Bennett: I can't make anything more specific than I said.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, I want to find out from you what is your opinion as to the volume of business done in January as compared to the balance of the first six months of the year. 4244

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, if you did $50,000 in the five months, February to June 30, is it fair to say that you ought to do an equal one-fifth, or $60,000 for the six months?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as unintelligible.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will overrule the objection if you can answer it.

The Witness: May I have that question again, please?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: I can't answer that as a matter of comparing one month to another. I do not recall those—those figures are submitted to us and used at the time that they are submitted. 4245

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I don't care what is submitted. I want to find out your opinion as divisional merchandise manager here tendered to me as an expert as to the amount of business that you relatively do in the month of January as compared to the other five months of the year. Now, isn't that plain to you?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. It has already been answered twice.

Mr. Weisman: I think we can pursue this inquiry. It is rather important.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will sustain an objection to any further repetition of that particular question. He has answered that he doesn't know. What is the use in asking him any further?

Mr. Weisman: May I have Commission's Exhibit
4247 No. 411?

(Commission's Exhibit 411 was handed to Mr. Weisman.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 411 and ask you whether or not that is not a statement setting forth the units of merchandise sold in Department 331 during the period of February 1st to June 30th, 1936?

(Exhibit 411 was handed to the witness.)

Mr. Haycraft: It speaks for itself.

A. Yes, that is.

4248 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, I will ask you to take a pencil and paper and ascertain whether or not if you extend the units by the price shown it will not appear that during the first—during that five-month period the total volume of business was $37,873? Just take a pencil and paper and see if you can figure that out.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner, as assuming some more facts which, apparently, are not in the record.

Mr. Weisman: That is in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: Wait until I get through with my objection. I know of no evidence in this case showing the value of the garments sold other than the exhibit itself. If that is true, why, then, the exhibit will speak for itself. It is not necessary to conduct this cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: I think I can test him on his statement that they do $100,000 when five months shows $73,873. It is entirely illuminating on the worth of his entire testimony. 4250

The Witness: I said approximately, Judge. That may vary.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. It may vary another $100,000? A. I didn't say that. I said approximately. That is my reason for not wanting to state any particular figure to you that I am not sure of.

Q. Would you say approximately $300,000? A. I said approximately $100,000.

Q. Well, now that your attention is called to the fact in five months, that is, the first six months of the year, exclusive of January, by your own exhibit you did approximately $74,000 in this business; in this department, do you want to change that statement of $100,000? A. I don't want to change any statement, no. 4251

Q. Do you still say that it is your best opinion that you do $100,000 a year in this department? A. I said it is approximately $100,000.

Q. Well, now, with this— A. That is not a definite figure.

Q. Now, with this information—it is what? A. It is not a definite figure. I said it is an approximate figure.

Q. Let me ask you this: Don't you think that $180,000 would be a much fairer approximate figure in view of what is now called to your attention? A. I don't know whether that would be or not.

Q. Well, we will have to see how your mind operates. This is five months, isn't that so (indicating)? A. That is right.

Q. You are sure of that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, it is approximately $75,000—$73,873. A. I am taking your word for it.

Q. All right. Now, how much is one fifth of $75,000? A. $15,000.

4253 Q. So, then, is it fair to say that your average monthly sales during the five-month period is $15,000 a month in that department? A. I wouldn't say.

Q. In spite of this exhibit you wouldn't say? A. According——

Q. You understand— A. According to your figure which you have told me, that is the figure.

Q. This isn't my figure. I am saying that this is your figure. You produced this exhibit. A. Well, I produced it, but you extended it.

Q. Yes. A. If that is the figure, that is so according to the percentage and average.

Q. Assuming that my extensions were correct? A. Yes.

4254 Q. Then will you say that the average monthly business during this five-month period was $15,000 a month? A. According to that paper, yes.

Q. Yes. And then would it be fair to say that if you did an average of $15,000 a month during such months as February, March, April, May and June, that you would do approximately $15,000 during January? A. According to that, possibly, yes.

Q. Yes. So that would give you $90,000 for the first six-months; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. With that knowledge and with your statement that the second half of the year is approximately the same as the first half of the year, would you not say that in this Department 331 a fairer statement of your total annual business is $180,000 or twice $90,000? A. That figure I know is not correct.

Q. Well, do you mean that this is incorrect? A. No, the figure you mention, $180,000, I know for certain that is not correct. It is around $100,000, which would be a fairer figure.

Q. How do you square that with this exhibit?

(A short pause.)

4256

Q. What? A. Well, now, there is a difference there as I have stated.

Q. There is a difference of $80,000? A. Yes.

Q. Let me see. How do you know? You have only been in this department since February; haven't you? A. That is right.

Q. Before you got in the department did they show you what had been done in the previous year in that department? A. I recall seeing those figures.

Q. What did they tell you was done in that department the previous year? A. I don't remember the exact figures.

Q. I don't ask you about the exact figure. I want the approximate figure. A. I had my guess to you as $100,000. 4257
I based that on last year's performance.

Q. In other words, it is your best guess that prior to that, during the year 1935, the total volume of business done in this department was approximately $100,000? A. That is what I said.

Q. And notwithstanding that, that since February 1st of this year since you have had this trouble with the Guild, in the first five months your total volume done in that department is, if my extensions are correct, $73,873; is that correct? A. According to your extensions, yes.

Q. Yes. On your direct testimony you yesterday gave a list of Guild houses which sold merchandise to this department; isn't that so? A. I have.

Q. And you stated, referring to these Guild houses, that they appeared to be resources used by that department. Do you remember saying that? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you deny that you said it? A. You are referring to the paper which was read off in the record?

Q. No, I am referring to your testimony. A. I read off names from a paper into the record as resources used 4259 by that department.

Q. Do you mean to say that aside from the fact that you read it off from the paper, you didn't know in truth or in fact whether or not they were resources used by that department? A. At the time I read them I said they were resources used by that department.

Q. I know what you said, but I wanted to know what you knew. Did you know it, or did you merely read from the paper? A. I said I knew it.

Q. Well, did you know it? A. Yes.

Q. All right. Then you did say that they appeared to be resources used by that department; isn't that so? A. I may have said that.

Q. When you said they appeared to be resources you referred to the fact, did you not, that they appeared on 4260 that paper to be resources? A. If that is the paper that is being referred to, yes.

Q. Well, when you said that they appeared to be resources, did you mean that they were the total resources of that department? A. No. If I recall correctly, they are the resources that we were purchasing merchandising from Guild houses only.

Q. In other words, you gave us a list of houses from which during the past year, 1935, this department had purchased merchandise; is that not correct? A. Some of them, yes.

Q. Didn't you give all of them? A. I say, some of the resources which that department used.

Q. You mean that the Guild was only some of the resources? A. That is right.

Q. What other resources did you have? A. There were others that I do not know.

Q. Would you say that there were approximately seventy-five other resources? A. In the course of a year there may be seventy-five resources that purchases are made from.

Q. No. I said seventy-five other resources. A. I say, 4262 in the course of the year there may be seventy-five others that the department purchases from.

Q. In other words, this list you gave us was only some of your resources of this department? A. They were the Guild resources only.

Q. Yes. And the Guild resources only of this department amounted to about 25 per cent. in number of your resources, according to your testimony; isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. In other words—I will withdraw that "in other words." I don't need it in other words. It is sufficient in those words. In this Department 331 what is your main retail price line? A. Total units sold?

Q. Yes, the biggest—what do you do your biggest business in? A. $19.75 retail is an important price line with 4263 us.

Q. What would you say is the most important price line? A. Well, now, that depends, from a standpoint of prestige or sales?

Q. Sales we are talking of, volume of sales here. A. I would include $19.75 to $29.95.

Q. I see. Your merchandise that you sell at retail for $19.75, what is the wholesale price of that? A. I would say the average wholesale price would be around $12.75.

Q. Well, you do a lot of buying you just said at $10.75; don't you? A. I said the average. There could be some that costs us more.

Q. I see. What do you sell your $10.75 merchandise for? A. $19.75.

Q. You testified that you tried to get merchandise from Robinson Brothers at Boston; do you remember that? A. I believe that that is in the affidavit which I have taken.

Q. No. Didn't you testify to that yesterday? A. I read it off a paper.

Q. Your testimony, your statement yesterday, was that 4265 you read off a paper? A. That particular statement, I believe.

Q. Yes. Well, now, let me ask you, what price merchandise does Herman Beispel make? A. I am not familiar with his price lines

Q. What type of merchandise does he make? A. He makes a finer type of garment.

Q. What do you mean by "finer"? Finer than someone else? A. Finer by comparison to other makers.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you mean that Herman Beispel at $10.75 would give you a finer garment than somebody else at $12.75? A. No. My remark was directed at possibly the manu-4266 facturer making a cheaper garment.

Q. You mean if you pay Mr. Beispel $10.75 for a garment you will get a garment that is better than the garment you would get if you pay less than $10.75 for a copy of it; is that so? A. I did not say that.

Q. I am trying to find out what you mean by that statement. A. Possibly at $6.75.

Q. In other words, you can get a better garment for $10.75 from Mr. Herman Beispel than you can get from somebody else for $6.75? A. Yes.

Q. You are quite sure you do not know what price line he makes? A. That is right.

Q. You are quite sure, are you, that you do not know the type of garment that he makes? A. No. I am not quite sure. I am sure that he makes a finer garment.

Q. In any event, I mean—I am speaking of quality, you do not know the difference between quality and type? A. I do.

Q. Well, then, you do know the difference between quality and type? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the type of garment that he makes? A. I do not.

Q. Do you? A. No. 4268

Q. Well, if you do not know the quality—I withdraw that—well, if you do not know the type, how can you know—if you do not know the type and you do not know the price, what is there that enables you to say that he makes a finer garment; tell us what your reasoning is by which you come to that conclusion? A. I come to that conclusion from the contact that I have had with the buyers.

Q. In other words, from what somebody else told you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not from what you know yourself? A. Oh, no, from what they told me.

Q. Did they tell you whom he makes a better garment than? A. They told me—what do you mean—did they tell me whom he makes a better garment than?

Q. Or, more grammatically speaking, than whom does 4269 he make a better garment? A. No. They did not tell me that.

Q. Do you know the price range of the dresses manufactured by H. Gans? A. I do not.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Let us be sure about it? A. I am sure.

Q. Do you know the type of garment that he makes? A. I do not.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Pretty sure? A. Pretty sure.

Q. Positive? A. Positive.

Q. Would you also say that Mr. H. Gans makes a finer garment? A. Of course, due to the fact that both of those garments were used in that shop, I would say yes. He makes better than the cheaper garments.

Q. Do you know the price range of Mr. J. Greenberg? A. No.

Q. You do not? A. No.

4271 Q. Do you know the type of garments that Mr. J. Greenberg makes? A. No.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. Do you know the price, and by that I mean the wholesale price of the garments manufactured by Baron Dress Company? A. Yes, I do.

Q. You do? A. Yes.

Q. Now we have something. A. Do we?

Q. Yes. What is their price range? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. What type of dress do they make? A. The women's type.

Q What is that? A. The women's type.

Q. The women's type? A. Yes.

Q. Now, is that the best answer you can give—the women's type? A. Yes.

4272 Q. Well, well, well, it is the women's type of dress. Do you know the various types of dresses in the dress industry? A. You mean daytime or evening or dance dresses, or what?

Q. I want to know what you think about it. A. If that is what you refer to—just what do you refer to?

Q. What do you have reference to? It is not what I refer to, it is what you have reference to. So what you have reference to, that is the only way you can qualify Baron's dresses, namely, into a type, is that they are a women's type dress? A. Well, I know that he specialized in that particular type of dress.

Q. He specializes in a women's type of dress? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know C. H. D. Robbins? A. C. H. D. Robbins is a finer maker.

Q. No, no, no. I ask you if you know his price range? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. $10.75 and up? A. Yes.

Q. What type dress does he make? A. He specializes in women's type.

Q. Women's type? A. Yes.

Q. What is Mr. A. Goodman's price range? A. I am not 4274 familiar with his price range.

Q. You are not? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Sure of that? A. Sure of that.

Q. Do you know the price range of the Perlas & Gilbert? A. What is that?

Q. Do you know the price range of Perlas & Gilbert? A. No.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. Do you know the type of dress that they make? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. I just want to be sure. A. Well, you are.

Q. I do not know whether I am or not. Do you know the range of prices of dresses made by Harry Frank? A. 4275
No.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. Do you know the type of dresses that he makes? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether or not Harry Frank is a dress manufacturer or a coat and suit manufacturer? A. I do not know that.

Q. You do not even know that? A. No.

Q. Well, well. A. I do not.

Q. Do you know the Dresden Dress Company? A. I have heard of them.

Q. You have heard of them? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what price garment they make? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know what type of garment they make? A. I do not know that.

Q. You do not know that, either? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Do you know the Friedman Dress Company? A. Yes.

4277 Q. You do? A. Yes.

Q. Here is one you do know. A. Well, I know of them.

Q. Do you know what price dress—what price garment they make? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know that? Do you know what type of garment they make? A. What question do you want me to answer?

Q. First, do you know what price garment they make? A. I do not know that.

Q. Next, do you know what type of garment they make? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of Joseph Greenberg & Bettina? A. I read that yesterday.

Q. You read it? A. I heard of them, yes.

4278 Q. You just said you read it yesterday. When and where did you read it? A. From the paper that I have had in my mind here.

Q. As a result of reading it from a paper that you had in your hand, you got the knowledge which enabled you to testify concerning that; is that it? A. It was a——

Q. Is that it or is that not it? A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Stick to the questions and we will get along better. Now, what price dress do they make? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know whether or not they make daytime or dance frocks? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know the type of dress, then, either? A. No.

Q. Then, you do not know the price of the dress or the type of the dress that they make? A. I do not.

Q. Or even that they make a dress? A. I know that they are in the business.

Q. Do you know whether or not—I withdraw that. You do not know what type of dress they make? A. No. 4280

Q. What about Charles—we will come to that later What about Julius Grossman and Greenberg? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know what price dress they make? A. No.

Q. You do not know what type dress they make? A. No.

Q. Do you know if they make dresses at all? A. They are in that line.

Q. How do you know that? A. I know that because they were on that list.

Q. You only know what was on that list what you read yesterday; is that it? A. It was compiled by the buyers, buyers who are better qualified than I am to testify to that. 4281

Q. The buyers are much better qualified about that than you are? A. Yes.

Q. Much better qualified? A. Yes, much better qualified than I am because of their experience in the department.

Q. Now, we come to Joseph Halpert. How about him?—as to whom do you know what price line he manufactures?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

I offer to prove if the witness had been permitted to answer he would have testified that he does not know and that he did not know, and that he never did know.

Examiner Bennett: That is already in the record and it is of no consequence except to take up time in view of the concession.

Mr. Weisman: Do you mean it is in the record? There is in the record a concession that he does not 4283 know any of these people? We do not want to waste time, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. As I understand it there is in the record a concession that he does not know any of these people. Why should you want to waste time in view of that.

Mr. Weisman: Well, your Honor, I am a little surprised at that. Then, do I understand that counsel for the Commission will stipulate that this witness does not know the price range of garments manufactured, or the type of garments manufactured by the following firms: Herman Beispel, H. Gans, J. Greenberg, Baron Dress, C. H. D. Robbins, A. Goodman, Perlas & Gilbert, Harry Frank, Dresden Frocks, Friedman Dress, Joseph Greenberg &
4284 Bettina, Julius Grossman & Greenberg, Joseph Halpert, LaRue Dresses, Frank Starr-Friedlander, Dolces Dresses, Ed Gerrick Company, Max Heit, E. A. Jackson-Bienard, Rudolph Gowns, Matthew Kadetsky, Gardner Schwartz, Bernard Appel, Boston; Goldstein & Entin, Boston; Baron Dress, Boston, and Robinson Brothers, Boston;

Mr. Haycraft: No. Certainly not.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that is what I understood.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. My concession related to the balance of the testimony, not the ones to which he has testified for the witness has already testified with respect to two of those that he knew something about them, and he gave testimony, as I remember it, as to them; my concession related to the testimony of the remainder to which he has not as yet testified. I think as to C. H. D. Robbins and one other concern, Baron Dress, he said he did know that; he had some knowledge as to that, but as to the rest of them the concession goes, yes. 4286

Mr. Weisman: Then, all right, I will take your stipulation as to the rest of them.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is clear now.

Mr. Weisman: I will take it, Judge.

I assume the stipulation also goes to the fact that he did not know it yesterday.

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, yes.

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Haycraft says, "Oh, yes."

And that he did not know, he did not even know that until his mind had been refreshed?

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly. He did not even know who they were yesterday until his memory was refreshed.

Mr. Weisman: I will take that as a part of the stipulation, and with that understanding will proceed. 4287

Examiner Bennett: That will be the understanding.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What did you have to do with Department 331 prior to February 1, 1936? A. Nothing.

Q. I cannot hear you. A. I say nothing.

Q. Nothing? A. Nothing.

Q. When you say "nothing," do you mean "nothing"? A. Yes. I had absolutely no responsibility with regard to it or anything to do with it.

Q. Did you learn—I withdraw that— Did you ever go over the list of the people that that department did business with prior to February 1, 1936? A. Did I review the list prior to February, or did I review it before February?

Q. Let us make it all inclusive. Did you review it at any time? A. Yes, I have.

Q. You did? A. Yes.

Q. When and where did you review it? A. Where?

4289 Q. Yes. First. A. I reviewed it with Miss Flynn in my department.

Q. Now, when? A. When?

Q. Yes. A. I cannot attest as to the exact time.

Q. Now, do you know what percentage of your orders for that—of the orders for that department were placed with Guild manufacturers during the year 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as indefinite as to what he means by volume or unit: I think it should be specified.

Examiner Bennett: You may add that to it if you desire, otherwise it will be sustained.

Mr. Weisman: I am glad to.

4290 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What percentage of the orders, of the total number of orders? A. I do not know.

Q. Then, you do not know what percentage of the orders for that department were placed with Guild manufacturers during the year 1935 of the total number of orders? A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know what number of orders were placed by that department for that period? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know what number of orders were placed by Guild manufacturers, or with Guild manufacturers by that department for the year 1935? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever obtain any information on that point? A. No, I have not.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever make up a list showing the value of orders placed by that department during the year 1935 with all manufacturers? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever make up a list showing the volume of orders placed by that department during the year 1935 with all manufacturers with whom they did business? 4292
A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever see such a list, or either of them? A. I never saw such a list.

Q. You never saw one on value? A. No.

Q. You never saw one on volume? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether or not such a list was ever made up? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. What did you say? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you ever see a list setting forth the number of manufacturers that you did business with, or with whom business was done during that period in 1935 in that department? A. I do not catch the question. I have no—I am sorry. May I have that question again, please?

Q. Did you ever see a list setting forth the number of 4293 manufacturers that you did business with, or with whom business was done during that period of 1935 in that department? A. I have seen a list of resources for the No. 331 department.

Q. For the year 1935? A. Whether it took in the entire year I cannot attest to that, but I have seen a list of resources that we used.

Q. With regard to the volume of purchases by that department during the year 1935, what percentage was placed with Guild manufacturers? A. I do not recall. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever know? A. I never knew.

Q. You never knew? A. No.

Q. Prior to February 1 did you know, without regard to the dollar volume, the number of orders that were placed with Guild manufacturers as compared with the number of orders placed with non-Guild manufacturers? A. I have a recollection of approximately 75 per cent.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your recollection based on? A. It is based 4295 on a paper which I had here—which we had here yesterday in—on information produced by Miss Flynn which I helped her to prepare.

Q. Did that refer to the volume—dollar volume or number of orders? A. That I believe had reference to dollar volume.

Q. What has led you to believe that it referred to dollar volume rather than the number of orders? A. Well, dollar volume, I think that would be the figure which the buyer could possibly know rather than the number of orders. I do not believe they keep account in anywise of the number of orders placed.

Q. Are you referring to the paper that Mr. Haycraft showed you yesterday? A. I am.

Q. Now, aside from that paper you stated before that 4296 you had—that you never saw any other compilation; is that correct, with regard to this subject matter of this present inquiry? A. I am sorry. May I have that question again?

Q. I will reframe it: Now, aside from that paper you stated before that you never saw any compilation; is that correct; with regard to this subject matter of this present inquiry?

Mr. Haycraft: Are you referring to Department 331?

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: Now, I do not know just what the question includes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I will ask the question again and include everything. Now, aside from that paper you stated before that you never saw any other compilation with regard to Department 331; is that correct; with regard to this subject matter of the present inquiry? A. That is right.

Q. That is right? A. That is right. 4298

Examiner Bennett: We will have a recess now for ten minutes.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you, Judge.

Examiner Bennett: We are now in recess.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

Mr. Weisman: May we have the last question read?

(Record read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You have learned, have you not, that Strawbridge & Clothier, in 1933, made it a policy not to purchase copies of original merchandise of members of the Fashion Originators Guild? 4299

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: It is entirely proper. I am going to prove the basis of cross-examination on numerous of these statements as to difficulty and so forth, and so on.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not prior to February 1, 1936, Strawbridge & Clothier had made it a practice not to purchase copies of original creations originated by members of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: Don't answer that yet. In the first place, I think you have misspoken as to the date. The same objection as to the previous ques-4301 tion.

Examiner Bennett: You are asking about 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: Prior to that.

Examiner Bennett: Prior to that. I am going to let him answer as to that, whether he knows.

The Witness: There was some sort of agreement that our store had with the Fashion Originators Guild to that effect.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. And as a result of that agreement Strawbridge & Clothier didn't, while that agreement was in effect—sought not to buy copies; isn't that so? A. We attempted not to buy them. We tried to live up to the agreement.

4302 Q. To the agreement? A. That was outlined.

Q. You are a subordinate of Mr. Tily's, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. Are you one of the subordinates that he relied upon when he stated that he was giving his testimony in reliance upon information furnished him by subordinates?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not within this witness' knowledge.

Mr. Weisman: Well, maybe he knows. I am asking him if he knows.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Haycraft: That is Mr. Tily's testimony.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

I make this offer of proof——

Examiner Bennett: You may ask Mr. Tily, not this witness.

Mr. Weisman: I didn't know we were going to get this kind of subordinate, Judge. All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, during the period while this agreement was in existence, in the House Dress Department, they adhered to that refusal to buy copies, knowingly buy copies? A. That is right. 4304

Q. I assume that was because of their agreement? A. Yes.

Q. And I assume that as a subordinate executive in this concern, you adhered to the statement of policy as fixed by your superiors?

Mr. Haycraft: Wait a minute. I object to that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that so?

Examiner Bennett: Is there an objection?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer. 4305

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You were in the court room while Mr. Tily testified; were you not?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

A. I was here; yes, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Tily testify in words or substance that he felt that this policy, when adopted by them, was in his opinion to the benefit of the public, to the manufacturer and to the store?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I want to see whether he knows anything about that. Now, you may ask him very simply—I will ask him myself and see. There is no use of haggling about this all 4307 day. Did you have any buyers buying goods for any of the departments of Strawbridge & Clothier prior to February, 1936?

The Witness: I took charge of the division February 1, 1936, Judge.

Examiner Bennett: Well, answer my question, please. Did you have any buyers buying goods under your instructions or direction for the firm prior to that time?

The Witness: I did not.

Examiner Bennett: Or any of those departments?

The Witness: I did not.

Examiner Bennett: You did not.

4308 Mr. Weisman: Now, may I pursue——

Examiner Bennett: All right. I don't see what we can get from this witness.

Mr. Weisman: May I pursue the inquiry further?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, since you took charge of this department, have you, under your supervision, buyers who were engaged in buying merchandise for the firm of Strawbridge & Clothier, and who, during the period prior to your becoming divisional merchandise manager, placed orders with the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes.

Q. Members. Now, as to those particular buyers who so placed their orders, did you ever discuss with them the reason that led them to place their orders with members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in these discussions, did they ever tell you in words or substance that the reason they placed their orders when they did with members of the Fashion Originators Guild was, among other things, that they felt they were less likely to obtain copies of merchandise from members 4310 of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I don't remember any such statement from any of them.

Q. Well, do you think now, with the knowledge that you have obtained as the divisional merchandise manager, that that was one of the reasons? A. I couldn't attest as to what their thoughts were.

Q. You have no thought on that now? A. No.

Q. Did you testify, or did you not, that there were a certain amount of returns? A. Returns to whom?

Q. Non-Guild members. A. Not that I recall.

Q. I guess you are right. I think it was Mr. Taylor.

Examiner Bennett: Mr. Taylor.

By Mr. Weisman. 4311

Q. Well, do you know, as divisional merchandise manager, that returns that are made in a department due to some degree affect the efficiency of that department? A. They do.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is answered and I will let it stand.

Mr. Weisman: What? Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: I will let it stand.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a divisional merchandise manager you have under your control these buyers; isn't that so; of these various departments? A. That is right.

Q. And it is within the buyers' province, is it not, to buy merchandise which will be readily salable; isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in your opinion, assuming that an original model is carried by one of your departments at $19.75, and 4313 a copy appears in another store at, let us say, $19.75; does that affect the salability of the original?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to; irrelevant, immaterial, and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer. Overruled.

The Witness: May I have the question?

Mr. Haycraft: I offer a further objection, Mr. Examiner, at this time. It assumes a statement of fact which is not in the record.

Mr. Weisman: It doesn't have to be in the record. It is cross-examination. Will you answer? The Court had directed you to answer.

4314 Mr. Haycraft: I would like to have a ruling on my additional objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. It might have some influence.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I don't care whether it might or whether it might not. You and I know that anything might happen. I am asking whether or not, with your experience, you believe that it would have a very direct influence. A. Yes, I have known occasions where it has.

Q. Would you then say that the buyers seeking to maintain the sale of their garments would be most likely to go to houses where they knew they could get originals?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling.

Mr. Weisman: The Court says you may answer.

A. I don't know what they would be inclined to do in that particular case.

4316

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that you are divisional merchandise manager in charge of these departments and responsible for their operations to some degree, that you say that under such circumstances that you don't know what they would be likely to do; is that so? A. That is right.

Q. Now, I understood you to say that the buyers in seeking to replace the Guild houses experienced some difficulty. You remember using those words? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Was that a fact? A. It was, according to their report.

Q. It was only according to their report? Is that the limitation that you want to place on your answer? A. I 4317 am sorry, I didn't get that question.

Q. You answered me that it was according to their report. A. Yes.

Q. And I asked you if you now want to limit your testimony to state that the difficulty was only according to their report, that you had no personal knowledge thereof? A. I stated that my testimony yesterday, that it was according to their report. It was their report back to me.

Q. I see. Now, other than their report did this difficulty manifest itself in any way? A. Only in the way of comparison of figures.

Q. Well, would you say that that difficulty has now been eradicated? A. Not entirely.

Q. Well, almost entirely? A. No.

Q. Well, I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 402, which is a comparative decrease for Department 350.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

By Mr. Weisman.

4319 Q. (Continuing) February 1 to June end, 1936, as against '35, for the same period, and I call your attention to the fact that the claimed decrease for February appears as some 9 per cent. and for March as some 10 per cent., and for April as some 11 per cent., and for May as some 6 per cent., and for June as some 1 per cent., and ask you whether or not the steadily declining decrease isn't some indication to you that the difficulty of replacing the Guild has almost disappeared? A. Well, I wouldn't say one month would be any particular time to compare that.

Q. Now, no, but don't you notice that it starts at 19 and gradually goes down to 1? Now, you stated in answer to my question a moment ago that these figures indicated the difficulty to you? A. That is right.

4320 Q. Now, I say the fact of the steadily declining situation with regard to the figures, or to the amount of the decrease, does not that indicate to you that as time goes on, and as it has gone on, this difficulty has been overcome? A. We have suffered more earlier, I concede that.

Q. And that now— A. That now——

Q. You are straightening it out? A. We are in a certain measure—in a certain measure we are in a better position now than we were at the time that we were red carded.

Q. Yes. And given a reasonable opportunity I assume that you will replace all these Guild manufacturers with non-Guild manufacturers; isn't that so? A. In the meantime we suffer.

Q. No.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that that be stricken out.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I said, given a reasonable time you will replace them? A. We don't know whether we will be able to replace them totally or not.

Q. Isn't this some indication to you it is likely that they will be entirely replaced? A. No, it isn't, because—— 4322

Q. All right. That is enough.

Mr. Haycraft: I submit, Mr. Examiner, that the witness ought to be allowed to explain his answer.

Mr. Weisman: I submit that you let me alone while I am examining and stop interrupting me in my examination.

Mr. Haycraft: My objection is an interruption in a proper, legal way, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Have you finished your answer?

The Witness: I have not, sir.

Examiner Bennett: You may finish.

The Witness: May I have the question and part of the answer that I started. 4323

Q. (Record read.) A. —because without interference we may be showing large increases rather than decreases in proportion to the rest of the volume on the floor.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, you are now seeking to guess as to what might happen? A. Well, it is problematical in so far as your statement as to the low decrease.

Q. Do you say now that your buyers acting under you have been able to locate proper manufacturers who can make garments comparable to those that you used to purchase from the Guild members? A. I said it was a difficult job.

Q. Well, now, I heard you say that. Now, I am asking you whether or not at this time you state that you cannot get manufacturers to make garments comparable to those originally purchased from Guild members? A. We are having difficulty, yes.

Q. I am not asking you whether you are having difficulty. I am asking you whether you are getting the mer-4325 chandise that is comparable to that you used to buy from Guild manufacturers? A. Not in the proportion that we would like to buy.

Q. Well, are you getting it? A. We are getting some.

Q. In other words, you now state that these Guild merchants make such good merchandise that during the past six months you have been unable to replace them with other merchants who make good merchandise; is that it? A. That is right.

Q. What does the goodness of this merchandise consist of? A. It consists of an element of fashion, finish, high degree of styling, and the fact that we have been doing business with these houses and have built up a certain following of trade that would expect to find that type of 4326 merchandise in our store at any time they came in to seek such merchandise.

Q. Do you know how dresses are made? A. I don't quite understand you.

Q. Do you know how dresses are made? A. I am not a manufacturer.

Q. Neither am I; neither is the Court. I am asking you, do you know how dresses are made? A. I never watched their operation.

Q. Have you got anything in your mind which operates to tell you how a dress is made? A. No.

Q. In other words, your mind is a complete and total blank on the method of manufacturing dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Weisman: I submit it is a perfectly proper question.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will let him answer.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. The Court says you may answer. A. I do not know how dresses are made. 4328

Q. Do you state the Guild manufacturers, aside from the fashion and styling, do make a better dress than anybody else? A. By comparison, they do.

Q. Is this better manufacture in the making of the garment? A. That is one important phase, the detail.

Q. Do these manufacturers, when they send in a garment to you, have their name in the garment? A. I don't quite understand the question. May I have the question?

Q. Well, is there anything in the garment which identifies the maker of the garments when it is placed on sale with your department store? A. Sometimes there is.

Q. Never mind about the sometimes. You mean to say that your garments carry the name in them of the manufacturer? A. No, not at all. 4329

Q. How would a woman know how the garment was manufactured? A. She——

Q. Or by whom? A. She wouldn't know, only by comparison.

Q. Comparison with what? A. With her experience in purchasing dresses.

Q. In other words, the Guild manufacturers do a good job, you say, in their manufacture? A. Yes, that is an important thing.

Q. And they do such a good job that the woman has become used to that good job? A. Yes.

Q. And you are anxious to see that your customers get the best possible job in the dresses they purchase from you? A. That and other things are considered.

Q. What other things are considered? A. The fit of the garment.

Q. Well, do the Guild manufacturers give you a good fit? A. Yes.

Q. What else? A. Finish.

Q. Do they give you good finish? A. They do.

Q. What else? A. Fabric.

4331 Q. They give you good fabric? A. Good fabric and new fabrics.

Q. Do they give you those? A. Yes.

Q. These are all things that are highly desirable? A. Yes, they are.

Q. And they are things that you are constantly seeking to give to your customers? A Yes.

Q. Well, if that is so, will you tell us why in this department, out of the hundreds of people you did business with, you only did business with twenty-six Guild manufacturers. A. Well, the Guild manufacturers that we purchased from, possibly.

Q. Not possibly, what is the fact? A. May have been in proportion to the sales—the purchases may have been greater than the total of the other 75 per cent. purchased 4332 from other manufacturers on the market.

Q. You say that may have been. I want to know why you did not buy all of your merchandise from people making such good stuff? A. We cannot possibly, that may have been a different thing. We could not possibly, they may have not made a certain type that we would want to sell. There are also good makers who are not members of the Guild.

Q. What is the ratio, three to one? A. No, it is not to my knowledge, I do not think so.

Q. What do you say about the ratio? A. I do not know.

Q. You honestly do not know? A. I honestly do not know.

Q. Now, let us come to this matter of fashion. You used the word fashion and you said that the things that went into it were, first, fashion; and then you said finish and then you said high degree of styling; do you differentiate between fashion and high degree of styling? A. No.

Q. They are one and the same? A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by high degree of styling? A. High degree of styling is that particular styling that has 4334 or which has, I would say, new ideas, new lines that are put into a garment, the designer's thoughts on one particular model.

Q. You mean, do you not, that the members of the Guild made available to you more style originals; is that what you mean? A. No, not necessarily originals.

Q. What do you mean when you say "newer." A. Newer—new touches in my estimation would be something new, possibly new trimmings, the adaptation of some creation.

Q. Now, how much—now, how do these Guild manufacturers, in your opinion, get this high degree of styling, is it when they join the Guild that they get it; is it something the Guild gives them? A. No, I do not think so.

Q. What do you think? A. I think that they get it 4335 through the form of their designers and the members of their designing staffs, I think that is where they get it from, those designing staffs.

Q. In other words, it is your opinion that these designing staffs maintained by the Guild members are better designing staffs than those which are maintained by people who are without of the Guild? A. In many instances I would say that the designers that the Guild manufacturers employ do interpret fashions and create numbers or reconvert adaptations in a more salable way, yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not that list of manufacturers who are not in the Guild do not employ—well, let's make it more general than that. Do you know whether or not lots of manufacturers who are not in the Guild do not employ designers at all; did you ever hear of that? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Then from time to time they go around the market and copy what looks like a hot number; did you ever hear of that? A. Yes.

4337 Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: I submit it is entirely proper in view of his previous testimony.

Mr. Haycraft: It may be on a cross-examination, but it certainly is not on his direct.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. And I offer to prove that the answer would have been in the affirmative.

Examiner Bennett: We ought to have—I think there should be a limit on this.

Mr. Weisman: The limit should be that the witness should not have been put on if he does not 4338 know anything.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, what is the total volume that will be done—that was done in Department No. 30—Department No. 350 for the year 1935? A. I beg your pardon.

Q. Do you know that? A. Oh, I do not recall.

Q. Did you ever know? A. I have seen the figures.

Q. What is your idea; what is your best recollection? A. I do not know. I would not even guess.

Q. Now, how many manufacturers would you say you do business with in Department No. 350 during the year 1935? A. I do not know offhand.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. Now, I know you do not know e[illegible], but will you give us your best opinion, A. I will not guess.

Q. You will not guess? A. No.

Q. I want your best opinion, you are in charge of this department.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to his best opinion.

Mr. Weisman: Well, we will get away from that, and I will ask for his best opinion, and we will have 4340 to take it, I suppose.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to his opinion.

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor, I think we should be allowed to have that.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is Department 350 comparable to Department 331? Perhaps we can get at it this way. A. In which way?

Q. In the number of manufacturers that you dealt with in that department.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. 4341

Examiner Bennett: I will let the witness answer that.

A. I would say that the number of resources that that department used would be less in comparison to No. 331.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How much less would you say? A. I have no idea.

Q. You have no idea? A. No.

Q. Would you say that you only do business with about seventy-five manufacturers.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

A. I do not know.

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He said he did not know.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain it. It is too indefinite. You are not getting out anything that has any relevancy in the record.

Mr. Weisman: I submit if I am not permitted to examine him, of course I cannot get it out.

Examiner Bennett: It has already been demonstrated that you are not getting anything that is at all tangible out of this witness on that particular point. Why clutter up the record with a lot of stuff of that character.

Mr. Weisman: I want to prove that this witness does not know whether they do business in that Department with seventy-five or 750 manufacturers.

Examiner Bennett: It appears already that he does not know the number. There is no need of that exaggeration.

Mr. Weisman: I do not know that it is exaggeration. I would not be surprised if they did business with 250.

Examiner Bennett: 250 is not 750.

Mr. Weisman: I will amend that to the figure of 250.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled, and I am going to sustain that ruling. There is no use of further discussion on this matter.

Mr. Weisman: May I have an exception? May I——

Examiner Bennett: You may do anything you choose within the rules of practice.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you see a list of the manufacturers that you did business with during the year 1935 in Department No. 350? A. I have seen a list at one time or other.

Q. You have seen such a list? A. I have.

Q. Where did you see that list? A. In my office.

Q. In your office? A. Yes.

Q. Who gave you that list? A. It was furnished by the buyer. 4346

Q. By the buyer? A. Yes.

Q. Under what circumstances was it furnished by the buyer? A. To extract the information which was placed on this paper that you presented—that was presented in evidence yesterday.

Q. Where is that list? A. I do not know where it is now.

Q. Did you destroy it? A. What?

Q. Did you ever destroy it? A. I do not know whether it is destroyed or not.

Q. Did you have any reason for destroying it? A. Absolutely none.

Q. You were not afraid to keep it? A. No.

Q. Will you during the lunch hour make a search to see if you can locate that list? A. I will. I will promise to do that. 4347

Q. If you locate it then will you look at it and see how many manufacturers in total you did business with in that department? A. I will do so. I would like to make a note of it so I will not forget it.

Q. Why, certainly, I will do that, and I will not only do that, but I will give you a piece of paper on which to make the notation. A. That is all right. I have something here on which I can make that notation.

Q. But, in any event, you are certain that at this particular time you have no present knowledge as to the number, the total number of manufacturers that you had done business with in the year 1935, in this Department No. 350? A. May I have that question again?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I think the witness should be allowed to hear the question.

Mr. Weisman: Certainly. Will your Honor permit it to be read?

4349 Examiner Bennett: The question may be read.

Q. (Question read.) A. I will promise to look that record up for you. I have promised to do that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I did not ask you that. I asked you if at the present time you had any such knowledge? A. I would tell you if I did.

Q. The answer is "No"? A. "No."

Q. Well, say so. A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: He said that once before.

Mr. Weisman: Now, Mr. Haycraft——

By Mr. Weisman.

4350 Q. Now, what priced merchandise do you sell in that department? A. What department?

Q. 350? A. 350.

Q. Yes. A. We buy merchandise to retail at $10.75 and up.

Q. What do you pay for it? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. You gave us yesterday a statement of people who were members of the Guild from whom that department purchased merchandise prior to your advent as divisional merchandise manager; do you remember that? A. At the time of the red carding?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. That is true? A. Yes.

Q. How long back did you go when you got that list of names up? A. I do not remember. It was a list that at that time we were using.

Q. As a matter of fact, you covered a three-year period, did you not?

Mr. Haycraft: One year.

A. I do not know whether that would take in three years 4352 or not. I am not certain.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What did it take in? You were asked if, having refreshed your recollection, will you testify for the record the names of the manufacturers that you recognize as resources for Department 350. You may look at the piece of paper and you then looked at the piece of paper that Mr. Haycraft handed you, and then you gave some names. A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether those names covered the period from June, 1933, to February, 1936? A. I do not. That, again, that question, if I remember it, pertained to the time of the red carding. 4353

Q. What? A. That question pertaining to the time of the red carding.

Q. You mean at that time that you had orders outstanding with those people that you gave? A. I do not believe with all of them, but they were resources that that department was using in purchasing merchandise from at one particular time.

Q. What particular time? A. That particular time I do not believe that all of them were, but they were resources that that department was using in purchasing merchandise from at that time, particular time. Let me make that clear: At that particular time those departments were purchasing—that department was purchasing merchandise from those particular resources at that time. At that time is what I am referring to.

Q. Oh, I see. How recently to that time had they purchased merchandise; that is what I want to know? A. How recently?

Q. Yes. A. I do not know.

4355 Q. You do not know? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know when was the last time that your store purchased merchandise from Milton Altmark? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether—did you know yesterday when you testified? A. At the time of the red carding we were using that resource.

Q. When you say you were using that resource, what do you mean? A. What is that?

Q. When you say you were using that resource, what did you mean? A. I believe the list that we submitted will show——

Q. I do not care about the list that you submitted. I want you to listen to my question. I want to know from you when you say you were using those resources exactly what you mean? A. I will attest to the fact that in 1935

4356 in reference to this remark——

Q. What is that? A. I am attesting to the fact in 1935 in reference to that remark.

Q. In other words, you say that some time during the year 1935 you purchased merchandise from Milton Altmark, Inc.; is that it? A. That is right.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Capri Frocks some merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Frank Starr-Friedman some merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Weinstein & Entin some merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from A. Goodman some merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Max Heit some merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Lipman Brothers some merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Perlas Levenson some merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That some time during the year 1935 there was purchased from Schultz & Zucker some merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the year 1935 this department only purchased merchandise from the ten Guild manufacturers altogether? A. That is all that I have a record of at the time.

Q. If that is a record of all you have; is that correct? A. That is all—we will say.

Q. That is all that were used as resources; that you purchased merchandise from; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During that time do you know how many non-Guild manufacturers you purchased merchandise from? A. No. 4359

Q. Do you know the type of garments——

Mr. Weisman: Off the record. Maybe we can save a little time by working up a stipulation here.

Mr. Haycraft: I am glad to entertain such a proposition.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: Back on the record.

Mr. Weisman: It is stipulated by the Attorney for the Commission, that with regard to the names of the resources given by this witness, Samuel J. Chance, as being resources of Department No. 350, as set forth by him on page 2096 of the record, being Milton Altmark, Capri Frocks, Frank Starr-Friedlander, Goldston & Entin, A. Goodman, Max Heit, Lipman Brothers, Perlas Levenson, Schulte Zucker, that this witness does not know the type of merchandise manufactured by some firms, nor the price range at which their merchandise is sold except in so far as Lipman Brothers is concerned with regard 4361 to that manufacturer, he does know that they do make a four-way suit which sells at a wholesale price of $10.75.

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Haycraft: I agree to that stipulation.

Examiner Bennett: The stipulation is received.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That is your knowledge, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you any idea of the total business done in Department 350 during the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936? A. I do not.

Q. This department is under your supervision; and was within the time that you actually are in control of it?. A.

4362 I do not understand your question.

Q. This department is under your supervision; and this is within the time that you have been actively in control of it; is that true? A. That is true.

Q. Notwithstanding that, you would say to us that you would have no idea whatsoever as to the volume that you do in that department? A. I have not the slightest idea as to that.

Q. Give us your opinion? A. I would not even have an opinion.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to an opinion.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. And I offer to show that the witness has no idea whatever.

Examiner Bennett: You may ask him the facts. You are asking him something else which is not material, in my opinion.

Mr. Weisman: May I call for his recollection, then?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you may call for his recollection. 4364

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you any recollection? A. I have not.

Q. You have not? A. I have not.

Q. Did you ever know what the volume was that you were doing in that department? A. Yes, sir; I have seen figures constantly.

Q. You have seen them constantly. When did you last see the figures? A. I may have—the last that I recall is possibly around the end of that period.

Q. That is, the June 30, 1936, you say you saw some figures showing the total that you did in that department, or that you had done in that department? A. It may have been June 30, it may have been the early part of July. 4365

Q. The early part of July? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see any in the early part of August? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you not get monthly figures of that department? A. I do.

Q. You do? A. Yes.

Q. And you, as divisional merchandise manager—when did you see those figures in August, how recently—how recently? A. I am sorry. I have not seen any figures for August yet. The figures have not been submitted to me as yet.

Q. Have you any idea what the Department No. 350 did in the period February 1, 1935—between February 1, 1935, and June 30, 1935? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever see any figures as to that? A. Yes. I saw the comparative figures.

Q. Do you have any recollection whatsoever? A. None whatsoever.

Q. And as to the immediate period; that is, February 1, 1936 to June 30, 1936, you are likewise without any recol-

4367 lection as to the volume of business done therein? A. I saw the figures in order to prepare the slip which I had; but I do not remember the total dollar volume.

Q. What is the slip that you refer to?. A. To the decrease that that department had for this year in comparison with 1935.

Q. You mean, Exhibit No. 402? A. That is right.

Q. Right? A. Right.

Q. If you never have seen the figures for 1935, as you have just testified, as you have just testified you have not, how can you testify as to the comparative decrease; will you tell me that?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as contrary to the witness' testimony.

4368 Mr. Weisman: Let us see whether it is or not. I ask that that question and that answer be read containing that so that I may have those facts before your Honor in passing upon this matter.

Examiner Bennett: The witness testified that he has seen the figures.

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say that he had not seen them.

Mr. Weisman: I think it would be better to have those particular questions read.

(Questions and answers read as follows: "Q. Have you any idea what the Department No. 350 did in the period February 1, 1935—between February 1, 1935, and June 30, 1935? A. I do not know. Q. Did you ever see any figures as to that? A. Yes, I saw the comparative figures. Q. Do you have any recollection whatsoever? A. None whatsoever.")

Examiner Bennett: You will see from that that he has some information with regard to that. Furthermore, the witness has systematically disclosed that he does not remember figures. We are fed up on that. We have demonstrated beyond any 4370 possible doubt that he does not remember figures even for a month or for a few days. But he has testified that he has seen the figures and has used them in certain calculations. What else can you get from him on that?

Mr. Weisman: We will have to see, your Honor.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your opinion as to the volume done by Strawbridge & Clothier in Department 350 during the month of June, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any opinion.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I offer to prove that 4371
he has absolutely no opinion whatsoever.

Examiner Bennett: There is no foundation for the opinion.

Mr. Weisman: He has testified on direct testimony that that department is under his supervision.

Examiner Bennett: You are asking for a different kind of thing now.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is Department 350 under your direct supervision? A. Yes.

Q. That is one of the departments for which you are responsible for its sales and its profits? A. That is right.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection, and I may state for your information I am sustaining the objection because of your failure, technically, as a lawyer, to make the proper foundation for the question you are asking.

Mr. Weisman: I am making it now.

4373 Examiner Bennett: It is now 12.35. We will take an adjournment until 2 o'clock. Please be on hand promptly.

(Whereupon, at 12.35 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Examiner Bennett: You may resume.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you. May I have the last question?

(The last question was read.)

4374 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is it not? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding that, you state that you don't know the total volume of business done during the elapsed five months commencing February of this year? A. That is right. I don't remember.

Q. Now, I asked you before lunch to make a list of the total number of manufacturers with whom Department 350 did business.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, if your Honor please.

Q. (Continuing) And you stated to me that you have brought such a list with you; did you not? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Just a minute.

Q. And have you got it with you? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please look at—will that list refresh your recollection as to the number of resources in total that were availed of by that department prior to February 1, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to unless it is confined 4376 to the year 1935.

Examiner Bennett: That is in February, 1936?

Mr. Weisman: Prior to February, 1936.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: You may answer.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer. It is understood that it covers '35?

Mr. Weisman: This is the——

The Witness: Yes. May I say something? I understood that Mr. Weisman wished a list stating the total number of non-Guild resources and the total number of Guild resources that this department used in the year 1935; is that correct?

4377

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I asked you for the total number of non-Guild resources that you used in the year 1935. Now, have you got that? A. I have that on here, in with the information of the Guild resources.

Q. Wait a minute. What is that number? A. 30.

Q. 30. Yesterday you testified as to the number of Guild resources that were used; did you not? A. At the time of the red carding?

Q. Yes. A. That is right.

Q. How many was that total? A. Whatever number appeared on that sheet.

Q. Ten? A. Whatever they were.

Q. Have you no recollection of what you testified to yesterday? A. I read it fron. a sheet of paper.

Q. In other words, you weren't testifying to anything other than that which you were able to read; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Now, by the way, what is a four-way suit? A. A four-way suit is a suit consisting of four individual pieces or garments that can be utilized and interchanged to make 4379 up four different distinct types, whether in color or fabric.

Q. Do you know how many manufacturers were engaged in the manufacture of four-way suits in the month of February, 1936? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that the four-way suit was a very popular suit and was made by a great number of manufacturers during that period? A. I have heard of some manufacturers making that same suit.

Q. As a matter of fact, the four-way suit in February, 1936, had a great popularity; didn't it? A. Yes, it did.

Q. And in response to that great popularity a large number of manufacturers commenced to manufacture suits of that kind; isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, there was a glut on the market of four-way suits in the month of March, 1936; isn't that 4380 so? A. I didn't get your question. I am sorry.

Q. Do you know the meaning of the word "glut"? A. No.

Q. Well, maybe that is why you didn't get my question. As a matter of fact, the popularity of this four-way suit during the months of January and February, 1936, was so great that a great number of manufacturers proceeded to make up and sell, make up for sale four-way suits; isn't that so?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as too indefinite, this great number.

Mr. Weisman: Well, he has testified all the time to great numbers.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: I submit it is a perfectly proper question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Go ahead.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Judge says you shall answer. A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know that as a result of a large number of 4382 people who engaged in the manufacture of that four-way suit that there was an overproduction of four-way suits so that the market or the sale of them are greatly depressed by the overproduction; isn't that so? A. I don't know that.

Q. What do you mean when you say you don't know? A. Of course, we had difficulty getting a suit which to our estimation was comparable to the original model which was denied us in February.

Q. Do you mean that the four-way suit produced by Lipman Brothers was of a particular design? A. No, but it sold because of the suit itself.

Q. In other words, it happened that Lipman Brothers made up a good suit? A. That is right.

Q. There wasn't anything particularly new about a four- 4383 way suit; was there? A. Well, there are many four-way suits made.

Q. Yes. And there wasn't any particular monopoly of design in the making of four-way suits; was there? A. It depends on what you consider monopoly of design.

Q. I mean anybody was free to make four-way suits? There was no patent or patent right or closing of the right to make four-way suits? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And if there were, it would certainly be to your knowledge in the performance of your duties; wouldn't it? A. I have seen many of them shown to me.

Q. Certainly. That is what I wanted to bring out. A. Yes.

Q. I want your best testimony on that. Now, when this four-way suit came out, was the delivery of it, the time of the delivery of it important? A. Yes.

Q. If you didn't get it when ordered, would you take it? A. It depended on how long after the date of delivery was specified on the order.

Q. Well, the ready-to-wear market is a quickly changing 4385 market in ladies' dresses; isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, if you don't get things in timely, generally, not particularly, you don't want them? You want them when you can sell them; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. This four-way suit had a particular vogue or demand for it during the month of January, 1936, isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. Now, if Lipman Brothers offered to deliver that suit to you at a date subsequent to the time that your order called for delivery, would that be good delivery under the orders? A. It depended upon the particular garment and the buyer's judgment whether that could be sold at the time they specified delivery for it.

Q. Well, now, as a matter of fact, did not Lipman 4386 Brothers deliver all of the four-way suits that you ordered? A. They delivered those on order prior to our red carding.

Q. Well, let us see. These orders—did you place them subsequent to the red carding or before? A. We could not place any orders subsequent to our red carding.

Q. So, as a matter of fact, Lipman Brothers did deliver all of the suits that you had ordered? A. That is right.

Mr. Weisman: May I have Exhibit No.—it is right here.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, you identified an exhibit, namely, No. 401, Commission's Exhibit 401, which referred to Lipman Brothers; is that so? A. May I see it, please?

Q. Yes. I hand it to you now. Is that the one? A. Yes.

Q. Now, this refers to a number of garments particularly about seventy-one garments, I believe it is 8, 16, 22, and 18; as a matter of fact, when you testified yesterday did you intend to give the impression that Lipman 4388
Brothers refused to deliver any of those garments? A. I do not believe I did.

Q. As a matter of fact, did not Lipman Brothers deliver every one of the garments referred to on that exhibit?

Mr. Haycraft: That is what the witness testified on his previous examination.

Mr. Weisman: I object to this constant interjection on the part of Commission's counsel. I believe it is highly improper.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to check the record in that regard?

Mr. Weisman: No. I will get it from the witness now. I believe it will be more readily obtained in that manner. 4389

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, did not Lipman Brothers deliver every one of the garments referred to in Commission's Exhibit No. 401? A. I did say that yesterday.

Q. Are you sure you told us that yestrday? A. I am.

Q. Well, let us see whether you did or you did not.

(Mr. Taylor picked up the exhibit from the desk.)

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Taylor, may I have the exhibits here that you have just taken away? I want to use it in interrogating the witness.

Mr. Taylor: Yes. Here it is (handing the document to counsel).

Mr. Weisman: Well, I do not seem to be able to find the place in the testimony right now. In order to save time I will continue with the examination.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Irrespective of that, there is no doubt, is there, that 4391 as to each and every garment shown on Commission's Exhibit 401, Lipman Brothers did deliver them and you did receive them? A. That is right.

Q. How many numbers of an average garment do you carry in stock in Department No. 350? A. I do not quite get the question. I would like for you to read that, if you please.

Mr. Weisman: I request that the reporter read the question.

Examiner Bennett: You may read it.

Q. (Question read.) A. You mean by that, single pieces of the garment?

Q. Yes. A. That depends upon the time of the year and 4392 the type of garment.

Q. Take the month of January. A. What type of garment or dress, a daytime dress, an evening dress, a wedding gown, or what?

Q. Let us say a four-way suit. You knew what I was getting at, did you not? A. Right. That would be based on the experience we have had in the previous years with that particular type of garment.

Q. Well, now, let us see. Did you have any experience in purchasing this four-way suit? A. I, personally, did not, but the buyer did have experience in the purchasing of four-way suits, the buyer in that department.

Q. Well, now, some of this merchandise was brought in in February, of these four-way suits? A. I do not know what they were.

Q. What do you mean you do not know what they were? A. I do not know whether they were brought in in January or February.

Q. Look at Commission's Exhibit 401 and see if that will refresh your recollection. A. It does not have any statement here as to the receipt of the merchandise. It 4394 states the date the order was placed and the date of delivery.

Q. When the date of delivery is fixed, what is your experience; are they delivered generally within a reasonable time? A. Yes, generally.

Q. So that if the date of delivery is fixed as January 31, that will ordinarily mean that the merchandise will be delivered either on January 31 or within four or five days thereafter; is that so? A. It could be sooner.

Q. Is it your statement that these were delivered sooner? A. It is not my statement. I am not certain as to the date of the receipt of the merchandise.

Q. If you got these pieces in about January 1, you do not want us to believe—January 31, you do not want us to 4395 believe they moved out the same day that they got in, do you? A. I did not say that.

Q. So, you must have had them in your place of business around February 1? A. Some suits were in stock around February 1; the date they were received from the manufacturer, however, I do not know.

Q. What I want to know is, in the conduct of this business, what is the average number of a particular type of garment that you generally carry in stock? A. The garment generally stocked, that type of garment, I would say that the average for that department might be about six to eight pieces.

Q. Six to eight pieces? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Suppose you had more than six to eight pieces, would you deem yourself overstocked? A. Not necessarily.

Q. I know all about "not necessarily." I want generally. A. What?

Q. I want generally. A. It depended upon the demand at the time for that particular type of dress.

Q. You have a great recollection about this particular four-way suit, do you? A. Yes.

4397 Q. How many of those do you think you ought to carry in stock? A. It depended upon the selling activities of that number.

Q. Did that particular number have a great selling activity? A. I should think that if it were re-ordered——

Q. No, no, no, no. Did that number have a great selling activity? A. Yes. It did.

Q. Now, bearing in mind the selling activity that that number had, the popularity that you ascribed to it, what is your opinion of the number of pieces that you normally ought to have in stock, or should have in stock? A. Well, that could vary.

Q. We all know it could vary. Anything can vary, almost. We want your opinion as to the number that you 4398 normally should, or ought to have in stock, with all of your knowledge as you testified to concerning this particular garment both on your direct examination and upon your cross-examination. A. If I had a fast selling book to determine that, on the experience of selling, I could state the figure, but I am not certain and I cannot state as to that particular garment in the absence of that fast selling book.

Q. In other words, you said, and you now state, as division merchandise manager of this department, Department No. 350, that, notwithstanding the fact that you testified it was a fast selling number, that it had some popularity, you do not at this time know, or will not say, as to the number of pieces you should have in stock normally? A. I have stated the facts that I do know.

Q. You do not know? A. I have stated the facts that I do know.

Q. I want to know whether or not you know what the average amount of pieces you ought to have in stock of a fast selling popular number——

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

A. There is no determinative figure. 4400

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is the best opinion you have as to that? A. I would not want—I will not give you an opinion on that.

Q. Oh, you will not? A. No.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled. The witness should wait until the Examiner has ruled.

Mr. Weisman: I think so myself, your Honor.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not, in the practice of your business as divisional merchandise manager of the 350 Department, take charge of the merchandising of this department? A. I do, yes. 4401

Q. As part of the merchandising of the department, is it a part of your duties to see if you are not overstocked with a particular number? A. Yes.

Q. In order to see if you are not overstocked do you not have to know what is the fair and usual and normal stock for that number? A. Yes.

Q. I am asking you with regard to such a number as that, what was the fair and normal stock that you should have on hand? A. Yes, you are asking me a general question, now.

Q. Not a general question, but as to this particular item. A. I cannot answer as to that particular item. You are asking me generally.

Q. Can you answer as to any particular garment? A. I would have to know the selling activities of that number to determine the number——

Q. (Interposing) And do you——

4403 Mr. Haycraft (interposing): I object to counsel interrupting the witness before he has completed his answer.

A. —number to re-order——

Mr. Haycraft: I insist that the witness be allowed to answer the question.

Mr. Weisman: I did not think I had interrupted him. I have no desire to do so.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

A. —number to re-order or the number that should be on hand and in stock.

By Mr. Weisman.

4404 Q. Yesterday, on your direct examination, both in answer to questions propounded to you by Mr. Haycraft, counsel for the Commission, and in answer to some questions propounded to you by the Judge in charge of the proceedings, didn't you state that you knew of the selling activity of this four-way suit? A. I said I knew of the selling activity according to the orders placed.

Q. All right. Now, with the knowledge of that selling activity, with your knowledge of its popularity, what I want to know from you is, what, in your present opinion, is the normal amount of garments of that particular type that you would regularly carry in stock in the operation of this department? A. I couldn't answer that question.

Q. What is that? A. I couldn't answer that question.

Q. You mean, you can't answer it because you don't know what the proper answer is? A. No, because I have nothing to guide me by.

Q. But you have to be guided by your statement made yesterday that you knew it was a popular and fair selling number? A. Yes, that is the statement I made.

Q. Now, in view of the fact that you knew about this being a popular and fast selling number, could you tell 4406 us what is the fair number of items or pieces of a popular or fast-selling number that you carry in stock? A. I couldn't tell you that.

Q. All right. Have you any idea of the comparative volume of sales as between Departments 331 and 350? A. I am sorry. May I have that question?

Q. (Question read.) A. What do you mean by comparative sales?

Q. Well, do you sell more in 350 than you do in 331, or do they run about the same, or do they run less? A. 350, to my recollection, is a little less than 331.

Q. What is that? A. Is a little less than 331.

Q. When you say a little less, what do you mean by a little less? A. I don't know the exact figure.

Q. Why don't you say a great deal less? A. Because I 4407 know it is a little less.

Q. Well, the testimony that you have given, or that is in the record, is that the approximate amount of business averaged, if the extensions made are correct, was $15,000 per month in Department 331 for the period February 1, 1936, to June 30. Now, if that is so, when you say a little less in 350, would you say it is $14,000 a month? A. I wouldn't say.

Q. What do you mean by a little? How little or how much? A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you mean that—I don't care whether you recall it. I want to get your best opinion as a manager. A. I won't give you my best opinion.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to opinions, Mr. Examiner.

4409

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you mean to say that with both of these——

Mr. Haycraft: I ask for a ruling on that objection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, he isn't giving his opinion. He said he wouldn't.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you mean to say that as manager of both of these departments, with both of them under your direct supervision and control, you cannot give us any opinion as to the comparative volume of sales between those two departments? A. I have given you my opinion.

4410

Q. What is that? A. A little less.

Q. Well, now, when you say a little less, you mean about $500 less per month? A. I don't know how much in dollars or thousands or any other figure.

Q. I see. By the way, can you give me any idea of your turnover in your various departments, 331? A. I have seen the figures, but I don't recall them.

Q. Well, let's see. When you merchandise a department, part of your duty as merchandising manager is to see that your stock turns-over? A. That is right.

Q. By turnover of stock we mean that if you get in a certain number of thousands of dollars per month, that you have got to move that out within a certain reasonable time? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Is that not so? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, as merchandising manager of your various departments, it is part of your duty, is it not, to watch your turnover; isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. Because lack of turnover results in mark-downs; isn't that so? A. That is right. 4412

Q. In other words, if a garment comes in on the first of the month, and it isn't sold within a certain period thereafter, then you take a mark-down on it in an effort to move it out; isn't that so? A. Depends upon the method the store uses to operate.

Q. I don't mean—I mean your store. A. Well, any particular time—I refuse to state. I don't think that is a method of operation—that operation could vary at different times of the year. You mentioned a specific time.

Q. I didn't mention any specific time. A. You did say a month.

Q. Well, within any period of time. A. There is a determinative figure.

Q. What is that determinative figure? A. As to the 4413 particular types.

Q. Let us suggest the Department 350. In the Department 350 what is your turn-over? A. The actual turnover we get, I do not remember.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. I wouldn't hazard a guess.

Q. You mean to say that as merchandising manager you do not know the turnover in this department? A. That is right, as it is to-day, I do not know it.

Q. Do you know as it was any time? A. I do not remember it.

Q. Well, did you ever know it? A. I have seen the figures, yes.

Q. I don't care about the exact figures. You are merchandising this department and I want to know from you what is your opinion as to its turnover.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the opinion.

Mr. Weisman: He told me he can't give me the figures. Now, I am entitled to his opinion.

Examiner Bennett: He is entitled to the best recollection, if he has any. You haven't laid any 4415 foundation for an opinion. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: I am now going to try to make a foundation for an opinion.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In the course of the performance of your duty as merchandise manager, you are in charge of the turnover of this department; isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you are responsible to see that your turnover is such that it will be commensurate with profit earning; isn't that so? A. I don't quite understand that question. I am sorry.

Q. Perhaps you don't. I will try it in a more simple 4416 fashion. A. Thank you.

Q. To some degree the profits of your department is dependent upon your ability to turn over your stock? A. That is one factor, yes.

Q. And in the performance of your duties, you do keep track and record in some fashion of the turnover of this department? A. Those figures are submitted to us.

Q. And you constantly see them from time to time as they are submitted? A. From time to time; yes, sir.

Q. When, in your opinion, there isn't sufficient speed in the turnover, you examine the facts with regard to that lack of speed, don't you? A. They are investigated; yes, sir.

Q. And they are investigated under your supervision and direction? A. That is right.

Q. And the reasons are brought to you? A. That is right.

Q. And it is part of your duty to seek to obviate or dissipate or remove the reasons which tend to slow up the turnover? A. That is correct.

Q. You have been engaged in this position since February 1, 1936? A. That is right. 4418

Q. Now, basing your answer upon the experience that you have gathered and just testified, will you tell us what is your best opinion as to the turnover in Department 350?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court has directed you to give us your best opinion. A. I have no opinion as the best opinion.

Q. You mean you haven't any opinion? A. I don't remember the turnover.

Q. I didn't ask you whether you remembered. I asked you what your best opinion is.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, in the light of your experience as you have testified to, and in the light of the performance of your duties, have you any opinion as to what the turnover in this department is? 4419

The Witness: May I hear that question again?

(Question read.)

A. I attested that I saw fit——

Q. No. That calls for an answer "yes" or "no." Have you any opinion? A. No.

Q. Now, let me ask you this question: In the light of your experience, as testified, have you any opinion as to what the turnover in this department 350 should normally be? A. Your turnover——

Q. No. Have you an opinion as to what it should normally be?

Examiner Bennett: Have you or haven't you an opinion?

The Witness: I haven't.

4421 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What? A. I haven't.

Q. You haven't any opinion? A. No.

Q. Will you please tell us, then, how you can come to a conclusion with regard to this department as to whether the turnover is sufficient or speedy to make a profit when you don't know what the normal turnover should be? A. I can. That figure is a comparison figure using generally the figure of the year before.

Q. In other words— A. It is a matter of experience.

Q. Your total ability as merchandise manager is that your turnover in this department should be at least as much as the year before? A. If the operation has been good, yes.

4422 Q. And if it isn't good, and if it isn't as much as the year before, then the operation is bad? A. I would consider it such, yes.

Q. Tell me what was your turnover in the Department 350 during the five months' period in 1936 as compared to the five months' period we have before referred to in 1935? A. I do not remember it.

Q. Did you ever know it? A. I have seen it; yes, sir.

Q. I don't ask you whether you have seen it. I asked you if you ever knew it? A. I knew it.

Q. But you have completely forgotten it? A. Like I have other figures.

Q. Lots of other figures you have completely forgotten? A. That is right. I review figures constantly.

Q. I see. When you say you review them, you mean you look at them? A. That is right.

Q. After you see them they make no impression in your mind? A. Some do, others don't.

Q. But the matter of the turnover is some that don't? A. It is a matter that must be applied at the time that they are reviewed.

Q. And then immediately forgotten? A. I don't know as it does any good to remember it. 4424

Q. Well, you and I may differ on that. A. Well, that is my opinion.

Q. What I want to know is, whether you remember it? A. I do not remember them.

Q. Let me ask you this: Have you an opinion of the amount of stock that a department ought to normally carry in relation to the sale, is volume of sales? A. There is a relationship, yes.

Q. No. I didn't ask you if there is a relationship. I want to ask you if you have an opinion on such relationship? A. Depending upon the department, the time of the year. I have an opinion as to that, yes.

Q. What is your opinion as to the relation between the volume of sales and the stock on hand in Department 350 for the month of February, 1936? A. I don't remember. 4425

Q. I didn't ask you whether you remembered. I asked you for your opinion as to what the ratio ought to be. This doesn't call for figures, Mr. Chance. A. It does call for figures.

Q. Do you think that the stock on hand of Department 350 in February, 1936, should have been ten times the amount of the monthly sales? A. That's a matter of store policy, and a matter of——

Q. What was your store policy in February, 1936? A. I do not remember it.

Q. Well, what was your store policy in March, 1936? A. I don't know. I don't remember.

Q. What was your store policy in April, 1936? A. I do not remember.

Q. What was your store policy in May, 1936? A. I don't remember.

Q. What was your store policy in June, 1936? A. Referring to the matter of turnover; is that correct in all of these questions you are asking?

Q. I am asking you questions; you are not asking me.

4427 A. Well, I want to be enlightened.

Q. If you don't remember the question I will repeat it for you. A. Please.

Mr. Weisman: Now, may we have the question, Mr. Reporter?

(Question read as follows: "Q. Do you think that the stock on hand of Department 350 in February, 1936, should have been ten times the amount of the monthly sales? A. That's a matter of store policy, and a matter of"——)

Mr. Haycraft: I submit that the witness should have been permitted to answer the question. He said "It is a matter of store policy," and something else.

4428 Mr. Weisman: You can bring that in on redirect.

Mr. Haycraft: I think the witness should be allowed to complete his answer.

Mr. Weisman: I don't care what you think. Make your objections and be seated.

Examiner Bennett: Well, do you have anything to add to that?

The Witness: I did have, sir, and the condition of sales at the time or demand.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, let's see.

Examiner Bennett: Now, can you answer the question which has been asked of you?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, will you answer the last question? A. May I have the last question, please?

(Question read.)

A. I do not remember.

Q. You remember the month of the year we are now in? A. Yes. 4430

Q. What month are we in? A. August.

Q. What was the month immediately preceding this? A. July.

Q. Now, what was your policy in July with regard to the amount of stock that you ought to carry on hand with regard to your volume of sales? A. I would have to review figures in order to determine that question.

Q. You didn't have any policy? A. There is a policy that——

Q. What was the policy? A. Your policy is always compared by your stock on hand in your sales, your ratio.

Q. Well, what was that ratio? A. I do not remember it.

Q. What is the present ratio? A. I do not remember it.

Q. Was February a particularly good month in Department 350? A. In comparison to what? 4431

Q. In comparison to January? A. My recollection—if my recollections are correct, it is about the same total.

Q. Did you ever hear of a strike in the wholesale dress business, or a threatened strike in the month of February? A. There was some discussion, quite a lot of news in the trade journals concerning it.

Q. Did that in any way curtail your stock on hand? A. I have not been notified by the buyers, or I don't remember.

Q. What? A. I do not remember of any particular incident which would refer to an abnormal shortage of merchandise.

Q. Was there a shortage of merchandise abnormal, or otherwise? A. If my recollection is right, the strike that was threatened at the time we are discussing, referred to the cheaper market rather than to the higher-priced market.

Q. Now, will you listen to my question and answer it again or try again to answer it? A. May I have the question again, please?

4433

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I should like to have it read.

(Question read.)

The Witness: Do you refer to the No. 350 department?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yes. A. None that I know of.

Q. What was the total amount of business that you did in January in Department No. 350? A. I do not recall. What month and what year?

Q. That was for January, 1936, that we are talking about. A. I do not recall.

4434 Q. What did you do in that department in February? A. I do not recall the figures.

Q. What did you do in March? A. I do not recall that.

Q. What did you do in April? A. I do not recall.

Q. Are not February and March and April better months than January in the ready-to-wear business? A. Yes. You have the Easter season to influence your February and March figures.

Q. When did Easter come in this year, 1936? A. I believe April 12.

Q. There was no Easter in February, was there? A. No.

Q. There was no Easter in March? A. No.

Q. Would you say that February and March were better months than January? A. I think by comparison there is a difference, if I recall correctly.

Q. Do you mean a difference in favor of February and of March? A. I believe so.

Q. A difference in favor of January? A. A difference in favor of February, I believe.

Q. What was that difference? A. I do not know.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 415. When is the first time you saw that? One moment. I withdraw 4436 that question. First, you did see that before that to-day, did you? A. What is that?

Q. You did see that Commission's Exhibit 415 before to-day, did you? A. Yes.

Q. You did see it before yesterday, did you? A. I did.

Q. When was the first time before yesterday that you saw it? A. It may have been a week.

Q. Who showed it to you? A. It was sent to me in the usual procedure of the store correspondence from our statistical department.

Q. In other words, your statistical department sent this ahead to you? A. Yes.

Q. Was that the first you heard of it? A. Of this set of figures, yes.

Q. Who, from the statistical department, sent it to you? 4437
A. I do not know who sent it to me from the statistical department.

Q. Was it accompanied by any letter? A. No. This was drawn up at my direction.

Q. Whom did you give the direction to? A. Somebody, someone answered the telephone in our statistical department and I directed that this be made up.

Q. When did you first give the direction? A. That may have been the day prior to my receiving it.

Q. When did you receive it? A. I do not know the exact date.

Q. Well, what is your best recollection as to that? A. Well, it could be almost any day last week.

Q. Would—what did you call up the statistical department and ask them to prepare for you? A. I asked them to prepare these figures because I wanted to see them.

Q. What figures did you ask them to prepare? A. I asked them to prepare the figures for these departments which are on here.

Q. What departments are on there? A. The departments designated on there. May I see that again, please?

4439 Q. Yes.

(The document was shown to the witness.)

A. These departments buying from the Guild, namely, 331, 350, 338, 358, 371 and 373.

Q. Did you tell them what departments to include in under the category of departments buying from the Guild? A. I did.

Q. What did you say? A. I told them to include those departments that should go in under that heading.

Q. Did you tell them to leave out any department? A. No, I told them to give me the total figures for that division and give me the totals for it.

Q. Did you tell them to leave out Department 338? A. No, that is included.

4440 Q. What department did you tell them to leave out, if any? A. In each particular figure?

Q. No. In departments buying from the Guild. A. I asked them to include No. 491, 492, 493, 382, 385, in the next figure which is denominated "Departments not buying from the Guild."

Q. What did you do about 371 and 373? A. They are included in the first figures mentioned.

Q. In the departments buying from the Guild? A. That is right, sir.

Q. By the way, when you received this was this in this fashion or shape? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it strike you as strange that your statistical department should send along a piece of paper of that kind here; is that the customary procedure in your statistical department? A. It is not customary, but I have received papers from them which were similar. It may be some information was on there which pertained to some other department or departments, and it may have been that they just cut it off. It may have been simply because the space was not used and they cut it off. I am not certain 4442 just why they cut this off.

Q. In the departments buying from the Guild, did you include Department No. 491? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you include Department No. 382? A. I did not.

Q. Did you include Department No. 352? A. 352?

Q. Yes. A. There is no such department.

Q. There is no such department? A. No.

Q. On page 2157 of the record there appears this question: "Q. Why did you not include No. 352? A. Because the total sum of purchases from the Guild in that department was very insignificant."

Mr. Haycraft: That is apparently a typographical error. That should have been 382.

The Witness: Oh, 382. What was your question 4443
now?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. That should be 382? A. 382.

Q. So, we have it that you did not include in the Guild buying departments the 382 department? A. That is correct.

Q. What is the No. 382 department? A. 382 is the sportswear department.

Q. Did you not buy—did you not formerly do business in the sportswear department with Guild houses? A. Very little.

Q. No. I did not ask you whether it was very little or very much, because I do not know what you mean by "little," so I certainly would not know what you mean by "very little" or "very much." I asked you if you formerly did business with Guild houses in Department 382? A. Yes. The record shows that we have done business.

Q. That is why—then, why did you not throw in the department buying from Guild this Department 382 along with the other departments? A. Not for any specific rea-4445 son, just I did not think I wanted to. I decided which ones I would put in.

Q. Did you not think that if you were going to be fair about this thing that you had better put it in? A. I did not think of that.

Q. Then, did you not think, and this is what really happened, is it not, that you could make out a little better case against the Guild if you left that department out? A. I do not think so.

Q. You are not certain? A. I am fairly sure.

Q. Did you not try a little bit to make it appear that because you could not get Guild merchandise you had suffered somewhat? A. Not particularly. I included——

Q. "Not particularly," but to some degree? A. I included one department that probably has not bought any 4446 merchandise from the Guild in the last year; namely, 373, that figure is included in the last year. There is no discrimination; I simply tried to keep the type of garments rather than to look for any particular increase or decrease or favorable showing or unfavorable showing.

Q. Now, I notice that your department which did business with the Guild did, as a whole—speaking of the departments as a whole— A. What is that?

Q. Now, I notice that your departments which did business with the Guild did, as a whole, show an increase of 13.3 per cent. in the amount of business that they did over the total amount of business that they did for the same months in 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: What month?
Mr. Weisman: March.
The Witness: Guild houses?
Mr. Weisman: Yes.
The Witness: If that is true, that is correct.

Q. Well, in view of the fact that your business went ahead 13.3 per cent. over the year before, do you still think in March, 1936, that buyers had had any difficulty in replacing Guild merchandise? A. Yes, I do. 4448

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, I notice that although you testified that Department No. 350 receded in its sales in February, 1936, as against 1935 to the extent of 19.52 per cent., that the total recession in all departments was only 8.5 per cent. That is so, is it? A. I testified that that department was most affected.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that you testified that department was most affected, the total of all departments, you stated, in all, only took in, in February, 8.5 per cent., or went back in February 8.5 per cent.? A. What is that? 4449

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that you testified that department was most affected, the total of all departments, you stated only went back in February 8.5 per cent.? A. If it is on that sheet of paper I think that is so. Yes.

Q. That is also your statement, that notwithstanding the fact that if there were any shortage in merchandise in the month of February because of a threatened strike, it would affect the lower-priced departments, rather than the Department No. 350? A. By my "lower-priced departments" I had reference to $4.75 cost merchandise.

Q. $4.75 cost? A. Yes.

Q. $4.75—what do you mean that sold for? A. $6.95 retail.

Q. What else? A. That is all.

Q. Flat? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I also notice that in April your total decrease over April, 1935, was only 1.9. In other words, that in April, 1935, the total business done in all departments dealing with the Guild was eight—I had better be sure 4451 about this (showing document to the witness) $83,800? A. That is the 1935 figure?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Was $83,500——

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Q. Was $83,800—well, in April, 1936——

Examiner Bennett: I think you had better connect that up a little better there so the witness can get a clear picture of it, Mr. Weisman.

Mr. Weisman: I shall be glad to do so, your Honor.

By Mr. Weisman.

4452 Q. Now, I also notice that in April your total decrease over April, 1935, was 1.9 per cent. In other words, that in April, 1935, the total business done in all departments dealing with Guild merchandise was $83,800, while in April, 1936, it was $82,200. A. A decrease.

Q. What? A. A decrease.

Q. A decrease of 1.9 per cent. Do you think that shows some evidence of the fact that your buyers had overcome this "difficulty" that you told us about on your direct examination? A. No; I do not believe it does.

Q. Now, I notice that in May, 1935, your total sales in the Guild departments was $75,300, while in 1936 your total sales in those departments was $77,700; in other words, an increase of over 3 per cent. Would that seem evident to you that your buyers had overcome this "difficulty" that you told us about? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, I notice that in June, 1935, your total dress sales in the department affected by the Guild was $88,200, while in June, 1936, this mounted to $91,700, an increase of 4 per cent.; would that seem some evidence to you that your buyers had overcome this "great difficulty" that you told us about? A. No, sir.

Q. It would not? A. No, sir. 4454

Q. Now, I notice that the total business done in all dress departments for the five months of February, 1936, through June, 1936, was $934,400; is that so? A. May I see it?

Q. You may (indicating). A. That is right.

Q. Now, yesterday, or the day before, Mr. Tily testified, or stated to us, that he believed the total volume in the dress business was approximately $3,000,000, or approximately three times that. Were you present when he so testified? A. I believe I heard some figure like that.

Q. In view of that testimony as given by Mr. Tily, your superior, would you not say that the last six months of the year are much better than the first six months of the year?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as comparing Mr. Tily's testimony.

Mr. Weisman: I am not comparing it. I want to refresh his recollection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Mr. Tily also stated that last year they did approximately $3,600,000; do you remember that? A. I do not, exactly.

Q. Now, I notice that in the first five months of 1935—that is, commencing with February—the total volume done in all departments, all dress departments, was $850,400—

Mr. Haycraft (interposing): I object to that. I object to that.

Mr. Weisman: You might be courteous enough to let me finish with my question before you interrupt in that very discourteous way.

4457

Examiner Bennett: Had you completed your question?

Mr. Weisman: No, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Proceed to complete the question.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Well—I have forgotten what I said now. He simply interrupts me for that purpose, to throw me off on my thought. I think it is certainly discourteous in the extreme.

Examiner Bennett: The question may be read, so far as it has been given.

4458

(Question read.)

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. —now, is it your opinion that the total volume done in 1935 was $3,000,000?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that on the further ground, or, the further objection is, Mr. Examiner, that the record shows in this case that there should be no comparison made because this department does not include all of the dresses sold by the store of Strawbridge & Clothier. The testimony of Mr. Tily is that there is a basement store, which did not come within these figures shown on this exhibit.

Mr. Weisman: Let's see.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it doesn't make any difference whether there was or not. This witness is not responsible for what Mr. Tily testified to.

Mr. Weisman: I am not making him responsible.

Examiner Bennett: I don't see why——

Mr. Weisman: I want to get his opinion.

Mr. Haycraft: I have an additional objection. 4460

Examiner Bennett: I think that is a matter for argument when you come to that phase of it. I don't see why we should clutter up the record with it now.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you tell them to leave the basement out of these non-Guild resources? A. I have no access to other figures but those of the departments that I am directly responsible for.

Q. Do these figures "No Guild Resource"—have you excluded the sale of dresses in the basement? A. They are departments that I have supervision over and which I have enumerated to you.

Q. Oh. Well, you know we don't know as much about these code numbers as you do, nor does the Commission. I want to know from you whether or not when these figures were made up under the heading "No Guild Resource" you left out the basement figures.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Weisman: You have offered this in evidence. I want to know.

Mr. Haycraft: The record shows——

Mr. Weisman: What this contains.

Mr. Haycraft: The record shows very clearly what it contains and the basement was not mentioned. It has nothing to do with this exhibit, and nothing to do with the testimony of this exhibit.

Mr. Weisman: Now I see the point of your running in numbers instead of names.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

Mr. Haycraft: There is nothing mysterious about it. The witness testified as to what his departments were and what these figures referred to. There is no exclusion.

4463

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. I am going to ask a few questions to clear it up in my own mind. Are the departments covered by that statement in the upper store or in the basement?

The Witness: In the upper store, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Are there any of the departments covered by that statement in the basement?

The Witness: There are not. My testimony is about my departments that I have charge over.

Examiner Bennett: You have given, as I understand it, the departments over which you have supervision?

The Witness: That is right, sir.

Examiner Bennett: And only those?

4464

The Witness: Only those in my testimony throughout.

Examiner Bennett: I see. Do you know, as a matter of fact, whether the basement stores get, or the basement store goes to Guild members for its supplies, for its source of supply?

The Witness: No, Mr. Taylor is in a better position to answer that question.

Examiner Bennett: You wouldn't know?

The Witness: I wouldn't know.

Examiner Bennett: All right. That clears it up with me.

Mr. Haycraft: There is an objection pending.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I don't know just what the force of it is. If you will just indicate what it is.

(The record was read.)

Examiner Bennett: That disposes of Mr. Haycraft's objection. I overrule it, as far as that is concerned, because the matter has been disposed of, as far as I can see.

Mr. Weisman: All right, Judge. 4466

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What priced merchandise do you handle in Department 371? A. Dresses retailing at $3.95 and up.

Q. Was that included as a Guild— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —resource Now, what price do you pay for dresses that retail at $3.95 and up? A. Those dresses are purchased in a $2.50 or $2.75 cost market.

Q. Have you any figures which would show us how Department 371 did during the five months of 1936? A. Simply a comparison by price line which I submitted yesterday during the testimony.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes. 4467

(A short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, I think just as we were recessing you told us that in Department 371 your retail price was $6.95; is that correct? A. I don't believe I did.

Q. Didn't you tell us that your price started at $4.75 wholesale? A. I did not.

Q. What did you want to tell us? A. I did tell you what I wanted to tell you.

Q. Well, tell us again. A. I told you they started at $3.95 retail.

Q. At $3.95 retail? And what is your next price? A. I don't know what the next price is. A list of prices which occurred in that department, experience in selling for five comparative months has been submitted yesterday.

Q. Well, let me see.

Mr. Weisman: Will you read my last few questions and answers?

(The record was read.)

4469 The Witness: Perhaps I can help you, Judge.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Sure. Go ahead. A. It was pertaining to another department that you asked me.

Examiner Bennett: That is what I thought.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What was the other departments? A. The 491 department, economy dress department.

Q. You say that I asked you about 491?

Examiner Bennett: It is my recollection that you asked him about a different department which 4470 had a wholesale price of $4.75, or something like that.

The Witness: That is right, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you give us a summary of your Department 491? A. I did not.

Q. Why didn't you give us a summary of that department? A. I gave you the summary of the department that we were buying from Guild resources only.

Q. Well, Department 471 buys from the Guild resources; doesn't it? A. 371?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know of any Guild houses who sold merchandise during the five months' period in 1936 which retail in your store at $3.95? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know of any Guild houses that sold merchandise during that period which retailed in your store at $5.95? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know of any Guild houses which sold you any merchandise during that same five months' period which retailed at $7.95? A. No.

Q. Do you know of any Guild houses that sold you any 4472 merchandise during that same five months' period which retailed at $8.95? A. No.

Q. Do you know of any Guild houses that ever sold you merchandise during the five months' period in 1935 which retailed in your store at $3.95? A. I wouldn't know that, sir.

Q. Well, do you know of any Guild houses which during that five months' period in 1935 sold merchandise which retailed at $5.95? A. I do not know of any houses or Guild houses prior to February 1st, 1936, that is——

Q. Will you tell me what was the purpose of including in Commission's Exhibit No. 414 price lines at $3.95, $5.95, $7.95 and $8.95? A. Yes, to show a true picture in order to make it clear that there wasn't any particular price discriminated. They are the price lines carried in that de- 4473 partment and that is our selling experience.

Q. Well, let's see. I see from here that your $7.95 price line in February, 1935, you sold 139 garments, while in February, 1936, you sold almost three times as many garments, 383; is that correct? A. May I see it, please?

(Commission's Exhibit No. 414 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you see that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is that true? A. That is true.

Q. I also see that in March, 1935, at that price you sold 255 garments, but in March, 1936, you sold 388 garments, an increase of almost 50 per cent? A. That is right.

Q. I notice that in April, 1935, in that department you sold 295 garments, while in 1936 you sold 614 garments, an increase in excess of 100 per cent. A. That is correct.

Q. I notice that in May at that price line, May, 1935, you sold 257 garments, while in May, 1936, you sold 454 gar-4475 ments. A. That is correct.

Q. In June, 1935, you sold 435 garments, yet in 1936 you sold 672 garments. A. I have 425 garments on my sheet here.

Q. 425 for June? A. June, 1935.

Q. Yes. A. Yes. The '36 figure is still a better percentage of increase.

Q. In June, 1936, you sold 672 garments. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, certainly, then, you would not urge that at that price range the Guild policy has injured you one iota? A. I don't know whether that price range was purchased from the Guild resources in 1935.

Q. Whether it was purchased or not, the activities of the Guild haven't injured you; have they? A. They have 4476 injured us in other price lines.

Q. Oh. I say, at that price line. A. Our sales there are better for 1936 than 1935.

Q. Yes. Isn't that so? A. We do have other prices that we were affected in.

Q. I didn't ask you that. I said at that price range you certainly weren't affected? A. Well, we had to put our weight on that price line in order to keep up our sales.

Q. So that you weren't affected? A. In that particular price line, no.

Q. That is right. You are not afraid to answer my questions: are you? A. No, I am answering you.

Q. There may be two opinions on that. A. Possibly.

Q. You say that you were affected in your price line at $5.95 retail injuriously? A. According to the figures here, taking the total for five months, we haven't.

Q. All right. Now, let's see the price line at $12.95. In February, 1935, at $12.95 you sold seventy-two garments; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. February, 1936, you were red carded, you sold eighty-one garments? A. That is right.

Q. In March, 1935, you sold 153 garments? A. That is correct.

Q. In March, 1936, there was a recession. You only sold 151 garments? A. That is right.

Q. You had a difference of two garments? A. Two garments, yes.

Q. Do you think that was a very serious thing? A. Well, that is a matter of opinion.

Q. I want your opinion. A. I haven't—I don't know how many more we would have sold had we had Guild merchandise.

Q. Do you think that was a serious recession in that month? A. Well, taking into consideration our total increase for my division, I would say it is.

Q. I see. I want to get your opinion. Now, I do notice that in April, 1935, you sold 197 garments, but in 1936 you only sold 141 garments at that price; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you have a recession there, but I notice also that in May, 1935, you only sold 131 garments at that price. A. That is right. That is correct.

Q. Yet, in 1936, for the same month, you went up to 154 garments? A. That is correct.

Q. In June, 1935, you sold 104 garments, but in June, 1936, you increased those sales by almost 50 per cent.; isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. Isn't that some indicia that at that price line your buyers had been enabled to overcome this great difficulty that you told us about? A. It is conclusive that we were injured in several months there.

Q. No, that isn't what I asked you.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now——

4481 The Witness: May I have the question again, please?

Mr. Weisman: We will give it to you again. Will you please try to answer it?

The Witness: Sure.

Mr. Weisman: Will you give him the question?

(The question was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to interpose an objection, Mr. Examiner, as the question is not proper in the form it is in as it includes a statement of fact which is not in the record. The witness did not testify that the buyers in this department had to overcome great difficulty. It was in the Departments 331 and 350 to which the witness referred to in such a matter.

4482 Mr. Weisman: In view of the statement of counsel for the Commission, I will withdraw the question.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: May we have the exhibit now, please?

The Witness: Surely.

(Commission's Exhibit 414 was handed to Mr. Weisman.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You constantly, in your testimony, referred to "resources" of a particular department; what do you mean by the word "resources"—first, have you made that statement? A. I have mentioned resources from time to time.

Q. When you use the word "Resources"; what do you mean? A. I mean by that the source of supply.

Q. You mean those are sources to whom you may go to get your merchandise; is that so? A. In a general term, yes.

Q. You mean, and you merely mean, as a general term, that in the practice of your business these people whom you denominate as "resources" were some of the people 4484 from whom your buyers elected to purchase merchandise? A. In which particular line of resources are you now referring to, or to which?

Q. When you use the word "resources" in your testimony is that not what you mean? A. Yes, people from whom we may buy goods if we want to.

Q. You do not mean to give the impression, do you, that by "resources" you mean they are the only available resources? A. No. I do not.

Q. All right. I just wanted to clear that up. A. No. I do not.

Q. Now, you gave the names of some people from whom this Department No. 371 purchased merchandise; do you remember that? A. I remember reading such a list, yes. 4485

Q. In other words, you state that you read such a list into the record? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, do you know anything about the price lines of those particular names that you read? A. May I have the names, please?

Q. Well, one of them was R. K. Junior Frocks. A. I do not know the price lines of those resources.

Mr. Haycraft: Does not my stipulation cover all of that, Mr. Examiner?

Examiner Bennett: I do not know what he is getting at, yet. I thought it was broad enough.

Mr. Weisman: Suppose we discuss this off of the record—are you willing to stipulate as to all of these people——

Examiner Bennett: Off of the record until you get the thing straightened out, if you can.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: In lieu of cross-examination in regard to the following list of people from whom this witness testified that he bought—that the department bought merchandise; to-wit: R. K. Junior Frocks, Ashley Frocks, Inc., Horowitz & Dubermann, Jane Junior Dresses, Inc., Jo-Anne Junior, Junior League Frocks, Silver Dresses, Will Steinman, Bon-Ray, Daniel Westheim, Junior Guild of Chicago, and Rose-Anna Junior, counsel for the Commission stipulates that if the witness were asked as to the price ranges at which these particular merchants and manufacturers sold their merchandise, he would answer that he was unaware thereof and that he did not know it when he gave the names yesterday, nor before, and that he would so likewise testify that he was unaware now and was unaware yesterday or before of the type of merchandise that they made.

4487

Mr. Haycraft: Is that correct?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

4488

Mr. Haycraft: Very well, the witness says it is a fact and I will so stipulate.

Examiner Bennett: The stipulation is received.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the volume of business that these houses did? A. No.

Q. When you testified that prior to February 1, 1936, Department No. 371 did business with these houses, how long a period did you mean to include therein? A. I meant to include only at the time of the red carding.

Q. Well, now, will you state that at the time of the red carding and you are certain that at the time of the red carding you were actually doing business with these houses? A. I can through the records——

Q. (Interposing) Wait a minute. I want you to answer my question. A. I can attest through the records to include the year 1935.

Q. Do you? A. I do.

Q. You mean at some time during the year 1935 it is 4490 your belief that your firm through its—this department did business with the names that we just enumerated? A. Yes, and up to the time of the red carding.

Q. That is for a period of thirteen months? A. Whatever that time is.

Q. During that time how many non-Guild houses did your firm or had your firm done business with through this department? A. I do not know.

Q. What is your best guess on that? A. I would not guess.

Q. What is your opinion—first, have you an opinion? A. I have no opinion.

Q. You have no opinion? A. No.

Q. Do you know in this Department No. 371 with this wide range of prices you do business with a great many 4491 other manufacturers than in Department No. 331? A. It is possible.

Q. Is it more than possible, is it not really a fact? A. I do not know whether it is or not.

Q. Have you an opinion as to whether or not it is? A. I do not have an opinion to-day.

Q. What, you do not have an opinion to-day? A. I would not have any opinion on it.

Q. Are you in charge of this department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you deny that in this department you do business with at least 150 manufacturers? A. I am not taking any guess.

Q. Is that a fact? A. I do not know whether it is or not.

Q. Do you deny that it is a fact?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further interrogation on that point.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is rather enlightening a subject to inquire into at this time, Judge. It is certainly illuminating to see how the witness will 4493 testify on direct examination and then on cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: It seems to me that we have been over that.

Mr. Weisman: No, not as to that department. All of these departments were introduced separately and I regret the necessity of going over them separately, but I do not want to be confronted with some later date as to "Oh, as to that department, you did not inquire."

Examiner Bennett: I will let you go on for a reasonable time. Go ahead.

By Mr. Weisman.

4494 Q. Would you give it as your opinion that Department No. 331—that in Department No. 371 you do business with at least as many firms as you do business with in Department No. 331?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He said he had no opinion.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained on the basis of the technical defect in the question.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you any opinion as to the number of firms that you do business with in Department No. 371, as compared to Department No. 331?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

The Witness: I said I did not.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you any opinion as to whether or not you do business with more than the firms or less than the firms with regard to Department 371; that is, that you do with regard to Department No. 331? 4496

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to let him answer it.

The Witness: I cannot answer that, Judge. I do not know.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever make up a list of the manufacturers with whom Department No. 371 did business? A. Such a list is available.

Q. Where is it available? A. In the records here, sir.

Q. Are those records open to you as divisional merchandise manager? A. Yes, sir, they are. 4497

Q. Will you to-morrow morning when you resume the witness stand, bring with you a list showing the number of manufacturers with whom you did business who were not members of the Guild, or, rather with whom Department No. 371 did business, who were not members of the Guild, for the thirteen months preceding February 1, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: The witness will not.

A. I will not.

Mr. Haycraft: I object. I object to counsel directing the witness to do anything.

Examiner Bennett: The witness has declined.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Why will you not? A. I would like to include all the rest of that department, all of the resources of that department, both Guild and non-Guild for that year.

Q. Do you know that you gave us a list—you gave us
4499 a list of the Guild resources? A. At the time of being red carded. There may have been others prior to that.

Q. Let us see what you want to do. Maybe we can agree upon it. You say that you want to bring in tomorrow a list setting forth—setting forth all of the reasons—all of the manufacturers with whom you did business during the thirteen months preceding February 1, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He did not say that.
4500 He said he would not.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You said a while ago that you were willing to do that, did you not? A. I said I will not.

Mr. Weisman: You do very nicely after Mr. Haycraft gives you the idea.

Mr. Haycraft: I resent that.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, be quiet.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you bring us a list showing the number of non-Guild manufacturers with whom you did business during the period, while you did business with Guild manufacturers, so that we may have the relative number thereof of both Guild and non-Guild manufacturers? A. I would like to refer that to my superior to-night at our conference.

Q. Who is your superior? A. Mr. Frank Smith.

Q. The gentleman who has been sitting here in the court room throughout all of this proceeding? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you ask him now and see if he will answer you as to what you may do?

4502

Mr. Weisman: Will you please make a note in the record that Mr. Frank Smith is now in conference with Mr. Freeman, his attorney.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Will you do that? A. I would prefer to confer with my superiors before I do so.

Q. You want to confer with them to-night? A. I do, sir.

Q. Do you decline to do so now? A. I decline to do so until I confer with my superiors.

Examiner Bennett: He declines to go into it at this time, but he will do so this evening.

The Witness: Yes, Judge, I will do so this evening. 4503

Mr. Weisman: I now move to strike out all the testimony appearing on page 2134 of the record with regard to Guild houses that he did business with during the thirteen months prior to February 1, 1936, in view of this refusal.

Examiner Bennett: I deny the motion.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, have you any idea, or have you an opinion as to the volume of business that was done in the five months of 1936, that we have had reference to, in this Department No. 371?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: You are calling for his opinion?

Mr. Weisman: I am asking him for his opinion.

Examiner Bennett: You are asking for a fact.

Mr. Weisman: I am trying to take a short-cut. He never knows the fact.

4505

Examiner Bennett: An opinion is not the proper thing to give upon a fact.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the volume of business done by Strawbridge & Clothier in Department No. 371 from the period February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937? A. 1937?

Q. 1936. A. No.

Q. Have you an opinion thereon? A. I have no opinion.

Q. Now, I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 414. I ask you to take Commission's Exhibit 414 with regard to Department No. 371, and take a pencil and paper and extend the figures thereon and see whether or not upon such an extension it will not appear to you that the volume 4506 of business done during the first five months; February 1, 1936, to June 30, 1936, amounts to $67,178? A. Have you extended?

Q. Yes. A. Did you get that extension and do you assure me that is correct?

Q. Yes. A. Correct, I will take your word for it.

Q. Thank you. You also testified—now, will you tell us in that department whether or not the total volume that you did in the first five months and for the same period in 1935, namely, the period from February 1, 1935, to June 30, 1935, was less than the amount of business that you did for the same period of time in 1936, namely, February 1, 1936 to June 30, 1936, being about the sum of $63,000? A. I am sorry. I do not get that question.

The Witness: I am sorry. I didn't get that question. May I have it?

(Question read.)

Mr. Weisman: I will reframe the question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the volume of business that you did, that was done in that department in February 1, 1935, to 4508
June 30, 1935? A. I do not.

Q. Have you any opinion thereon? A. I have not.

Q. Have you any opinion whether such volume was greater or lesser than you did in that period during 1936? A. I have a recollection there was a slight gain this year over last year's figures.

Q. Thank you. Now, in this department of 371 your price range goes, I see from your Exhibit 414, to $3.95 to $65 retail; that is correct, isn't it? A. May I see the exhibit, please? Is that the one we have just referred to?

Q. Yes, that is the one we have just referred to. A. If it is on there it is correct, yes.

Q. Where the price range is from $3.95, retail, to $65, retail, what wholesale price range would you say that in- 4509 cludes? A. From $2.50 cost, possibly as high as $39.75.

Q. From $2.50 cost to what? A. To $39.75.

Q. By the way, in all of these wholesale figures, you are giving us what we call gross figures, aren't you? A. That is right.

Q. In other words, these figures are subject to either 8 or 10 per cent. discount? A. Usual discount.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Have you any idea of the number of manufacturers engaged in manufacturing dresses in the City of New York wholesaling at the price ranges between $2.50 and $39.75? A. I do not.

Mr. Haycraft: The same objection as to the previous line of questioning.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Don't you know that there were approximately 3,000 manufacturers during the period of 1935 engaged in the business of selling dresses at prices, wholesale prices, varying from $2.50 to $39.75?

4511

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as including facts not in the record.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Don't you know that as a fact?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

A. I don't know.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is your——

4512

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. That is disposed of, really. He has answered.

Mr. Haycraft: Move it be stricken.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you a booklet entitled "Buyers Informant," and ask you whether you ever saw that before? A. It is the first time I saw this book.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, we are going over the same thing we went over this morning on these books.

Examiner Bennett: What?

Mr. Haycraft: I say, we are going over the same territory we covered this morning in respect to these books. I object to any further interrogation along that line.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you said that was the first time you ever saw this book, did you mean by the word "this" the one I held in my hand? A. Yes. 4514

Q. Oh. Did you see another one? A. I may have seen books similar to that.

Q. And that was your idea of an honest answer to me, when I asked you if you ever saw this book before? A. Why, you asked whether I saw that book and I answered you.

Q. Oh, I see. Well, now, let me ask you: Did you ever see a book like this before, or— A. I have seen certain books, Fairchild's publications and others pertaining to the market.

Q. Have you seen another issue of this (indicating)? A. I wouldn't say I have. It is a specific date, a specific issue, spring and summer, 1936.

Q. You didn't see that one? A. I don't know whether I have seen it or not. 4515

Q. Did you see the one that was issued during 1935? A. I don't believe I have.

Q. Now, you mentioned the Fairchild publication. Have you on your desk a copy of that? A. They are available for our use.

Q. They are available for your use? A. They are.

Q. Did you, from time to time, use this? A. Yes, I have referred to it quite often.

Q. Did you, in February, 1935, refer to it? A. May I see it again?

(Book referred to was handed to the witness.)

A. I may have referred to the book of that type in February, 1935.

Q. And what about February, 1936? A. I possibly have.

Q. Does this book give a list of manufacturers engaged in the manufacture of ladies' dresses? A. It does.

Q. And is it generally used in the retail ready-to-wear trade for the purpose of obtaining a ready available list of the various manufacturers at the various price lines?

4517 A. It is used for many reasons, not alone that.

Q. Is that one of the reasons? A. It possibly is.

Q. Is that the reason that you used it for? A. Not necessarily.

Q. I don't ask about necessarily, I ask you what you used it for? A. I personally use it to look up telephone numbers.

Q. Telephone numbers of whom? A. Of people whom I have occasion to call.

Q. Well, why don't you use the telephone directory? A. That was handier.

Q. Is that the use you made of it? A. It is easier to look up any particular man because they are specified and classified in a particular sense.

Q. In what particular sense are they specified and classi-

4518 fied? A. By price line.

Q. By price line? A. Types.

Q. So that by examining that— A. They are indexed.

Q. So that by examining this book you could readily find a list of the various manufacturers in the City of New York engaged in the manufacture of dresses at the various price lines? A. Yes, but it wouldn't help us in experience.

Q. I didn't ask you whether it would help you or not. I asked you whether that was a fact? A. The names can be looked up there and the list made, yes, whatever purpose it can be used for, I don't know.

Q. Do you know how many, roughly speaking, names are listed in this book?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, unless some foundation is laid to show that he ever used the book.

Mr. Weisman: I think I have shown plenty of it now.

Mr. Haycraft: For the purpose of looking up manufacturers who are sources of supply. 4520

Examiner Bennett: Well, he can say whether he knows.

The Witness: No, I do not, Judge.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you now look at it, and after so looking give me your opinion as to the number of dress manufacturers engaged as therein listed in the business of manufacturing and selling ladies' dresses between the wholesale prices of $2.95 and $39.75?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. 4521

I now offer this book in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to receive it. You may mark it if you want to.

Mr. Weisman: Will you mark this?

(Book referred to was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 21.)

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. Did you ever hear of a directory known as the "Dress Buyers' Directory"? A. May I see it?

Q. I am asking you whether or not you ever heard of such a directory? A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Well, when I show you this book, does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not you heard or saw of such a book before? A. This is the first I have seen of any of this kind of book.

Q. You don't say as to this one that it is the first you saw of this book, do you? A. No, I said, "any."

Q. I see. When you said to me before that you didn't 4523 see this one, were you trying to fool me? A. I don't understand what you mean by that.

Q. I see. Well, now— A. Do I appear to be fooling you?

Q. Now, I show you this book, "Buyers' Informant," the one that you said before that you hadn't seen this one, meaning the one that I had in my possession. Did you ever see one like this before? A. I have.

Q. And is one of those on your desk? A. It is available in the institution.

Q. And it is the use that you put to this book that of looking up telephone numbers, likewise? A. That is right, the same use.

Q. That is the purpose for which you use this? A. That 4524 is right.

Q. You do not consult this book for the purpose of finding the names and addresses of manufacturers engaged in the business of manufacturing dresses? A. The buyers may do that, but I do not.

Q. Have you ever done it? A. I have; yes, sir.

Q. When you were a buyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you were a buyer you used such a book as this? A. I may have referred to it in several instances.

Q. When you became a divisional merchandise manager over all of these departments, did you forget the sources of information which you had when you were a buyer, or did that continue to remain in your mind? A. That continued to remain.

Q. Well, then, when you became the divisional merchandise manager, you knew of such a source of information as this which I now show you, didn't you? A. Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I wish to have that marked for identification so that I may refer to it.

Examiner Bennett: It may be so marked.

(The book referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibit 22 for Identification.) 4526

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, when you found out that your buyers in reporting to you that they had difficulty in replacing Guild merchandise, did you examine a directory similar to Respondents' Exhibit 22 to see what other—Respondents' Exhibit 22 for Identification—to see what other sources might be available?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I think this objection, as I understand it, was acquiesced in by respondent and by the Commission.

(There was a discussion off the record.) 4527

Mr. Weisman: May I have a ruling on the question?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may put that in at the proper time.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you. I take it that you mean on our direct.

4528 Samuel J. Chance—For Commission—Cross.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Assuming that your store sells in the ready-to-wear departments annually $3,000,000 of merchandise at retail, $3,000,000 worth of merchandise at retail, as divisional merchandise manager of these various departments, have you any opinion as to what the wholesale cost of the merchandise it sells in similar round figures?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, as not being in accordance with the record. There is no testimony to the effect that this witness' departments' total sales amounted to $3,000,000. $3,000,000 includes the basement figures.

4529 Mr. Weisman: I have included everything.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, may I please be allowed to continue my objection and not be interrupted?

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

Mr. Haycraft: I appeal to you because of your position in this hearing room.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Haycraft: Will you read my objection up to the point I was interrupted?

(The objection was read.)

Mr. Haycraft: Therefore, I object to the question as a concluding statement of fact which is not correct.

4530 Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, I have had nothing to do with—I didn't say anything about the basement.

Examiner Bennett: This witness very evidently would not be able to make any such statement.

Mr. Weisman: I asked him whether he had an opinion.

Examiner Bennett: He would make a wild statement. It would be a perfectly wild statement.

Mr. Weisman: I don't think so. It is generally known among merchandising people what mark-up is, that if merchandise in a certain number of departments sells——

Examiner Bennett: You went over matters of figures that the witness handled specifically a few months ago. There is no indication that he ever handled figures of this kind. No one has testified that he has. It is just a rather wild fishing expedition and please don't encumber the record with that sort of stuff. We have had it extended enough already.

Mr. Weisman: I deem this rather important. 4532

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: And I wish——

Examiner Bennett: Yes, if it is so important, then I will shut it out right now.

Mr. Weisman: All right. That is within your Honor's province.

Examiner Bennett: It has been objected to and I sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: May I point out to your Honor that a merchandise manager——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to statements going into the record after a ruling.

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor ruled permitting me to make an argument.

Examiner Bennett: I have made my ruling and 4533
I don't care about further argument. If you want to except to it, or if you want——

Mr. Weisman: I further wish to make this offer of proof: That if the witness had been enabled to answer, I believe he would have an opinion. I thereupon would have asked him the further questions as to what that opinion is, and I believe that he would have answered that the merchandise at cost exceeded the sum of $1,500,000. I don't believe that any merchants obtain more than 100 per cent. mark-up on their cost price.

Mr. Haycraft: Ha.

Mr. Weisman: And I believe that that figure is entirely germane to the fact that there has been offered in evidence here figures showing the total purchases made of Guild members, and I believe that the total purchases of Guild members are material only when compared with the total purchases made in the entire store.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

4535 Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the offer of proof.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: The statement of offer of proof on the face of it shows its incompetency.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, with regard to Department 371, where you have a retail price line at $3.95, what is the wholesale price of that garment that retails at that price line?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, mere repetition. It is already in the record.

Examiner Bennett: That is in the record. Why

4536 go over that?

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor, I am trying to show what these are so that I may use them as a basis for further information.

Examiner Bennett: It is already in the record. Do you want to make an assumption in regard to that? If you do so desire you may interrogate the witness in that regard.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did I understand you to say that the cost of that merchandise that retails for $3.95 is $2.50 per unit? A. What?

Q. $2.50 per unit? A. I did say that.

Q. You did say that garments which retail at $3.95 cost at wholesale $2.50 per unit? A. I did say that, yes.

Q. What is the wholesale cost of your $5.95 merchandise at retail? A. $3.75.

Q. $3.75? A. Yes.

Q. What is the wholesale cost of your $7.95 retail merchandise? A. $4.75 at wholesale.

Q. What is the wholesale cost of your $8.95 merchandise at retail? A. $5.75. 4538

Q. What? A. $5.75.

Q. $5.75? A. Yes.

Q. What is the wholesale cost of your retail garments at retail at $10.95? A. Generally $6.95—$6.75 cost, I should say.

Q. Which is it? A. $6.75.

Q. And of those that retail at $12.95? A. Well, they would be $7.75—it could be $7.75 or it could be within the $8.75 market.

Q. What about those garments which retail at $14.95? A. $7.75 or $8.75 market.

Q. And what would be the fact as to those which retail at $16.95? A. Generally, $16.95 market—or it could be $8.95 or $8.75, rather. 4539

Q. You mean $16.75? A. Oh, no, no. $10.75 market, although it could be, as I said before, $8.95 or $8.75, rather.

Q. What about those garments which retail at $19.95? A. $10.75 to $14.75, inclusive.

Q. What about those that retail at $25? A. That could be $14.75 to $16.75 market.

Q. What about those that retail at $29.75? A. That could be the $19.75 cost market.

Q. What about those that retail at $39.75?

The Witness: Judge, I want it understood here that I am simply giving these figures as the general or average of the entire department.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. We understand that. Now, give us the answer to that question, please. A. What?

Q. $39.75? A. Oh, that could be—$39.75—that could 4541 be $22.75.

Q. $49.75? A. $49.75?

Q. Yes. A. $35 market.

Q. $65? A. Possibly $39.75.

Q. Now, I notice that in your Department No. 338, as contrasted with your Department No. 371, your prices are generally in the .75 cents rather than in the 95 cents market; for example, your price range in Department No. 371 for $10.95 is reflected in your Department No. 338 as $10.75; I further notice that in your Department No. 371 your price range of $12.95 appears, whereas in your Department No. 338 you show a price of $12.75. In your Department No. 371 for your price range you show $16.95, whereas in your Department No. 338 you show $16.75. I 4542 also notice that you have in your Department No. 371 the $19.95 price while in Department No. 338 it is $19.75. Would you say that generally that those departments—that in Department No. 338 your prices of the garments which you sell have the ending $.75 rather than $.95, but that the garments are the same? A. You mean they are bought in the same cost market?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Now, from what cost market do you obtain the garments that retail at $125? A. Retail?

Q. $125. A. Well, that could be within any market from $75 possibly to $89.50 cost.

Q. $75 to $89.50 cost? A. Yes.

Q. What about your garments that retail at $115? A. Probably $79.50 cost market.

Q. What about the garments that retail at $100? A. $70 to $75.

Q. What about the garments that retail at $89? A. Probably the $69.50 or $65 to the $59.50 garments.

Q. That would vary from $59.50 to $69.50? A. Yes.

Q. What about the $79.95? A. Probably $59.50 or $52.50 market.

Q. What about the $69.95? A. Around $49.75, it could 4544
be a little more or a little less.

Q. What about the garments that retail at $35? A. $19.75 or $22.50 market.

Q. What about the garments that retail at $22.75? A. They could cost $12.75, $15, or $16.75.

Q. What about the garments that retail at $15? A. $8.75 market.

Q. Now, do you know of any retail prices at which dresses are sold at, in your store, other than the prices I have just recently given you?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that unless it is confined to this department.

Mr. Weisman: I want to know whether he knows anything else about the store; if so, I want to know what he does know about the store. I think 4545 it has an important bearing upon the weight, credit, faith and value which may be given to his testimony.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection unless it applies to his department.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not, as part of your duties, know as to what is going on as to prices in other departments? A. My duties and my activities are confined to my department, but I have some sort of an idea of what priced garments are handled in other parts of the store.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Of course. Do not price lines of dresses in other parts of the store, to some extent, affect you in your departments? A. Yes, sir.

4547 Q. And your store is one comprehensive whole; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. The same woman that buys a dress in Department 331 may and frequently does visit other departments in your store; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. So, in the course of your duties you generally know the price ranges that your store handles and sells its merchandise at; is that so? A. Not specifically, but I have an idea.

Q. Yes. Will you tell us, based upon that idea of yours, whether or not the various price ranges which I have given you, which go from $3.95 to $125, generally embrace all of the price ranges that are used in your store? A. There are some other price ranges also.

Q. What are the others? A. Dresses can be purchased 4548 as low as $1, dresses which are commonly known as a house dress.

Q. That is a cotton dress, is it? A. Yes, it is a house dress.

Q. Yes, I know what it is. Aside from those cotton dresses, which we all know about, a sort of Mother Hubbard, you mean? A. Well, you seem to know the term correctly.

Q. Now, aside from that type of dress, I am not concerned with those, what have you? A. There are times when we have reductions in prices and those times—at those times we would have a sale and sell the dresses for less.

Q. Aside from reductions, I want to get whether or not this includes your general average? A. I would have to add $2.95 and up.

Q. We have covered only $3.95, we commenced with that? A. Yes.

Q. As to $2.95, what do you say is your average wholesale cost? A. The average wholesale cost of $2.95 merchandise would be $1.87½. 4550

Q. $1.87½? A. $1.87½.

Q. And when you said up to—"and up", you meant $125 retail? A. Yes, to $125 retail.

Q. That covers the range, does it? A. It does.

(The witness was temporarily excused.)

Mr. Weisman: May we adjourn at this time, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn now to resume to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard Time, in this same room.

Mr. Freeman: May it please your Honor, I should like to make a statement on the record before you adjourn. 4551

Examiner Bennett: The adjournment is set aside. Mr. Freeman, you may proceed.

Mr. Freeman: On behalf of Strawbridge & Clothier, I understand that counsel for the respondent herein has requested Mr. Chance, the witness now on the witness stand, to produce certain data and information with reference to the sources of supply or resources as Mr. Chance has called them.

I have stated to Mr. Chance's superior that if that information is so confidential that its disclosure would seriously or might seriously injure or impair his business or the business of his employer, namely, Strawbridge & Clothier, he need not disclose it at this time.

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

Mr. Weisman: May it appear also, with regard to this statement made by Mr. Freeman, that I did not ask for the names of any of the resources. I merely asked for the number of the people with whom he did business during that particular period of time.

4553

I also wish to refer Mr. Freeman to Section 10 of the Federal Trade Commerce Act and I wish to advise him and his client that with regard to all papers that they may refuse to produce or the production of which may be refused by any witness which has taken the stand that I shall move duly before the Commission for an order pursuant to Section 10 to punish the witness or fine him because—as the case may be, because of his failure to produce the papers.

Mr. Haycraft: I move that the last statement be stricken from the record because it is not properly made by counsel and may be only made by the Court.

4554

Mr. Weisman: That is your opinion. My opinion is different.

Mr. Haycraft: I am right and you are wrong.

Mr. Weisman: You are wrong and I am right. That is where we differ.

Examiner Bennett: This matter is physically in the record and I see no object in striking it formally.

Mr. Haycraft: I wish also to call attention, Mr. Examiner, to the fact that in the record the original request made by counsel was for the list of the resources and that this amendment is now made.

Mr. Weisman: I do not recall making any request other than this. I do not care to have a list of the people. I want the number of people with whom they did business as against and including therein all the people that they did business with through that period in order that we may compare the number of Guild houses with whom they did business with the number of non-Guild houses with whom they did business. 4556

The reasonableness, the pertinency and the desirability of this evidence I do not think can be questioned. I am surprised that any fair-minded person would object to its being received in evidence. As to others, I cannot say that I am surprised at anything they might do.

Examiner Bennett: Let it be so understood that this is the request and I will advise the witness, as I have advised other witnesses, that while he is under no obligation to do so; that is, that while he is under no obligation, as far as the Examiner is concerned, to do so, the Examiner has no objection to his doing so.

The Witness: Thank you, your Honor. I appreciate your advice on that point. 4557

Examiner Bennett: Have you anything further to state, Mr. Freeman?

Mr. Freeman: No.

Examiner Bennett: And Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Bennett: And you, Mr. Weisman?

Mr. Weisman: That is all, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Very well. We will now take an adjournment in this case to resume to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock A. M. Eastern Standard Time, in Room 313, Federal Building, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

(Whereupon at 3.45 o'clock P. M., August 5, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Court Room No. 313,
4559 U. S. Post Office Building,
Philadelphia, Pa.,
August 6, 1936.

Met pursuant to adjournment, 9 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

MILTON S. WEISMAN, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq., and M. A. ALBERT, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.

4560

ALLEN S. OLMSTED, 2ND, Esq., of SAUL, EWING, REMICK & SAUL, 2301 Packard Building, Philadelphia, Pa., appearing for John Wanamaker of Philadelphia.

PAUL FREEMAN, Esq., appearing for Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia.

I. I. JAMISON, Esq., of SUNDHEIM, FOLZ & SUNDHEIM, 1632 Bankers Securities Building, Philadelphia, Pa., appearing for Lit Brothers, Philadelphia.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, I wish to call your Honor's attention to the fact that yesterday I had failed to note in the record that Mr. Freeman, personal counsel for Strawbridge & Clothier, sat at the counsel table with counsel for the Government, assisting in the presentation of this case. I wish to make such notation in the record.

I also wish to make the same notation as to Mr. Freeman's present attendance at the counsel table and advising with counsel for the Government as to the state of the record. I wish to note the respondents' objection thereto. 4562

I further wish to note in the record an objection to the attitude of counsel for the Commission in seeking to keep from respondents and from the Commission a full statement of all of the matters that are pertinent. I wish to take exception to the matter of the presentation of this matter. We saw it in New York, we saw it in Boston and we have it here. Matter is produced which is only part of the matter. An example of this is when I asked the witness concerning the total number of manufacturers with whom they did business, "There is such a list, but it isn't here." The only thing that has been produced is the list of Guild manufacturers. I give this as an example. It is my belief from a reading of the cases and the law applicable to these proceedings that it is the duty of counsel for the Commission to present to the Commission and to your Honor all relevant matter tending on the issues, and that from that the Court may make such inferences as are proper. 4563

Examiner Bennett: What is the function of the attorney for the Commission in a case of this sort? Don't you think counsel is competent to present his side of the case?

Mr. Weisman: No. I think it is the duty of counsel for the Commission to present all evidence that comes from these witnesses, not merely part of the evidence. I think from all the evidence and such additional evidence as counsel for the respondent may introduce the Commission is then to draw such inferences as are proper.

I also wish to call the attention of your Honor to this fact, that this type of proceeding, wherein I am not or there isn't put before the Commission all of the evidence on a particular matter such as I adverted to, will just duplicate the time, effort and money that has got to be spent in this case by the respondents and by the Government. In other words, by reason of this procedure we must now, after going around this circuit of cities at the 4565 behest and direction of counsel for the Commission, we have got to do it all over again on our own case to adduce and subpoena and by subpoena from witnesses the very thing that they could have produced in the first instance.

Examiner Bennett: How long is this statement going to be?

Mr. Weisman: Beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: How long is this statement going to be?

Mr. Weisman: I am almost finished.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to entertain a long argument because this argument should be presented to the Commission. According to the rules of procedure, the rules follow in a general way the rules of procedure of all 4566 judicial bodies; that is, it is assumed that the person presenting the affirmative case presents such a case as he thinks will be useful to him. He doesn't assume to advise and present the case of the other side if they have counsel. If they haven't counsel, they will do differently; but if they have counsel, counsel knows what he wants to present and they have a chance to present their case and are given a full opportunity. So that I think that is the procedure.

Now, as to the attorney who is here for Strawbridge & Clothier, he appears here for the witnesses which have been furnished from that organization. I think he has a right to watch the procedure and see that their rights are protected, so that I don't see—it is all right to call attention to it. I am perfectly willing to have it in the record. I doubt that any adverse conclusion can be drawn from it.

Mr. Weisman: All right, your Honor. I have finished my statement.

SAMUEL J. CHANCE resumed the stand and testified further as follows: 4568

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 415 and call your attention to the figure in the first, second, third, fourth column next to the last, showing the total of business done in the Guild departments in the five months in 1935. Do you notice that (indicating)? A. Is this the figure you have reference to (indicating)?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I notice from that the total business that you did in the Guild departments during the five months was $366,000— A. $500.

Q. —$500. That is approximately $72,000 a month; is that not so? A. Yes. 4569

Q. Now, assuming that the month of January is an average month, as the other months are, or that you would do the same in that month, that would then bring the total up for the first six months to what sum? A. You are basing your figure on an assumption?

Q. Yes, taking—dividing those months by five. A. About $445,000—$440,000.

Q. About $445,000. And I do believe that you said yesterday that the first six months of the year in volume.

without trying to be exact, was substantially equal to the last six months? There wasn't any great difference one way or the other; is that so? A. I did say that.

Q. So that, based on that assumption, would you say that a fair figure as a round number the Guild departments in the year 1935, twice $445,000, or approximately $900,000, or thereabouts? A. That is your estimated figure.

Q. Isn't that a fair estimated figure on the basis of these exhibits and your testimony? A. Well, I will accept that as an estimate.

Q. Fair? A. Yes.

Q. That is all. May I have that back? A. Surely.

4571 Mr. Haycraft: May I see it just a moment?

Mr. Weisman: Yes, surely. Do you want me to stop while you look at it?

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I remember that you—I withdraw that—the merchandise that you purchased for these various departments is subject to a trade discount, I think you testified yesterday? A. I do not quite understand the question.

Q. I will reframe it. When you have a purchase price of merchandise from a manufacturer, the amount of that bill is subject to a discount? A. That is correct.

4572 Q. What is that discount? A. Well, that depends upon the arrangement made at the time of the purchase. It varies with each purchase. Each purchaser's discount may be different.

Q. What else is likely to make it vary in any way? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you ever hear of group buying by the A.M.C.? A. I have.

Q. Have you ever heard that through such group buying the discount is made to vary? A. I have so stated that discounts vary.

Q. I know what you so stated generally; now I am asking you that direct question. A. Yes, I have known it to be.

Q. As the buyer of the House Dress Department, have you from time to time made your purchases through the A.M.C.? A. I personally have not.

Q. Has the department or has anyone acting under your instructions or with your knowledge or under your directions so done? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Or under the direction of the house itself? A. No.

Q. Do you mean to tell us that you do not know of any 4574 time while you were connected with Strawbridge & Clothier where your orders—where the orders of Strawbridge & Clothier for merchandise in the Dress Department was placed through the A.M.C.? A. That is a fact and I have so stated.

Q. That you do not know it? A. That I do not know it.

Q. What do you mean by that when you say "I do not know it"? Do you mean that you do not see it or did not see it personally done, are you hiding behind the exact knowledge, or do you mean that you never heard of its being done in the usual and ordinary course of your business?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want his hearsay? 4575

Mr. Weisman: No, I do not want his hearsay.

Mr. Haycraft: That is what he is asking for. Why ask for it?

Mr. Weisman: Is that nice? I want to demonstrate how cleverly this witness can fence when he does not want to answer as contrasted with how little he knows when he is under cross-examination.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike that statement.

Mr. Weisman: I am entitled to reply to the Court and give my reasons.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman:

Q. What did you mean when you said you did not know it? A. You had asked me a question prior to that which had a relation, if you are going to take that—if you will go back to your question, that will probably be clearer to you.

Q. I will state it again. I will start all over with you.
4577 I want to assure you of my utmost patience on this subject. A. Thank you.

Q. Do you know what the A.M.C. is? A. Yes, I have so stated in my testimony.

Q. Have you heard that your store is a member of the A.M.C.? A. I know that as a fact.

Q. That is one thing that you really do know? A. Yes.

Q. As such member, do you know whether or not it frequently—I withdraw the word "frequently"—that it ever engaged in purchases of dresses with the A.M.C.? A. I believe it has engaged in some purchases. I have heard of some things, but, personally, have not entered into any such arrangement with them, or any such purchases.

Q. I see. Now, when you heard about these purchases
4578 being made by the firm of Strawbridge & Clothier through the A.M.C., did you also hear as to what was the purpose of using the A.M.C. in these purchases? A. I have heard of no specific reason.

Q. What general reason? A. The general reason would be to make a more advantageous purchase.

Q. What do you understand by the words "more advantageous purchase"? A. Advantageous to the purchaser. In the form of a saving that can be effected because of a large commitment that would enable the manufacturer in turn to purchase his goods at a price concession, the basis of that saving being that, and, based upon that saving, passing that saving on to the stores that participated in any such buying.

Q. Did you ever hear that that advantageous purchase would take the form of an extra discount?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: That is merely conjecture or hearsay, is it not?

Mr. Weisman: No, it is not conjecture. I am asking him if he ever heard of it in his business.

Mr. Haycraft: It is hearsay and should not be admitted. 4580

Mr. Weisman: Suppose you let the Examiner pass upon that.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to the question in that form.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you say you heard these things, do you mean that you heard them in the performance of your duties? Is that where you heard them?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

The Witness: Do you sustain the objection, Judge? I am sorry, I thought I heard that. That is why I did not answer. 4581

Examiner Bennett: You may have an answer to that question. If he heard it in the ordinary and regular course of business you may have an answer.

Mr. Weisman: I think that is correct. I think the question incorporates that, if the question can be read.

Examiner Bennett: The question may be read.

(Question read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I will ask you that in the regular and ordinary course of your business. A. In the regular and ordinary course of business I have heard the expression used quite frequently.

Q. Quite frequently. Now, just one other question, one other statement on the record——

Mr. Weisman: I understand that as I asked the last question Mr. Freeman motioned to the witness. I do not wish to imply that he motioned to the witness to what the answer should be or what it should not be, or anything of that kind, but he did 4583 motion to the witness, and I ask that he be requested to refrain from motioning to the witness during the time when I am interrogating the witness.

Examiner Bennett: I will request that there be no communication with the witness by anybody other than the cross-examining or examining counsel while the witness is on the witness stand and in the presence of the Examiner. No communication of any kind whatsoever by any method should be indulged in. I will request that it be refrained from from now on. if there has been any.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You observed that motion that Mr. Freeman made to 4584 you a moment ago? A. Yes, I did.

Q. You saw him motion to you? A. I saw him motion to me.

Q. What did you understand by that motion that Mr. Freeman made to you? A. I understood that motion was for me to consult the Examiner on that particular answer before I answered your question.

Q. I see. Before you answered my question. As divisional merchandise manager of these departments of Strawbridge & Clothier, have you or has anyone under your direction used any aid or used any instrumentality from the A.M.C. during the past, during the period from February 1 to date, in connection with its placement of orders for that department or any of these departments?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is hearsay and repetitious. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I offer to prove that if the witness has been permitted to answer, that the answer would have been in the affirmative. 4586

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that that statement be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: No.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. With regard to the dress business generally, is there not, to your knowledge, a well-defined and generally known trade discount in the New York market? A. Yes, that is so.

Q. What is that generally well-defined and well-known trade discount? A. 8 per cent. discount.

Q. When you say "8 per cent. discount," do you mean 8 per cent. from the face of the bill? A. That is right.

Q. In connection with Commission's Exhibit No. 410, which I now show you, will you tell me whether or not 4587 this was made up after or before the deduction of the discount? A. This is made up before the deduction of the discount.

Q. In other words, that 169,000-odd dollars is actually about $12,000 more than you actually paid; is that so? A. That is right, which has no reference to the retail price.

Q. I did not ask you whether or not it had any reference to the retail price, did I? A. No.

Q. You just threw in another bone; is that right? A. Well, I suppose you might call it that.

Q. I asked you whether or not this had any relation to the amount actually paid, and you said, I understood, no, that that was the total amount of the bill. A. Subject to the 8 per cent. discount.

Q. Subject to the 8 per cent. discount. You did not tell us, when you offered this in evidence, that the $169,000 was subject to an 8 per cent. discount, did you? A. I was not asked that.

Q. And you felt that you should keep it a secret until counsel for the other side would find it out if he were 4589 astute enough to do so, or fortunate enough to do so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that what you thought?

Examiner Bennett: Objection overruled.

Mr. Haycraft: Your Honor, I think that is highly objectionable.

Examiner Bennett: No. You may answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that what you thought? A. No, sir.

4590 Q. Well, when you give this exhibit as $169,000, without regard to the amount that was actually paid, you were seeking to make it appear that you did more business in dollars and cents with the Guild houses than you did actually do; is that so? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is it a fact that under no circumstances did you pay the Guild houses during the period February 1, 1935 to January 31, 1936, $169,798.14? A. Did I? No. And I never tried to make that out.

Q. Does this exhibit not state that is the amount of such purchases? A. Those are the purchases we had made with the Guild houses for that period.

Q. That is the "amount of business transacted from February 1, 1935 to January 31, 1936." As a matter of fact, that figure of $169,798.14 was taken from the face of the bills, was it? A. That is right.

Q. And is subject to an 8 per cent. discount? A. That 4592 is correct.

Q. Which would bring it down by approximately $13,000; is that not so? A. That is right.

Q. So that the total amount of business at most that was done, according to that exhibit, would be about $155,000?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that not so?

Mr. Haycraft: The exhibit speaks for itself.

Mr. Weisman: The exhibit does not speak for itself. 4593

Mr. Haycraft: Why, certainly it does.

Mr. Weisman: If it does, it speaks untruthfully.

Mr. Haycraft: It does not speak untruthfully. That is a correct statement of the transactions.

Mr. Weisman: Well, now, we are going to see. May we have an answer to this question?

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Weisman: May we have the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. That is correct.

Examiner Bennett: Let us have that clear. Those figures were gross figures?

The Witness: That is right, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I see.

The Witness: It is a regular term that we use in all our——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this question: Do you know from what this was made up (indicating)? A. Our accounts payable department made that particular paper up for me.

4595 Q. I don't ask you who made it up. I ask you, do you know from what it was made up? A. No. I couldn't attest to that, whether it was made up from invoices or records or books of any kind.

Q. Isn't it important to know whether or not it was made up from invoices or whether it was made up from records? A. It was made up from records which are accurate and I assume are such that when I call upon the accounts payable department to give me a record of that kind, that they will, in all fairness and truthfulness, submit to me a record which is correct.

Q. I see. Now, what did you ask them to give you? A. I asked them to give me the amount of business transacted with the particular resources which I submitted to 4596 them on a paper.

Q. In other words, as I understand you, yesterday you said you called up somebody in the statistical department, the name of the person you didn't know——

Mr. Weisman (to Mr. Freeman): Will you stop interrupting my examination, Mr. Freeman?

Mr. Freeman: I am not interrupting.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, you are, when you jump up and grab a paper. Will your Honor please request this man not to persist in such gross misconduct? May I have the question read?

(Question read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. (Continuing) —and you told them that you wanted this made up; is that so? A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Well, let's see. Whom did you ask to make up Commission's Exhibit 440 for you? A. I put a requisition through the mail.

Q. Where is your statistical department? A. It is in the store and any mail that I wish addressed that I wish to reach that department, all I need to do is to address 4598 an envelope it is carried to them in the regular store mail.

Q. Have you got a copy of what you asked them to make up for you, a copy of the letter that you sent them? A. No, I haven't.

Q. Did you make a copy of the letter that you sent them? A. I don't recall.

Q. Well, how is it that you recall what you asked them but you can't recall whether you had a copy of it? A. I have a girl taking care of that for me, a stenographer that will do as I wish.

Q. I don't care what you wish. Don't you wish right now you had a copy of what you asked them for? A. Not necessarily.

Q. In other words, you are quite content to rest on your 4599 memory. A. I don't quite understand you.

Q. Well, let me ask you this: Don't you know that there would be a great difference if this list had been made up from invoices as against the fact if it were made up from the amounts you actually paid to the people? A. There would be a difference, yes.

Q. Now, where would that difference come up from, what would it arise from? A. From the difference of discount.

Q. Is that all? A. That is all that I know of.

Q. Well, think a moment and see if you cannot think of another difference that might arise under those circumstances. A. Well, I know of no others.

Q. Well, just stop a moment and think and we will time you for three minutes. I want to see whether in three minutes you can think of another reason why these figures would be different if made up from the invoices than if made up from the amounts you actually paid?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to let him answer.

4601 Mr. Weisman: What?

Examiner Bennett: I am going to let him answer that question.

A. I have no answer to it, Judge. I have no answer to it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In other words, you don't know. Now, let me ask you this: If you made up this list from invoices, the amounts shown here would be shown before returns, wouldn't they? A. In which? I am sorry. I didn't hear you.

Mr. Weisman: We will read it again to you.

4602 The Witness: All right.

Q. (Question read.) A. Well, frankly I don't know whether returns are deducted from the invoices because I do recall of a particular place on the invoice to make notes of any returns that go back from the receiving room.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Don't you know that in your business, that when a return is made a credit memorandum is issued the invoice is kept intact; isn't that so? A. We have made returns directly on invoices.

Mr. Haycraft: If you know.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I don't ask you what you have done. I ask you what is your practice in this great institution of Strawbridge & Clothier? A. I have told you that I had made returns directly on invoices.

Q. And I didn't ask you that. I asked you what is the practice generally, not what you may or may not have done. A. That is a question of bookkeeping. I am not interested in that. 4604

Q. No. No. You don't know, is that it? A. Assume it as such, yes.

Q. I don't want to assume it such. I want to find the facts from you. A. I have told you that that is a list which I asked to be submitted as——

Q. No. No. A. —as a corrected list.

Q. Look. You are going to have to answer my question as long as the Court sustains me and it won't do you any good fencing around with me. A. I am not fencing. I beg your pardon.

Mr. Weisman: May we have the last question; and I am going to get an answer from you if you know.

4605

Q. (Question read.) A. If I recall——

Q. No. I want to know whether you know that to be a fact. A. Yes, that is a fact.

Q. All right. A. All right. I will concede it.

Q. Why didn't you concede it in the first instance, instead of wasting ten minutes on it? You knew that all the time, did you not? A. I did not.

Q. Did you just find it out? A. I am conceding that to you. I still don't know, but if that will satisfy you, all right.

Q. If that is a fact, then this total that we now have down in fact to about $155.000 would be further reduced by the amount of such returns as were actually made during the year; isn't that a fair statement? A. I recall now in sending——

Q. No. No. Well— A. Yes.

Q. Yes. Now, I also notice here that in some cases— I will withdraw that question. Do you have any reason why the same name should appear twice on this list? A.
4607 No, I have not.

Q. Well, assume that the same name does appear twice, would that in your mind indicate that there has been a duplication? A. Not necessarily. It may be taken off a different ledger from different departments. I don't know.

Q. What is your best explanation of the fact that one or two names might appear twice on this list? A. I can't explain that. I did not make up the list.

Q. You testified as to the accuracy of this list. A. I still testify to it on the strength of our accounts payable department.

Q. And that is the limit of your endorsement of this list, that somebody, in answer to a letter, sent it to you? A. That is right.

4608 Q. Your statistical department? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. What is your best opinion of your total percentage of returns during the year as against the total that you do business with a manufacturer on? A. I have no opinion as to that. Frankly, for 1935 I have never seen any such figure. I have never gone into any discussion with anyone on that.

Q. Do you think it is 50 per cent. of your purchases? A. No, I do not think it is as great as that.

Q. Do you think it is 25 per cent. of your purchases? A. I doubt very much.

Q. Well, do you think it is 10 per cent. of your purchases? A. That is questionable. I mean, I have a——

Q. Well, do you think it is 5 per cent. of your purchases? A. I would say possibly between 5 and 10.

Q. So that if this list, Commission's Exhibit 410, was made up from invoices, and those invoices do not show the returns, the amount shown hereon would then be a fair assumption to say might be reduced by a further sum between 5 and 10 per cent., isn't that so? A. You are 4610 assuming that it is made up from invoices.

Q. Yes. Yes. A. Assuming that it is made up from invoices, since I learned from you that the memorandum is gone through, I would say yes.

Q. Well, look: If it were made up from anything but invoices, it wouldn't show the gross amount, but it would have shown the net amount; isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. So that is a fairly good indication that it was made up from invoices? A. Not necessarily. I won't attest to that.

Q. Now, I know that it isn't necessarily. I didn't say it was necessarily so. But I said it is a pretty good indication; isn't that fair? A. No, sir.

Q. All right. Yesterday I asked you certain questions 4611 about the comparative amount of advertising done in a certain department, 331, during a particular period, 1935 and 1936. Do you remember those questions, the tenor of them? A. I remember something with reference to that advertising and a few other things.

Q. And I asked you about the relation of the volume of goods, seasonable merchandise on hand, to sales? A. I recall.

Q. And I asked you about the space allotment; do you remember that? A. The advertising?

Q. And display. A. And display, yes.

Q. Allotment? A. Yes.

Q. Now, if I had asked you those same questions with regard to each and every one of the departments which you enumerated, would your answer be the same? A. It would; yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Will you so stipulate? I don't want to take up the time of going over with this witness each department. I think there are nine of them, Judge. We will be here for a long time.

4613 Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: It is stipulated, in lieu of the examination of this witness thereon, that if I had interrogated him with regard to departments——

The Witness: May I recall them for you?

Mr. Weisman: I would rather have them as they were testified to.

The Witness: All right. Thank you.

Mr. Weisman: I have no doubt that you would give them to me correctly, and you correct me if I am not right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Department 419? A. That is right.

4614 Q. 373? A. Yes.

Q. 382? A. Yes.

Q. 385? A. That is correct.

Q. 491? A. You repeated that, didn't you?

Q. Did I mention it before? Thank you. 358? A. That is right.

Q. 338? A. That is correct.

Q. 371? A. You mentioned that once before, I believe.

Q. No, I didn't. A. I am sorry. 371 is correct.

Q. 331? A. That is correct.

Q. 350? A. Yes, sir.

Q. 492? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. And 493? A. That is right.

Q. I haven't left out any that came under your direction? A. No. Does that total eleven?

Mr. Weisman: Now read me what I have there.

(Record read as follows: "Mr. Weisman: It is stipulated, in lieu of the examination of this witness thereon, that if I had interrogated him with regard to departments Nos.——")

Mr. Weisman: 491, 373, 382, 385, 358, 338, 371, 331, 350, 492, 493, as I have with regard to departments Nos. 331 and 350, referring to his knowledge, 4616 or lack of knowledge, of the various matters queried for a comparison between the periods comprising of February 1, 1936 to June 30, 1936, as against February 1, 1935 to June 30, 1935, his answers would have been the same as they were with relation to the departments specifically mentioned. Is that all right?

Mr. Haycraft: If that is correct.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: Yes. That saves us a lot of time, Judge.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What do you understand by the meaning of the words 4617
"good will"? A. Good will, as I understand, is something that a store sells other than merchandise.

Q. What is that? A. It is something that a store attempts to sell other than merchandise.

Q. You say that your understanding of the term "good will" is that it is something that a store attempts to sell other than its merchandise? A. That is right.

Q. Well, let me see. A store attempts to sell things for the making of a profit? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you say that it attempts to make a profit on its sale of good will? A. Well, that could reflect in a profit over a period of years, whether that customer is satisfied with trading in that store and returns as a satisfied customer.

Q. Now, can you see good will? A. Can you do which?

Q. Can you see it? A. Yes, it can be shown.

Q. Can you measure it? A. I do not know as it ever has been measured in any way.

Q. Can you weigh it? A. It can be weighed.

Q. Yes. You mean you can ascribe to it a weight as a certain number of pounds? A. No.

4619 Q. And your best definition of good will is that it is something that the store sells besides its merchandise? A. That is correct.

Q. Is there a market where you can buy it for resale? A. No, sir.

Q. Where does the store get the good will—and what does it usually charge for the good will that you say it sells? A. It does not charge anything.

Q. Selling implies charging; do you mean that it is something that the store gives to its customers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are sure of that? A. I am.

Q. Do you not know that good will is something that the store gets from its customers; did you not ever know that? A. I said it gets good will and receives good will 4620 also.

Q. It gets good will and it receives good will also. When did you ever say it receives good will also? A. There is a connection there. The opinion of a customer as to the store.

Q. Now, wait a minute, let me understand what you mean. A. Yes.

Q. When you testified concerning the good will of certain departments were you testifying about the good will that the store gave or the good will that it received? A. The good will that it received at that particular time.

Q. Also you testified about good will— A. Yes.

Q. —what did you understand by "good will" which it receives? A. By the good will it receives I—ah—ah—feel that it is the opportunity of that store to serve the customer so that it would like the store and feel that it should trade with the store because of the various co-operations and various other reasons.

Mr. Weisman: May I have that answer again? The witness dropped his voice and I could not understand it.

(The reporter read the answer as above set forth.) 4622

The Witness: That is not what I said.

Mr. Weisman: That is not what you said? Do you want to change it around now?

The Witness: It does not sound so good to me.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Oh, it does not sound good to you. A. It is not what I said there just at the end.

Q. Well, it is what I heard, but perhaps it is not what Mr. Haycraft would hear.

Mr. Haycraft: I did not say I heard anything.

The Witness: Judge, that is not what I said just at the end. 4623

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Just what did you intend to say or do you think you did say? A. Because of its various co-operations and various reasons.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, that is exactly the same words you used in your previous answer because I wrote them down at the time. Do you mean to tell me now that you cannot remember from one second to the split part of another second what you testified? A. Well, I do not know what you mean by that.

Q. We will pass it. We will pass it. Now, is that the best explanation you can give to us of what you understood and what you now understand by good will? A. That is my best explanation of good will.

Q. From the—let me ask you this: Strawbridge & Clothier have been in business a good many years, haven't they? A. Yes, sir, they have.

Q. What is your best—what is your knowledge or what 4625 knowledge have you as to that? A. As to what?

Q. How long do you think they have been in business? A. They have been in business some fifty odd years.

Q. Do you think that it had as much good will when they opened their store as they have to-day: Strawbridge & Clothier? A. You mean by comparison?

Q. I mean any way that you can think of. A. Well, they have grown to a large store so I believe that they have more good will to-day, because they are serving more patrons.

Q. You believe that they have more good will to-day because they are selling more patrons? A. More patrons and more customers and more business.

Q. Your idea of good will is the degree of size the store has is a test of the good will it has? A. Oh, yes.

4626 Q. That is the prime consideration? A. I do not understand what you mean by "prime".

Q. Do you know what the word "prime" means? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does it mean? A. It means fine, utmost.

Q. No. Prime means "first". A. Yes, I am sorry.

Q. Is that the first consideration of your mind? A. You mean good will?

Q. No, no, no. Now, listen to the question, please. I will try to help you. You said a moment ago that you felt that the good will of a store would depend upon the size and the business that it did; is that what you said? A. No, I did not.

Q. What did you mean when you said it must have more good will to-day than it did before because it does more business? A. It has more patrons and good will is spread over many more people.

Q. Do you think that its good will with this particular people is greater now than when it commenced to do business? A. I do not understand the question.

Mr. Weisman: May the question be read? 4628
Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Q. (The question was read.) A. Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not really believe that good will is a matter that is built up through the years? A. I have so stated, yes.

Q. I do not care whether you have so stated or not, because you have stated a variety of things, but I want to know what you think now. A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Without regard to what you have so stated? A. Yes.

Q. The answer is "yes"? A. The answer is "yes." 4629

Q. Did it ever strike you that good will was synonymous with reputation? A. There is a connection.

Q. Would you say that the good will of a store was dependent upon the feeling of security and reliability of the store held by the customer, and a sense that he or she had that the store was trading fairly and honorably with the customer? A. That, among other things, yes.

Q. Well, now, I have given you those things and you have said "among other things"; give me some of the other things that are in your mind. A. One particular thing in my mind is service.

Q. Well, does not—is service included in what I have told you? A. May I hear that question again? What was that before that?

(The question was read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. If you do not remember it—the question has been read to you, do you remember it now? A. Well, would 4631 you mind reading it again?

Q. Oh, my. If you do not remember it now, we will withdraw the question to save time. Now, let me ask you this: Is not good will, the good will of a store, dependent upon the belief in the customer's mind that the store gives her or him honest value for money spent? A. Yes, that is one of the things.

Q. Do you think that is one of the prime things, most important in the building of good will? A. Yes, sir, fair trade.

Q. What? A. Fair trade; that is one of the things.

Q. What would you believe is more important than that? A. Service is an important factor.

Q. No, no, no, no, no. I know there are many impor-
4632 tant factors. I am trying to find out what you believe is the most important factor. A. It is a question there as to the importance of one thing above another.

Q. Do you think that if you can give a woman plenty of service in the dress department you can give her poor value; is that what you want us to understand? A. I did not say so.

Q. Is not the prime consideration in the building up of good will in the dress business, or any other business, the giving to the customer of good value for money spent; do you not know that? A. I said that is one of the things.

Q. Now, I am asking if, in your opinion, is that not the most important thing? A. I do not think it is.

Q. What, in your opinion, is the most important thing? A. I said there is no such thing as placing one thing above the other in the order of importance.

Q. Let me ask you this: Do you believe that manufacturers have good will? A. Some have.

Q. As a class are they susceptible of enjoying or possessing a good will? A. Naturally.

Q. Do you think that it is important to a retail merchant to possess good will? A. It certainly is important 4634 to anyone that wishes to remain in business.

Q. Do you think it is important to a manufacturer if he wants to remain in business to maintain his good will?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Weisman: He is testifying here—and he said naturally.

Examiner Bennett: Yes; I understand.

Mr. Weisman: He testified as to good will. I think it is very important for us to look into that.

Examiner Bennett: I know he testified to that, but that does not mean that it ought to be torn to rags and pulled all to pieces.

Mr. Weisman: I want to show that he does not 4635 know what he is talking about.

Examiner Bennett: That has been demonstrated —or not been demonstrated by this time. I think we have it now. I will sustain any objection as to questions about good will of the type you have been asking.

Mr. Weisman: I will ask him just one more question.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not know, or do you know, whether or not women buying dresses like to have individuality in connection with those dresses? A. Yes. There are many woman who prefer that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know whether or not does she—let us say you have a $19.75 original style and you sell that for $19.75, that when there is a copy in the market it appears at a generally lesser price, does it not?

4637 Mr. Haycraft: I object to it as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. Not always. Some manufacturers will copy for the same retail price.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I did not say "not always." Generally, not always. I did not ask you what happened always. You and I know that copying is copying down. A. How can I attest to what somebody else does?

Q. You have bought copies, have you not?

4638 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. I have bought copies in my experience.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you buy copies of an original, you bought it because you wanted to get something selling at a lesser price, otherwise you would have bought the original? A.

Not always. There were times when I could not buy the original from the original maker, and had to buy the copy from somebody else.

Q. What about generally?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

A. I cannot attest to generalities.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I mean——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

4640

Q. I mean in a general way. A. You are asking me to attest to generalities, and I cannot possibly do so.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, if your Honor please. The witness has stated that he could not answer the question in that form, and I do not think it is proper for you to interrogate him further along that line.

Mr. Weisman: Let us see what the Examiner thinks about it.

The Witness: I do not understand what he is driving at.

Mr. Weisman: I have lots of time. I want an answer to my question.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

4641

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled.

The Witness: May I have that question again, please?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. The witness has indicated that he cannot answer that question in his previous answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. If you cannot answer that as divisional merchandise manager, I should like to know it. A. I cannot.

Examiner Bennett: What is your answer?

The Witness: I cannot answer that, Judge. It is too general a statement.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you this question: Assume that a woman buys a dress in your dress Department 331, and she paid for that dress $19.75, and she saw a copy of that dress in 4643 a competitor's shop for $10.75. Have you any opinion as to what the effect of that copy would have on the good will of your store with that woman?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question as improper, incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and ask that it be stricken physically.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

You may answer. The question is, have you an opinion?

The Witness: Yes, I have an opinion, Judge, that is in the records, and I have attested to that, but I would hesitate to give it here.

By Mr. Weisman.

4644 Q. What is your opinion?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. It may have some effect upon the good will in some cases, and in other cases it would not.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What effect would it have on the good will? A. It would have an adverse effect until we were able to convince the customer that there is a difference between both garments.

Q. What do you mean, you can convince the customer that there is a difference between both garments; what do you mean by that? A. I have in this business—I have been in this business long enough to know that there is no woman, or no man, that can give you for less money what another man will charge you for more money.

Q. In other words, you say that while these goods, that while they look alike to the layman on first inspection, you 4646 can show to that customer that there is a difference between those garments? A. Yes, sir. I have done so many times.

Q. You have? A. I have demonstrated by having both garments alongside of one another, and had many customers purchase the original in preference to the copy.

Q. To show that the copy while merely giving the appearance of being the same was usually inferior? A. That is right.

Q. Yesterday I asked you this question: "Q. Did you, in the practice of your duties as divisional merchandise manager, know there were and are regularly issued a large number of directories setting forth the names and addresses and the price lines of the various manufacturers; 4647 did you ever hear of that?" To which you answered as follows: "A. Yes, sir." I then asked you this question: "Q. Did you examine any such directories?" To which you answered as follows: "A. I have quite a few directories that I went through. I went through quite a number of directories, yes." Do you remember hearing those questions and do you remember making those answers? A. Yes.

Q. I now show you Respondents' Exhibit No. 21 for Identification, and ask you whether or not in that particular one—not this particular book which I am showing you, but whether or not the Fairchild's Women Wear Directory of New York City is one of the directories that you went through? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, and I move to strike the answer as repetitious.

Mr. Weisman: There is no repetition there, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

4649 That is repetition of what we went over yesterday.

Mr. Weisman: We did not ask him whether he went through that directory or not.

Examiner Bennett: I think you did. All of those directories he said that they were available, and he used them for certain purposes, getting telephone numbers and so forth.

Mr. Weisman: I am not going to press the examination of the directories any further because I understand that your Honor has ruled that we may, on our case, tender the directories.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you may tender them if they are properly identified, of course, by you. The motion is granted.

4650 Mr. Weisman: I except and offer to prove that if the witness were permitted to answer the answer would have been in the affirmative.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q Yesterday when I queried you about the numbers—the people and the concerns that made dresses, you were aware of the wholesale price—the Guild members, I mean—you stated that you knew the Baron Dress Company price? A. What is that question again, please? I did not understand it.

Q. Well, perhaps it was a bit mixed up. Yesterday, when I queried you about the Guild members' prices of dresses, you were aware of the wholesale price, you stated, of the Baron Dress Company price; is that so? A. Yes, sir; I believe I did.

Q. You also said, told us, that you knew the wholesale price on garments manufactured by the Baron Dress Company, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the wholesale price of the Baron Dress Company at about February 1, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. That is already in the record. 4652

Mr. Weisman: I do not believe it is.

Examiner Bennett: I think you are going over the same ground again.

Mr. Weisman: This is just a foundation question. I will promise to finish quickly with this witness, your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. I do not remember attesting to any particular price, or to any particular month. I mentioned that $10.75 and up was the cost price of my experience with that manufacturer—that my experience was with the manufacturer, I should say. 4653

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Was $10.75 the cost price at February 1, 1936, at the time the Guild houses stopped doing business with you? A. No. I do not think so. I do not know that it was.

Q. Do you not know that it was not? A. I do not know. I simply do not know.

Q. How did you learn the cost price or the wholesale price of the Baron Dress Company merchandise, and you do not know anybody else except C. H. D. Robbins out of that whole group of manufacturers? A. They are the only two that I remember definitely making inquiries to, or either visiting their particular showrooms.

Q. Did you visit their particular showrooms since February 1, 1936? A. No.

Q. How did you know— A. I am sorry. I have since February 1; yes, sir.

Q. Whose showrooms have you visited out of that group since February 1, 1936? A. I have visited the Baron Dress and C. H. D. Robbins.

Q. When did you visit C. H. D. Robbins? A. C. H. D.
4655 Robbins I visited some time in the early part of February.

Q. Is it a fact that you are getting all the merchandise that you want now from the Baron Dress Company? A. You asked me whether I visited the showroom.

Q. No, no, no, no, no. Listen to the question I have just asked you and look at me. I know I am pretty hard to look at but I will not motion to you as to how to answer the question, anyhow. A. Yes, sir; we are getting all of the merchandise that we want now from the Baron Dress Company.

Q. As a matter of fact, you have been getting all the merchandise that you wanted from the Baron Dress Company ever since February, 1936, have you not?

Mr. Haycraft: February 1 or what? What date
4656 in February?

Mr. Weisman: I would like to find out from the witness. He can tell us the date.

Mr. Haycraft: I object. It is too indefinite.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. Make it definite.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. From February 15, 1936? A. I do not know.

Q. From February 28, 1936? A. I do not know what time the Baron Dress Company resigned from the Guild.

Q. Do you know the circumstances under which they resigned from the Guild? A. I am not acquainted with that, no.

Q. Did you ever discuss it with them? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember that at the time that Strawbridge & Clothier severed relations with the Guild that the Baron Dress Company formed another subsidiary dress company? A. I am not acquainted with what they formed.

Q. Or with any other company with the same principals as the Baron Dress Company? A. What do you mean by principals?

Q. Who are the members of the Baron Dress Company? A. I know Mr. Baron only. 4658

Q. Is that all? A. And Mr. Feldman.

Q. Mr. Feldman? A. Yes.

Q. If you know Mr. Feldman why did you so glibly say you knew Mr. Baron only? A. I am sorry. I know both of them.

Q. Think a little longer and see if you can correct this again. A. Mr. Baron and Mr. Feldman, that is all.

Q. I would like to ask you a few questions. I couldn't help observing that when the recess was declared you immediately went into conference with Mr. Freeman; is that right? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Freeman the testimony you were going to give when you returned to the stand? A. We did discuss something. I wish to state what we discussed, but since you wish it to wait, I am quite willing. 4659

Q. Without any implication to Mr. Freeman, who is a respected member of the bar, may I take it, then, that your discussion was directed solely to a correction of your previous testimony that you sought to make? A. No.

Q. Was it directed to guiding you along the lines that your subsequent testimony should take? A. You requested something——

Q. No. No. Was it along that line? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, now, was it merely with regard to the papers that Mr.—or the names that Mr. Freeman made a speech on in the record, concerning which Mr. Freeman made a speech on the record last night? A. That is right.

Q. And was it limited wholly to that? A. Yes.

Q. Did you bring with you the list of manufacturers, the total list, that was requested of you last night?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, Mr. Examiner. The witness was not requested to bring a list of manufacturers.

Mr. Weisman: He was requested.

Mr. Haycraft: He was requested to bring the 4661 total number.

Examiner Bennett: He was requested to bring the total number.

Mr. Weisman: Yes. Well, all right.

Examiner Bennett: Of course, he is protected by statute against disclosing his customers if he doesn't choose.

Mr. Weisman: I didn't ask him to disclose his customers.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I understood you were simply asking him——

Mr. Weisman: For the number.

Examiner Bennett: —for the number.

By Mr. Weisman.

4662 Q. You remember last night that I said to you that I would like a total number, I would like to have you ascertain the total number of manufacturers with whom the Department 350 did business during the thirteen months preceding February 1, 1936? Do you remember me asking you that? A. Was that at the close of the session last night?

Q. Yes. A. I think you are confusing the department number.

Q. Did you understand that it was 331? A. No, sir.

Q. 371? A. 371, yes.

Q. All right. Now, then, do you remember my making that request with regard to Department 371? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you find out the total number of manufacturers with whom the Department 371 did business during the thirteen months preceding February 1, 1936? A. You want the thirteen months preceding February 1?. Yes.

Q. Well, now, what was the total number of people with whom—of these manufacturers—with whom this department did business during that period? A. Seventy-three.

Mr. Haycraft: That is the total number of the 4664
Guild and non-Guild?

The Witness: That is correct.

Mr. Haycraft: Let the record show that the witness' memory was better than counsel for the respondents' on one occasion at least.

Mr. Weisman: Let the record also show that I haven't been tendered as a witness in this proceeding, that I am not under oath and testifying ad lib, but I am only asking questions. If you want the record to show something, Brother Haycraft.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you, by any chance, ascertain the number of manufacturers that Department 350 did business with 4665 during that same period?

Mr. Haycraft: He testified to that yesterday.

A. I have testified to the certain number. You asked me to get that particular report. In the questioning later on you simply took one figure and the total

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. No. No. You didn't understand me. Overnight you did look up your records and you ascertained that the total number of manufacturers with whom Department 371 did business during that thirteen-month period immediately preceding February 1, 1936, was seventy-three, I understood you to say. Is that correct? A. I didn't personally look it up. I had that figure made up for me while I was on the stand to-day.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Did you find out the same information with regard to Department 350? A. I had it here for you yesterday.
4667 I do not remember what it was. I had a notation which I read to you, and part of that notation was accepted in your cross-examination.

Q. You say that yesterday you knew? A. Yes, I did know yesterday, but I answered your questions as you put them to me.

Q. Do you still know to-day? A. I don't remember what that question was.

Mr. Haycraft: I will hand the witness a paper that he had yesterday.

Mr. Weisman: He had this with him all the time?

The Witness: I had it in my hand reading, but you questioned me about certain phases of it.

4668

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the total number of manufacturers with whom you did business during that period with regard to Department 350? A. Which period?

Q. The thirteen months preceding February 1, 1936. A. Yes, seventy-two.

Q. Seventy-two. Now, what about Department 331? A. I did not look that up.

Q. Can you look that up during the recess at lunch? A. I can have that done; yes, sir.

Q. And give us the total number? A. Sure.

Q. Will you do that with regard to 373? No. Look at me; will you do that? With regard to 373 department? A. I can, yes.

Q. Will you do that with regard to Department 382? A. There isn't anything in my testimony, I think, that refers to 382 as to resources.

Q. No, but I just would like to know. A. If the Examiner so rules, I will.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I have already advised you. I have already advised you that it is a matter 4670 of discretion, but so far as I am concerned, I will be glad to have the figures.

The Witness: I would rather consult with our counsel during recess.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. All right. A. And determine what should be done in this particular course.

Q. Well, that is a fair statement. Would you, when you consult with your counsel, likewise consult with him and tell him subject to his advice to you, and if it meets with his conclusions, I would like you, during the recess, to make up a list as to each department that is under your supervision setting forth the total number of manufac- 4671 turers that you do business with in that department, or did business during the thirteen months immediately prior to February, 1936. Will you do that? A. Which department do you have reference to?

Q. All of them. A. All of my departments?

Q. Yes. A. I certainly shall consult with him.

Q. Yes, consult with him and let us know whether or not, after such consultation, you will produce them or not.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to this, Mr. Examiner, to that being done other than Guild departments. The departments which handle Guild merchandise. Irrelevant, immaterial and not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection, as far as that is concerned, but the discretion is still with him.

Mr. Haycraft: I have no objection to information as to Guild departments.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

4673 That is all, Mr. Chance.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were asked, Mr. Chance, as to how it happened that you were familiar with the price lines of two of the manufacturers, C. H. D. Robbins and Baron, and were not familiar with the other Guild manufacturers, familiar with their lines, prices, and so on. I will ask you whether or not you were ever given an opportunity to become familiar with those lines?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to. I object to that. Incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial; not proper redirect examination; calling for a conclusion.

4674 Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

A. I was never given an opportunity to become familiar with these particular manufacturers.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And why? A. Because of the red carding of our store with these same resources.

Q. You were asked certain questions yesterday, or the day before, with respect to comparative figures on advertising and window display for five months, 1935 compared with 1936. I will ask you whether or not such figures are gotten up in your department and under your supervision?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial.

A. No, sir.

Q. Is it part of your duties to know what those figures are? A. I don't quite understand the question. May I have the question? 4676

(Question read.)

A. Yes, we do have figures submitted to us, and it is part of my duty and responsibility to know what our advertising costs are.

Q. As at the time that they are made? A. No, after they are submitted to us as a matter of comparison.

Q. I see. Did you, in 1936, have any knowledge, in February, 1936, as to the budget for the five months under consideration, from February to June, as compared with 1935?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as immaterial. That has already been answered.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. 4677

The Witness: May I have that question?

Mr. Haycraft: I asked him if he knew in February, 1936.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I did not at that time; no, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How are those budgets made up?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent, no proper foundation.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you know?

Mr. Weisman: No foundation laid.

A. There is a tentative plan.

4679 Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

A. There is a tentative plan made.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Plan? A. At the beginning of each period.

Q. What length of period? A. Possibly for three months.

Q. Three months? What time of the year? A. Spring, summer, fall and winter.

Q. Then when was the winter budget made up? A. Which winter are you referring to?

Q. Well, take 1936, for instance. When was that taken into consideration? A. That had been made up prior to my entering or taking over the division.

4680 Q. When was the spring budget made up? A. The spring budgets were made up subsequent to my taking over the division.

Q. What month? A. I don't recall the exact month.

Q. Did you at that time take part in the making up of that budget in the spring of 1936? A. Yes, I submitted an estimate on what the approximate advertising cost would be.

Q. Was there any comparison made at that time with—by you or any of your subordinates with respect to the spring budget for advertising with the same period of time in 1935? A. May I have the question again?

Q. (Question read.) A. No.

Q. Did you see at that time such a comparison? A. I don't remember seeing any comparison.

Q. You testified on cross-examination that the Baron Dress Company had been selling Strawbridge & Clothier since February 1, 1936? A. That is right, sir.

Q. I believe you also testified that you understood that they had resigned from the Guild, but you didn't know when; is that correct? A. I have. 4682

Q. I will ask you whether or not there are any other Guild resources that are now a source of supply for Strawbridge & Clothier?

Mr. Weisman: If he knows

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, if he knows.

A. I cannot mention any particular name, but I know there are some that have resigned.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you about Lipman Brothers. A. Yes, Lipman Brothers have resigned since the time of the red carding.

Q. Do you have any knowledge as to when they resigned? A. No, I do not. 4683

Q. Do you know how long you have been getting merchandise from Lipman Brothers since the red carding took place? A. Possibly around the early part of March or the latter part of February.

Q. I see. In what departments do you handle Lipman Brothers' merchandise? A. 350 department is one department, and I know it definitely handles Lipman Brothers' merchandise.

Q. Do you know of any other Guild manufacturers that has resigned from the Guild? A. No, I don't recall any to my mind at this time.

Q. You were questioned with respect to the volume of sales in January, February and March, 1936, as to comparative volume. A. That is right, sir.

Q. Of these various departments under your supervision. You said that Easter, you understood, came on April 12 this year, 1936. A. That is right.

Q. Is that correct? How long before Easter are the retail sales affected by the Easter buying on the part of the public?

4685 Mr. Weisman: I object to that as improper redirect. We are going to open all of this up again.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. Further, that the question is incompetent in form. It calls for a conclusion, an opinion, or something or other.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. I would say six to eight weeks prior to Easter, retail business is affected by that particular holiday.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you to testify whether or not in your opin-
4686 ion the ability or inability of Strawbridge & Clothier to get dresses from members of the Guild would affect the volume of sales in March, 1935, as compared with March, 1936? A. Yes. There is—certainly would make a difference as to the sales results.

Q. On cross-examination you were asked certain questions with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 414, particularly with reference to the price lines of the lower brackets. I will ask you to testify, if you will, as to which of the price lines in this exhibit, from your knowledge of the business, would include Guild merchandise, that is manufactured by Guild manufacturers? A. I am safe in saying $16.95 and up.

Q. $16.95? A. Yes, sir. There may be some other prices but I am certain of this and I am not certain of the others and I would rather not state them.

Q. On cross-examination you were asked concerning—you were asked certain questions with respect to the price range of garments sold by Strawbridge & Clothier of ladies' dresses other than those described in these various exhibits, 414, 412, and so forth, and in your answer you made mention of cotton dresses. I will ask you whether 4688 or not the Guild manufacturers, any of them, ever manufactured cotton dresses to your knowledge? A. I have no knowledge on that, sir.

Q. No knowledge? A. Yes, sir. I have no knowledge.

Q. I will ask you this question: Whether or not the dress departments over which you now have supervision have had dresses since February, 1936—— A. I am sorry. I do not get that question.

Q. I will ask you this question: Whether or not the dress departments over which you now have had supervision since February, 1936, handle cotton dresses? A. Yes, sir. We do.

Q. In what price ranges would that be? A. $1.95 retail inclusive up to $10.75 retail.

Q. I will ask you whether or not to your knowledge any 4689 cotton dresses are sold by Department No. 371? A. Yes, sir. Department No. 371 does sell cotton dresses.

Q. In what price ranges? A. We buy from the $3.95 price range and possibly to $5.95 and a few at $7.95.

Q. Is that the retail price? A. Retail price. Yes, sir.

Q. What were your instructions to the statistical department in the preparing of Commission's Exhibit No. 410?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and not the best evidence. The best evidence is the written document. He has already testified fully on this. Your Honor remembers on cross-examination that he testified what his instructions were and how they were gotten up.

Mr. Haycraft: He was not allowed to fully.

Mr. Weisman: I submit that this is not proper redirect examination. I have refrained from objecting, feeling that it would simply lose time, but now I must object to this type of redirect examination.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is not the best 4691 evidence in view of the testimony of the witness that he had something in writing. Unless you desire to produce it, I think this had better go out.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have those instructions with you? A. No, sir. I do not have them.

Q. To whom were they given? A. They were placed in the mail and addressed to Mrs. Knipe of our Accounts Payable Department.

Q. In the noon recess I should be glad to have you get a copy of those instructions, if possible to do so, and present them at the afternoon session. A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Will your Honor advise this wit-
4692 ness that he can use his own discretion and consult with counsel regarding the production of this paper as your Honor did with regard to the production of the papers that I have asked for?

Examiner Bennett: He has his instructions. They apply to all counsel.

The Witness: It is understood.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. On cross-examination you made an estimation of the volume of sales in Department No. 331 for the year 1935, I believe.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that—if you have finished your question—I do not want to interrupt you.

Mr. Haycraft: No. I have not finished my question.

Mr. Weisman: Excuse me.

By Mr. Haycraft.

4694

Q. I will ask you whether or not the records of Strawbridge & Clothier will disclose that information?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the form of the question. As a matter of fact that was one of the things that the witness did not testify to and that I sought to elicit from him.

Mr. Haycraft: You are wrong on that. He made an estimate or gave an opinion of the approximate volume of sales for Department 331.

Mr. Weisman: For the year 1936 and not for 1935. He said $100,000 and I produced a script showing it was $170,000 and——

Mr. Haycraft (interposing): There is no use of arguing this. I know what the witness said and I 4695 am willing to pit my memory against his any time.

Examiner Bennett: I overrule the objection. You may answer.

The Witness: May I have the question again, please?

(The reporter read the question as follows: "Q. On cross-examination you made an estimation of the volume of sales in Department No. 331 for the year 1935, I believe. I will ask you whether or not the records of Strawbridge & Clothier will disclose that information?"

A. The records of Strawbridge & Clothier will disclose the volume of sales done, I believe, in any department of that store.

Mr. Haycraft: I should be glad to have you consult your attorney, and, if he has no objection under the circumstances to producing it, produce it at the afternoon session in the form of a statement showing the total volume of sales done by that de-4697 partment for the year 1935.

The Witness: I shall be glad to do so, Judge.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you to testify as to the character of the merchandise that Strawbridge & Clothier bought from Guild manufacturers from season to season. A. I cannot attest the character of merchandise prior to my taking over the division. But since February 1, 1936, there is a high calibre type of merchandise in several departments that were remains of the original shipments. One particular item that I remember particularly was costume suits. Costume suits were an item that was desirable at the time and were being manufactured by concerns that were Guild 4698 members that we had difficulty in replacing.

Mr. Weisman: Now I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The garments which you referred to were sold in what period of time? A. At that particular time it was considered a spring item.

Q. Spring item? A. Yes.

Q. Following the spring season of the year, is there a different type of garment——

Mr. Weisman (interposing): I object.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —or the same type of garment——

Mr. Weisman: As not proper redirect examination.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —as sold in the summer time? A. There is a different type of garment sold later in the year than what I had reference to as a costume suit. 4700

Q. I will ask you whether or not the dresses sold by your department in the summer time, in June, in the month of June, particularly, were of such a type or character or the same type or character that were handled during the earlier months of the year?

Mr. Weisman: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial, not proper redirect examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. There is quite a lot of cheaper merchandise brought in, wash dresses and cotton dresses in the summer months in those departments. 4701

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would that have any effect upon your volume of sales during the summer months? A. Well, you have a larger market for those particular things. I think it would, yes.

Q. Directing your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 415, would the explanation you have given account in any way for the apparent increase in the volume of sales in the departments which had been buying from the Guild? A. I am sorry. I do not quite understand that question. May I have that question again, please?

Q. (Question read.) Can you answer that now? A. That, I believe, is the explanation.

Q. Now, then, I will ask you whether or not—strike that out. When do you enter the market to buy garments for fall and winter trade?

Mr. Weisman: I object as incompetent, immate-4703 rial and irrelevant, and not proper redirect examination.

Mr. Haycraft: This is on the question of the subsiding of the difficulty in buying garments.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. Our buyers have been in the market for the past few weeks buying fall merchandise.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out as irresponsive. He asked him when he bought his garments and the answer is something about buyers going out.

Mr. Haycraft: You are entirely mistaken about 4704 that. I ask that the question and answer be read, and I am sure you will see it.

Examiner Bennett: The question and answer may be read.

(Question and answer read.)

Mr. Weisman: I withdraw the objection.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is overruled anyhow.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you if the difficulty to which you testified on direct examination, and to which you were, or about which you were cross-examined in connection with Commission's Exhibit No. 415, is still apparent in your attempts to buy fall merchandise? A. The buyers so report; yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: You may examine.

Recross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Let me ask you a few questions. A. Yes.

Q. Were you—just sit back in your chair. Do not sit 4706 on the edge there. A. Oh, very well.

Q. Take it easy, you are not going to lose anything by it. A. Very well. I have sat back now.

Q. When did the order—in the year 1935—first, let me ask you about this: When did Easter come in the year 1935? A. I believe one week later than it occurred in 1936.

Q. When did it take place in 1936? A. April 12.

Q. When was it in 1935? A. Offhand, I should say April 19.

Q. No, I will tell you it was April 21. A. You may be right.

Q. Now that I have mentioned the date, April 21, does that refresh your recollection? A. Well, I assume it is 4707 correct.

Q. I assure you it is. A. Thank you.

Q. We looked it up. A. Very well.

Q. You stated on your redirect examination that the advent of Easter would tend to accelerate sales or increase the volume of sales during the period from eight to ten weeks before; did you?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He did not make any statement to that effect.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now just be calm. Did you say it had no effect on sales? A. I did say that it had an effect upon sales, but not for the period of time that you mentioned.

Q. What period of time did you mention? A. I said six to eight weeks.

Q. You said six to eight weeks? A. Yes.

Q. Not eight to ten weeks? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, say this—so, then, what were the six to eight weeks prior to April 12? A. That would be practically, or approximately two months prior to that time.

Q. That would be February 12, would it not? A. Yes, 4709 sir.

Q. Isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. Now, what is six weeks prior to April 21? A. Would that be February 19 or 21?

Q. February 19 or February 21 would be eight weeks. And what would be six weeks? A. Two weeks subsequent to that.

Q. Now, don't you know— A. The first of March.

Q. —that Commission's Exhibit 415 shows that in March, 1936, you did in your Guild departments $10,000 more business than you did in March, 1935? Didn't you know that when you answered Mr. Haycraft? A. That wouldn't make any difference in my answer whether I knew that or not. I stated the facts to Mr. Haycraft.

4710 Q. Well, now, that you stated the facts and the facts are that in March, 1935, you did $75,700, while in March, 1936, you did $85,800, in those Guild departments; doesn't that affect your answer? A. I don't believe it does.

Q. In other words, you still stand by that answer? A. Well, Mr. Haycraft——

Q. No, no. Do you still stand by the answer now that I have called your attention to these facts? A. Well, that wouldn't make me change my mind.

Q. That is what I want to know. You still stand by your answer? A. I certainly do.

Q. O.K. You stated to Mr. Haycraft—by the way, when did you become buyer—or, I will withdraw that. When did you become divisional merchandise manager? A. Officially, February 1, 1936.

Q. Now, listen to my question again. When did you commence to exercise the functions of divisional merchandise manager? A. February 1, 1936.

Q. You reiterated on four occasions when I asked you that question the words you officially became divisional merchandise manager on a certain day. What was the significance of your answer using the word "officially"? 4712

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial; not proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. It is a term applied, I believe, to a change of position to which I have taken.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, before February 1, 1936, were you generally acting with Mr. Taylor as unofficial assistant to him? A. No, sir. I was buyer for 492 and 493 departments.

Q. And solely and absolutely— A. That is right.

Q. And that is all that you did? A. That is right.

Q. And you didn't know anything about what was going on in these other departments? A. I may have known as much as any other person by contact with other buyers and seeing what is going on, but aside from—— 4713

Q. Well, that is what I want to find out. A. Aside from getting——

Q. How much did you see?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him complete his answer.

Mr. Weisman: Excuse me. Excuse me.

A. Aside from going into any technical details to determine any particular thing, I have never made that my business. Mr. Taylor was my superior, and I respected him as such, and I confined my activities to my own job.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You made quite a discussion yesterday of the necessity for your getting Lipman Brothers' merchandise, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated that you couldn't get it, didn't you? A. We could not get those numbers on reorders at the time we were red carded, yes.

4715 Q. You shortly thereafter got them, didn't you? A. There was a period there that we were without any receipts of merchandise from Lipman Brothers.

Q. How long? A. I do not know exactly how long.

Q. No, but how long without being exact? A. I would say approximately a month.

Q. Wasn't it approximately eleven days? A. I don't know whether that was or not.

Q. Why do you say a month if you don't know? A. You asked me about eleven days.

Q. As a matter of fact, within eleven days after you were red carded didn't Lipman resume relations with you and resign from the Guild? A. He may have resigned from the Guild at that time, but whether he resumed relations with Strawbridge & Clothier at that particular 4716 time I am not certain and I do not know.

Q. Didn't you on your direct examination seek to give the opinion—I withdraw the word "opinion"—seek to give the inference that you were unable at all times thereafter to get the goods from Lipman Brothers? A. No, I don't believe there was a statement to the effect that we did receive some after we were red carded, but I state that there was a lapse of time between the original shipments and the time we were red carded, and some time after that. How long I do not know.

Q. In other words, you now state that on your direct examination you stated that you were getting goods from Lipman Brothers? A. Since we have been red carded we have received merchandise from Lipman Brothers.

Q. No. I want to know whether or not you so stated on your direct examination? A. Well, I don't quite understand the way you frame your words. If you will please read them back to me I will tell you.

(Record read.)

A. I believe I have.

Q. That is your best recollection of your testimony? A. Yes. 4718

Examiner Bennett: Have you arrived at some point where we can stop?

Mr. Weisman: I think it is well to have a recess for lunch.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We wil recess for lunch and we will come back at 2 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12.35 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION, 2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. 4719

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What is a costume suit? A. A costume suit is a skirt and a jacket and a waist. Sometimes that waist may be attached to the skirt and at other times it may not. It may be a dress and a coat. Generally termed in a way as a fur-trimmed costume suit, could be plain or tailored.

Q. Now, these costume suits, who are they generally made by, what branch of the industry? A. I don't quite understand you, by branches.

Q. Did you ever hear of various branches of the needle industry? A. You mean in the way of coats and suits?

Q. That is right. A. And dresses? Yes.

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. Now, you know there is a well-defined distinction between the dress houses and the coat and suit houses, don't you? A. There is.

Q. These costume suits that you refer to, who were they generally made by? A. I recall in discussing——

4721 Q. No, no, no, I didn't ask you what you recall in discussing. I asked you as to those two branches of the industry, by which branch were those costume suits generally made by? A. They are made by both branches, the dress and suits.

Q. Do you say that they were made equally by the dress houses as they were by the coat and suit houses? A. I have no opinion on that.

Q. Don't you know that the costume suit was a promotion of the coat and suit people as distinguished from the dress people? A. You are telling me it is.

Q. Well, don't you know it? A. I said I had no opinion to that.

Q. Did you ever have an opinion on it? A. Not on that one thing, no.

4722 Q. That is what I want to find out. Now, you referred to these costume suits in the early part of this year, in January and February, and even in December. There was a great vogue, wasn't there, for these costume suits? A. I understand there was.

Q. Didn't the coat and suit manufacturers generally go into the manufacture of these costume suits to satisfy this vogue o' demand? A. I stated before——

Q. No, no. A. I do not know.

Q. What? A. I stated I do not know.

Q. Do you still not know? A. I do not know whether coat and suit manufacturers go in on that vogue.

Q. Do you know who made them? A. I have memorandums. I do not know who made them.

Q. Well, let's see. You were very much perturbed, weren't you, over your difficulty in getting merchandise for the departments under your divisional merchandise managership? Were you or were you not disturbed? A. Yes, we were.

Q. Well, as a result of that disturbance, from which you suffered so grievously, didn't you seek to ascertain who was making these costume suits generally? A. The buyers 4724 have attempted——

Q. No. No. Did you? A. I personally did not, although I did through my buyers.

Q. In other words, you just continued to suffer; is that so?

Mr. Hayeraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: You don't expect him to answer that question, do you?

Mr. Weisman: I do. I want to know.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman. 4725

Q. Do you know how many members of the industry are generally engaged in the cloak and suit business? A. I do not.

Q. Have you any idea at all? A. None.

Q. Not the slightest? A. No.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know how many members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America are in the cloak and suit business? A. I do not.

Q. Did you ever seek to investigate? A. I did not.

Q. In the course of this great difficulty that you had that you have testified that you had, I mean, did you deem it incumbent upon you to see whether or not you could get a good costume suit from one of the members of the industry that wasn't a member of the Guild?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to on the same ground, that it has been gone over yesterday. It is not proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer. Overruled.

4727 A. We have attempted to, and we did get some.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You did get some? A. Yes.

Q. With regard to this costume suit that you told us about on your redirect, who made that costume suit? A. I said costume suits in general terms.

Q. Oh. A. Mentioning as an item.

Q. Well, all right. Who made those costume suits which you referred to in general terms? A. If my recollections are correct, according to the buyers of that particular department, I have two manufacturers, I am pretty certain were mentioned to me as makers of costume suits at that time.

4728 Q. No. That isn't what I asked you. Makers of costume suits, I can give you 698 others. I mean— A. I mean those that we bought from.

Q. I want to know—you testified that you had a certain costume suit that was in great vogue. A. I didn't say a certain costume suit. I beg your pardon.

Q. Didn't you testify on your redirect that after you ascended to the position of divisional merchandise manager, you learned that there was in stock, that had been carried over from the period before, a particular costume suit? A. No, I meant generally. I think that is my testimony.

Q. You meant that generally in the stock there were some costume suits? A. That were being used from the Guild houses at the time, yes.

Q. What were the Guild houses that had made those costume suits? A. Max Heit is one, and Goldstein-Entin is another at that particular time. There may have been others. That is all I recall to my mind.

Q. Didn't you subsequently fill in your stock with other costume suits? A. We bought some but we had great difficulty getting them, and it was necessary for us to go 4730 to Chicago in order to replace those costume suits that we ordinarily would buy in New York.

Q. Didn't you buy costume suits in the New York market? A. There may have been some bought but I do not remember. The buyer is better able to testify to that.

Q. How many of these costume suits had you bought from Max Heit? A. I don't remember figures. I am not the person who buys them. The buyer——

Q. What is the wholesale price of the costume suits that you refer to? A. My testimony will refer to that particular suit coming in the stock prior to my taking over the division. I do not recall.

Q. In other words, I have it that you do not remember the price of this costume suit? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. What was the style of the costume suit? A. I 4731 wouldn't recall.

Q. Well, you just stated that you had great trouble in replacing another costume suit. Didn't you know the price of the suit that you wished to replace? A. I don't know it at the time, to-day. I do not recall.

Q. You have since forgotten? A. Yes.

Q. And you have even since forgotten the type of it? A. I have mentioned types that were stocked, fur-trimmed costume suits.

Q. I see. Now, on your redirect by Mr. Haycraft you were asked about your buyers going into the market. Now, isn't it a fact that your buyers regularly go into the market all through the year? A. I don't recall any particular incident in the redirect or that Mr. Haycraft asked me that question.

Q. All right, if you don't, that is too bad. But you have your buyers? A. That is right.

Q. Now, what is the duty of these buyers with regard to the New York market? A. It is their duty to buy and resell merchandise for profit.

Q. How frequently do they go into the New York mar-
4733 ket? A. I would say on the average of once a week.

Q. You would say on an average of once a week? A. Yes, I would.

Q. So you would say that from February 1 down to the present time your buyers for your various departments have visited the New York market once a week? A. Yes.

Q. They visited that market for the purpose of making purchases and to place commitments and seeing what is going on? A. Yes.

Q. The trend of style? A. Yes.

Q. What is now? A. Yes.

Q. What is seasonable? A. Yes.

Q. To ascertain the things that are merchantable? A. Yes, sir.

4734 Q. You also stated that on their last most recent trip for fall merchandise they reported to you that they had difficulty? A. That is correct.

Q. When you said that they reported to you that they had difficulty, do you mean that they reported that they had difficulty in getting merchandise from Guild houses? A. No, in an endeavor to replace those particular types. They said difficulty in an endeavor to replace those particular types.

Q. Well, do you want it understood, then, that your store, Strawbridge & Clothier, has, up to the present time in the departments under your supervision, been able to replace merchandise therein of the same type as they therefore bought from members of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I said——

Q. No, no. Is that your answer? A. No, it is not.

Q. Then they have not had. They have succeeded in replacing it; is that so? A. Your statement that you mentioned to us that that was complete——

Q. No, I did not ask you that.

By Examiner Bennett. 4736

Q. Can you answer that question? A. Your statement that you mentioned to us that we have been completely unable to replace that merchandise is not what I wish in the record. I wish to state that we are partially, or in some part, not able to replace that particular merchandise.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, generally, have you been able to replace it?

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I object as too indefinite to have any probative value, an answer of that sort to a question of that type.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. 4737

A. I cannot answer anything further than I have on that, Judge. That is the same thing.

Examiner Bennett: All right. That is your answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, let us see whether or not that is your best answer. Do you consider that Strawbridge & Clothier, in the Department No. 331, during the month of June, had a good, complete, seasonable stock of merchandise on hand?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. Our stock in that particular department, in measure, I would say, was seasonable.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Would you say that you had a sufficient amount of it on hand to satisfy the consumer demand? A. Are you 4739 talking about seasonable or type?

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the question be read so that the witness may be able to answer it.

(Question read.)

A. If you insert the word "seasonable" there, I can answer you better and clearer.

Q. I want you to answer it the way that I have propounded it. A. Not as I—we have had sufficiently seasonable merchandise to take care of our demands of certain types, those types that we have on hand in our stock.

Q. Well, let us see. A. Yes.

Q. You have a department known as Department 331? A. Yes.

4740 Q. Is that so? A. That is correct.

Q. What is Department No. 331, Mr. Chance, if you please? A. 331 is known as the Women's Better Dress Department.

Q. In the Women's Better Dress Department in the month of June, 1936, did you have a sufficient stock of seasonable, stylish merchandise to adequately supply the consumer demand that was made upon that department?

The Witness: May I have that question again, please?

(Question read.)

The Witness: I am sorry. May I have the question again, please?

Mr. Weisman: Give it to him again. Give it to him as many times as he wants it.

(Question again read.)

A. The amount of stock we had was, I believe, seasonable. To satisfy the consumer demand is problematical.

By Mr. Weisman.

4742

Q. What is that based upon? What is your opinion based on in that regard? A. I have no opinion.

Q. What is your best opinion on that; surely, you have some opinion. A. I have no opinion whatever.

Q. Do you mean to tell us you have no opinion whatever? A. No.

Q. You, as head of this department, would tell us whether you had enough stock on hand to satisfy the consumer demand? A. I made——

Q. No, no, no, no. Give us an answer to my question, please. I will make it the question I want you to answer now. A. No.

Q. No? A. That is what I said.

Q. What do you mean by "no"? You did not or you did? A. Because we lacked certain types of merchandise that we purchased from Guild houses. 4743

Q. Would you say that the same was true of Department No. 350? A. I would.

Q. You would? A. Unquestionably.

Q. That is certainly a very direct statement for you to make. A. Oh, yes?

Q. In other words, you now state— A. What?

Q. When you say "certain types of merchandise," what do you mean by that? A. I mean this, that we have had a following on certain type merchandise.

Q. Certain types does not convey anything to us. Explain, if you please? A. Well, I cannot be specific. I am telling you just what it is, it is "certain types."

Q. What are certain types? A. Certain types may mean a daytime dress or an evening dress or an evening wrap that Guild manufacturers make.

Q. Do not other people make daytime dresses or evening dresses and other type dresses of certain types also? A. Yes, they do.

4745 Q. Wherein did the Guild type dress differ from the non-Guild type dress? A. It differed, as I have explained prior to this, in the construction of the garment, the styling, and many other features.

Q. What do you mean by the "styling"?

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has already gone into this in great detail. It seems to me that this is a useless repetition.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. And I offer to show that the witness does not have the remotest idea about what he is talking about.

Examiner Bennett: You have your exception. Proceed.

4746 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the volume of the costume suits that were bought in the Chicago market? A. I do not recollect.

Q. Do you know the volume of the costume suits that were bought in the New York market? A. No. I do not have any idea.

Q. Do you know the dollar value of the costume suits that were bought in the Chicago market? A. No. I do not.

Q. Do you know the dollar value of the costume suits that were bought in the New York market? A. Have no idea.

Q. Have you any idea of the ratio between the two as to volume? A. No.

Q. Have you any idea of the ratio between the two as to value? A. No.

Q. Dollar? A. No.

Q. Did you ever have any knowledge thereof? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did I understand you to say on redirect examination that the Guild houses did not make cotton dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. That has all been gone over. 4748

Examiner Bennett: You may answer the question.

A. Not that I recall. I said certain prices.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you not know that the Guild houses do engage in the manufacture of cotton dresses? A. As far as fabric is concerned, I know that they can use cotton fabric as well as any other fabric just as well, I suppose, if they decide to do so.

Q. Do you not know that they do it; not that they can do it; they can do a lot of things—but that they do do it, have done it in the past, are doing it now, and probably will do so in the future? A. Not to my knowledge. 4749

Q. Do you mean to deny now that the Guild houses make cotton dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Mr. Weisman: You brought it out on redirect examination.

Mr. Haycraft: It is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not proper recross-examination.

What is the use of going all over this. He says he does not know, Mr. Examiner. What is the use of keeping rehashing this all the time. He just keeps reiterating the thing time and time again. In the first place, he has not been able to get into the Guild houses. How can he testify to that?

Mr. Weisman: May the reporter show on the record, and may the record be plain, that Mr. Haycraft is shouting to such a degree that my ear drums are ringing? Furthermore, Mr. Haycraft is 4751 very successfully, no doubt, prompting the witness as to what his answer should be in that regard. I think that that is quite improper and ask your Honor to instruct him not to do so.

Examiner Bennett: Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You know that the Guild houses do make cotton dresses? A. No.

Q. You do not know that they make cotton dresses? A. I do not.

Q. You would not seek to deny it, would you? A. How can I know what they are doing when I cannot even get into their houses?

4752 Q. Will you deny it?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. I will sustain the objection to that. This has become just argumentative.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you remember on your redirect examination that Mr. Haycraft showed you this exhibit? A. Yes, sir; he did.

Q. Do you remember whether or not he asked you in connection with that exhibit what price ranges shown thereon are members of the Guild price ranges? A. I remember something pertaining to that.

Q. What do you remember pertaining to that? It was only shortly before our adjournment. What do you remember prior to the adjournment as to what was said about that? What do you remember pertaining to that? A. I remember telling him that the price line of $16.95 and up included purchases from different Guild houses.

Q. Do you not know that the Guild houses extend the way down to $4.75 price lines? A. I made that statement.

4754

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will permit it.

A. I said there may be prices lower than that, but I would rather confine my statement as a fact to $16.75 and up.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. $16.75, you have changed that again. In other words, it is a purport of your statement, or would the purport of your statement be that you know that the $16.75 or—really, you said before $16.95 is the Guild price range, but as to what your price ranges below that are you are not certain; is that so? A. That is right. 4755

Mr. Haycraft: I will recall Mr. Tily.

4756 Herbert J. Tily—For Commission—Recalled—Redirect.

HERBERT J. TILY, was thereupon recalled as a witness for the Commission, and having been previously sworn, testified further as follows:

Mr. Haycraft: I want to state that Mr. Tily is being recalled for one question.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you testify—you are the same Mr. Tily that testified here heretofore in this proceeding?

Mr. Weisman: We all recognize him.

4757 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I would like at this time to have you testify to the ratio of increase or decrease in the volume of sales sustained by the Strawbridge & Clothier Store for its entire store business for the months of February, March, April, May and June compared 1935 as against 1936?

Mr. Weisman: I object as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not proper redirect examination, and I submit, if your Honor please, if we are going to open up this case again I think I have a whole lot of questions that I want to ask Mr. Tily.

Examiner Bennett: This is not redirect examination. I do not understand that this is redirect 4758 examination.

Mr. Weisman: Then I respectfully ask that if this practice is to be indulged in I should be permitted to ask Mr. Tily a large number of questions that I now have to ask him.

Examiner Bennett: None, except on this question.

Mr. Weisman: No, no. I think if your Honor is going to let this gentleman call his witnesses and take them off and put them back, I respectfully submit the respondents should have the same right to go back to a lot of questions that he forgot to ask, and there are plenty of them that I would like to ask Mr. Tily at this time.

Examiner Bennett: Well, we will settle that now. There won't be any questions outside of this original redirect examination.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully except and state that this——

Examiner Bennett: All right. Let's go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: Now, aside from that I object to this as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. 4760

Examiner Bennett: That is perfectly all right.

Mr. Weisman: In this case.

Examiner Bennett: Your objection is——

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to let him answer that question.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

A. The month of February we gained 9 per cent, the month of March 13.3, and the month of April 4.7, and the month of May 15.1, and in June approximately 10 was my first statement to you. It is wrong in the record. It was misunderstood, I think, by the reporter. I said approximately 10 or 9.9 and a fraction, and it is in there as 10. Evidently he misunderstood the significance of it. 4761

Q. This is 1936 as compared to 1935? A. 1936 as compared to 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Mr. Weisman: What were those figures?

(The answer was read.)

Mr. Weisman: Are you finished?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I now move to strike this testimony out as incompetent, immaterial, irrelevant and not proper redirect, having no bearing on the issues in this case.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: He was called for redirect examination, as I understand it.

Recross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Mr. Tily, I understood you to testify that you relied on your subordinates to furnish you with the information 4763 concerning which you testified.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as not proper cross-examination, no such a statement was made.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection unless you apply it to this particular thing.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know this that you have testified to of your own knowledge? A. I know that the figures are recorded in the due course of business and these records are taken from the figures.

4764 Q. Somebody handed you the figures; is that so? A. In this particular case I copied them myself.

Q. Where did you copy them from? A. From our official records.

Q. And then you came here and read them into the record? A. Correct.

Q. You rely on your subordinates, I understand? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain it unless you apply it to this particular thing.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In connection with your direct testimony in this—no, wait a minute before that.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, it now develops that there were certain questions which I had neglected to ask Mr. Tily through my own inadvertence. Now, since the Commission has received the courtesy of being permitted to put back the witness on the stand after it had stated that it was finished with him, I ask that the respondent 4766 in this case be accorded the same courtesy, and that I be permitted to reopen my cross-examination of this witness.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain an objection to it. I denied the request.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I respectfully object to the Court's ruling.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You will have an exception. Don't make a speech for the record.

Mr. Weisman: No, I have something to go still further. I respectfully ask the Court to strike out all of this witness' testimony. I decline to cross-examine him further in view of the evident fact that 4767 the Commission may do in this case and I may not, to wit, because of an inadvertence by recalling a witness I may not, when the witness is recalled and on the stand, ask him the questions that I now have before me to ask him.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all, Mr. Tily.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Haycraft: Is Mr. March present?

KENNETH MARCH was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is the first name?

The Witness: Kenneth.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. March? A. 142 Rumford Road, Philadelphia.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I buy dresses for Strawbridge & Clothier.

4769 Q. What department? A. Departments 338 and 358.

Q. What price range are those dresses, retail price first? A. Retail? From $10.75 to $16.75.

Q. How long have you been in that position? A. Since February 1, 1936.

Q. Before that what did you do? A. From July, 1933, until the end of January, 1936, I purchased dresses for the Economy Dress Shop, that is Department 491.

Examiner Bennett: We will have a recess of ten minutes.

(Whereupon a short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

4770 Q. How long were you in that position? A. From July, 1933, until the end of January, 1936.

Q. Now, as buyer for Department 491, what were your duties? A. My duties were the selection of dresses for sale in Strawbridge & Clothier Company, Economy Dress Shop.

Q. Where did you make the selections? A. In New York City.

Q. Is that the only market that you attended? A. That is the only market I attended.

Q. How often would you go to New York City customarily for the purpose— A. Once—I beg your pardon?

Q. For the purpose of making selection. A. Once every week.

Q. Now, among the sources of supply were any of the manufacturers members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., during the time that you were buying for that department; that is, those that you contacted? A. Yes, one manufacturer.

Q. Which one was that? A. Renclair Dress.

Q. How do you spell that? A. R-e-n-c-l-a-i-r. 4772

Q. What type of dress did they manufacture? A. They manufactured a $4.75 cost dress.

Q. How long were they members of the Guild, to your knowledge? A. A very short time.

Q. And what time? A. I don't recall.

Q. Was it 1935, 1934 or 1933? A. I believe it was 1935.

Q. Can you name some of the principal sources of supply, resources, I believe they are termed in the industry, of Department 491 while you were its buyer?

Mr. Weisman: Objected as to the form of the question as being incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and framed in a fashion which is not correct in fact, and calling for a conclusion of the witness. 4773

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

A. In the misses' end, Trussell.

Q. Will you indicate in making your replies the wholesale price range? A. These manufacturers that I will name are all $4.75 cost manufacturers.

Q. All right. A. Trussell Dress, Joe Mack, Fineberg & Weisend, Cohn & Klausner. In the women's division, Walter Mayer, Emporium. Those were the chief resources.

Q. During that period of time did you do anything about, or did you ever hear of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.?

Mr. Weisman: During what time?

Mr. Haycraft: At the time that we have talked about here from the last question.

Examiner Bennett: He has testified.

4775 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Any time that you were buyer for Department 491. A. Yes, I have.

Q. How did you learn of the Guild? A. My department was shopped by the Guild's representative in Philadelphia for copies.

Q. Who was that representative? A. Miss Joyce.

Q. When did she begin to shop your department? A. I am not sure of the exact date.

Q. Will you give the approximate date? A. I should say that it was in the latter part of 1935.

Q. What was her procedure in shopping your department? A. She used to come in the department with a—with various sketches of Guild dresses and would ask me 4776 if I had any of—any copies of these dresses in my stock. Those that I recognized, I told her, and if I didn't recognice the cuts, she went through my stock herself to see if she could find them.

Q. In the event that she found what she believed to be copies of the cuts that she had in her hand, what would she then do? A. She would ask me to return the merchandise to the source of supply.

Q. Did you do so? A. I did.

Q. Did you do that on more than one occasion? A. I did.

Q. Can you testify as to the number or the approximate number of returns that you made of garments pursuant to the request of Miss Joyce? A. I don't know the approximate number.

Q. Do you know the name of the manufacturers to whom you made such returns? A. I don't know those—those records can be obtained.

Q. I will ask you to make a search and be in a position to testify as to the number of returns during the year 1935, giving the approximate date and the name of the manufacturers to whom the garments were returned and the 4778 number of manufacturers, the number of garments returned to each manufacturer. A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the month of January, 1936, do you recall an incident wherein Miss Joyce requested the name of a manufacturer of a garment in your stock? A. I do.

Q. Will you relate the circumstances under which that request was made? A. I believe I had a dress in my stock that Miss Joyce said was a copy of a Guild dress. It was not manufactured by the manufacturer that was specified on her sketch, and she asked me the name of the manufacturer whom I bought the dress from, and I refused to divulge that information.

Q. Will you give the approximate date that that took place? A. It was around the 15th of January, 1936.

Q. Did you relate that incident to your superiors? A. 4779
I did.

Q. Did they require you to furnish her with the information that was requested? A. They did not.

Q. Do you know what she did about it? A. I don't know.

Q. How long after that before you were red carded? A. I don't know exactly. It was some time the early part of February.

Q. Now, at the time that Strawbridge & Clothier was red carded in February—strike that out. What were you doing at the time that Strawbridge & Clothier were red carded by the Fashion Originators Guild, that is, what were your duties then? A. I had been transferred from 491 to Departments 338 and 358.

Q. Now, in Departments 338 and 358 what is the wholesale cost of the garments sold in those departments, or what range of cost? A. Usually from $6.75—that is wholesale?

Q. Yes. A. From $6.75 to $10.75 wholesale.

Q. Are you in a position to testify, or can you testify 4781 as to the percentage of garments, the volume of dresses that you had in that department at the time that you became buyer for it that were of the $10.75 as compared with the $6.75? A. No, I can't.

Q. Can you testify as to the sources of supply, the manufacturers, from whom you purchased dresses at the time you became buyer of that department? A. The only record I had as to whom it was purchased from was the orders that my predecessor had left.

Mr. Weisman: I ask that the answer be stricken out. He was asked as to what he bought. I assume that is why you overruled the objection, Judge. He hasn't answered that at all.

The Examiner: Read the question

4782 (The question was read again.)

Examiner Bennett: If the examining attorney accepts it as an answer, we will let it stand.

Mr. Haycraft: The examining attorney accepts the answer.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you do yourself, personally, with respect to buying dresses for the Department 338 and 358 at the time you became buyer for that department? A. I don't quite understand your question.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.
(The question was read.)

A. On my first trip to the dress market for Departments 338 and 358, I found that we were red carded, so there wasn't very much that I could do.

Q. Where did you go? A. To New York.

Q. Upon whom did you call? A. I called upon two manufacturers, Lyttle Brothers and International Dress.

Q. Whom did you call on at Lyttle Brothers? A. I don't remember the man's name. He was the salesman 4784 representing that firm.

Q. What were you told? A. I was told that Strawbridge & Clothier were red carded and that they could not show or ship me any merchandise.

Q. Was any explanation given further than that? A. I didn't ask for any explanations. I left.

Q. Upon whom did you call at the International Dress? A. I called upon a salesman and was introduced to the owner of the business who told me the same as I was told at Lyttle Brothers.

Q. Did you make any further attempt to buy dresses from the Guild manufacturers? A. I did not.

Q. Did you ascertain at that time the percentage of stock in that department, in those two departments, that consisted of Guild merchandise? A. I did. 4785

Q. What percentage was it? A. Sixty per cent.

Q. Do you know what price range was included in that 60 per cent.? A. The price range that we estimated that figure on was $10.75 cost market.

Q. What did you do when you found that you could not get merchandise from Guild manufacturers? A. I tried to buy merchandise elsewhere.

Q. Where did you go? A. To other dress manufacturers who didn't belong to the Guild.

Q. Located where? A. New York City and in Chicago.

Q. Can you testify now as to the names of some of the leading manufacturers that you called upon in that connection for that purpose? A (A short pause.) Yes, I can.

Q. Will you name some of the leading manufacturers? A. Bettini Frocks.

Q. How did you spell that? A. B-e-t-t-i-n-i.

Q. Are they located in New York City? A. Bettini is located in Philadelphia.

Q. Philadelphia? A. That is about the only one that 4787 I recall at this time.

Q. Do you recall when you went to Chicago whom you called upon there? A. I recall any number of people. I really can't recall all of their names. It was my first trip to Chicago and I was new in that market. I knew nothing about it.

Q. Were you able to replace the merchandise that you had been buying from—that your department had been buying from the Guild manufacturers? A. Not in Department 338.

Q. But you were able to do it in Department 358, is that it? A. We succeeded in doing a much better job in Department 358 in replacing that merchandise than we did in the women's department.

Q. Why were you not able to replace it so successfully,
4788 the Guild merchandise, in Department 338? A. Most of the larger manufacturers of women's dresses at that time were Guild members.

Q. That is, in the $10.75? A. In the $10.75 women's market.

Q. How did you ascertain that to be a fact? A. Through our New York office.

Q. Who is your New York office? A. The A.M.C.

Q. The A.M.C.? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he assist you in trying to locate a new source of supply? A. No, sir.

Q. He did not? A. No, he didn't.

Q. When you say you ascertained through the New York office, what do you mean? A. I—we have buyers in New York who are shopping the markets continually and giving that information to buyers as they come into that market. I got my information from them.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all except for the information that I requested, and I should like to have the privilege of recalling the witness and examining him on those. 4790

Mr. Weisman: On what?

Mr. Haycraft: On the matter that I asked him to produce. I thought that it would be available, but apparently it was not.

Cross-examination by Mr. Weisman.

Q. Who were the buyers that told you that most of the larger houses were members of the Guild? A. They were the A.M.C. buyers in New York City.

Q. Well, they weren't your buyers at all, then, were they? A. They are scouts in the New York market.

Q. No. You said your buyers told you that the larger houses were all members of the Guild. Now, I asked you who they were. You said they were A.M.C. buyers. A. That is right. 4791

Q. So they weren't your buyers at all? A. We belong to the A.M.C.

Q. What do you understand by that? That they buy for you? A. They buy some things for us, yes.

Q. Under what circumstances does the A.M.C. buy for you? A. If we are not able to be in the market and we have to have something in a hurry, we use the telephone.

Q. Do you ever pool your orders with other stores who are members of the A.M.C.? A. No, sir.

Q. And buy in that fashion? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, before you went into the New York market you were buying for the Economy Department, weren't you? A. That is right.

Q. The Economy Department is a much cheaper department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much cheaper? A. We sold dresses in the Economy Shop from $2.95 retail to $9.95, and in the 338 and 358 departments we usually started at $10.75 retail and went to $16.75 retail.

4793 Q. You had been there for three years? A. Practically three years.

Q. During these three years your buying had been confined to merchandise of that price? A. That is right.

Q. So as a result of that you, personally, didn't know very much about the sources of supply that were available for 338 and 358 departments. You were new at it; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. As a matter of fact, when Mr. Haycraft just asked you to give some of the names, by reason of your newness in it, you couldn't remember even the people that you do business with now, could you? A. That is right.

Q. So when you say you couldn't replace them, you really couldn't replace them because you didn't know who to go to because of your lack of experience in that price 4794 range; isn't that so? A. Not wholly, no.

Q. Well, let's see. Did you ever hear of Ace Dance Modes? A. No, sir.

Q. Don't you know they are a $10.75 house? A. I didn't know that, no.

Q. Do you know it now? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first learn it? A. Now.

Q. Just now. Did you ever hear of Ace High Dresses? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you know that they were a $10.75 house? A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear of Louie Adler Dress, Inc.? A. I have heard of Louie Adler, yes.

Q. Did you go to him? A. No, sir.

Q. Why didn't you go to him? You heard about him. A. I didn't know what prices he made.

Q. Couldn't you have easily learned by having recourse to one of the directories that are commonly issued in the business? You have seen these directories, haven't you? A. That is right.

Q. You have seen one like I hold in my hand from which I am reading and which is Respondents' Exhibit 22, haven't you? A. No, sir. 4796

Q. What? A. No, sir.

Q. You have never seen one like that? A. No.

Q. Have you seen one like Fairchilds? A. That is right.

Q. Like this one (indicating)? A. That is right.

Q. Respondents' Exhibit 21.

Mr. Haycraft: For identification.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever hear of A & B Dress Company?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to the reading of the exhibit not in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: I am asking if he has ever heard of these. 4797

Mr. Haycraft: You said you were reading a moment ago on the record.

Examiner Bennett: He can ask those questions regardless of the source.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: I don't want you to read in those names on the authority of those particular documents.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever hear of the A. & B. Dress Company, Inc.? A. No.

Q. Did you know that they sold dresses at $10.75? A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Aywon Dress Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know they sold dresses at $10.75? A. Not to Strawbridge & Clothier.

Q. Why didn't they sell to Strawbridge & Clothier? A. They were a Guild house.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Barhan Dress Corpora-4799 tion? A. I did.

Q. Do you know that they sold dresses at $10.75? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go to them? A. They were also a Guild at that time.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. I am sure, yes.

Q. How did you become sure of that? Did they have the kind of merchandise you wanted? A. They did.

Q. You say you couldn't get it because they were a Guild house? A. That is right.

Q. And that was the only reason you couldn't get it? A. That is right.

Q. You haven't made a mistake about that; have you? A. I don't think so.

4800 Q. You are certain that they had the kind of merchandise that you wanted? A. I think so.

Q. You saw it? A. I didn't see it, no.

Q. Someone told you? A. That is right.

Q. Did you try to get the merchandise there? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Why? A. I told you before they were a Guild house.

Q. I am going to tell you now you are mistaken. What do you say then?

Mr. Haycraft: What is the name of the firm?
Mr. Weisman: Barhan Dress Corporation.
Mr. Haycraft: How do you spell it?
Mr. Weisman: B-a-r-h-a-n.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, what do you say? A. I was mistaken.

Q. So there, at least, was a source that you could have gotten dresses from? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What about the Belldane Dress Company? A. Never heard of it.

Q. So that you couldn't know that they sold dresses at 266 West 37th Street, at $10.75? A. No, sir. 4802

Q. What about Bellsky & Shaddock? A. I never heard of those—that place.

Q. You mentioned in your direct testimony that you bought dresses from Bettini Frocks? A. That is right.

Q. Did you find that they had the kind of dresses that you wanted? A. We had always used Bettini.

Q. I am asking you. So they carried what you wanted? A. That is right.

Q. So you continued to buy from them? A. That is right.

Q. What you required. I understood you to say that Bettini Frocks was located in Philadelphia. A. That is right.

Q. Did you visit them in the New York market? A. I do. 4803

Q. Don't you know they have a place at Seventh Avenue? A. Yes, sir. The factories are in Philadelphia.

Q. You don't buy in the factories; do you? A. Sometimes.

Q. What do you do generally? A. Showrooms.

Q. Where are the showrooms? A. 525 Seventh Avenue.

Q. Where do you buy generally? A. Here in Philadelphia.

Q. Didn't you just say you generally buy in their showrooms? A. I said not in Bettini's showrooms, in other manufacturers' showrooms.

Q. In Bettini you buy at the factory? A. That is right.

Q. You have always done that? A. Eight times out of ten I go to the factory.

Q. How often do you go? A. Once a week.

Q. You go to their factory? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What price of merchandise did they make? A. $10.75 cost.

Q. How much do you buy from them? What is your average order?

4805 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

A. That is a hard question to answer. It depends on the season, it depends on how many styles the man has.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Giltwell Dress & Costume Corporation? A. No.

Q. So you wouldn't know that they sell dresses in New York City at $10.75 wholesale? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of Berke, Press & Berke, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Blackwear Dress Company, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you buy any dresses from them? A. I do.

Q. How long have you been buying dresses from them?

4806 A. Since January, 1936.

Q. And at what price? A. Different prices.

Q. What different prices? A. $8.75 to $10.75 wholesale.

Q. Where are they located? A. I am not sure.

Q. New York? A. New York.

Q. What about Samuel Bloom & Company? A. Is that New York?

Q. New York. A. I use their merchandise.

Q. What kind of merchandise do they make? A. Women's dresses.

Q. What price? A. $10.75.

Q. What department do you use them in? A. 338.

Q. 338? A. Yes.

Q. Is that a Guild house? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. How about their merchandise, is it good or bad? A. All right.

Q. All right? A. Yes.

Q. How does it compare with Guild merchandise? A. It compares favorably.

Mr. Freeman: Stop.

Mr. Weisman: I object to that. Counsel has just said in a loud voice "stop." Will the Court 4808 instruct Mr. Freeman to both restrain his voice and his actions because he not only yelled but he shoved his arm high in a fling that has annoyed me greatly.

Examiner Bennett: Of course, that should not be done.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What about the Bon-Ray Dance Frocks? A. I do not know them.

Q. Do you know that they sell dresses at $10.73? A. No.

Q. What about Boudon & Tuman, Inc.? A. (There was no answer.)

Q. Do you know them? A. Yes. 4809

Q. Do you do business with them? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to interpose an objection at this time because I can readily see where this is going to lead.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: It will be seen that as a result of the questions that are now being propounded as to how much business is done, and so forth, and where they do business, and how much business, that by the present cross-examination the present source of supply of Strawbridge & Clothier's merchandise, which they cannot get from the Guild, will be disclosed.

Mr. Weisman: What of it? Certainly no possible injury can come to them if they are doing it in an honest way. The only reason that I can see for concealment would be that there is something surreptitious about it and sinister in a way which has not made itself known to us.

Mr. Haycraft: No such thing. I say that is an 4811 obvious truth, Mr. Examiner, that is——

Examiner Bennett: That will take out of the record, of course, his answers to your question as to the sources of supply. Obviously, if you may ask him questions on your direct examination as to his sources of supply counsel for the respondent would be entitled in all fairness, it seems to the Examiner, to inquire into that situation in the present manner.

Mr. Haycraft: I have no objection to asking whether he knows these people, but I do think he should be allowed to the amount of business that is being done with them.

Examiner Bennett: The amount of merchandise purchased and the price paid?

4812 Mr. Haycraft: That is it.

Examiner Bennett: I certainly shall permit cross-examination along this line, in view of the matter having been opened very fully by asking this witness as to his sources of supply on direct examination, and he has testified, on direct examination, as to his sources of supply. How else, Mr. Haycraft, do you think the respondent could make a proper defense to that?

Mr. Hayeraft: I did not quite get your Honor's statement. I did not quite get the import of your Honor's statement.

Examiner Bennett: Make your objections if he goes into detail on that proposition.

Mr. Hayeraft: The pending question was whether they did business with them or not.

Examiner Bennett: It is my understanding that that question was answered.

Mr. Weisman: It was, your Honor.

Mr. Hayeraft: I would like to have it read.

(Question and answer read.)

Examiner Bennett: I am going to overrule the objection to that unless you want the whole testimony in that regard to go out of the record. 4814

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Examiner, with the greatest respect, let me make this statement to you——

Mr. Hayeraft: Mr. Freeman wants to make a statement and I think he had the floor.

Mr. Weisman: Go ahead.

Mr. Freeman: Now, your Honor, with the very greatest respect——

Mr. Weisman: Will you not speak so we can all hear you?

Mr. Freeman: I do not want to shout.

Mr. Weisman: Please do not.

Mr. Freeman: I certainly will not.

Mr. Weisman: But I want to hear you. 4815

Mr. Freeman: Mr. Examiner, with the greatest respect, I will instruct this witness not to answer the particular question as last asked as to whether he is doing business with these particular houses.

Examiner Bennett: Do you persist in your refusal to answer the question?

The Witness: I do.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Just so we are sure about this, I am going to ask you, too: Do you persist, Mr. Witness, in your refusal to answer that question? A. I do.

Mr. Weisman: I now move that all of the testimony of this witness be stricken, not only legally but physically from the record. I ask that this be done, and I make this motion that it be stricken in view of the extraordinary situation that had developed here when the witness on cross-examination is advised by his attorney not to answer, and does 4817 persistently refuse to answer a perfectly competent and proper question. I submit that the least that should be done is that an orderly procedure requires that all of his testimony be stricken out, otherwise courts of law have become a mockery, and a mere shadow, of substance, and the procedure has become a mere farce if, by this attorney's direction to this witness, he is directed to, and he says he does refuse to answer the question, notwithstanding the direction of the Court. I further desire to call the Examiner's attention to the contumacious conduct of this lawyer, and his entire disregard for all of the dignity, respect and honor due this tribunal in the very face of your Honor's ruling directing the witness to arbitrarily, 4818 persistently, wilfully, and for no reason shown, answer the question. You will observe that counsel's direction to the witness contained not even any reason why he should not answer it but simply said, "I will instruct this witness not to answer questions of the kind last asked as to whether Strawbridge & Clothier were doing business with this particular house or houses.

Mr. Haycraft: I think that the rights of the witness and his firm may well be protected if there is a compromise on this question by counsel for the respondent asking him whether or not he knew these firms and whether or not he could get a supply of goods from them without disclosing whether or not he actually did business with them.

Mr. Weisman: I certainly would object to that——

Mr. Haycraft: I had not finished.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, I beg your pardon. By all means proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: —without disclosing the fact that 4820 they are a source of supply and the amount of business done and the price paid and the nature of the goods bought. In other words, if I understand the purpose of this examination, it is to show that there were available sources of supply other than the Guild. Now, that being the purpose of the cross-examination, will not that be served by showing the various sources of supply which the witness recognizes as being sources of supply where he can obtain a supply of goods without disclosing the fact that he did buy, or the amount he did buy, and the price he paid?

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Examiner, first let me say to you that this is a most extraordinary procedure 4821 than during my entire legal career before the Bar I have ever witnessed. It is perfectly obvious to your Honor that Mr. Freeman is now usurping entirely the position of Government's counsel in this case and taking the entire matter into his own hands, as a duly qualified representative of Strawbridge & Clothier. Here is a witness who takes the stand, a witness tendered by the Commission, and, as a matter of fact, by Strawbridge & Clothier, who testifies that his sources of supply were injured and were shut off; he says that 60 per cent. of the merchandise they had in the business in those departments came from Guild houses. Now, when I seek to examine this witness and show, by examining him on this very important issue, a witness who has been tendered by the Commission, Commission's attorneys says to your Honor in this case and says to me as follows: "Oh, no. I will not let him testify to that. I will permit him to testify only in a very limited way. I will not let him tes-

4823 tify to what counsel for the respondent deems to be highly material and relevant testimony." He further says, "For that purpose if you want to ask him any question which will tend to rebut, weaken, and thoroughly break down his testimony upon that, you cannot do it in any way." I submit it would be highly improper for me to be limited in that manner. I ask that your Honor permit me to go into that. Your Honor will recall that I have done it very carefully. Your Honor will recall, and your Honor knows, that it is being done by me in the performance of my duty. If these people do not want to testify to this thing they should not have been tendered; this witness should not have been tendered in the first place. They should have 4824 been subpoenaed and then the witness under subpoena could have been called upon to answer the question or not. I submit this practice is highly improper, entirely oppressive, and that I am prohibited from the fair protection of my clients' rights in the premises, and it virtually deprives us of a hearing.

Obviously, for counsel for the Commission to put a witness on the witness stand and to be permitted freely to adduce any evidence he desires from that witness, and yet to have my cross-examination of that witness restricted by what counsel for the Commission may conceive to be a proper scope of cross-examination, I might as well turn my cross-examination over to counsel for the Commission to conduct. The course of conduct of counsel for the Commission in this case has been characterized in this manner to a more or less degree in the past, but this certainly reaches the very height of injustice, star-chamber proceedings, or a drumhead court-martial. Certainly, justice has flown out of the window, and the personal desires and aspirations of Strawbridge & Clothier have taken its place too thinly disguised, most happily, to fail to be recognized by any person with common sense. 4826

Examiner Bennett: I will ask you to hear what the attorney for the Commission has to say about the available source of supply. What further knowledge or what better position are you in after you find out whether this particular witness had anything to do with, or had, in fact, availed himself of those sources of supply if they existed? What position are you in then? What better position?

Mr. Weisman: I will tell you what better situation I am in, and I hope to show that not alone did they have these sources, but that they could avail themselves of them and use them, and that they did; furthermore, the charge here has been made that they could not obtain merchandise of a similar quality or character. This witness has just testified on that very important point in answer to my question that the merchandise was comparable. I am quite sure that your Honor will see the great importance of that in an inquiry of this kind. Not 4827 only is it necessary to show that they did have other sources of supply, but that those sources of supply were competent to furnish merchandise of the same quality, styling, and so forth, and how better can that be shown than the fact that they did, in truth and in fact, purchase their goods from them, and that they know, by that purchase, receipt and sale of such merchandise, what that merchandise was as to those very important respects about which they have cried in great assumed agony here for over a week. Now, to attempt to shut me off is to attempt to defeat my inquiry, now that we have 4829 gotten to people who are able to testify to something, that I sought to develop in regard to these other witnesses. Your Honor will recall that we started out in this case with Mr. Tily, the head of this firm, and went down gradually to these buyers, and that every time I would ask them a question about these various matters, they would say, "Oh, the buyers can tell you all about that, they are the people who actually did the business." Therefore, your Honor will recall, upon that representation made to you by counsel, and by the witnesses, that I was stopped in my examination of these officers of the corporation. I endeavored to examine them upon matters of the greatest importance to my clients in this case. These things are vital to us, 4830 and they cannot be ignored. Beginning with the testimony which was taken here last Friday, we have built up on the premises all of the testimony of every witness that has come in here, that the buyers, the people who actually transacted the business, would come in here and testify to the actual facts, about which we had speculation, opinions, reports from subordinates, all of which trickled down to the buyers as the people who really knew something about it. Theirs is the substructure, the foundation upon which all of the testimony of these other witnesses has been built. Now, if I am denied the opportuntiy to see whether that foundation is rotten or strong, true or false, broad or narrow, long or short, where am I? It means that I am precluded as to each and every witness that has appeared on this witness stand in the City of Philadelphia. I want to further state that if I am not permitted to examine these witnesses fully and freely, that I feel that I am properly entitled to an affirmative ruling upon a motion to strike from the record all of the testimony that 4832 has heretofore been adduced in Philadelphia during the course of these proceedings.

Furthermore, it is perfectly obvious that if I have the opportunity of showing that as to each of these sources of supply they were able to buy merchandise at the same price, merchandise of comparable value and nature and styling and type and material and fabric and delivery, discounts, and all of that sort of thing which enter into this very important matter, and that they not only knew of these things but availed themselves of it, my position is incomparably improved.

Examiner Bennett: That would go without saying that they would try to look for other sources of supply. Off the record. 4833

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: The Examiner has tried, off of the record, to arrive at a basis by which the inqury might proceed without foreclosing the rights of the respondents in this case which I recognize as very important and still not shut off the Commission's inquiry as to the result of certain actions of this respondent. He suggests that after respondents have developed the sufficiency of resources which, in fact, were available to this merchant, that it is not necessary to go further and to determine that this merchant actually made use of these resources.

And, the Examiner has decided that he will stop the question at that point on the theory that otherwise witnesses cannot be secured who will develop the inquiry; that will develop all of the facts of the inquiry because of the fear that their declarations of their sources of supply may lead to embarrassment.

4835 Is that clear to you now? That is my position.

Mr. Weisman: Yes, your Honor, it is.

Examiner Bennett: I will also say this for the record, that I am doubtful, it is a close legal question, and I am doubtful as to what the decision ought to be from a strict legal standpoint and, of course, that places the burden squarely and fairly and directly upon the attorney for the Commission to uphold the legality of it, and it gives the respondent an opportunity to overthrow the whole proceeding on that particular question.

Mr. Weisman: May I state to your Honor that in a case of this type, in addition to the points which I have already made, I deem it of the greatest of importance to my client that my client be 4836 in a position to show, where, as here, the availability of sufficiently similar merchandise is gained, to show that no loss was sustained, and to show that not alone was such merchandise available, but the available sources were, in fact, availed of.

I deem it greater than any argument that I can make on the question of availability and nature, size and scope and quality of such sources, the fact that the sources were used.

And I, therefore, say that to preclude us from proving through these very witnesses who say that the sources were not available, that they did, in fact and in truth, avail themselves of such other sources, is to deny us a vital, fundamental right in the premises, the denial of which constitutes an insuperable barrier to our proper presentation of a defense in this case which we cannot hope to overcome.

I want to also say that I appreciate and humbly acknowledge the fair and frank statement of your Honor with regard to this matter and if I could, in any justice to my client's position and interest, 4838 meet the thought of your Honor, on behalf of my client I would do so. However, I cannot, and I respectfully except.

Examiner Bennett: We will take an adjournment until 9 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, to-morrow morning, Friday. At that time the proceeding will be resumed in this room at this place.

Mr. Weisman: May I also say this for the record?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. The record will be reopened for that purpose.

(The record was reopened and the following proceedings were had:)

Mr. Weisman: As an officer of the court and as a lawyer at the bar, and with a knowledge of this situation, it is in my opinion, and I say to this 4839 honorable body that it is utterly incomprehensible that there should be any good and valid reason why the sources of their supply and the fact of their being supplied therefrom, and the details therefor, should be kept secret.

If there is some sinister, subversive, and shadowy reason why that should not be done, it should be dragged out into broad daylight and inspected in the full light of the sun.

Our position is such that we are not interested in that to the slightest degree. Nor do we have any power or control over it to the slightest degree.

We, as a matter of fact, even with our own members, do not care whether they buy from anybody in the world. Our own members have no desire or wishes in that regard.

There is nothing in this case, so far as the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., the respondent herein, is concerned, which says they must buy or they must not buy from anybody else.

In an affirmative way we only say that we will 4841 not sell if you deal in copies of our merchandise. This is a very simple, clean-cut matter and one which does not entail a judgment or determination of this sort.

This is not a case where one merchant seeks to take the business of another merchant and for that reason we want to know with whom they are doing business in order that we may rush around and steal that business. As a matter of fact, we have refused to do business with Strawbridge & Clothier because we did not want to do business with them until such time as they will aid us to keep and protect our property rights, which are our style originations.

This is not a case where one merchant wants to 4842 go out and take the business of another. We do not do any business with Strawbridge & Clothier. We do not want their business.

Mr. Haycraft: I want to make one point and that is this: The red carding of Strawbridge & Clothier was caused by the refusal of Strawbridge & Clothier to disclose the name of a manufacturer who was alleged to have copied merchandise manufactured by members of the Guild.

That is one of the points raised. They wanted to know that information and when it was denied them they refused to continue with Strawbridge & Clothier.

Examiner Bennett: I see.

Mr. Haycraft: Of course, they want to know these people with whom Strawbridge & Clothier is doing business.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. I realize all of that and I am inclined to think personally that the merchant is unduly disturbed, but that is a matter for the merchant to decide.

Of course, if I had decided differently from that 4844 which I have decided, I would have called upon the witness to answer.

That is the present situation.

Mr. Weisman: I would like to ask the reporter if I have taken an exception, a formal exception on the record, to the ruling of the Examiner in denying to me the right to interrogate the witness in this regard?

Examiner Bennett: You may have an exception to the ruling. I do not expect you to take my ruling. I expect you to make such objection as you see fit.

We now stand adjourned, gentlemen.

(Whereupon, at 4.35 o'clock P. M., August 6, 4845
1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed. 4851

KENNETH MARCH resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued).

The Witness: Your Honor, may I say something?

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. We are in session.

Mr. Freeman, you made a rather grave interference yesterday with the proceedings. I wish you would tell us directly why you did so.

Mr. Freeman: As counsel for Strawbridge & Clothier, I desire to have noted on the record a statement of the reasons which caused me to direct the witness to refuse to answer the question as to the sources of supply used by Strawbridge & Clothier. There is probably nothing which would so seriously harm a department store as the disclosure of the facts surrounding its purchases of goods. Competitors and others could make use of 4853 this information to the harm both of Strawbridge & Clothier and to their sources of supply. Furthermore, not only is this a public hearing but, in addition, during most of the times that the hearing has been in session there has been present a reporter from a widely circulated trade paper, namely, "Women's Wear," which has already printed articles disclosing to the entire trade certain figures, etc., given, and the figures which Strawbridge & Clothier seriously object to becoming known to the entire trade and the publication of which Strawbridge & Clothier have endeavored in vain to prevent.

In addition, Strawbridge & Clothier is apprehen-4854 sive that should the names of the sources of supply be disclosed, it would make possible an attempt to cut off the supply which they are now enjoying. It has always been the policy of Strawbridge & Clothier not to divulge to the trade the names of the resources, the prices, terms, and other trade arrangements which it may have.

That is all, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Now, may it please your Honor—

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will just say that I asked the attorney to make such a statement because I wanted to see why he interfered.

Mr. Weisman: Have you finished?

Mr. Freeman: No, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Excuse me. I thought you had.

Mr. Freeman: I desire to add that the A.M.C. is no exception to the policy pursued by Strawbridge & Clothier in respect to their failure—in respect to their desire not to disclose the resources which they are using—resources, prices, and trade arrangements which they are using.

Examiner Bennett: All right. 4856

Mr. Freeman: Thanks.

Mr. Weisman: In reply, or in response to the statement made by Mr. Freeman, counsel for Strawbridge & Clothier, I respectfully ask that all I have stated yesterday be deemed in answer to his present statement. I don't want to burden the record with a repetition. I furthermore wish to state that I deem Mr. Freeman's statement that he fears that if he discloses the sources of supply that the same will be cut off to be highly improper, not founded on fact, merely a malevolent effort to injure us in the eyes of the Examiner and the Commission.

As a matter of fact, the complaint here is that we have merely refused to do business with them, that we would have or have refused to do business 4857 with them, and we were quite content to go along without doing business with them until they instigated this complaint, as witness the various witnesses' statements again and again that they filed affidavits, et cetera, and so forth, to accelerate this complaint, and to bring it on. I therefore say, in so far as that statement is concerned, it must be perfectly apparent that it is made in bad faith and not in good faith.

I further wish to state that from information furnished to me, the reference to keeping from the A.M.C. secret the various trade practices, trade discounts, et cetera, made by Strawbridge & Clothier at the proper time—I say this with all due solemnity—I will prove that it is wholly unfounded in fact, and that the member stores of this organization, the A.M.C., do interchange and change information, do pool their orders, and they are acting together, as witness the very exhibit offered in evidence by the Commission in this case which started out, "We act"—on the A.M.C. stationery—"We, 4859 acting on behalf of eighteen member stores"—one of which was Filene, and the other of which to-day was the only other witness, retail witness that has testified, members of Strawbridge & Clothier.

In conclusion, I wish to state, and I wish to have this on the record, that this does appear to me, and I say this with all due humility, as the most unreasonable and fantastic legal inquiry that I have ever taken part in. I can only compare it to the old Arabian Nights. The King comes in and he says, "I am going to tell you a story." Whereupon Mr. Tily comes in and tells a story. You come to Mr. Tily and your say to the King, "Well, now, what do you know about this store?"

Examiner Bennett: Now——

4860 Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, I ask that——

Examiner Bennett: I know. I know.

Mr. Weisman: —this analogy be in the record.

Examiner Bennett: You are taking up a lot of time.

Mr. Weisman: Well, it will just take me a moment, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: And we asked Mr. Tily, and he says, "Oh, someone beneath me will explain that." So along comes Mr. Taylor. We ask Mr. Taylor about it, and he says, "Oh, my, someone beneath me will tell that." And along comes Mr. Chance, and we all sit here expectantly. We finally get to some facts and not to some hearsay or surmise, and Mr. Chance says, "Oh, my buyers know all about that." Lo and behold, we finally see that the buyer is coming in, and the buyer takes the stand and when we seek to get some information from him, figuratively the King orders his head cut off and you can't question him, and you have got to accept his 4862 story as a fact.

Now, I submit to your Honor that this is the most fantastic, and that is the only word that can fit this situation——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: And if your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Weisman: If this ruling is to be made in this case, I respectfully now, in view of the reiterated statement of counsel for Strawbridge & Clothier, in view of the reiterated stand, because I assume—that of the counsel for the Commission, who joins in this situation, or in this course of conduct, because he could very easily obviate it by serving a subpoena on this witness so that he might be 4863 compelled to answer, I respectfully move for your most serious deliberation. In the protection of our traditional and constitutional rights that all testimony of Messrs. Tily, Chance, Taylor and this witness as to their inability to obtain sufficient merchandise of the kind and character referred to, be stricken out from the record because notwithstanding the fact that their claim is in the record to that effect, when I seek to cross-examine them to show an untruth and, in fact, that they had an adequate source of supply, the sources from whom they got it, et cetera, I am shut off by this stand.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Are you through?

Mr. Weisman: Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well——

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to make a very short statement, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed. Make it short.

Mr. Haycraft: I will make it very short.

4865 As I pointed out in yesterday's session, I have no objection to eliciting from this witness or any other witness the names of available sources of supply. In other words——

Examiner Bennett: I didn't——

Mr. Haycraft: In cross-examination of this witness, if he can divulge that I have no objection to it. The only thing I have an objection on record against is the disclosing of what is recognized in the courts of law as well as by the Commission, as being confidential information in the possession of witnesses who are not parties to the proceedings. And in that connection, I wish to make it very clear on the record that Strawbridge & Clothier is not a party to this proceeding, did not volunteer any 4866 evidence, did not appear until subpoenaed, and every bit of evidence that has been brought in here pursuant to my request and upon my demand.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: Just one short statement. The witnesses have again and again referred to affidavits that they have voluntarily furnished to Mr. Haycraft. He has had those affidavits in court; he has examined from them. He has constantly referred to them, and I submit the statement that Strawbridge & Clothier did not inspire and are not directly interested in this proceeding is entirely without fact.

Mr. Haycraft: Now, be careful. Be a little careful about that. I want to make it very plain in the record that the statement made by counsel for the respondent is wholly without foundation and fact, that the affidavits referred to by the witnesses were ones which I asked for myself. The Federal Trade Commission in this case conducted an investigation, which it has a right to do under the statutes. As a result of this investigation, information was 4868 obtained, and only as a result of this investigation. These witnesses and this firm in no way sponsored or brought about this proceeding, and in no way volunteered any information until requested to produce such information upon demand of subpoena.

Mr. Weisman: Upon demand of the Federal Trade Commission——

Examiner Bennett: We are not going to have any more. We are not going to have any more of this made in the record.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Examiner Bennett: And I will say to the attorney for the respondent that his attack on the Tribunal is unwarranted in fact wholly as leads the Examiner to believe that he is trying to ob- 4869 struct this proceeding instead of aiding and bring. it to a conclusion.

All of the facts are presented, and I am going to take the position further in this matter that no substantial right of respondent is jeopardized by failure to disclose specifically, failure of this witness to disclose specifically the source of supply with which he actually did business.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully except.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: May I also say that I was not attacking the Commission. I was attacking the good faith of Strawbridge & Clothier.

Examiner Bennett: You are attacking this proceeding in a most unseemly manner.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I am——

Examiner Bennett: And I resent it.

Mr. Weisman: I regret—I regret exceedingly that my conduct has caused resentment in the mind of the Examiner.

4871 Examiner Bennett: Well, I resent that sort of statement. It isn't a personal matter.

Mr. Weisman: I believe that before this case is over your Honor will see that what I have said is well founded.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will be glad to have the truth.

Mr. Weisman: Yes. That is one of the things that we are going to prove on our affirmative case.

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may proceed.

The Witness: Your Honor, may I say something in regard to the testimony that I gave yesterday?

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to correct something?

The Witness: Yes. I do, sir.

4872 Examiner Bennett: All right, you may correct—

Mr. Weisman: Will you wait a minute? I am looking for something that I want in the complaint, that I want to put in the record, Judge, at this point.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Is it important to do that now, or can't you put that in after?

Mr. Weisman: It will just take me a second, Judge.

In connection with my former statement, I wish to respectfully call the attention to the paragraph 10 of the complaint in this case, subdivisions (b) and (c), which is the summation and the complaint of wrong with regard to the Guild's program. The subdivision (b) claims that as a result of the Guild's program, and that is one of the things that is complained of: "To prevent retail dealers in ladies' and misses' garments from purchasing their requirements of the said products in interstate commerce from the manufacturers thereof."

I assume this is in direct—my endeavor to query is in direct contradiction of that claim. (c) is the 4874 further claim to force many retailers to discontinue the sale of their products because of their inability to maintain a supply thereof at reasonable prices. I respectfully submit that by closing off my inquiry as to the facts that they got the merchandise specifically, I am in no position to disprove this claim.

Examiner Bennett: Well, the Examiner stated at length, at some length yesterday as to his position in the matter.

Mr. Weisman: All right, Judge.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to take up your time to elaborate upon it.

Mr. Weisman: All right, Judge. I am quite sure that the Court understands that my position is one merely as an attorney. 4875

Examiner Bennett: Oh, I understand that. There is no partiality, that is certain.

Mr. Weisman: That is what I want to be sure of.

Examiner Bennett: Will you make your statement now?

The Witness: Yes, your Honor. When I was being questioned about purchasing dresses from Barham or Baron, I was under the impression that Mr. Weisman was talking about Baron dresses, not Barhan. I was confused, and when I got back to the store I realized my mistake, and I would like to have that corrected on the record, if that is possible. It was Baron Brothers I was talking about, not Barhan.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Proceed.

(There was a short discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How do you spell "Baron"? A. I do not know how to spell "Baron." He got it out of the directory?

4877 Q. What I want to know is, how you know how to spell it if you do not—you said you distinguished it from another group. I want to know how you were able to do that? A. Well, I know it is different from the other, but I do not know how to spell it.

Q. What priced dresses do Boudon & Tuman, Inc., sell? A. I do not remember.

Q. Do you not now do business with them?

Mr. Freeman: Do not answer that question.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I shall sustain the objection. In deference to their claim of privilege, I shall sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: I except, and I make the offer to 4878 prove that if the witness had been permitted to answer he would have said that they do do business with them, and then I would have been able to show from this same witness that they do business with them at the same price they did with Guild houses, and that the merchandise compares favorably with that manufactured by Guild houses, if I had been permitted to continue that line of examination.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner, and move that it be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: I will let it stand. An offer to prove of that type I will let it stand under the circumstances.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you know them since February 1, 1936? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you know that they were an available source of supply for you for dresses for Departments 338 and 358? A. I did hear that they were.

Q. Do you not know that they were? A. I did not know 4880 positively.

Q. Have you discussed your previous testimony and your proposed testimony with anybody over night? A. I have not.

Q. Have you talked over with anybody at all this matter since you left the witness stand last night, anybody connected with Strawbridge & Clothier or representing Strawbridge & Clothier? A. I have not.

Q. Did you not testify yesterday that you did business with them since February 1, 1936? A. I do not believe I said since February 1, 1936.

Q. Did you testify that you did business with them? A. I believe I did.

Q. Do you mean by that that you did business with them 4881 prior to February 1, 1936? A. I did not say that I did.

Q. When did you mean that you did business with them when you answered, yes, you were doing business with them? A. I meant that in the course of our business in Department 338 that we did use merchandise from that resource.

Q. When? A. I cannot remember exactly.

Q. You only came into that department on February 19, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. If you say that you knew that you were doing business with them—that that department had used them for the obtainment of merchandise, did not you mean you thought—did not you mean that you had used them since February 1, 1936? A. I suppose I did, yes.

Q. Aside from your supposition, in fact did not you so mean that? Answer the question, please. A. Well, yes.

Q. What do you mean, "Well, yes," or just "yes"? A. Yes.

Q. Did you look upon them as a good resource? A. As a fair resource, I would say.

Q. When you say "fair" you mean as fair as any of the 4883 other resources that were then available to you? A. I would not say that.

Q. Do you mean that they were a poorer resource than the other available resources? A. Possibly, yes.

Q. Not possibly; factually, I want to know. A. I do not do very much business with them, I mean.

Q. Ever since February 1, 1936, you know that the firm of Bowdan & Tyman, Inc., have been ready, willing, and anxious to do business with you, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. You would not have any trouble in getting from them any merchandise that you saw fit to order from them, would you? A. No, sir.

Q. They are quite content with the rating and ability to pay and the standing of your firm, are they? A. Yes.

Q. What priced merchandise do they make? A. I am 4884 not certain what price they make.

Q. What is your best idea? A. I would not know. During the summer months manufacturers go into the cheaper priced merchandise, and I would not know.

Q. Aside from the summer months, which is not the regular line, what is their regular line? A. I could not testify as to what price.

Q. You are the buyer for this department and you have testified that you are in charge of the purchases; as such, is that part of your duty to go in and know where to get these dresses and to know for what price you can get them for? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding that you do not know that to be a fact; you do not know what they sell goods for, or from whom you can obtain them? A. In this particular case I was only in their showroom once, I believe, and I do not know what price merchandise they are making now.

Q. Do you know that they make $10.75? A. I know that they are listed under the category of $10.75 house.

Q. You know that people who are listed under that category usually make that priced merchandise, do you not? A. Usually, but not in all cases. 4886

Q. Oh, not in all cases? A. No.

Q. But it is the usual run of things, is it? A. It is.

Q. You bought merchandise from Sam Bloom & Company since February 1, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Do you find that their merchandise compares favorably with other manufacturers concerning which or with whom you do business in that department?

Mr. Freeman: Stop. Do not answer.

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Examiner, I object very strenuously to the conduct of Mr. Freeman here. Every time I ask a question he gets up, stands over Mr. Haycraft, and almost over your Honor, holds a piece of paper up in his hand as if he were going to swat a fly, and motions and indicates and directs, 4887 coerces, and intimidates this witness by his motions possibly, or at least there is that possibility of his actions. I think that is highly improper. He is not the counsel in this case. The Federal Trade Commission is supposedly conducting this lawsuit. I ask your Honor to direct Mr. Freeman to sit down and conduct himself properly. I think this is highly improper and it is certainly highly prejudicial to the substantive rights of the respondents herein from which we will have no recourse if something is not done about it.

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Freeman: Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that statement. It is entirely uncalled for, and merely reflects Mr. Weisman's opinion on things which are not necessarily the fact.

Mr. Weisman: "Not necessarily," a delightful way out, Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: For you.

4889 Examiner Bennett: Proceed, Mr. Freeman.

Mr. Freeman: Mr. Examiner, I shall object to having any comparison made by the witness comparing for Strawbridge & Clothier as to the various merits of their various sources of supply.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is most vital to our case, if your Honor please. The suppression of the right to examine the witness upon that vitally injures the respondents' case.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with the examination. The witness does not have to make comparisons if he does not want to.

A. I have nothing to compare there, Mr. Weisman. They make stout dresses. I have never bought stout 4890 dresses from any Guild manufacturer so I have nothing to compare that merchandise with.

Examiner Bennett: The witness does not have to cast reflections upon a manufacturer. I will not direct any examination with respect to that. That is entirely up to the witness.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You buy merchandise from the Blockman Company? A. Yes.

Q. How does their merchandise compare with others that you have customarily dealt with?

Mr. Freeman: Stop.

Mr. Weisman: Stop what?

Mr. Freeman: I merely want to make a statement to the Examiner.

Mr. Weisman: Oh.

Mr. Freeman: I object, Mr. Examiner. I submit that that is along the same line.

4892

Examiner Bennett: Yes. The witness does not have to make comparisons unless he wants to.

The Witness: There, again, I have nothing to compare. They make mourning dresses.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Are they the only source of supply from whom you have ever bought mourning dresses? A. No.

Q. How do they compare with the others from whom you have bought mourning dresses?

Mr. Freeman: I object to that, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I have already made a statement in regard to that. That is sufficient.

4893

The Witness: This mourning dress is a different item. There is hardly any comparison. People need them in a great hurry when they need them.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Then, would you say their merchandise was as good as any in the New York market at the same price, manufactured by member of the Guild? A. As good as any mourning dresses in the market, yes.

Q. You have bought from Bettina for how long? A. I believe ever since they have been in business.

Q. Even when you were dealing with the Guild, when your store was dealing with the Guild, they were still buying dresses from Bettina Frocks; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do their dresses compare favorably, both as to character, style, and quality with the other merchandise that you have bought from Guild members? A. We have always been successful with Bettina's merchandise.

Q. When you say you have always been successful with Bettina's merchandise, you mean that their productions or their numbers or their originations compared favorably 4895 with, or were equally as good as those which you got from other sources, including Guild members? A. Bettina makes a different type—Bettina makes a certain type.

Q. In that type are they as good as Guild members? A. Yes, in that type they are as good as Guild merchandise.

Q. Do you know Joseph Brown & Company, 498 Seventh Avenue, New York City, N. Y.? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know they make $10.75 dresses? Did you ever hear of Harry Butler & Brother? A. No.

Q. Do you know they make $10.75 dresses? A. No.

Q. Do you know that they stand ready, willing, and able to sell you splendid merchandise at that price in the New York market? A. I do not.

Q. You never heard of them? A. I never did.

Q. You have never been in their showroom? A. I 4896 never have.

Q. Do you know Caron Brothers, Inc.? A. No.

Q. You never heard of that firm? A. No.

Q. You do not know that they make $10.75 dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further interrogation as to this company. He says he has never heard of them.

The Witness: I have never used that source of supply.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I did not ask you whether you had used them. I am trying to find out whether you know them.

Mr. Weisman: I must object to this constant motioning and hovering over counsel by Mr. Freeman. It is very annoying, and it certainly seems to me to be quite irregular.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, that is an improper statement. I move that it be stricken physically from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Gentlemen, let us get along.

By Mr. Weisman. 4898

Q. What about Cartwright Gowns, Inc.? A. Never heard of them.

Q. What about Albert R. Casals? A. I never heard of them.

Q. What about Cecele Dance Frocks, Inc.? A. I know them.

Q. What priced merchandise do they generally handle? A. $10.75.

Q. Do you do business with them?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I make this offer of proof that if the witness had been enabled to answer 4899 he would have said that they do, and I would have then been in a position to prove that they can get an adequate amount of dresses from Cecele Frocks, and that they compare favorably with dresses that they bought from Guild members.

Mr. Haycraft: Move to strike that motion to proof, your Honor, as entirely improper.

Examiner Bennett: No. I think I will let it stand under the circumstances. We have a rather peculiar situation here.

The Witness: We have only been able to get merchandise from them since they resigned from the Guild.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. And since the last few months you have not had the slightest trouble in getting merchandise from them, then, have you? A. No.

Q. Have you? A. No.

4901 Q. What priced merchandise do you get from them?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Freeman: I object to that. The witness should not answer that.

Examiner Bennett: The witness has volunteered the information. If he volunteers the information of course I cannot shut it off after that. You may answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What priced merchandise do they make; the Court has directed that you may answer that question, anyhow? A. $10.75 dresses.

4902 Q. Do you find that they sell you good, seasonable merchandise when you place your order with them? A. Yes, if they have the things that I want from them, yes.

Q. That such merchandise that you purchase from them compares favorably in consumer acceptance thereof with such merchandise you were previously able to get from other sources, including Guild resources?

Mr. Freeman: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to protect him in that. He has volunteered that information.

I do not see where I should protect him in that if he volunteers the information.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you may answer. A. I understand that Mr. Bennett; says I do not have to give my impression.

Examiner Bennett: You had better curb your tongue, then, and not volunteer information.

Mr. Weisman: I insist that he be allowed to answer the question.

Mr. Freeman: Mr. Examiner, I object to the witness answering that question. 4904

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer that.

Mr. Freeman: Mr. Examiner, may I now be permitted to instruct the witness as to his present sources of supply, the prices, and comparison of the goods purchased from the sources of supply with other sources, he is not required to answer.

Mr. Weisman: I want the record to clearly note this extraordinary action on the part of a counsel has nothing in the world to do with this case, coming in here and instructing the witness as to the manner, scope, and nature of his testimony, and indicating very clearly the way he should turn his testimony. The high degree of impropriety that is indicated in conduct of this character scarcely needs 4905 comment upon my part, but I do feel that it should be called to the attention of the Commission.

Examiner Bennett: The record speaks for itself. He does not have to give invidious comparisons. If he has ordinary common sense he will not do it.

Mr. Freeman: I object. I thought he so understood.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, you thought that you trained him a little better.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Will you answer the question, please? A. May I have the question, please.

Q. (Question read as follows: "Q. That such merchandise that you purchase from them compares favorably in consumer acceptance thereof with such merchandise you were previously able to get from other sources, including Guild resources?") A. I would rather not make any comparison.

By Mr. Weisman.

4907 Q. The Court has directed you to answer that question, anyhow.

Examiner Bennett: He does not have to answer. That is his answer. If it is not satisfactory, why, I do not know what can be done about it.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully except.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to compel him to make a comparison.

Mr. Weisman: Now, I respectfully move that all of the testimony in this case wherein it is claimed that the firm of Strawbridge & Clothier could not obtain merchandise of a similar kind and character to that purchased from the Guild be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

4908 Mr. Weisman: Exception. It is perfectly obvious upon this record that I am being denied any opportunity to show that they could, in fact, purchase such merchandise in greater quantity than they could possibly buy it in the normal course of their business. To deny me that right is to virtually make this a star chamber proceeding in which we are simply dragged in here and led to slaughter, and I cannot make my objection too strenuous to it.

Examiner Bennett: You have your exception on the record. You are protected.

Mr. Weisman: I only hope that I am.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know Dalton Frocks, Inc., 1372 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of them? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you not know that in February, 1936, that they were engaged in the wholesale manufacture and sale of ladies' ready-to-wear? A. I——

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. He said that he did not know them at all, and he never heard of them. 4910

Mr. Weisman: Mr. Haycraft's extraordinary solicitation for his witness needs no further comment than its mere appearance upon the record, if your Honor please. I do not think I ever saw a case conducted wherein counsel were so solicitous about these babes in arm that they place on the witness stand.

Mr. Haycraft: No such thing.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception, and I offer to prove that he did know that, that which I am foreclosed from permitting him to show.

Mr. Haycraft: You do not know any such thing. 4911

Mr. Weisman: How do you know what I know? The old mind reader at work again.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. It was in December—in February 1, or thereabouts, 1936, did you ever know of the firm of Samuel Davidson, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of them now? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear that they were engaged in the business of the wholesale manufacture and sale of dresses at $10.75? A. No, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Freeman: I object to that, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. Your Honor understands that when I am foreclosed on these questions I am, of course, foreclosed upon questions which would bear upon that particular, and which in deference to your Honor I will not ask immediately 4913 following that.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I understand.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever, on or about February 1, 1936, and at any time thereafter, know of the firm of Donnaline Dress Company, 1400 Broadway? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of the firm of Dresden Dress Company, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you hear of that firm, and when? A. In January I heard of it.

Q. Have you since February 1, 1936, or since the claimed red carding by the Guild of your store, done business with the Dresden Dress Company?

4914

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I offer to prove that had I been permitted to ask this witness this question and he permitted to answer it, he would have stated that he did do business with them since that time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you ever received any merchandise from the Dresden Dress Company, Inc.?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I offer to prove that if he had been permitted to answer he would have stated that he had received certain merchandise.

Mr. Haycraft: As a matter of fact, was not the Dresden Dress Company a member of the Guild in February?

Mr. Weisman: Not to my knowledge. 4916

Mr. Haycraft: I think it was.

Mr. Weisman: Will you take the stand and testify as a witness in this case?

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly not.

Mr. Weisman: Then I object to putting in the record your opinions as to what you know upon which I have no opportunity to cross-examine him. You asked me if they were and I gave you my information in answer to it, and then you are trying to testify. I think that is highly improper, your Honor. It is just typical of the whole transaction involved in this case.

By Mr. Weisman.

4917

Q. In your opinion, in what respect is the merchandise that is sold and delivered by the Dresden Dress Company, Inc., inferior to that which you got from Guild houses?

Mr. Freeman: I object to that. Now I really object to that.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, if your Honor please. Counsel has no right to ask a question like that.

Mr. Weisman: It is coming to a pretty pass when counsel for the Commission is going to tell me even the question that I may ask.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception, and I offer to prove that if the witness had been allowed to answer he would have stated that in no respect was it inferior to that which he purchased from Guild houses.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you ever found that the merchandise that you purchased from the Dresden Dress Company, Inc., was in-4919 ferior in quality or in type or in style or in quality or in consumer acceptation to that which you were enabled to buy from Fashion Originators Guild of America members when you did buy from them?

Mr. Freeman: I object to that, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. No foundation has been laid for it.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception, and offer to prove that the witness' answer would have been that in every respect the merchandise was equal to that, or better, for that matter, to that purchased from members of the Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike that out, if your 4920 Honor please, as not a proper offer to prove.

Examiner Bennett: No, I think I will let it stand. It is in the record physically, anyway.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the Ebon Manufacturing Company, Inc., 498 Broadway, New York—498 Seventh Avenue, it is? A. No.

Q. Did you ever know of them on February 1, 1936?

Mr. Freeman: I object.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. No, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever know of, or did you ever hear of Edelman— A. No, never heard of a firm with a name like that.

Q. You answered that very promptly before I ever got the full name out. Did counsel indicate to you to say no? A. (No answer heard.) 4922

Q. Did you ever hear of the Encore Dresses? A. I have.

Q. Did you prior to February 1, 1936, do business with them? A. I would not know.

Q. Have you learned of them since February 1, 1936? A. I have.

Q. Since you have learned of them did you also learn what priced dresses they make and sell? A. Yes.

Q. What priced dress do they make and sell? A. $10.75.

Q. Have you, since February 1, 1936, found that Encore Dresses, Inc., were at all times ready, willing, and able to sell you such merchandise as you desired to purchase from them? A. I have.

Q. Have you, in fact, since February 1, 1936, purchased merchandise from Encore Dresses, Inc.? 4923

Mr. Freeman: I object to that, your Honor. I object. That is not a proper question.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Weisman: I suppose your Honor is going to sustain that in spite of anything I might say.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, in view of the statement by counsel the objection is sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. I make the offer to prove that had the witness been permitted to answer he would have answered that they have merchandise from them and in substantial quantity.

Mr. Haycraft: Move to strike that as not proper offer to prove.

Examiner Bennett: No, I think I will allow it to stand.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you found that the merchandise that you have purchased from Encore Dresses, Inc., is, in any respect, inferior to that which you could have purchased from members of the Guild at the same price?

4925

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Freeman: I object to that, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: I except. I now offer to prove that if the witness had been permitted to answer he would have answered that it was not inferior in any respect.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever hear of Estell Frocks, 101 West Thirty-seventh? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Everglad Blouse & Dresses? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of the F. E. D. Dress Company, 4926 1400 Broadway? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Fashion Dress Company, 525 Seventh Avenue? A. No, sir.

Q. You are certain of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I take it with regard to all these houses whom you say you never heard of, you must have, and must be now, of necessity, unaware of the prices at which they sell their merchandise; is that so? A. If I have never heard of them I do not know at what price they sell for.

Q. I am trying to shorten this record as much as I can. Did you ever hear of the Fashion-Craft Dresses, Inc.? A. Where are they located?

Q. 530 Seventh Avenue. A. Yes.

Q. You know of them? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known of them? A. Since January, 1936.

Q. I take it, then, that they are a resource which prior to January, Department 335 did not do business with?

Mr. Freeman: I object.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception, and I offer to prove 4928 that he would have answered that in the affirmative; that they did not do business with them prior to January.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What dresses do Fashion-Craft Dresses, Inc., handle or sell? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. Do they handle the type of dresses that you sell in your Departments Nos. 338 and 358? A. They do.

Q. Have you found them at all times ready, willing, and able to sell you all the dresses that you are willing to purchase from them? A. Not me.

Q. Under one acting under your instructions or directions? A. No, sir. 4929

Q. Or acting for you or for Strawbridge & Clothier? A. No, sir.

Q. When you said, "Not me" what did you mean? A. They do not sell my department.

Q. Do you mean that they do not sell your department because your department does not want to buy from them; is that what you mean, or what do you mean by that? A. They do sell—they manufacture a woman's dress.

Q. Does not Department 338 handle women's dresses? A. They do.

Q. Then your answer is that they manufacture women's dresses—how is your answer that they manufacture women's dresses explanatory of your statement that they do not sell that department? A. They sell—they sell another department in our store.

Q. What department?

Mr. Freeman: I must object to that.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett. Sustained.

4931 Mr. Weisman: Exception, and I offer to prove that the witness would have stated such department, which would have been a piece of information vitally necessary to the proper defense of this case on the part of the respondents.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you seen the merchandise that they handle or purchase, or produce, I should say? A. Not recently.

Q. What do you mean by "not recently"? A. Not since February.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Fashion Wear Dress Company? A. Where at?

Q. 1400 Broadway? A. No, I have not.

Q. Did you ever hear of Furst-Greenman Company, Inc.,
4932 1400 Broadway? A. I have heard of them, but I do not know what they make, or—I have just heard of them. I have heard the name mentioned in the market.

Q. You know that they are a regularly producing house, do you not; a rather large one? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that they are a regular Broadway house? A. No.

Q. Is not Furst-Greenman Company, Inc., 1400 Broadway, a large producer of $10.75 dresses? A. I would not know that.

Q. How did you hear about it? A. I have heard people speak of the name. When you mentioned the name it brings back the recollection of having heard of them somewhere.

Q. Did you ever hear of Ginsburg & Abelson, Inc.? A. No.

Q. Do you know that house, or did you know that house on February 1, 1936, when you became buyer for this department? A. No.

Q. Do you know Goldstein & Entin, Inc., 1410 Broadway? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard of them since February 1, 1936? A. No, sir.

4934

Q. Did you ever hear of Golf Dress Company, Inc.? A. I have heard of them.

Q. Did you ever hear that they were in the business of making dresses at $10.75 and up? A. Not the type of dresses that I buy.

Q. What type of dresses did you hear they make? A. Sport dresses.

Q. Did you not also hear that they made tailored suits of linens and woolens? A. When I said sports dresses, I had in mind tailored dresses.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Greensteins Frocks, Inc.? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of Greenwald Friedman Corporation? A. No, sir; I never heard of that name.

4935

Q. Did you ever hear of Gross-Sydney, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Harris & Stone, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Harston Frocks, 525 7th Avenue? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Heimlich? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Irma Dress Company, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of J. H. Costume Company, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of George Jacobson, 1400 Broadway? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Jerry Dress Company, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Jescove Frocks of 1400 Broadway? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Jo-Jo Dress Company, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you sure of that last one? A. That is right. I am sure.

4937 Q. You never heard of that? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Julmar Frocks, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Junior Town Frocks at 1400 Broadway? A. I don't buy junior dresses, so I wouldn't hear about it.

Q. It may be they make dresses other than junior dresses. In any event— A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know them? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Justrite Dress Company? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Milton Kohn-Schlussel? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Konette Frocks of 101 West 37th Street? A. No, sir.

4938 Q. Did you ever hear of Ladycraft Dresses, Inc? I have.

Q. When did you hear of them? A. January, 1936.

Q. Prior to that you hadn't heard of them? A. I wasn't buying that price prior to that.

Q. I didn't ask you that. That isn't responsive to my question. I asked you whether prior to that you had ever heard of them. A. I had not.

Q. What price to they make and sell? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. Do they make and sell the type of dress that you handled in your Departments 338 or 358? A. I wouldn't like to make a comparison there.

Q. I didn't ask you to make a comparison.

Examiner Bennett: It is perfectly all right. Answer it.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question to him.

Q. (The question was read.) A. They do have.

Q. Do you find that they are ready, willing and able to sell you all the dresses that you are willing to give them on order?

4940

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, the form of the question, Mr. Examiner, assuming that he wasn't willing to give any on order, which is not the fact.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you find that Ladycraft Dresses, Inc., is at all times willing to sell and deliver to you such dresses as you desire to purchase?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to on the same grounds. There is nothing to show that he desires to purchase them.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

4941

Mr. Weisman: Exception. May I ask the Examiner with all due humility on what basis this objection is sustained?

Examiner Bennett: I think it is an indirect way of doing what has been ruled that you shall not do on a direct question.

Mr. Weisman: I respectfully——

Examiner Bennett: I think it is a matter that has been contended over as to whether they were actually used as a source of supply.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, has Ladycraft Dresses, Inc., at any time refused to sell you such dresses as you desired to purchase?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the question, "that you desired to purchase," I object to the language which brings into this whole matter the question that was ruled on.

Examiner Bennett: I assume they were available supplies. They are not a Guild house; are they?

Mr. Weisman: No. I am trying to show that there was plenty of available sources.

4943

Examiner Bennett: Well, you are showing it.

Mr. Weisman: All right. I will have an exception and go to the next.

Examiner Bennett: Showing it with a plethora of wealth.

Mr. Weisman: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: That is quite amazing.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Lanbry Company, 1400 Broadway? A. What is the name, please?

Q. L-a-n-b-r-y? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of Le Claire Costumes, Inc., at 525 Seventh Avenue? A. No, sir.

4944

Q. Did you ever hear of Herbert Lightsone? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of B. & J. Lipman, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you hear of them? A. That is a new house. I don't know when they started. It was after January 1st.

Q. What priced merchandise do they make? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. Do they make the type of merchandise that you generally use in your Departments 338 and 358?

Examiner Bennett: Do they? If you know.

A. I have only purchased a few dresses from them.

Examiner Bennett: You don't have to tell about your purchases.

Mr. Weisman: Ha, ha, ha, ha.

Examiner Bennett: You were asked a question as to the kind of merchandise.

By Mr. Weisman.

4946

Q. For what department did you purchase those dresses? A. 358.

Q. Now, if you had been willing to purchase more, would they have been—were they willing to sell them to you?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Freeman: Now——

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you purchased these dresses, did you purchase them yourself? A. I did.

Q. Did you visit their showroom? A. Yes, sir. 4947

Q. Did you see their stock? A. Not their stock, no.

Q. Did you see their line? A. That is right.

Q. How many dresses were there in their line? A. I have no idea.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. I was only interested in one group of their dresses.

Q. Did they try to interest you in the other groups? A. They knew I didn't purchase the other groups.

Q. No. I am not asking you that. I am asking you did they seek to interest you in the other groups? A. No, sir.

Q. Did they at any time seek to have you place an order larger than you actually did place?

Mr. Taylor: Ha, ha, ha.

A. I think they all tried to do that.

Mr. Taylor: Ha, ha.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Everybody that you do business with tries to sell you
4949 as much as they possibly can and you seek to take only that which you need; is that it? A. That is correct.

Q. So that when you go to these various houses, your trouble has been, as with most buyers, in keeping down the enthusiasm of the seller to ship you more merchandise than you really need; is that so? A. That is correct.

Q. With Lucile Frocks, have you ever heard of Lucile Frocks? A. The address, please?

Q. 491 Seventh Avenue. A. I have.

Q. When did you hear of them? A. My best recollection is somewhere in March, 1936.

Q. How did you come to hear of them?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Objected to?

4950 Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: I submit it is always competent to show how the buyer—how he found out about these people.

Examiner Bennett: I don't see what it amounts to. I don't see that it is of any help. He did find out. What does it matter how he did it?

Mr. Weisman: Well, all right. I respectfully except.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What type of merchandise do they make? A. They make different types of merchandise.

Q. Well, tell us about the different types. A. What ever is fashionable at the time they make them.

Q. Well, aren't all of these dress houses engaged in making fashionable merchandise? A. Along certain types. A house usually sticks along a certain type.

Q. What do you mean when you said Lucile makes different types? A. Well, he makes costume suits or wool dresses or silk dresses, anything that is in fashion at that time.

Q. Does he make the type of dresses that are generally 4952 handled in Departments 338 and 358? A. Yes.

Q. Have you found that his merchandise is in anywise inferior to such merchandise as you could purchase from members of the Guild at the same price?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you since May 1, 1936, placed orders for merchandise with Lucile Frocks?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.
Mr. Weisman: Exception. 4953

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you received merchandise from Lucile Frocks?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception,

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you at all times found that Lucile Frocks were ready and willing to sell you such merchandise as you indicated you desired to purchase from them?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Now, do you know Mahler & Michaels, Inc., 1400 Broadway? A. No, sir.

4955 Q. Do you know Mattie Gross-Lucille? A. I do.

Q. 1375 Seventh Avenue—I mean, Broadway? A. That is right.

Q. It is a rather well-known house; are they not? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Don't you know who Mattie Gross is? A. I never met him, no.

Q. She happens to be a woman. Did you ever hear that she was a very well-known designer? Don't you know that in your business? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever know that the Lucille of that firm was the Lucille Le Roy, a well-known designer? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear that that was one of the large volume houses? A. No, sir.

4956 Q. When did you hear of them? A. In March, I believe. It was 1936.

Q. Prior to March, 1936, do you know whether or not they sold any merchandise to your store?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: What, Judge?

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I had assumed that the purpose of those objections was with regard to people after February that did business with them.

Mr. Haycraft: You can get that information by a process of elimination. That is why I am objecting to it.

Examiner Bennett: I am not going to let things be done indirectly which are not permitted directly. While you have a great deal of ingenuity in doing that, I am afraid that you won't succeed; that is, unless the attorney goes to sleep.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you find that Mattie-Gross-Lucille Le Roy, Inc., made such type of merchandise as was generally handled in Departments 338 and 358? A. Yes. 4958

Q. Did you find that they were at all times ready to sell you such merchandise as you desired to buy from them for those departments?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you in fact since February 1, 1936, purchase and acquire for Departments 338 and 358 such of the merchandise of Mattie Gross-Lucille Le Roy, Inc., that you desired to purchase?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. 4959
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you ever heard of Miriam Modes, Inc.? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever heard of Mirkin Friedman-Bucholz, Inc., 1406 Broadway? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are they engaged in making the same—such types of merchandise as you generally use in Departments 338 and 358? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first hear of them? A. January, 1936.

Q. Now, going back to Mattie Gross-Lucille Le Roy, Inc., for a moment. Did you find that the merchandise that you bought from them was in any respects, or the merchandise offered for sale by them, were in any respect inferior to that offered by members of the Fashion Originators Guild at the same price?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

4961 Mr. Weisman: Exception.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: Now, at the suggestion of Mr. Freeman, and the Examiner, I wish to make this statement: That at this time I am desisting from further examination along that line, that if I were to continue I could continue with approximately—I want to get it right. May I have a moment's time? We have analyzed it, Judge.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: That at $10.75 there are approximately 2,200 such sources of supply which I would have continued to read from.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

4962 Mr. Haycraft: $10.75?

Mr. Weisman: No, at the $6.75 and up. I asked him that.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Yesterday I asked you under what circumstances the A.M.C. buys for your store and you said they buy for you at such times as you are not able to be in the market and you are in a hurry. You remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are those the only circumstances known to you under which the A.M.C. does the purchasing for you? A. There is one other operation that they purchase for us.

Q. What is that other operation?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Weisman: I submit it is vital.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to let him answer, if he knows.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you shall answer, if you know. A. That is the Dean-Taylor operation.

4964

Q. We don't know what that means. Rather, the Court doesn't. Tell us about it. A. The A.M.C. buyers in New York select certain styles that are confined to A.M.C. stores. That is the only thing they purchase for us. We receive one or two styles a month from them.

Q. I see. Now, is that all? A. That is all.

Q. And these styles, no other store can purchase them that isn't a member of the A.M.C.? They are only confined to your store; is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: If he knows. If you don't know, please don't answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

4965

Q. Do you know that?

Examiner Bennett: Unless you know. Unless you know don't give us that information.

The Witness: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: Do you know? If you don't know, don't try to tell about it.

A. I am not positive.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, aside from being positive, what is your general knowledge?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know the understanding upon which the A.M.C. purchases these garments from the manufacturer? A. No, I don't.

Q. Don't you know that they purchase them on the 4967 agreement that no other retailer in the town or city where the A.M.C. store is located may have that particular style, don't you know that? A. No, sir.

Q. That is news to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you mean when you said that they purchased this one or two styles a month which is confined to an A.M.C. store, if you didn't mean just that? What do you mean by that answer? A. We have found cases where other stores in the same town did have the dress.

Q. The original or copies? A. The original.

Q. Did you feel that that was contrary to the arrangement that had been made when you bought it? A. I never bought it.

Q. When it was bought by your store.

4968 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I don't think this man is an executive. I think this man is not such an executive as is qualified to answer that question. I sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you know Miss Dean? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Who is Miss Dean? A. She is one of the A.M.C. representatives in New York.

Q. Is she the representative of the A.M.C. that makes up a list of what each of your stores will take each week and goes out and buys this merchandise in one group? A. Miss Dean doesn't handle my division.

Q. No. She handles the $3.75——

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Q. (Continuing) —doesn't she? 4970

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Q. (Continuing) And $4.75.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: This witness doesn't seem to know anything about that. Let's not waste any time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Weren't you the buyer in this department before February 1, 1936? A. That is right.

Q. And as such buyer didn't you learn that this—didn't you learn what Miss Dean did?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. 4971

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will overrule the objection to that, if he knows.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you shall answer. A. Miss Dean never bought anything for Strawbridge & Clothier.

Q. Did she ever suggest to you that you pool your purchases with other members of the A.M.C.?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to what she may have suggested.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, did you as a result of a suggestion or discussion with Miss Dean ever pool your purchases with any of the other seventeen or eighteen members of the A.M.C.? A. We never pooled our purchases, no.

Q. What did you do, and what did you mean when you emphasized the word "pool"? Did you buy together with them? A. No, sir. Miss Dean has suggested certain things to us and I have gone over at different times and 4973 bought them by myself, but never with any other store.

Q. You stated a moment ago that sometimes you found dresses in town which were the same as those that you had bought through this well-known Dean operation of the A.M.C. Do you remember saying that to me a minute ago? A. Not the Dean operation.

Q. What did you call it? What did you call that operation?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception. Well, may I not ask him what he ~~said to me two~~ moments ago, Judge?

Mr. Haycraft: It has no probative value.

Examiner Bennett: You may ask him anything
4974 you want. I am not curtailing you.

Mr. Weisman: There is no use of asking if your Honor says he can't answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You were the buyer for Department 491 prior to February 1, 1936, is that not so? A. That is correct.

Q. And you were the buyer there from July, 1933? A. That is correct.

Q. And your immediate superior is Mr. Taylor, the gentleman who has been present throughout your discussion, throughout your testimony? A. Up until January, up until the end of January, 19——

Q. While you were there as buyer for Department 491, Mr. Taylor was your superior? A. That is correct.

Q. When you were buying merchandise for this department, you visited the New York market from week to week? A. That is right.

Q. And you visited the market for the purpose of acquiring new and additional merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For use in that department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were in charge of that department did 4976 you get all the merchandise that the department required? A. I did.

Q. Did you have any idea whatsoever of getting for Strawbridge & Clothier what Strawbridge & Clothier felt through you they ought to have? A. No, sir.

Q. At no time? A. No, sir.

Q. You are absolutely sure of that? A. That is right.

Q. Didn't have any limitations upon your ability to get merchandise? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you stated that you first learned of the Guild in 1935? That fall; isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. Hadn't you long before that pursuant to Mr. Taylor's instructions used the Guild stamp on all of your orders? A. That——

Q. No. Hadn't you? A. I don't know. 4977

Q. Didn't you place orders? A. Certainly.

Q. Well, didn't you on these orders that you placed put the Guild stamp? A. Our orders were printed with that stamp on.

Q. I don't ask whether or not they were printed, or whether it was placed by you. It had that stamp on it; didn't it? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you mean that you went out and placed orders and you didn't know what was the order? A. I didn't know what all of that wording was on the back of the order. Those copies were all printed up.

Q. Didn't you ever see it? A. I certainly have seen it.

Q. You mean that as buyer for this department for two and a half years you never knew that your orders contained a clause that the seller warranted the merchandise as being original and not copies of the Guild merchandise? A. Of course I knew it, but I don't know when——

Q. Now, wait a minute. That is why I asked you. Didn't you know, furthermore, that during all of these 4979 two and a half to three years you reserved the right to return any merchandise that was sent to you and which turned out to be copies? A. I don't know when we started to use that warranty stamp.

Q. Well, let me ask if the stamp will refresh your recollection. A. I don't know the stamp—I don't know when we started to use it.

Q. A moment ago you said you didn't know. You said it was printed on there, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, we have it that you know the stamp. A. That is right.

Q. Well, don't you know as buyer of that department that in July, 1933, your store undertook to place that stamp on all of the orders? A. I don't know that, no.

Q. As a matter of fact, when you went out to purchase
4980 garments in the open market for Department 491, didn't you endeavor to purchase garments that were not copies of original Guild merchandise? A. I don't know whether they were copies of original Guild merchandise.

Q. No, no. I didn't ask you whether you knew. I asked you whether or not you endeavored to refrain from purchasing Guild copies of Guild merchandise? A. As much as I could, yes.

Q. When did you first start to refrain from purchasing as much as you could copies of Guild merchandise? A. When the Guild shoppers first started to make me return those copies.

Q. Do you mean to say that prior to the time that Guild shopper called your attention to the fact that you had copies you didn't care whether you had them or not, and you didn't care whether you bought them or not? A. I didn't know whether they were copies or not at the time I bought them.

Q. No, no. I didn't ask you whether you knew they were copies. That isn't important.

Examiner Bennett: He says he didn't know. 4982
How could he——

Mr. Weisman: The man might not know factually whether a thing is a copy, Judge, but I am seeking to ascertain whether he sought to refrain from buying copies.

Examiner Bennett: Well, the operation of his mind——

Mr. Weisman: It isn't the operation of his mind; it is what he did.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Weren't you mistaken yesterday when you said that the first time you heard of the Guild was in the fall of 1935? Didn't you, as a matter of fact, learn through your 4983 superiors that your store was co-operating with the Guild as early as July, 1933? A. I don't recall knowing about the Guild in 1933.

Q. You were buyer for that department in 1933? A. That is right.

Q. Didn't anybody in that store in 1933 tell you that the store had adopted its policy as being one which they had undertaken to refrain from knowingly dealing in copies of Guild merchandise? A. They might have, but I don't remember.

Q. Well, if they told it to you, wasn't it part of your duties to see that that covenant or agreement or declaration was carried out? A. Yes, I suppose it was.

Q. If they told it to you, and it was your duty to carry it out, don't you remember whether or not you did carry out your store's promise which it was your duty to fulfill? A. I can't recall ever being told.

Q. What? A. I can't recall ever being told in 1933.

Q. If you can't recall ever being told, then would you state that in 1933 you went out into the market and pur-
4985 chased goods for Department 401 without any regard to whether or not you were buying copies of Guild merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to on the ground that it was already gone over.

Mr. Weisman: It hasn't been gone over.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I said 401. I mean 491. Answer as to 491, please. A. I had no way of telling whether dresses were copies or not. I bought a very cheap dress and manufacturers weren't going to tell me that they were copies. I simply went in and bought them.

4986 Q. I am trying to find out from you whether at any time in 1933 you told manufacturers that you didn't want to buy copies of Guild merchandise? A. I can't recall telling manufacturers that.

Q. Do you recall that you didn't tell them that and that you bought it without regard to whether or not it was a copy? A. I didn't know it was a copy.

Q. Did you seek to inform yourself as to whether or not it was a copy? A. There is no way that I could inform myself. I didn't—I don't know anything about the better dresses—I didn't know anything about better dresses at that time.

Q. Now, coming to 1934, have you any recollection as to whether or not during the year 1934 there was affixed as part of the orders you had printed on it the stamp? In other words, didn't you have in words or substance that the seller warranted that the goods were not copies of Guild merchandise and that you reserved the right to return the merchandise if it turned out to be copies of Guild merchandise? Have you any recollection of using that stamp during the year 19— A. No, I haven't.

Q. 1933? That warranty— A. No, I haven't. 4988

Q. In other words, as buyer of Department 421, it is your best recollection that Strawbridge & Clothier did not place those words upon their orders during the year 1934? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, as buyer, wasn't it your duty to know? A. I don't think so.

Q. Let's come down to 1935. Do you remember whether or not they were on your orders in 1935? A. I believe they were.

Q. When did you think in 1935 you first commenced to use that stamp on your orders? A. I don't know, Mr. Weisman, when we first used them.

Q. Was it early? A. I can't remember when we first started to use it. I knew that we were using it, but I couldn't tell you the date. 4989

Q. How long were you using it? A. I have no idea.

Q. When you go out in the market you take orders with you, don't you, your order blanks? A. That is right.

Q. And on these order blanks you place your orders? A. That is right.

Q. And on these order blanks are the terms of the purchase and the amount of the purchase, isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. Now, on the orders that you placed for this department, during all of this period, do you remember when was the first time the words——

Mr. Weisman: I am now reading from Respondents' Exhibit No. 20, which comes from Strawbridge & Clothier.

Q. —"This order is placed upon the seller's warranty that the above garments are not copies of styles originated by members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. The purchaser reserves the right to return any merchandise which is not as warranted"? A. I don't remem-4991 ber.

Q. You remember it was printed on the order? You stated it was not stamped. A. It was printed. It was printed first and stamped later.

Q. In the beginning you had it stamped? A. Stamped and later on we had to——

Q. Well, now, when was it stamped?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him finish his answer. Later on it was what?

Mr. Weisman: It was printed. He said that.

Mr. Haycraft: Let him say so.

Mr. Weisman: We all heard it except you.

Mr. Haycraft: Did the reporter get it?

The Reporter (reading): "A. Stamped and later
4992 on we had to——"

Mr. Weisman: Had it printed. All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Take a look at this and see if this refreshes your recollection (showing the witness Respondents' Exhibit 20).

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner. He knows what the stamp is and has said so, although he can't recall when it was first put on there. It is not going to help him refresh his recollection by looking at it.

Mr. Weisman: How do you know it is not going to refresh his recollection? Are you going to read his mind like your witnesses have been trying to do?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you looked at that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, looking at that, has that refreshed your recollection as to when you used the stamp and when it was printed on the order? A. It has not. 4994

Examiner Bennett: We will have a recess of ten minutes.

(A short recess was taken.)

Mr. Weisman: Have you the last question?

(The last question and answer was read.)

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. This Department 491, what type of department was that? A. We called that the Economy Shop.

Q. Was that a ladies' ready-to-wear department? A. Strictly.

Q. What? A. Strictly a ladies' ready-to-wear department.

Q. Now, I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit 362 and ask you to read the last sentence in the exhibit reading "Furthermore, we propose to annex to all of our orders for ladies' ready-to-wear merchandise the following clause," and ask you whether or not that letter, its date and language I have read you refreshed your recollection as to when you commenced to use that warranty stamp? 4995

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner. The letter was not written by the witness.

Mr. Weisman: I didn't say it was written by him.

Examiner Bennett: Let's see whether it refreshes his recollection. Does it?

The Witness: It does not. I never saw this letter before.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you any idea of the total amount of merchandise that you purchased a year in dollar volume for De-4997 partment 491 during the years that you were there?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What was the total amount of stock carried in Department 358, the average amount of stock during the year 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. That is not what the witness said. He said at the time he took over, which was February 1, 1936.

Mr. Weisman: Did your Honor rule?

4998 Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What was the total amount in that department in February, 1936? A. What time?

Q. February 1, 1936. A. I do not recall.

Q. What is your best recollection of it? A. I have no recollection.

Q. Do you think it was $100,000? A. I will not guess.

Q. I do not want you to guess. You are in charge of this department; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is your duty to purchase merchandise which shall be sold within a reasonable time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is that reasonable time? A. We have no set reasonable time.

Q. What is your average stock? A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. You mean as buyer of this department you have no limitation with regard to the amount of stock on hand that you usually carry? A. I do not memorize those figures.

5000

Q. What? A. I do not memorize those figures.

Q. I did not ask you whether you memorized them or not. A. No?

Q. I asked you what is your average stock.

Mr. Haycraft: He has already said that he did not know the figures.

Mr. Weisman: If your Honor please, I ask that counsel be stopped from making these constant interjections and coaching up his witness. This man does not need any help from counsel.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not making any interjections. I am going to make an objection when I feel it is necessary.

Mr. Weisman: If you would make an objection there would be no difficulty. You are not objecting. You are interjecting. If counsel does not know the difference, then I ask that he be informed.

5001

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with your examination.

Mr. Haycraft: I have an objection pending.

Examiner Bennett: I overrule the objection.

A. I have no opinion.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has said he had no recollection.

Mr. Freeman: I must object to that, your Honor.

Mr. Weisman: Here is Mr. Freeman again.

Examiner Bennett: The witness has said he had no recollection.

Mr. Weisman: If your Honor please, he may not have any recollection, but he may have an opinion. There is a difference between the two.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

By Mr. Weisman.

5003 Q. As buyer of this department, what are your duties? A. To purchase salable merchandise.

Q. To what degree can you buy all salable merchandise that is offered to you in the New York market or in any other market? A. If I can sell it.

Q. Well, have you any standard to guide yourself as to what you can sell? A. It depends upon the season.

Q. Well, now, let us see. In the spring season of 1936 how did you feel that you could have sold? A. There are so many things to take into consideration that I must take into consideration before I can answer that question.

Q. The spring season is past, is it? A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes, it is.

Q. You went in the market to buy merchandise, did you? A. That is right.

5004 Q. No doubt about that? A. No.

Q. Before you went out, did you have a budget? A. Yes.

Q. You did? A. Yes.

Q. From whom did you get this budget? A. From my superior.

Q. How coy you are. A. What is that?

Q. I say you are very coy. A. Possibly.

Q. No doubt of it. We will not quarrel on that. You say you got it from your superior? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know from what that budget was made up? A. Yes, I do.

Q. You do know that? A. Yes.

Q. What was that budget made up from? A. Our expected sales.

Q. And from that budget of expected sales you would go out into the market and purchase such amounts of merchandise as you believed would satisfy those expected sales; is that so? A. That is correct.

Q. What relation has the amount of your sales to the amount of your budget, the purchases? A. I do not quite understand that question.

Q. In other words, if you expect to sell about $1,000, or, 5006 let us say $10,000, to get it in round figures of dollars of merchandise in the spring season at retail, how much merchandise will you buy to satisfy that demand? A. The equivalent of the amount you mentioned at cost.

Q. I see. A. Yes.

Q. In other words, you only carry in your department sufficient merchandise to meet the amount of sales? A. Yes.

Q. You have no overage? A. No.

Q. No overage? A. No.

Q. In the spring season of 1935— A. What?

Q. I withdraw that. A. I beg your pardon?

Q. I have not asked you anything yet? A. Oh, no.

Q. In the spring season of 1935 what months constituted the spring season in 1936—we will take 1936 first? A. 5007
The spring season in 1936 constituted the months of March, April and May.

Q. And May? A. Yes.

Q. When did you go out to place your orders for March, April and May? A. We buy from week to week.

Q. Week to week? A. Yes.

Q. You mean you do not buy in February for March, April and May? A. The last week in February we bought for the first week in May.

Q. In May? A. Yes.

Q. What amount of merchandise did you buy for your spring season? A. I cannot recall.

Q. Now, this is very extraordinary. If you cannot recall—what do you mean you cannot recall? A. I cannot recall the exact figures.

Q. I am not asking you if you recall the exact figures. A. No?

Q. No. I want to get from you an approximation? A. An approximation?

Q. Yes. Your best recollection as buyer in charge of this department. A. I have no recollection of how much 5009 I bought.

Q. Have you any idea? A. I have not.

Q. No idea? A. No.

Q. When you say you have no idea you mean by that that you do not know whether in that department you bought $100,000 worth of merchandise or $10,000 worth of merchandise for the spring season? A. I do not know how much I bought.

Q. You do not know whether it is one or the other? A. That is right.

Q. Do you not know how many people you bought your merchandise from? A. I do not.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. Have you no idea? A. None.

Q. None at all? A. None.

5010 Q. Do you know whether or not you bought it from 100 manufacturers or 200 manufacturers? A. I would not be sure.

Q. Do you know whether or not—do you know what was your average purchase price, I will ask you that? A. You will ask me what?

Q. What was your average purchase price? A. I do not know.

Q. Would you know whether your average purchase price from the manufacturer was $100 or $1,000? A. I would not know.

Q. You do not know that, either? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether or not you sold more merchandise in Department 338 than you did in Department 358? A. No. I do not know.

Q. Do you know whether or not you sold more merchandise in Department 338 in the first six months of this year than you sold in Department 491 during the same six months? A. No, I would not know.

Q. Have you any idea? A. No, sir.

Q. Is the same thing true with regard to Department 358? A. That is right. 5012

Q. You were in charge of this Department No. 491 for two and one-half years? A. I was.

Q. You were? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding that, do you state that you have no idea of the volume of business done in that department annually during the period that you were in charge of it? A. I do not know the exact amount of business.

Q. I do not want to know the exact amount of business. A. No?

Q. I want to know the approximate amount, an approximation. A. I do not know the approximate amount.

Q. You have no idea? A. No.

Q. No idea at all? A. No, indeed.

Q. Do you know whether or not that department did 5013
$250,000 annually, or $75,000 annually? A. I do not remember. I do not memorize those figures.

Q. I did not ask you whether you memorized those figures, did I? A. No.

Q. I asked you whether you knew whether or not that department did $250,000 annually or $75,000 annually, did I not? A. Yes.

Q. What is the answer to that? A. I do not know. I do not know at all.

Q. In other words, as far as you are concerned, either one or the other might equally be true; is that so? Can you not answer that? A. I do not understand. Will you repeat the question?

Q. I asked you whether, in so far as your knowledge is concerned, it could be either one or the other?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

5015 Examiner Bennett: I will let you answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you may answer. A. That is right.

Q. That is right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have been in charge of these departments from February 1, 1936; is that not so? A. That is correct. That is, 338 and 358?

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. Did you seek to purchase merchandise from the Renclair Dress? A. I did not seek. I was purchasing dresses from them.

Q. Did you continue to purchase them? A. No, sir. The numbers that I had from Renclair had slowed up. I did not bother to go back for any more.

5016 Q. Is that the only reason? A. That is the only reason.

Q. Did you not testify yesterday on your direct examination that the reason you did not go there was that they were members of the Guild? A. I did not.

Q. Well, let me read this testimony to you: "Q. Now, among the sources of supply were any manufacturers members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America during the time that you were buying for that department; that is, those that you contacted?" And was not your answer

"A. Yes, sir. One manufacturer. Q. Which one was that? A. Renclair Dress. Q. How do you spell that? A. Renclair, R-e-n-c-l-a-i-r." Did you—do you deny that you so testified yesterday? A. I do not.

Q. Then, which is true and correct, your testimony yesterday or your testimony here to-day?

Mr. Haycraft: There is no contradiction there at all.

Examiner Bennett: Where is the contradiction there?

Mr. Weisman: I should think the witness should be permitted to answer that.

5018

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did not you say a moment ago to me that the Renclair Dress was not a member of the Guild? A. I do not so remember.

Q. You do not? A. I did not say that.

Q. Let us get this straight on the record now because I do not want any complaint about it. Did you not say to me a moment ago that the Renclair Dress was not a member of the Guild? A. Was not a member?

Q. Yes. A. I did not make any such statement to you.

Examiner Bennett: The record will show that. Go to something else. Let us not delay this thing too long.

5019

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you state that Renclair is a member of the Fashion Originators Guild or not now? A. They are not now.

Q. You never testified to that one way or the other? A. They are not now.

Q. Did you testify that they were at any time a member of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I did.

Q. Do you so testify now? A. I do.

Q. When do you state that they were a member of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I cannot give you the exact date. It was back in 1935 some time when the Guild took in the $4.75. Renclair was one of the manufacturers that they accepted.

Q. That was what you had in mind when you testified yesterday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is? A. Yes.

Q. You knew your testimony was elicited by you for the purpose of showing that you were dealing with a Guild house? A. Yes, sir.

5021 Mr. Haycraft: That is not right. He does not know that. It is not so.

Mr. Weisman: It is very extraordinary that he says it is. The counsel for the Commission seems to be contradicting his own witness slightly.

Mr. Weisman: If that was not the purpose for it, then I move to strike it out.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. As a matter of fact, who told you that Renclair was ever a member of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. If I am not mistaken I saw it published in 5022 Women's Wear Daily.

Q. That is the only knowledge that you had? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you see that published? A. Some time in 1935.

Q. How many times did you see it published? A. Once.

Q. Once? A. Once.

Q. That they were a source of supply of large size? A. What is that?

Q. Were they a large source of supply? A. Not to me.

Q. Were they a rather unimportant source of supply to you? A. That is right.

Q. Rather unimportant? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that the same important—that this small unimportant source of supply—that this concern, we will get it now, was a small unimportant source of supply, you testified that some time in 1935 you recall that they appeared in Women's Wear as being a member of the Fashion Originators Guild of America; is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. True? A. True.

Q. And notwithstanding that you said that you cannot and do not have any recollection of the amount of business done with your department directly under your supervision? A. That is right. 5024

Q. No idea at all? A. Not the slightest.

Q. Have you attempted to do business with Renclair since February 1, 1936? A. I am not buying that priced merchandise now. I do not have any reason to go in there.

Q. Do you know, as a matter of fact, that Renclair Dress was never a member of the Guild? A. No. I do not know that.

Q. Suppose I advised you now solemnly and honestly upon my own direct personal knowledge, will you then change your testimony on page 2658 of the record?

5025

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Are you a regular reader of the Women's Wear magazine? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are interested in that department of the paper known as the dress section?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

A. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. In your reading of the dress section do you see from time to time advertisements there in which various manufacturers advertise their products? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

5027 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you so read that paper and see it around February 1, 1936?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question as too indefinite. What did he see?

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection if you are going back into the matter of sources of supply—

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How long did you know Miss Joyce? A. From some time in 1935, when she first came in there.

Q. When did you first meet her? A. In my department.

5028 Q. Under what circumstances? A. Policing the department for copies.

Q. Did she come up to you and introduce herself to you? A. I asked her who she was the first time.

Q. What did she say? A. She said she represented the F.O.G.A.

Q. Meaning the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I do not know; I suppose so.

Q. Did she show you any credentials? A. Simply a list of sketches that she had with her.

Q. Did she identify herself in any way? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ask her for any identification? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you mean to say that as the head of this department you would let a woman come in on her own statement that she represented somebody, and you would let her go through your department?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question. There is no contention that Miss Joyce did not do it openly. That is generally conceded.

Mr. Weisman: I think, your Honor, that I am entitled to show the manner in which she came in there and conducted herself. Certainly, she was a contact there that should be developed. 5030

Examiner Bennett: What is the disagreement here? What are you trying to prove?

Mr. Weisman: I am trying to prove that Miss Joyce came into this department openly, notoriously, and without any effort at concealment at all, and that we sent letters to them advising them of her appearance there, and that the whole thing was thoroughly understood by all concerned.

Examiner Bennett: I thought that that had been conceded as to all of that.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly it is all conceded.

Examiner Bennett: That she did not come in there surreptitiously, and so forth.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. He did not say on direct examination that she came in there surreptitiously. 5031

Mr. Weisman: Very well. I will not ask the witness any questions about that if that is conceded by counsel for the Commission.

Mr. Haycraft: Of course it is.

Examiner Bennett: I thought that was perfectly clear. We are just taking up a lot of unnecessary time about that.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. There is just one other question on that and then I will be through. A. Yes.

Q. You stated, I believe, that when Miss Joyce came in that pursuant to her request you would, from time to time, return certain merchandise; is that so? A. That is correct.

Q. That is correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you so return it; you recall that, upon her statement that it was a copy? A. We did not go into it——

Q. What do you mean, that you required proof that it was a copy? A. Well, let me explain that.

Q. Please do so. A. We did not go into that at first.
5033 We just looked at the sketches of the dress that she had, and if she said it was a copy then we would return it, at first.

Q. What did you do later? A. Then, I asked my superior and he said——

Q. What was that? A. Towards the latter end of the year every time Miss Joyce came in and said "I have a copy," I would refer her to my superior.

Q. Do not be so coy. Who was your superior? A. Mr. Charles Taylor.

Q. Mr. Charles Taylor? A. Yes.

Q. He is sitting here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And actively helping Mr. Haycraft and Mr. Freeman along when they need a boost? A. Well, I do not know 5034 what he is doing.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Just go along with the examination.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. What did he do? A. I do not know what was done. My hands were through with the thing when I turned her over to Mr. Taylor; I had nothing further to do with the matter.

Q. When did that procedure commence that you have referred to, of referring her to Mr. Taylor? A. In the latter part of 1935.

Q. So that in the latter part of 1935, and up to the time of the ceasing of your relations with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, as a result of any request that Miss Joyce would make on you, you say that you would merely refer her to Mr. Taylor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then she and Mr. Taylor would take such action as might be decided between the two of them; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you testified yesterday that at one time Miss Joyce came in and she asked you for the name of a manufacturer and you refused to give it to her; do you remember that? A. Yes, sir. 5036

Q. And you also testified that you referred her to your superior; do you remember that? A. If it is in the record, it is correct.

Q. Did you not or did you refer her to your superior? Let us get that first. A. I do not recall whether I referred her, or whether I took her there myself.

Q. Is your memory any better to-day than it was yesterday, or was your memory better yesterday than it is to-day? A. Just which is it?

Q. Was your memory any better yesterday than it is to-day? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you say yesterday that you referred her to your superior? A. I do not know whether I referred Miss Joyce, 5037 or whether I referred the incident to Mr. Taylor.

Q. And then—I withdraw that. Who is the superior to whom you either referred her or to whom you referred the incident? A. Mr. Taylor.

Q. Mr. Taylor. Now, you were asked yesterday whether or not your superior required you not to furnish her with the information that she requested; do you remember being asked that question yesterday? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, I will tell you that you were asked this question: "Q. Did they require you to furnish her with the information that she required?" To which you answered as follows: "A. They did not." Do you remember that now? A. No, sir—yes, sir.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is a correct statement of what happened? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did they tell you? A. They told me—Mr. Taylor told me to refer any controversy between Miss Joyce and myself to him.

Q. No, no, no, no. What did they say to you about 5039 your giving information that she requested? A. I told you Mr. Taylor called me in and told me that any controversy between Miss Joyce and myself to refer to him.

Q. You were asked this question: "Q. Did they, meaning your superior, require you to furnish her with the information that she requested?" To which your answer was: "A. They did not." What did they tell you to do with regard to the information that she requested? A. That they would give the information.

Q. That they would give the information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not they ever gave it? A. I do not know.

Q. Did they tell you that they would give it? A. That is right.

Q. They did tell you that they would give it to her? A.
5040 That is right.

Q. This incident took place when? A. As I recall, in December or January, I am not sure of the month.

Q. When, in December, would you say? A. I do not know.

Q. When, in January? A. I do not know that, either.

Q. I see. A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember at any other time when Miss Joyce came in to see you she asked you to sign certain slips with regard to copies? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I object as not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: This is entirely proper, Judge.

Mr. Haycraft: It is not.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Weisman: I except.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the answer.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Weisman: I except. May it please your Honor, the statement has been made by counsel for the Commission that because this witness—there is not a word of testimony to support it in the record other than the statement of counsel, that because 5042 this witness refused to furnish the name of a manufacturer they red carded them, we red carded. Now, I want to show that entire transaction. He has also further offered in evidence Exhibit No. 393, a letter which refers to this refusal to sign these slips, and I submit that it is perfectly proper and competent for me to show from this witness just exactly what took place. I cannot see where it would not be absolutely vital to the interests of the respondents to do that. It seems to me that to shut us out from that would be a serious invasion of our substantive rights in this proceeding.

Examiner Bennett: I will settle it this way: I will strike that remark from the record wherever it appears in the record. 5043

Mr. Haycraft: What remark do you refer to?

Mr. Weisman: The Examiner remembers the remark that you made. He says it may be stricken from the record.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to know what the remark was.

Mr. Weisman: Well, you had better listen to what we are talking about.

Mr. Haycraft: I am.

Examiner Bennett: It will be stricken from the record in regard to that matter.

Mr. Haycraft: It does not make any difference anyway. It is all in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: It has been stricken. Proceed.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When was the first time that you found out that Guild merchants did not desire to sell to Strawbridge & Clothier? A. In the early part of February, 1936.

5045 Q. What was the circumstance? A. They refused to show me merchandise.

Q. Who? A. Little Dress Company and International Dress Company.

Q. Those were the two? A. Those were all I contacted.

Q. The only two? A. Yes.

Q. That was the first time that you knew that the Guild merchants preferred not to do business with Strawbridge & Clothier? A. That is right.

Q. Who was the buyer that succeeded you in Department 491? A. Mr. Alex Cohen.

Mr. Weisman: I just want it noted on the record that Mr. Taylor is conferring with Mr. Freeman and Mr. Freeman is conferring with Mr. Haycraft. As an observer this is certainly an unusual situation.

5046

The Witness: Just a moment, now. Just a moment, now. I want to change my answer. I understood you—I thought you said 338 or 358.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Has somebody been giving you a signal or something to let you know you made the wrong answer? A. Well—

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you want to make a different answer? A. Yes, sir. Mr. Yanowitz.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. This is the most extraordinary situation. Has somebody succeeded you as buyer in Department 338 and Department 351 or 358? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you mean when you said that you understood me to refer to 338 or 358? A. I thought you were talking about 491.

Q. This is peculiar, indeed. I was. A. I mean, about 338 or 358 when I said—— 5048

Q. Who succeeded you in those departments, then? A. No one has succeeded me there.

Q. What did you mean when you answered me Mr. Alexander Cohen? A. I thought you said who was the buyer.

Q. Now, when you came in charge of this department you came on February 1. I take it? A. Around there; yes, sir.

Q. What do you mean by "around there"? A. I mean it might have been February 2. It may not have been that exact day.

Q. February 1, 2, 3, let us say? A. That is right.

Q. That is right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what was your first duty? A. To reorder styles that were selling well in the department. 5049

Q. Did you take stock? A. I did.

Q. How much stock did you find you had on hand? A. I do not recall.

Q. Well, what is your best guess?

Examiner Bennett: We have been all over that again.

Mr. Weisman: At that time it did not appear that he took stock. Now, all of a sudden it appears that he took stock.

Examiner Bennett: It is just the same thing over and over and over again, and ending up just as you did at the beginning. Where could you expect to get with it?

Mr. Weisman: You can never tell, your Honor.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How long after yo came into the department did you take stock? A. I do not recall, it was very shortly after. If I saw a calendar I might know.

Q. Did you personally take the stock? A. I supervised the taking of stock.

5051 Q. Tell us what were the mechanics of the stock taking. A. At the time of taking stock, dividing the stock into price lines and counting each dress in that particular dress line.

Q. That is all? A. Then we took them also by size, color and type.

Q. And that is all? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the only time in February that you took stock? A. Oh, no. We take stock every week and we took stock every week in February.

Q. Did you do the same thing the next week? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So there can be no question about it, and so I will desist from further querying on this line. Will you tell 5052 us completely just what you did in taking stock?

Mr. Hayecraft: I object.

The Witness: I have just answered you that that is what I did.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Have you told us everything that you did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was nothing else? A. That is all.

Q. Prior to that time you had not been buyer for this department? A. That is correct.

Q. Right? A. Right.

Q. You were not acquainted with the people from whom that department bought? A. That is right.

Q. No doubt about that? A. No.

Q. Well, if that is so what led you to believe that 60 per cent. of the stock had been purchased from Guild members? A. I pulled the orders out of the file and went through the orders and you knew who the Guild manufacturers were.

Q. How did you know who the Guild manufacturers were if just a moment ago you stated you were not familiar with the people that that department had bought with— 5054 had done business with? A. I have a list of Guild manufacturers.

Q. What was the occasion of your having the list of Guild manufacturers at that time? A. I believe that all of your letterheads on the back have the Guild manufacturers' names on them.

Q. What made it necessary for you at the time that you took this stock, or—I withdraw that—to go through the separate operation of ascertaining how many of your items of merchandise on hand came from Guild houses? A. I—

Mr. Haycraft: I object. There is no foundation laid for that. He has not said that he did that—he did that as a part of this stock taking job.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. 5055

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you may answer. A. I tried to reorder those fast-selling numbers and was not able to, so I knew that we had been red carded and I wanted to find out how much I had in stock; I wanted to find out exactly how much stock I had that was from the Guild houses so I could throw out those odds and ends.

Q. You said a moment ago that you did not even know you had been red carded until you came to New York to the market, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. Let us be clear about it: You said a moment ago that you did not find out you were red carded until you came to the New York market; is that correct? A. That is true.

Q. Well, if you did not know that you were red carded what was the necessity of the going through this operation that you have just told us about? A. I had come back from New York.

Q. Then, was that done after you came back from New 5057 York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not before? A. No, sir.

Q. Since you knew when you came back from New York that you could not reorder from Guild merchants, then why did you say a moment ago that you went over these lines for the purpose of finding out from whom you could reorder? You knew when you came back from New York, you have testified, that Guild merchants would not take your reorders? A. That is right.

Q. Well, then, why did you say a moment ago in answer to my prior question that you went through this operation to ascertain what amount of reorders you could have for your fair-selling numbers? A. Because we knew we had to make mark-downs on those odds and ends that were in stock at that time. If we don't reorder them, we 5058 can't buy any more.

Q. Well, then, you went over this list to find out the odds and ends that you had in stock; is that it? A. Merchandise from Guild manufacturers.

Q. And you came to the conclusion that 60 per cent. of your merchandise consisted of odds and ends? A. Of Guild merchandise.

Q. Is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What percentage of odds and ends have you got now?

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. The witness didn't say that. You put that in his mouth.

Mr. Weisman: That isn't so.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: He said 60 per cent. was Guild merchandise.

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't say odds and ends.

Examiner Bennett: It was a question that was not fair to the witness.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I think I have made that sufficiently plain to your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I think you have. 5060

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. How is it that you can remember 60 per cent. so well and you cannot remember any other figure, volume, or anything? A. Because I made a record of that and I have looked at that record since.

Q. Let's see. You have made a record. Now, what price range did this 60 per cent. cover? A. The $10.75 price range.

Q. Just $10.75? A. That is all.

Q. Well, this department handles—these departments handle a lot of other merchandise, don't they? A. That is right.

Q. Oh, you meant when you testified to 60 per cent. that 5061 the 60 per cent. only applied to the $10.75? A. That is right.

Q. And you had no knowledge, or you didn't make any estimate as to the other price merchandise? A. No, sir. The Guild affected my $10.75 price line.

Q. Didn't they affect your price range above $10.75? A. I don't buy anything above $10.75.

Q. You don't buy $10.75 merchandise? A. And below.

Q. And below? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Did you estimate the amount of merchandise that you had on hand below $10.75, and the amount thereof that was Guild merchandise? A. That was a very negligible amount. We weren't interested in that so much.

Q. What relation did the amount of $10.75 merchandise in this department bear to the amount of merchandise below $10.75? A. I don't know.

Q. What is your best guess? A. I wouldn't guess.

Q. What is your best opinion? A. I wouldn't voice an opinion.

Q. Would you say that 90 per cent. of the merchandise
5063 in this department is below $10.75 cost? A. I would not.

Q. Would you say it was 70 per cent.? A. I wouldn't mention any figure.

Q. Do you mean to say that as—well, don't you realize that this figure of 60 per cent. is of no value to us unless we know what was the total amount of other merchandise in the department? A. I told you the 60 per cent. was of my $16.75 retail dresses were from Guild manufacturers.

Q. Yes. Well, now, what about the rest of the dresses? What volume of dresses in dollar volume did you have in that department as compared to your $16.75 dresses? A. I don't see that that has any connection with this.

Q. I don't care whether you see it or not. I want you to answer me. A. I don't know.

Q. Well, did you ever know? A. No, sir.

5064 Q. Did you know at the time you made the estimate? A. I probably did, yes.

Q. And you have forgotten it completely? A. That is right.

Q. Is there anything that will refresh your recollection? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you even the slightest recollection of the total amount of $10.75 dresses in that department at the time you made this estimate? A. I have not.

Q. Have you the slightest recollection of the amount in dollars of Guild merchandise in your departments at the time you made this estimate? A. No, sir.

Q. Of 60 per cent.? A. No, sir.

Q. So that the sole and only thing that you can bring to us here to-day is a statement that you have forgotten everything, but you remember 60 per cent.? A. That is right.

Q. Was it exactly 60 per cent.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Right to the fraction? A. That is right.

Q. You understand that percentages are run out into the hundreds? In other words, 60 per cent. is an exact 60 hundredths? A. That is right.

5066

Q. Your statement is that you have a recollection that exactly 60 hundredths of your merchandise, no more, no less, was Guild merchandise? A. 60 per cent. Right.

Q. Exactly right? A. Exactly right.

Q. When you came into this department you have testified that you were new to these types of purchases; isn't that so? A. It is in the record.

Q. Well, it is not only in the record, but it is a fact, isn't it? A. That is, yes.

Q. And you knew that the A.M.C. was experienced in the market in New York City, didn't you?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Why are you going into the A.M.C. again?

5067

Mr. Weisman: I just want to find out one question, whether or not he asked the A.M.C. to assist him in the location——

Examiner Bennett: I think he has already testified that he didn't. He has told you exactly to what extent they used the A.M.C.

Mr. Weisman: I am not speaking about group buying. I mean, individually.

Examiner Bennett: In every respect. He has shown already just the extent to that which it was used in his department.

Mr. Weisman: I don't think so, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, ask your question, if you have another. I think you are wasting time.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Did you at any time in February, 1936, request the A.M.C., that is, the Associated Merchandising Corporation, of which your store was a member, to aid or assist you in locating new sources of supply? A. I didn't ask 5069 them, no.

Q. Did you direct anyone for and on your behalf to ask them? A. No, sir.

Mr. Weisman: That is all.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will take a recess until 2 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION. 2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. Have you any more from Mr. March? The cross-examination is com-5070 pleted.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: May I, before this, just make a brief statement?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, go ahead. Go ahead.

Mr. Weisman: Prior to the adjournment, and in the course of the examination of Mr. March, a stipulation was entered into between counsel for the Commission and myself with regard to some 2,000 names in a list. I do not know whether or not I stated it as I correctly understood it. One of my associates has called to my attention the fact that my statement appeared to be to him incomplete. I would, therefore, like to restate it for the record and see whether or not Mr. Haycraft agrees with me.

Mr. Haycraft: I had no stipulation. I merely understand that you made a statement with the Examiner. I didn't have any part in that.

Mr. Weisman: Did your Honor so understand me?

Mr. Haycraft: It was between you and the Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I don't know that there was any stipulation, of course, in that form, but—

Mr. Weisman: Well——

5072

Examiner Bennett: I understood that you had agreed —off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: May I state, then, that as to in lieu of reading these 2,000 names that if the witness were asked, or queried with each of the 2,000, his answers with regard thereto would be substantially the same as with regard to the cross-section read off both as to his knowledge, or lack of knowledge of them, and the type of merchandise and so forth; and, in lieu of taking up the time to have the 2,000 names gone over, I understand that it was perfectly agreeable to Mr. Haycraft that such statement of mind be taken in lieu of inquiry from the witness.

Examiner Bennett: If that is correct, we will proceed on that basis.

Mr. Haycraft: I simply did not want to acquiesce in any statement as to the truth of the facts that were made in any statement. I do not want it now that I concede that there were 2,000 or 250 or any other number of manufacturers that would be available. I do not want that concession.

Mr. Weisman: I do want the concession that this witness, if he were queried as to the 2,000 names, would respond to them as he has responded to the cross section thereof.

Mr. Haycraft: I suppose that he would so testify to them, to those with which he was familiar, and to those with which he was not.

Mr. Weisman: And the result of that inquiry would be substantially the same as the cross-section revealed.

Mr. Haycraft: I assume so.

Examiner Bennett: With that understanding we will go ahead. I think that understanding is all right. It would save the time of going through all these 2,000 names.

Mr. Weisman: I want it understood clearly to that 5075 effect or else I would like to go through those names.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Haycraft: You recall, Mr. Examiner, at that time I turned the witness over to the respondent I reserved the right to present some testimony with respect to return orders which he was asked to get.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: He has done so and I am now calling them to his attention.

Examiner Bennett: I thought that was at the respondents' request.

Mr. Weisman: No, at the request of counsel for the Commission.

Examiner Bennett: At the request of counsel for the Commission.

5076 Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: I knew the question was raised.

Mr. Haycraft: It was, your Honor.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You will recall that at the last session on yesterday, I asked you about making a search of the records of the Strawbridge & Clothier Company to find out how many returns had been made at the request of the Guild. A. Yes.

Q. Have you made such a search?

Mr. Weisman: I object to the question as being entirely improper. The witness has testified that these returns were only made at one time at the request of the Guild, that subsequently and thereafter only—when returns were made he knew nothing about it, and that they were referred to Mr. Taylor. Mr. Taylor has testified that they would only make returns when there was proof that the garments were copies of Guild merchandise to their satisfaction. In addition to that, we have the stipulation in this case earlier, and I submit that this statement of returns made at the request of the Guild is entirely improper. If it is offered merely to show the number of returns made by them because of the fact that the garments referred to therein were copies of Guild merchandise I have no objection. I do object to Mr. Haycraft's characterization. 5078

Mr. Haycraft: I will change request to ordered.

Mr. Weisman: Now, you have made it worse. 5079

Mr. Haycraft: Now it is in accordance with the facts.

Examiner Bennett: I will make this suggestion, that these returns were made, if it is a fact; find out from the witness if he knows if it were because of the membership in the Guild. I understand that is it, and if that is the fact let it be shown. If made for any other purpose it is irrelevant.

Mr. Weisman: I submit—please don't take this on the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to that "They were co-operating with." And there is no question that these stores were not members of our organization. I think that would be conceded, they would be the first to deny it. If the other matter can be properly determined.

Mr. Haycraft: That wouldn't make any difference.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

5081 Mr. Haycraft: What is the question pending?

Examiner Bennett: There is no question pending.

Mr. Haycraft: I asked one a while ago.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to modify that to meet the objections?

Mr. Haycraft: No, sir. "By order of the Guild." I will modify it to that extent.

Examiner Bennett: By what?

Mr. Haycraft: By order of the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: I urge my objection. Of course, there is no such testimony in this case at all.

Examiner Bennett: The attorney will substantiate it if he can.

5082 Mr. Weisman: What?

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection and let him make a statement.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you done so? Have you done so? Have you made the search? A. Yes, I have, Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 424 to 449, inclusive. I will ask you whether or not you identify these exhibits as being prepared, as exhibits presented by you in response to my request? A. They are.

Q. Have you checked them in any way so as to testify as to their——

Mr. Weisman: Will you speak up, Mr. Haycraft?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. —where they came from? For instance, I will ask you where Exhibits 424 to 433 came from? A. These came —these are copies of the returns—this is a copy of the return book that is filed in our files. 5084

(Documents referred to were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 424 to 449, both inclusive.)

Q. The original of Exhibit 424 is a recapitulation of the same; is it not?

Mr. Weisman: I object to counsel for the Commission testifying about a document not in evidence. Now counsel for the Commission is testifying as to what these papers are.

Mr. Haycraft: I am just trying to save time.

Mr. Weisman: I am very much afraid of your efforts to save time.

Mr. Haycraft: I know. You are the most suspicious character I have ever come in contact with in my life. 5085

Mr. Weisman: I have grounds for being suspicious when you have the effrontery to ask this witness a question like that.

Examiner Bennett: This is off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: You have had the exhibits marked for identification?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: And the witness identifies them as——

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. My question was whether or not this top sheet (indicating) was a recapitulation of the information on the balance of the exhibits.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. It may be answered. Overruled.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

5087 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. It is a recapitulation.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer those exhibits in evidence, Commission's Exhibits 424 to 433, inclusive.

Mr. Weisman: I object to the introduction of these papers in evidence, the same being correspondence between Strawbridge & Clothier and third parties unless this introduction in evidence is merely limited to show the number of returns. I submit that the offer of these papers to prove the truth or lack of truth of what is stated thereon is highly improper and no foundation has been laid therefor.

5088 Mr. Haycraft: I will ask the witness:

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Whether or not he had charge of this Department 338? A. At the time those returns were made I did not have charge of that department.

Q. Do you have charge of them now? A. I have charge of them.

Mr. Weisman: What materiality has that?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. These records come from that department?

Mr. Weisman: I don't care whether they come from the department or not, it still wouldn't be competent to prove the statements thereon contained in view of the positive testimony to the contrary herein. It is certainly not from this witness when he has just testified that he was not in charge of that department when the records were made.

Examiner Bennett: Are you testifying that these statements are correct?

The Witness: I am testifying that the statements 5090
for 461 are correct.

Mr. Haycraft: I haven't got to 491 yet. I am referring to Commission's Exhibits 424 to 433. What is your testimony as to those?

The Witness: My testimony as to those is that I did not have charge of that department during 1935.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who had charge of that department at that time?
A: My predecessor.
Q. Who is that? A. Mr. Alex Cohen.
Q. You can identify this?

Examiner Bennett: I thought the witness said 5091 that he could not identify that.

Mr. Haycraft: He said that it came from the records. That is as far as he could go.

The Witness: It is not in my department.

Examiner Bennett: He is not in position to testify as to whether they were sent back because of copies or otherwise?

Mr. Haycraft: I understand not.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I cannot receive them until you get the proper identification.

Mr. Haycraft: Very well.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 434, and ask you to testify as to what it is. A. It is a recapitulation of the returns that were made to Guild—at the request of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.

Q. I ask you what Exhibits 435 to 446 are, both inclusive? A. Why, they are copies of original return slips.

Q. Of what department? A. Of Department No. 491, 5093 Economy Dress Shop.

Q. Were you in charge of that department at the time these returns were made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you testify as to the percentage, or, rather, can you testify as to the authenticity of these returns? A. I can testify as to the authenticity of these returns.

Q. Will you testify as to whether or not the dresses in these returns were actually returned to manufacturers thereof as indicated on each exhibit? A. They were.

Q. Were they returned for the reasons stated on the return? A. They were; yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer them in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to them being offered and received in evidence if it is merely to tified that when Miss Joyce came in she presented sketches to show that it was a copy, and then, if they found that it was a copy he returned it, but subsequently they were only returned upon that being proven to them that they were copies in truth and in fact. This brings in the question of copies which I think we have already gotten out of this case by way of stipulation.

Mr. Haycraft: There is no question of copies on those documents there.

Mr. Weisman: I have finished my objections, Judge.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received in evi- 5096
dence.

Mr. Weisman: I except.

(List of returns, giving date of return, manufacturer, style number, and quantity returned, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 434, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(Merchandise return orders of Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia, heretofore marked for identification Commisson's Exhibits 435 to 446, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, when you were on the witness stand this morn- 5097
ing and you were being examined by counsel for the respondent, you testified that you had not asked the A.M.C. to furnish you with assistance in obtaining a supply of merchandise, or something to that effect. Do you recall that? A. I do.

Q. I will ask you whether or not the A.M.C., however, did furnish you with the names of available sources of supply? A. They did.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this document be marked for identification.

(A document, consisting of a letter from the A.M.C. to Strawbridge & Clothier, and having attached to it fifteen sheets containing lists of names of various concerns, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 450-A to 450-F, both inclusive.)

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

5099 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. This is a list of resources sent to us by the A.M.C.

Q. Have you seen this before? A. I saw it at the time that it was sent to Mr. Chance. He turned it over to me immediately.

Q. Had you seen a similar list to this before that time? A. No, sir.

Q. That is the first list that you recall? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to the introduction of this list in evidence showing the available resources as given by the Associated Merchandising Corporation in addition to Guild houses. I do, however, object if it is offered as a complete list because the exhibit by its very words says that it will continue during the coming week to give more houses, as your Honor will see.

5100

Examiner Bennett: It isn't completed, evidently.

Mr. Weisman: It is a partial list.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Weisman: I have no objection to it.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Received.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibits 450-A, 450-B, 450-C, 450-D, 450-E, 450-F, 450-G, 450-H, 450-I, 450-J, 450-K, 450-L, 450-M, 450-N, 450-O, and 450-P, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: I have nothing further.

Examiner Bennett: Any recross?

Mr. Weisman: Just a slight recross-examination.

Recross-examination by Mr. Weisman. 5102

Q. With regard to Commission's Exhibits 435 to 446, and the other exhibits constituting returns, who actually made the return? A. The stock boy in my department.

Q. Who wrote out what appears on the return? A. The stock boy in the department.

Q. And who spoke to the stock boy? A. I did.

Q. Personally? A. That is right.

Q. You instructed him what to put on? A. That is correct.

Q. When you used the words hereon, or when you instructed him to use the words hereon "Ordered returned by Fashion Originators Guild," did you mean that that was the only reason that you returned them? A. Absolutely. 5103

Q. Well, by that, was it a question as to whether or not the dress was in truth or in fact a copy immaterial to you? A. I returned that merchandise at the instruction of Miss Joyce. That is the only reason that I returned them.

Q. Whatever Miss Joyce told you to do you did without regard to whether or not the merchandise was a copy? A. If she showed the sketch of the original dress.

Q. Well, when she showed you the sketch of the original dress, she did that to show you that the merchandise that she was calling to your attention was a copy of the original; isn't that so? A. Of course.

Q. You don't want to give us the idea that merely because Miss Joyce would come into your place and say "Send that back," or "Send that back," you would send it back? A. Not unless she had a sketch of the original dress. I said that before.

Q. And when you looked at the original dress—I will withdraw that. And when you say not unless she had a sketch of the original dress, you mean that from that 5105 sketch you could compare the original with the one that she asked you to send back? A. Miss Joyce also had the name of the manufacturer who copied the dress and the style number. If that corresponded with the dress in my stock then I returned the dress.

Q. Yes. In other words—is it Mrs. Joyce or Miss Joyce? A. I don't know. I don't know her that well.

Q. I didn't understand. Once you said Miss and once you said Mrs. A. Oh, no. I don't think so.

Q. In other words, if Miss Joyce came in to see you with the name of the original manufacturers' origination—A. That is right.

Q. —and the name of the copyist and a sketch of the original which you could compare with the one that she was asking you to send back as a copy and showed you 5106 these things visibly, then if you saw that there was reasonable ground for her action, you would return the dress as a copy? A. Providing the style number on it that she had from the man who copied the dress was the same as the dress that I had in my stock.

Q. Yes. I mean you just didn't return a dress because Miss Joyce wanted it returned irrespective of the fact as to whether or not she demonstrated to you that it was a copy? A. She had to furnish proof that it was a copy.

Q. Yes. That is what I mean. And upon proof being furnished then you would return the dress? A. That is correct.

Q. And when the words "Ordered returned by the Fashion Originators Guild" appear on here you meant that you understood that the ordering consisted of first convincing reasonably that the merchandise returned was a copy of an original; isn't that so?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is a very fair question.

Examiner Bennett: Object on what ground?

Mr. Weisman: Did your Honor rule?

Examiner Bennett: I say, what ground? 5108

Mr. Weisman: Oh, excuse me.

Mr. Haycraft: Oh. On the ground, Mr. Examiner, that the exhibit there and the testimony already up to this time speaks for itself. An order is an order, it seems to me.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to have this witness answer. I am going to have him answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you may answer. A. Will you read me the question?

(Question read.)

5109

A. That is correct.

Q. You don't want to give us the idea that the words "Order Returned" were used in the common ordinary sense that somebody ordered you to do so? You mean that you were requested to do so; isn't that so? A. We were ordered to return the dress.

Q. But before you executed the order you were convinced that the order was reasonable?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant, immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Weisman: I think it is perfectly proper.

Mr. Haycraft: Whether it is reasonable or unreasonable has no bearing on this issue in this case. That is just the point I want to make.

Mr. Weisman: I think it certainly is.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. I will let him answer.

A. A request is an order.

By Mr. Weisman.

5111

Q. You didn't differentiate between request or order? A. No, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, on some of these slips you said: "Requested to be returned by the Guild" and so on, and on some you said "Ordered to be returned." A. I meant the same thing.

Q. In both cases they meant requests? A. They meant ordered.

Q. In both cases they meant ordered, and ordered means request and request means order? A. They both meant the same thing, request and order. I was asked to return the dress.

Q. That is right. You were asked to return the dress.

5112

Mr. Weisman: That is all I have.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all I have.

Examiner Bennett: You are excused.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Weisman: I believe that the only items I had reference to was Item 1 and Item 2. I am quite willing for that to go in.

Examiner Bennett: You asked for it.

Mr. Weisman: If Mr. Haycraft is willing to have this go in I am.

Mr. Haycraft: I am.

Mr. Weisman: It is stipulated that the following may be incorporated in the record with the same force and effect as if Mr. Roy Clark was here and testified under oath as a witness in this case with regard thereto:

"In the testimony which I gave on August 6, 1936, I was asked certain questions as to the figures concerning which I testified. As to certain of the questions, I could not, when asked, give positive and definite replies because I did not have the information with me. Since the questions have been asked, I have consulted the records and now 5114 find as follows:

"(1) ADVERTISING ALLOWANCES: According to my present recollection, I stated, when on the stand that as to Department 355 there was received an advertising allowance on the Paul Sargent line in 1935. It is a fact that all such allowances were absolutely discontinued in May, 1934. The fact of advertising allowances, therefore, has no bearing whatever on the figures which I gave, except as to allowances next referred to.

"(2) TEXTILE MANUFACTURERS: The total amount of newspaper advertising allowances received for Departments 331, 338, 358, 350, 355, 371 and 373 for the five months of 1935 which I referred 5115 to was $284.00. All of this came from Textile Manufacturers and not from Dress Manufacturers. No such allowance was received in 1936."

Examiner Bennett: What is the next one?

Mr. Weisman: Yesterday, when Mr. Chance was on the stand, I asked him when he got up in the recess a list setting forth the number of manufacturers which were availed of in the various departments under his supervision which came under his supervision in 1936, but which were availed of by Strawbridge & Clothier in 1935 by those departments. He has. It is stipulated between counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent that if Mr. Chance were to take the witness stand and be sworn as a witness he would testify as follows:

That for the year 1935 Department 331 used 104 manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 350 used seventy-two manufacturers during that year.

5117 That for the year 1935 Department 338 used fifty-one manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 358 used 116 manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 371 used seventy-three manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 373 used sixty-five manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 382 used 126 manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 385 used seventy-seven manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 491 used seventy-nine manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 492 used

5118 forty-two manufacturers during that year.

That for the year 1935 Department 493 used twenty-five manufacturers during that year.

Mr. Haycraft: It is understood those all include the Guild.

Mr. Weisman: Did you make a separate list of the Guild?

Mr. Chance: No, that is the total of the Guild and others.

5119

Mr. Weisman: Very well.

Yesterday I examined Mr. Chance with regard to Commission's Exhibit 410. In connection therewith I asked him if he would—first, I asked him from whom he had obtained that list. He stated that he had obtained it from his statistical department. I asked him how he had made that request for that list and whether it was oral or in writing. He said in writing. I asked him if he would produce a copy of the request which led to the formulation of this list. He has now produced such a request which is as follows:

5120

"Mr. Knipe: Record of total amount of gross business transacted with the attached list of resources beginning February 1, 1935, to January 31, 1936."

LOUIS WEINSTEIN was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is your name?

The Witness: Louis Weinstein.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

5121

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Weinstein? A. Philadelphia.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Divisional merchandise manager.

Q. What is that again? A. Divisional merchandise manager.

Q. For what firm? A. Blauner's, Ninth and Market, Philadelphia.

Q. What is the full name of that concern? A. B-l-a-u-n-e-r-s, Blauner's, Inc., Philadelphia.

Q. What business is Blauner's engaged in? A. Women's wearing apparel.

Q. How long have you occupied that position? A. Since February 1, 1936—1935.

Q. 1935. Before that what did you do? A. Before that I was in business for myself in Philadelphia.

Q. Have you been in this business of women's wear for any length of time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long? A. Oh, approximately, fifteen, sixteen years.

Q. Can you name some of the other stores that you have been in besides being in business yourself? A. Yes. Prior 5123 to my connection here, with Wright-Cummer Company of Dayton, Ohio. Before that my previous occupation was formerly with Blauner's, Inc.

Q. You were with them?. In what capacity before? A. As a buyer.

Q. What department? A Various departments at that time.

Q. Various departments? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. How is Blauner's business divided now as to departments? A. Consists of dresses, coats, furs, suits, underwear, shoes, millinery——

Q. Now— A. Infants' wear.

Q. In the dress department, as I understand you—you have charge of it now? A. That is right. I do have.
5124 Q. Do you have different groups or divisions with respect to price ranges that you handle? A. That is right. I handled the wholesale $6.75 and $10.75.

Q. At the present time? A. At the present time I am not in the dress department.

Q. You are not? What department are you in now? A. Coat departments.

Q. Coat departments? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. How long have you been in the coat departments? A. Just since July 1, 1936.

Q. I see. From January 1, 1935, to July 1, 1936, you were— A. In the dress department.

Q. Dress departments? A. Yes.

Q. You had charge of the $6.75 and $10.75 wholesale prices? A. That is right.

Q. What retail price are they usually sold at? A. $9 and $15.

Q. Now, while you were——

Mr. Weisman: I couldn't hear the last part of the answer.

Mr. Haycraft: $15. 5126

Mr. Weisman: Oh.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. While you were in charge of the dress department that you have indicated from January, 1935, until July, 1936, did you learn of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first become acquainted with that organization? A. Through the manufacturers, I think, around last February. When I would come in with a buyer, myself and a buyer would come in to some of the manufacturers and they would inform us or ask us whether we had signed up with the Fashion Originators Guild, and showed us their agreement in blank and asked us to 5127 sign it. According to the terms written into that agreement it would have been impossible for us to accede to those terms, and not signing that paper which they presented before us, they refused to permit us to buy or leave any orders for merchandise.

Q. What year was that? You said February. A. 1935.

Q. 1935.

Mr. Weisman: Wait just a moment. Have you counsel here?

The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Weisman: Does he know you are testifying?

The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner——

Mr. Weisman: Just a moment. I am rather in an anomalous position. I want the record to show that I am one of counsel for Blauner's. Have you ever heard of me? Milton C. Weisman?

5129 The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: Ha, ha.

Mr. Weisman: Does Mr. Blauner know that you are testifying?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Weisman: All right.

Mr. Haycraft: Maybe it is a different Blauner.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 3-A, 3-B, 3-C, 3-D and 3-E. A. Yes.

Q. I will ask you if you can identify any of those exhibits as the paper which you said the manufacturers 5130 wanted you to sign? A. I believe this is a blank similar to what was presented to me.

Q. The one on top there, you think? A. Yes.

Q. What is there in that blank that you could not co-operate with?

Mr. Weisman: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant to show a witness a piece of paper that is already in evidence and say what is there that you could not co-operate with. He answered he did not want to sign the agreement to co-operate in the elimination of style piracy. That is all there is to it.

Mr. Haycraft: I think we should let the witness testify instead of Mr. Weisman.

Mr. Weisman: He did so testify a moment ago.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Weisman: He testified that he could not. It is perfectly obvious that such a statement is incompetent.

Mr. Haycraft: He has already testified, you say. The Examiner has already ruled. What are you still talking about now? 5132

Mr. Weisman: Wait a moment. You must not be so rude to me.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled. I have overruled the objection.

Mr. Weisman: I did not hear it. May I have an exception?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, surely.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Noted.

A. The clause in here stating that we did not want to buy or be compelled to buy no copy of a pirated dress was the clause, I believe, that prevented us from signing it.

5133

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At the time in February, 1935, can you testify as to the manufacturers that you called on, with the experience that you have already related, who were Guild manufacturers that you called on? A. Well, I only recall just a few, one was L. & D. Beilinson and C. H. D. Robbins, I have a list in my pocket.

Q. Will that refresh your recollection? A. If I may use it.

Q. Yes. A. LeClair.

Mr. Weisman: May I have the date that this visit occurred?

Mr. Haycraft: He said February, 1935.

Mr. Weisman: I want to know the time of the month. I think it is important.

Mr. Haycraft: If you will just let the witness testify—I do not like this interruption all the time, Mr. Examiner. Let the witness give his testimony.

Mr. Weisman: I say it is very important. Some 5135 of these were not members of the Guild at the time, and I want to find out; before I submit this witness to cross-examination I want to find out when he said that he believed he visited them. There is nothing wrong in that.

Mr. Haycraft: It is just wasting time.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Proceed with your testimony. A. C. H. D. Robbins I visited. If you will furnish me with a list of the names of members of the Guild I can probably pick them out for you.

Q. I am sorry, I cannot do that. If you have anything that will refresh your recollection will you please do so?
5136 A. Mine is just a jumbled list. I have no accurate record of the members of the Guild at that time.

Q. I have a list of the members of the Guild. In what price range? A. $10.75 price range.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 399-A, which is a list—399-B, which purports to be a list of the Guild members in 1935.

Mr. Weisman: When does that purport to be a list?

Mr. Haycraft: He said in the spring of 1935.

Mr. Weisman: No, you said 1935. What date is that instrument dated?

Mr. Haycraft: There is no date on it.

Mr. Weisman: How do you know it purports to be a list of manufacturers in 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has identified it.

Mr. Weisman: Oh, I will let him testify to that on your statement.

Mr. Haycraft: He is testifying from the record.

Mr. Weisman: Is he? Go ahead.

A. F. E. D. Dress Company, L. & D. Beilinson, Jo-Mac Dress, C. H. D. Robbins, B. Tobias, Lee Clair Costumes, Phil Zohn, Will Steinmann. 5138

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Since or subsequent to February, 1935, did you make any effort at any time to contact with members of the Guild? A. Well, it was during all of the period of the year 1935 that we had contacted with manufacturers during the course of that time. When we were—we were eventually unable to buy from those manufacturers, thereby closing our markets to us practically in that type of merchandise.

Q. Can you testify as to whether or not you ever bought any merchandise for a lesser wholesale price than $10.75? A. Yes, sir. 5139

Q. From Guild manufacturers? A. From manufacturers?

Q. Yes, what manufacturers—were they bought from manufacturers that later became members of the Guild, or Guild manufacturers? A. Yes, we purchased it at the $6.75 wholesale mark from members who later became members of the Guild or affiliated with the Guild.

Q. Can you name any of those? A. Rex Lee Dress.

Q. Rex Lee Frocks? A. Rex Lee Frocks, yes. Rosenthal Tollman.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 399-A and ask if that refreshes your recollection? A. Ruderman & Sussman. That was an $8.75 wholesale cost. G. W. Cohn Corporation, H. & I. Cohn and Goshen, Gladdy, George Hess Company, Lipman Brothers, Steinman, Tobias.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, now, can you testify as to the approximate amount of business that you did with each one of these Guild houses in 1935 and the date that you were unable to get further merchandise? A. Will you repeat that question?

5141 Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

Q. (Question read.) A. I have a partial list if I may be permitted to use that.

Q. That was prepared under your supervision, was it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Go ahead. A. Beilinson, $1,261. That is for 1935 up until the stoppage point. I don't have the exact date of the stoppage point because we were interested—these records were just taken from the manufacturers' cards. George Hess, $3,260; Lee Clair, $1,911; C. H. D. Robbins, $4,376; Will Steinman, $5,093; B. Tobias, $1,560; P. Zallon, $3,633.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. Will you give 5142 me that last?

The Witness: P. Zallon.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: $3,633 G. W. Cohen, $4,261; H. & I. Cohen & Goshin, $1,621.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. You go too fast for me. What was G. & W. Cohen?

The Witness: $2,461.

Mr. Weisman: Yes.

The Witness: H. & I. Cohen, $1,621; Gladdy, $1,111; Georgeous Frocks, $2,629; Rexley Frocks, $2,505.

Mr. Weisman: Wait a minute. What was the last one?

The Witness: Rexley Frocks, $2,505; Rosenthal & Kalman, $3,262.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you able to give the dates of any of those when those accounts were closed? A. Yes. Why, I believe I have a notation of the month that the account was closed.

Q. Will you give us that? A. I do not have each one 5144
individually, but I do have them on some of them.

Q. Give what you have. A. Rosenthal & Kalman, purchased in October, 1935; Georgeous, October, 1935; Gladdy, October, 1935; H. & I. Cohen, 1935, in October; G. W. Cohn, October, 1935.

Q. Can you testify as to the type of garments that you were getting from each of those manufacturers and the price range? A. Well, this latter group were $6.75 wholesale price.

Q. What type were they—were they all the same type or different types? A. Well, each individual manufacturer makes his own individual type merchandise.

Q. Well, start at the top of that list that you have there and beginning at Beilinson, I believe, is the first 5145 one. Give us the type of garments as well as the price range. A. The price range of Beilinson was $10.75, and in a dressy type merchandise, street and afternoon wear.

Q. All right. A. George Hess was street and afternoon wear.

Q. The same price? A. $8.75. Lee Clair was $10.75, evening wear. C. H. D. Robbins was $10.75, also $11.75. I believe they made at that time. And they made dressy afternoon wear. Will Steinman was evening wear.

P. Zahn was street and afternoon wear, $10.75. Beilinson—well, we had that one. G. & W. Cohn was $6.75, street wear. H. & I. Cohen, street wear, at $6.75. Gladdy was street wear at $6.75. Rexley at $6.75, street wear. Rosenthal, Kalman, $6.75 and $7.75, street wear and afternoon.

Q. What did you do after you found you could not get the goods or garments from these manufacturers? A. We purchased merchandise from other manufacturers.

Q. Where were those other manufacturers located? A. New York City.

Q. Were any of these lines later made available to you? A. Yes, they were.

5147 Q. Which ones? A. The members of the $6.75 group, subsequently most of them dropped out of the Guild affiliates.

Q. Do you recall when that took place? A. I believe it took place about three months after the stopping.

Q. That would make it about the first of this year, then? A. Somewhere thereabouts. I don't know the correct date of that, but approximately the latter part of December or maybe a few, they dropped out, a few at a time. They all didn't drop out at the same time.

Q. Well, then, how many of those firms are you now buying from, or were buying from at the time you left that department? A. I think a great many of them were—we purchased merchandise from after they subsequently dropped out of the Guild membership.

5148 Q. That is, of the $6.75 or $8.75 group? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How about the $10.75 group? A. The $10.75, those that were members remained members. I don't believe—I think maybe one or two dropped out, but I know, due to the fact that we were unable to buy in their type of merchandise from those manufacturers we practically had to drop out of that price range from the store's selling viewpoint.

Q. What was that price range you had to drop out? A. $14.95.

Q. Which? A. $14.95.

Q. $14.95? A. Yes. $10.75 wholesale cost.

Q. Wholesale cost. What price range did you use to replace that order, or were you repiacing? A. Well, we went and purchased instead of goods at $10.75, we purchased goods at $8.75 at a little lower price.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Mr. Weisman: Have you any witness after him?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Cross-examination by Mr. Weisman. 5150

Q. So at the present time you are doing business with G. W. Cohn?

Mr. Haycraft: Better make it at the time he left the department.

Mr. Weisman: Well, I mean——

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I understood you to say that for about three months you didn't make any purchases from these $6.75 houses? A. That is right.

Q. And then after that three months you had no difficulty thereafter in getting purchases from them? A. From most of them. 5151

Q. And now I am trying to find out if you were unable to get it from all of them. See? Now, how about G. W. Cohn? A. Yes, I remember them.

Q. What about Gladys Truside? A. Yes, I remember her.

Q. How about Gorgeous Dresses? A. I do not remember them.

Q. Do you recall whether or not they are willing to sell you if you are willing to buy? A. That I do not remember.

Q. What about Rex Lee? A. We have been buying from them.

Q. What about Rosenthal & Kalman? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did not they drop out of the Guild? A. I do not remember.

Q. Tell me this: You were well acquainted with the New York market, and are you not now? A. Yes, I am.

Q. Compared to some of the other prior witnesses you
5153 show a real knowledge.

Mr. Haycraft: I move that that statement be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Weisman: It was not made for the record, but it was made to reassure this witness. It is a pleasure to see somebody who knows something.

The Witness: I am afraid of that statement.

Mr. Haycraft: Beware of Greeks.

Mr. Weisman: I have been called many things, but I have never been called a Greek before.

Mr. Haycraft: When they come bearing gifts.

Mr. Weisman: Tuneo Danios donis ferentes. That means—that is Latin for "Beware of Greeks 5154 bearing gifts." Now, I have added something to the scope of your knowledge, Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: No, you have not. I have studied Latin.

Mr. Weisman: But to what avail? But to what avail?

Mr. Haycraft: You might be surprised.

Mr. Weisman: Tut, tut. You mean I might be astonished?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I understood you to say you are pretty well acquainted with the New York market, are you? A. Fairly generally.

Q. You have been in this business for a great many years, and as such you have gone into the New York market frequently? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I cannot hear you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell me in your opinion how many manufacturers are there making dresses at $10.75? A. I have never counted them.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. I know you have not done it, none of us have ever 5156 done it, because we have not taken that long, but what is your best opinion? A. I really could not express an opinion but there are quite a few.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Would you say in your own experience in the market that there are in excess of 750 garment manufacturers of that type?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. No foundation in fact in evidence in that regard.

Mr. Weisman: Here is a man who knows something about it. If you will just let us alone, we 5157 both know about this and maybe we can get somewhere.

Mr. Haycraft: I object. Why do you not stick to the 250 that you put in your statement this morning. At least stick to that?

Mr. Weisman: Do you want me to qualify this witness on that or not? I think we will all concede that this is a man who knows what these people are —he knows the dress business and knows how many people are in it, apparently. Please do not interrupt this with comments of that character which simply go to show how little you know about the proposition.

Mr. Haycraft: I am objecting to that. I am not objecting to its competency, but I am objecting to the question.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

The Witness: What is the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. At what price?

5159 By Mr. Weisman.

Q. $10.75 and up. A. I do not know whether there are 750.

Q. You do not know about that? A. No.

Q. What is your best guess as to how many there are? A. Oh, about seventy-five—You asked for my best guess.

Q. No, I do not want you to guess. I wanted your best opinion. Now, I did not want you to merely guess. Did you ever see these directories that are issued? A. Yes.

Q. Have you any idea of how many such manufacturers there are listed in these directories? A. No, unless you would count the number of manufacturers on each page and multiply that by the number of pages in the book.

5160 Q. Well, look at this. I am going to show you one and see if you want to change your mind after looking at that. Maybe it will refresh you a little bit.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as it is not in evidence. That book is not in evidence.

The Witness: Do you want me to count it?

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you think that was your best guess when you said seventy-five?

Mr. Haycraft: I insist on my objection.

Examiner Bennett: I think I will permit it. You can ask questions but not about the book.

Mr. Haycraft: He is still examining the book, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to his testifying as to what is in that.

Mr. Weisman: I do not want him to testify as to what is in the book.

Examiner Bennett: He can refresh his recollection from the paper that you want to show him if it will refresh his recollection.

5162

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. I show you this book and ask you whether looking at that will refresh your recollection as to the approximate number of dress manufacturers engaged in that business in the City of New York selling or manufacturing dresses at $10.75 and up?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Look at that and see if that does refresh your recollection. A. I would say, from this book, seventy-five to one hundred manufacturers at $10.75.

5163

Q. You mean that after your recollection is refreshed from this book you still say that there are only about seventy-five? A. Yes.

Q. Is that so? A. Yes.

Q. Well, I am afraid, Judge, I will have to take a little time with this. A. There are about fifteen names on the page and there are five pages, and even if there were fifteen names to eighteen names on the page, that is just a rough guess, but it would be about that.

Q. Suppose I told you that there were twelve pages and that the average page had twenty-five names on a page, what would you say? A. You probably looked at a page that had no advertisement. I looked at the page that had an advertisement on it. Naturally, that takes up some of the space.

Q. Did you hear me ask you whether or not your recollection would be refreshed as to the $10.75 and up; now, just look at this book.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to this. I objected before and I object again to this witness being handed this book and asked questions about it.

5165 Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Look at this book and state whether or not that refreshes—whether or not your recollection is refreshed as to the number of manufacturers at $10.75 and up from what is therein listed? A. Do you want me to count that list of manufacturers in there?

Q. No. Although you may count them if that will refresh your recollection.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any further use of this book. He has refreshed his recollection from it and testified.

5166 Examiner Bennett: I will let him refresh his recollection from the book if he can.

A. About 150, I would say, by an almost accurate count.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. About 150 in this book? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you know about the competition among this 150, is it rather keen?

Mr. Haycraft: I object unless he shows some foundation that he knows the 150. He does not say how many he knows in the book.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You go into the market at all times, do you not, generally, in the performance of your duties as buyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know what is going on in the market right along? A. I do.

5168

Q. Blauner's is a good account, generally regarded as such in the market? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the competition to sell Blauner's is rather keen among the various manufacturers engaged in the New York market?

Mr. Haycraft: I object unless there is some testimony that these manufacturers engaged in the New York market are those with which the witness is acquainted.

Examiner Bennett: I will let you testify to that. Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you may testify. A. Yes, sir. I think 5169 that all manufacturers are willing to sell Blauner's.

Q. I understood you to say in answer to Mr. Haycraft's question as to what you did when these people of the Guild did not want to sell you, to say that you went out and got merchandise from other manufacturers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, I see that the only manufacturers that you did business with out of 150 were a total of seven; is that correct; that is, at $10.75; I believe you gave T. E. D. Dress Company, L. & D. Beilinson, Jo-Mac Dress Company, C. H. D. Robbins Company, B. Tobias, Lee Clair Costumes, Phil Zahn, and Will Steinman. A. Yes, sir. Those are the ones that we were in the habit of buying from and doing business with.

Q. They were? A. Yes.

Q. You know that Phil Zahn is no longer a member of the Guild, do you not? A. I believe so; yes, sir.

Q. Do you know that you are doing business with them now, do you not? A. I do not.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. You do not buy from him? A. I do not know
5171 whether we are buying from him now.

Q. Do you know whether or not you were buying from him last month? A. I do not believe so.

Q. Do you know whether or not he is willing, able to sell you and was last month if you were willing to buy from him? A. I really could not answer that question.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Well, it is evident, is it not, that out of all of these manufacturers in the New York market, there were only six with whom you were doing business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell me what volume of business does Blauner do?
5172 A. I do not know really whether I am in position to say that or not.

Q. What is your best opinion? A. You mean at what price range?

Q. Per year, what is your total? A. You mean at what price range and up?

Q. $10.75. A. I should judge maybe $150,000 total.

Q. $150,000 total per year? A. Approximately.

Q. Approximately? A. Right.

Q. During the entire—is that purchases at wholesale? A. That is sales at retail.

Q. That is sales at retail? A. Yes.

Q. What is Blauner's largest source of supply, do you know? A. In that field?

Q. Yes. A. I believe C. H. D. Robbins was.

Q. Is there a concern in which Blauner's has an interest which furnishes them with a lot of their goods? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Tell me something of their accounts; from whom do they buy? A. I would have to get the ledger to do that.

Q. Did you ever hear of Lombardy Frocks? A. Yes.

Q. Who are the principals in Lombardy Frocks? A. I 5174 really do not know.

Q. Did you ever hear that Blauner's is interested therein? A. No.

Q. Do you not know that Lombardy Frocks was one of the largest sources of supply for Blauner's?

Mr. Haycraft: I object unless it is shown within the witness' knowledge.

Mr. Weisman: I am asking the witness whether he knows.

The Witness: They are cheaper, you know; $4.75.

Mr. Weisman: I know that Lombardy is a $4.75 house.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question because it is not within the direct examination. 5175

Mr. Weisman: I submit it is a foundation question that I want to lead up to.

Mr. Haycraft: It is a fishing expedition.

Mr. Weisman: The old mind reader at work again. No, I know what I am talking about. Too bad you do not.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think you ought to be allowed to smear it on this record.

Mr. Weisman: What?

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think that ought to be smeared all over this record.

Mr. Weisman: If it is material, and if it will show the reason why, and I think it will show the reason why, because both this witness and I know something about this. I want to show that the reason why Blauner's would not co-operate with the Guild, and they had a perfect right not to do so if they did not see fit to do so, I want to show that, and I think I can show it if I am permitted to go along the line that I have set to do. I certainly 5177 have the right to ask a foundation question. If your Honor please, you certainly will recall that Mr. Haycraft wanders all over the face of the earth by the argument of asking a foundation question. I think I should be permitted to ask a legitimate foundation question once in a while.

Mr. Haycraft: I object. All of this long stump speech, as Mr. Weisman himself characterized it, does not make it admissible.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you shall answer. A. What is the 5178 question?

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. You do not know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you not know that Lombardy Frocks engages to a large degree in the manufacture of copies of higher-priced merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. No, sir.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. You do not know that?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. What is that?

By Mr. Weisman. 5180

Q. You do not know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you not know that Lombardy Frocks is used by Blauner's for the purpose of obtaining through them copies of higher-priced merchandise at $4.75? A. Absolutely not.

Q. You do not know that? A. No.

Examiner Bennett: From your knowledge, is it true?

The Witness: No, sir.

Examiner Bennett: No?

The Witness: It certainly is not true.

By Mr. Weisman.

5181

Q. Did you state that Lombardy Frocks does not engage in the buying and/or making of copies of higher-priced frocks; in the making of copies of higher-priced merchandise?

Examiner Bennett: He did not say that at all. He did not say that.

Mr. Weisman: I want to find out what he did say, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Does not Blauner's carry a lot of copies; a large amount of copies of pirated dresses? A. Blauner's, we buy dresses whether they are copies or not. I am not in a position to answer that.

Q. Have you not just stated that you did not want to join the Guild because you could not subscribe to the refusal to buy pirated dresses? A. Yes.

Q. So you wanted to have the right to go out and buy pirated dresses? A. We wanted to have the right to have an open market for merchandise wherever we could possibly get it without any restrictions.

5183

Mr. Haycraft: I want to object to that. I do not think that the question is a correct interpretation of the witness' previous testimony.

Mr. Weisman: You know better than that. I am ashamed of you.

Mr. Haycraft: You are the one who should be ashamed.

Mr. Weisman: Now, will you sit down and quit yelling at me in such an undignified fashion? You are getting too old for such things, my lad.

Mr. Haycraft: Says you.

By Mr. Weisman.

5184 Q. When you said that you meant you wanted to have the right to buy numbers whether or not they were pirated numbers or not; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. What? A. That is right.

Q. You know, do you not, and you knew, did you not, at that time, that the Guild houses were the houses whose dresses were being pirated? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness.

Mr. Weisman: I think I ought to be allowed to get the answer to that.

A. No, sir; I do not know it.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Whose dresses do you think were being pirated when the Guild manufacturers said that they did not want to sell you unless you agreed not to carry copies of Guild members' dresses? A. Well, I suppose they were talking about——

Mr. Haycraft: I object. My objection is that there is no foundation for that question. 5186

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you may answer.

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Weisman: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: There has been no evidence received from this witness that anybody's dresses were being pirated. He hasn't testified to any such thing as that. 5187

Mr. Weisman: Your Honor, may I call your attention—may I see this? This is in evidence, isn't it (indicating paper writing)?

Mr. Haycraft: No, it isn't.

Mr. Weisman: Where is the one you put in evidence that you identified?

Mr. Haycraft: No, not that. You asked him the kind of declaration that he wanted to sign. I think that is it.

Mr. Weisman: So you see I was right.

Mr. Haycraft: Here it is.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled on that. That wouldn't prove anything. I say this witness hasn't testified as to anybody's pirating.

Mr. Weisman: Well, this witness testified——

Examiner Bennett: You ask him and find out.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Didn't you testify that a copy of Commission's Exhibit 3-A was one that you had been asked to sign and you objected to it? A. I believe it is one of the papers.

5189 Q. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: That is not proof that dresses were being pirated, and it has not been testified to by this witness that dresses were being pirated.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. When you were asked why you couldn't sign it, you stated that you couldn't sign it because you wanted to be free to handle pirated dresses; didn't you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: No, he didn't say that.

Mr. Weisman: Didn't you say that?

The Witness: I didn't say anything at all about

5190 pirated dresses.

Mr. Weisman: I am sure——

Mr. Haycraft: You did all of that talking.

Mr. Weisman: Don't say that, Mr. Haycraft. This witness said that he couldn't sign this because he wanted to be free to use pirated dresses, and I took it down.

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't say anything of the kind.

The Witness: Wanted to be free to buy merchandise in an open market without any restrictions.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Do you deny that on your direct examination you said, and used the term "pirated dresses"? A. Did not use the term "pirated dresses."

Mr. Weisman: All right. The record will show it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Weisman.

5192

Q. I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit 3-A and call these words to your attention specifically: "We do not and will not buy for our ready-to-wear departments any copy or pirated dresses or garments created by members of your Association." Isn't that what you referred to on your direct examination? A. One of the clauses; yes, sir.

Q. Isn't that, in relation to that that you said you couldn't agree not to buy pirated dresses, to refrain from buying pirated dresses? A. Not to refrain.

Q. That is, that you didn't want to agree to refrain? A. That is right.

Q. Didn't you use those terms on your direct examination? A. The terms I did use have already been taken down.

5193

Q. All right. In other words, you don't want to repeat them now. Didn't you know when this was presented to you that the only copies and the only pirated dresses that you were asked not to handle were copies, or pirated dresses of originations by Guild manufacturers? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Didn't you understand the English of this thing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, by the terms of this didn't you understand that this was limited to copies or pirated dresses of members of the Guild? A. You asked me because it was brought up by the Guild.

Q. So that you knew that—so your failure to join the Guild could only be because of your unwillingness to refrain from dealing in copies of dresses originated by members of the Guild; isn't that so? A. One of the reasons.

Q. Yes. I mean, there is no harm in it. I want you to know the Guild says you have a perfect right to do as you please. We are not charging you with any crime thereby, Mr. Weinstein. I don't want you to get the wrong impression. And you felt that you wanted to be free. I assume 5195 you felt you wanted to be free to deal with whomever you wanted, whether the dress was a copy or not; isn't that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is why you wouldn't join the Guild, isn't that so? Join in the Guild's policy with regard to style piracy? A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the figures of Blauner's with 1935? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not your $10.75 department went ahead in 1936? A. I know—'36?

Q. Yes. A. Well, the $10.75 was practically eliminated.

Q. Do you know whether or not Blauner's sales for the year—what is the total price range of Blauner's, by the way? A. What do you mean, "total price range"?

5196 Q. Where do they start? What is their lowest price range? A. Start at $3.88.

Q. And go to? A. Go up to $12.98.

Q. That is $12.98 retail? A. Retail. Formerly $14.95. Due to the fact that we had to drop out of the $10.75 line; due to the fact that we had no open market from which to buy the kind of merchandise we were accustomed to handling, we probably—we had to drop out of that price range.

Q. Now, I understand that you said on your direct examination that in February, 1935, Joe-Mac Dresses refused to ship you? A. I couldn't remember that directly.

Q. Didn't you testify— A. I was selecting the names from the list that you subn.

Q. Well—the members—Mr. Haycraft asked you a question. He said in February, 1935, "Will you give a list of the Guild people who refused to do business with you?" Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. And you gave him these names: C. H. D. Robbins? A. That is right.

Q. And you meant him to understand, and the record to show thereby, did you not, that in February, 1935, C. H. D. Robbins refused to do business—— 5198

Mr. Haycraft: May I have an objection to that question, Mr. Examiner, so the record will be straight? The witness, in answering that question, testified that it was subsequent to February, 1935, and all through the year that these contacts were made, and that all of the dropping off was not in February, and I don't think in fairness he should be asked a question of this kind.

Mr. Weisman: I am trying to find out. You asked him one thing. If he answered another I would like to know what he answered.

The Witness: All right.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled. You may answer. 5199

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. The Court says you shall answer. A. All of these—all of the replacements that I made regarding to the purchases from those manufacturers was during the year beginning with February on through.

Q. Oh. But you didn't mean to fix that February as being— A. Was the stopping point.

Q. That was the stopping point? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, don't you know that the names that you mentioned didn't join the Guild until October or November? A. Those in the $6.75 didn't join until October?

Q. Well, what is Lee Clair? A. Lee Clair is a $10.

Q. When did you say Lee Clair joined the Guild? A. I really couldn't say.

Q. Would you deny that they joined it in November, 1935? A. I really couldn't say.

Q. Now, Will Zahn is no longer in the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

5201 Q. When do you say C. H. D. Robbins joined the Guild? A. I don't know when they joined the Guild.

Q. Well, when did you first have trouble getting merchandise from them? A. I can tell them when we stopped receiving merchandise from them.

Q. When you said in October— A. I would have to refer to that list.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

By Mr. Weisman.

Q. Just take a look at when you stopped getting merchandise from them.

Examiner Bennett: We will recess for five minutes.

5202 (There was a short recess taken.)

A. We stopped receiving merchandise after or during the month of May, 1935, C. H. D. Robbins.

Q. Are you sure that you failed to get merchandise from them on that date, because they didn't want to ship you, or because on that date, on and until the fall you didn't place any further orders with them? A. We did want to place further orders and they refused to accept any further orders.

Q. You mean commencing with May? A. Approximately that time; yes, sir.

Q. Now, what about F. E. D. Dress? A. I don't have very much on that. F. E. D. Dress, there was no merchandise received after February, 1935.

Q. I don't care whether you received merchandise or not. I want to know— A. Well, I mean the fact that we didn't—well, that is as far as I can tell you. I mean, the record shows that we received no further merchandise after that.

Q. Do you know whether or not you didn't receive any merchandise because you didn't order from them or because they were members of the Guild? A. Well, I don't recollect it from that particular resource. 5204

Q. I see. What about F. & D. Beilinson. A. Beilinson.

Q. Yes. A. After August, 1935, we received no further merchandise due to the fact that they refused to accept orders for merchandise.

Q. Then you remember? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not until August? A. That is right.

Q. What about Joe-Mac Dress? A. I don't have any records of Joe-Mac Dress at all.

Q. You don't know when they refused to do business with you? A. No, sir.

Q. What about B. Tobias? A. B. Tobias, I have until, or after October, 1935.

Q. Do you know that if you got merchandise from them up to October, obviously they weren't members of the 5205
Guild? A. They may have been members of the Guild and still have shipped us due to the fact that we had a prior order.

Q. I see. How much prior to delivery does Blauner's place its orders? A. Well, at that time I believe it was three or four weeks.

Q. As much as that? A. I think so.

Q. Is that your general practice? A. About three or four weeks at that priced merchandise.

Q. I see. Now, what about Lee Clair? A. Lee Clair was February, 1935.

Q. What was February, 1935? A. The last date of the receipt of merchandise.

Q. What is your recollection as to when they joined the Guild? A. They also—I don't know when they joined, but I do know that they refused to ship us merchandise on account of us not signing the agreement.

Q. When did they refuse? A. I have no exact figure—dating of that.

Q. What is your best guess? A. It would be futile to guess. It must have been approximately around that time.

5207 Q. Suppose I tell you that Lee Clair didn't join the Guild until the latter part of October, 1935, what would you then say? A. Well, I told you before that I didn't recollect about Lee Clair.

Q. I see. Let me ask you this question: Assuming that your paper shows that between February and October, or thereabouts, you didn't get any orders or receive any merchandise from these people, and these people didn't join the Guild until on or October, wouldn't that be some indication to you that during that period you didn't want their merchandise? A. Well, these members that didn't join until October were members of the $6.75 price division.

Q. And that has nothing to do with the Guild, has it? A. Well, they joined or became affiliated with the Guild.

Q. All the people that you have been talking about now 5208 are the $10.75 people, aren't they? A. That is right.

Q. We weren't talking about $6.75, the names that we have just gone over? Or are they $10.75? A. That is right.

Q. Now, what I am asking you, and I assume you are going to be fair in your answer, as I am trying to be in my questions, if a man was not a member of the Guild, and he didn't ship you any merchandise from February to October, would that be because you didn't order any? A. That is right.

Q. And would the fact that you didn't order any be a reasonable indicia or sign that he wasn't carrying merchandise that you required? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Why else wouldn't you buy it? A. The period of the year as to whether we would buy merchandise from that particular manufacturer or the number of manufacturers would also have something to do with it.

Q. We have covered a long period, from February to October. A. That period includes seasonable changes. Naturally, the stocks change and you stop buying at a certain period, and you rebuy at other periods.

Q. Would you say that a source of supply from which you didn't buy merchandise for a period of seven or eight months at a time was a very important source of supply in a steady, staple business like Blauner's? A. No, sir.

5210

Q. I didn't hear your answer. A. No, sir.

Mr. Weisman: That is what I wanted to find out. That is all.

Examiner Bennett: Is there any redirect examination?

Mr. Haycraft: I don't believe there is anything further.

Mr. Weisman: That is all, Mr. Weinstein.

(Witness excused.)

Examiner Bennett: What is your further pleasure?

5211

Mr. Haycraft: I ask at this time, Mr. Examiner, that the hearings in this case be adjourned to convene again in Cleveland, Ohio, in the Grand Jury Room, 307, at the Post Office Building at the Public Square on Monday morning, 10.30 A. M., Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. Weisman: May it please——

Examiner Bennett: 9.30 Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. Haycraft: Cleveland does not have Daylight Saving Time.

Examiner Bennett: It has Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. Weisman: May it please your Honor, we have been very laboriously engaged here. My client and I have been away from our regular business, and we are seeking to do everything to reasonably co-operate. We cannot return to our homes until to-morrow. I mean by that, for the business day to-morrow. To-morrow is a short day, being Saturday, and there is very little ability in us to conduct our business by reason of the fact that other people won't remain to conduct it with you. I ask your 5213 Honor most seriously, in view of the complete and thorough hearings that we have had continuously and consecutively this week, and so that my client and I may have at least twenty-four hours to do some other business, that the hearing be had on Tuesday morning so that we may have a business day to devote to our business.

I make serious representation to your Honor that my client's business and affairs are seriously being injured by this absence. I realize that it is necessary that we be away. I make no point of that. What I do say that under the circumstances that we should be permitted to have a regular business day to bring ourselves up and to do such things as do require our immediate and urgent attention.
5214 I respectfully urge that upon your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I have already engaged a hearing room for that time.

Mr. Weisman: We will stand the cost of the hearing room.

Examiner Bennett: There isn't any cost.

Mr. Weisman: I didn't know that.

Examiner Bennett: But I would like to hear from the Commission's attorney on that point.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I was hoping you would settle that. I will put it this way: I will be ready to proceed Monday with a witness, but I will not be seriously inconvenienced to have the hearing convene Tuesday.

Examiner Bennett: That is, you are indifferent?

Mr. Haycraft: Absolutely.

Examiner Bennett: You are indifferent?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Well, in view of that statement, I will accommodate counsel for the respondents, and we will meet on Tuesday.

(Whereupon, at 4 o'clock P. M., August 7, 1936, 5216
the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Court Room No. 307,
Federal Building.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. This is a reconvening of Docket No. 2769, the Federal Trade Commission v. The Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., et al. You may proceed.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you please take the stand at this time, Mr. Gutsche?

5218 Hugo C. Gutsche—For Commission—Direct.

HUGO C. GUTSCHE was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is the name?

The Witness: Hugo C. Gutsche.

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Gutsche? A. 118 Yorkshire Road, Pittsburgh.

Q. Pennsylvania? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am the ready-to-5219 wear merchandise manager for the Upstairs Department of Joseph Horne Company, Pittsburgh.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, at this time I wish to object to any testimony whatsoever on the part of anybody from J. L. Horne & Company—

The Witness: Joseph——

Mr. Albert: Joseph Horne & Company. It was announced in Philadelphia that the Commission would not proceed to Pittsburgh and that no testimony would be taken from Pittsburgh. As a result of that announcement of counsel for the Commission, the respondent at this time has none of its correspondence or any of the evidence that it would seek to present on cross-examination here with it, 5220 and it certainly is a most unfair bit of tactics on the part of the Commission not to warn us in any way that anybody would be brought up here from Pittsburgh to testify in Cleveland, and I strenuously object to any testimony whatsoever being presented from any Pittsburgh concern, in the light of the announcement of the Commission in Philadelphia.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, you may get your correspondence. You may go forward. I will have the witness appear to-morrow for cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Proceed—that is, unless the Commission wants to withdraw its witness.

Mr. Haycraft: No. I do not.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I have just been informed that our papers were forwarded to Pittsburgh in expectation of a hearing being held in Pittsburgh, and that they have not as yet arrived back in New York. 5222

Examiner Bennett: Can you not get them from Pittsburgh?

Mr. Albert: Beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: Can you not get them from Pittsburgh?

Mr. Albert: Well, they are probably in transit back from Pittsburgh to New York at the present time.

Examiner Bennett: Well, we will give you an opportunity to cross-examine after you get your papers. I wish you would be diligent about it, though.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft. 5223

Q. In what business is the Joseph Horne Company engaged? A. Department store business.

Q. How long have you been in your present position? A. About six years.

Q. What are your duties in that position? A. Well, merchandise manager, that is, the supervision of the buying and selling of the apparel.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you first learn of that organization? A. Well, I believe in December—December, 1932—I am not—there may have been some information prior to that, but I believe that is about the start.

(Photostatic copy of letter from Maurice Rentner, Chairman of the Board, Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., under date of March 23, 1932, to M. A. H. Burchfield, Joseph Horne Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 451-A and 451-B.)

5225

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you a paper which has been marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 451-A and B, purporting to be an original letter from Maurice Rentner, Chairman of the Board, Fashion Originators Guild of America, dated March 23, 1932, and ask you if you received that in the ordinary course of your duties? I notice it is addressed to Mr. A. H. Burchfield of Joseph Horne Company. A. I must have seen that. It was——

Mr. Albert: I cannot hear the witness here.

The Witness: I must have seen that.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the answer be stricken out, if the Court please; it is not in response to the question.

5226

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence, Commission's Exhibits 451-A and B, and ask that a photostatic copy thereof be substituted for the original, as the Joseph Horne Company wishes to keep the original copies for their own files.

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. By way of further identification, I will ask you who Ir. Burchfield is in your organization, mentioned in that etter? A. President of the firm.

Q. President of the firm? A. Yes.

Q. Is he your superior? A. Yes.

Q. There are certain pencil notations in the upper ght-hand margin——

Mr. Albert (interposing): Mr. Haycraft—— 5228

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you——

Mr. Albert: Well, Mr. Haycraft, would you mind holding your questions until I read this?

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not—just a moment, lease. I will ask you whether or not those notations ere made by Mr. Burchfield and addressed to you? A. Iay I see it again?

(The paper referred to was handed to Mr. Haycraft.)

The Witness: That is Mr. Oxenreiter's notation on there. 5229

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Oxenreiter? A. Yes.

Q. Who is he? A. Mr. Oxenreiter at the time was Mr. urchfield's assistant.

Q. I see.

(The paper referred to was handed to M Albert.)

Mr. Haycraft: I renew my offer.

Mr. Albert: No objection, if it please the Cou

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Haycraft: I substituted a photostatic co for the original.

Examiner Bennett: It is a letter; is it?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may proce

5231 (Whereupon the paper previously marked Co mission's Exhibit 451 for Identification was r ceived in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 452 for Identific tion, which purports to be a carbon copy of a letter fro Joseph Horne & Company, an original to Fashion Origin tors Guild, dated March 29, 1932, in reply to the or that you have just identified, and ask if you can identi that as such?

(Whereupon the carbon copy of a letter fro Joseph Horne & Company t› Fashion Originato Guild, dated March 29, 1932, was marked Co 5232 mission's Exhibit 452 for Identification.)

A. Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was the original of that letter sent to the Fashio Originators Guild on March 29, 1932? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence and as that a photostatic copy may be substituted for th original.

(Whereupon a letter from Fashion Originators Guild to Joseph Horne & Company, dated April 29, 1932, was marked Commission's Exhibit 453 for Identification.)

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(Whereupon the letter heretofore marked Commission's Exhibit 452 for Identification was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I now show you Commission's Exhibit No. 453 for 5234
Identification, which purports to be an original letter from the Guild to Joseph Horne & Company, dated April 29, 1932, and ask you whether or not you received that original letter; that is, whether Joseph Horne & Company received it? A. Well, I think so.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 454-A to 454-M, inclusive, and ask if you can identify that as an original letter with certain documents attached received from Maurice Rentner?

The Witness: It is a letter addressed to me, signed by Maurice Rentner of the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

By Mr. Haycraft. 5235

Q. What date? A. December 16, 1932.

Q. Did you receive it? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, there is no objection with respect to Commission's Exhibits for Identification 454-A, B, C and D. However, with respect to 454-E to M, that is objected to upon the ground that it is a draft of proposed agreement which never went into effect, which was never signed by anybody, the terms of which were never operative in the industry and by reason whereof there is nothing whatsoever in the Commission's complaint with respect to it, and it is no purpose or function in this proceeding.

Examiner Bennett: I am overruling the objection and receiving it as part of the history of the Guild.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 454-A to 454-M, were marked as exhibits and received in evi-5237 dence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 455-A and ask you to tell the Examiner what it is? A. It is a letter from the Fashion Originators Guild of America, dated June 19, 1933, addressed to me, signed by Maurice Rentner.

Q. Did you receive it? A. Yes.

(Letter from Maurice Rentner, Fashion Originators Guild of America, under date of June 19, 1933, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 455-A and 455-B.)

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

5238 Mr. Albert: May I have that?

(Counsel hands exhibit to Mr. Albert.)

Examiner Bennett: That is Commission's Exhibits 455-A and B?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Let the record show that if that record is received in evidence, that the docket section of the Commission will send to the witness the photostatic copy of the exhibit.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 455-A and 455-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I now show you the next to the last paragraph of this letter, Commission's Exhibit 455-B: "Our action is expressed in the enclosed resolution, which provides that all retailers who wish to have access to our showrooms and purchase our merchandise shall sign a 'Declaration of Good Faith,' a copy of which we are submitting herewith." I now show you Commission's Exhibits 456-A and 456-B and ask you if you can identify that? 5240

Examiner Bennett: That is for identification?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, sir.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is it? A. A memorandum of the Guild's resolution and its significance.

Q. Dated when? A. Well, there is no date on this except that—except that these resolutions—or this resolution was passed unanimously at a meeting of the Fashion Originators Guild on Monday evening, June 12, 1933. 5241

Q. Was that enclosed in the letter you received from Mr. Rentner, Commission's Exhibit 455-A, and referred to in the language I read a moment ago in the last paragraph? A. Yes.

Q. Yes. I show you now Commission's Exhibit 457 for identification and ask you if you can testify as to what that is? A. That is the Declaration of Co-operation and Anti-Piracy.

Q. Is that a copy of the one that you received from the Guild, enclosure of the letter of June 19, Commission's Exhibits 455-A and 455-B? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence—wait a minute.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And was that the original of which this is a copy signed by W. H. Burchfield, vice-president of the Joseph Horne Company and sent to the Guild? A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: I will offer it in evidence and 5243 ask that a photostatic copy be substituted for the original.

(A document was there upon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 458.)

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment, Mr. Albert. I have another exhibit that ought to really go on with that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 458 for Identification, and ask if you can testify as to what that is?

Mr. Albert: Rather, if he knows what it is, your Honor, rather than testify what it is.

5244

A. It is a letter dated June 27, 1933, to the Fashion Originators Guild of America, signed by Mr. Burchfield, W. H. Burchfield.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. That is a carbon copy? A. Carbon copy.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence, Mr. Examiner, and ask that a photostatic copy be substituted for the original, and I wish to make that offer along with Commission's Exhibit 457, taken together.

Examiner Bennett: Is Commission's Exhibit 457 objected to?

Mr. Haycraft: No. He hasn't yet objected to it.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: They may be received. Commission's Exhibits 457 and 458.

(Copy of Declaration of Co-operation in Anti-Piracy was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 457 and received in evidence.)

5246

(Copy of letter from W. H. Burchfield vice-president and general merchandise manager, Joseph Horne Company, under date of June 27, 1933, to Fashion Originators Guild of America, New York, N. Y., heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 458, was received in evidence.)

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 459-A and 459-B.)

Ir. Haycraft.

I show you Commission's Exhibits 459-A and 459-B, sk if you can identify it? A. Yes.

What is it? A. A letter dated November 8, 1935, essed to Mr. W. H. Burchfield, care of Joseph Horne 5247 pany.

Signed by whom? A. Signed by Mr. Post.

Now, Mr. Gutsche, during the period of time from , 1933, until the present time, has Joseph Horne Com- co-operated with the Guild as indicated in the corre- dence I have just called to your attention and to h you have identified? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for the conclusion of the witness, and no foundation whatsoever has been laid showing the knowledge on the part of the witness with respect to what has been done by Joseph Horne Company over and above a period of three years.

Examiner Bennett: I think it best that you develop a foundation further to show just what this gentleman's duties were with the Joseph Horne Company.

Mr. Haycraft: I have a statement, Mr. Examiner, of his general duties.

5249 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask him if he had any peculiar duties with respect to the Guild.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I object to any question with respect to "the peculiar duties" as regards the Guild. I don't know what "peculiar duties" means, and it certainly has an unpleasant connotation.

Examiner Bennett: I will hear what he has to say in response to the question.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

5250 A. I had no peculiar duties in connection with the Guild, Mr. Haycraft.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you have any instructions from Mr. Burchfield as to what you were to do in co-operation with the Guild and the Guild's policies? A. Not that I remember.

Q. Did you ever hear of a warranty clause, a warranty statement, referred to in——

Mr. Albert: 306.

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. —Commission's exhibit, in the last paragraph, where it says "Furthermore, we will affix to all of our orders the following clause: 'This order is placed upon the seller's warranty that the above garments are not copies of styles originated by members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. The purchaser reserves the right to return any merchandise which is not as warranted.'" A. Yes.

Q. You know about that? A. Yes.

Q. What do you know about it? A. Well, I knew that as soon as that was signed we started to do that. It was in line with my general duties. 5252

Q. Had you been doing it before? A. Not before we signed the agreement.

Q. You had not been putting that warranty clause on garments before the agreement was signed? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, then, your general duties were changed somewhat after the signing of that agreement? A. Well, it was an addition, that is all.

Q. What steps did you take to see that that stamp went on orders placed for garments thereafter? A. That stamp was in our ready-to-wear office, and before the orders were sent out it was placed on copies of our orders.

Q. Who placed it on there? A. One of the clericals.

Q. Did you have anything to do with supervising the task? A. Well, the original instructions were given by me in our office. 5253

Q. Did you do anything to see whether or not they were carried out? A. I checked on it.

Q. Were they carried out? A. I believe so.

Q. Well, now, as a result of placing that stamp on all orders, did you find it necessary to return any garments to manufacturers? A. Occasionally.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How did you determine when to make the returns? A. We were informed by the Guild's local shopper.

Q. Who was she? A. Mrs. Elliott.

Q. When did she first shop your store? A. I cannot give the exact date. I imagine it was after the 1st of March or so.

Q. What year?

5255

Mr. Albert: What year was that?

A. 1935.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, what would she do when she came to your store? What was her procedure? A. Well, she would have information confirming the fact that the dress in question was a copy.

Q. Well, you say she had the information, but what would she do, then, with that information? A. She would give it to us with a slip authorizing the return of the garment.

Q. Did you take any steps yourself to determine whether 5256 it was a copy, in fact? A. No, we did not.

Q. Have you prepared for me, or had prepared, from the records of Joseph Horne Company, a statement of the garments returned in the year 1935, and up through the year 1936, showing the name of the manufacturer, the date of return, style number, quantity returned, and the price of the garment? A. To the best of our ability——

Examiner Bennett: Do I understand you to say that you returned no garments before March, 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: No, he did not.

The Witness: I am not sure about that.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark this for identification as Commission's Exhibit 460.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(Document referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 460.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is his testimony as to when he remembers the shopper came around. I will probably go into that a little bit more, Mr. Examiner.

By Mr. Haycraft. 5258

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 460 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. This is a record of garments that we returned because they were copies.

Q. And the information contained thereon, where did it come from? A. It came from our records in combination with the records which we were able to obtain from the local Guild shopper.

Q. Are you satisfied it is correct? A. I wouldn't swear that it is complete. As near as we could get from the time that you were in Pittsburgh, and we had to work it out.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this in evidence, Mr. Examiner. 5259

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, on the ground that the witness has just testified that he would not swear to the fact that it is complete, and obviously the Commission does not want anything that is not a complete record and does not adequately show the facts.

Examiner Bennett: Is there anything on there that you did not return?

The Witness: Not that I know of.

Examiner Bennett: Well, what is your best recollection of that?

The Witness: Sir?

Examiner Bennett: I say, what is your best recollection as to that, as to whether it contains any garments, or you know of any goods that are not, in fact, returned, as indicated?

The Witness: None that I remember.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled; it may be received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

5261 (Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 460, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, I notice the first date on this is February 21, 1935; I will ask you whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to the time that the shopper began to shop your store? A. I believe it was.

Q. You think it was on or about that date? A. Yes.

Q. Had you made any returns of garments to manufacturers prior to February, 1935? A. Yes, we had.

Q. Well, how did you determine what garments to return prior to that time? A. We received notices from the 5262 Guild office giving the information as to the origination—or the originator of the garment and the manufacturer who had copied it, with his style number.

Q. How was that received? A. Sir?

Q. How did you receive that? That is, who gave it to you? How did you get it? A. It came through the store mail.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 375, 376 and 377 and ask you if you recall those, or if you can testify with respect to them in any way? A. Not to these; I would not remember.

Q. I will ask you whether or not they are similar to the information which you received before the shopper began to call?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as calling for a conclusion of the witness and no proper foundation has been laid. He does not know what these are, and yet he is asked to compare them with something that is not present.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Prior to June, 1933, the date of the signing of that original co-operation agreement, which you have identified, Commission's Exhibit 457, had you returned to the manufacturers any garments because they were copies of members of the Guild, or of any other manufacturer? 5264

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being outside of the scope of the complaint, entirely immaterial and irrelevant. In addition, there is no proper foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

A. I do not remember.

By Mr. Haycraft. 5265

Q. What was the policy of the store prior to that time, in that respect?

Mr. Albert: Prior to what time, if you please?

Mr. Haycraft: Prior to June, 1933.

A. Well, just a policy of ethical dealings.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I mean, with respect to returning to the manufacturers garments that were found to be copies of other manufacturers? A. Well, I don't recall.

Q. You do not recall any? A. We kept away from buying copies where we could; we were not in favor of buying copies at any time.

Q. Well, that was your general policy for a number of years? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to June, 1933, however, had you followed the policy of returning garments to manufacturers when you found that they were copies?

5267

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial and not within the scope of the complaint.

Examiner Bennett: I have already ruled on that. Overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. I don't believe we returned any; it was impossible to do so, as I remember.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You say it was impossible to do so? A. Yes.

Q. Why?

5268

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for the conclusion of the witness, if it please the Court; no foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain it.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you observed whether or not there was any effect on the dress business, sale of garments, in your department as a result of the co-operation with the Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; no proper foundation has been laid; calling for the conclusion of the witness.

Examiner Bennett: What was the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: In that relation, if it please the Court, there is nothing in evidence at the present time as to what department is referred to. There has been no evidence of any department as regards Joseph Horne & Company.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question again.

(Question again read.)

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Overruled. You may answer. 5270

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. I haven't any definite figures on that.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I asked you whether or not you had observed any effect. I didn't ask for any figures, I asked whether or not you had observed any effect upon the sale of garments in your department as a result of co-operating with the Guild. A. Not on the sale of garments.

Q. Have you observed any effect at all? A. Yes.

Q. What has been the effect you have observed? A. We have had less complaints from our customers. 5271

Q. As to what? A. When they bought a garment at a certain price, that it wasn't to be found at considerably lower prices in a copied garment.

Q. Couldn't be found where? A. In other stores.

Q. In other stores? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the only effect that you observed? A. I believe so.

Q. You have not observed any effect upon the volume of business done in your department? A. No.

Q. How many price lines of dresses do you have in your department? A. Well, they range from—according to the season of the year—as low as $5.95 up to the top.

Q. Do you have any separate departments for the different price ranges? A. Yes.

Q. What are they? A. Sir?

Q. How are they divided? A. Well, at the top you come down to $5.75, and from there down to about $17.50, and then the third division.

Q. That is, from $5.75 to $17.50? A. Pretty close to that, yes.

Q. I just want to make sure that I understood your 5273 testimony correctly. As I understood it, you put the warranty stamp on all orders, including the low price as well as the high priced garments? A. Yes.

Q. And now I also want to make sure that I understand your testimony correctly, that as a result of this co-operation and what you have done, you have observed no effect upon either the better priced dress departments, or the lower popular priced?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, Mr. Haycraft understood the witness thoroughly. There is no possible claim that he could be misunderstood in the fact that he said there was no effect whatsoever on his volume. I think Mr. Haycraft has been in this trial long enough to understand when a wit-5274 ness says in plain answer to a very plain and simple question and there can be no other inference placed upon the repetition of that question other than an attempt to get a different answer from his own witness. I think it was perfectly plain. It was a simple question. He got a simple, straightforward, honest answer.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to change your former statement in any way?

5275

The Witness: No, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will let it stand. I will sustain the objection.

W. E. MILLER was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

5276

Q. Mr. Miller, will you please state your name and address? A. W. E. Miller, 3024 Woodbury Road, Shaker Heights.

Q. Now, what is your occupation, Mr. Miller? A. I am the ready-to-wear merchandise manager — merchandise manager of ready-to-wear and ready-to-wear accessories, William Taylor Sons & Company.

Q. In what business is William Taylor & Sons engaged? A. Retailer.

Q. They operate more than one store? A. No, one store.

Q. What type of merchandise do they handle? A. We handle all types of merchandise; that is, a general line and apparel for women, children, men and also home furnishing lines.

5277

Q. Do you carry a full line of ladies' garments? A. We do.

Q. What are your duties as divisional merchandise manager of ready-to-wear and ready-to-wear accessories? A. To supervise and work with the buyers and in all of their buying and selling operations.

Q. Do your duties include any buying itself? A. They do not.

Q. Do you supervise the work of the buyers for your various departments? A. I do.

Q. Just what is your contact with the buyers? A. Well, it is a very close contact in this respect, that all of their buying and promotional operations are talked over with me.

Q. That is, before buying and after buying? A. That is correct.

Q. In other words, you consult with them before they do their buying and also afterwards, relative to the selling problems? A. And also relative to what they have purchased.

5279 Q. Do your buyers have anything to do with the sales in their respective departments? A. Yes, they do.

Q. If so, what are their duties, relative to sales, in their particular departments? A. It would be their responsibility to dispose of the merchandise after it is bought.

Q. Now, in the regular course of your business as divisional merchandise manager of ready-to-wear and ready-to-wear accessories, and in the course of the supervision of the buyers who work under you, do you, from time to time, make checks to determine what is the trend of business in your particular departments? A. Yes, continually.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, have you ever heard of an organization called the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. I have.

5280 Q. Do you recall when you first heard of it? A. The first time I recall of having heard of it was in the spring of 1933; that is, there is correspondence prior to that time, but I was not there.

Q. When did you, and by "you" I mean your employee, join or signify your intention to co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as calling for testimony not as yet in evidence; no proper foundation has been laid.

Mr. Martin: All right. I withdraw the question.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you ever signed a declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy, signifying that you would co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid, and calling for the conclusion of the witness.

Examiner Bennett: All right, overruled; you may answer.

5282

A. I have not personally signed.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. By "you" I mean the store. A. The store did sign it, yes.

Q. When did the store sign such a declaration?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to; the declaration is the best evidence of the date of the signing.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. In June, 1933.

By Mr. Martin. 5283

Q. In June, 1933. Now, from the time that Taylor's signed the declaration of co-operation in June, 1933, down to April of 1936, did Taylor's in any way, co-operate with the Guild in its activities? A. We did.

Q. In what way did you co-operate? A. We attempted to live up, to the best of our ability, to the clauses of the agreement that we had signed. We placed——

Q. Go ahead. A. We placed the warranty stamp as specified in that document of co-operation on all orders that were placed.

Q. Did you place the Guild warranty stamp on all orders? A. We did.

Q. Did any manufacturers refuse to accept orders because they contained this Guild stamp?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. He has personally testified he had nothing to do with the buying of the dresses, that he was reported to only through his buyers.

(Question read.)

5285

A. We have two instances that I know of definitely that that was done.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. In what price field were those manufacturers, if you know? A. $4.75 cost.

Q. Does the Fashion Originators Guild maintain a shopper in Cleveland? A. They do.

Q. Do you know her name? A. Yes, Mrs. Joseph.

Q. Who? A. Mrs. Joseph.

Q. Have you ever met her, or do you know her personally? A. I have met her in the course of business.

Q. Have you ever encountered her in the performance
5286 of her duties in your store? A. Yes.

Q. What was she doing? A. She had brought in information that had been forwarded to her from the Fashion Originators Guild, New York office, with reference to copies of dresses, and had located those copies in our stocks, and was calling it to our attention.

Q. Did she ever request you to return goods to the manufacturer? A. Occasionally.

Q. Is your ready-to-wear business divided into departments? A. Yes.

Q. What are those departments? A. In dresses?

Q. Yes, with reference to dresses? A. We have a department for women's dresses retailing at $12.95 and up; we have a department for misses' dresses retailing at $12.95 to $29.95; we have a department for misses' dresses retailing at $29.95 up as a duplication price line; we have a budget dress shop.

Mr. Albert: What was that last one?

Mr. Feldman: Budget.

The Witness: Budget. Budget dress shop, in which we carry dresses retailing at $6.95 through $10.95, and we have junior dresses which are included with junior coats at all prices, and we have 5288 sport dresses, which are included in our General Sportswear Department.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall when the Fashion Originators Guild shopper was appointed in Cleveland? A. We had a letter from Mr. Golby to that effect, I believe, dated February 25, 1935.

Q. Was your store ever red carded by the Fashion Originators Guild? A. It was.

Q. Do you recall when? A. Early in February of this year.

Q. Do you recall the reason for being red carded? A. We were never given a definite reason. 5289

Q. What, briefly, was your first knowledge that you had that your store had been red carded? A. It came to us through "Women's Wear."

Q. Did the Fashion Originators Guild notify you directly that you had been red carded? A. No.

Q. What other notice——

Mr. Albert: Was there an answer to that question?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Martin: Yes. He said "no."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What other notice besides reading it in "Women's Wear" did you get that your store had been red carded? A. We were informed by manufacturers when we went into the market.

Q. What did you do when you got notice of being red carded, if anything? A. I don't believe I quite understand your question.

Q. Well, let me see if I can change it. You have testified
5291 that the first notice that you had of being red carded was reading it in "Women's Wear"? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Following that, what action did your store take, if any? A. We sent our buyers into the market to find out what the situation was.

Q. Were your buyers denied access to Guild manufacturers, and by that I mean did Guild manufacturers refuse to display their lines to your buyers? A. Yes, they did.

Q. Can you testify as to the names of any of the buyers who were refused access by Guild manufacturers? A. The names of the buyers?

Q. Yes. A. Yes. Mrs. Williams, our misses' dress
5292 buyers, and Mrs. Howard, our women's dress buyer.

Mr. Albert: May I have the last answer?

(Answer read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall what manufacturer refused them access? A. There were a number of them. I recall a few. Rosen Brothers is one, International Dress, Bender & Hamburger, Milton Altmark, Feigenbaum & Edelson.

Mr. Albert: What was that last one?

The Witness: Feigenbaum & Edelson. Willie Bass. Those are all that I recall without refreshing my memory. If I could see a list perhaps I could tell you more.

Mr. Martin: Mark this.

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 470.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 470 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of the Guild manufacturers with whom we did business in 1935 and early spring 1936. 5294

(Commission's Exhibit 470 for Identification was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: That is objected to at the present time, if it please the Court, on the ground that there has been no proper foundation laid with respect to the accuracy of this list. The witness hasn't testified as to anything whatsoever with respect to it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who prepared this list, Mr. Miller? A. I did.

Q. You did not, you say? A. I did. 5295

Q. You did. Do you know of your own knowledge that this is a list of the Guild houses from whom purchases were made during 1935 and the spring of 1936? A. I do.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The list referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 470, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: Objection overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Mark this.

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 471.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 471 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of the purchases that were made in dollars of costs from Guild manufacturers during the period February 1, 1935, to February 1, 1936.

5297

Q. Did you prepare that list? A. It was prepared under my supervision and at my request.

Q. It was prepared under your supervision and at your request? You are satisfied that that is a correct statement? A. Right.

(The document was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: This is objected to upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The list referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 471, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

5298

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, you have testified that your store was red carded about the middle of February of this year. At the time that your store was red carded, did you have outstanding any orders for goods with manufacturers who were members of the Guild? A. Yes, we did.

Mr. Martin: Mark this.

(A document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 472.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 472 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of the outstanding orders at cost at the time that we were red carded.

Q. Was that prepared by you or under your supervision? A. It was prepared by me and under my supervision.

Q. You are satisfied as to the correctness of it? A. I am. 5300

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor.

(The paper was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being incompetent, no proper foundation having been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 472, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, I will ask you, Mr. Miller, were any of these orders which are shown on Commission's Exhibit 472 to have been outstanding with Guild manufacturers at the time your store was red carded ever filled subsequently to the red carding? A. They were not. 5301

Q. Since the time you were red carded in February of 1936, have you ever been able to buy any garments from Guild manufacturers from whom you had been buying previous to being red carded?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I think we have come to the time when Mr. Martin should refrain from asking leading questions. Up to the present time I haven't objected to the leading questions as a time saver, but I believe that we are now getting to information that may be very, very vital, and specific, and I suggest that he be admonished not to lead the witness. The question is obviously a most leading question.

Mr. Martin: I disagree with my friend, your Honor. I think that the question is entirely proper. I asked him a question which can be answered either "yes" or "no."

5303 Mr. Albert: Which is the hallmark of a leading question on direct examination, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: I think that the question is perfectly proper, wholly competent and relevant.

Examiner Bennett: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. No, we have not.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. When did you last attempt to do so? A. Within the 5304 space of one week after we were red carded.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, in what price range did you buy dresses from F.O.G.A. manufacturers? A. At the time——

Q. That is, I am speaking of prior to being red carded, of course. Prior period. A. From $6.75 cost up.

Q. In what price range were the bulk or the majority of your dresses bought?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for the conclusion of the witness; no proper foundation having been laid; no testimony here as to the ability of the witness to give us that estimate.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, he has testified that he has been in full and complete charge of the ready-to-wear division, and in supervision of the same, and as such has full knowledge of the activities of that department.

Mr. Albert: Without meaning any disrespect toward the witness, your Honor, if we are to judge his ability to testify from the mere fact that he has testified that he is divisional merchandise manager, from our experience with divisional merchandise managers in Boston and Philadelphia, I think he is 5306 perfectly incompetent to say anything whatsoever about it.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, possibly because divisional merchandise managers in Boston and Philadelphia didn't give the answers my friend would have liked them to have given——

Mr. Albert: I don't think they gave any answers, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: I still contend that it is not relevant to this gentleman's testimony. He has testified as to his position and as to his duties.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I don't think that the mere fact that he has stated that he is a divisional merchandise manager, in the light of your 5307 experience with divisional merchandise managers, does not cast any halo on his ability to testify as to what he is asked right now, and no foundation whatsoever has been laid for it. At least, I will say this much, he hasn't passed it on to his subordinates as yet, but before that happens I would like to know as to his ability to testify about it.

Examiner Bennett: Let us have the question.

Mr. Albert: Because, if you may remember, we let in a lot of evidence from others on the ground that we would get to the real facts from their subordinates, and then when we got to the subordinates we were thrown out altogether.

Examiner Bennett: What was the question that is pending?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you know?

The Witness: Yes, I do.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

5309 A. $10.75 through $16.75 cost.

Mr. Albert: $10.75 what?

The Witness: $10.75 through $16.75 cost.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know how long Guild membership has included manufacturers in the brackets under $10.75? A. Yes.

Q. How long have they included——

Mr. Albert: Same objection.

By Mr. Martin.

5310 Q. —those? A. The fall of 1935.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, you have named various departments of your dress business, women's dresses, misses' dresses, women's dresses at $12.95 up retail, misses' dresses $12.95 to $29.95 retail, misses' dresses $29.95 up retail, Budget Shop, which includes women's and misses' inexpensive dresses, $6.95 to $10.95 retail, the junior dress and coats and the sportswear. Do all of those departments handle Guild merchandise? A. They did.

Q. They did. I mean, prior to being red carded, did all of those departments handle Guild merchandise? And the answer? A. Yes. Right.

Q. Have you made any study of your business to determine the effect of being red carded on your store?

Mr. Albert. That is objected to, if it please the Court. No foundation having been laid. Being entirely irrelevant and a matter of conjecture, the effect on the business of the store of red carding. We are now pretty far afield.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

5312

A. We have.

Mr. Martin: Mark this.

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 473.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 473 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a record showing the volume increases or decreases by months through February, through June of this year, for the total store for each of the departments mentioned by you and for the total better dress departments, which constitute women's, misses', women's and misses' better dresses. 5313

Q. Was this prepared by you under your supervision? A. Prepared by me.

Q. Are you satisfied as to the correctness of it? A. I am.

Q. Of the exhibit?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 473, can you testify definitely and specifically with respect to the figures therein contained? A. Yes, I can.

Q. Can you testify definitely and specifically with respect to the various factors that led either to an increase or decrease in the various departments? A. I believe so.

Q. Can you testify from first-hand knowledge with respect to the component departments that make up the total store estimates of advances or decreases? A. I am sorry. I didn't get your question.

Q. Can you tell us specifically what departments were 5315 considered in reaching the figure with respect to the total store as contained in Commission's Exhibit 473? A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Have you the figures with respect to all other departments? A. I have at my access.

Q. Of the store? A. Right.

Q. Have you the figures for 1935? A. I have.

Q. The specific figures? A. I have.

Q. Can you further identify these department numbers with——

Mr. Martin: I will get to that.

Q. (By Mr. Albert) With the particular department that you have testified to? A. I can.

5316 Q. How did you obtain these figures? How did you reach them? A. Obtained them from the records.

Q. Well, what specifically, do they represent? A. They represent the percentage either of increase or decrease of sales of that period.

Q. Did you take those off the sales slips? A. Took them off of the annual summary of sales.

Q. You haven't any annual summary of sales for 1936 yet, have you? A. I have the monthly summaries. I beg your pardon. They are monthly summaries taken from each month's report. I am sorry.

Q. Does this represent volume of units sold, or does it represent— A. It represents——

Q. —dollar value? A. Dollars.

Mr. Albert: I renew my objection, if it please the Court, upon the ground that——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Not subject to computation.

(The document referred to, herefore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 473, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.) 5318

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Miller, referring to Commission's Exhibit 473, I notice on the first line is marked "Total Store" and in the first column there is a figure 37.02. What does that—just explain that figure, what it means.

Mr. Albert: Have you got another copy?

Mr. Martin: No.

Mr. Albert: Do you mind if I look over your shoulder?

Mr. Martin: No.

A. It means the increase in volume for the total store in dollars this year over last year for the month of February. 5319

By Mr. Martin.

Q. And I suppose the figures under March, April, May and June in that same line refer to this same thing? A. They do.

Q. Now, Department 330, what department is that? A. That is women's dresses, $12.95 and up.

Q. Department 335? A. Misses' dresses, $39.95 and up.

Q. Department 350? A. Misses' dresses, $12.95 to $29.95.

Q. Department 360? A. Budget dresses, women's and misses', $6.95 through $10.95.

Q. Department 371? A. Junior dresses and coats.

Q. Department 380? A. Sports wear.

Q. In the first column marked "F bruary," under Department 330, there is in parentheses—there are in parentheses the figures 5.73. What does that mean? A. That is the same as red figures. It means a decrease.

Q. Do I understand that all figures in the exhibit which 5321 are included in parentheses means decreases? A. That is correct.

Q. And figures that are not in parentheses mean increases? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, on the bottom line there is a heading, "Total Better Dresses, Departments 330, 335 and 350," and under the month of February there are the figures 22.7. What does that mean? A. It means in the sum of those three departments we showed an increase for the month of February in dollars over last year of 22.7 per cent.

Q. And in the next column what does that show? A. That shows a 1.1 per cent. decrease for the same departments over the same period.

Q. And in the next column, April? A. That shows a 5322 20.2 decrease for the same departments this year as against last year for the month of April.

Q. And in the column marked "May"? A. That shows a 31.2 increase.

Q. And in the column marked "June"? A. A 14.7 increase.

Q. Can you explain the fact that in the month of March and in the month of April there were decreases, while in the months of May and June those three departments showed an increase?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. There is no proper foundation laid, calling for the conclusion of the witness, and the exhibit speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: The question is whether you can explain it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Can you explain that? A. Yes.

Q. What is your explanation? 5324

Mr. Albert: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. The month of March, from a study of our unit control record, the month of March we found that certain price lines in which we were strongest in our purchases were Guild houses showed radical decreases for the months of March, for the month of April; for the months of May and June we dropped down in our prices in those same departments so that we dropped below the price lines in which we were greatest affected. Consequently, we were able to show better results in May and June, proportionately, than we were in March and April.

Q. Now, referring to the exhibit, what did the total store 5325 show for the month of February, 1936, as compared with the same month of 1935? A. The total store?

Q. Yes. A. 37.02 per cent. increase.

Q. What did the total better dress show for the same month? A. 2.7 per cent. increase.

Q. Now, referring to the month of March, what did the total store show for the month of March, 1936, as compared with the month of March, 1935?

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, now that the figures have been explained as to the various significances of them, all he is doing is reading them off from the record.

Mr. Martin: Well, to save time I will withdraw that.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, you have testified that the lower-priced manufacturers became members of the Guild in the fall of 1935?

5327 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. There is no such testimony.

Mr. Martin: All right.

Mr. Albert: The witness did not testify as to that.

Mr. Martin: I think he did, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: He testified that they were members of the Guild during all of 1935.

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennet: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Prior to that time where did you buy your lower-5328 priced garments? A. I am sorry. I don't understand your question.

Q. Prior to the early fall of 1935 when the lower-priced manufacturers became members of the Guild, from whom did you buy your lower-priced garments?

Examiner Bennett: From what class of manufacturers?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. From what class of manufacturers? A. From manufacturers who were organized in the market to produce that market.

Q. Were they Guild or non-Guild members—manufacturers? A. They were non-Guild manufacturers up until the time they became members of the Guild.

Q. And did you, during this period of the fall of 1935, use the Guild warranty stamp on orders for lower-priced goods? A. We did.

Q. Can you testify as to when you were first called upon to return merchandise to the manufacturers? A. Not the exact date, no. 5330

Q. Approximately? A. It was prior to the employing of the shopper in Cleveland, that is all I can tell you. Up to that time we had been informed of copies by letter and telegrams that it was urgent.

Examiner Bennett: Have you some further direct examination, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: I think I have quite a bit more, your Honor. It is after 4.30, and——

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I think we best adjourn until to-morrow morning.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

The Witness: 10 o'clock to-morrow morning?

Examiner Bennett: 10 o'clock to-morrow morning at this place. 5331

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 11, 1936, the hearing was adjourned.)

Court Room No. 307,
Federal Building,
Cleveland, Ohio,
August 12, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

5333 M. A. ALBERT, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., and HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: You may resume the stand, Mr. Miller.

W. E. MILLER resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

5334

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, what percentage of the dresses in your women's and misses' ready-to-wear departments were purchased from Guild sources?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court. No proper foundation has been laid.

Mr. Martin: Perfectly good foundation has been laid. It does not need any argument on my part.

Examiner Bennett: I think the record already shows that he has made an investigation of that particular situation. Go ahead and answer, if you know.

A. We have studied our records, and from the indication from the records of purchases from Guild houses compared with other purchases in those price lines, we have estimated it runs between 60 and 75 per cent., depending upon the departments.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Depending upon the departments? A. Depending upon the departments. 5336

Mr. Albert: I move the answer be stricken out. It is not responsive to the question. The question was with respect to a specific department, not general.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, the question was as to his women's and misses' dress departments. His answer that it was from 60 to 75 per cent., varying with the different departments.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. He spoke of price lines. I wish you would develop that, what he means.

Read the answer.

(Answer read.)

5337

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Just what do you mean, Mr. Miller, by saying, compared with other goods in the same price lines? A. I have reference to the price lines covered by Guild houses.

Q. Do you mean by that that in the price lines covered by Guild houses you also bought some merchandise from non-Guild houses? A. I do.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, your store, did it at all times co-operate with the Guild in its activities? A It did.

Mr. Albert: May we have a time fixed, if the Court please.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. During the time it was a member of the Guild, during the time of its affiliation, or from the time of signing the Declaration of Co-operation until you were red carded, did you at all times co-operate? A. We did.

Q. Did you ever refuse to return any garments when 5339 requested?

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, there is no testimony so far that they have been requested to return any.

Mr. Martin: I think there was from his testimony yesterday——

Examiner Bennett: That is my recollection.

Mr. Martin: —to that effect.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. You may answer. A. Yes, we did co-operate. We did not refuse to return any garments.

(A document was thereupon marked for identification "Commission's Exhibit 474.")

5340

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 474 for Identification, and ask you can you identify that? A. Yes, I can.

Q. Will you describe it, please?

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I object to any description of anything that is not in evidence.

Mr. Martin: Well, let him say what it is.

A. It is a telegram addressed to the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. From whom? A. From six stores in Cleveland.

Q. Were you one of those six stores? A. We were.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 474.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification "Commission's Exhibit 474," was 5342 marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, have you made any study to determine the effect upon your store of being red carded? A. We have.

Q. What has been the effect of red carding so far as your ability to purchase ladies' and misses' garments?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if the Court please. There has been no foundation laid. I would like to know what his study has been before I accept his conclusions of an opinion as to what the effect has been. He may have studied the Cleve- 5343. land "Press" or "Daily Dispatch" or New York "Journal" to find out what the effect has been.

Examiner Bennett: I think that is a matter for cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: May I point out I would like to know it beforehand so it does not go into the evidence. We can save a lot of time. He may be perfectly unqualified to give his opinion on it. Why should that evidence go into the record with the effect upon the record and then have it stricken out if he is unqualified to testify on it?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

A. We have been unable to purchase from resources with whom we had done a sizeable volume of business.

Q. What has been the effect of red carding so far as the good will of your customers is concerned? A. We have been unable to furnish the same type of merchandise that we had before.

Q. What has been the effect on your store so far as your 5345 competitive standing with other merchants engaged in the same line of business in Cleveland——

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please——

Q. (Continuing) ——is concerned?

Mr. Albert (continuing): If it please the Court, there has been absolutely no foundation laid for this particular question. There has been no evidence whatsoever as to what investigation he has made of the competitive practice in Cleveland, of what the other stores have been doing, or what they have customarily been doing of a contrast between the volume of Taylor's and the other stores; and there has absolutely been no foundation laid for his 5346 giving his opinion. With all due respect, I think the stenographer is just as capable of giving an opinion, as far as the record is concerned, as this witness is at the present time. We are having opinions taken out of the air here.

I think we found in the past that being a divisional merchandise manager doesn't clothe a person with knowledge.

Mr. Martin: I thought you admitted yesterday that this particular divisional merchandise manager knew what he was talking about. I thought I heard you make that remark as you went out of the court room yesterday.

Mr. Albert: I may have made a remark that I was thankful that he hadn't been appointed divisional merchandise manager on February 1st of 1936.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask the witness a question here. I will ask the witness a question which may settle this debate.

5348

By the Examiner.

Q. Is it part of your job to keep yourself informed on competitive conditions in your line in Cleveland? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Do you keep yourself informed? A. Yes, I do.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

Mr. Albert: May I ask a question, if it please the Court?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, if you want to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In what way do you keep yourself informed, Mr. Miller? Just exactly what do you do? A. Shopping other stores continuously. 5349

Q. In what way do you shop them?

Examiner Bennett: I think that is cross-examination, proper cross-examination. I will shut it off right here.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: You may answer, Mr. Miller.

The Witness: May we have the question again?

Mr. Martin: Will you read the question back to him?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter as follows: "What has been the effect on your store so far as your competitive standing with other merchants engaged in the same line of business in Cleveland is concerned?")

The Witness: They have had access to the best houses in the market and we haven't.

By Mr. Martin.

5351 Q. Have you had to replace the lines which you formerly handled with other sources of—from other sources of supply? A. We have.

Q. Do you consider the sources of supply now available to you of equal standing with your former sources of supply? A. No.

Q. Have you been unable to supply your customers with the former grade of merchandise which you formerly handled? A. I don't understand what you mean by "grade."

Q. Well, we will change the word "grade" to "quality." A. I think so.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

5352

Q. For how long have you been division merchandise manager, Mr. Miller? A. Since April, 1929.

Q. Were you with Taylor & Company before that period? A. I was not.

Q. Have you any duties whatsoever with respect to the actual purchasing of dresses? A. Will you qualify that?

Q. Well, do you in any way assist the buyers in actually purchasing dresses? A. Yes, I go into the market with them periodically.

Q. How often did you go into the market, and which market are you referring to? A. I am referring primarily to the New York market. I go in approximately once a month.

Q. You mean that your go down to New York on an average of once a month to assist in purchasing the dresses? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you visit the various manufacturers in New York? A. I do.

Q. And inspect their lines? A. I do.

Q. Would you say that for the most part your duties in connection with the various departments over which you have control is of a statistical nature? A. No. 5354

Q. Would you say your duties were— A. Of a general nature.

Q. Well, specifically with respect to what? A. Specifically with respect to their buying and selling operations.

Q. You say that you don't personally buy? A. No.

Q. Isn't it your function to correlate the figures of the various departments, contrast and compare them with previous years and by virtue of that contrast and comparison lay down policies for the future guidance of the department? A. That is a part of the work.

Q. Yes. And as such you are thorough familiar with the various figures in the departments, are you not? A. I am.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibits 470, 471 and 472? 5355

(The exhibits referred to were handed to Mr. Albert.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Commission's Exhibit 470, in evidence, is a list of the Guild houses from whom purchases were made during 1935 and the spring of 1936; is that correct? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. And is that a complete list of all the Guild houses with whom you did business during that period of time? A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. Didn't you check it carefully? A. Yes.

Q. You went over your list, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Is there any possibility that you have omitted any? A. Not that I can see.

Q. That is, as far as your records are concerned, this reveals every single Guild house that you did business with during that period of time? A. That is true.

Q. Now, Commission's Exhibit 471 is a list of the Guild houses from whom purchases were made together with 5357 the cost figures of those purchases; is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And that, I assume, follows Commission's Exhibit 470? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Why do you say "not necessarily"? A. Because the list of purchases at cost includes merchandise received during February, early February, 1936. The list—the other list includes, I believe, as the heading states, only the Guild houses with whom we did business during the year 1935.

Q. Well, Commission's Exhibit 470 is entitled "Guild Houses from whom purchases were made during 1935, and spring, 1936." And this includes only the year 1935 (indicating).

Q. Commission's Exhibit 471 is headed "Guild Pur-5358 chases, February 1, 1935 to February 1, 1936." A. Correct.

Q. So that— A. Meaning——

Q. So that it does— A. —the purchases that were made that might have been made in early February, 1936, are not included on this list that you have now in your hand.

Q. Well, did you make any purchases from Guild houses after February 1, 1936? A. We received merchandise—our records, you see, cost records are not posted until merchandise is actually received in our store.

Q. Now, with respect to Commission's Exhibit 471, which contains the cost figures, are there any houses listed on that list who are not on Commission's Exhibit 470? A. I am not prepared to say. If you will let me examine the records I will tell you.

Q. Let me put it this way: Would all the houses listed on Commission's Exhibit 470 be listed on Commission's Exhibit 471? A. Will you state that question again?

(Question read.)

A. I am not prepared to say. I haven't checked those two records definitely together.

Q. Weren't the two records—weren't the two lists compiled from the same records? A. The second list was compiled from the first list, yes. 5360

Q. Well, that is what I mean. So that this—so that Commission's Exhibit 471—I withdraw it. The figures on Commission's Exhibit 471 could very easily have been contained opposite the houses listed on Commission's Exhibit 470, couldn't they? A. With the exception——

Mr. Martin: Object.

A. With the exception that I have stated.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I notice that the firm of Matthes-Kadetsky Company of Boston is a concern from whom purchases were made in 1935 and in the spring of 1936; is that right? A. If that is the list. 5361

Q. Well, don't you know it aside from the fact it is on the list? A. I haven't my records available here. One list was prepared from the records, and I haven't those with me.

Q. Didn't you state that you personally prepared these records? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you recall you took Matthews-Kadetsky Company off your records?

Mr. Martin: I object. He has testified these were made and he cannot recall the names of all those people on that list, some two pages of typewritten names. I don't think counsel ought to expect him to memorize this list.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, will you have those records available this afternoon, Mr. Miller? A. I would have to consult my firm about that.

5363 Q. Well, you would not want to conceal anything, would you? A. I am not making any effort to.

Q. You would want to show the Commission exactly how you prepared this list, wouldn't you?

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, we are going back into that same old question. I would like to ask the Court at this time to advise the witness as to his rights in the matter. Counsel is requesting the production of papers which are not here, and I would like to have your Honor advise the witness as to his rights.

Examiner Bennett: I am simply advising him, as I have other witnesses in similar circumstances, that he is under no obligation to produce anything 5364 that he has not produced on direct examination; but so far as the Examiner is concerned if the witness cares to accommodate the respondent by producing the things they ask for, he is under no obligation.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you been subpoenaed to attend this hearing Mr. Miller? A. I have.

Q. Did the Commission request you to bring certain records here? A. (No response.)

Q. Did you discuss your testimony before you came in with either Mr. Haycraft or Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: I object to that.

Mr. Albert: I think it is most relevant, especially at the impasse I have reached. I don't think I am required to take this man's figures on their face.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. I want to say something with regard to that. It is assumed that any experienced lawyer will not offer a witness to any tribunal without knowing whether that witness' testimony is going to be of some importance and some weight in the record as bearing upon the issues which are at stake. 5366

Mr. Albert: Naturally.

Examiner Bennett: There is only one way of finding that out and that is by consulting the witness and knowing in general what he has to say. We will assume, in all this inquiry, that the Commission's attorneys know approximately what their witnesses are going to say. I am speaking now of testimony other than some passing upon public opinion where it is necessary to get the witness without knowing anything about what he has to say. I assume that when the respondents present their case, they will know what the witness is going to say, at least approximately. I think it would be a very poor compliment to the tribunal to have any other state of affairs. Now, let us assume that that is true and let us go ahead. 5367

Mr. Albert: I did not for one moment, by the question, mean to imply that the Commission had not consulted with its witnesses beforehand, nor did I mean to cast any reflection upon them for it.

I am trying to find out what happened with respect to these records in order to know where they are and how I can get at them. I do not think, under any system of procedure, administrative or judicial in the legal sense, that I am required to accept this man's figures at their face value without being given an opportunity to go into them and finding out what they are.

Examiner Bennett: There is no way you can get them on cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: May it please the court, the Commission certainly had the right to subpoena this man to bring them into court, and if he refuses to do that they are subject to Section 10 of the Federal Trade Commission. If the Commission is trying to get the facts, and not to prosecute or persecute, he ought to bring them in. They have had sufficient experience in Philadelphia and Boston to see what is going on with respect to these witnesses from department stores who come in and present figures and do not present records when we try to examine them. What kind of evidence is that going to look like before the Circuit Court or any other tribunal. I don't think they can place much credence in a man that comes in and gives us figures and won't give us the basis on which he computed those figures.

Examiner Bennett: I have said what I have to say. I think when the proper time comes you can subpoena those records if you can make the correct foundation for it, but this is not the proper time.

Mr. Albert: Well, now——

Examiner Bennett: I think you are hardly in a position to dictate what the Commission's attorneys want to offer in their case. If they do not offer an adequate proof of their case, why, it is too bad for them, that is all.

Mr. Albert: But, your Honor, we are being placed in this position. I think it must be conceded that as far as those figures are concerned, we should have the privilege of cross-examining. Before we have that privilege we have to come back to Cleveland.

Examiner Bennett: You have that privilege. We are not going into an audit of those books. You can fill up the record with that stuff if you want to, but I don't see that it is going to serve you at all. 537

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I notice, Mr. Miller, that Commission's Exhibit 470, Matthes-Kadetsky Company of Boston, was listed as a house from whom purchases were made by Taylor during 1935 and the spring of 1936. Do you want to follow me on the exhibit (indicating)? A. Yes.

Q. Matthes-Kadetsky is among the affiliated members? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, despite the fact that you purchased merchandise from them during the spring of 1935 and 1936, I notice that they are not included in your Commission's Exhibit 471 with respect to the amount of purchases made from them. Can you explain that? A. That is possible. 537

Q. Well, I know it is possible. There are many reasons why it can be possible. I would like to know what your explanation is. A. I have no recollection of it.

Q. Can you find out for us between now and this afternoon? A. I suppose I could.

Q. Will you do it? A. If it does not involve bringing in a lot of records here, which I have no right to do. If all you want to know is whether or not there is an error in these two lists, I will verify that for you.

Q. You want to offer these various figures—You went over these various figures and lists with Counsel for the Commission, didn't you? A. No.

Q. Did not you discuss them with them? A. I handed them to him.

Q. You just handed it to him in complete form? A. That is right.

Q. He did not go over the records with you? A. He did not.

Q. So that, in so far as the Commission is concerned, they have no knowledge of the accuracy of those records except the fact that you told them they are accurate? A.
5375 I am not prepared to testify to that.

Q. That is so; they have not seen the original records?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Mr. Albert: There is certainly no trade secret revealed.

Examiner Bennett: Will you sit down until this other gentleman gets through?

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Mr. Martin: The witness has put in these exhibits. He has testified how they were made up. He has testified to the best of his knowledge and belief that they are correct, and the exhibits speak for themselves.

Mr. Albert: I suppose we are supposed to lay 5376 down and take the figures without doing anything about it.

Mr. Martin: Not at all. You can cross-examine him all you please.

Mr. Albert: Well, then, permit me to cross-examine.

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

Mr. Albert: Will you answer the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: There is an objection to that.

Mr. Martin: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Aside from anyone connected with Taylor & Company, has anyone from the Commission checked the accuracy of these records?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. 5378

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. On Commission's Exhibit 470; in evidence, under members of Dress Creators League I notice the name New York Dress Company? A. Correct.

Q. Can you find that dress company with the amount of purchases made from it on Commission's Exhibit 471? A. No.

Q. Have you any explanation for that? A. Not without consulting the record.

Q. On Commission's Exhibit 470, under members of the Dress Creators League, I notice that Reich Goldfarb is listed as a party from whom you purchased goods during 1935 and '36. Do you find that? It is down near the bottom. A. Yes. 5379

Q. Will you please find that name listed for me on Commission's Exhibit No. 471? A. I do not find it.

Q. Is there any explanation as to why, if you purchased goods from them during 1935, the amount of that purchase is not included in Commission's Exhibit 471? A. I am not prepared to say.

Q. I also notice on Commission's Exhibit 470, Franklin House of Chicago. A. Right.

Q. Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please find that for me on Commission's Exhibit 471? A. No, it is not there.

Q. Is there any explanation for it? A. Not without consulting the record.

Q. Now, with all of these various concerns, with whom you did business in 1935, there is not any doubt but what you did business with them in 1935? A. The ones——

Q. You seem to hesitate.

Mr. Martin: Give him a chance.

5381

A. Not the ones that are listed here definitely as having been purchased from.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have a staff of accountants and clerical assistants in Taylor & Company, have you not? A. I have a staff of clerical assistants.

Q. Clerical assistants? A. Yes.

Q. There are also, I presume, accountants who can be made available to you at your request? A. Correct.

Q. Is it not customary for them to draw up lists of this kind?

5382

Mr. Martin: I object to what is customary for somebody else to do.

Mr. Albert: Laying a foundation, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: For whom?

(Record read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he knows.

The Witness: Will you read the question back again?

Q. (Question again read.) A. The original list of Guild houses with whom we did business was made out by me personally and was turned over to the accounting division at my request to draw up the list of actual dollars purchased from these houses, and was submitted to me at my request.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you give them any instructions as to how to prepare Commission's Exhibit No. 471? A. Of what nature? 5384

Q. Did you give them any instructions? A. I do not quite understand your question.

Q. Well, you told them to prepare a list for you. A. Yes.

Q. What were your instructions with respect to that list that they were to prepare? A. To prepare a list of cost purchases from those houses.

Q. From the houses that you gave them, listed on No. 470? A. That is right.

Q. When the list that they gave you was handed back to you, that is when Commission's Exhibit 471, in evidence, was given to you by your accountants as an accurate compilation of the purchases of Guild houses, did you compare it with Commission's Exhibit 470, your own list? A. I did not compare it resource for resource. In other words, I did not take the resources list and go down one by one and compare it. I did go over this resource list to see that the houses included in here were houses that were familiar to me as being the ones that we had done business with. 5385

Q. That is, you merely looked at No. 471, in order to see if the houses therein contained were familiar to you as being Guild houses? A. Correct.

Q. But you didn't compare it with your own list in order to check on the accuracy of Commission's Exhibit 471? A. I did not check as to the list, resource by resource. I did not.

Q. With respect to all of the estimates and figures that you have been giving us up to the present time, have you just as carefully checked the accuracy of those figures as you have with respect to 470 and 471? A. No. I think I have been accurate in my statements so far.

Q. Have you been as accurate in your other figures in checking their accuracy as you have been with respect to Commission's Exhibits 470 and 471? A. I think I have been more accurate.

Q. That is, you hope you have? A. I think I have.

Q. Well, you obviously had no idea whatsoever of the accuracy of Commission's Exhibit 471; did you? A. I wouldn't say that.

Q. Well, you don't mean to tell me that if you had checked Commission's Exhibit 471 with Exhibit 470 you wouldn't have seen the errors? A. Commission's Exhibit 471 is correct.

Q. As far as it goes, perhaps. A. Commission's Exhibit 471 is correct.

Q. Yes. But you stated that you gave your accountants and your clericals, or whoever it was that drew up Commission's Exhibit 471, instructions to get the actual purchases of the houses listed in Commission's Exhibit 470; didn't you? A. That is right.

5388

Q. Now, there are approximately four or five houses contained on Commission's Exhibit 470 that are not contained on Commission's Exhibit 471. A. That is right.

Q. So that if your clericals and accountants upon whom you relied for your information to a great extent—they made a grevious error; isn't that so? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Well, obviously, they discarded certain houses that you thought were important; isn't that so? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Well, you prepared Commission's Exhibit No. 470; didn't you? A. I did.

Q. You thought that all the houses therein contained were required to be on that list; didn't you? A. I did.

Q. You didn't give them any instructions to leave any houses off of that list; did you? A. I did not.

Q. You specifically told them to take those houses and give the actual purchases of those houses, isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. Well, now, let me ask you this, Mr. Miller. I notice that Commission's Exhibit 470 is divided into various component parts of affiliated members, members of the dress creators league, and in all there are three different 5390 lists on Commission's Exhibit 470? A. That is correct.

Q. When we turn to Commission's Exhibit 471, we find all of the houses listed alphabetically without this distinction as to classification? A. That is right.

Q. Do you think your clericals thought that the error might be overlooked? A. No.

Q. By reason of that re-classification of your list? A. No. No.

Q. Did they like their classification better; do you know? A. It is an alphabetical classification that the ledger cards are set up with—in.

Q. You asked them to get up a list of purchases in conformity with your list; didn't you? A. That is correct.

Q. Wouldn't it have been very simple for them merely to 5391 put down the purchases along side the names on your list? A. Yes. Yes, but not necessary.

Q. I mean, it would have been very simple; wouldn't it? A. It could have been done.

Q. Don't you think that there is some serious question as to the necessity of preparing an entirely new list in a different form than your list, especially when an error creeps up in it?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to this line of questioning. The witness has testified that he furnished the clerical department with a list of names on which he wanted information. Now, I submit that it is wholly immaterial whether the clerical department went through their files and picked them out alphabetically, or whether they did them this way and whether they did them that way or the other way, as long as the information was furnished.

Mr. Albert: That is just the point.

Mr. Martin: It is immaterial.

5393 Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, Mr. Miller asked his clericals or accountants for information and didn't even see fit to determine specifically and accurately whether they gave him the information he wanted, and yet he comes in before this tribunal and vouches for the accuracy of the records that have been presented to him, and on a very simple examination of it, merely a compilation of lists, we find five names missing from the one list as regards the other, and yet we are supposed to depend upon testimony of that kind to determine an issue of this kind, and I can't get their figures and the Commission won't assist me in getting their figures on a simple little matter like this. God knows what errors have been made on their more vital figures.

5394 Examiner Bennett: I take these to be their figures (indicating Commission's Exhibits 470 and 471).

Mr. Albert: I am sorry. I didn't hear your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I say, I take these to be their figures (indicating).

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, will you turn to Commission's Exhibit 472. A. I don't have that.

Q. (Commission's Exhibit 472 was handed to the witness.) When did you say Taylor & Company was read carded? A. I am not sure of the date. I can give you the approximate date.

Q. What is your approximate of the date? A. About February 16 or 17.

Q. Well, now, you knew that you were coming in here to testify; didn't you? A. Yes, surely.

Q. You knew that one of the main subjects of this investigation was a red carding of Taylor & Company; 5396 didn't you?

Mr. Martin: If your Honor, please, I object to this. The witness has testified that he doesn't know the exact date, and it is further in the record he testified that they were never notified by the Guild or any other person that they were red carded; that the first knowledge they had was what they saw in Women's Wear, and he has testified it was around the middle of February, but he doesn't know the accurate, the exact date, and, obviously, he wouldn't know it when they had received no notification of it from the Guild.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, it seems to me that it is the philosophy of Government's counsel in this case with respect to our rights in the matter, that we should come in and listen to testimony and then walk out and do nothing at all about it. I think I have a perfect right to find out why this man doesn't know information that is of vital importance to him, why he hasn't found it out before he came in here to testify. It certainly is the province of cross-examination to attack the credibility of a witness. 5397

Mr. Martin: I have no objection to counsel asking questions, but I do want him to ask the proper questions.

Mr. Albert: Well, we differ as to what is a proper question.

Mr. Martin: That is the point I want the Judge to rule on. Not you.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Albert: Merely a preliminary question, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: What is it preliminary to, if you don't mind.

5399

Mr. Albert: The witness, I believe, is very intelligent, your Honor, and knows exactly what my next question will be, and I have no hesitancy in telling it to him. Why, if this were so important and he knew he was going to testify, didn't he in one minute's time over at his firm take the time to find out when he was red carded so that he could testify definitely to it?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: That is a very simple issue, because I am going to show that they don't want to find out things.

Examiner Bennett: I think the testimony is that the red carding, the subject of the red carding——

5400

Mr. Albert: That may be so, your Honor, I haven't reached——

Examiner Bennett: It is something within the knowledge of the respondent, absolutely.

Mr. Albert: Now, your Honor, that may be so. I haven't reached that point.

Examiner Bennett: It isn't of any crucial importance here as to what date it occured, so far as I can see. I think I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, the particular date is not of any crucial importance in this proceeding, but as regards the credibility of this witness and his frankness in giving testimony, it is important to show that despite the fact that he knew the importance of the matter, yet he didn't think it necessary to find out specifically what day it was, which was a matter very easily found out by anybody.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. The matter isn't important. I have listened to what you have had to say. I am going to sustain the objections to that particular inquiry. I think you have all of the 5402 information, and I think it bears not at all upon the credibility of this witness.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When would you say was the approximate time that Taylor & Company was red carded, Mr. Miller? A. Around February 15 or thereabouts.

Q. When did you make your purchases of merchandise for delivery during the month of February, 1936, approximately? A. Some time during the month of January.

Q. That would be within the period from January 1st, 1935 to February 1, 1936; would it not?

Mr. Martin: January 1, 1936. 5403

A. Will you please restate that?

Mr. Albert: I will withdraw that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That would be between the period January 1, 1936, to February 1, 1936, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Will you turn to Commission's Exhibit No. 472. A. (Witness does as requested.)

Q. You will notice under Department 330— A. Right.

Q. —you have listed Rosen Brothers. A. Right.

Q. As an order outstanding at the time of red carding? A. Correct.

Q. Will you please find Rosen Brothers listed as a Guild resource from whom you made a purchase during 1935-1936 as found in either Commission's Exhibit No. 470 or Commission's Exhibit No. 471?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to that. That question is obviously unfair.

5405 Here is a list, Commission's Exhibits, of orders outstanding. The other list contains purchases. There is quite a distinction between orders and purchases.

Mr. Albert: I fail to see the distinction, if it please the Court, unless the William Taylor & Company is coming in here and attempting to set up some vague strong man that we are not supposed to pierce.

Mr. Martin: In other words, your Honor, this is a list of purchases, the amount of money which was spent by Taylor for these goods. This other list, Commission's Exhibit 472, is an amount of orders which they testified they couldn't get filled.

5406 Therefore, if the orders were filled, the purchases—the orders were not filled. The purchases were not made and obviously would not appear on that list.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Miller, let's start back a little further. Did you make any purchases from Rosen Brothers during 1935 and 1936, prior to your red carding? A. Yes.

Q. You did? A. Yes.

Q. So that your orders for $93.25, $10.75, $2.60, and $10.75 were not the first orders that you gave to Rosen Brothers, were they? A. No.

Q. Will you explain Rosen Brothers cannot be found in Commission's Exhibit 470 or Commission's Exhibit 471? A. Commission's Exhibit 470 does contain Rosen Brothers.

Q. Commission's Exhibit 470? A. Yes.

Q. I am sorry. I meant to say Commission's Exhibit 471. A. Commission's Exhibit 471 also contains Rosen Brothers to the extent of $8,189, the largest single purchase on there.

Q. Well, now, will you turn to Department 350. A. On which exhibit, if you please? 5408

Q. On Commission's Exhibit 472. A. Right.

Q. What does Deb. Mode refer to? A. Deb. Mode?

Q. Yes. A. It refers to a manufacturer, and it is an error. I am sorry.

Q. It is an error? A. It is an error.

Q. Did you check that exhibit before you brought it into court? A. I did, but I overlooked it.

Q. Are there any other errors that you might have overlooked? A. No.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. Positive.

Q. Are you making an error when you say you haven't made any other errors? A. No.

Q. Will you look at Lipman Brothers listed on Commission's Exhibit 472? A. Yes.

Q. Is that contained on Commission's Exhibit 471? 5409

Mr. Martin: The same objection, your Honor, that I previously made. It is two lists of different things.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You may answer. A. No.

Q. Do you find it on Commission's Exhibit 470? A. I do not.

Q. So that when you stated in response to my questions after you had admitted an error with respect to Deb. Mode that there couldn't possibly be any other error in the exhibit as listed— A. In Exhibit——

Q. —you were mistaken? A. In Exhibit 472 I was testifying to.

Q. Yes. A. That is correct.

Q. You were mistaken? A. No, I was not mistaken. It is not an error. Commission's Exhibit 472 is correct with the exception of the error that I pointed out to you.

Q. Well, then, Commission's Exhibit 470 and 471 are in error; isn't that so? A. There is an omission.

5411 Q. Omission. Well, we will use your word for it. Now, Mr. Miller, you testified yesterday, I believe, that none of the orders contained in Commission's Exhibit 472 were at any time filled; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Is Commission's Exhibit 472—does that represent a list of all orders that were outstanding at the time of the red carding? A. To the best of my knowledge, and I prepared the list.

Q. That is, on or about February 16 or 18, 1936, the date of the red carding that you approximately gave, there were no other orders outstanding except the ones contained in Commission's Exhibit 472? A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. And since those orders were not filled, then no orders of any kind outstanding at February 18, 1936, were filled;
5412 is that correct?

Mr. Martin: I object to that.

A. No, that isn't correct.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. On or about the date of the red carding, did you have orders outstanding with any other firms except the firm—in addition to the firms listed in Commission's Exhibit 472?

Mr. Martin: I object to that question, your Honor. That is not in proper form. If he wants to ask, "Did you have any other orders outstanding with any other Guild manufacturers," that is perfectly correct, but whether they had orders with—

Mr. Albert: I will accept Mr. Martin's amendment.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may answer.

The Witness: Will you read the question, please?

(Question read as follows: "Q. On or about the 5414 date of the red carding, did you have orders outstanding with any other firms in addition to the firms listed in Commission's Exhibit 472? Mr. Martin's amendment was: Did you have any other orders outstanding with any other Guilld manufacturers?")

The Witness: To the best of my knowledge, we did not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you have carefully checked your records in order to give us a complete list of all Guild houses? A. I——

Q. Will you please wait until I finish the question? Your have carefully checked your records to give us a 5415 complete list of all Guild houses that owed you merchandise at the time of the red carding? A. I checked over all orders that were open at that time.

Q. Do I understand you correctly that you have never received any merchandise from the houses listed on Commission's Exhibit No. 472 with respect to the orders that were outstanding at the time of the red carding?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as repetition. The witness has already testified two or three times that these orders were not filled.

Mr. Albert: The answer "Yes" would have been less awkward than Mr. Martin's objection, I think.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: What?

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Read the question.

Q. (Question read.) A. It is correct, according to our 5417 records.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, did any of the manufacturers listed in Commission's Exhibit 472 offer to deliver the merchandise to you that was outstanding at the time? A. No.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. That is right.

Q. Did you refuse in any way to accept delivery of the merchandise from the houses listed in Commission's Exhibit 472? A. We didn't have that opportunity.

Q. In other words, after the red carding, all of these houses refused to deliver goods which you had previously ordered? A. They did not deliver goods.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. They did not deliver goods.

Q. Yes. They refused to deliver it to you? A. They 5418 did not deliver.

Q. And did not?

A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Do you know when these orders were placed as listed in Commission's Exhibit 472? A. They were placed within the period which you stated.

Q. What period is that? A. Between the period February 1, 1935, to February 1, 1936.

Q. They were placed, then, before February 17, 1936; is that correct? A. That is correct. If that is the date of the red carding. That hasn't been definitely fixed, and I am not positive of it.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 24, for Identification. I will ask you if that is your signature? A. That is.

Q. Does that signature appear on the letterhead of William Taylor & Sons Company, addressed to Fashion Originators Guild? A. It does.

Mr. Albert: I offer this letter in evidence.

(Letter handed to Mr. Martin.)

Mr. Albert: The pencil notations on it are out, Mr. Martin. 5420

Examiner Bennett: The witness saw only the heading and the signature on the letter.

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Of the document, whatever it is.

(Letter was handed to the witness.)

Mr. Martin: No objection.

The Witness: It is all right.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 24, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert, 5421

Q. Do you know of the firm of Bernard Appel & Company? A. I do.

Q. Were they a Guild house in 1935 and 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Will you find their name for me listed, if you will, please, on Commission's Exhibit 472, as being a firm from whom you had purchased goods which were not delivered at the time of the red carding?

Mr. Albert: I show your Honor this letter in which Bernard Appel is so listed.

A. It is so contained on that.

Q. Now, according to Respondents' Exhibit 24, on March 11, 1936, you wrote to the Fashion Originators Guild that there were still outstanding orders which you had placed with Bernard Appel, isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you wish to change your testimony previously given to the effect that Commission's Exhibit 472 is apparently correct and accurate? A. As far as it goes.

Q. But it does not go far enough? A. It is possible
5423 this was made up from a record of our unfilled orders, not at the time of red carding, but after the time of red carding. It is possible that that order was misplaced.

Q. You want to be perfectly fair and frank with us, don't you, Mr. Miller? A. Yes.

Q. There has been a mistake made in Commission's Exhibit 472 in listing? A. There was a mistake in listing.

Q. And possibly where we discover one error there may be other errors? A. Not on this exhibit, this exhibit, with the exception of one error that we pointed out to you, is correct.

Q. In Commission's Exhibit 472, it is claimed that you had outstanding orders uncompleted from Guild resources from the Baron Dress Company, Dresden Dress, Goldstein, Etkin, Radiant Dress, Rosen Brothers, Bender & Ham-5424 berger, William Bass, Milton Altmark, Feigenbaum & Adelson, Pauline Fields, Mary Lee, B. G. Garment, Deb. Mode, which you have stated is entirely in error? A. Yes.

Q. And should be off the list completely? A. Yes.

Q. Cecele, Mattie Moskowitz, and Lipman Brothers: is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. So, that is sixteen firms? A. I did not count them.

Q. I have just counted them. A. Yes.

Q. There are sixteen firms, so there are more orders than sixteen? A. Yes.

Q. In your letter of March 11, 1936, you state the following: "At the present time we still have undelivered orders outstanding with the following manufacturers: Bernard Appel, Milton Altmark, William Bass, Mary Lee." A. That is correct.

Q. At that time, did you have any other orders outstanding? A. All orders had been filled up to that time. All orders in addition to those had been canceled and removed from our files.

Q. What orders of those listed in Commission's Exhibit 472 did you cancel? A. I am sorry. I did not get your 5426 question.

Mr. Albert: Will you read the last answer and question?

(Record read.)

The Witness: All those that are still not outstanding as of the 11th, with the exception of the error which you pointed out of Bernard Appel.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to follow this right up? It is time for a recess.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Examiner Bennett: Ten minutes.

Mr. Albert: Unless you wish to permit me to ask two or three questions on that.

Examiner Bennett: Certainly, go ahead. 5427

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do I understand you to mean, Mr. Miller, that with the exception of Bernard Appel, Milton Altmark, William Bass, and Mary Lee, referred to in your letter of March 11, 1936, being Respondents' Exhibit 24, all of the orders that were outstanding as listed in Commission's Exhibit 472, were canceled? A. Were canceled and removed from our files. We have an internal cancellation system which does not necessarily go to the manufacturer.

Mr. Albert: Very well, then, we will have a recess. All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, you have admitted certain errors to be prevalent in Commission's Exhibits 470, 471 and 472, and merely on the basis of comparison of the various documents that are in evidence.

Mr. Martin: Object to that.

5428 Mr. Albert: I have not finished my question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Don't you believe it possible that if counsel for the respondents were given the opportunity of examining the records from which these exhibits have been drawn that other errors would be found?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being no admission of an error.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Martin: Except in the one case.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

5430 Q. Well, now, let us go back. I believe you admitted, Mr. Miller, that there were various names contained in Commission's Exhibit 470 that were not contained in Commission's Exhibit 471.

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that correct?

Mr. Martin: He has already answered that question.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, Mr. Martin has stated there have been no admission of any errors. Certainly I should be permitted to point out that there have been admissions of errors.

Examiner Bennett: Answer the question.

Mr. Albert: Read the question.

Q. (Question read.) A. I said that certain names in 471 that were contained in 470 were omitted on 471; that is correct. 5432

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You also testified that there was a mistake in Commission's Exhibit 472 in the complete list of one of the so-called manufacturers listed there; isn't that so? I am referring to Deb. Mode. A. I admitted that the Deb. Mode is still there in error.

Q. Well, then, let me ask you this question, Mr. Miller: Do you believe it possible, in the light of your previous testimony, that if the attorneys for the respondents were permitted to examine the records of Taylor & Company we might be able to disclose other omissions from these exhibits which have been entered into evidence? 5433

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, with respect to Commission's Exhibit 472, which of the orders from the manufacturers therein listed were canceled?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. The witness has already testified that all orders were canceled except those which appeared on Respondents' Exhibit No. 24.

Mr. Albert: But Mr. Martin forgets, if it please the Court, that the witness has differentiated between two types of cancellations. He said some 5435 were cancellations and some were internal cancellations in his department store. I think it is incumbent to point out the difference.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to point out that difference here?

The Witness: So far as our procedure is concerned, there is no difference.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Miller, when you cancel an order, don't you notify the manufacturer of that fact? A. Not if we have already been notified that the order is not going to be filled.

Q. Were you notified when the order was not going to 5436 be filled, these orders? A. Told by manufacturers that they were not going to fill them.

Q. Were you notified by these particular manufacturers that these particular orders were not going to be filled? A. I cannot testify which ones we were notified.

Q. And you were notified by all of them? A. Only notified, that is all I can tell you.

Q. Were you notified by Baron Dress Company that they would not fill the order that was then outstanding? A. We were notified. That is all I can tell you.

Q. How were you notified? A. By being red carded.

Q. How were you notified by Baron Dress Company? A. I have told you all I can about it.

Q. Were you notified by Dresden Dress? A. I told you all I can about any of those.

Q. Then you don't know whether or not they subsequently notified you of their refusal to furnish the order?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has testified as to what he knows about it.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. We knew definitly that all of those orders were not 5438 going to be filled.

Q. How did you know definitely? A. Because we were red carded.

Q. Aside from the fact that you read in Women's Wear that you were red carded, from your association with the Guild you presumed that manufacturers would not deliver merchandise to you, did you have any knowledge that these particular manufacturers would not deliver merchandise to you on outstanding orders? A. Our buyers contacted manufacturers in the market and were informed that they would not deliver—could not deliver any orders then outstanding.

Q. Did your buyers contact any other manufacturers listed in Commission's Exhibit No. 472? A. They did.

Q. Which ones did they contact? A. I do not recall.

Q. Did you question them about it? A. I did.

Q. Did they make any written reports to you? A. Verbal.

Q. Was that the subject of any inter-office memorandum of any kind? A. That was the subject of considerable discussion.

Q. But did you make any inter-office memorandum of it?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has answered the question.

Mr. Albert: He has not answered the questions.

Mr. Martin: He said "verbally."

Mr. Albert: He said it was the subject of verbal discussion. That does not preclude the fact that there may have been an inter-office memorandum of it.

Mr. Martin: You asked him the question, "Did they make any memorandum," and he said, "verbally."

Mr. Albert: The reply to my question is either "yes" or "no."

5441 A. I don't recall.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. No. Is there any written notation of any kind on the order itself as to the disposition of the order? A. I don't understand the question.

Q. What record have you got, written record, that the Baron Dress Company refused to deliver to you any merchandise? A. I don't recall.

Q. You mean by that that there may be, but you are not sure? A. I don't recall. It is very clear.

Q. Then you don't know one way or the other? A. I don't recall.

5442 Q. Well, can't you explain what you mean by "I don't recall"? A. I think it is clear enough.

Q. Well, no, I don't think it is clear. I don't quite understand you, and I presume that you want to be helpful to me. A. I am trying to be very frank with you.

Q. Do you mean by that that you don't know one way or the other whether or not there is a written memorandum? A. I think it perfectly clear. These manufacturers would not deliver merchandise to us. Now, as to the means that they advised us of that, I am not in a position to say because I do not recall.

Q. Did Bernard Appel notify you that he wouldn't deliver merchandise to you? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did Milton Altmark notify you that he wouldn't deliver merchandise to you? A. I am not sure. I am—I don't recall whether he did or whether he didn't.

Q. Did William Bass notify you of that? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did Mary Lee notify you in any way? A. No.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, didn't Bernard Appel, Milton Altmark, William Bass and Mary Lee fill their orders? A. They did not.

Q. When did you cancel the orders contained in Commission's Exhibit 472? A. Subsequent to the time we were red carded and prior to March 11. 5444

Q. What information did you have that prompted you to cancel the orders listed in Commission's Exhibit No. 472 and not the orders listed in Respondents' Exhibit 24? A. After the delivery dates had been passed on orders listed in Commission's Exhibit 472 we canceled them. The other orders which were still outstanding, because there was no reason on our part to cancel them, until we were definitely sure they would never be filled, we had been told that they would not be filled.

Q. Did you thereafter become definitely sure that they would not be filled? A. They were not filled.

Q. No. Did you thereafter become definitely sure that they wouldn't be filled. A. I said they were not filled.

Q. I am not asking you that. That is the result. A. 5445
That is the best——

Q. I am asking—you differentiated between these two lists and said that you didn't include those on Respondents' Exhibits 24 because you had not received definite assurance that they would not comply with the filling of the order. Now, what information did you receive? A. I am sorry——

Mr. Martin: The witness did not make that statement.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is your statement? A. I think the record will show it.

Mr. Albert: Will you read back his answers, please?

(The record was read.)

By Mr. Albert:

5447 Q. Now, would you mind explaining what the difference is between the two lists? A. Well, one list is the list of orders that Exhibit 472—Commission's Exhibit 472 is the list of orders that were outstanding at the time we were red carded with the exception that you have pointed out of Bernard Appel, which was omitted from that list. Respondents' Exhibit 24 is a list of the orders that were still outstanding, had not been canceled or received from our files on March 11, 1936.

Q. Well, you stated by reason of the fact that you were red carded, and therefore presumed that no merchandise would be delivered, that you canceled orders contained in Commission's Exhibit 472 on your books. A. As they became due.

5448 Q. Didn't you cancel them with respect to the date that the order was placed rather than with respect to the delivery date? A. No.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. I feel reasonably sure of that.

Q. You mean by that that you are now not certain of it or you are still certain of it? A. I say I feel reasonably sure of it.

Q. Do you know when Bernard Appel—withdraw that question. Do you know the delivery date of the orders that had been placed with Bernard Appel that are referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 24? A. I don't recall that now.

Q. Do you know the delivery date of the orders that had been placed with Milton Altmark, referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 24? A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Do you know the delivery date of the orders placed with William Bass, referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 24? A. I don't recall exactly.

Q. Do you know the delivery date of the orders placed with Mary Lee, referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 24? A. I do not. I do not recall the exact date, no.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Miller, isn't it true that the orders referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 24 were the 5450 orders that you chose to have delivery of and that you didn't choose to accept delivery of the orders contained in Commission's Exhibit 472?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. No, that is not true.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Isn't it a fact that with respect to all orders outstanding at the time of the red carding, William Taylor & Sons sought to chose which orders they wished filled at that time? A. It is not true.

Q. Now, I believe William Taylor & Sons is affiliated 5451 with the A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, irrelevant, immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: It is merely a preliminary question, if your Honor please, laying a foundation on this very point.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is sustained as to that question. I think nothing about that was covered by the direct examination.

Mr. Albert: Well, I think, if your Honor will recollect, previous testimony on this identical topic. I am merely asking it in connection with the orders, and your Honor will see exactly what I am driving at.

Examiner Bennett: What are you trying to do? I want to see what you are trying to develop. Are you attacking his statement that he did not have adequate sources of supply?

Mr. Albert: I am attacking his particular testimony, your Honor, that he could not get his orders which were outstanding at the time of the red carding, and I think that I can prove that they were available to him by reason of the fact that it has been previously testified in other cities by other houses, retailers, in similar condition that they were provided with orders which were outstanding at the time of the red carding.

5453

Mr. Martin: That statement is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Through that organization?

Mr. Martin: Through——

Examiner Bennett: I have no recollection of any such testimony.

Mr. Albert: Through, if it please the Court, an agreement which was entered into by the Fashion Originators Guild at that time, and which was known to William Taylor & Son.

5454

Examiner Bennett: Well, please confine yourself to that. I don't see——

Mr. Albert: I mean, I have got to lay the foundation for it, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, the only testimony along the line to which Mr. Albert is referring is the agreement which was entered into between Fashion Originators Guild and Filenes pursuant to court instructions.

Mr. Albert: And that agreement, your Honor—

Mr. Martin: Referred to Filenes Store.

Mr. Albert: Applied to William Taylor & Son also.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: That was not in the record, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I don't know. I think that is a matter for your direct case. I am going to sustain the objection to that.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert. 5456

Q. Now, with the exception of Bernard Appel, are there any other Guild sources with whom you had outstanding orders at the time of the red carding? A. There were not.

Q. And no Guild source with whom you had outstanding orders at the time of the red carding fulfilled those orders? A. That is correct.

Q. Nor did any Guild source at the time of the red carding offer to fill those orders? A. To the best of my recollection, that is true.

Q. Nor was any attempt made by you to obtain the fulfillment of those orders? A. Oh, yes, there was.

Q. What attempt was made? A. We sent our buyers into the market, as I testified on direct examination, tried to get those orders filled. 5457

Q. Well, aside from the general statement that you sent your buyers into the market, can you be more specific as to what they did? A. They went to each manufacturer with whom we had outstanding orders and asked if the merchandise could be delivered.

Q. Who were those buyers? A. Mrs. Williams, our misses' dress buyer; Mrs. Howard, our women's dress buyer.

Q. Just those two? A. That is all I can recall at that time.

Q. Are they here in Cleveland? A. No.

Q. Where are they? A. New York. One of them is in New York. One of them is on vacation.

Q. Will they be back to Cleveland shortly?

Mr. Martin: I object to it as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

5459 Q. Did you receive a letter in response to your letter of March 11, addressed to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. There was considerable correspondence at that time, and I am not sure exactly when the final letter was received. There was an answer, yes.

Q. I show you a letter on the stationery of William Taylor Son & Company dated March 21, 1936, addressed to Mr. J. M. Golby, Fashion Originators Guild, signed by yourself, and ask you if you can identify that as a letter mailed by yourself to the Fashion Originators' Guild?

Mr. Martin: I will ask that you have it marked for identification.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this?

(Letter referred to was marked for identification 5460 Respondents' Exhibit 25.)

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Albert: I offer this letter in evidence.

(Letter was handed to Mr. Martin.)

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 25, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this, please?

(Document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 26.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 26 for Identification, and ask you if that is a letter sent by you to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That is correct.

(Letter was handed to Mr. Martin.)

Mr. Albert: I offer this letter in evidence.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received. 5462

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 26, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification.

(Document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 27.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 27 for Identification, and ask you if that is a letter sent by you to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That is correct.

Q. And does Respondents' Exhibit 27 for Identification 5463 refer to an enclosure of Respondents' Exhibit 25? A. May I see it?

Q. Yes. A. That is correct.

Mr. Albert: I offer Respondents' Exhibit 27 for Identification in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 27; was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification.

(Document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 28.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 28, being a telegram dated March 13, addressed to Albert M. Post, signed 5465 "Miller—Taylor's." I will ask you if that is the telegram that was sent by you to Mr. Post? A. That is right.

Mr. Martin: No objection.
Mr. Albert: I offer it in evidence.
Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 28, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(A document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 29.)

5466 By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 29, being a telegram addressed to Albert M. Post, dated March 13, 1936, signed "Miller—Taylor's," and ask if you sent this telegram to Mr. Post? A. That is right.

(Exhibit 29 was handed to Mr. Martin.)
Mr. Martin: No objection.
Mr. Albert: I offer it in evidence.
Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 29, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this?

(A document was thereupon marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 30.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you a copy of letter dated March, 1936, addressed to you care of William Taylor Son & Company from the Fashion Originators Guild of America by J. M. Golby, referring to your communication dated March 16, 5468 and ask you if you received this letter? A. To the best of my knowledge. I am not positive, but I think that that is correct.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Mr. Albert: I offer this letter in evidence.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 30, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(A document was thereupon marked for identi- 5469
fication Respondents' Exhibit 31.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you a copy of a telegram addressed to you, care of William Taylor & Son, dated March 12, from Albert M. Post, in behalf of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, and ask if you received this telegram? A. That is right.

Mr. Albert: The telegram I referred to is Respondents' Exhibit 31 for Identification.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Mr. Albert: I offer the letter.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 31, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(A document was thereupon marked for identi-
5471 fication Respondents' Exhibit 32.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you a copy of a telegram, being Respondents' Exhibit 32 for Identification, addressed to you from Albert M. Post on behalf of the Fashion Originators Guild, dated March 13, 1936, and ask if you received that telegram? A. That is right.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 32, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

5472 Examiner Bennett: We will have a recess until 2 o'clock for luncheon.

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Come to order, please. The hearing is resumed.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, did you have any conversation with anyone in the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to the fulfilling of these orders? A. Will you state that again?

Mr. Albert: Will you read the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. I believe it was indicated in our one letter that I talked to Mr. Golby on the telephone in New York. 5474

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you recall the substance of that conversation? A. Not definitely, no, except as indicated there that it was with reference to the fulfillment of the order.

Q. Now, did you discuss with him the question of whether or not the manufacturers were to deliver to you merchandise with respect to orders which were on hand at the time of the red carding? A. To the best of my recollection I discussed with him the delivery of merchandise on orders that were still outstanding as of the date mentioned in my letter of March 11.

Q. Didn't he inform you of the willingness of manufacturers with whom you had outstanding orders to deliver those orders to you? A. Well, the record, I believe, is indicated in my letter confirming our telephone conversation wherein I said it was understood that manufacturers would deliver us that merchandise which was on order as of March 11, and no others. 5475

Q. Is that what he told you at that time? A. To the best of my recollection, it is.

Q. Didn't he tell you that the manufacturers were ready and willing to deliver to you all of the merchandise with respect to all of the orders then outstanding? A. I don't recall.

Q. You would not say that he did not say that, would you? A. I don't recall.

Q. I am sorry, I did not hear you. A. I am sorry, I do not recall what he said with reference to that.

Q. That is, you don't recall one way or the other what he said? A. In connection with that point, I do not.

Q. Did you make any answer to the letter of the Guild, being Respondents' Exhibit 30, addressed to you? A. I 5477 believe there is a letter in evidence that was in answer to this. I am not sure. If I made an answer, it is among these letters that you have.

Mr. Albert: Take this off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Miller, does the correspondence now in evidence refresh your recollection to the effect that William Taylor Sons & Company wished to choose certain orders which were accepted for fulfillment and wished to cancel certain other orders outstanding at the time of the red carding? A. We simply would receive the orders that were still outstanding at that time is all.

5478 Q. Well, now, before February 17 you canceled certain orders; did you not? A. Before February 17?

Q. Yes. A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. When did you cancel the orders? A. As they became due.

Q. Did they all become due subsequent to February 17? A. To the best of my knowledge. I am not positive of that.

Q. Did you replace with other merchandise the orders which you canceled which were on hand on February 17 and unfilled at that time? A. We did the best we could under the circumstances.

Q. Did you fill them all? A. No.

Q. Which ones didn't you fill? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you say that you had filled half of them? A. I couldn't give you an honest answer on that.

Q. You haven't any idea as to how many you did fill? A. Oh, all I can tell you is we filled as many as it was possible to fill.

Q. Was it possible to fill more than two or three or four or ten or twenty, or how many? A. My answer—any answer I would give you would be a guess.

Q. So that insofar as you are able now to tell us it is 5480 possible that you were only able to fill one order of that group? A. I didn't say that.

Q. Well, you say that you don't know how many you filled. A. That is correct.

Q. So that in so far as you are able to tell us now, it may be that you only replaced one?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Q. Of course, it may be that you replaced more. A. I didn't say that.

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness testified——

By Mr. Albert. 5481

Q. What did you say?

Mr. Martin: Your Honor, that he has no recollection of what they were able to do.

Mr. Albert: I think it is a fair question to ask him, then, if it is not possible that he filled only one, since he doesn't know how many he filled.

Mr. Martin: He has told you he has no recollection. He doesn't know.

Examiner Bennett: That is an answer, isn't it?

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. On or about March 11 there were outstanding some unfilled orders from Guild sources which had not been replaced by orders from other manufacturers not connected with the Guild; isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you make any effort whatsoever to obtain that merchandise from Guild sources? A. I think the records are clear on that, that we did.

Q. After March 11, 1936, did you refuse to accept un-
5483 filled orders after February 17 from Guild sources? A. Only those orders that had been canceled prior to the date of this letter.

Q. Were you not aware of a stipulation that had been entered into between the Fashion Originators Guild of America and Filenes Sons Company of Boston to the effect that all unfilled orders would be filled by members of the Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. This is not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I am laying a foundation, if it please the Court with respect to all of this testimony that was just put in.

Mr. Martin: We attempted that this morning
5484 and the Judge ruled you out on this particular point once.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I——

Mr. Albert: In the light—if your Honor pleases, I tried that this morning before these letters came in. Now with these letters in evidence I believe that a reading of the letters will show that it was entirely possible for them to have had this merchandise if they so desired and I want to show that in addition to that they were specifically informed of the fact that they could have the merchandise if they wanted, but they chose to attempt to discriminate between which order they wanted to fill and which they did not want to fill.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if the letters will show, of course, it is a matter of record now, and I suppose there is no need of going into it further. At all events, I don't see the relevancy of your questions. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

5486

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you acquainted with a Mr. Bergdahl?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as not being proper cross-examination, and irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: It is a preliminary question, if it pleases the court. I am laying a foundation to show that they were given specific knowledge and had specific knowledge of the fact that they could obtain these goods.

Mr. Martin: He is laying——

Mr. Albert: I can't jump in feet first, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: He is laying a foundation, your Honor, just on the very same point that you ruled 5487 on just before lunch, trying to bring in some connection between this store and the Associated Merchandise Corporation. Now, there is nothing in the evidence on behalf of this witness to in any way connect them with the A.M.C., and I respectfully submit that any cross-examination along that line is improper.

Mr. Albert: I don't think that William Taylor & Sons are ashamed with their connection with the A.M.C., your Honor. There is nothing to hide. We all know it.

Mr. Martin: I don't care what counsel thinks. It is a question of evidence here and I respectfully urge my objection on the grounds stated. It is entirely and wholly outside of the direct examination.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, I mean this goes vitally to the question as to whether or not their source of supply was stopped. On direct examination he testified that he couldn't get goods
5489 from Guild manufacturers, and I am attempting to show that their inability to get the particular goods that were on unfilled orders as of the date of the red carding is due to their own voluntary choice and I think that I should be permitted to show that their representative was informed of it and they had full knowledge of their ability to get the goods.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. If you have direct testimony to that effect, why, we will hear it on the direct case. I will sustain the objection to that question.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

5490 Q. Now, Mr. Miller, have you inquired of your superiors as to whether or not they insist upon your concealing figures with respect to departments of the Taylor store?

Mr. Martin: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: Will you give me the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I don't see that that will help us. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if your Honor pleases, I want to get the figures.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, ask him for the figures. If he wants to give them he will give them. If he does not——

Mr. Albert: But the witness this morning testified that it was first necessary for him to ask his superiors. I want to know if he has inquired of his superiors.

Examiner Bennett: Well, ask him if he is ready to give them.

By Mr. Albert. 5492

Q. Have you inquired of your superiors as to whether or not they will permit you to give the figures with respect to what you testified to this morning?

Mr. Martin: I object. His Honor has just ruled on that question.

Examiner Bennett: I recall it was said this morning.

A. I have not had an opportunity.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. We left here at half past twelve this morning to convene at 2 o'clock. Were you at your store? A. I was not.

Q. Did you attempt to communicate with your store in any way? 5493

Mr. Martin: I object to this as immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Albert: It is most material for the simple reason I want to show that Mr. Haycraft's and Mr. Martin's remarks about our attempting to prolong these proceedings are entirely improper and out of place. Any prolonging of these proceedings is due to the fact that we cannot get information from the witnesses that are put on the stand by them.

Examiner Bennett: I think that the instruction of the Examiner on that matter was entirely sound, and I am going to follow that. If this gentleman feels as though it was not necessary for him to advise with his superiors, why, that seems to be the fact since he has not done it, why, I think that is all there is to it.

Mr. Albert: Well, your Honor, if it please the Court——

5495 Examiner Bennett: That is, he is not under any obligation to secure those things for you if he hasn't them.

Mr. Albert: I think that the Commission, if it seeks to present a fair case, should make it possible for a witness to substantiate the testimony that they have gotten. If the Commission want to conceal anything they should not ask witnesses to give figures without being able to back them up.

Examiner Bennett: There is a time when you can get that, if you are entitled to it, I am sure. If you cannot get it on cross-examination. I am sure there is no way of the witness of the Commission forcing it on cross-examination.

5496 Mr. Albert: Since there was no basis whatsoever demonstrating the accuracy of the opinions that have been presented here to-day, with respect to percentages——

Examiner Bennett: You have the testimony of this witness, and if you can discredit that testimony by producing testimony to the contrary, that is perfectly all right.

Mr. Albert: Will your Honor bear with me for just a moment?

Examiner Bennett: But you are not entitled to have him go to the pains and trouble of producing you means of discrediting himself.

Mr. Albert: Will your Honor bear with me for just a moment? I think I cannot help but agree with what your Honor says in so far as your Honor has pronounced that as the decision of the Court, but in the light of the fact that we have demonstrated the errors in various exhibits that have been presented by this witness merely from an examination of the exhibits presented by the witness without examining the records from which they were taken, and with respect to his other figures, we have merely his statement what they are, and, further, in the light of the witness and the Commission backing up the witness, he refuses to permit us to examine as to the accuracy of those figures, I think you should strike out all his testimony. 5498

Examiner Bennett: I think that is not an entirely accurate statement. The Commission does not prevent you from cross-examining this witness. Now you have already taken a couple of hours at that sort of thing, cross-examining him. If you have shown that this witness is mistaken, so much the better for your case. You should be very much gratified if you have shown that.

Mr. Albert: I would probably be even more gratified if I could show the result of figures that were erroneous and not make it necessary for us to come back to Cleveland, your Honor. That is the point. 5499

Examiner Bennett: That is the decision of the Examiner. I am sorry that I cannot change.

Mr. Feldman: Your Honor, I just want to make one short statement in that connection. I just happen to be acquainted with the procedure that the Commission's attorneys employ in getting information. They don't always subpoena witnesses. They go to these witnesses, and they ask them to produce certain figures, or they give them a questionnaire to answer, or send them a questionnaire to answer, and in response to those questions they get information. Now, is there any difference when the witness gets on the stand and testifies and gives part of the information? Why cannot the attorney for the respondent ask the witness to produce testimony that will illuminate the proceedings and possibly save time. It just does not——

5501

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Feldman: It just does not seem proper to me.

Mr. Martin: I would like to state for the benefit of counsel that this witness has testified that he is here testifying pursuant to a summons.

Mr. Feldman: But some of the other witnesses that have testified did not have like summonses, and I take it what we want to do is get through the proceedings.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I have heard your argument on the matter. There is a time when you can come and call this witness and get anything that he has or he can procure for you and offer it in this case. This is not the time. You are cross-examining this witness now, and I am not going to send him around on errands collecting evidence which may or may not discredit him. That is at his own discretion.

5502

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Martin, will you turn to Commission's Exhibit No. 473?

Mr. Feldman: That was not photostated. That is the original.

Mr. Albert: I am switching from this, your Honor, in order to save time waiting for the other exhibits to come back. Now I find this exhibit is gone. May we have a few minutes' recess to wait for it?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. You can find out whether it is actually gone.

Mr. Martin: What exhibit is that?

Mr. Albert: 473 is the percentages.

Mr. Martin: I will be glad to give you a copy of it. 5504

Mr. Albert: That is all right.

Examiner Bennett: There is a copy of it, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert

Q. Now, what department, Mr. Miller, is 330? A. Women's dresses at $12.95 and up.

Q. What is the price range? A. $12.95 retail and up.

Q. What was the total volume of sales in price, in dollars?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Mr. Albert: 1936.

Mr. Martin: That question is objected to. This exhibit, if your Honor please, does not purport to 5505 go into volume sales by dollars. It is merely percentage, and that question of dollar sales was avoided on direct examination, and I respectfully submit that it is not a proper subject of cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I ask what the percentages are based on?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, certainly.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What are the percentages sed on, Mr. Miller? A. Based on dollar sales.

Mr. Albert: Is Mr. Martin withdrawing his objection?

Mr. Martin: I object to any introduction——

Examiner Bennett: It is all a matter whether this witness cares to disclose those figures. If he doesn't, he does not, and I am not going to force him, because it would be merely a matter of verifying certain arithmetical processes, and I think if 5507 we take any of it for granted, we might take for granted that those processes were accurate, were carried on with accuracy. Do you care to disclose your dollar figures?

The Witness: No.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I am not going to force you to. I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What was the dollar volume in Department 330 in February of 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I wish to 5508 strenuously object to the Commission's objections to my asking the question before the witness testifies or signifies his intention of not giving me the information. It merely bears out my contention that the Commission doesn't wish this information brought out.

Examiner Bennett: I asked him a qualifying question covering all of this matter, and that is whether he objected to disclosing the figures. He said he did not wish to disclose the figures. That is my recollection of the record, and I think it covers the situation. Of course, if you want to put the Commission on record on each particular thing, go ahead and do it.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, your Honor, but I feel that I must do it.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: In order to protect the record.

Examiner Bennett: Put him on record on everything.

By Mr. Albert.

5510

Q. Now, with respect to Department 330, what is the total volume of dollar sales for March of 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I insist that the Commission, unless it attempts and wishes to have its objection interpreted as seeking to hide these figures, not object to the question but let the witness answer as to whether he wants to volunteer it. Certainly if the witness wants to volunteer, the Commission should have no objection to the true facts being presented.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, this is simply a waste of time on the part——

Mr. Albert: I think it is a greater waste of time 5511
the other way.

Mr. Martin: Will counsel please let me finish? I will be glad to bear with him as long as the Judge will.

If your Honor please, counsel has asked this witness, and your Honor asked him whether he desired to disclose those figures. He has testified that he did not desire to do it. Now, I can see no point in counsel for the respondent therefore asking him a question about each and every one of those figures when the witness has already testified that he doesn't want to disclose them.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I see no point—

Mr. Albert: The Commission doesn't see any point in any cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: —in getting this on the record. Do you wish to be heard further, Mr. Albert?

Mr. Albert: I wish to continue my questioning, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to sustain those 5513 objections if they are made by the Commission, and I assume they will be, but you can ask the question, though—I have no objection to your asking the question if you want to put the Commission on record in each particular item. Go ahead and do it.

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor, I am afraid I must.

Mr. Martin: In order to save time, Mr. Albert, I am perfectly willing to stipulate that the Commission can be put on record as to each one of these figures, purely in order to save time. The witness has testified that he does not want to give any of those figures, and is not going to give any of them, so I need no valid reason for keeping on asking him as to any specific item, and I am therefore perfectly willing to stipulate that. I do object to the con-5514 tinuance of the examination along this line.

Mr. Albert: Well, if it please your Honor, I can't, with all due respect, place much credence in Mr. Martin's contention that he can't see any validity in the continuation of a line of cross-examination because I believe that the Commission's counsel all along have made it clear that they can't see the purpose of any cross-examination of any witness on anything. Now, I feel that I have got to make my record complete with respect to this witness not wishing to disclose the information upon which he comes in here and makes some very wild assertions.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, with respect to Department 330, do you know the volume of dollar sales for the year 1936, for April?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

5516

Q. Do you know those figures for April, 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know the figures for that department for May of 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. For May of 1936?

5517

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know the figures for Department 330 for June of 1935?

Mr. Martin: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. For June of 1936?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know the figures for Department 335 for February of 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

5519 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you know them when you prepared this exhibit?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Mr. Albert: Now, does the Commission's counsel really sincerely object to this witness telling us as to whether or not he knew what he was doing when he prepared those exhibits?

Examiner Bennett: You are asking him if he knew of the figures? I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: When he prepared it.

A. Yes, I knew them.

By Mr. Albert.

5520

Q. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I don't think Mr. Martin really wants us to believe that that objection was serious. I wonder if the other objections are as serious as that one.

Mr. Martin: I think that question has already been answered, Mr. Albert. He testified to that on direct examination.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know of the volume of dollar sales for Department 335 for March of 1935?

Examiner Bennett: Do you know?

Mr. Martin: Do you know?

Examiner Bennett: He didn't ask you——

Mr. Martin: Yes or no?

The Witness: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: That is asking you now whether you know now.

The Witness: No.

5522

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you know them when you prepared this exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. Did you give them to the Commission? A. No.

Q. Did you inform the Commission of them in any way? A. No.

Q. Did the Commission ask you for the figures? A. No.

Q. Would you have given the Commission the figures if they had asked for them?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to let him answer.

5523

A. My firm didn't want the figures given out.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you have given the figures to the Commission if they had asked for them, is the question. A. No.

Q. Do you know the dollar value for Department 335 for March of 1936?

Mr. Martin: At this time.

A. No.

Q. Did you know them when you drew the exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. Are the figures available? A. They are.

Q. Will you produce them? A. No.

Q. Do you know the dollar value or the figures for Department 335 for April of 1935?

The Witness: What is the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: Do you know them at this time?

5525 The Witness: No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you know them when you prepared the exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. Did you take them from the records of the Taylor Company? A. I did.

Q. Are those figures available? A. They are.

Q. Will you produce them? A. No.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you produce them on direct examination?

5526 Mr. Martin: I object to any further questioning along this line, as it is an obvious effort to delay and waste time and it is accomplishing no good purpose. The witness has told him over and over again that he is not going to furnish them and I can see no good purpose in keeping on asking him any longer. I respectfully request that the Examiner limit this cross-examination along this line.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to let him finish it.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, in answer to that, may I point out that one very good purpose that it showed was the obvious desire of the Commission not to even permit this witness to testify that he knew the figures when he prepared the exhibit by reason of the fact that he objected to my asking him that question.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

The Witness: What is that question?

Mr. Albert: There is no question pending.

5528

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know the dollar value of Department 335 for April of 1936?

Mr. Martin: At this time.

A. I do not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you know it at the time you prepared such exhibit? A. I did.

Q. Did you prepare this exhibit from those figures? A. Prepared under my supervision.

Q. You personally had no hand in the preparation of the exhibit? A. Not in the exact preparation of it. I 5529 knew the figures.

Q. Did you make the arithemetical computations that are contained in this exhibit? A. I did not.

Q. Did you check the arithmetical computations that are made on this exhibit? A. They are our regular monthly records already computed for us.

Q. Did you check the arithmetical computations? A. I did not.

Q. All you know about these figures is that somebody in William Taylor Sons & Company prepared them for you from their records? A. Under my supervision.

Q. Well, your supervision amounted to the fact that you asked them to prepare them for you; isn't that so? A. Correct. That is right.

Q. That is all your supervision amounted to? A. That is right.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I move that this exhibit be stricken from the record on the ground that the witness has testified that except for the fact that it was handed to him by somebody 5531 in the employ of William Taylor Son & Company, he knows nothing with respect to the truth or accuracy thereof; and, further, I object upon the specific ground that upon my examining him before the exhibit was admitted into evidence he declared that he had supervised the preparation, that he had prepared the figures, that he could testify as to the breakdown of them, that he could give us all of the figures of how the percentages were arrived at. I say that now his testimony reveals that he knows nothing about it; it is merely handing in a piece of paper that was handed to him by somebody else.

Mr. Martin: I suggest, your Honor please, that the statement of counsel is not only a little bit misleading, but is entirely and wholly and grossly 5532 misleading and deliberately. There is no evidence in the record at all that this witness testified he could break down these figures, or anything of that sort at all. He declared—he testified that these figures were prepared under his supervision at his request from the store records.

Mr. Albert: I will find that for you in a moment, your Honor.

On page 3020 of the record, your Honor, the following transpired between Mr. Miller and myself when I originally objected to the admission of Commission's Exhibit 473 into the record:

"Q. Mr. Miller, with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 473 can you testify definitely and specifically with respect to the figures therein contained? A. Yes, I can.

"Q. Can you testify definitely and specifically with respect to the various factors that led either to an increase or decrease in the various departments? A. I believe so.

"Q. Can you testify from first-hand knowledge with respect to the component departments that make up the total store estimates of advances or decreases? A. I am sorry. I didn't get your question. 5534

"Q. Can you tell us specifically what departments were considered in reaching the figure with respect to the total store as contained in Commission's Exhibit 473? A. Yes. Yes.

"Q. Have you the figures with respect to all other departments? A. I have at my access.

"Q. Of the store? A. Right.

"Q. Have you the figures for 1935? A. I have.

"Q. The specific figures? A. I have.

"Q. Can you further identify these department numbers with—— 5535

"Mr. Martin: I will get to that.

"Q. (By Mr. Albert) With the particular department that you have testified to? A. I can.

"Q. How did you obtain these figures? How did you reach them? A. Obtained them from the records.

"Q. Well, what, specifically, do they represent? A. They represent the percentage either of increase or decrease of sales of that period.

5536 W. E. Miller—For Commission—Cross.

"Q. Did you take those off the sales slips? A. Took them off of the annual summary of sales.

"Q. You haven't any annual summary of sales for 1936 yet, have you? A. I have the monthly summaries. I beg your pardon. They are monthly summaries taken from each month's report. I am sorry.

"Q. Does this represent volume of units sold, or does it represent— A. It represents——

"Q. —dollar value? A. Dollars."

Now, I think from that examination, your Honor, it specifically appears that this witness testified as
5538 mistaken or misinterpreting your Honor's ruling, that had this witness said that he couldn't explain these figures in any manner, shape or form, if cross-examined about them that your Honor wouldn't have permitted this exhibit to go into evidence. We have here simply a piece of paper that was taken from the records of William Taylor & Son Company thrown at the Commission for such weight as it cares to give it, and we have no explanation whatsoever what they mean. As a matter of fact, how little the exhibit is understood is evidenced from the fact that Mr. Martin didn't even know that it referred to the dollar value. I respectfully request and move that this exhibit be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Are you through with your statement?

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. You speak about taking those figures from your records? A. Yes.

Q. Are they records of your concern or store and are 5540 they made in the ordinary course of business? A. They are, yes.

Q. Are they records on which you rely on in carrying out your business? A. They are.

Examiner Bennett: I deny the motion.

Mr. Albert: May I further point this out to your Honor? "By Mr. Martin: Q. Was this prepared by you under your supervision (referring to 473)"——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: "Prepared by me?

"Q. Are you satisfied as to the correctness of it? A. I am."

And yet the witness has testified that he has made no investigation of the correctness of it. 5541

Examiner Bennett: Well, he has now told me that he is satisfied of the correctness of it. They are figures upon which he relies. The case Bonay & Sons makes that perfectly proper in a proceeding of this kind, makes that sort of testimony, and, in fact, I think it is proper under the strictest kind of procedure in law where it is a matter that is relied on by a business concern in its own business.

It has a probative value, and that is the only thing that the Examiner is particularly concerned with just now. If Mr. Miller's testimony was not as complete as it might have been, why, I think he has remedied it merely by stating just where the thing came from and what it is.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. With respect to Department 335 do you know the dollar volume of sales for May, 1935?

5543 Mr. Martin: That is, at the present time?

A. I do not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you know them at the time that you prepared this exhibit? A. I have explained that I personally didn't prepare this exhibit, but I know what the dollar volume of sales were, yes.

Q. Did you examine them, the original records, to determine what they were? A. Yes; I have those original records.

Q. And you examined them at the time of the preparation of this exhibit? A. I didn't prepare this.

5544 Q. I say, you examined the original records at the time of the preparation of this exhibit? A. No; they were our store records. We took them for face value, naturally.

Q. No. No. Did you examine the physical record that contained the figures before the preparation of this exhibit? A. Not at the time it was prepared. I have examined it, if that is what you mean.

Q. Is that figure available? A. Yes.

Q. In what book or record—what is the name of the book or record in which that figure is contained?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any objection to telling me the name of the book or the record in which that figure is contained?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. No, I have no objection.

Q. What is the name of the record or the book in which that figure is contained?

5546

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer, if he wants to.

A. It is the monthly report, merchandise report.

Q. And that is the reference to it in your store, when you refer to it, monthly merchandise report? A. Monthly report of operations, yes.

Q. Monthly— A. Monthly report of the merchandise operations.

Q. Monthly report of the merchandise operations. Thank you. Are these figures of the monthly volume of dollar sales of your various departments in any way made public to anybody except employees and executives of William Taylor Sons & Company?

5547

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being immaterial.

Mr. Albert: I think it is quite material, your Honor, as going into the credibility and the frankness and fairness of the contentions of this witness that those figures should not be made public.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I must—maybe I am rather dense, but I can't see what the credibility has to do with the question of whether the figures are open to the public or not. I can't see where it has anything to do with the question of credibility of this witness.

Mr. Albert: It is very simple. It is a very simple reason and there is nothing dense about it at all, Mr. Martin. The fact that this witness ostensibly in good faith is coming up here and saying that he doesn't want to disclose those figures, and the Court in reliance upon that good faith has sustained him in the contentions that he doesn't have to present those figures.

Mr. Martin: And the Court——

5549 Mr. Albert: If those figures are a matter of public record, then there is evidence of bad faith on the part of this witness in not attempting to give us the figures with respect to which he has testified, and we can readily infer that he doesn't present them because of the fact that they would not support the figures that are in evidence in Commission's Exhibit 473.

Mr. Martin: The Court has already told you that on numbers of occasions that those figures would be available to you at the proper time.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain the objection to the question.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

5550 Q. With respect to Department 335, do you know the total volume of these sales for May of 1936? A. I do not.

Q. Did you know it at the time that this exhibit was prepared? A. I knew of it, yes.

Q. Are those figures available? A. Yes.

Q. They are available in your monthly merchandise reports at the store? A. Yes.

Q. And they are presently in the store? A. What?

Q. Those figures are presently in the monthly merchandise report at the store? A. That is right.

Q. Will you make those figures available to me?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: Does the Commission object to the witness telling me whether or not he wishes to give me the figures?

Mr. Martin: He has already told you on several occasions that he would not give them to you.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

A. No. I cannot give it to you.

Mr. Albert: I think it is the evident purpose of the Commission to conceal the evidence.

Mr. Martin: We have no desire to conceal it. 5552

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. That is disposed of. Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. With respect to Department 330, do you know the figures of dollar volume sales for February of 1935? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know them for February of 1936?. A. I do not.

Q. Did you know the respective figures at the time that this exhibit was prepared? A. I did.

Q. Are they contained in your monthly merchandise reports? A. They are.

Q. Are they at present in the store in Cleveland? A. 5553
They are.

Q. Will you make those figures available to me?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will let him answer that question.

A. No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know the dollar volume of sales for Department No. 350 for March of 1935? A. I do not.

Q. For March of 1936? A. I do not.

Q. Did you know those figures at the time that the exhibit was prepared? A. I did.

Q. Are those figures available at the present time? A. They are.

Q. Are they contained in the monthly merchandise reports of William Taylor Sons & Company? A. They are.

Q. Are they at present in Cleveland? A. They are.

Q. Will you make those figures available to me? A. No.

5555 Q. Now, with respect to Department 350, would your testimony with respect thereto for April, May and June, as regards the dollar volume of sales for 1935 and 1936 be the same if I asked you the same question with respect to Department 350 as I asked you with respect to Department 330 and Department 335? A. It would.

Q. That is, the figures are available but you would not produce them for me? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have testified, Mr. Miller, that at least a good part of your work as divisional merchandise manager has to do with reference to correlating figures of different departments comparing them, and thus fixing the policy of the store. A. I said a part of it.

Q. Yes, a part of it. I am not quibbling with you on 5556 that. When you have three departments, each of which sell behind in its dollar volume of sales for 1936, as contrasted with 1935, and you have the specific figures with respect to each department, how do you arrive at a single figure which will demonstrate the percentage of difference of the three departments combined between 1935 and 1936? Do you understand the question? A. I think I do, but I think it better be read back.

(Question read.)

A. I assume that is a hypothetical question?

Q. Yes. I want to find out. A. My attention of three departments' volume figures in dollars for the three departments for the period of 1935 and the same three, for the same months in the following year, adding those figures, making a difference, dividing it by the original figure, 1935, altogether.

Q. Is this correct: Let us assume that in 1936 Department A was 10 per cent. behind its 1935 figures; let us assume that Department B was 20 per cent. behind its 1935 figure— A. Right.

Q. —and let us assume that Department C was 30 per cent. behind its 1935 figure. What would be the total percentage behind 1935 of the three departments? 5558

(Witness laughs.)

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial, your Honor; certainly not proper cross-examination. I doubt if the witness can answer it himself.

The Witness: I am sure I cannot. I am not going to be sucked in on that one. Don't worry. It is a good question, though.

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Was the objection sustained?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Miller, will you turn your attention to Commission's Exhibit 473. We find there that Department 330 in April of 1936 fell behind April of 1935 12.38. 5559
A. That is right.

Q. We find that Department 350 fell behind in 1936 over 1935 6.18, according to this exhibit. A. That is right.

Q. Would you say that the combined difference between 1936 and 1935 of those two departments is, roughly speaking, 18 point plus? A. No.

Q. Why not? A. You cannot do that. You cannot average or add or subtract the percentages. You have to have dollar volume figures to compute those. That is the way to average.

Q. Now, we also find there Department No. 335 went ahead in 1936 over 1935 11.97. A. That is right.

Q. Now, we find on the bottom line that the total difference between the dollar volume in 1936 of Departments 330 and 335 and 350, the total difference between their dollar volume in 1936 over 1935 is minus 20.2, a sum in excess of the decrease in two of the three departments taken individually. A. That is right.

5561 Q. Well, now, what were the figures on which you predicated that computation? A. Dollar figures for those departments this year and last year.

Q. Well, can you give us a rough approximation in order to show us how you reached that computation? A. I haven't those figures.

Q. So you don't know how they reached that figure? A. Yes, I know how they reached them, but I haven't the figures with me.

Q. Well, how did they reach them? A. The dollar figures last year and the dollar figures for this year for those three same departments, taking the difference and dividing by last year's total volume for those three departments.

5562 Q. Let me put it this way: Let me ask you the question this way: How can you get a total decrease of 20 per cent. in the three departments which is greater than the total decrease and difference between 1936 and 1935 of the individual departments? A. I would have to see the figures to answer that.

Q. You have seen the figures, but— A. I would have to have the figure to answer that.

Q. I am sorry, I cannot hear you. A. I would have to have the figure to answer that, the dollar figures in order to answer that question.

Q. Do you believe that any figures could result in such a computation? A. I would have to see those figures, I would say.

Q. Well, doesn't it sound strange to you? A. I would have to have the figures before I can answer that question.

Q. Does it not sound strange to you? A. No.

Q. I mean that Department A should be 10 per cent. behind, and Department B should be 10 per cent. behind, and that the two departments combined should be 30 per cent. behind? That is all that figure is. A. I cannot answer that unless I had the figures. If I had the figures I could answer in a minute.

5564

Q. Let us go into the theory of it. You laughed very much at my question. Let us see what is so funny about it.

Mr. Martin: I object to going into any theory.

Mr. Albert: I am forced to go into theory when he will not give the figures upon which it is predicated. I am going to show on his own exhibit, as I did on 470, 471 and 472, that his own figures can be shown to be fallacious.

Mr. Martin: Object to any theorizing. The witness has testified that he can only answer Mr. Albert's question if he had the figures available in front of him.

Mr. Albert: How can the whole be greater than the component parts? That is a simple question that is presented to us on these figures. I don't claim to be an Einstein, but I don't see how a third and a third and a third can add up to more than one. That is what they have done with these figures.

5565

Examiner Bennett: The record is made on that. Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you give us the theory on which the manner of these figures were arrived at? A. The division of the dollar figures by those three departments for the months in question last year, the same three departments in this year, the difference divided by last year's total.

Q. Now, I am just asking you these questions with respect to your qualifications to pass on this. There is nothing else behind it. I believe you are a graduate of Harvard Business School, aren't you? A. Yes.

Q. While you were present at Harvard Business School, I believe you took some courses on statistics. A. That is 5567 right.

Q. Well, now, from your knowledge of those courses that you had at Harvard Business School, will you please explain to me how, if Department A is 10 per cent. behind, and Department B is 10 per cent. behind over a given year, how both departments combined can be 30 per cent. behind over their both business records? I think that is a very simple and very fair question.

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he has any answer.

A. I would have to see these figures before I can answer you on percentage.

5568

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is not the question. A. I cannot answer it.

Q. I am asking you to please explain to us the theory by which that can be worked out. A. I cannot answer you.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Miller, assuming that the volume of Department No. 330, 1936, was $100,000, and assuming that the volume of Department 350 in 1936 was $100,000, can you and will you work out for me on the basis of those figures the relative volume for 1935, and then, by comparing them, demonstrate the figures that you have here? A. No, I cannot do that because we have to have exact figures. It is the weighted average.

Q. What do you mean by weighted average? A. I mean it is weighted by the amount of volume that is done in those departments.

Q. In other words, you are referring to what figures are taken? I mean, that is not a mathematical theory, weighted average? A. I don't get you.

Q. That is not a mathematical process of arriving at a conclusion? A. I don't understand you. 5570

Q. That is not the name given to any particular formula of arriving at a conclusion, is it? A. Well, it is a method, yes.

Q. What is that method? A. That your volume figures in each of its component parts have a direct bearing on the total percentage.

Q. Well, now, can the volume figure in each of its component parts, when taken together, be greater than the addition of those parts? A. I do not know.

Q. Would you say that where Department A is 10 per cent. behind its previous year, and Department B is 10 per cent. behind its previous year, a taking of the weighted average reveals a figure in excess of the individual percentages of those departments, that that is an unusual circumstance? 5571

Mr. Martin: Objected to. Pure speculation.

Mr. Albert: I think it is perfectly proper in the light of what I am running up against, your Honor. I want to show you how clear these figures are.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer. Go ahead.

The Witness: Will you read the question, please.

(Question read.)

The Witness: I cannot answer that without knowing volume figures.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, have you ever come across any particular result of that kind before very often? A. I don't recall.

Q. You do not recall ever having come across it before? A. I do not recall either having come across it or not having come across it.

Q. Did you not testify just a little while ago that you had seen cases of that kind? A. No.

Q. Well, now, will you please read back the record, or 5573 is it your Honor's recollection of the fact that he had come across such cases perfectly clear?

Examiner Bennett: Well, if it is in the record it is in the record. That is all there is to it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you want to deny that you had testified that you had seen cases of results of obtaining a weighted average? A. I don't recall.

Q. In which it appeared that Department A had been 10 per cent. behind in its volume over a particular year, and Department B had been 10 per cent. behind in its volume in a particular year, and that the combination of the two departments revealed that they had 30 per cent.
5574 difference there, the combined reports? A. I do not recall.

Q. You do not know? A. I do not recall.

Q. You do not know whether you testified to that or not? A. I do not recall.

Q. Do you mean you do not know one way or the other? A. I mean I do not recall.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if it please the Court, I think it is a most equivocal answer that the witness is trying to hide behind. I think it is very simple for him to tell me what he means by "I do not recall." Whether he means that he did say it, or whether he means he does not remember whether he said it or not. I think that is fair.

Examiner Bennett: I think it has a very definite meaning.

The Witness: I do not remember, if that is better.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that you do not remember now what you testified to only about ten minutes ago? A. Not the exact wording, 5576
no.

Q. I was not asking you the exact wording. I am asking you the substance as to whether you had not testified that you saw figures exactly or substantially revealing the queer result about which I have been speaking, assuming merely for the sake of argument, that it is a queer result. I don't want you to agree with me that it is a queer result.

Mr. Martin: I think the witness has answered the question.

Mr. Albert: He has not.

Mr. Martin: Just a moment, Mr. Albert, until I am through. He has already asked him two or three times whether he said it or not, and the wit- 5577 ness has said two or three times he does not recall whether he did or not.

Mr. Albert: He has just testified that his testimony was in reference to the fact that he did not use the specific language. He is obviously hiding behind an equivocation or something of that sort. The same kind of a situation we were presented with when a witness was presented a book and he said he had not read that particular book, a book that was of general circulation.

Examiner Bennett: You have made the record. You may proceed.

Mr. Albert: I am awfully sorry, your Honor, but I did not get your ruling on that question.

Examiner Bennett: I say, you have made a record on that, why not go ahead?

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: The record shows what the witness testified to, and if there is any dis-

5579 crepancy——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me ask you, Mr. Miller, have you ever seen any figures presenting the same results as I have here, picked out with respect to Departments 330, 335 and 350, and the total taken of all? A. I don't recall of having seen any.

Q. You have seen quite a few figures in your time? A. Right.

Q. And you have worked on quite a few figures? A. Yes.

Q. So that unless we have the exact dollar volume of the sales with respect to what these percentages mean, 5580 these figures are meaningless to us, aren't they? A. No. I don't think so.

Q. Mr. Miller, you have testified that the figures on Exhibit 473, representing the combined percentages as affecting Departments 330, 335 and 350, are a weighted average. I think that is the term you used. A. The combined figure?

Q. Yes. A. That is right.

Q. Are the figures given individually for each department also a weighted average? A. No.

Q. Just how do you weight— A. By the volume.

Q. —the three departments when you bring them in? A. By volume.

Q. Well, do you consider only the volume when you weight the figures? A. I don't get your question.

Q. Do you use any other criterion in arriving at the figures represented in the last line of Commission's Exhibit 473 than you did in arriving at the figures in each department individually? A. No.

Q. None whatsoever? A. No.

Q. Then what is all this talk about a weighted average? A. Simply that the percentage varies. The percentage of an increase or decrease for the total of the three varies as 5582 the volume between the three varies. It is an arithmetic average if you prefer to call it that, and we usually introduce another figure——

Q. There are no other elements taken into consideration in arriving at the percentage decrease between 1936 and 1935 of the combined combination of Departments 330, 335 and 350 than were taken into consideration in arriving at the percentage increase for each department individually; was there? A. No.

Q. None whatsoever? A. No.

Q. Then we have a simple arithmetical computation to be made in adding Departments 330, 335 and 350; is that correct? A. The total of the three.

Q. Right? A. The same.

Q. Let us assume that Department 330 for April of 5583
1936 did a total business of $100,000 on the basis of the figures presented in Commission's Exhibit 473, what was the total volume of business done in that department in 1935, roughly speaking? Don't carry it out to cents. A. I know what you are getting at. It won't work.

Q. Well, let us see if it will work. A. It won't work, because your percentage varies as your volume between departments varies.

Q. Let us see if we can get some basis of working on it. A. Perfectly willing to do it if you want to go through a mathematical computation here.

Q. Well, can you set up any hypothetical figures? A. No, I would have to have the actual figures.

Q. I don't want the exact figures of your volume, but will you let me work with figures which bear the same proportion in variation as do your actual figures of your departments? A. I will attempt to get those for you.

Q. Don't you know them now? A. No.

Q. Will you bring them in with you to-morrow? A. I will attempt to get them, yes.

5585 Q. You understand what I want? A. I understand what you want.

Q. I don't want the exact figure. A. I understand what you want.

Q. Just the exact proportion. A. I can multiply them by two or three or anything else, as long as I multiply them with the same figure.

Q. So that they bear the same proportion as they originally bear? A. I know what you want.

Q. Then we will all do a little arithmetic to-night.

Examiner Bennett: Take a recess of ten minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may resume.

5586

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, merely in order to solidify the record, your Honor, I wish to ask the witness the following question: That if I had asked you with respect to Departments 360, 371 and 380 for the dollar volumes for 1935 and 1936 for the months of February, March, April, May and June, am I correct in stating that your answers would have been the same, to the effect that you knew the figures when the exhibit was prepared, that they were available, that they were in your monthly merchandise reports, and that you did not wish to provide them for me? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, in the light of what has been disclosed with respect to the exhibit, Commission's Exhibit No. 473, will you now, Mr. Miller, volunteer to bring in the actual monthly figures with respect to Departments 330, 335 and 350? A. No, I can't bring the actual figures.

Q. What was the total volume of purchases of dresses in Department No. 330 for the year 1935?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, the witness has testified here—the question is withdrawn. 5588

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You are the divisional merchandise manager of the ready-to-wear dress department of William Taylor & Company; aren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have been such for sometime past? A. Right.

Q. You were there during 1935 and in 1936? A. Yes.

Q. What was the total volume of dresses purchased by William Taylor & Company during 1935? A. Of dresses?

Q. Yes. A. I haven't those figures with me.

Q. Are they available? A. They are.

Q. Will you provide them for me? A. No.

Q. When did you last know those figures? A. Oh, recently, within the past week, I would say. 5589

Q. You looked them up within the past week? A. That is right.

Q. Where are those figures contained in the records of William Taylor & Company? A. In the monthly summaries.

Q. Well, now, you testified that 60 per cent. of all dresses purchased in the various departments are Guild dresses. Do you recall that testimony? A. No; I didn't testify as to that.

Q. What did you testify to? A. I testified that between 60 and 75 per cent. of all dresses covered by Guild price lines came from Guild resources.

Mr. Albert: Will you repeat that, please?
(The answer was read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you say 60 to 75 per cent. of all dresses covered by the Guild price lines, what do you include within the price line? A. The price lines covered by Guild houses.

5591 Q. What is that price line? A. It was in the latter part of 1935 from $6.75 cost up.

Q. How much business do you do—the question is withdrawn. What is the volume of dresses purchased by Taylor below $6.75? A. I haven't got that figure with me.

Q. Cost. Have you those figures available? A. They are.

Q. Are they in your William Taylor & Company monthly reports? A. Not in that exact form.

Q. In what form are they? A. In the form that is represented by our price line divisions as indicated by the departmental set-up.

Q. If you asked for the figures with respect to what I have just asked you of any clerk in William Taylor & Company, what would you refer to and ask for? A. I 5592 beg your pardon?

Q. If you asked an employee of William Taylor & Company for the figures with respect to the total purchases under $6.75, what would you ask him for? A. I would ask him for the total purchases of $4.75 and $5.75.

Q. What records would you specifically refer him to? Would you refer him to a particular book? A. I would have to compute that from our unit control. We would compute it from our unit control.

Q. Then your unit control book then is the only physical record that contains those figures? A. That is correct.

Q. Is that here in Cleveland at the present time? A. Yes.

Q. Will you bring those figures for me and compute them to-morrow? A. No.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Miller, as divisional merchandise manager of William Taylor & Company, will you give me your estimate of the total volume of dresses purchased in the price lines that you have referred to? A. May I ask what price lines are referred to there in your question?

Q. $6.75 and up. A. I cannot give you that figure offhand. I would have to compute it.

Q. Well, I don't want it in exact figures. Can you give me an estimate of it? A. I can't give you an estimate, no.

Q. Well, now, I show you Commission's Exhibit 471. Does that figure represent 60 per cent. to 75 per cent. of all merchandise purchased by William Taylor & Company within those price lines? A. Yes.

Q. It does? And is it your contention that the whole amount of dresses purchased by William Taylor in those particular price lines does not exceed approximately between $73,000 to $91,000? A. That was the way to work—the way—that is the way it would work out, yes.

Q. So that with regard to any merchandise which may be affected by the Guild price line, the total amount of dresses that might possibly be affected by any program of the Guild, does not exceed $100,000 in purchases of William Taylor Son & Company? A. That is it. That is the cost.

Q. Cost? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, will you be good enough to tell the Court the precise method in which you arrived at the figures? A. These figures?

Q. Yes. Where you took them from. A. Ledger sheets.

Q. Ledger sheets? A. Accounts payable ledger sheets.

Q. Let me see if I am right. So that if an order was given to Herman Beistell for $200, $300 and then $207, that reflects the total figure here of roughly $707; is that correct? A. Well, this refers, of course, to merchandise received, not merchandise ordered.

Q. This does not refer to your merchandise ordered? A. No, sir; it refers to merchandise received.

Q. Well, how much of the business in Guild lines contracted for during 1935 and the 1936 period up to the red carding in dollar volume would you say has been 5597 omitted from this exhibit? A. I wouldn't know. I wouldn't have any way of estimating that.

Q. Would you say it was substantial or letter? A. Of course this record does not include any of the February, 1936, purchases.

Q. It doesn't include any of the February, 1936, purchases? A. No, because that only goes up to February 1.

Q. It does not include, therefore, any of the merchandise referred to in Commission's Exhibit 472? A. That is right.

Q. Well, now, then are there Guild houses and are there orders that were placed by William Taylor & Company which find no record either in Commission's Exhibit 472 or Commission's Exhibit 471? A. Only if they were canceled before completed.

5598 Q. Then there were orders placed by William Taylor & Company before the red carding which were not fulfilled by reason of the fact that William Taylor & Company canceled the orders? A. By reason of the fact that they were past due and canceled.

Q. Not referred to in Commission's Exhibit 472 or Commission's Exhibit 471? A. I am covering the whole period, you understand, from February 1, 1935, through February 1, 1936, in the normal course of business. We always cancel orders when they become past due a certain length of time.

Q. Well, were any of those orders within the period of January, 1936, and February, 1936? A. I can't say.

Q. Will you look it up for me and let me have the figures on it? A. I don't quite get your point. I am sorry.

Q. There are obviously, from your testimony, certain orders placed with Guild houses that are not recorded in Commission's Exhibit 472, and are not recorded or listed in Commission's Exhibit 471? A. Those were only orders that were delivered between February, 1936, and February 17, 1936, or had been shipped prior to Febru- 5600 ary 17, 1936.

Q. That is Commission's Exhibit 471? A. No. They are not included on that. To make myself clear, any additional orders that do not appear on 472 or 471 would be—or any additional purchases, let us say, would be merchandise that was on order as of February 1, 1936, from Guild resources, and was received by us between the period February 1, 1936, and February 17, 1936.

Q. So that—the question is withdrawn. Now, you have entitled this exhibit "Guild Purchases, February 1, 1935, to February 1, 1936"; haven't you? A. That is right.

Q. Shouldn't that be entitled "Merchandise Delivered from Guild Resources"? A. Not in our terminology, no. We do not consider purchases in our records until it is 5601 actually received in our store.

Q. Well, how are we to know that? A. That is common terminology in all of the stores.

Q. You made the distinction when I used the word "purchased" as to whether or not the goods had been purchased, you made the distinction that "No, they weren't purchased, this refers merely to goods that were purchased and delivered." If it is a common terminology—A. In what connection?

Q. —why did you correct me if it is commonly understood? A. In what connection?

Q. In referring to this exhibit.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you are arguing over terms. It is a matter of law. I think the term "purchase" has a very definite meaning in law.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I don't know as this gentleman has qualified as a lawyer.

By Mr. Albert.

5603 Q. Well, coming back to the original question——

Mr. Albert: I don't mean to bring up the legal question, your Honor. I merely wished to show that the title did not adequately reflect the fact.

Examiner Bennett: I think probably this witness testifies that that is the practice in his business. The legal definition of it will indicate that that would be an entirely legitimate use of the word "purchase."

Mr. Albert: Well, then——

Examiner Bennett: That is as I read the decisions about purchase. It includes delivery.

By Mr. Albert.

5604 Q. Then in order to make certain of this, Mr. Miller, we are to understand that Commission's Exhibit 471 does not reflect goods that were ordered but reflects the total dollar volume of goods that were ordered and actually delivered; is that correct? A. That is it.

Q. Now, to come back to the illustration of Mr. Beispell, you say that if you gave Mr. Beispell three orders of $200, $300 and $207 that that would reflect itself and is reflected in the figure in Commission's Exhibit 471, which states that the cost figures of goods purchased from Herman Beispell was $707 and some cents; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you in any way take into consideration, in the compilation of that figure, the amount of returns on that purchase? A. Yes. This is the net figure.

Q. Well, now, I just asked you whether or not the figure that you took off was the actual amount of the order. A. I said no.

Q. And you said what? A. I said no, it was not the actual amount of the orders.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, let's refer back to about four or five questions. 5606

(Record read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were those your answers?

The Witness: May I have that last part read again?

(Record again read.)

The Witness: I understand by that question you mean that the orders are naturally reflected in the receipts. In other words, he not shipping us merchandise that we don't order; on the other hand, we don't—we are not bound to take all merchandise against that order if he violates that contract in regard to the delivery dates. 5607

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well— A. That part of it which he actually delivers in accordance with the contract would naturally reflect itself in this purchase record. That is what I mean.

Q. Yes. But, if after the receipt of that $707 worth of merchandise from Mr. Beispell any returns were made by William Taylor & Company, that is not reflected in this figure, is it? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Well, how? A. That is the ledger card on these manufacturers recording both incoming merchandise and any returns to manufacturers. It does not take into consideration discount. It is the gross cost figure.

Q. Well, didn't you say a moment ago that this was the net figure? A. I said it was the net purchase figure, but I had nothing to say about the net cost figure. There is a distinction there, as you know.

Q. Yes. Well, but in answer to my question—I asked you whether or not when you gave an order for $200 5609 worth of merchandise, and you gave an order for $300 worth of merchandise, and you subsequently gave another order for $207 worth of merchandise in 1935, and according to your testimony with respect to Commission's Exhibit 471 that amount was delivered to you, does not that figure reflect the exact order that was given to Herman Beispell & Company for $707? A. No.

Q. Without taking into consideration the total amount due to returns? A. No, it does not.

Q. Well, then, will you please explain exactly what the figure opposite the name means (indicating) and how you arrive at that figure? A. The figure opposite these names means total amount of merchandise, gross cost of that merchandise delivered to us and entered on our journal sheets, our ledger sheets of the accounts payable office dur-
5610 ing the period February 1, 1935, to February 1, 1936, less any returns that were made to that manufacturer during that same period.

Q. Less discount? A. Discounts are not considered. That is the gross cost.

Q. So then, in so far as the amount of dollar volume of purchase prior to delivery is concerned, this figure of $54,492 would represent actual combined orders of Taylor to the various manufacturers of, let us say, $75,000 worth of goods? A. It would hardly be that much.

Q. Well, I am not taking a specific figure? A. It would be more than that amount.

Q. It would be more than this amount? A. That is right.

Q. Now, when you investigated the figures with respect to the comparison of Guild sources in the price lines of the Guild sources with other sources, did you use the same basic figures? A. I did.

Q. Have you any opinion as to whether or not the percentage of returns from sources other than Guild sources is greater than the percentage of returns to Guild sources? A. I think they are comparable.

Q. They are the same? A. Approximately. I have no reason to think otherwise. 5612

Q. And that you testify to from your experience as divisional merchandise manager of William Taylor Company? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that since the percentage of returns does not vary between the two, that the quality of the merchandise from other sources is equal to the quality of the merchandise from Guild sources? A. I don't think that is a fair assumption necessarily.

Q. Pardon me a moment.

Mr. Albert: Has your Honor any objection to our putting in photostats of the exhibits we put into evidence this morning, rather than the originals? 5613

Examiner Bennett: I have no objection.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: You can arrange with the Reporter to have them marked.

Mr. Albert: The photostats have been marked to conform to the originals.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Unless the Commission's attorney objects, I have no objection.

Mr. Albert: Correct me if I am wrong.

The attorney for the Commission has no objection to photostatic copies being placed in evidence with respect to Respondents' Exhibits 24, 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29 with the expressed stipulation from counsel for the respondent that the pencil notations on Respondents' Exhibit 24 are not to be considered evidence and only the typewritten matter of the letter will be considered evidence. Is that right?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, referring to Respondents' Exhibit
5615 24, being letter from you to Fashion Originators Guild, was that letter written in response to any communication or any request for information from the Fashion Originators Guild? A. No.

Q. None whatsoever? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Had you given them any information prior to sending that letter of the orders which were outstanding at the time of the red carding? A. Not to the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. You had not? A. No.

Q. Through anybody? A. We had given it to individual manufacturers but not to the Guild.

Q. Did anybody on your behalf give any information to the Fashion Originators Guild, to Mr. Post or to Mr.
5616 Golby, with respect to the orders outstanding at the time of the red carding? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Was any discussion had with either Mr. Post or Mr. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to orders outstanding at the time of the red carding, either by yourself or by any person acting on behalf or with the authority or consent of William Taylor & Company? A. I do not know. I do not know of anyone else that did.

Q. Did you receive any information in the ordinary course of the business of William Taylor Company that any discussion was had on behalf of the William Taylor Company with the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to orders outstanding at the time of the red carding?

Mr. Martin: I object. He has already testified that he did not have any conversation with them, and that so far as he knows nobody else did, and he has no knowledge of it.

Mr. Albert: We still have not got, as far as he knows nobody else did, and I am merely adopting the tactics of the Commission in asking if he received it in the course of his business. 5618

Mr. Martin: He has testified that he does not know, that so far as he knows no one did. I think it is a perfectly full and complete answer to your previous question.

Examiner Bennett: What is the last question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

The Witness: What was the question?

(Question read.)

The Witness: I do not know of any.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you have been informed of any in the ordinary course of business had there been any? A. Yes. 5619

Q. Well, now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Miller, don't you know that there were various conferences held by persons representing William Taylor Company with the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to the fulfilling of these orders? A. (No response.)

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that Mr. Bergdahl had conferences with the Fashion Originators Guild with Mr. Post and Mr. Golby with respect to this matter?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. There is not any indication here that this gentleman is in any way related to Mr. Bergdahl.

Mr. Albert: Very well. I will show the relationship if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: I don't think we will go into a matter of that kind on cross-examination, cross-examining on cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, may I be permitted to refresh the recollection of the witness with respect to it? I think I can refresh his recol-5621 lection of it.

Examiner Bennett: The matter has not been gone into in connection with direct examination. There is nothing in the record to indicate at all that this man was a representative of this particular concern. I will sustain the objection. If you want to put on Mr. Bergdahl in your direct case to testify as to his being authorized by this concern, Taylor & Company, to look after this business for them, why, that is all right.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry. I did not follow that last remark.

Examiner Bennett: I say, if you want to put on Mr. Bergdahl as your own witness, when it comes to presenting your case, if Mr. Bergdahl was 5622 authorized to represent this concern and did, in fact, represent them, I think you are entitled to do so.

Mr. Albert: Well, I feel quite certain before we are through with the case that the Commission will undoubtedly call Mr. Bergdahl.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, in response to Respondents' Exhibit 24, you received Respondents' Exhibit 31; is that not so? A. That is right.

Q. And what do you understand to be the meaning of that telegram? A. I understood to be the meaning of it that it would be necessary for us to take all orders, to accept all merchandise against all orders outstanding on February 17, the date, I believe, we were red carded, according to the evidence, if we were to have any of them.

Q. Well, now, as a matter of fact, did you not believe by this letter that the Guild was of the opinion that you had attempted to pick out only certain manufacturers mentioned in your letter of March 11, and that in response to that letter they said that if you desire all merchandise available, you cannot discriminate on individual shipments or manufacturers? A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not understand that to be so. Well, now, is it not a fact that in response to this letter, Commission's Exhibit 31, you sent the following telegram: "Orders listed in letter cover all merchandise now outstanding with your members"? A. That is right.

Q. So that what you attempted to convey to the Fashion Originators Guild was that you had not chosen any particular manufacturers from those whose orders were outstanding, but that the four represented in Respondents' Exhibit No. 24 were the only ones from whom orders were outstanding at that time; is that not so? A. That is correct.

Q. But except for the fact that you used a departmental cancellation, which you did not inform anybody of, and which nobody knew anything at all about as regards the cancellation, there were other orders outstanding undelivered at the time that you sent this telegram, were there not?

Mr. Martin: I object, your Honor, as being cross-examination on cross-examination. All these were brought out by my friend.

Mr. Albert: To the contrary, your Honor, they are matters that refer to his direct examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I will let him answer.

The Witness: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Witness: I cannot answer that definitely. I know that we used what we call "House Cancellation" on some orders. What they are, I am not in position to testify now.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, is it not a matter of fact that you contended as regards these unfilled orders, that by reason of the fact 5627 that you had put on your house cancellation of the order, you were not required to take the orders from the manufacturers; is that not so? A. I contended nothing about it.

Q. Well, what is the meaning of this telegram, Respondents' Exhibit No. 28, as follows: "Thought my wire plus letter explained clearly merchandise we desired delivered from your members. Orders specified all that are outstanding at the present time. Other orders placed prior to February 17 were canceled when past due and placed with other manufacturers. Impossible to accept merchandise covered by these canceled orders." What did you mean by that? A. I think it is clear.

Q. Well, I am a little dense. Would you mind explaining it? I mean, I am in Mr. Haycraft's class now. The matter seems dense and I cannot figure it out.
5628

Mr. Martin: You do not mean Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Albert: I mean Mr. Martin.

The Witness: It simply means that in accordance with our records there were no other orders outstanding on our files except those that were covered in our letter of March 11.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. But who knew that they were canceled aside from yourself? A. I am not in a position to testify which ones were entered on house cancellation and which were not. If you would like that information I will get it for you.

Q. At the present time you do not know who was notified of the cancellation? A. I do not know which manufacturers were definitely notified and which were not.

Q. Can you tell me how long after the delivery date of the orders which were unfulfilled you filled those orders with other manufacturers? A. No, I cannot.

Examiner Bennett: Is that your regular course of proceeding? That is, canceling orders as soon 5630 as they are due?

The Witness: Yes, within a reasonable length of time after they become due, if they are still unfulfilled, we cancel them.

Examiner Bennett: That is true, is it, generally about your business?

The Witness: Yes, it is.

Examiner Bennett: I see. Very well.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is your usual course of business, Mr. Miller, with respect to cancellation of orders? A. Well, it depends entirely upon the type of order, and whether or not the manufacturer had indicated a willingness to deliver 5631 that merchandise or an intention of delivering it. If it is an order that is past due, we usually cancel it within a reasonable length of time; sometimes due date, it is past due; sometimes it will be a week, sometimes it will be as long as two weeks. Other times, when we have an indication from the manufacturer that the order will not be delivered, we cancel it then and there.

Q. Now, isn't it a matter of fact, Mr. Miller, particularly with respect to the price lines which are the subject of immediate discussion, that no cancellation is operative until notice thereof is given to the manufacturer? A. Unless the manufacturer gives us notice, which we had had in certain instances in the Guild merchandise. In other words, that they had told us that they could not deliver.

Q. You had the same notice of an item in Women's Wear that the Guild had red carded you, from which you assumed that you could get no merchandise from Guild houses with respect to Bernard Appel, Milton Altmark, 5633 William Bass and Mary Lee; didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Why didn't you cancel theirs? A. I don't know. We didn't cancel any of those orders until they were past due. That is all I can tell you, either on a house cancellation or a mail out. If the information relative to house versus mail-out cancellation is of great importance, I can bring that in definitely in the morning for you.

Q. On cancellation of an order, which you give notice to a Guild house—when you give notice to a manufacturer, what sort of notice did you usually give of the cancellation? A. It is a formal cancellation blank similar to our order blank except marked "Cancellation" and specifies the order number to which it refers along with other information pertaining to that order.

5634 Examiner Bennett: It is our usual time for adjournment.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor. We can take this up from here to-morrow.

Examiner Bennett: You have further cross-examination?

Mr. Albert: I think so with respect to this particular item, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: I say, I am through with respect to this particular field.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will adjourn. Do you want this witness to-morrow morning?

Mr. Albert: I beg your pardon, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Do you want this witness to-morrow morning?

Mr. Albert: Oh, well, we will just about be starting with him to-morrow morning, your Honor. I mean, after all, I have only been examining him with respect to his mistakes.

The Witness: Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will adjourn until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock at this place. I will ask the witness to be present for further examination. 5636

The Witness: 10 o'clock to-morrow morning?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, 10 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4.40 o'clock P. M., August 12, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

5637

Court Room No. 307,
Federal Building,
Cleveland, Ohio,
August 13, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

5639 Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

You may resume.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, before we resume questioning to-day——

Mr. Miller: Your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: —I have a slight statement I wish to make.

Mr. Miller: May I——

Mr. Martin: Wait.

Mr. Albert: If you will just wait a few moments, Mr. Miller.

On the hearings yesterday, Mr. Miller, representing William Taylor Sons & Company, presented various figures, ostensibly representing percentages of increase and decrease of various departments compared with their 1936 5640 and 1935 volume.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: He also presented, or, rather, testified to the fact that in the price line covered by Guild sources, William Taylor Sons & Company used 60 per cent. of their total volume of merchandise in those particular price lines.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: He also presented various other figures without giving the basis or the foundation for computing the percentages which have been testified to in evidence.

I believe that the witness also acknowledged that with respect to the itemization of these various things as contained in certain exhibits, which are now in evidence, certain omissions appeared in those exhibits.

Now, in the light of that fact, I ask your Honor to call upon the attorneys for the Federal Trade Commission, pursuant to the power vested in them for the orderly and fair presentation of evidence upon this hearing, in order to obviate the necessity, the expense, and the discomfort of all parties concerned, coming back here to Cleveland in order to get the information which must be gotten in order to show the basis for those figures, and, as an evidence of good faith on the part of the attorneys for the 5642
Commission, that they are seeking to present all of the facts and the figures, and not to present a biased case, I ask your Honor to demand of the attorneys for the Commission that they subpoena the records of William Taylor Son & Company, and produce the figures which form the foundation of the testimony of Mr. Miller, and that in default of their presenting the figures which form the foundation of that testimony, that your Honor strike from the record all of this witness' testimony.

The Federal Trade Commission's attorneys have been protesting at the extraordinary length of these proceedings, that their schedule has been delayed. It seems to me that if the Commission insists upon assisting William Taylor Son & Company in not disclosing the figures which form the basis of their computations, it will be necessary 5643 for all parties concerned to come back here to Cleveland, with added expense on everybody, and certainly additional time, which seems to be the main concern of the Federal Trade Commission's attorneys, and I say that if they are sincere in that regard alone, aside from the question of the competency of the evidence that has been presented, but in order to be consistent with their argument that these proceedings are not advancing with the speed which they think they should advance, that in order to save all of the time of coming back to Cleveland, the Commission, pursuant to the Federal Trade Commission Act, Section 10, should demand of William Taylor Son & Company that they produce those figures and make them available to the Commission for investigation.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, as counsel for the respondent has already been advised, not once but half a dozen or more times by your Honor, if they desire those figures there is a proper time and a proper place, and a proper method, by which they can secure the figures. In the meantime counsel for the Commission respectfully sub-5645 mit that it will conduct its case according to their view of it and not in accordance with instructions from counsel for the respondent.

Examiner Bennett: I might say that Mr. Weisman was advised that he might put in his testimony at all these places immediately on the closing of the hearings by the Commission, and he said that he did not care to do so, and we have let it go on. At least, that is true of the hearings in other than in New York and Boston and Philadelphia, which were close by to the headquarters, and I presume that that still stands.

I, of course, will say that if he had indicated otherwise, why, he would have been given an opportunity, and we would have arranged for that, but as to the request of the attorney, it is denied.

5646 If the Commission chooses to put in that testimony in that form, while the evidence is not so strong as it would be if the figures were here—however, in the judgment of the Examiner it is competent evidence, and he sees no reason why it should be—why the witnesses should be compelled—in behalf of the Commission, to disclose what they consider to be damaging facts, damaging to their business.

The witness has indicated that he wishes to correct some errors in his testimony of yesterday, and the Examiner now gives him an opportunity to do so.

Mr. Albert: May I have just a brief word in reply, your Honor? May I point out to your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Well, what are you going to debate? The matter of getting that evidence?

Mr. Albert: I merely wish to show your Honor the difference between what is occurring here in Cleveland and what has occurred in Boston and Philadelphia. In Boston, New York and Philadelphia we were given volume figures, plus the percentages.

Examiner Bennett: Yes—well, I am not talking about that.

Mr. Albert: In Cleveland we are only talking about percentages. 5648

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am not going to hear any more argument on that.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor, exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may have your exception.

W. E. MILLER, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued).

Examiner Bennett: You may make such questions as you have to make if you care to do so.

The Witness: Your Honor—— 5649

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I make objection to the witness making corrections in his testimony, and ask to be permitted to continue with my cross-examination, and if the Commission wishes to rehabilitate the witness on redirect examination, I think that is the proper place for it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I am going to give him an opportunity right now to correct his testimony.

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may have it.

The Witness: Your Honor, with reference to Commission's Exhibit—I believe—473, in which are given percentage increase and decrease figures for the store as a whole and for various departments which occur through February, through June of 1936, as compared to February through June, 1935. I find upon further personal investigation that the total figures, for total better dresses, that is, Departments 330, 335 and 350 for the month of April, 1936, as compared with the month of April, 5651 1935, was inaccurate.

That total figure, instead of being 20.72, as I get it here—it is blurred—should have read a decrease of 6.91.

Examiner Bennett: What?

The Witness: 6.91 decrease. I personally have checked every other figure in this exhibit against the actual monthly record figures of our concern and find them to be correct. The figures at the bottom of this page, which are the total of the three departments in question, were computed in addition to the monthly record figures. I personally have checked each of those computations and can testify as to the fact that they are now correct.

5652 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, you also testified that they were correct yesterday, didn't you, Mr. Miller? A. I did.

Q. And you found that you were mistaken? A. I did.

Q. You also testified yesterday in response to the direct questions from Mr. Martin that you had previously personally checked these figures; is that true? A. I don't believe that is correct, sir.

Q. Well, now, didn't you testify in response to a question from Mr. Martin that you had personally prepared the exhibit? A. I don't believe so.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. I don't believe so. The records, I think, would show that.

Q. I mean, you are not certain of what you testified to?

Mr. Martin: I don't think there is any evidence of that sort in the record at all.

Mr. Albert: Well, let me ask about it, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: The record will show what he testified to.

Mr. Albert: May I be permitted? 5654

Examiner Bennett: The Examiner recalls one document that he prepared himself.

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: There is a list of names of Guild houses with whom he did business.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any doubt whether or not you testified yesterday that you personally prepared Commission's Exhibit 473? A. I think the record will show that.

Q. I am asking you. Have you any doubts as to what you testified to? A. I can't answer that question. I can't answer that question. I am sorry.

Q. Well, if you didn't prepare it personally, should there 5655 be any doubt in your mind that you didn't?

The Witness: Would you read that question back?

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: That isn't the question. That isn't the question you asked him. You asked him whether he had testified. He is replying to that question.

Mr. Albert: No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let's start all over again, Mr. Miller. Didn't you testify yesterday that Commission's Exhibit 473 was prepared by you? A. I can't answer that question.

Q. You don't know what you testified to yesterday? A. I think the record will show that.

Q. Now, please answer my questions. Don't you know what you testified to yesterday? A. I think the record will show that.

Mr. Albert: May I ask your Honor to direct the witness to answer that question?

5657 Examiner Bennett: I will ask him to answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Don't you remember what you testified to yesterday? A. I am not sure of the wording.

Q. I am not asking you about the wording. I am asking you of the substance. Did you testify that you prepared Commission's Exhibit 473? A. To the best of my knowledge, I testified that Commission's Exhibit 473 was prepared under my supervision and at my request.

Q. Well, now, what was so doubtful about it in your mind up to now?

Examiner Bennett: That is exactly what he testified to yesterday.

5658 Mr. Albert: Well, now, Mr.——

Examiner Bennett: Let's not waste time with it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, do you recall this testimony: "By Mr. Martin. Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 473 for Identification and ask you can you identify that? A. I can." Up to the present time, Mr. Miller, you have been particularly discreet in answering questions, haven't you? You have made certain that you answered the question in accordance with what your belief was that the answer should be as to the true facts?

Mr. Martin: I object to that as being immaterial and irrelevant. This witness is under oath.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is not a question, is it?

Mr. Martin: Sir?

Examiner Bennett: I say, it is not a question, is it? It is a comment. Do you want it to be stricken?

Mr. Martin: I think the question he is asking him 5660 is improper.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I didn't think it was a question. I thought it was a comment. Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I think we can judge Mr. Miller's testimony without asking him further along that line.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you recall yesterday when I used the word "purchase" you corrected me as to my use of the word and as to the meaning of it, didn't you? A. In one reference, 5661
yes.

Q. Yes. And during the time of the examination generally when words were improperly used, or when questions were propounded, you have refused to answer the question until a question was separated, or until the complete meaning of the word was apparent to you; isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. Now I read further in the examination by Mr. Martin in referring to Commission's Exhibit 473: "Q. What is it? A. It is a record showing the volume increases or decreases by months through February, through June of this year for the total store for each of the departments mentioned by you and for the total dress departments which constitute women's, misses', women's and misses' better dresses. Q. Was that prepared by you under your supervision? A. Prepared by me." Do you recall that testimony now? A. I presume if it is in the record I must have given it.

Q. Well, I am reading it to you from the record. Do you recall that? A. I understand. Yes.

5663 Q. Now, then, was your testimony wrong? A. It must have been in that respect.

Q. Isn't it more than "it must have been"? It was, wasn't it? A. The record was prepared under my supervision, not by me personally.

Q. So that if this exhibit was admitted into evidence on the basis of the fact——

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please——

Q. —that you personally prepared it, it was wrongly admitted, wasn't it?

Mr. Martin: I object to counsel for the Commission picking out one particular question out of the record. As I recall it, there are further questions 5664 and answers.

Mr. Albert: I would only be too glad to read them.

Mr. Martin: Further on that which explained it.

Mr. Albert: I will only be too glad to read them.

Examiner Bennett: That was gone into on cross-examination yesterday very thoroughly. Mr. Miller went into the matter and showed just how it had been prepared.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor recalls those questions.

Examiner Bennett: I recall the cross-examination very thoroughly, and I know just what he testified to on cross-examination. It was exactly what he testifies to now. There is nothing concealed about it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, did you compute the percentage of increase or decrease for the combined departments 330, 335 and 350 for the five months, February, March, April, May and June? A. I did.

Q. What is that figure? A. You mean as a total? 5666

Q. Yes. A. No, I did not.

Q. Can you compute that figure for us? A. Yes, easy.

Q. Have you the figure there? A. No, I haven't.

Q. Have you any figures there which will permit you to compute it? A. No, I haven't. I haven't the dollar figures. I can have it for you this afternoon, if you would like.

Q. Will you do so? A. Yes. That is the same figure, the same percentage figure for the five months as the total? Do I understand you correctly?

Q. Yes. A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. That is, you have taken departments 330, 335, 350 for one month? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, take 330, 335, 350 for the five months. A. Five months as a total? I understand. 5667

Q. And let us know how much they increased their business over 1935. A. Would you also want the same figure for the store as a total? As a whole?

Q. No, I don't think so. A. All right.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I object to any comparison of that sort. The Commission's exhibit shows exactly what it is. It is a comparison of those departments for the total stores for each month. Now, if counsel for respondents wants the total for those five months as compared with the total of the store for the five months, I see no objection to his getting it, but otherwise I do object to it.

Mr. Albert: Well, we are up against the same proposition of the Commission refusing to permit evidence to be presented even on the hocus pocus figures that have been presented here in Commission's Exhibit 473.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, there
5669 is a limit, I think, to which Counsel for the Commission is required to go. Personally.

Mr. Albert: You have exceeded the limit.

Mr. Martin: Just a minute. I am talking.

Mr. Albert: By the Commission's evidence——

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

Mr. Martin: Now, as far as I am concerned, I am sick and tired of counsel being—counsel for the Commission being met on every occasion and willfully and maliciously charged with the suppression of evidence on every occasion because we do not happen to conduct our case as they want us to conduct it.

Mr. Albert: Well, Mr. Martin——

Mr. Martin: Will you wait until I am through?

5670 Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. Sit down until he is through.

Mr. Martin: I have always.

Examiner Bennett: Haven't you the courtesy to sit down until the gentleman is through?

Mr. Martin: I have always been taught that cases were won by proper presentation of evidence and argument and logic, not by such interpolations and personalities which seems to be the basis for counsel on the other side trying the case. I respectfully request that the Examiner ask counsel for the other side to address his remarks towards the proper cross-examination and refrain from further personalities and accusations.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question pending?

(Record read.)

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is a matter up to the witness.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, when did you start preparing Commission's Exhibit 473? 5672

Mr. Martin: I object to that. Immaterial and irrelevant as to when he started preparing it.

Mr. Albert: Foundation question, if your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, let me put it this way, then: How long would you say it took to prepare Commission's Exhibit 473?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 5673

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You prepared Commission's Exhibit 473 over the week-end?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. We left here last night at about 4.30. When did you start correcting the figures of Commission's Exhibit 473?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, we have here a total of thirty months of figures of six departments. We have five months of figures of the total stores' sales for both 1935 and for 1936. The witness left here last night at 4.30 o'clock, and I 5675 presume he took time out for dinner, and yet the witness comes in and tells us that between approximately 6 o'clock last night and 10 o'clock this morning he was able to personally check every single figure that forms the basis of any of the estimates in this particular exhibit. And I think that I should be permitted to examine him to show the practical impossibility of his having done so. If he actually did look at the figures he couldn't have paid very much attention to them.

Examiner Bennett: You may examine him as to the sources.

Mr. Albert: I beg your Honor's pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I say, you may examine him as to sources. I don't see that the matter of 5676 time—it is merely a matter of what records he had, what shape they were in, and what assistance he had, and so on. I don't think it throws any light on it at all. It appears that these figures are taken from reports which were in informative form when submitted, and did not entail a great deal of work.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Miller, do I understand that with respect to each department the figure that you checked was the figure on the merchandise monthly report for the particular month for that department?

Mr. Martin: Objection. The witness has already testified to that question, both on direct and on cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I am only asking him——

Mr. Martin: And I object on the ground of repetition needlessly.

Mr. Albert: I haven't started to examine him yet, your Honor, on his corrections that occurred since yesterday, which I am now directing myself to. 5678

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled.

The Witness: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. That is correct. I checked the figures that were on Exhibit—Commission's Exhibit 473, month by month, with the report—with the monthly statistical report—which shows increase or decrease of volume over the previous year.

Q. So that you compared the final figure contained in Commission's Exhibit 473 with the very identical figure prepared by your clerk or accountant as contained in your merchandise monthly report; is that correct? A. That is correct, except I did it personally this time. 5679

Q. Didn't you say that you personally checked the figures? A. Pardon me?

Q. Didn't you say that you personally checked the figures? A. I said that I personaly checked these figures against our merchandise report.

Q. What did you mean just now when you said "except that I personally did not"? A. No. No. I said I personally did check it.

Mr. Albert: Oh.

Mr. Martin: He said "I personally checked it."

Mr. Albert: I am sorry. I thought you said "I did not." I am awfully sorry.

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Albert,

Q. Now, let us assume that on a particular month, let's say for February in Department 330, when you went into the merchandise monthly report you found the total business was $10,000. That is just an arbitrary figure, has no meaning at all. A. That is right.

5681 Q. Did you examine the figures to determine how that $16,000 was computed? A. No, because those figures are—

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, all I want to know is, did you examine them, and the answer is "yes" or "no." A. No.

Q. Did you examine them with respect to any other department?

Mr. Martin: I object to that as being entirely irrelevant and immaterial. He has testified that these figures were prepared from the store records, which were ordinarily used in the course of business, and which were relied upon by the store in the conduct of their business.

Mr. Albert: I pity William Taylor Son & Company if they relied upon that figure of 20.2 for 5682 April for the three departments, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: They do not need your pity.

Mr. Albert: Seemingly all that Mr. Miller has done is merely to compare the main figure that was presented to us with the figure that was reached in Commission's Exhibit 473. Anybody could do that and see that nobody made a mistake in the transcribing of the figure, but he has not checked up on the accuracy of that particular figure.

Examiner Bennett: I see.

Mr. Martin: The objection is renewed.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, you have testified that since you have been with William Taylor Son & Company you have gone down to New York upon various occasions, to the market, to assist in buying, to look over the market, in conformity with your various duties; is that not so? A. I have.

Q. And as a result of that you have become familiar with the various manufacturers in the market; is that not so? A. With those with whom we were doing business, yes. 5684

Q. You have no knowledge of any other manufacturers except those with whom you have been particularly doing business? A. Yes, I have some knowledge, naturally.

Q. Well, to what extent have you a knowledge of the business? A. That would be a difficult question to answer. I do not know.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to how many manufacturers there are that manufacture merchandise in the same price line as the members of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant, immaterial, and outside of the scope of cross-examination. The witness has testified that he did not personally do any buying, that he has supervision over the buyers who did the actual buying, and that he has been to New York on occasions with them to look at stocks, and, further, that he was familiar with the buyers with whom they did business; but otherwise he was not. And I respectfully 5685 submit that that question is not a proper question for cross-examination; outside of the scope of direct examination——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

Mr. Martin: —and is irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, this witness has testified with respect to the injury to William Taylor Son & Company in its inability to maintain its sources of supply. Now, when we seek to cross-examine this witness to show that his source of supply has not been injured, we meet the same philosophy of approach that we met in Philadelphia and Boston to the effect that the witness knows nothing about it, that he did not go down to New York, that he is not a buyer, and that the buyers are the ones who are to testify as to that.

5687

When I sought yesterday in anticipation of this very thing to inquire where the buyers were, I was met with the proposition that one buyer is presently in New York and that the other was on her vacation somewheres.

Now, if Mr. Martin believes sincerely that this witness can give us no information as regards his ability to tap sources of supply, then I say that in fairness to the respondent, and in fairness to the Commission, this witness' entire testimony with respect to sources of supply should be stricken until such time as the Commission brings in people who are competent to testify as to what the sources of supply were, as to how they were injured by any action of the Fashion Originators Guild, and people who can entirely answer and demonstrate the contentions of the respondent, or, rather, not demonstrate, but give reply to the questions to the attorneys for the respondents, demonstrating that their sources of supply have not been injured.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, the question of source of supply is a matter of defense. If the respondents seek to show that there were ample and plenty of sources of supply available to this witness for securing merchandise, that is a question of defense, and is properly brought out by the respondents' direct examination, but I respectfully submit it has no place in cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: Well, I have heard all the debate I care to hear on that. I am going to let you pursue the examination to a certain extent.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor. 5690

Examiner Bennett: Objection is overruled.

(Question read as follows: "Q. Have you any knowledge as to how many manufacturers there are that manufacture merchandise in the same price line as the members of the Fashion Originators Guild?")

A. I have never counted them, no.

Q. After the red carding, did you make any investigation to determine from what manufacturers you could obtain the same price line as had been handled by you through members of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, we did.

Q. And, as a result of that investigation, what did you find? A. We found that in some cases we could replace, 5691 and in other cases we could not.

Q. Well, as a result of your investigation, how many manufacturers did you find who were manufacturing merchandise in the same price line as the Fashion Originators Guild of America members did?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; the witness has already testified he does not know.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, that is your testimony, that you do not know?

The Witness: I don't know how many there were.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were you furnished with any list by any of your sources of information listing manufacturers manufacturing merchandise in the same price line as the members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America?

5693 Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer.

A. You mean the A.M.C.?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is right. A. We have a list.

Q. So that you did have a list of manufacturers, did you not? A. Yes, we had a list.

Q. You did not testify to that, or that information, in response to any of my previous questions, did you? A. It was not asked, to my knowledge.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibit 450?

5694 (Counsel searches for exhibit.)

Mr. Albert: May I ask the Court's indulgence for just a moment?

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: May I ask the Court's indulgence for just a moment; they went for that exhibit.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Post: A copy of it would be attached to the last day's testimony taken in Philadelphia.

Mr. Keller: Here it is (indicating).

Examiner Bennett: Have you found the exhibit?

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Keller: Not the original; it is just in the testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I see.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 450, as typewritten into the record, and ask you if you received a similar letter as this letter?

Mr. Post: Excuse me. Here is the original exhibit.

Mr. Albert: Oh, you found it? 5696

Mr. Post: I found it right here.

(Mr. Albert shows original exhibit to the witness.)

Mr. Martin: This is objected to, your Honor, as seeking to bring in that same old question in connection with the Associated Merchandising Corporation, which you have ruled out.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor, you cannot divorce the serpent from the tree; they have been together since Adam and Eve.

Mr. Martin: There is no evidence to show that this witness or his firm has any connection with the Associated Merchandising Corporation.

Mr. Albert: Why, if your Honor please—— 5697

Mr. Martin: And I object to any cross-examination along that line.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, this witness has volunteered the information that the A.M.C. sent him a list of sources of supply.

Mr. Martin: In other words, do you think you can cross-examine him on cross-examination?

Mr. Albert: I can get out of him any information that is pertaining to his direct. He said his sources of supply were affected, and that is what I want. It is the only purpose of this examination.

Examiner Bennett: I understand that the witness testified that he had a list of this sort. That is, that he had a list setting forth certain manufacturers. Is that not your testimony?

The Witness: That is correct.

Mr. Albert: That is, he referred to a list generally without——

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I will sustain the objection to that question. He has a list, and that is all there is to it.

5699

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, I show you a list of non-Guild members, being Commission's Exhibit 450-B to 450-P, and ask you if this is the list that you had?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer that.

A. I believe that that is true. May I go through it? (Witness examines Exhibit 450.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that an accurate list? A. As far as——.

5700

Mr. Martin: I object to that. Obviously the witness cannot testify as to that. He did not prepare the list; it was a list that was sent him.

Mr. Albert: He testified he had actually received a lot of things that he has not prepared, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: He has not testified as to the accuracy of that, though.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained; I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was this list provided you in the ordinary course of business of William Taylor Son & Company?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor please——

Examiner Bennett: Well, I do not think—I think you are asking him impossible questions; he evidently cannot——

Mr. Albert: That is what I am trying to find out. That is precisely what I am trying to find out.

Examiner Bennett: Well, find out whether this, that or the other concern was providing him with the information as to what he wanted. Let us get at it. Let us get at the thing. 5702

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you purchase any goods from Simon & Schmer? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you purchase any goods from Rosenthal-Kalman? A. May I ask a question?

Q. Yes. A. That is the same as Rosana?

Mr. Feldman: Yes, that is right.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You did? A. Yes. 5703

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I would like at this time—it is immaterial, of course, to the Commission whether or not these names are put in evidence, but I would like to——

Examiner Bennett: Make your objection.

Mr. Martin: —enter an objection and ask the Court to call to the attention of the witness that he is—if he does not want to disclose his present source of supply he does not have to, that is up to him.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I thought I made——

Mr. Albert: Now, then——

Examiner Bennett: I thought I had made that plain to him.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court—I mean, do you not think that this solicitation of the Federal Trade Commission——

Examiner Bennett: May I say——

Mr. Albert: —making certain that the witness is informed that he does not have to testify is unseemly?

5705

Examiner Bennett: Please do not debate that. There is no need of debating that and filling the record with that sort of thing.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Examiner Bennett: The witness has not indicated that he is reluctant to disclose it, and that is up to him. Go ahead and question him. If he wants to answer, why, he may do so; if he does not, if he thinks that is confidential matter, he need not disclose it. It is up to him to say.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, did you contact Rosenfield-Newman for the purpose of purchasing merchandise?

5706

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you contact Patricia for the purpose of purchasing merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. Did you purchase any? A. I believe so; I am not sure.

Q. Do you know the amount of that purchase? A. I do not know, offhand.

Q. Will you furnish me with the figures? A. I am afraid I cannot do that.

Q. You mean you won't do that? A. I could not without permission of my concern.

Q. Will you find out if they will permit you to disclose those figures? A. I will ask them to.

Q. What about Virginia Lee? A. I don't recall that.

Q. You don't recall that at all? A. I don't recall whether we made any—I know the name is on the list, that is all.

Q. And Bacher & Schachter, did you contact them? A. 5708
Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you contact Varsity? A. Yes.

Q. Did you purchase any goods from Varsity? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you contact Ruth Lane? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you contact D. Saltman? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you contact Baronet? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any purchases from them? A. Yes.

Q. How much merchandise did you purchase from them? A. I don't know.

Q. Are the figures available? A. They are.

Q. Will you provide me with them? A. No.

Q. That is, you do not have to ask your superiors with 5709 respect to them, do you? A. If you would rather have the other answer no, we will make it no all the way down.

Q. That is, I understand with respect to all houses on this list that you actually purchased goods from, you refuse to provide me with the figures or the amount of the purchase? A. That is right.

Q. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Very well, I won't have to ask that question on all of them. A. That is correct.

Q. Did you contact D. Saltzman? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. (Question read.) A. I don't know; not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you contact Baronet? A. I believe I answered that.

Q. Did you contact Rolfe? A. I did not personally contact any of these manufacturers.

Q. I certainly am not referring to you personally. A. Well, I want that clear.

5711 Q. I am referring to you, your buyers, or your business. A. I simply want to make that clear that I did not do it personally; that's it.

Q. I mean, you are not qualifying your answer with respect to all of the houses I have asked you about? A. No, I am simply explaining, simply explaining.

Q. So that your answers with respect to the various houses are correct answers? A. So far as I know, yes.

Q. You are the divisional merchandise manager, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. And know what your buyers are doing, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. And they act under instructions from you, do they not? A. Yes.

5712 Q. Did you contact Esterles? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any purchases from them? A. Yes.

Q. Did you contact Adair? A. I am not sure.

Q. Did you contact Hurwitz? A. I am not sure.

Q. Did you contact Samuels? A. I am not sure.

Q. Melgro? A. I don't know.

Q. Abrams & Norman? A. I don't know.

Q. Casanova? A. I believe so, but I am not sure.

Q. Abrams & Norman?

Mr. Martin: Now, your Honor, please, I object to any further continuation of this. Here is a list of fifteen pages typewritten names of manufacturers. I object to the time of the Court being taken up by Mr. Albert going through and naming each manufacturer, asking this witness whether he was contacted or not. The witness has testified that he did have a list of non-Guild manufacturers which were an open source of supply to him for the purchase of goods, and that his purchases were made therefrom.

Now, I object to any delay on the part of counsel here. I can see no purpose that it can serve by 5714 checking up each individual name on fifteen pages: "Did you know this man?" "Did you buy from this man?" I object to a continuation on the grounds it is irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, it is really unfortunate that the list is so long and that he has so many sources of supply that he can contact, but that is not my fault. I have to investigate in order to determine exactly what sources of supply he has attempted to tap. Now, if the witness will tell me, or if Mr. Martin will stipulate that they only attempted to contact about twenty-five houses that were not Guild members, and didn't attempt in any way to contact any of the others, I will take the stipulation. I will save time. 5715

Mr. Martin: I won't stipulate anything because I cannot stipulate that.

Examiner Bennett: Why don't you ask that question?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, about how many houses would you say William Taylor Son & Company contacted who were not members of the Guild for the purpose of obtaining merchandise after the red carding? A. I don't know, Mr. Albert.

Q. You don't know.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, there you are, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, the list is in the record.

Mr. Albert: Not as to what he did, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Which indicates that there were those sources of supply. The witness has said he had that list, and there are sources of supply, 5717 which proves he had sources of supply. He says they were not adequate. Now, there you are, and I don't see that you are adding anything whatever to the record by taking all of this time to ask about each one individually. I have permitted you to go through and get samples.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Can you form any estimate, Mr. Miller, of the amount of houses you contacted? Would you say it was fifty? A. I wouldn't know, Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say it was 100? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Would you say it was ten?

Mr. Martin: The witness has already testified,
5718 your Honor, that he doesn't know.

Mr. Albert: I think I can prove a little deeper, your Honor, to find out what his knowledge is, or at least, to test his credibility, to find his knowledge of his own business.

Mr. Martin: He has told you.

Mr. Albert: In the face of the fact they had no sources of supply, he now says that he doesn't even know whom he contacted.

Mr. Martin: He said that he——

Examiner Bennett: That is not quite the fact. You are asking him about the numbers he contacted. He doesn't know the number.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have no idea of how many ufacturers you contacted for the purpose of supplying yourself with the same price line of goods as was furnished by the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as already having been answered.

5720

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer.

A. I haven't counted them, no.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, have you brought in the records of the notices of cancellation on the outstanding orders at the time of the red carding pursuant to Commission's Exhibit 472, I think it is? A. I found upon investigation, Mr. Albert, that those records were not complete, that we only carried them back three months, that they have been discarded.

Q. And that is— A. I am sorry. That is a fact.

Q. That is, they have been destroyed? A. That is right. 5721

Q. You left them in a corner somewheres, and they disappeared? A. No. No. I beg your pardon. They are actually not available.

Q. They are actually—I assume that if you tell me they are not available that they aren't but where were they when you last saw them?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to this line of questioning. The witness has testified that their records of that character were only kept for three months.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor pleases——

Mr. Martin: And that those records are available, and that prior to that time he did not keep the records.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, this witness very deliberately testified yesterday that the records showing the cancellation of these orders which he says he didn't have to date were available and 5723 that he would bring them in, and then we come in this morning and for the first time in all of the fantastic things that have occurred on these hearings with respect to evidence, we now find that evidence is missing or has been destroyed, or cannot be located, that it was affirmatively testified to yesterday was absolutely available to the Commission. Now, I ask in the light of that fact that Commission's Exhibit 472 be stricken from the evidence upon the ground that your Honor has somewhat restrained cross-examination with respect thereto upon the grounds that we could bring in William Taylor Company upon our direct examination, subpoena their records, if possible, and demonstrate the inaccuracy of them.

5724 Examiner Bennett: You can't subpoena records that are not in existence.

Mr. Albert: Exactly, your Honor, and therefore I am foreclosed from in any way disputing this sheet of paper upon which we have now no record whatsoever to substantiate.

Examiner Bennett: Motion denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That in so far as the records of William Taylor Company now go, you have no knowledge whatsoever as to whether or not the orders which were outstanding at the time of the red carding were canceled either by your internal cancellation system or by the direct cancellation system? A. I have no records to substantiate that.

Q. And, of course, there are no duplicates around anywheres? A. Not complete files, no.

Q. Now, haven't you any letter file with respect to these orders? A. No.

Q. Haven't you any duplicate letter of an original which might have been sent to the manufacturer informing him 5726 of the fact the order had been canceled? A. We don't handle it that way. We don't write letters.

Q. You don't write any letters at all? A. No.

Q. You don't give any manufacturer any notice of the fact that in so far as you were concerned the order has been canceled? A. Oh, yes. We do: It is a form. It is a regular form that is made out. It is not a letter.

Q. Well, whatever that may be termed, a letter or a form or anything else, you have no duplicate of those? A. No, not complete files, no.

Q. How about your internal cancellation system? A. That is it. That is the——

Q. That is, as far as these particular files are concerned, you have destroyed your records, or your records are miss- 5727
ing, or they have been misplaced, or they are on top of a file cabinet and cannot be found, or they were dropped in water and they are not available? A. They are not available.

Q. So that, Mr. Miller, since you have no record of the cancellation of these particular orders, and since you have sent out no record on your internal cancellations, there is, therefore, no written memorandum demonstrating the fact that these orders have been cancelled; isn't that so? A. Well, there is nothing available to indicate at the present time, if that is what you mean.

Q. Well, you don't expect these records to suddenly appear in the future, do you? A. No.

Q. I mean, I hope you don't. A. No.

Q. And they are not going to appear, are they? A. As far as I know, they will not.

Q. What do you mean by "as far as you know"? Aren't they gone? A. So far as I know, they are gone.

Q. Did you make a strict search for them? A. I requested the records from the department sources and was 5729 told that they were not available.

Q. What do you mean by "they were not available"? A. I mean they weren't in existence, so far as I know.

Q. Then they are not in existence in so far as your store is concerned? A. So far as I know, that is true.

Q. Why do you qualify it by "so far as you know"? Don't you vouch for the accuracy of the statements of your subordinates? A. Simply because I wasn't present when they were destroyed. I don't know what happened to them.

Q. I see. Were you present when these records, Commission's Exhibits 471, 472 and 473 were made up? A. I don't know what they are. I am sorry.

Q. I mean, those are the famous ones that we have been discussing now for two days, and which you testified were 5730 very accurate, and which you had to correct. You weren't present when those were made up, either, were you? A. Yes, I was.

Q. Oh, you were present when they were made up? A. The one I was present. I made it up myself.

Q. Yes. 470. How about the others? A. The others were made up under my supervision.

Q. Supervision in the sense that you instructed them to get up the figures; isn't that true? A. That is correct.

Q. You didn't actually see them take the figures off, did you? A. No.

Q. You don't know anything more about the accuracy of those figures than you know about the accuracy of the fact that records are missing, do you? A. Except that they are records that are obtained in the ordinary course of business and are used by our firm for the transaction of the business.

Q. Isn't the information that was given to you to the effect that the records are missing information that has been compiled in the regular course of your business? A. Yes.

Q. Why won't you vouch for the accuracy of that statement by your subordinates? A. Simply because I don't know. I was simply told that they were not available and that they had not—they don't keep records beyond three months. 5732

Q. Well, you weren't told anything more about the accuracy of Commission's Exhibits 471, 472 and 473, were you, except the fact that your subordinates handed them to you as work which they had done in the ordinary course of their business pursuant to instructions from you; isn't that so? A. That is true.

Q. Why do you vouch for the accuracy of Commission's Exhibits 471, 472 and 473? Is it because you think it helps your case? A. No.

Q. Well, now, I hope that the records are not going to be available in the future, Mr. Miller. A. They will not be available. Don't worry about that. 5733

Q. I merely say that by reason of the fact that you seemingly—your statement as to the accuracy of the subordinates upon whom you rely in some cases and refuse to rely in others. A. No, I don't mean anything like that.

Q. Have you brought in with you the records showing the delivery dates of the outstanding orders of the date of the red carding, or the delivery dates of the orders which you say were outstanding on the date of the red carding? A. No, I have not.

Q. Are those also not available? A. No; those orders are available.

Q. Did you attempt to get them last night? A. I didn't know I was expected to.

Q. Am I mistaken in believing that you volunteered to bring them in? A. You are.

Q. Well, I am sorry. Will you make those records available to me this afternoon or to-morrow morning? A. No.

Q. That isn't something that is going to affect your busi-
5735 ness very much, is it? A. Well, I simply do not choose to make them available.

Q. In other words, you don't want us to see when those delivery dates actually fell due; is that right?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor—the witness—he has asked for them and the witness has said that he would not produce them. Now, his reasons I don't think he is obliged to disclose.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it pleases the Court, up to the present time every time that a witness refused to disclose information it was with respect to what might possibly be deemed to be confidential figures that might be of use to his competitors, and there might be some basis for the Court saying, "Well, 5736 you subpoena him and get him to bring it in that way. We won't make him do it." I am not saying there is. I am saying there is something of an argument with respect to it. Now, I disagree with the argument. Now, we have a witness coming in and giving a long line of testimony to the effect that certain orders were canceled by reason of the fact that delivery dates had expired. Those orders are dead. They are past transactions. The people with whom they were had in the record. There is absolutely nothing harmful in the fact that Taylor & Company should come in and disclose those dates except if those dates, when disclosed, show that Taylor is not telling the truth when they come in here and say that they canceled their orders because the delivery dates expired. That is the only reason why those dates can be, or should be, willing to be canceled by the witness, and I ask your Honor to direct this man to bring in those figures, or on condition that all of his testimony to the effect that they canceled the orders by reason of the fact that the delivery dates expired, be expunged and stricken from the record. This is merely a contumacious and I believe a contentious refusal on 5738 the part of the witness to supply information. I don't mean that in an evil sense, I mean it in the legal sense.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, your Honor. I didn't get your ruling.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: I did not get your Honor's ruling.

Examiner Bennett: I said, "Denied."

Mr. Albert: Exception. And I now offer to prove that if the witness had answered the question he would have answered that the records were available, and that if those records were produced they would have disclosed that the delivery—— 5739

Examiner Bennett: That is enough of this offer of proof.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry; I couldn't hear you on account of the noise.

Examiner Bennett: You don't know what are in those records, not the least bit.

Mr. Albert: I believe, if it pleases the Court, I should offer my proof——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: To show the relevancy of it.

Examiner Bennett: Under the guise of an offer to prove you are making a charge that is wholly without foundation so far as anybody knows.

Mr. Albert: But equally, your Honor, not untrue, so far as anybody knows.

Examiner Bennett: You have made it already. I am simply warning you. Go ahead and make your offer of proof, if you want to encumber the record with that sort of stuff.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, I respect-
5741 fully believe that in order to show the relevancy of my line of questioning, and the necessity for getting answers from the witness, that I should know and show what I hope to prove by the questions. That is all I want to do.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: Of course I don't say that that is true. I mean, it is open to an inference either way. I want to show the inference that can be drawn.

Examiner Bennett: Offers of proof are offers to prove. They are not conjectures.

Mr. Albert: I must respectfully differ, if it pleases the Court.

Examiner Bennett: You can go ahead and make 5742 your offer of proof, if you want to. Make it, if you want to. Make it in that form.

Mr. Albert: Yes. Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: Make it in any form you want to.

Mr. Albert: I offer to prove that if the witness had been permitted to answer, that the records were available, he would have answered that they were available. And I offer to prove that had the——

Examiner Bennett: He was permitted to answer and did answer that they were available.

Mr. Albert: Then, had the witness been required to bring the records in, the records would have disclosed that the delivery dates on the orders which were outstanding pursuant to Commission's Exhibit 472 had not expired at the time of the cancellation, upon which basis I would have been further able to prove that William Taylor & Company had arbitrarily wished to discriminate in the orders which it sought to have filled, and that its inability to obtain the fulfillment of the orders mentioned in Commission's Exhibit 472 arose from the fact that 5744 it desired certain of those orders, and not the entire list thereof; and that the refusal of the manufacturers to supply William Taylor & Company with the merchandise was due to its own willful acts.

Mr. Martin: I move that the offer of proof be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, what percentage of Guild merchandise is sold in Department 330? A. I haven't the records by departments.

Q. Beg your pardon? A. I haven't the records by departments with me. 5745

Q. Are they available? A. They are.

Q. Will you provide me with them? A. No.

Q. What percentage of Guild merchandise is sold in Department 335? A. I haven't the records with me.

Q. Are they available, or have they been destroyed, or are they missing? A. They are available.

Q. Will you provide me with them? A. No.

Q. What percentage of Guild merchandise is sold in Department 350? A. I don't know.

Q. Beg your pardon? A. I haven't the records with me. I don't know.

Q. Are they available? A. They are.

Q. Will you make them available to me? A. No.

Q. Will you supply the Commission and the Court with the information with respect thereto? A. If it is requested.

Q. Well, I am requesting it. A. No.

Q. If the Commission requested it, you will supply it? A. That is right.

5747 Mr. Albert: Well, in the interests, if it pleases the Court, of a full and complete disclosure of the evidence upon which Commission's Exhibit 473 is predicated, in the interest of saving the time of all concerned, certainly in the interest of a complete record with respect thereto, I ask that you ask the Commission to ask Mr. Miller to bring these records in which are now available in Cleveland.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor pleases, I would like to renew my statement that the Commission's counsel reserves unto itself the right to handle this case as it sees fit, not as counsel for the respondent sees fit.

Mr. Albert: I didn't ask that, if it pleases the 5748 Court. I didn't ask Mr. Martin to make the request. I very respectfully and most humbly ask your Honor to request of the Commission that he bring it in.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Can you tell me the percentage of Guild merchandise sold in Department 350? A. Not now, no.

Q. What do you mean by "not now"? A. I haven't the records available.

Q. Do you know what percentage is sold? A. I did.

Q. When did you last see the records? A. I don't recall.

Q. You haven't any knowledge of when you last saw it? A. No.

Q. Well, didn't you see it when you prepared Commission's Exhibit 473? A. No.

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: Goes to the credibility of this witness, your Honor, who says he doesn't know those figures at the present time. 5750

Mr. Martin: He testified that he didn't have them with him.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead. You may answer.

The Witness: May I have the question?

A. (Question read.) A. As far as I know it, it has no relation to 473.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed, Mr. Albert.

(Question and answer read.) 5751

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you explain that statement, Mr. Miller? Well, merely that the Exhibit 473—Commission's Exhibit 473—is a record of percentage of increase and decrease of sales for the period February through June in 1936 over 1935, and has no relation to the merchandise contained in those departments.

Q. In other words, in preparing Commission's Exhibit 473, no computation was made of the amount of Guild merchandise that was involved in the sales of merchandise in these departments; is that what you mean? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, do you mean that with respect to Departments 360, 371 and 380, no computation was made of the Guild merchandise that was being sold in those departments?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has answered fully what the exhibit is.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

5753

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, with respect to Department 330, in preparing these figures on Commission's Exhibit 473 for February, was any computation made of the amount of Guild merchandise being sold in that department during the period covered?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: You seem to be arguing on the matter that you are trying to justify as to some sort of a fluke which you made in one of your questions, and I do not think we are interested in that.

5754

Mr. Albert: No, no, it is not directed to that, your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: If you want—there is an estimate of Guild merchandise, if you want to go into that, I think you have been into it, though, very thoroughly——

Mr. Albert: But may I point this out, your Honor? In so far as these particular departments are concerned for the various months in question, unless there was Guild merchandise sold in those departments in that particular month, the figures have no relevancy whatsoever in this proceeding. For instance, if there was no Guild merchandise whatsoever of that 60 per cent. in the Department 330 in February of 1935 or 1936, then that particular figure has absolutely no materiality or probative force, and should not be contained in Commission's Exhibit 473. That is what my question is predicated upon, your Honor. It is quite true——

Mr. Martin: Your Honor, it may be——

Mr. Albert: It is quite true—it is quite true that 5756 the witness has testified that 60 per cent. of his merchandise in the early styles line is purchased from Guild manufacturers, but the question is in what particular departments were they sold. The entire 60 per cent. of the merchandise may have been sold in one department in one month. We do not know. That is what I am trying to find out, your Honor. I believe in the light of the explanation I have made your Honor should permit me to examine further.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know how much Guild merchandise was sold 5757
in Department 330 in March, 1935, or March of 1936?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; that was gone into fully.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Can you tell me, or will you tell me what percentage of your total percentage of Guild merchandise was sold in any of the departments during the period set forth in Commission's Exhibit 473?

Mr. Martin: Same objection. That has been covered thoroughly on cross-examination already.

Mr. Albert: I am seeking to elicit the basis, and what the meaning is of the figures in Commission's Exhibit 473, your Honor. For instance, in March, with respect to Department 350, there was an increase over 1935 of .47. Now, for all we know, 5759 where there was such a slight difference in the figures, there may have been no merchandise, of Guild merchandise, sold in that department during that month. It may have been all Guild merchandise. I am trying to get some basis of understanding of Commission's Exhibit 473 for the edification of the Court.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, are you acquainted with Ashley Frocks, Inc.?

5760 Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant, immaterial, not within the scope of proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Not considered immaterial and irrelevant by Mr. Martin, your Honor, until he knows what I am asking the question for. I am just asking him if he knows that firm, laying the foundation, very obviously, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let you develop it and see whether you have anything. He may answer.

A. I know of it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you also know that they were formerly—that they were formerly members of the Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

A. I don't remember that.

Q. Have you attempted to purchase any merchandise 5762 from Ashley Frocks, Inc.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. By that you mean that you may have, but you do not know, or you mean that you have not any idea about it at all? A. I mean that I don't know. I don't know whether we have or we have not.

Q. Well, isn't it your duty as merchandise manager, especially in the light of the fact that you say your sources of supply were diminished, to adequately determine 5763 whether adequate sources of supply have been contacted by your buyers? A. Yes, but I don't issue instructions on each individual source.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor pleases, the question which was just asked indicates that what Mr. Albert is leading up to is the question of source of supply, which I think he has pretty fully covered this morning by that list, and which I understood by your Honor's ruling there would be no more examination along that line.

Examiner Bennett: Yes——

Mr. Albert: Entirely different.

Examiner Bennett: If you will disclose what you——

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor, I wish to do that now.

Examiner Bennett: What you intend to show by this line of questions, why——

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor, I want to do that 5765 now.

Examiner Bennett: ——it will help the Examiner.

Mr. Albert: The previous testimony with respect to sources of supply was directed for the most part at showing the great number of sources of supply of manufacturers in the same price line as Guild manufacturers.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: The present line of inquiry is directed at showing that manufacturers who were formerly members of the Guild are now open as sources of supply to Taylor & Company, and ostensibly of the same quality of merchandise as has previously been purchased by him, and some of them were houses whom he formerly purchased 5766 from, and whom he cannot purchase from as no longer being members of the Guild. So far as number and so far as ostensible quality is concerned, in so far as Mr. Martin has it, his sources of supply have not been diminished in any amount.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will permit you to develop that.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you familiar with the firm of Isidore Ash, Inc.? A. No.

Q. Do not know them at all? A. No.

Q. Do you know that they were members of the Guild? A. I am not familiar with that fact.

Q. Do you know the firm of Baron Dress Company? A. Yes.

Q. Are they members of the Guild? A. They are not.

Q. I mean, were they members of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Have you attempted to purchase dresses from them since the red carding? A. We have purchased dresses from them. 5768

Q. You have purchased dresses from them? A. Yes.

Q. Will you make available to me the amount of merchandise you purchased from them? A. No.

Q. Do you know the firm of Baum, Kravat & Baum? A. Baum, Kravat & Baum?

Q. Baum, Kravat & Baum. A. Yes.

Q. Do you know that they were formerly members of the Guild? A. I am not familiar with that fact.

Q. Will you accept my statement that they were formerly members of the Guild? A. If you say it is true, I guess it is.

Q. Yes, they were. Did you attempt to purchase any merchandise from them since the red carding? A. I am not sure of that. 5769

Q. Will you accept my statement that they are no longer members of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the firm of Cohn, Kahn, Inc.? A. I know of them, yes.

Q. Do you know of them as a member of the Fashion Originators Guild previous to the date of the red carding? A. I haven't that list, and so I don't know. They are not a house we did business prior to——

Q. Will you accept my statement that they were formerly members of the Guild when I tell you that they were? A. If it is on the list it is O.K.

Q. Have you attempted to purchase any merchandise from them? A. I believe so, but I am not positive of that.

Q. Are you familiar with Jack Edison, Inc.? A. How is that last name spelled?

Q. Edison, E-d-i-s-o-n. A. No.

Q. Will you accept my statement that they were members of the Guild and that they no longer are? A. If you say so.

Q. Yes. A. It is all right with me.

5771 Examiner Bennett: Are you testifying?

Mr. Albert: I am asking him if he will accept my statement, your Honor, for the purpose of further questioning.

Examiner Bennett: I know, but if it is just for the purpose of further questioning, or do you expect to establish that fact in the record?

Mr. Albert: Well, it is for the purpose of further questioning; it is for the purpose of saving time. I do not think it is anything that the Comission will seriously dispute, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, but we prefer to have testimony as developed by questions.

5772 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you attempt to purchase any merchandise from Jack Edison, Inc.? A. I don't know that.

Q. Are you familiar with F. L. Gustave & Company, Inc.? A. I know of the firm.

Q. Did you know of them as members of the Guild? A. I don't recall it.

Q. Have you previously at any time during the time prior to the red carding purchased merchandise from them? A. I don't know.

Q. Have you attempted to purchase merchandise from them since the red carding? A. I don't know that.

Q. Who in William Taylor Son & Company would definitely know as to whether or not these various manufacturing concerns, which I have just mentioned had been approached for the purpose of purchasing merchandise on behalf of William Taylor Son & Company? A. Unless they are accounts we do a sizeable business with, only the buyers would know.

Q. Only the buyers? A. Unless they are accounts we use regularly and do business with.

Q. So, up to the present time, in so far as the manufacturing firms I have just inquired about are concerned, you 5774 have not placed any sizeable orders with them otherwise you would know? A. I have indicated in some cases that I did know.

Q. Well, I mean aside from those that you have stated you did purchase merchandise from, those that you stated that you did not know whether or not you had purchased merchandise from, if you have purchased merchandise from them, it has not been in any sizeable amount otherwise you would know it? A. I don't have sufficient evidence—I don't have sufficient grounds on which to base an answer, otherwise no.

Q. Well, you have just stated unless an order is of a sizeable amount—strike that. A. Will you repeat them?

Q. You have just stated if an order was of a sizeable 5775 amount you would know it. A. I did not say——

Mr. Martin: He did not testify that, your Honor. He testified he would not know it unless it was an account with which they were regularly accustomed to do business.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I think that was the statement.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you familiar with the firm of Joseph Greenbach & Katina, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of them as a former member of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Did you do business with them while they were members of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Have you purchased any merchandise from them since the red carding? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Do you mean by that "No"? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, they were a former account of yours, were they not? A. Yes.

5777 Q. Were they a substantial account formerly? A. Not large, no.

Q. So that you do not know whether or not one of your old accounts is still selling you merchandise?——

Mr. Martin: I submit he has answered the question. Your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: There is nothing before the Examiner. That question is uncompleted, I believe.

(Question read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —do you?

5778 Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you familiar with the firm of Grossward Company, Inc.? A. I know of them.

Q. Do you know of them as a former member of the Guild? A. I am not familiar with that firm.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor pleases——

Mr. Albert: Have you——

Mr. Martin: Just a second, Mr. Albert. I would like to renew my objection as previously made, that it has been developed that they are manufacturers, they are sources of supply, and I see no reason to go into this question any further.

Mr. Albert: If it pleases the Court, I think this goes directly to his testimony on sources of supply.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you have a very fair sample of it, I think, unless the Guild has been pretty well stripped of its members.

Mr. Albert: I did not quite follow that. 5780

Examiner Bennett: I say, you have a pretty good sample of it, unless the Guild has been pretty well stripped of its members, and I will sustain an objection to that.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor, I want to show that this witness has been stripped of his memory rather than that the Guild has.

Mr. Martin: I did not say "memory"; he said "members."

The Witness: Members.

Mr. Albert: Oh, members. I am sorry. Will your Honor grant me an indulgence for just a moment? I want to make a computation here.

Examiner Bennett. Certainly. Certainly, I will indulge you. 5781

Mr. Albert: If it pleases the Court, I now make this offer of proof: That if the witness had been permitted to answer as to whether or not he had made any attempts to purchase merchandise from former members of the Guild——

Examiner Bennett: He has been permitted to answer. Why do you make that statement?

Mr. Albert: I believe Mr. Martin has just objected to my continuation with that line of testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I know, but the Examiner indulged you in that to a very large extent, and he thought you had gone far enough, that you had gone as far as it was of any service to you or anybody else in this matter, and he is not pleased with your making a statement that is not in fact the fact.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, your Honor, if I misunderstood.

5783 Examiner Bennett: You had better be accurate, then, if you have any statement to make.

Mr. Albert: May I make this offer of proof with the consent with Mr. Martin: That had the witness been questioned with respect to other former members of the Guild as to whether or not he attempted to purchase merchandise from them, his answers as to whether or not he did purchase merchandise from them would have shown the same proportion of those whom he had not purchased from as his present answers to those of whom he has been directly questioned about.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: I move that that be stricken from the record. He has been given full and ample opportunity, and the Court indulged him at length, and I move that any purely speculative statement on the part of counsel introduced into the record as an offer of proof as to the facts which cannot possibly be in the respondents'.

5784

Examiner Bennett: I will let it stand.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, you testified that you knew the Guild shopper, Mrs. Joseph? A. That is correct.

Q. What was customarily her method of doing business in so far as the Guild is concerned with William Taylor & Company? A. Will you qualify that so I can get just exactly what you mean?

Q. What was her method of operation in the William Taylor & Company store when she came in to get information? A. She would go into the departments that she was most likely to be connected—concerned with, usually with sketches of dresses provided her by the head office of the Fashion Originators Guild, and seek to determine in the 5786 departments whether or not there were reproductions of those dresses on sale in those departments that were not manufactured or provided by the maker whom her sketch indicated had been the originator of that fashion.

Q. By "reproductions" you mean copies; don't you? A. I assume they are synonymous.

Q. So that you agree with Mr. Gutsché yesterday and disagree with Mr. Martin that there is no synonymity between reproduction and copy; is that correct?

Mr. Martin: I object to that statement. I didn't take part in any examination of Mr. Gutsche.

Mr. Albert: Well, maybe it was Mr. Haycraft.

By Mr. Albert. 5787

Q. The first time that Mrs. Joseph appeared in your store she made herself known to you; did she not? A. She did.

Q. And to the buyers? A. I handled that.

Q. That is, you— A. Yes, I saw——

Q. You acquainted the buyers with her? A. ——saw that she met Mrs. Joseph. That is right.

Q. And she came in very openly and above-board and said who she was and what her purpose was and what she expected to do and what she would like to do with your permission; isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. Whenever she walked into a department in order to examine the stock, would she first see you? A. No.

Q. Or the buyers? A. She didn't always see me before she had gone into the department. The procedure was to allow her access to the departments.

Q. That is, you gave her the complete run of the departments? A. Within reason. I mean, she was very discreet in what she did.

5789 Q. She was discreet? A. Right.

Q. She wasn't in any way—withdraw that.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(The document was thereupon marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 33 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 33 and ask you if that is a letter——

Examiner Bennett: That is Respondents' Exhibit 33?

Mr. Albert: Quite right, your Honor.

5790

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 33 for Identification and ask you if that is a letter sent by you to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That is correct.

(Respondents' Exhibit 33 for Identification was handed to Mr. Martin.)

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Mr. Albert: I offer this letter in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document heretofore marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 33 for Identification was received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Have you any objection, Mr. Martin, if we substitute a photostat for the original?

Mr. Martin: No, I have no objection.

Mr. Albert: Thank you. Will you mark this for identification?

(The document was thereupon marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 34 for Identification.) 5792

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 34 for Identification, Mr. Miller, and ask you if this is a photostat of a declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy signed by William Taylor Company? A. That is right.

(Respondents' Exhibit 34 for Identification was handed to Mr. Martin.)

The Witness: There was a letter to the Company with that.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document heretofore marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 34 for Identification was received in evidence.) 5793

Examiner Bennett: That is the usual form; is it?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(The document was thereupon marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 35 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 35 for Identification, and ask you if that is a photostat of a letter sent by you to Mr. Goldby, executive secretary of the Fashion Originators? A. As far as I know, that is right. I don't recall of the letter, but it must be right. It has got my signature on it.

(Respondents' Exhibit 35 for Identification was 5795 handed to Mr. Martin.)

(There was a discussion off the record between Mr. Martin and Mr. Albert out of the hearing of the Examiner and the Reporter.)

Mr. Albert: Well, is there any objection, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: No, there isn't.

Mr. Albert: To Respondents' Exhibit 35 for Identification?

Mr. Martin: I told you I had no objections.

Mr. Albert: Therefore, I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Martin: But it is not properly identified.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The document heretofore marked Respondents'
5796 Exhibit No. 35 for Identification, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(The document was thereupon marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 36 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 36 for Identification, and ask you if this is a photostatic copy of a letter sent to the Fashion Originators Guild on the stationery of William Taylor & Sons Company? A. I don't know. I never saw that letter before.

Q. Is that the stationery of William Taylor & Sons Company? A. That is right.

Q. Do you recognize the signature of Mr. Classel? A. It is Miss Classel.

Q. Miss Classel? A. I don't know her signature. I am sorry.

Q. Would you say that that letter had not been sent 5798 from William Taylor Son & Company? A. No, I don't know. I mean, I never saw it.

Q. Do you know whether or not you received a stamp? A. Yes, we received the stamp. We received a stamp. This has reference, however, to the basement store, with which I would not be familiar.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(The document was thereupon marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 37 for Identification.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 37, being a letter 5799 addressed to Albert M. Post, executive secretary, Fashion Originators Guild of America, and ask—rather being a photostat of a letter, and ask if this letter was sent with the authority of William Taylor Son & Company?

Mr. Martin: That is 37, for identification?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: I believe so.

(The letter referred to, Respondents' Exhibit 37 for Identification, was handed to Mr. Martin.)

(The document heretofore marked Respondents' Exhibit No. 37 for Identification, was received in evidence, subject to the original letter being produced.)

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(The document referred to was marked Respondents' Exhibit 38 for Identification.)

5801

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show your Respondents' Exhibit 38 for Identification and ask you if that is a photostatic copy of a telegram sent to the Fashion Originators Guild by William Taylor Son & Company? A. I didn't send the telegram.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was sent? A. I imagine it was.

Q. I mean, you don't— A. I didn't see it.

Q. You don't claim that it wasn't sent? A. No, but I didn't see it.

Q. But as divisional merchandise manager of William Taylor Son & Company, and as the representative of William Taylor Son & Company, do you identify that telegram as a telegram sent by a duly authorized representative of William Taylor Son & Company to the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I should say that was true.

5802

Mr. Martin: Let me ask him——

Mr. Albert: I offer that——

Mr. Martin: —one or two questions.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Are you satisfied that that telegram was sent by Taylor's to— A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: Mr. Post, was that telegram received by the Fashion Originators Guild of America as offered in evidence?

Mr. Post: Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: With that identification, I am willing to admit it, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, Mr. Miller.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received. 5804

(Telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 38, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.).

Examiner Bennett: We are up to the time for taking a recess for luncheon.

Mr. Albert: May I be permitted to ask this one question, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Will you be through with this witness?

Mr. Albert: Then I will be through—no, I will not be through with them, I will be through as far as the recess is concerned.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

5805

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, do you know whether or not Respondents' Exhibit 38 is in response to a telegram sent by Fashion Originators Guild to William Taylor Son & Company? A. I believe that that is true.

Q. That is, if you received a telegram, Respondents' Exhibit 38 is an answer to that telegram? A. I did not receive the telegram.

Q. I mean, William Taylor Son & Company. A. I assume that that is true.

Q. Would you be good enough to produce that telegram to which Respondents' Exhibit 38 is an answer this afternoon? A. Yes, I will try to.

Mr. Albert: Thank you. That is all right.

Mr. Martin: Let me see that.

(Counsel hands paper to Mr. Martin.)

Examiner Bennett: That is all, is it?

Mr. Feldman: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Before luncheon?

Mr. Albert: Before the recess, your Honor.

5807 Examiner Bennett: All right, we will recess until 2 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12.32 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION, 2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may resume.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you consulted Mr. Roth with respect to the telegram of which I made a request upon you this morn-
5808 ing? A. Yes, I have, and so far we have been unable to locate that. I have left word, however. They are still searching the files. If they get it they will bring it here. Our files on this matter were scattered all around and two or three people had them. That is the reason it is difficult to——

Q. Well, now, did you at all discuss with them as to whether or not a telegram had been sent to Taylor & Son to which Commission's Exhibit— A. I didn't discuss it with him.

Q. —which Respondents' Exhibit 38 was a reply? A. I was not able to discuss it with him. I was trying to find the telegram through his secretary.

Q. Did you discuss with anybody as to whether or not there was such a telegram? A. No, I didn't discuss it during the noon hour.

Q. Did you ask any of them whether they recalled receiving such a telegram? A. I asked his secretary if she recalled it and she said she should she said, and she would try to find it.

Q. You have no information as to whether or not such a telegram was received by Taylor & Company? A. Not definitely. I know that there was such a telegram but I 5810 have no——

Q. Do you also know that the substance of that telegram was a request to Taylor & Company asking whether or not Reilly had authority to speak for them pursuant to Respondents' Exhibit 37? Wasn't that the substance of that telegram? A. I assume that that is true. I would rather not give definite testimony without that telegram available, but I assume that that was true.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(A document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 39.)

By Mr. Albert. 5811

Q. Who is the Mr. Roth of whom you have been speaking, Mr. Miller? A. He is the manager of the William Taylor Company.

Q. Naturally, you had a great deal of business dealings with him? A. Yes.

Q. You have had correspondence with him, inter-office communications, things of that sort? A. At times, yes.

Q. You are familiar with his signature when you see it, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I ask you if this is—Respondents' Exhibit 39 for Identification—is a photostatic copy of a letter sent by Mr. Roth on the stationery of William Taylor Son & Company to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Did you discuss the contents of the letter with Mr. Roth in any way? A. No more than I believe he asked me what action had been taken with regard to obtaining merchandise from Guild houses, which is indicated in that letter.

5813 Mr. Albert: I offer the letter in evidence.

Mr. Martin: This is a photostatic copy. You are satisfied that such a letter as this was sent by your store?

Mr. Post: I think I have the original here, if you want it?

Mr. Martin: Well, that is all right.

Mr. Post: Is that it?

Mr. Martin: I would rather have him identify the original and then put this in.

Mr. Post: Surely.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

5814 (Copy of letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 39, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, in response to Respondents' Exhibit 39, was a letter received from the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you see any such letter? A. I don't recall it.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this for identification?

(Document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 40-A and 40-B.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibits 40-A and 40-B for Identification and ask you if that is a copy of a letter addressed to Richard G. Roth of William Taylor Son & Company, signed by Albert M. Post as executive director of the Fashion Originators Guild which was sent to Taylor Company? 5816 A. What was the question with reference to this?

Q. (Question read.) A. I don't happen to recall this letter. I assume that it was received, but I am not sure.

Q. In connection with your duties as divisional merchandise manager of Taylor & Company, did Mr. Roth discuss any such letter with you? A. I can't be sure, to be honest with you. I think he did, but I can't be sure.

Q. Is Mr. Roth presently in Cleveland? A. Yes.

Q. Is he at the store? A. Yes. I assume he is. I haven't seen him to-day.

Q. Will you be good enough between now and to-morrow to inquire of him whether such a letter was received and whether or not he has the original of it? A. Yes.

Q. Have you any objection to producing such a letter? 5817 A. If I can find it. I mean, with the files in the mess they are, anything might disappear.

(At this point a young lady appeared at the door of the hearing room.)

The Witness: May I be excused just a minute, Judge?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: May I examine this a moment? Perhaps I can find this telegram.

Mr. Albert: Yes, sure. They seem to have sent over some correspondence. Will you look for the letter of February 26 from the Guild to Taylor & Company while you are at it, if you have no objection?

The Witness: I think both of them are here.

(Paper writings to Mr. Albert by the witness.)

Mr. Albert: I offer this Respondents' Exhibits 40-A and B in evidence, the original of which has been presented by the witness.

5819 Mr. Martin: You are satisfied that this is a copy?

The Witness: Yes, I am.

Mr. Martin: I have no objection.

Examiner Bennett: It will be received.

(Copy of letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 40-A and 40-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: In order to observe the sequence, Mr. Martin, have you any objection if I have this exhibit (referring to paper writing not marked) marked Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and C for Identification, the telegram responding to this par-5820 ticular exhibit being Respondents' Exhibit 38.

Mr. Martin: No. That is all right.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark this telegram 38-B and 38-C.

(Documents were marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and 38-C.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, I show you Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and 38-C and ask you if this is the telegram from the Guild to William Taylor Son & Company, to which Respondents' Exhibit 38 is the reply. A. Yes, I believe that is true. I did not receive this telegram, but I think that is true.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibits 38-B and 38-C.

Mr. Martin: This was received by your store?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: That was taken from the Taylor files, Mr. Martin, and presented by the witness.

5822

Mr. Martin: I just wanted to make sure, he said he had not received it personally. I have no objection to this being offered in evidence, your Honor, it being understood that the exhibits will be photostated, and a photostatic copy be placed in evidence and the original returned to the witness.

Mr. Albert: That is acceptable.

Examiner Bennett: All right, it may be so understood.

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and 38-C, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert. 5823

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, in Respondents' Exhibits 40-B and C, the third paragraph refers to "We are enclosing a copy of the Guild's statement in 'Women's Wear Daily' on Monday, February 24"; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you see that statement in "Women's Wear Daily"? A. I don't recall whether I did or not. I saw so many statements at that time.

Q. Did you receive a copy of that statement together with the letter? A. I did not receive this letter so, therefore, I do not know.

Q. You have presented the letter from your files, have you not? A. That is correct.

Q. Do your files disclose that the statement in "Women's Wear" was received by William Taylor Son & Company together with the letter? A. I don't know that, sir. I did not look to see.

Q. Is there any reference in your files to the effect that the enclosure was not received? A. (Witness shakes head negatively.)

5825 Q. You say "No"? A. No.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 41, Mr. Miller, and ask you if this is the statement in "Women's Wear Daily" of Monday, February 24, 1936 referred to in Respondents' Exhibits 40-A and 40-B?

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I would like to object at this time. As I recall it, the witness testified that so far as he recalls, there was no enclosure; that is, rather, he does not know whether or not there was an enclosure with that letter. In view of that statement, I do not see how he could identify this as being something which he says he does not know anything about.

Mr. Albert: Well, let us find out if the witness

5826 can identify it, your Honor.

(Document referred to was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 41.)

(Witness examines document.)

A. I presume that I read the statement, but I do not know whether it was enclosed in that letter or whether it was not. I could not testify to that fact.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you read Respondents' Exhibits 40-A and 40-B? A. Did I read the letter?

Q. Upon its receipt at any time. A. I don't recall reading the letter, no.

Q. Did you discuss it with Mr. Roth? A. I may have, I honestly don't know. I presume I did discuss it, to some extent.

Q. Will you be good enough, Mr. Miller, to look in the files that have been sent to you and see if you can find this enclosure.

A. You mean here?

Q. Yes. 5828

(Witness refers to file.)

Q. Is that it? A. I don't know whether it is or not. This is not my file, understand.

Q. I mean the file that was presented by Taylor & Company. A. Yes, I believe it is.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence Respondents' Exhibit 41.

Mr. Martin: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 41, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.) 5829

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now you say that you read Respondents' Exhibit 41, approximately the time that it appeared in "Women's Wear"? A. I say I presume I did. I read most of those, and I presume that I read that one.

Q. You read some? A. I don't recall.

Q. There was so much information with respect to the particular matter in hand that you cannot localize anything that you read? A. That is so.

Q. But undoubtedly you read that article; is that not so? A. That's probably true.

Q. Did you read this article, dated February 21, 1936, which is referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 41, in evidence? A. I presume I did; I don't recall definitely.

Q. I mean, you read it probably in the same way you read Respondents' Exhibit 41.

Mr. Martin: The witness testified he did not remember having read it.

5831

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You mean you do not recall the specific time you read it?

Mr. Martin: He did not say that.

Q. But you do remember the substance of it?

Mr. Martin: He did not——

Mr. Albert: Please permit me to ask him something as to what he meant, and not what you say.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, but do not ask him as to something he did not say.

Mr. Albert: I am asking him what he meant.

5832 Mr. Martin: The witness said he did not remember reading it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you read the substance of that article, Mr. Miller? A. I assume I did, but I don't recall distinctly.

Q. You mean you do not recall definitely because there were so many articles you did read; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. And undoubtedly you read this particular article among the others; is that not so? A. I probably did.

Q. From an examination of Respondents' Exhibit——

Examiner Bennett: That has not been marked.

Mr. Albert: Mark this Respondents' Exhibit 42.

(A paper was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 42.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. From an examination of Respondents' Exhibit 42 for Identification, is the P. J. Reilly, Director, the same person referred to in Respondents' Exhibit 38, which 5834 reads, "P. J. Reilly, Director, Associated Merchandising Corporation, has full authority to act for us."

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I do not see that we are getting anywhere with this.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Let us have the question.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence Respondents' Exhibit 42 for Identification.

Mr. Martin: Objected to on the ground that it has not been properly identified by the witness, and on the further ground even if it had been identified, it is immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Sustain the objection. 5835

Mr. Albert: May I most respectfully ask your Honor on which ground you are keeping it out?

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Albert: On the ground that no sufficient basis has been laid, or that it is entirely irrelevant?

Examiner Bennett: Each ground is valid as far as that is concerned; I——

Mr. Albert: Thank you. Exception.

Examiner Bennett: —I think it has not been properly identified; I think it is not of any consequence if it has been properly identified, as having been read by this man.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor feels that it is irrelevant under any circumstances, then I won't waste any further time trying to lay the foundation for identifying it.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is irrelevant.

Mr. Albert: Very well. Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

5837 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, have you any knowledge with respect to the increase or decrease of your fixed prices of merchandise in your various Guild departments during 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as not being proper cross-examination. The question of fixed prices was in no way gone into.

Mr. Albert: May I tell your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any knowledge with respect to any change
5838 in the sales price of your Guild lines during 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Mr. Albert: Had I been permitted to receive an answer from the witness as to whether or not he had any knowledge or whether or not sales prices in Departments 330, 335 and 350 had been decreased during the months of May and June of 1935, the witness would have replied that those sales prices had been reduced.

Mr. Martin: I move that the same be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Exception. If you will bear with me just a moment. I want to check off these items. It may facilitate the examination.

Examiner Bennett: Surely.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, William Taylor Son & Company pride themselves on the honesty and probity of their business dealings, do they not?

Mr. Albert: There is no inference of any kind that I wish drawn from the question. I am merely laying a foundation for a subsequent question. 5840

Mr. Martin: Objected to; irrelevant, immaterial and not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. William Taylor & Company stands behind its representations, does it not?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Albert: Foundation question, if it pleases the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. 5841

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 34 and quote therefrom as follows: "Believing the policies declared by your members to be proper for the protection of the public, the retailer, and the manufacturer, we wish to go on record as stating our fixed business policy." You, of course, subscribed to that statement of policy?

Mr. Martin: Object.

Q. On the part of William Taylor Son & Company, did you not?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Q. Speaking for William Taylor Son & Company?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial. The exhibit speaks for itself.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

5843 Q. Are you wholeheartedly in accord with the objectives of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: What is that question, please?

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: And, furthermore, the fact is that there is in evidence an exhibit which fully states Taylor's position on this subject, and the exhibit will speak for itself.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Will Mr. Martin concede that the exhibits that are in evidence with respect to the 5844 fact that William Taylor Son & Company are wholeheartedly in accord with the objectives of the Fashion Originators Guild speak as of to-day?

Mr. Martin: I am not on the stand and I am not conceding anything.

Mr. Albert: I am asking if Mr. Martin will concede it. I am not asking you whether you are on the stand. I have had suspicions of that.

Mr. Martin: I say, I am not conceding anything

Mr. Albert: Very well. Then, if it pleases the Court, I press the question with respect to their position to-day.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled.

Mr. Albert: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I say, I have ruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception. Now, I make an offer of proof, that if the witness had been permitted to answer the question he would have testified that William Taylor Son & Company is to-day fully in accord with the objectives of the Fashion Originators Guild as set forth in Respondents' Exhibit No. 35.

5846

Mr. Martin: I move that the same be stricken from the record as obviously and apparently an offer of proof of something which the respondents' counsel could have no earthly knowledge.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: Of course the Commission has no knowledge of the opposite.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, during the time that you were a member of the Fashion Originators Guild—that you were a co-operators with the Fashion Originators Guild— A. Ha, ha, ha, ha.

5847

Q. —did you return any dresses at the request of the Guild as being copies? A. We did.

Q. That is, after they had been demonstrated, or were you satisfied that they were copies? A. Correct.

Q. And in what price lines, generally speaking, were those dresses that were returned? Did they cover all the price lines? A. To the best of my knowledge they were in price lines at from $4.75 cost through $10.75 cost.

Q. Yes. And of course you continued in that policy of co-operating with the Guild down until at least the end of 1935, generally speaking? A. Yes, that is right. May I ask a question before you proceed, Mr. Albert?

Q. Why——

The Witness: Your Honor——

Mr. Albert: I prefer you not to. I mean, that I think we will be able to bring out whatever you have in mind.

The Witness: (Nods head affirmatively.)

By Mr. Albert.

5849 Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 37, and I show you Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and C, and I show you Respondents' Exhibit 38, and ask you after the reading of those exhibits whether or not you still testify that William Taylor Son & Company have no knowledge or expectation of the fact that they were to be red carded, and that the first information they had of it was what they read in "Women's Wear"? A. That is correct. I don't need to read these.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. My testimony was correct.

Q. Respondents' Exhibit 37 was sent to the Fashion Originators Guild on your behalf by P. J. Reilly of the Associated Merchandising Corporation informing the Guild that members of the Association therein listed were 5850 not going to further co-operate with the Guild; is that not so?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being improper cross-examination; still trying to bring in this old subject of the A.M.C. That is an entirely improper question. Now he wants to cross-examine the witness on his own cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Far from it, if it please the Court. In the light of the fact that the witness has testified that he knew nothing at all about the red carding, had no inkling that they were to be red carded, I have introduced into evidence correspondence which leads to the conclusion that they had knowledge of it, and now I am attempting to show that they had specific knowledge of it and expected it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, now, red carding, as I understand it, is a definite thing. You have asked about that definite thing and the witness has testified it is a definite thing. What the preliminary steps are has nothing to do with this testimony in that respect. That might be all true and those documents and still what he says might be just as 5852 true.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I read to you from Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and

Mr. Martin: Do I understand your Honor to uphold my objection?

Examiner Bennett: Why, yes.

Mr. Martin: Well, then, I see no——

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection.

Mr. Martin: That is what I understood. I see no percentage in it.

Mr. Albert: I am not—I am on a different exhibit entirely. 5853

Mr. Martin: I understood your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: I think it has no bearing on this witness' testimony that the reading of the notice of red carding in that paper was his first knowledge of it.

Mr. Martin: I understand.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Prior to the time that you read of that notice in "Women's Wear," did William Taylor Son & Company have any expectation or any indication of the fact that they would be red carded?

Mr. Martin: Objection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer that question if he wants to.

The Witness: Would you read the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. I don't know.

5855 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you mean that you personally don't know that William Taylor Son & Company doesn't know—didn't know? A. We didn't know what to expect.

Q. You didn't know what to expect? A. Yes.

Q. But by reason of Respondents' Exhibit 37, Respondents' Exhibits 38-B and 38-C, and your telegram to the Fashion Originators Guild, being Respondents' Exhibit 38, you had informed the Fashion Originators Guild of the fact that you no longer were going to co-operate in their policy; isn't that so?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial, still referring to the same letters 5856 on which your Honor has already ruled.

Mr. Albert: But I have based another question on it, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I don't see that it would mean anything to this record if he were to testify that they did expect it, that they had been expecting it for months.

Mr. Albert: The relevancy of it, if I may be permitted to be heard on it, your Honor, unless you want to foreclose any examination on it, and you say that it is entirely immaterial and that you don't believe I could say anything that might change your mind. If your Honor feels that strongly about it I won't waste any time on it.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is of no service to me to have you argue. Of you want to make a short statement for the record I have no objection to that.

Mr. Albert: The witness, if it please the Court, has testified that the first that they knew that they were red carded is when they read about it in "Women's Wear." Now, I believe that that statement without any explanation thereof means and 5858 leads to an inference that suddenly without any warning Taylor & Company woke up and read in "Women's Wear" that they had been red carded, and it might lead to the inference that it was arbitrary, and there has been no other explanation of that fact from this witness. I am trying to bring out that this matter was not an arbitrary thing, that they did not suddenly wake up——

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: —and discover it, and that this witness, despite the fact that he has said nothing about it, did know about it, and William Taylor & Company did know about it and expected the red carding, and practically said, "We can't help ourselves since we are not co-operating with you. We 5859 expected to be red carded and that is the course that we expect that you will take."

Examiner Bennett: It is all in the record.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I think that the only thing that the statement shows is that the respondents red carded people without any direct notice from the respondents to the persons who were red carded.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have testified, Mr. Miller, that by reason of the fact that merchandise manufacturers informed you that they were not going to deliver merchandise by virtue of the fact that you were no longer co-operating with the Guild, that it was unnecessary for you to send them any cancellations; is that substantially correct?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as having been gone into thoroughly.

Mr. Albert: Laying a foundation, if it please the Court.

5861 Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection. We have been over that, thrashed it through.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, in the light of your testimony, Mr. Miller, as to your failure to send cancellation slips to merchandise manufacturers, isn't it also true that it was unnecessary for the Fashion Originators Guild to send you any specific notice of red carding, in the light of your reply to Respondents' Exhibit 38, which ends: "Please advise by wire Monday afternoon if your store is amongst eighteen mentioned above. If we don't hear from you we will assume Reilly's letter applies to your store"?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

5862

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And your reply to that telegram: "P. J. Reilly, Director, Associated Merchandising Corporation, has full authority to act for us." In the light of that——

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Q. —In the light of that correspondence demonstrating the fact that William Taylor Son & Company had no intention of further co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild, were you not fully informed of the fact that a red card was issued by your own declaration of non-co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Same objection, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, in addition to the records now in evidence, was any notification given to William Taylor Son & Company of the fact that they were to be red carded? 5864

Mr. Martin: Same objection, your Honor. That has been gone into time after time.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Isn't it a matter of fact, Mr. Miller, that Mr. Reilly was verbally informed after the receipt of the telegram from William Taylor & Company that Mr. Reilly represented William Taylor & Company, that William Taylor & Company, in the light of its announcement that it intended no longer to co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild, would be red carded? 5865

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: I am attempting to refresh the witness' recollection, if it please the Court. No testimony, as yet, has been given of the conversation, and he may have knowledge of it.

Examiner Bennett: I think you have done that very thoroughly.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you deny, Mr. Miller, that Mr. Reilly was verbally informed, after the receipt of Respondents' Exhibit 38, that William Taylor Son & Company was to be red carded?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did Mr. Reilly inform you that he had been informed by the Fashion Originators Guild, after the receipt of Respondents' Exhibit 38, that William Taylor Son 5867 & Company was to be red carded?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. I make this offer of proof: That if the witness had been permitted to answer as to communications between Mr. Reilly and the Fashion Originators Guild, the witness would have answered that Mr. Reilly was informed by the Fashion Originators Guild, after the receipt by it of Respondents' Exhibit 38, that the Guild intended to red card William Taylor Son & Company, and that Mr. Reilly informed William Taylor Son & Company thereof.

Mr. Martin: I move the offer of proof be 5868 stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken as irrelevant.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you understand, Mr. Miller, that the members of the Fashion Originators Guild are refusing to sell you merchandise because it is no longer your policy to protect style originations?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has——

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Martin: —testified that they are refusing him. The question of what their reason is, of what he understands to be their reason, is pure conjecture.

Mr. Albert: Well, certainly, your Honor, if they are refusing to sell William Taylor & Company because they do not like William Taylor & Company's credit, then it should not be in this proceeding at all, and all that testimony should be stricken out; 5870 or because they do not like the name William Taylor & Company. There must be some relevancy to their refusal.

Examiner Bennett: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: He has already testified as to why they are refusing.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I know that. I am going to let him answer and state what he——

The Witness: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

A. As far as I know, we have never been given any definite answer. 5871

By Mr. Albert.

Q. No manufacturer has ever told you why they refused to sell you? A. As far as I know, they have not.

Q. And you have no idea why they refuse to sell you?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. From your knowledge of the industry, and from your knowledge of your co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild, what is your opinion as to the reason why the manufacturers are refusing to——

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Q. —sell you merchandise?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

5873

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you not know that if William Taylor Son & Company agree to protect the originations of manufacturers and refuse to permit their original designs to be copied, that they will then sell you merchandise?

The Witness: Will you please restate the question?
(Question read.)

Q. By "manufacturers," I mean members of the Guild. A. According to the original agreement, we find, I believe, that was a part of it.

Q. And that if you agree to protect styles they will 5874 only be too glad to sell you their merchandise; is that not so? A. That was part of the original agreement.

Q. Yes. Now, there are various factors, are there not, that must be taken into consideration in determining the validity of the percentages which are contained in Commission's Exhibit 473; is that not so?

Mr. Martin: Objected to: he has gone into those figures fully.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not a fact that the volume of sales in a particular department for a period of a year is affected by the number of promotional sales that occur in that department?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert. 5876

Q. Do you know how many promotional sales were had in either Departments 330, 335 or 350 during the period from February to June, 1935, and from February to June, 1936?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. If there were a number of promotional sales in these departments referred to in 1935, and there were no promotional sales in these departments in 1936, would not that have had a great influence upon the percentage figures 5877 presented in Commission's Exhibit 473?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know how many promotional sales were had in Department 330 in the five months' period referred to in Commission's Exhibit 473 in 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. For the same period of 1936?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

5879 Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Miller, that the volume of sales is affected by the amount of advertising that is done in attempting to push the merchandise in the department?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: This line of testimony has not been gone into at all, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you have been over it. You should have gone into it when you had the matter up. I am not going to have this cross-examination dragged over days and days. It is not fair to this witness.

Mr. Albert: Well, if it please the Court, the Commission has tendered him.

5880 Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: He is here testifying.

Examiner Bennett: I have just said that is the reason why I am curtailing your cross-examination. Your cross-examination is unreasonably long, and diversified, and brings us—brings neither you nor anybody else very much. You have done some good work in your cross-examination and found some errors, and I think that is all right, but you should have gone on and exhausted the subject when you took it up.

Mr. Albert: Well, if your Honor please, with all due respect, I wish to be permitted to adopt the line of attack in my cross-examination that I deem best fitted——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: To the particular witness, to the particular type of testimony.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: That we have in mind, and I do not believe that we should be cut off from this further 5882 cross-examination on Commission's Exhibit 473 merely because I did not take up this particular line of attack at the time that I was examining with respect to Commission's Exhibit 473.

Examiner Bennett: We have had a lot of testimony on the line that you are asking now, in Philadelphia, I think it was. It really meant nothing, because, as a matter of fact, the promotional work was usually a rather fixed proposition and it amounted to about the same in one year as in another——

Mr. Albert: Well, now——

Examiner Bennett: We went into all the figures of advertising.

Mr. Albert: I am willing to concede what you 5883 say, your Honor, but that is exactly what I find——

Examiner Bennett: Yes, well——

Mr. Albert: —if it was fixed in 1935, did they do the same amount in 1936.

Examiner Bennett: Well, we are not going into it now and I am just giving you notice that we will not.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: It is not fair to this witness to try to keep him on the stand indefinitely.

Mr. Albert: I am not trying to keep him on the stand indefinitely, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: It seems——

Mr. Albert: I am trying to exhaust his knowledge as to what he has testified to.

Examiner Bennett: That seems to be your tactics. You don't seem to be getting anywhere much. We have been liberal with you, allowed you to put in a whole lot of respondents' documents and make 5885 your case as far as you could, and now you are abusing that situation by dragging out this cross-examination to inordinate lengths and I am sorry that you are doing that.

Mr. Albert: Well, I must respectfully disagree with the Court, very humbly disagree with the Court, as regards the necessity of my bringing out on cross-examination what this witness has testified to.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well——

Mr. Albert: I sincerely hope——

Examiner Bennett: An attorney of your experience and skill would have succeeded in doing that in half a day.

Mr. Albert: Well, I——

5886 Examiner Bennett: If they wanted to save time.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, your Honor, but I do not think that there is any other way for me to do that than the way I have been doing it.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

Mr. Albert: Maybe your Honor overestimates my ability to cut the cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Miller, that the advertising budget is supposed to reflect itself in the volume of sales?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Miller, that there is a ratio between advertising and sales?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained. 5888
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to the amount of display space that was used by the departments referred to in Commission's Exhibit 473 during 1935?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to the amount of display space that was used by the departments referred to in 5889
Commission's Exhibit 473 during 1936?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Miller, that the volume of sales is affected considerably by the amount of the mark-up?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is, or what was the percentage of mark-up generally over cost of the merchandise sold in the departments referred to in Commission's Exhibit 473?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

5891 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know that mark-up?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are those figures available?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

5892 Q. Will you make those figures available to me if they are available?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does service afforded by a store to its customer in any way affect the volume?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I respectfully suggest that counsel for the other side has heard your Honor's remarks on this line of cross-examination and I would like to know does he intend to continue willfully and deliberately in disregard to the Examiner's ruling?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I guess you will have to inquire of the attorney.

Mr. Albert: I mean, I am awfully sorry, your Honor, but as long as I differ with your principle I must make my record clear.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you are asking——

Mr. Albert: I will try to get through as fast as I can with my line of questions. 5894

Examiner Bennett: You are asking questions that—so far as has been developed, and so far as you can develop any knowledge on the subject—of a witness who is incompetent to give it——

Mr. Albert: Well, now——

Examiner Bennett: And, as a matter of fact, they are rather innumerable objections to your——

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, in the light of the fact your Honor has stated you will not permit me to elicit any information from him on this general line, I have in an endeavor to save time not asked all of the preliminary questions but have merely asked a single question to show what line of examination—— 5895

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: —in this respect I would have taken up.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Now, if Mr. Martin insists upon me asking all of those preliminary questions instead of demonstrating to the Court what line I would like to pursue I will do that, and we are going to waste much more time. I am trying to save time——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: —by admittedly asking questions—

Examiner Bennett: You are diligently engaged in saving time now——

Mr. Albert: I beg your Honor's pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I say, you are diligently engaged in saving time now, filling the record up with speeches that mean nothing.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, I have got to protect the record, your Honor. If Mr. Martin insists on my 5897 asking preliminary questions, I will ask them——

Examiner Bennett: I will not——

Mr. Albert: —I prefer to continue along with the line of questions I am asking.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead and ask your questions and we will rule on them as they come up.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is not the volume of sales affected by the comforts afforded by the store to its customers in the appointments 5898 of the store, the ability of the fitters to fit the dresses, and of the tailors to assist in making up the line while the customer is there?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Who is the buyer for Department 330?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I think that has already been gone over.

Mr. Martin: I think so.

Examiner Bennett: And answered.

Mr. Albert: He has given us only two buyers, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: And I do not think he has mentioned the name of the department. 5900

Examiner Bennett: Well, you can ask him if there are any others.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In addition to Miss Williams and Mrs. Howard; are those the correct names that you have given us? A. Yes.

Q. Are there any other buyers for the departments referred to in Commission's Exhibit 473? A. Yes, for the Department 360, Miss Griffith; 371 and 380, Mrs. Wamser.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind repeating those names, Miss Reporter?

(Answer read.)

5901

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Which particular department does Mrs. Williams handle? A. 335 and 350; Mrs. Howard, 330.

Q. And, of course, that leaves 330 for Mrs. Howard? A. Yes, correct.

Q. How long has Mrs. Howard been the buyer of Department 330?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How long has Mrs. Wamser been the buyer for Departments 371 and 380?

Mr. Martin: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

5903 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, is it not part of your duties, Mr. Miller, as divisional merchandise manager, to generally supervise the holding of promotional sales, the advertising budget, the distribution of display tables, the mark-up, the general service in the departments that I have previously asked you about?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, the witness has fully testified three or four times as to what his duties were.

Examiner Bennett: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

5904

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, is it not a fact that the amount of volume in a department is dependent upon size of the stock on hand?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And is it not a fact that the less stock you have on hand the less, of course, will be the volume?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception to both questions.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, you testified that the red carding of Taylor's has affected the good will of William Taylor Son & Company; is that not so? A. That is correct.

Mr. Martin: That is objected to; he has gone into that fully before.

Examiner Bennett: I am not——

Mr. Albert: I defy Mr. Martin to show me any 5906 place in the record where I have touched on this subject as yet.

Examiner Bennett: I am not sure that the cross-examiner has touched on it. I am going to let him answer.

The Witness: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. That is correct.

Mr. Albert: May we have a recess, your Honor, the customary afternoon recess?

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: I say, may we have the customary afternoon recess at this time? It is almost time 5907 for it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: Ten minutes.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

Examiner Bennett: You may resume.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Miller, will you not concede that manufacturing members of the Fashion Originators Guild also had a good will to protect in protecting the style originations from copying and style piracy?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is not the good will of manufacturers who manufac-
5909 ture original designs affected when those original designs are copied or pirated?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: I understand that that is not in issue, that the merits or otherwise of what the Guild is doing is not in issue.

Mr. Feldman: What was that last statement?

(The statement was read.)

Mr. Feldman: It seems like a question of law to me.

5910 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, will you concede that the program of the Fashion Originators Guild is of assistance to the industry in eliminating a recognized evil?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Miller, does William Taylor Son & Company presently—the question is withdrawn. Have you any objection to telling me whether or not William Taylor Son & Company presently protect style originations?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: May I have that question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert. 5912

Q. Is style piracy an evil in the industry?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. No further questions.

Mr. Martin: I have just one question I would like to ask the witness on redirect examination.

Redirect examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Miller, referring to Respondents' Exhibits Nos. 24, 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29, also Nos. 30 and 31, 32, all relative to orders which were outstanding with Guild manufacturers at the time of the red carding of Taylor's store, were in fact any of those orders filled? 5913

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as having been previously answered.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I think that is a very proper question. The respondents produced a number of exhibits dealing with that question and I simply want to ask this one question as to whether or not the orders with which the respondents' exhibits dealt were in fact filled.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I went into and exhausted the examination of the witness with respect to that very matter, and in addition I was curtailed in my cross-examination by Mr. Martin's objection to the effect that the witness had testified that none of the orders had been filled. Now we are opening it up all again. I have stopped at the point that I have stopped because of the fact that the Commission has indicated its desire to be in Detroit, and if we are going to Detroit, I want to leave as early as possible. If Mr. Martin is going to open up this examination again, I will resume 5915 my cross-examination where I left off at this time in an endeavor to co-operate with the Commission's desire to go to Detroit.

Mr. Martin: I have only that one question.

Mr. Albert: Well, if the Court pleases, if that is the only thing that Mr. Martin believes that the witness needs rehabilitation on after all the errors that this witness has shown to exist in his testimony, I withdraw my objection.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead and answer the question.

The Witness: No, none of the orders were filled.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Martin: Now, at this time I will call upon the respondents to produce all correspondence be-5916 tween the Fashion Originators Guild of America with the Fashion Originators Guild manufacturers who are listed in Respondents' Exhibit No. 24 and referred to in Exhibits 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31 and 32 and relative to the filling of unplaced orders which were outstanding at the time Taylor was red carded.

Mr. Albert? May I suggest to Mr. Martin that I think it would be much more conducive to our not producing those records if he waited until we got to Minneapolis for them. This is a fine time to ask us to produce records of that sort on the last day of the hearing when we are ready to go to Detroit without a single warning of what he might want with respect to that matter.

Mr. Martin: I don't think——

Mr. Albert: I say, we haven't got the records here, and I think that it is most unseemly of the Commission to attempt to put us in the position of refusing to give them any evidence of any kind whatsoever. We have been most solicitous in giving the Commission every piece of paper that they thought was relevant to the matter. 5918

Mr. Martin: I don't think——

Mr. Albert: Which is more than I can say for the Commission with respect to the evidence that they have presented, and I certainly don't think that any notice to produce of that kind should be made by the Commission at this stage of the proceedings.

Mr. Martin: I don't think that counsel for the respondents should be unduly worried, your Honor. He has not yet produced one single piece of paper during this entire hearing at the request of the Commission, so I don't see why he should get all excited over this now, if your Honor pleases.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin seems to forget the hundreds of exhibits that were put in in New York which were supplied—— 5919

Mr. Martin: They came from our files.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. One at a time.

Mr. Martin: Which came from our files, your Honor, but that is beside the point.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, they came from the Commission's files, but they were given to the Commission by us.

Court Room No. 722,
Federal Building,
Detroit, Michigan,
August 14, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 11 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Are you ready to proceed?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

Mr. Martin: Will you come around, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Meder: If your Honor please, at the opening of this case, I would like to enter my appearance. I am Albert E. Meder, M-e-d-e-r, of Beaumont, Smith & Harris of Detroit, counsel for J. L. Hudson Company, one of the respondents in this case.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

LOUIS B. SAPPINGTON was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, will you state your name and address, please, sir? A. Louis B. Sappington, 487 Arlington Drive, Birmingham, Mich.

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. Sappington? A. Assistant general merchandise manager.

Q. For whom? A. J. L. Hudson Company.

Q. In what business is J. L. Hudson Company engaged? A. Retail department store business. 5924

Q. Where is its place of business? A. Woodward Avenue, 1201 Woodward Avenue.

Q. In the city— A. Detroit.

Q. Do they operate more than one store? A. Just one store.

Q. What general type of merchandise does Hudson handle? A. Furnishings for the home, clothing for men, women and children.

Q. Do you carry a full line of ladies' garments? A. Yes. By "full," we carry a very comprehensive line.

Q. Mr. Sappington, what are your duties as the assistant general merchandise manager of the Hudson store? A. My duties are principally to supervise the women's and misses' ready-to-wear and accessory departments. 5925

Q. Do your duties include the buying of ladies' dresses? A. Not the buying, no.

Q. Do you have anything to do with the buying? A. Yes, the buyers and the merchandise managers report to me.

Q. Your store has a class of employees known as merchandise managers for ladies' dresses? A. Yes.

Q. Will you name them and give their departments—the names of your merchandise managers for ladies' dresses with their departments? A. I have two assistants. Mr. Walter Simmons, S-i-m-m-o-n-s.

Q. All right, sir. A. Mr. Walter Simmons, who merchandises women's dresses at all price lines. Do you want the names of the departments, and so forth, or just the merchandise that covers it?

Q. I think that will cover it, sir. A. Women's and misses' dresses in all price lines, women's and misses' sportswear.

Q. All right, sir. A. Mr. Herbert Dunham, the other assistant, merchandises women's and misses' coats, women's and misses' suits, furs, and sportswear accessories. These 5927 two men are known as assistant merchandise managers—assistant divisional merchandise managers.

Q. Now, what, if any, contact do you have with Mr. Simmons and Mr. Dunham? A. Almost constant contact during business hours.

Q. Do they report to you? A. Directly.

Q. Do you supervise their activities? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, do your buyers have anything to do with the sales end of their respective departments, and if so, what? A. They are responsible for the volume of business that they get; that is, they share the responsibility.

Q. Are they supposed to see to it that the merchandise which they have bought is disposed of in the usual course 5928 of business? A. Yes.

Q. Do you supervise the selling end of your departments as well as the buying end? A. Do you mean the sales people? I do not quite understand the question.

Q. You have testified that your buyers report to you and are supervised by you? A. That is right.

Q. You have testified that the buyers are also responsible for the disposal in the usual course of business of the merchandise which they have bought? A. That is right.

Q. Now, do your duties place you in supervision of the buyers as regards the disposal of goods? A. Right.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, in the regular course of business, in your position as assistant general merchandise manager of J. L. Hudson Company, do you, from time to time, make checks of the business of Hudson & Company to determine the trend of sales? A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever heard of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear of this organization? A. Some time in the latter part of 1932.

Q. Did your store ever sign the Fashion Originators Guild "Declaration of Co-operation in Anti-Piracy"? A. 5930
Yes.

Q. When did you sign that declaration? A. In June, 1933.

Q. Do you have a copy of that declaration with you? A. I have the original declaration with me.

Q. Let me see it, please.

(Witness hands paper to counsel.)

(The "Declaration of Co-operation" was marked for identification "Commission's Exhibit 475.")

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 475 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that paper? A. Yes, 5931
this is the original.

Mr. Albert: If you will permit me to see it, Mr. Martin, I may concede it is a declaration, and you can offer it in evidence. You can save some time.

(Mr. Martin hands paper to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received in evidence.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 475.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification "Commission's Exhibit 475," was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Keller: What is the date of it?

Mr. Martin: Apparently the only date is marked "June 22, Received."

Mr. Post: Is there a date at the bottom?

Mr. Martin: No, there is no date at the bottom.

5933 Mr. Post: Well, all right.

Mr. Martin: It is marked up here "June 22, Received."

Mr. Post: 1933, that is correct, is it not?

The Witness: Yes, 1933.

Mr. Martin: 1933.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Is the declaration of co-operation, which is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 475, between the Hudson Company and the Fashion Originators Guild of America, now in effect? A. No, it is not.

Q. When did that cease to be in effect? A. On the 14th of February, 1936.

5934 Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, from the time your firm started the declaration of co-operation, June 22, 1933, until that declaration became no longer effective, on February 14, 1936, did you, in any way, co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild in its activities? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever co-operate with them prior to the signing of the declaration? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, in what way did you co-operate with the Guild after you signed the declaration? A. We removed dresses from sale and returned dresses to manufacturers which were adjudged to be copies by the Guild.

Q. Did you place on the orders for merchandise given by your store the Guild warranty stamp? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: Will you hand me Commission's Exhibit 306?

Mr. Albert: While you are looking for that exhibit, may I suggest that the best evidence of the stamp used on the order is the order bearing the stamp, and in order to save time I suggest that you put in evidence a copy of the order which will be just as satisfactory.

5936

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 475 and refer you to the last paragraph thereof, and ask you is that the stamp which you placed on your orders?

Mr. Albert: I object to the question, if it please the Court, upon the ground that the best evidence of the stamp they placed on their orders is an order bearing the stamp.

Examiner Bennett: That is true, I believe, if you have the stamp.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you with you any orders bearing that stamp? 5937
A. No, I have not.

Q. Can you testify as to the identity of that? A. I believe that our stamp which we placed upon our orders was taken from this and is exactly the same (indicating).

Q. Now, did you place that stamp on all orders, Mr. Sappington? A. Yes, on all orders placed from the Ready-to-Wear Division.

Q. Ready-to-Wear Division? A. Coats, suits and dresses.

Examiner Bennett: Fix the time.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. That is, from the time you signed the declaration until February 14, 1936, this year? A. From approximately the time that we signed the declaration. I believe there were a few days elapsing until we could have the stamp made, and up to the time that we—that our declaration was returned.

Q. Did the manufacturers accept your orders with the stamps on them? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in the fall of 1935, Mr. Sappington, did any manufacturers refuse to accept orders which were placed by your firm and which contained this stamp? A. Not 5939 that I know of.

Q. Does the Fashion Originators Guild of America employ a shopper in Detroit? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know her name? A. Her name is Mrs. Miller.

Q. Did you ever meet her, or do you know her personally? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever encountered her in any of the departments of your store, in the performance of her duties? A. I have seen her in the store, yes.

Q. What was she doing? A. Walking through the floor, looking at merchandise, about the same as a customer would do. I have also talked with her in my office about copies of Guild merchandise, and I have gone over sketches with her that the Guild has sent to her for identification, 5940 and so forth.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the latter part of the answer be stricken out, if the Court please, as not responsive to the question.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I think it is.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question, please?

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: In the store.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. In what departments in your store have you encountered her? A. I couldn't say. I don't remember, except that they were on the garment floor; they were in the garment departments, in the dress departments.

Q. Now, did Mrs. Miller ever advise you or request you to return any of the garments which you have in stock to the manufacturer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you testify as to the number of garments, or as to the number of instances in which garments were returned to the manufacturer at the request of the Guild shopper? A. No, sir.

5942

Mr. Albert: What was that answer?

The Witness: "No."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Were any garments ever returned at her request? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you give the dates and occasions of any of these returns? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you give the names of any manufacturers to whom dresses were returned at her request? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Sappington, when was the J. L. Hudson Company red carded? A. On the 14th of February. We received word on the 15th.

5943

Mr. Albert: I ask that the answer be stricken out, if it please the Court, as unintelligible. I don't know what he means by "On the 14th, we received word on the 15th."

Mr. Martin: I think the answer is fully responsive to the question, your Honor, and perfectly intelligible to any man of reasonable intelligence.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: I press my objection, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: It is denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, will you tell me briefly what was the first knowledge which the J. L. Hudson Company had that it had been red carded?

Mr. Martin: May I ask that that question be repeated?

(Question read.)

5945 Mr. Albert: That is objected to as being immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead and answer. A. We received word from the Detroit representative of "Women's Wear."

Q. That was the first knowledge you had of being red carded? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you subsequently receive any further notice of being red carded? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive any notice directly from the F.O.G.A.? A. Yes, sir.

5946 Q. What notice did you receive? A. We received a letter from Mr. Post. No, excuse me. From Mr. Golby.

Q. Have you that letter? A. Yes.

(A letter was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 476.)

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 476 for Identification, and ask can you identify that? A. That is the notice that we received from the Fashion Originators Guild of America that we had been red carded.

(Letter was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received as Commission's Exhibit 476.

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 476, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, what, if anything, did you do after 5948 you received the notice of red carding as set out in Commission's Exhibit 476?

Mr. Albert: May I ask that that question be repeated?

(Question read.)

A. We attempted to go ahead in our buying just the same as we had in the past.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you have any correspondence with the Fashion Originators Guild in reply to their letter of February 14 as set out in Commission's Exhibit 476? A. Yes. We wrote a letter to the Guild—wrote a letter to the Guild 5949 on the 27th of February. This is a copy of the letter which was written.

Mr. Martin: Mark that for identification, will you, please, sir, 477-A and B.

(Letter was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 477-A and 477-B.)

5950 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 477-A and B for Identification, and ask if you can identify them? A. Yes. This is a copy of the letter which was sent to the Guild acknowledging the receipt of their letter of February 14.

Q. What is Commission's Exhibit 477-B? A. This is a return receipt signed by the Guild, return receipt for the registered letter.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, Commission's Exhibits 477-A and B.

(Papers were handed to Mr. Albert.)

5951 Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received as Commission's Exhibits 477-A and 477-B.

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 477-A and 477-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, after you had gotten this notice and had written to the Fashion Originators Guild, as set out in Commission's Exhibit 477-A, what happened then? A. When our buyers went into the market to buy merchandise those houses which belonged to the Guild 5952 refused to sell them. Also, all merchandise that was on order with Guild houses at the time that we were blacklisted——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask that the latter part be stricken out.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please——

Examiner Bennett: There is no need of argument. Denied.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go head.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. At the time that we were blacklisted, those houses with which we had merchandise on order refused to deliver.

Q. Did your buyers attempt to gain access to the manufacturers who were members of the Guild? A. They——

Q. Were they denied access by these Guild manufacturers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you testify as to which buyers tried to obtain access? A. Yes, sir. 5954

Q. Who were those buyers?

(Witness searches files.)

A. Miss Costello, who buys junior wear; Miss Reicke, who buys suits.

Mr. Albert: Sorry. I didn't get that name.

The Witness: Reicke.

Mr. Albert: Reicke?

The Witness: R-e-i-c-k-e.

Mr. Albert: What was she the buyer for?

The Witness: Suits.

By Mr. Martin. 5955

Q. Was that Miss Costello? A. C-o-s-t-e-l-l-o.

Q. What does she buy for? A. Junior wear.

Q. All right, sir. Miss Briggs, B-r-i-g-g-s, who buys coats and evening wraps; Miss Hromek, H-r-o-m-e-k, who buys sportswear; Miss Kimball, who buys women's dresses; Miss Fowler, who buys for our gown sheet; Mr. Touff, T-o-u-f-f, who buys for three departments, women's and misses' dresses.

Q. Now, is that all, Mr. Sappington? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, what manufacturers refused access to Miss Costello? A. Miss Costello was refused access by Aywon Dress Company and Junior Guild Frocks.

Q. Any others? A. That is all.

Q. Who refused access to Miss Reicke? A. Grossman-Seigel.

Q. Any others? A. That is all.

Q. What Guild manufacturers refused access to Miss Briggs? A. Aaron's, Bernstein & Aaron; Carmel Brothers; Delmonte Hicke; Bender, Shell & Company; Louis Gold-5957 stein; Grossman-Seigel; Philip VanGon.

Q. What manufacturers refused access to Miss Hromek? A. Gane; Wile; Adler & Adler; Star Maid; Sport Craft; Mutual; Rosenbloom; Bernard Appel.

Q. What Guild manufacturers refused access to Miss Fowler? A. Max Heit; Rose Sperrick & Laum; Herman Beispell; Perlas & Gilbeft; Straus; Miller.

Q. What Guild manufacturers refused access to Mr. Touff? A. Lila Modes; Aywon Dress; International Dress; Whitlan & Schneider; C. H. D. Robbins.

Mr. Albert: Take it a little easy, Mr. Sappington.

The Witness: International Dress. Got that one?

5958 Mr. Albert: Yes.

The Witness: Whitlan & Schneider, C. H. D. Robbins, Brentner & Swessman, Milton Altmark, Mary Lee, Frank Starr-Friedlander, A. Goodman, Caplan Moskowitz, Henry Ganz, Eastman & Bard, Robinson Brothers, Matthes-Seckutzky.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

The Witness: I have some additional manufacturers here on the junior line.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Well, are those all of the manufacturers who refused access to buyers? A. No.

Q. How? A. Here are some more for the Junior Miss Department, under Miss Costello: Ashley Frocks—in addition to the two I gave you, there are Ashley Frocks, Bon Ray, Daytime Frocks, R. Goldfarb, and Jo-Ann Junior, or Jo-Anne, I think some people call it, Joane.

Q. Is that all? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, can you testify as to the names of the Guild houses from whom your store purchased dresses in 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you a list of those? A. I think so. 5960

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 478-A.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 478-A for identification, and ask you can you identify that list? A. Yes, this is a list of the Guild houses that we used, that were used by our dress departments in 1935, also indicating those houses that are not with the Guild now but were in 1935.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 478-A.

Mr. Albert: May I question on the voir dire, your Honor? 5961

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, who prepared this list (indicating)? A. That was prepared by the clerical staff in the stock control office of our garment division

Q. Did you check it for accuracy? A. I didn't check it against our records myself, no.

Q. Except for the fact that it was presented to you as having been prepared in your stock control room, you know nothing as to its accuracy? A. Well, I am familiar with a great many of the houses that are on that list. I know that we did business—I know offhand that we did business with a great many of those houses without having to check it.

Q. But you do not know that you did business with all of those houses, do you? A. Not with every one.

Q. And you do not know whether or not any of the 5963 houses have been omitted, do you? A. Only as this list was given to me by our own employees who checked it.

Q. What period does this list encompass? A. From 1935.

Q. From when to when? A. From the 1st of February, 1935, to the 31st of January, 1936; that is our fiscal year, 1935.

Q. From whence was the information taken with respect to the houses allegedly not in the Guild at the present time? A. Either from word that we received from those houses, or information that was given to our office by our buyers.

Q. Where did your buyers get the information from? A. From the houses.

5964 Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I object to the introduction of this list at the present time on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid; on the further ground that no foundation has been laid whatsoever as to the truth or accuracy of the notations of certain houses that have resigned from the Guild.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, may I ask a few more questions?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, was this list prepared for you by your employees at your request, in the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is such information as is relied on by you in the usual course of business? A. Yes.

Q. Do you believe this to be a true and accurate list? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer it in evidence, your Honor, Commission's Exhibit 478-A.

Mr. Albert: I renew my objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; received.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 5966

(List of Guild houses used by dress departments in 1935, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 478-A, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(List of "Guild Houses with whom we did business during 1935 in the Better Coat Department and Evening Wrap Department" was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 478-C.)

(List of "Guild Houses with whom we did business in the Suit Department in 1935" was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 478-B.)

By Mr. Martin. 5967

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 478-B, for identification, and ask can you identify that? A. It is a list of Guild houses with whom we did business in our suit department in 1935.

Q. Was that list prepared by you? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it employed for you by your employees at your request? A. Yes.

Q. In the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is relied on by you in the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are satisfied as to its accuracy and correctness? A. I am.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, your Honor, Commission's Exhibit 478-B.

Mr. Albert: Same objection, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling; overruled; received.

(The list referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 478-B, was marked 5969 as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 478-C, for identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This is a list of Guild houses with whom we did business in 1935 in the Better Coat Department and in our Evening Wrap Department.

Q. Was that prepared by you? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it prepared for you by your employees at your request in the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And, as such, is relied on by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you believe it to be correct? A. Yes, sir.

5970 Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: Same objection as has been previously made to the admission of Commission's Exhibit 478-A.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling; overruled; received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(List referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 478-C, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, at the time the J. L. Hudson Company was red carded on February 14, 1936, were there any orders outstanding with manufacturers who were a member of the Guild? A. Yes, sir.

(Papers were thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 479-A, 479-B and 479-C.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 479-A, B and C, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This is a list of outstanding orders with Guild houses on the 15th of February, 1936. 5972

Q. Was that list prepared by you? A. No, sir.

Q. By your employees for you at your request in the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And, as such, is relied on by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are satisfied as to the accuracy of that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibits 479-A, B and C.

Examiner Bennett: Do you have quite some more of this examination?

Mr. Martin: Yes, I have quite a good deal.

Examiner Bennett: All right, I think we had better take a recess pretty soon—give you a rest of a few minutes. 5973

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: I renew my objection to Commission's Exhibit 479 upon the same grounds previously interposed with respect to Commission's Exhibit 478-A.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 479-A, B and C, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of not exceeding ten minutes.

Mr. Martin: Yes, your Honor.

(There was a short recess taken.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, referring to Commission's Exhibits 479-A, B and C, which is a list of merchandise on order with Guild houses and outstanding as of February 5975 15, 1936, were these orders filled by the Guild manufacturers with whom they were placed? A. No, sir.

Q. Were any of them filled? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Albert: Is that "yes, sir" or "no, sir"?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know how many of these orders were filled? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you tell me approximately how many of them were filled, about? A. About $2,000 out of the total amount.

Q. Do you know the manufacturers who filled these orders? A. No, sir.

Q. With the exception of approximately $2,000 of these orders as shown on this list, your testimony is that the balance were not filled? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time of the red carding—withdraw that question. Are you familiar, Mr. Sappington, with what is meant by the term "hot numbers" in the trade? A. Yes, sir.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Martin: What is that question?

(The question was read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you have any hot numbers which had been supplied by Guild manufacturers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you attempt to place any reorders? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were the reorders accepted? A. No, sir.

Q. Since the time you were red carded on February the 14th, 1936, have you been able to buy any garments from Guild manufacturers from whom you had previously been buying? 5978

The Witness: May I ask you to repeat that, please?

(The question was read.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To what extent? A. Slightly.

Q. Do you know when you last attempted to obtain merchandise from Guild sources? A. Not exactly.

Q. Can you state approximately the time? A. February and March of 19—of this year.

Examiner Bennett: This document hasn't been offered, has it (indicating Commission's Exhibits 479-A, B and C)?

Mr. Martin: Yes, that has been offered and received. 5979

Mr. Albert: That is 479-A, B and C.

Examiner Bennett: I know what it is.

Mr. Martin: It was offered just before recess.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, did your ladies' ready-to-wear business—is your ladies' ready-to-wear business divided into departments? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you give me the names of those departments? A. Women's suits, women's inexpensive coats, women's better coats, women's better dresses, inexpensive evening gowns, misses' inexpensive coats, misses' better coats, misses' better dresses, the Gown Shop, women's inexpensive dresses, women's moderate priced dresses, misses' inexpensive dresses and misses' moderate priced dresses.

Mr. Albert: I think that is a repetition.

A. (Continuing) Junior apparel, sports accessories. I believe that department is called blouses and sweaters. Excuse me. Blouses and sweaters. Sportswear, furs.

5981 Mr. Albert: Just a minute, Mr. Martin. Would you mind repeating those?

(The answer was read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, what, do you know, is the department number of women's suits? A. 300.

Q. What department number is women's inexpensive coats? A. 311.

Q. Women's better coats? A. 312.

Q. Women's better dresses? A. 338.

Q. Women's inexpensive evening gowns? A. 339.

Q. Misses' inexpensive coats? A. 345.

Q. Misses' better coats? A. 346.

5982 Q. Misses' better dresses? A. 358.

Q. The Gown Shop? A. 359.

Q. Misses' inexpensive dresses? A. 366.

Q. Misses' moderate priced dresses? A. 367.

Q. Misses' inexpensive dresses? A. 368.

Q. Misses' moderate priced dresses? A. 369.

Q. Junior apparel? A. 371.

Q. Blouses and sweaters? A. 381.

Q. Sportswear? A. 385.

Q. And furs? A. 400.

Q. Mr. Sappington, in what price range did you buy dresses from the Guild manufacturers? A. $10.75 up.

Q. At what price were the bulk or the majority of dresses bought from Guild manufacturers?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, calling for the conclusion of the witness, no foundation has been laid, and it is entirely too indefinite in general to be of any particular worth. I don't think the Commission is——

Examiner Bennett: If he knows.

By Mr. Martin. 5984

Q. Do you know? A. At what price?

Q. At what price line the bulk of your F.O.G.A. business was? A. No.

Q. You can't testify as to that? A. I can testify as to what the price line——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I think the witness should be subjected to questioning and not the volunteering of any information. He has testified that he can't tell us what price line constituted the bulk of his purchases. Now, if Mr. Martin has any further questions, I suggest that he ask them and that the witness not volunteer anything. I object to any volunteering of any information. 5985

Examiner Bennett: You were going to say what knowledge you had. What is it?

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Go ahead. A. I could tell you that at $10.75 we buy more pieces than at any other price line.

Q. You buy more pieces at $10.75?

Mr. Albert: Objected to. The answer is not responsive, and I ask that it be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled on the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may have an exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. To the best of your knowledge, Mr. Sappington, how long has the Guild membership included manufacturers in the brackets below $10.75?

5987

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for the conclusion of the witness, no proper foundation has been laid qualifying this man in Detroit as an expert on what the Fashion Originators Guild has done in New York.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you may lay a foundation, and find out about it.

Q. Do you know whether or not Guild merchandise has any manufacturers who manufacture garments in the price brackets below $10.75?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial; no proper foundation 5988 has been laid; merely a repetition of the previous question. This man is not an expert on what the Guild comprises.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. I don't know now, no.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know whether they ever had any manufacturers below $10.75?

Mr. Albert: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will find out what he knows.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know when they first had manufacturers in the brackets below $10.75? 5990

Mr. Albert: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. No, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you ever bought any garments from Guild manufacturers at cost, less than $10.75?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as having been previously answered, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: I think it is a perfectly proper question, your Honor; it has not been answered. 5991

Mr. Albert: The question was once given; there was a previous specific answer.

Mr. Martin: Refer to the record and see if there was an answer.

Mr. Albert: Well, refer to the record, Mr. Martin.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment; objection overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. When did you buy garments from Guild manufacturers at prices less than $10.75? A. During the year 1935.

Q. What part of the year 1935? A. I believe in both the spring and fall seasons.

Q. How long have you been assistant general merchan-5993 dise manager of the Hudson Company? A. Six years.

Mr. Albert: Congratulations, Mr. Martin.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. How long have you been in the employ of the Hudson Company? A. About eight and one-half years.

Q. Now, in your position as assistant general merchandise manager, are you familiar with the policies of the Hudson Store: that is, the general merchandise? A. Generally, yes.

Q. The general policies of the store? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to the time that the Hudson Company signed the declaration of co-operation, what was the policy of your store relative to the purchasing of garments which 5994 were alleged to be copies of other garments? A. We had no policy.

Q. Did you buy garments without regard as to whether or not they were copies? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: What was the answer?
The Witness: "Yes."

Q. Did Hudson & Company volantarily sign this declaration?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, Mr. Martin certainly has sufficient experience in the trial of a case to know that that question is not only objectionable, but obnoxious to every single court. It calls for a conclusion of the witness as to a matter of law. It is the most leading question that could possibly be asked of a witness, and the only purpose of asking that question of the witness in the face of my having gotten up and informed Mr. Martin and told him of the fact that it was leading was in order to apprise the witness 5996 of exactly the answer Mr. Martin wants to his succeeding question.

I think that type of questioning on the part of the Commission should be absolutely cut off by your Honor, and that Mr. Martin should be admonished to ask his questions in proper legal form. I do not think there can be one iota of doubt about the fact that the sole purpose of that question was to warn and apprise the witness of the answers that were necessary and were wanted by the Commission as to future questioning, because I do not think Mr. Martin, for whom I have great respect as to his legal ability, thinks for one moment that that question will be sustained by the 5997
Commission.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that particular question.

Mr. Martin: All right.

(Question read as follows: "Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have testified that Hudson & Company signed a declaration of co-operation in June; I believe it was the 22nd of June, 1933; what were the reasons for signing this declaration?")

5998 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know the reasons they signed the declaration?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial, and he certainly knows the reasons now after that last question of Mr. Martin's.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know why you signed the declaration? A.
5999 Yes, sir.

Q. Why did you sign the declaration.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as calling for the operation of the witness' mind; calling for a conclusion of the witness; no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: As being irrelevant to the complaint of the Commission.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead and answer.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to hear what he has to answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6000 A. We signed the declaration of co-operation because we received a letter from the Fashion Originators Guild, signed by Mr. Rentner, stating that the members of the Fashion Originators Guild would not show their lines to buyers, unless the store which those buyers represented signed the declaration of co-operation prior to July 5, 1933.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I move that the answer be stricken on the ground that the best evidence of the letter referred to in the answer is the letter itself, and I renew my objection and ask that the answer be stricken upon the previous grounds interposed with respect to the question.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I am going to deny the motion.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you a copy of the letter you referred to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you let me see it?

Mr. Martin: Mark this the next number, A, B, C and D. 6002

(Document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 480-A, 480-B, 480-C and 480-D.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 480-A, B, C and D for identification, and ask if you can identify that letter? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter addressed to me by Maurice Rentner of the Fashion Originators Guild stating the Guild——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to any statement of what is in the letter.

Examiner Bennett: What is the date? 6003

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What is the date? A. June 16, 1933.

Q. Does it contain any enclosures? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are they? A. Enclosures: Memorandum on the Guild's resolution and its significance.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibits 480-A, B, C and D.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess for luncheon until 2.15.

Mr. Martin: Until 2.15?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(Whereupon, at 12.45 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2.15 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

6005 AFTERNOON SESSION, 2.15 P. M.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 480-A, 480-B, 480-C, and 480-D, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, referring to Commission's Exhibits 479-A, B and C, which is a list of orders with Guild houses outstanding at the time of red carding, were any of these orders cancelled by J. L. Hudson Company? A. No.

Q. Are they still outstanding as far as Hudson Company records show? I mean by that, that they have not 6006 been cancelled on your records? A. They have not been cancelled.

Q. Would you have accepted delivery of these orders if the same had been tendered? A. Within reasonable time, yes.

Q. Mr. Sappington, have you in the ordinary course of your business, made any study to determine the effect on Hudson's business in the affected departments of being red carded by the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. There is no testimony in the evidence that any department has been affected.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Yes, we have.

Q. What study did you make? A. We have made a study of comparative volume for a group of departments as a whole, and we have made various price line studies comparing volume at various price lines during the period since the red carding with the corresponding period a year ago.

6008

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Has the red carding of Hudson & Company had any effect on its business? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in the light of your answer, and in the light of your previous answers that you have made a study, will you tell me what has been the effect on Hudson's business of the inability to obtain garments from Fashion Originators Guild manufacturers as you observed it?

Mr. Albert: I renew my objection, if it please the Court, on the ground that there was no foundation laid showing that this witness has made any study. There is no foundation laid showing what study has been made, nor has any evidence been presented showing that any reports of any studies have been made by this witness. 6009

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Sappington. You may answer. A. Could I have the question repeated?

Q. (Question read.) A. We have been unable during this spring season to obtain certain types of garments in order to complete our assortments or in order to make our assortments up to our standard. We have been unable to supply certain—to obtain certain types of garments, and we have been unable to obtain garments in certain price lines.

Q. Any other effect? A. We have been forced to seek new resources which heretofore were unfamiliar and untried, as far as we are concerned, which involves considerable risk, we felt.

Q. Any other effect? A. We believe that all of this has 6011 an effect on the volume of business we were able to do this spring.

Q. Has it had any effect on your——

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I move that the answer be stricken on the ground that it is not responsive. The answer to the question was a simple one, "Yes, it affected our volume." Instead of that, we get a long explanation from the witness as to what his opinion is, without any basis or foundation in fact showing the justice of the facts upon which the opinion is predicated.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6012 By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did this inability to secure F.O.G.A. garments have any effect on your business so far as the good will of your customers is concerned?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to the question on the grounds that the previous answer of the witness did not restrict his inability to obtain certain merchandise as having been confined to Guild houses. Mr. Martin in interpreting the witness has included something in his question which was not contained in the answer.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Answer. A. Yes, we think it did.

Q. What effect?

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Well, in the case of certain—in certain instances where our customers wished to have a special order of garment that we had in stock, which we could not do. 6014
Some of these customers were very important to our business.

Q. Have you been enabled to display and offer for sale goods of the comparable grade and quality with which you formerly carried in stock?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as a conclusion of the witness, if it please the Court; no proper foundation has been laid as to what is a garment comparable to any other garment. There is nothing whatsoever in the record to support any conclusion or any opinion or any wild guess that the witness may make in answer to that question of the Commission's Attorney. I respectfully object to the question upon that ground. 6015

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. You may answer. A. We were not able to maintain the assortments, our assortments in certain respects as we had maintained them in previous seasons, or as we have maintained them had we had free access to the entire market.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the latter part be stricken out as purely a conjecture of the witness, if the Court please, "as we would have."

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let it stand.

Mr. Albert: Exception. May I have the answer repeated?

(Answer read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have referred in your testimony, or, rather, you have described the various departments of your dress business, dress and coat business, by 6017 name as well as by departments; have you, in the ordinary course of business, in the performance of your duty, made, or caused to be made, any study with reference to those particular departments which you have outlined, as to the effect on those departments of being red carded? A. Yes, I have.

Your Honor, may I add to my testimony of this morning? In giving a list of the departments in the Ready-to-Wear Division, I left out one department.

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may add it.

The Witness: No. 386—the name is "Home Frocks."

Mr. Feldman: How do you spell that?

Mr. Martin: Frocks, F-r-o-c-k-s.

6018 Mr. Post: You should know after this trip.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, with particular reference to those various departments, which one of them was most affected by being red carded?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, we would seem to have a principal thought to be established by the attorney for the Commission, that merely from the fact that he asked the witness whether he had made a study of it, and the witness says "Yes," that that makes him thoroughly competent to tell us what he finds.

Mr. Martin: All right, I will ask him another question if you want me to.

Mr. Albert: You knew what was coming. Let us have a foundation for it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you determined from your study which one of the departments was affected? 6020

Mr. Albert: That certainly cures it! I think the death is worse than the cure. If it please the Court, before we get an opinion from this witness as to what he believes to be the effect, I would like to know what his study was. I do not want to hear that he read a Detroit "Journal" or that he read the "Readers Digest."

Examiner Bennett: You may have the cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: But, if your Honor please——

Examiner Bennett: I have ruled.

Mr. Albert: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I have that, and I have ruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 6021

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. Yes, we have.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, which one of those departments was affected?

A. Departments 312, 338, 346, 358, 359, 367, 369, 371, 385.

Mr. Albert: Will the reporter please repeat those? (Answer read.)

(A paper was thereupon marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 481.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 481 for Identification, and ask can you identify that paper? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. This is a memorandum sent to me by Mr. Touff, buyer for Department 338, giving an analysis——

6023 Mr. Albert: Wait. If it please the Court, I ask that it be not described.

Mr. Martin: All right.

Examiner Bennett: It may not.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was this memorandum prepared for you at your request? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was done in the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in the ordinary course of business is relied on by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To the best of your knowledge and belief, this is correct? A. Yes, sir.

6024 Examiner Bennett: Who is the gentleman that prepared it?

Mr. Martin: Mr. Touff, who is one of their buyers, T-o-u-f-f.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 481.

Mr. Albert: Is this another exhibit being offered in evidence, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: It is; yes, sir.

Mr. Albert: I object to the particular figures going into evidence upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 481, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 482-A and 482-B.)

By Mr. Martin: 6026

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 482-A and 482-B for Identification, and ask you if you can identify those? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are they? A. Memorandum from Mr. Touff to myself.

Q. Was that prepared for you at your request? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as such relied upon by you in the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And, to the best of your knowledge and belief, those figures are accurate and correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibits 482-A and 482-B. 6027

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I wish to object to Commission's Exhibit 482, particularly that portion which contains a record of figures, on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid demonstrating by competent evidence the method in which the figures were reached and the accuracy thereof. I also object to the further admission of Commission's Exhibits 482-A and B upon the ground that it contains self-serving declarations in no way binding upon the respondents. It contains interoffice communications as between Mr. Sappington and Mr. Touff, one of his buyers, with respect to opinions of Mr. Touff on matters that are before the Commission, and that to permit the introduction into evidence of this exhibit will forestall any cross-examination by the respondent with respect to the self-serving declarations, opinions, hearsay matters, and the wild guesses of Mr. Touff in which he was making his alleged report to Mr. Sappington.

Examiner Bennett: I do not believe I can accept that, Mr. Martin.

Mr. Martin: Sir?

Examiner Bennett: I do not believe I can accept that. There is a wrong argument there. I don't mind the figures. I will admit the figures if you will cut the rest out. There is a long argument there by a man that is not subject to cross-examination, and I think it is going too far.

Mr. Martin: Well, will your Honor admit it as far as the figures are concerned?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I will admit the figures and you can draw your own conclusions.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. I offer it with that.

6030

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, in the light of the analysis, so-called analysis of the figures that is revealed in the opinions of Mr. Touff, which are subjoined to the figures——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: We will tear them off from there right now.

Mr. Feldman: No, don't.

Mr. Albert: Don't destroy the Commission's exhibit.

Mr. Martin: I don't mean tear them up. I mean separate them, because the Examiner is admitting part and he is not admitting the other part.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the figures contained on Commission's Exhibit 482-A not be admitted in evidence in addition to the grounds which I have urged.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule you as to the figures and admit the figures. I shall not admit those arguments.

Mr. Martin: Now, is it satisfactory to you—this part of the exhibit, Exhibit 482-B does not contain any figures—is it satisfactory to remove that from the exhibit? 6032

Mr. Albert: It is satisfactory to me to remove it from the exhibit provided the Commission makes Commission's Exhibits 482-A and 482-B, in so far as it contains an alleged interoffice communication available to me.

Mr. Martin: It is immaterial to me whether it is removed or not. We will just let it go in like that, on that basis.

Mr. Feldman: May I see it just a moment?

Mr. Albert: Just a minute.

Mr. Martin: I understand that the exhibit is admitted as far as the figures are concerned; is that correct, your Honor? 6033

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: And no further.

Examiner Bennett: No further.

Mr. Albert: Further information contained on the exhibit to be deemed in evidence?

Examiner Bennett: No.

Mr. Martin: That is perfectly satisfactory to me.

Examiner Bennett: You may draw your own conclusions as to that.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, as I understand it; we have two papers here marked for identification, Commission's Exhibit 482-A and Commission's Exhibit 482-B.

Examiner Bennett: The figures tabulated at the head of the document.

Mr. Albert: On Commission's Exhibit 482-A.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: And so much thereof is going into evidence and the remainder of the paper can still be referred to as Commission's Exhibits 482-A and 482-B for Identification.

6035

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Feldman: Not to be destroyed.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: Perfectly satisfactory with me.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 482-A and 482-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: Will you mark this the next number, please?

(Documents were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 483-A and 483-B.)

6036

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, I hand you Commission's Exhibits 483-A and B for Identification, and ask, can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a memorandum to me from Mr. Dunham.

Q. Mr. who? A. Mr. Dunham.

Q. Who is Mr. Dunham? A. He is one of the assistants—assistant merchandise managers in the garment division. I gave you his name this morning.

Q. Was that prepared for you at your request in the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it relied and acted on by you in the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To the best of your knowledge and belief, it is a true and accurate statement? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, upon the grounds previously urged with respect to Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482. 6038

Examiner Bennett: Mr. Martin, do you want to strike out this paragraph (indicating)?

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

Examiner Bennett: If you do, why, it may go in evidence.

Mr. Martin: This is offered in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 483-A, with the understanding that the paragraph in single space just below the figures at the top of the page, and which have pencil brackets around them, are not to be taken as part of the exhibit, and I now offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Which one is that?

Examiner Bennett: Merely commentary.

Mr. Albert: I wanted to check up on that. Exception. 6039

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, have you had any figures prepared for you at your request, or have you personally prepared any figures showing the net piece sales for the year 1935? A. Yes, sir.

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 483-A and 483-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: If I am not too inquisitive, may I ask what piece sales, of what department?

(A document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 484.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you, for identification, Commission's Exhibit 484, and ask can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

6041 Q. What is it? A. Net piece sales of dresses by departments for the year 1935.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, Commission's Exhibit 484.

Mr. Albert: May I ask a question in voir dire, if it please the Court?

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does this constitute all of your ready-to-wear dress departments in 1935? A. Let me see it.

Mr. Martin: Let him see the exhibit.

6042

A. All ready-to-wear dress departments.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, there were no other dress departments in 1935, as I understand? A. In the store?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Why do you say "in the store"? A. Because there are departments in the store that are not in what we consider the ready-to-wear division; our house dress department, for example.

Q. You mean by that the home frocks? A. No, that is a separate department; I mean house dresses.

Q. Then in so far as all departments you have been referring to thus far are concerned, house dresses have not been included? A. That is right.

Mr. Albert: I renew my objection, if it please the Court, on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: I do not see its relevancy. Can you indicate the relevancy of it?

Mr. Martin: Yes, I am going to hook it up to 6044 show a comparison of what has taken place prior to being red carded and after being red carded.

Examiner Bennett: That is part of the offer?

Mr. Martin: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right; received.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 484, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. With reference to this Commission's Exhibit 484, I notice it is marked for the year 1935. You have previously testified that your fiscal year runs February 1 until January 31. Am I to understand from that that this list 6045 refers to the period February 1, 1935, to January 31, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 485.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 485 for Identification and ask can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a comparative study of business in the departments which I just enumerated as affected by the Guild for the months of February, March, April, May, and June and July, 1935, against 1936.

Q. Was that prepared by you? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it prepared by your subordinates or employees for you at your request? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as such is acted upon and relied upon by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To the best of your knowledge and belief, is that a correct statement? A. Yes, sir.

6047 Q. And is relied upon by you in the ordinary course of business as being correct? A. That is right.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibit 485.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, does Commission's Exhibit 485 represent the percentage in increase or decrease in the dollar volume of the departments therein mentioned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this is accurate? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Taken from the reports of J. L. Hudson Company? A. Yes, sir.

6048 Mr. Albert: I object to it, if it please the Court, on the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception. That is Commission's Exhibit 485?

Mr. Martin: 485 is correct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, with reference to Commission's Exhibits 480-A to D, which is a letter from Mr. Maurice Rentner, together with an enclosure therewith, did you have any communication, or did you receive any communication from Mr. Bergdahl with reference to that letter?

Mr. Albert: Just a moment, if it please the Court. I object to any such testimony at the present time, on the ground that it is immaterial and not binding upon the respondents herein, and certainly is inadmissible unless some connection is 6050 shown between Mr. Bergdahl and J. L. Hudson & Company. We have had no testimony thus far from this witness as to who the estimable Mr. Bergdahl is.

Examiner Bennett: I think you should identify him.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know Mr. Bergdahl? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is he? A. Mr. Bergdahl is Mr. Reilly's assistant in our New York office.

Q. Now, I renew my question—did you have any communications——

Examiner Bennett: Who is Mr. Reilly? 6051

Mr. Martin: He said Mr. Reilly's assistant in his New York office.

The Witness: I mean in the office of the A.M.C.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Well, I will ask the question: Is the J. L. Hudson Company affiliated with the Associated Merchandising Corporation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any communication from Mr. Bergdahl relative to Mr. Rentner's letter which is in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 480-A to D? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you get a letter from him, or telegram, or what? A. Telegram.

Q. Have you the telegram with you? A. Yes, I think so.

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 486.)

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 486 for Identification, and ask can you identify that letter? A. Yes.

6053 Q. What is it? A. A telegram from Mr. Bergdahl to myself.

Mr. Martin: I offer the same in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 486.

Mr. Albert: May I inquire voir dire, if it please the Court, with respect to this exhibit?

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is the connection, Mr. Sappington, between J. L. Hudson Company and the A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being immaterial. He has testified that they were affiliated.

6054

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I would like to know what you mean by "they are affiliated." Your store may be affiliated with a great number of different organizations and have no bearing or relevancy in this proceeding as regards this telegram. What is the affiliation of J. L. Hudson & Company with the A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. Go ahead.

A. We are a member of the A.M.C.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What do you mean by "you are a member of the A.M.C."? What is the A.M.C.? You see, we don't know what the A.M.C. is. A. It is an association of stores.

Q. Yes. A. Of the Associated Merchandising Corporation.

Q. Yes. A. Associations of stores in this country for 6056 the purpose of buying merchandise, doing work in the New York market.

Q. Well, has the A.M.C. any control or any influence in your buying?

Mr. Martin: Objected to now, your Honor. I think he has sufficiently identified who the A.M.C. was and the connection between the two.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, it may be an association of stores for——

Mr. Martin: It is sustained.

Mr. Albert: —for the support of the Olympic Games or something.

Examiner Bennett: He said for the purpose of 6057 buying. I think we have gone far enough on the voir dire.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: I object to the introduction of Commission's Exhibit 486 upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid with respect thereto, and there has been no sufficient explanation given of the relationship between J. L. Hudson Company and Mr. Bergdahl and Mr. Merriam of the A.M.C. What do those initials stand for, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: You ought to know by now?

Examiner Bennett: It is in the record rather elaborately.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor that Mr. Martin has at various times objected to any questions about this A.M.C. upon the ground that there was nothing in the record with respect thereto.

6059 Mr. Martin: May Mr. Martin point out to your Honor that he has already advised Mr. Albert on numerous occasions that he would conduct his case as he saw fit and not as Mr. Albert saw fit.

Mr. Albert: Well, that is just the point. I object to the fitness of the conduct of the case.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 486, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: We will have a recess of ten minutes.

6060 (There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, did you ever have any correspondence with the Fashion Originators Guild relative to styles which had been adjudged copies, and to the efforts, if any, being made by the F.O.G.A. to prevent these styles being shown by stores which were not members of the F.O.G.A.?

Mr. Albert: Object to the form of the question, if it please the Court. There are two questions there, and it also includes a state of facts not in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Make two separate questions of it, please. Get an answer to the first question.

Mr. Martin: Answer that first part.

The Witness: What is the first part, please?

(Question read as follows: "Q. Mr. Sappington, did you ever have any correspondence with the Fashion Originators Guild relative to styles which had been adjudged copies?") 6062

A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: Now repeat the second part of the question.

(Question read as follows: "Q. And to the efforts, if any, being made by the F.O.G.A. to prevent these styles being shown by stores which were not members of the F.O.G.A.?")

A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: Mark that, please, sir. 6063

(A document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 487.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 487 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. A letter from myself to Mr. Jack Goldston.

Q. What is the date of it? A. January 31, 1935.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 487, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. With reference to Commission's Exhibit 487, which is a letter from you to Mr. Jack Goldston of the Fashion 6065 Originators Guild of America, did you receive any reply thereto? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you that letter with you? A. Yes, sir.

(Letter was produced by the witness.)

Mr. Martin: Mark that for identification, if you please, sir.

(Letter was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 488-A and 488-B.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 488-A and 488-B—

Mr. Albert: It will save time if you will let me see it.

6066 No objection, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 488-A and B.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 488-A and 488-B were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: The same being a letter from Albert N. Post to L. B. Sappington, dated February 4, 1935.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, do you know Mr. Albert Post of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any correspondence or conversation with him in May of 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall what the subject of that conversation was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it? A. Relative to the $10.75 houses joining the Guild. 6068

Q. Now, did you have any correspondence with Mr. Bergdahl relative to the same subject? A. Yes, sir.

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 489.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 489 for Identification, and ask can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. A copy of telegram from myself to Mr. Bergdahl, May 8, 1935.

Mr. Albert: This is objected to, if it please the Court, as not binding upon the respondents; self-serving declaration. 6069

Examiner Bennett: This is a part of a chain, is it?

Mr. Martin: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right, I will receive it as such. I will expect supporting documents to show its relevancy.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6070 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Direct.

(Telegram referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 489 and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, did you receive a reply to that telegram? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you the same with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce it, please?

(Witness produces paper.)

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 490.)

6071

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 490 for Identification, and ask can you identify the same? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a telegram from Mr. Bergdahl to myself.

Mr. Albert: Same objection, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, Commission's Exhibit 490.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6072 (Telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 490, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, did you make any reply to Mr. Bergdahl? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you your reply with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce it?

(Witness produces paper.)

(Papers were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 491-A and 491-B.)

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 491-A and B for identification, and ask can you identify it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. A copy of a letter written by myself to Mr. Bergdahl, May 9, 1935.

Mr. Martin: I offer the same in evidence, Commission's Exhibits 491-A and B, without the pencil notations on the top there; I will rub that out.

Mr. Albert: No objection, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Received. 6074

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 491-A and 491-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Sappington, whether or not there was a meeting held in your offices between representatives of your company and the Fashion Originators' Guild at any time in the fall of 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that meeting held; do you recall? A. About the middle of November.

Q. Did your company ever receive any communication from the Fashion Originators Guild relative to that meeting? A. Yes, sir. 6075

Q. Have you the letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce it?

Mr. Martin: Mark this the next exhibit, please, sir.

(Document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 492-A, 492-B and 492-C.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 492-A, B and C for Identification.

Mr. Albert: Let me see it. We might save time. No objection.

Mr. Martin: I offer into evidence Commission's Exhibits 492-A, B, C, the same being a letter from Albert M. Post to Michael F. Dowley of the Hudson Company, under date of November 18, 1935.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

6077 (Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 492-A, 492-B and 492-C, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was any record of the meeting held in your office on November 16, 1935, which has just been referred to, made by any member of your organization? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you a copy of the record? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: Mark this for identification.

(Document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 493-A and 493-B.)

Mr. Martin: That is 493-A and B.

6078 Mr. Martin: Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Sappington, whether or not there was any conference between officials of your store and Mr. Post of the F.O.G.A. in the fall of 1935 with reference to co-operation on the part of your store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when that meeting took place? A. There was a meeting December 5, 1935.

Q. Did you have any correspondence with your New York representative relative to that meeting? A. We had some correspondence with Mr. Bergdahl.

Q. Have you that letter available? A. Yes, sir.

(Paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 494-A and 494-B.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 494-A and 494-B, and ask can you identify the same? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. A copy of a letter from Mr. Oscar Webber to Mr. Bergdahl, dated December 5. 6080

Q. Who is Mr. Oscar Webber? A. Vice-president and general manager of the J. L. Hudson Company.

Mr. Albert: This is offered as a letter from Mr. Bergdahl to Mr. Webber of J. L. Hudson Company, having been sent on December 5, 1935, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Not the slightest objection.

Mr. Martin: O.K., I did not think you would.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 494-A and 494-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin. 6081

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have testified that from time to time the Guild shopper appeared in your store and directed you to return garments which were found in your store and had been adjudged to be copies of styles registered with the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Mr. Albert: Would you be good enough to read that back to me?

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: How did she give these instructions? Were they written or verbal?

The Witness: Sometimes written, sometimes verbal.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did she ever give you any—withdraw the question. Have you with you a copy of a written instruction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce the same?

6083 (A document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 495.)

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 495.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 495, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, the hour of 4.30 having arrived and I having quite a good bit more of testimony with this witness, I suggest that this is a good stopping point.

6084 Examiner Bennett: Well, let's put it over until Monday.

Mr. Martin: Until when?

Mr. Albert: Monday, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Monday morning.

Mr. Martin: At 10 o'clock?

Examiner Bennett: At 10 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 14, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Court Room No. 722,
Federal Building,
Detroit, Michigan,
August 17, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, at this time Mr. Sappington has not shown up and I am going to ask Mr. MacDonald to come around just a few moments and be sworn. I want to ask just a few questions of him. 6086

Examiner Bennett: Be sworn, please.

GARFIELD R. MACDONALD was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examiner Bennett: What is the first name?

The Witness: Garfield.

Direct examination by Mr. Martin. 6087

Q. State your name. A. Garfield R. MacDonald.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. MacDonald? A. 640 Washington Road, Grosse Point.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Ready-to-wear merchandise manager in Hudson's Basement Store.

Q. How long have you been employed by Hudson Company? A. Twelve and a half years.

Q. How long have you held your present position? A. Three and a half years.

Q. Did you attend a meeting in Mr. Dowley's office on November 16, 1935, at which meeting Mr. Dowley, certain other representatives of Hudson's Store and Mr. Goldston of the F.O.G.A. were present? A. I did.

Q. Just tell us what happened at that meeting. A. An agreement was reached in the meeting that in case of a garment selected from our stock by the Guild shopper with the request that we return it, if we so desired we had the privilege of shopping the town, and if we found the garment selling in our competitors' stores we were to 6089 call the shopper, showing her the condition; she had the privilege of re-shopping and finding the condition as we represented it, we were to be allowed to continue selling the garment.

Q. Now, pending this period of shopping, what was to be done with the garment in question? A. It was to remain on the floor.

Q. Did you enter into any agreement not to re-order the particular dress in question?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as leading.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if you can get the witness to tell what further occurred, why, it would be more satisfactory.

6090 Mr. Albert: I doubt whether he can do it without leading.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What else happened at that meeting? Was any further agreement entered into? A. No further agreement was entered into, to my knowledge.

Q. Now, what did you do after that meeting, Mr. MacDonald? A. I left the office of Mr. Dowley, took the elevator to the main floor to return to my own office.

6091

Q. Were you by yourself or did somebody go with you? A. I was alone.

Q. What happened then? A. As I got off the elevator on the main floor of the former building, I met Mr. Goldston and Mrs. Miller, the Guild shopper.

Q. Who is Mr. Goldston? A. F.O.G.A. representative that attended the meeting in Mr. Dowley's office.

Q. All right, sir, what happened then? A. I stopped, and in my presence Mr. Goldston verbally gave his shopper the same instructions as I have related as being the agreement, adding she was to report all such instances to the Guild.

6092

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Mr. Albert: May we have Commission's Exhibit 5, Mr. Martin? It is not in evidence.

Mr. Martin: I have not—let me see. I do not think I have that.

Mr. Hayeraft: Here it is.

Mr. Martin: Here it is.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I have Commission's Exhibit 493-A?

Mr. Hayeraft: It is not offered.

Mr. Martin: These are not offered in evidence yet.

Mr. Albert: That is quite true. I know all about it.

6093

Mr. Hayeraft: This witness has not seen it.

Mr. Albert: Maybe I want to offer them, Mr. Martin.

Examiner Bennett: It was marked?

Mr. Albert: Now, your Honor please, I notice that Mr. Sappington has come in, and rather than interfere with the due course of the proceedings and to have the respondents' position in any way prejudiced by the fact that cross-examination has commenced with Mr. MacDonald before cross-examination is commenced with Mr. Sappington, I respectfully request that the Commission proceed with Mr. Sappington and that Mr. MacDonald be brought back for cross-examination after Mr. Sappington's cross-examination has been concluded. I do not think that there is very much harm to the witness. He is here in Detroit, and he certainly can come back again after Mr. Sappington has concluded.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, Mr. MacDonald was put on at this time for a very specific reason. He is going out of town. He was only 6095 asked relative to one instance here, and there certainly cannot be any exhaustive cross-examination of this witness on what he has just testified to——

Mr. Albert: In the first place——

Mr. Martin: Just a moment, please, sir.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Mr. Martin: And, as I said, this witness is anxious to get away from town, and I respectfully request that such cross-examination as counsel for the respondent wishes to make with this witness be had at this time.

Mr. Albert: In the first place——

Examiner Bennett: When does he expect to be back?

6096 Mr. Albert: Your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: I say, when does the witness expect to be back?

Mr. Martin: My understanding is—I thought he was going to be away all week. I do not know. You can ask the witness, your Honor, when.

Mr. Albert: In the first place, your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. I want to get that from the witness.

Mr. Martin: Mr. MacDonald, when did you expect to be back?

The Witness: I am planning on being back Friday morning, although it is not definite; otherwise, it will be Saturday morning.

Mr. Martin: Friday morning he expects, though he says it is not definite, and he may not get back until Saturday morning.

Examiner Bennett: I see.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor, please——

Examiner Bennett: Very well; go ahead and make your statement.

Mr. Albert: As far as the witness being out of town is concerned, every witness prior to cross-examination has stated that he is preparing to leave town—— 6098

Mr. Martin: This does not seem to be just prior to cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Will you let me complete my statement, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: Certainly.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Mr. Martin: You are welcome.

Mr. Albert: Secondly, we now learn the witness is going out of town; Mr. Martin, very naively, when he put the witness on the stand, made the statement that Mr. Sappington had not come in, and to save time he was going to put Mr. MacDonald on the stand.

In the third place, Mr. Martin obviously forgets 6099 a great deal of information that Mr. Sappington gave us about certain connections with Mr. MacDonald with certain affairs of the Fashion Originators Guild and J. L. Hudson Company, about which Mr. Sappington is going to be put through a very rigid cross-examination, and about which I frankly reveal that I do not wish to give him any warning by having to cross-examine Mr. Mac-Donald first, and I cannot permit Mr. MacDonald to go on the stand and get off the stand without cross-examining about the matter that Mr. Sappington has testified to which concerns Mr. MacDonald.

Examiner Bennett: You cannot cross-examine him about that so you may just as well make up your mind about it. You cross-examine this witness on his testimony here this morning, if you cross-examine, so just go ahead with your cross-examination if you have any.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if your Honor please—

6101 Examiner Bennett: Well, now, I am through with that. I am not listening to any further—

Mr. Albert: In other words, your Honor insists that I cross-examine Mr. MacDonald now?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, right now, right now, on this testimony this morning.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B?

Mr. Martin: They are not——

Mr. Albert: 493——

Mr. Martin: 493-A or B are not either one in evidence.

6102 Mr. Albert: I did not say that.

Mr. Martin: Give them back, then.

Mr. Albert: You want the Commission's exhibits back? I am sorry, I refuse to give them back to you. I want to use Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B for cross-examination.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor, I respectfully insist that neither 493-A or B are either one in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Not yet.

Mr. Albert: These are Commission's exhibits, your Honor please.

Examiner Bennett: Not yet, not yet. The exhibits which are marked for identification are still the property and remain in the custody of the persons who have had them marked.

Mr. Albert: Are they not, if it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: —in the custody of the Court when they are marked for identification?

Examiner Bennett: No, they are in the custody —no, not under our rules. They are in the custody of the person who offers them. 6104

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B——

Mr. Martin: Are not in evidence.

Mr. Albert: —have been marked.

Examiner Bennett: As a matter of fact, there are no such documents. They are two documents—

Mr. Albert: Marked for identification.

Examiner Bennett: —marked for identification, right.

Mr. Albert: Have been marked for identification by the Commission; they are intra-office communications of J. L. Hudson Company.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Which allegedly contain the precise information which this witness has just testified to, and which the Commission could not get into evidence. Now, do I understand that Mr. Martin refuses to permit me to compare this witness' oral testimony with the written instrument that he made in his official capacity as an employee of J. L. Hudson Company? 6105

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will see what you are——

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B?

Mr. Martin: You may not. You may when they are in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Not except they be given to you with the consent of the person in whose custody they belong. I am simply carrying out the rules of the Commission.

Mr. Albert: Do I understand that the Commission is refusing to permit me to cross-examine this 6107 man on them?

Examiner Bennett: The rule of the Commission is just as I have stated, and whether you understand it or not, that is what the rule is.

Mr. Martin: Now I ask for the return of those two papers.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin——

Examiner Bennett: Please give them up to Mr. Martin.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. MacDonald, did you make any written report to any executive of J. L. Hudson Company about the mat-6108 ter you have just testified to? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Have you that report here? A. No.

Q. You have not? A. No.

Q. Did you not just hear me discussing it with Mr. Martin? A. Yes.

Q. Is that report not in Mr. Martin's possession at the present time? A. I don't know that it is the report; I did not see it.

Q. You did not see the report that you gave to Mr. Martin? A. Not when you had it.

Q. Did you not discuss that report with Mr. Martin before you came in here this morning? Why do you hesitate? A. I read the report.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I read the report.

Q. Then Mr. Martin handed it to you? A. No, Mr. Martin did not.

Q. What report did you read this morning? A. My copy.

Q. Your copy of the report that you gave Mr. Martin? A. Right.

Q. So you do know what Mr. Martin has, do you not? A. I know if that is the report, I know what it is.

Q. You did not hand him anything else, did you? A. 6110
I didn't hand him that report.

Q. Have you your copy of it here? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Martin has his copy? A. I don't know.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B and ask you if that is a copy of what you handed Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: You mean you want me to show it to him?

Mr. Albert: Will you be good enough to show it to him?

Mr. Martin: Do you mean that you want me to show it to him, or are you going to show it to him?

Mr. Albert: I asked, will you be good enough to show it to him?

(Mr. Martin hands paper to witness.) 6111

A. That is the report.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You knew what I was referring to all along, didn't you, Mr. MacDonald? A. (No response.)

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B?

Mr. Martin: You may not.

Mr. Albert: How do you know I don't want to put them in evidence?

Mr. Martin: Offer them in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I cannot offer them in evidence until I have seen them.

Mr. Martin: You have seen them.

Mr. Albert: I ask for a ruling of the Court. Here is a report that has been rendered by an employee of J. L. Hudson Company who is on the stand now, who has testified that he has not got his copy of the report. The best evidence, therefore, 6113 is the copy that he has given Mr. Martin.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment. Just a moment. Mr. Martin, did you examine this witness from that report?

Mr. Martin: I did not, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: I have no objection giving that to him if you will offer it in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I ask the Court to direct Mr. Martin to show me Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B, which is a report allegedly prepared by this witness who says that 6114 he has not the copy with him, and who says that the report is in the possession of the Commission's attorney, and is a copy of the report that he made out, that is a statement of what he has testified to, and from which written report of what occurred I would like to cross-examine him. I think that is certainly within the province of cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he had examined from that report, I would ask the attorney for the Commission to submit it to you.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, may I most respectfully request—I urge that I can cross-examine the witness in order to contradict him from any written piece of paper which contains a statement made prior to the time he became a witness. I do not think I am bound by the fact that the man did not refer to that piece of paper. Supposing that this gentleman had by chance written to me telling me something directly contrary to what he has testified to on the stand.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if it fell into your possession, of course you could; there is no doubt about it. We will not argue that. The question is, it does not seem to be in your possession.

6116

Mr. Albert: Is not this in custodia legis now, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: I think the Commission should make those papers available. I think it is childish not to——

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please——

Examiner Bennett: —not for permanent custody, but available for this examination.

Mr. Albert: No, your Honor, I just want to examine them and see what is in them.

Mr. Martin: At this time, I offer this paper in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I object, if your Honor please. There has been no foundation laid for it.

6117

Mr. Martin: You laid it yourself.

Mr. Albert: I laid what myself?

Examiner Bennett: I will receive it in evidence subject to motion to strike.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: That may be further qualified by questioning this witness.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 493-A and 493-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Mr. Albert: I ask your Honor's indulgence for just a moment. We want to compare a letter.

Examiner Bennett: Certainly.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. MacDonald, what is the letter of November 12, 1935, written by Mr. Post to J. L. Hudson Company?

6119 Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to any cross-examination on these exhibits by Mr. Albert. He identified the exhibits, and he certainly cannot cross-examine them on his own cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I suppose I put them into evidence, your Honor?

Mr. Martin: You identified them.

Mr. Albert: It is really a sad state of affairs when the respondent has to identify things for the Commission in order to have the Commission put them into evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with your cross-examination.

6120 (Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: If you want to do anything with that letter show it to the witness.

Mr. Martin: Sir?

Examiner Bennett: I say, if you want to ask him anything about that letter, show it to the witness.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I point out that he mentioned it in his report, Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B?

Examiner Bennett: It does not make any difference.

Mr. Martin: He did not in his direct examination.

Examiner Bennett: I should like him to see any documents you ask him about.

Mr. Albert: I want to know what his knowledge is, since he contradicts the letter.

Examiner Bennett: There is an objection to that letter, and I sustain it.

Mr. Albert: Then I move that Commission's Exhibit 493 be stricken from the record. Commission's Exhibit 493-B specifically says, according to 6122 his interpretation, to ignore the letter—I want to know what his interpretation of the letter of November 12 is.

Examiner Bennett: Let him have the letter if you want him to interpret it.

Mr. Albert: May I have a ruling on my motion to strike Commission's Exhibit 493?

Examiner Bennett: Oh, no, if you want to be headstrong here——

Mr. Albert: I am not attempting to—if I am mistaken, I want to preserve my record on what my meagre rights are.

May I have a ruling?

Examiner Bennett: You will not have a ruling on that until you either submit the letter or with- 6123 draw that question. If you want to be headstrong about it, we will just stop there.

Mr. Albert: I very respectfully differ from your Honor's interpretation of what I am attempting to do.

Examiner Bennett: You may have your exception.

Mr. Albert: On the basis——

Examiner Bennett: You may have your exception. You may show him the letter.

Mr. Albert: That is all I want is an exception, your Honor. Very well.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead and show him the letter.

Mr. Albert: I did not know your Honor had granted me an exception. That is why I was—

Examiner Bennett: I think I told you about four times.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

6125 (A paper was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibits 43-A and 43-B.)

Mr. Albert: At this time, may it please the Court, may I ask that Mr. Sappington be requested to leave the proceedings during the cross-examination of Mr. MacDonald?

Examiner Bennett: There isn't any objection to that. I think I will ask Mr. Sappington to—there is an open court room down here, you will find a comfortable place that you can wait, if you will do that, please.

(Thereupon Mr. Sappington left the court room.)

Examiner Bennett: All right. Proceed.

By Mr. Albert.

6126 Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibits 43-A and 43-B for Identification, Mr. MacDonald, and ask you if that is the letter of November 12 referred to in Commission's Exhibit 493-B?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I respectfully submit that this is not proper cross-examination. This witness gave no testimony whatsoever about any written communications or any letters in his direct testimony. He testified that he was present at a conference and what took place at the conference, and what took place immediately after the conference, and I respectfully submit that this is not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: May I call to your attention Commission's——

Examiner Bennett: Show me Commission's Exhibit 493, please.

Mr. Albert: Here it is, in the very first paragraph.

Examiner Bennett: What is the other document?

(Papers were handed to the Examiner.) 6128

Examiner Bennett: I will ask you to qualify the witness, to qualify that question before you go further. Sustain the objection to it at the present time. If you make any foundation for it I will let him answer it. You have not thus far.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. MacDonald, have you seen the letter of November 12, 1935, Respondents' Exhibit 43-A?

Examiner Bennett: That is, did you see it before this morning?

Mr. Haycraft: Has the witness seen it yet?

Mr. Albert: Withdraw it.

6129

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 43-A, and ask you if you saw that letter before? A. Not since the meeting in Mr. Dowley's office referred to.

Q. But you saw it at the meeting in Mr. Dowley's office, did you not? A. Prior to that meeting.

Q. You saw it prior to that meeting? A. Upon receipt of the letter.

Q. In other words, the letter was shown to you—this letter was addressed to you, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Well, didn't you get it? A. That is what I said; I saw it prior to that meeting.

Q. And you read it prior to the meeting? A. Right.

Mr. Albert: I offer Respondents' Exhibit 43-A in evidence.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, we have no objection to it being offered in evidence, except that it is not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: 43-A and B. Well, it may be, if he makes a foundation for it. I wish you 6131 would find out from this witness if he made a report to a meeting; he was cross-examined about it. Let us connect those things up, if they have any connection, and let us get to it.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, unless the record thus far shows that he made a report upon the conference that was had, may I respectfully urge to the Court that Commission's Exhibits 493-A and 493-B are improperly in evidence. I thought they were admitted by reason of the fact they were a written report of the conference.

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will sustain the objection to your question. You will do one thing or the other.

6132 Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, I am frankly puzzled as to what——

Examiner Bennett: I have asked for further qualification of those papers.

Mr. Albert: May I respectfully suggest of the Court that I am puzzled as to what is meant—if I know I will be glad to comply——

Examiner Bennett: There was a motion to strike. Now, if you are just trying to kill time haggling about every point that comes up, why, that is one thing; I suppose there is nothing can prevent you except some idea of your responsibility. If you want to get along, why, I would advise you to follow the suggestions of the Examiner.

Mr. Albert: Let me say this, your Honor. I am not attempring to kill time, and thus far any time that has been killed this morning I believe has been through the Commission's attorneys' childish acts so characterized by your Honor in refusing to permit me to see Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B.

Now, very frankly, I do not quite understand what your Honor wants me to do with this witness with respect to bringing out the information—— 6134

Examiner Bennett: I want you to find out whether he made a written report, as I told you, whether he made a written report upon this meeting he was cross-examined about. I want to connect those papers up with that meeting, if they have any connection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. MacDonald, did you make any written report of the conference about which you have just testified? A. I made a written memorandum of my understanding of what had transpired in my presence in this meeting and submitted it to Mr. Dowley.

Q. When did you make that written report? A. Immediately after the meeting, as soon as I returned to my office. 6135

Q. Well, which is a correct recital of what occurred at that conference; your oral testimony this morning or the written report which you made?

The Witness: Kindly repeat the question.

(Question read.)

A. I believe they are both correct.

Q. So that if one is in error they are both in error; is that so? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, if they are both correct, meaning that one is equal to the other, then if one is in error they both are in error, are they not?

Mr. Martin: I object to any assumption on his part that they are in error, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: I think it is a perfectly valid question, your Honor. I am laying a foundation. I think your Honor has shown—has been shown of what value these reports are thus far of the various A.M.C. stores.

6137

Examiner Bennett: The witness may answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Answer the question.

The Witness: What is the question?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Your Honor, I don't know how to answer that question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. MacDonald, you have testified that both recitals, your oral recital on the witness stand, and your written recital, Commission's Exhibit 493-A, 493-B, are equally correct; have you not? A. Yes.

6138

Q. So that each one——

Examiner Bennett: Is that the testimony, or is it that both were correct? Not equally correct. I wish you would go back—the reporter is gone.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Which do you say, Mr. MacDonald, are they both correct; substantially correct, or are they both equally correct? A. Written——

Mr. Martin: I object to that, your Honor. He has already asked him the question and the witness has testified that they were both correct.

Mr. Albert: I am simply trying to enlighten your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: That is what I was trying to find out, whether that was his testimony.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin doesn't even want to enlighten the Court, now. 6140

Examiner Bennett: I wanted to find out whether they were correct, unqualifiedly.

The Witness: The written report made immediately after the meeting is undoubtedly more detailed than the oral report given this morning.

Examiner Bennett: But they are both correct?

The Witness: To the best of my knowledge.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Have you omitted from your oral testimony anything that you reported in your written testimony? A. My oral testimony was not as complete.

Q. Did you omit to refer in your oral testimony to any matter aside from the details of the matter that you have reported in Commission's Exhibit 493-B? 6141

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, at this time I would like to resume my objection. Here Mr. Albert is trying to cross-examine the witness on his own cross-examination, papers that I identified, and I submit that is entirely and wholly improper.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: May I call to the Court's attention that these are Commission's exhibits in evidence and have been placed into evidence by the Commission and not by me, your Honor? And that your Honor has specifically, despite the fact that these exhibits are in evidence as the Commission's exhibits, asked me to identify them further? Well, I don't see what I am supposed to do here. I am supposed to do one thing for the Commission's attorneys and your Honor has asked me to qualify them further and yet they are already in evidence as Commission's exhibits.

6143 Examiner Bennett: They are in evidence. Go ahead with your cross-examination.

By Mr. Albert,

Q. Now, Mr. MacDonald——

Examiner Bennett: I think the documents and the testimony speak for themselves, so far as I can see. You are asking a rather futile question but—

Mr. Albert: If the witness—the witness seems to have some difficulty in answering them, your Honor. I would like to proceed, if I may.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled. You may answer. You may answer the question.

Read the question.

6144 (The question was read.)

A. Only to the statement made in the written report that we were to be allowed to sell out the dresses remaining in stock; also request had been made by Mr. Goldston of the Guild that we not reorder.

Q. Except for that you have testified orally to everything that is contained in the written report, being Commission's Exhibit No. 493-B? A. Yes, as I remember the report.

Q. And, of course, you have testified fully as to all of the important matters in Commission's Exhibit 493-B; have you not? A. As I remember them.

Q. Did you tell us on oral examination anything at all about a letter of November 12, 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He wasn't asked any such question as that.

Mr. Albert: He was asked, if it please the Court, for a report on the conference.

Mr. Martin: He——

Mr. Albert: And his written report shows that the letter of November 12 was referred to and it was deliberately omitted from the witness' report in 6146 order to make it difficult for the respondents to bring out anything about that letter, which completely changes the whole character of this conference. I don't think I am bound by the fact that the witness deliberately omitted something which is important.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please——

Mr. Albert: It is a new philosphy of cross-examination, if it please the Court. I humbly submit that merely because the witness doesn't say something about a matter, I can cross-examine him about a matter which is particularly germane to the matter in hand. Under such a species of philosophy with respect to cross-examination, I don't think that 6147 anybody can cross-examine anyone about anything.

Mr. Martin: I respectfully renew my objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Martin: On the ground that it is not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

A. No, I didn't.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. MacDonald, when you completed your oral testimony with respect to this conference about which you now testify, you have omitted orally to tell us of two matters? Didn't you specifically say that there was nothing further spoken about it to your knowledge? A. No.

Q. Didn't you say that in your oral testimony? A. No.

Mr. Martin: He did not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Didn't you say there was no further agreement, "to 6149 my knowledge"? A. I don't remember that I did.

Q. You don't recall what you testified to ten minutes ago? A. Not to that extent.

Q. You are not certain of what you are testifying to, is that it? A. Yes.

Q. Well, if you are certain, have you any less knowledge now of the actual facts than you had when you testified ten minutes ago? A. No.

Q. Now, you read Respondents' Exhibit—Commission's Exhibit 493-A before you went into the conference with Mr. Goldston; did you not? A. I read it in receipt of the letter.

Q. Well, that was before you went into the conference with Mr. Goldston; wasn't it? A. Yes.

6150 Q. Then you read it before you went into the conference with Mr. Goldston; didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You were fully aware of the contents before you went into that conference; weren't you? A. I presume so.

Q. And that letter was the subject of that conference, was it not? A. I can't recall the letter. I would like to see the letter.

Q. Well, in that conference with Mr. Goldston—by the way, who was at that conference? A. Mr. Dowley, Mr. Preston, Mr. Simmons, myself and Mr. Goldston.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind repeating that answer?

(The answer was read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You stated, did you not, that prior to coming into court to-day you read your written report? A. Not to-day.

Q. When did you read that written report last? A. Last week.

Q. Last week? A. Right.

Q. Just prior to coming in. How long after the conference did you make this written report? 6152

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already testified when he made it.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the indulgence of the Court, if he has testified, to have him repeat it. It will take less time than Mr. Martin's objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: Really on ~~my~~ return to the office.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, when you left Mr. Dowley's office and went to your office you dictated this? A. Right.

Q. How long would you say that it took you to go from your office—from Mr. Dowley's office to your office? Are they both together? A. No. 6153

Q. Where are they? A. One is on the eleventh floor and one is in the first basement.

Q. You went right down? A. I stopped, as I related, on the main floor to speak to Mr. Goldston and then Mrs. Miller, the shopper.

Q. You followed them down? A. No.

Q. And they preceded you to the main floor? A. Yes.

Q. How is it that you stopped at the main floor when you were going down to your office in the basement? A. The elevators don't run to the basement.

Q. You have to get off at the main floor in order— A. That is right.

Q. —to go downstairs to the basement? A. Walk down, yes.

Q. In walking from the elevator on the main floor to the basement you saw Mr. Goldston and Mrs. Miller there? A. I did.

Q. That is how you happened to meet them at the time; is that it? A. That is right.

6155 Q. Now, Commission's Exhibit—withdrawn. Respondents' Exhibit 43-A and B was discussed at this conference on November 16, 1935; was it not?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as there is no such exhibit in evidence that I know of.

Examiner Bennett: What was the question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: That has been asked once. Hasn't it been answered?

Mr. Haycraft: He said he hadn't seen the letter.

Mr. Albert: No, the question was withdrawn, I think.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Overruled. You may answer.

6156 The Witness: I can't recall what the letter is your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You don't know what is contained in that letter of November 12, 1935? A. I don't recall.

Q. —1936? A. I don't recall.

Q. Wasn't that letter of November 12, 1935, discussed at the conference on November 16, 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. He has already testified he doesn't know what that letter is.

Examiner Bennett: Has he examined it during this examination?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: To interpret it?

Mr. Albert: I am trying to lay a foundation for this letter, and I would like to bring it out in my own way. Is the objection sustained?

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection unless you show him that letter so that he can read it.

By Mr. Albert. 6158

Q. What do you mean, Mr. MacDonald, in your written report of the conference on November 16, when you said, "It was agreed by Mr. Goldstone that we were to ignore the letter written us on November 12, 1935"?

Mr. Martin: Objected to until the witness is given an opportunity to see that letter.

Mr. Albert: Oh, ridiculous. He has got a written report here, the letter of November 12. Didn't he know what he was talking about when he put it in his written report? If you want to concede that I will take that concession.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. Let him answer. 6159

The Witness: Will you repeat the question?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: I meant that the agreement reached on November 16 was to supersede any prior communications or agreements.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Didn't you discuss the letter of November 12, 1935, at that conference? A. I did not.

Q. Wasn't it discussed by those present? A. I can't recall. I don't know what the letter is.

Q. What are you doing, fencing with me now, Mr. MacDonald? A. I am not fencing. I can't answer a question about something that I know nothing about.

Q. You know nothing about the letter of November 12? A. I can't recall that communication of November 12.

Q. And despite the fact that by an oral conference allegedly between Mr. Goldston and Mr. Dowley, Mr. Preston and Mr. Simmons, you were to ignore a written communication from the Fashion Originators Guild under the signature of Albert M. Post, about which you thought sufficient to make a written report to Mr. Dowley, you mean to tell us that you don't know what was in that letter of November 12? A. It was in the——

6161

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has already answered.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. You show him the letter and treat the witness fairly in that respect.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, I show you Respondents'——

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6162

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Respondents' Exhibit 43-A, and ask you if that is the letter referred to?

Examiner Bennett: Read the letter and then answer questions about it.

(The witness reads the letter referred to.)

Examiner Bennett: All right. Proceed.

6163

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that the letter of November 12, 1935, that is referred to in your written report? A. It is.

Mr. Albert: I offer Respondents' Exhibits 43-A and 43-B into evidence.

Examiner Bennett: It has been received, I think.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin objected to my referring to it before upon the grounds that it was not in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: It was received in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: As I remember. Anyway, it is received.

6164

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, at this point there is one more question I would like to ask the witness on direct examination.

Mr. Albert: May I be permitted to complete my cross-examination, your Honor, before Mr. Martin wants to attempt anything?

Examiner Bennett: Ask it on redirect examination.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. MacDonald, does the letter of November 12, 1935—was the letter of November 12, 1935, discussed at that meeting? A. It was.

6165

Q. You are certain of that? A. Yes.

Q. Before you couldn't recall? A. No.

Q. Did you discuss it? A. No.

Q. Did you have a copy of this letter? A. No.

Q. You have never seen a copy of the letter before? A. I didn't say I didn't see a copy. I didn't have the copy at the meeting.

Q. At the meeting? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. In connection with reading the report, Commission's Exhibit 493-B, before you came into court, that you stated you read last week, did you read Respondents' Exhibit 43, the letter of November 12? A. No.

Q. So that you didn't refresh your recollection with respect to this letter of November 12 before you came into court? A. No.

Q. You didn't want to be able to testify about that; did you? A. I can't answer that, your Honor.

Q. Didn't you know whether or not you wanted to be 6167 able to testify about it?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, the witness has already told me that he can't tell me whether he wanted to testify about it.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What was said about this letter of November 12, 1935, at the conference? A. I can't recall.

Q. What was said about Mr. Goldston's alleged agreement? What did Mr. Goldston say? A. All the recollection I have of the meeting is the final agreement 6168 reached.

Q. And you have no recollection whatsoever as to what was said about ignoring this letter of November 12; have you? A. No.

Q. Well, now, don't you think that the written instructions and an agreement sent to you by Mr. Post pursuant to the letter of November 12, 1935, is at least equally important with what took place at that conference as regards what Mr. Goldston told you? A. It wasn't my duty to answer that letter.

Q. It wasn't your duty to answer the letter? A. No.

Q. Don't you answer letters that are addressed to you? A. Not when they confirm policies.

Q. So, in other words, you confirmed the policy? A. When it concerns policies.

Q. Not on concerned policies? A. When it concerns policies of the store.

Q. Somebody else answers them? A. Right.

Q. With whom did you take up Respondents' Exhibits 43-A and 43-B? A. Mr. Dowley.

Q. What was the result of that discussion? A. The meeting.

Q. The meeting? A. (No answer.)

Q. How was the meeting called? 6170

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial as to how the meeting was called.

Mr. Albert: I think it is important, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: For what purpose?

Mr. Albert: Because I believe that this meeting was not called as a result of this letter of November 12. He stated that it was, and I want to examine him about it.

Mr. Martin: The letter itself says so.

Mr. Albert: I don't think I am bound by this witness' statement that it was so. I want to find out what makes him believe it was so. Of course, by now, the witness is thoroughly prepared to answer the questions. 6171

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer. Overruled.

The Witness: Would you repeat the question?

(The question was read.)

The Witness: Do you mean what notification did I have of such a meeting?

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Beg your pardon? A. Do you mean what notification did I have of such a meeting?

Q. Didn't you call the meeting? A. I didn't call that meeting.

Q. Who called it? A. Mr. Dowley.

Q. Didn't you discuss with him the necessity for such a meeting? A. No, I did not.

Q. He didn't tell you anything at all about it? A. No.

Q. How did you get to the meeting? A. Just what did you mean?

Q. Mr. Dowley wasn't present at that meeting and you
6173 were. You mean to sit there and tell us that he didn't tell you anything at all about this meeting before it occurred, and yet you represented him at that meeting?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to that question.

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: He hasn't made any such statement.

Mr. Martin: He said Dowley was there. He not only testified to that but the minutes show that they were there.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did Mr. Dowley say to you about this meeting
6174 before you went in? A. There was no comment made to me about the meeting before I went in.

Q. Do you know how the meeting was called by Mr. Dowley? A. I know I was notified by his secretary over the telephone to appear in his office at such a meeting.

Q. And aside from that, you don't know how that meeting arose: is that so? A. I don't know how the meeting arose outside of that.

Q. Why did you say that the meeting was called as a result of the letter of November 12? A. Because that is the agreement Mr. Goldston reached with Mr. Dowley as the reason of the meeting.

Q. You mean that out of the meeting there resulted an agreement which you say differs from the letter of November 12; is that not so? A. That is correct.

Q. But you testified that the meeting was called in order to discuss the letter of November 12, but you still haven't told us how you know that that was the reason for the meeting being called? A. I heard the statement made in the meeting.

Q. Yes? A. That was the reason for it.

Q. Is Mr. Dowley present here this morning? Mr. Dowley is present here this morning, isn't he? 6176

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is Mr. Dowley in Cleveland? A. I don't know.

Q. In Detroit? I am sorry.

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Meder: As attorney for the company, I will admit he is in the courtroom.

Mr. Albert: Thank you. Is Mr. Dowley available to testify in this proceeding?

Mr. Meder: As attorney for the company, I will admit he is. 6177

Mr. Albert: Thank you. May I also ask as to whether or not he is going to testify?

Mr. Meder: That is not up to me, sir.

Mr. Albert: I would also like to ask Mr. Martin if he will tell me as to whether or not Mr. Dowley is going to testify. If he is, I would like to move that he be excluded from the proceedings.

Mr. Martin: I don't know whether he is going to be called or not, Mr. Albert, to tell you the truth.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor pleases, do you mean to tell me that we have been brought from New York through Boston, Philadelphia, and Cleveland, have been in Detroit for one hearing, and Mr. Martin doesn't know who he is going to call?

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with your examination.

Mr. Albert: Very well. Then, under the circumstances, since Mr. Martin does not know whether he is going to call Mr. Dowley or not, I respectfully 6179 move that Mr. Dowley be excluded from the hearing room during the further cross-examination of Mr. MacDonald about matters which concern Mr. Dowley.

Examiner Bennett: Is he going to be called upon this point?

Mr. Martin: No, sir; not on this point.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead with your cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Ha, ha! May I ask the indulgence of the Court?

Mr. Martin, are you going to ask Mr. Dowley anything at all about this agreement of November 16, 1935?

6180 Mr. Martin: I don't even know that I am going to put him on the stand. I certainly am not going to ask him anything about this matter, if I do.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if your Honor pleases, since the attorney for the Commission seemingly refuses to be frank with the respondent as to what Mr. Dowley is going to do——

Mr. Martin: Now, I object to that statement.

Mr. Albert: ——I ask that he be excluded from the courtroom.

6181

Examiner Bennett: The Examiner——

Mr. Martin: I object to any further statements.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with your cross-examination. That is a matter of discretion of the Examiner, and in his discretion he refuses to exclude him on the assurance that he is not going to be called on this point.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: I ask the attorney for J. L. Hudson & Company as to whether or not Mr. Simmons is present.

Mr. Meder: He is, sir.

6182

Mr. Albert: Now, I ask the Commission as to whether or not they are going to call Mr. Simmons?

Mr. Martin: Mr. Simmons will be called.

Examiner Bennett: On this point?

Mr. Martin: I don't think so, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: Well, since——

Examiner Bennett: If there is any doubt about it, I would prefer to have him excluded.

Mr. Albert: Is Mr. Preston——

Mr. Martin: It is perfectly agreeable to us for him to go out. I have no objection to his going out, to save you a lot of time on that.

Mr. Albert: Is Mr. Preston here?

Mr. Meder: Mr. Post knows him. He is telling you who is here?

6183

Mr. Albert: I didn't ask him about Mr. Preston. I asked you directly.

Mr. Meder: He is the one that has been giving you this information.

Mr. Albert: I am telling you I didn't ask him about Mr. Preston. He didn't tell me about him.

Mr. Meder: I do not know that Mr. Preston is here.

Mr. Albert: That is all I asked you, sir.

Mr. Meder: I answered the question in the first place.

Mr. Albert: You volunteered information.

Mr. Meder: I am not on the stand, sir. I do not desire to be talked to in that way by you.

Mr. Albert: Neither do I desire to be talked to by you, which is very simple—we are even.

Mr. Meder: Not by a long ways.

Mr. Albert: Well, there is plenty of time before the week is out.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

6185 (There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: Now on the record.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. MacDonald, did the J. L. Hudson Company ask the Fashion Originators Guild when—withdrawn. Was there any further communications from J. L. Hudson Company to Fashion Originators Guild relative to this conference of November 16, 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as not proper cross examination.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

6186 Q. Prior to the receipt of Commission's Exhibit 492-A in evidence, is there any correspondence or communications between J. L. Hudson Company and the Fashion Originators' Guild of America?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: I may point out to the Court that Commission's Exhibit 493-B is November 16, 1935; that there was correspondence dated November 18, 1935, both exhibits being the Commission's exhibits, and I would like to inquire of this witness as to whether or not there are any other communications. Does the Commission refuse to permit me to find that out?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor, as not being proper cross-examination, outside of the scope of direct examination.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. MacDonald, did J. L. Hudson & Company ask 6188
the Fashion Originators' Guild for any confirmation of the oral agreement entered into between—allegedly entered into—between Mr. Goldston and representatives of J. L. Hudson & Company?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being improper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know, Mr. MacDonald, what position Mr. Goldston held in the Fashion Originators Guild as of November 16, 1935? A. I don't know his position.

Q. Haven't you any idea as to his official capacity with the Fashion Originators' Guild? A. No, I haven't. 6189

Q. And despite that fact, you sought no confirmation of the alleged agreement entered into between Mr. Goldston and the representatives of J. L. Hudson & Company?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; improper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. It is a misstatement of fact. That is the trouble.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether or not you or J. L. Hudson & Company or anyone representing J. L. Hudson & Company, wrote to the Fashion Originators Guild to confirm your thought that Mr. Goldston had in any way modified the condition set forth by Mr. Post in his letter of November 12, 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Martin: Now, I would like to state at this time that Mr. Sappington is coming back on the 6191 stand and in order to save time, all of this is going to be gone into thoroughly with Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin, may I ask you this: Will Mr. Sappington definitely, specifically, and in detail, testify with respect to these matters and not hand it on to subordinates?

Mr. Martin: We are going to put Mr. Sappington back on the stand and he will testify as to matters of policy on behalf of the J. L. Hudson Company.

Mr. Albert: I am not questioning him now on matters of policy.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

Mr. Albert: I am questioning him now on this letter of November 12.

6192 Mr. Martin: You just asked him a question on policy.

Mr. Albert: Well, Mr. Sappington testified fully with respect to Commission's Exhibits 493-B, 492-A Respondents' Exhibit 43-A. If you say he will, then I will be through with this witness very shortly; if you say he won't, why, then, of course, I am forced to examine this man. I am willing to save time, but you simply won't concede what Mr. Sappington will testify to. I don't want to be met with the proposition when Mr. Sappington gets on the stand that he is going to refer me to somebody else.

Mr. Martin: I don't see how he can refer you to a subordinate on a matter of policy.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to Mr. Martin that Mr. Sappington is nowheres mentioned in the report, Commission's Exhibit 493-B?

Mr. Martin: You are asking questions——

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, your Honor. I will have to proceed with this witness.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert. 6194

Q. Now I show you Commission's Exhibit 492-A, Mr. MacDonald, and ask you if you saw that letter?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being improper cross-examination; outside of the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Albert: I don't see how the materiality of it can, for one moment, be seen by Mr. Martin until I ask further questions about the letter. I am laying a foundation.

Mr. Martin: It was not referred to, either in his testimony, nor in these written minutes.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 6195

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I would like to point out that this exhibit was identified by Mr. Sappington, this particular exhibit, No. 492-A, and he was cross-examined by Mr. Albert.

Examiner Bennett: Not on cross-examination.

Mr. Martin: I think that was one of the questions on voir dire.

Examiner Bennett: Voir dire. I see. All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. MacDonald, will you be good enough to tell the Court what there is in the letter of November 12, 1935, that was to be ignored?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; improper cross-examination. He is seeking to cross-examine him on his own cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: We have a most mystifying objection here by Mr. Martin, if your Honor pleases. These exhibits are Mr. Martin's exhibits.

Mr. Martin: That letter is my exhibit?

6197 Mr. Albert: I am referring to his written report, Commission's Exhibit 493-B, in which, for some unaccountable reason, unexplained in the report, unexplained in oral testimony, he states that he is supposed to ignore the solemn written communication of Mr. Albert M. Post. Now, for the enlightenment of the Commission, I am asking him what he is supposed to ignore rather than leave it in the very ineffective state that the Commission's attorneys have left it at the conclusion that something is to be ignored. I want to know what is to be ignored.

Mr. Martin: You didn't ask him as to that.

Mr. Albert: I know darn well—I beg your Honor's pardon. I know very well you didn't ask him 6198 anything about it. That is exactly why I am doing it.

Examiner Bennett: I think the witness has testified affirmatively as to what the agreement was, or alleged agreement, and you have the letter.

Mr. Albert: Well, if your Honor pleases, may I not—— 6199

Examiner Bennett: Well, if you want to have him interpret in detail, give him the letter and ask him about it.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, I show you Respondents' Exhibit 4? I show you Commission's Exhibit 493-B, and ask you what your understanding of the matter was which led you to write in your written report that the letter of November 12, 1935, was to be ignored, and ask you what was to be ignored? May I ask you a further question before you answer that one? Are you unable to tell us, to give me the answer to my first question without looking at the Commission's exhibit and respondents' exhibit?

6200

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, you may answer the first question, Mr. MacDonald?

The Witness: Will you repeat it?

(Question read.)

A. My interpretation of the letter of November 12 was that it was a misunderstanding between myself and the firm as to the exact policy I was to pursue in the conduct of my business regarding the Guild. My reference in my written report is to the letter, is to clarify this misunderstanding.

6201

Q. Is that your answer, Mr. MacDonald?

The Witness: Will you give me the question again, please?

(Question again read.)

A. Also absorption of mark-downs of higher-priced garments and a 5 per cent. return of our stock.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind repeating that?

(Answer read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I do not think that is quite clear, Mr. MacDonald. What do you mean? A. The absorption of the mark-6203 downs of the original referred to in the letter, the original garments.

Q. You mean that that was referred to in the letter? A. November 12.

Q. Of November 12? That was to be ignored? A. Right.

Q. What else was to be ignored? A. That we were to be expected to return 5 per cent. of our stock in any given month.

Q. What was to be ignored in the letter of November 12? A. That we were not to remove dresses from sale pending a reply from the Guild as to their authorization of being copies.

Q. Did you ignore that? A. Yes.

Q. Was that in any way modified, or was it to be ig-
6204 nored completely? A. We were to ignore it. We were to be allowed to keep our merchandise on sale.

Q. Unqualifiedly? A. Pardon?

Q. Unqualifiedly you were to be permitted to keep it on sale? A. Until—while the shopper was getting instructions from New York, yes.

Q. It was to be on sale during the time that any check was made? A. Yes.

Q. On whether copies were being sold? A. Yes.

Q. Are those the only other things that were to be ignored, Mr. MacDonald? A. As far as I know.

Q. And you state that— A. Relative to my departments.

Q. And you state that you didn't continue to sell dresses, and you did continue to sell dresses while investigation was being made as to whether or not they were copies? A. Right.

Q. Well, then, why have you, in Commission's Exhibit 493-B, your own written report, of the following language, and what does it mean?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, being two questions.

Mr. Albert: Very well. 6206

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What does the following language mean, and I read to you from Commission's Exhibit 493-B: "When the F.O.G.A. representative selects a dress and asks us to return it because it is a copy, if we so desire we are to have the privilege of telling her to come back in two hours in order to give us an opportunity to shop the competition to find out if the dress is generally sold by them"? A. It means exactly what it says.

Mr. Albert: The question is withdrawn.

Examiner Bennett: What does it mean?

Mr. Albert: The question is withdrawn, your Honor. 6207

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. MacDonald, when complaint is made to J. L. Hudson & Company for selling a copy pursuant to Commission's Exhibit 493-B, and the dress is shopped for the two-hour period, then what is the procedure that was to be followed? A. The shopper was to be notified.

Q. Yes. A. We were to tell her where we found this dress and she was to re-shop it.

Q. Yes. A. Upon such proof we were to be allowed to continue the sale.

Q. Was there to be any verification of that with the New York office of the Fashion Originators' Guild? A. She was to report the incident.

Q. Yes. A. To the New York office. Our verification came from the shopper.

Q. Was there not to be a request for an exemption by J. L. Hudson Company? A. Not under the new agreement.

6209 Q. Not under the agreement. You mean referred to in Commission's Exhibit 493-B? A. I mean the agreement of November 6; if that is the Commission's number.

Q. Yes, November 16.

Mr. Haycraft: November 16.

Mr. Martin: November 16.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, did you ever see a letter dated November 18 from the Fashion Originators Guild of America to Michael F. Dowley, being Commission's Exhibit 492-A, specifically referring to the conference with Mr. Goldston held on November 16, and further clarifying the position of the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to that conference?

6210

Mr. Martin: Objected to; outside of the scope of direct examination——

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Martin: —and already ruled upon by his Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. To your knowledge, was the alleged agreement referred to in Commission's Exhibit 493-B ever further modified?

Mr. Martin: Outside too, as being outside of the scope of direct examination.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it your contention, Mr. MacDonald, that the agreement referred to in Commission's Exhibit 493-B is the 6212 agreement that existed between J. L. Hudson Company and the Fashion Originators Guild up to the time of the red carding?

Mr. Martin: As to your department.

The Witness: Repeat the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: As to your department.

A. In my department, yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that this Commission's Exhibit 493-B, and this conference that you referred to, was only with respect to your department? A. I can't answer as to the rest of the 6213 store; I have no jurisdiction over it.

Q. Well, then, you don't know that it referred to any other department, do you?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, we have just had a great deal of enlightenment with respect to this agreement that did not appear before.

Mr. Martin: Objected to. This witness is only in a position to testify as to his particular department.

Mr. Albert: And he now——

Mr. Martin: Wait a moment until I finish.

Examiner Bennett: The witness may say he does not know as to other departments.

Mr. Martin: He has already stated that.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

By Mr. Albert.

6215 Q. What is the answer?

Examiner Bennett: You may answer if you know.

A. My understanding was that it was to be the policy of J. L. Hudson——

Q. With respect— A. —to the Guild.

Q. With respect to all departments? A. Right.

Q. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Now I ask if the reporter will be good enough to repeat that question which was qualified by Mr. Martin attempting to get you to testify that it referred only to your own department.

6216 Examiner Bennett: I think the matter has been fully disclosed.

Mr. Albert: Will the reporter please read the question?

(Question read as follows: "Q. Is it your contention, Mr. MacDonald, that the agreement referred to in Commission's Exhibit 493-B is the agreement that existed between J. L. Hudson Company and the Fashion Originators Guild up to the time of the red carding?")

Mr. Martin: As to your department.

Mr. Albert: What did Mr. Martin say?

(Remark read as follows: "Mr. Martin: As to your department.")

Mr. Albert: What did the witness say?

(Answer read as follows: "A. In my department, yes.")

Examiner Bennett: Now he has modified it that it is general in its effects as to his understanding of it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, was this the agreement—you contend that this 6218 was the agreement, in so far as your department was concerned, up to the time of the red carding, without qualification?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; he has already testified to that two or three times.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. By the way, what is your department?

Mr. Martin: He has already testified to that, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: One word will be his answer. You just took about fifteen.

Examiner Bennett: All right. 6219

Mr. Martin: I feel real talkative this morning.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

A. Department 843, basement dresses, referring to this uestion.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is the price line in the basement? A. The price line in the basement runs from $2. In the summer time. It changes with seasons. In the summer time it starts from $2 to $6.95.

Q. That is retail? A. Retail, and in the fall from $2.95 to $10.95, and $13.95 on woolens.

Q. That is all right. A. Or suits, or things of that 6221 nature.

Q. That is all right; that is sufficient. A. Which are not considered dresses.

Q. Now, Mr. MacDonald, just what was your reference to these 5 per cent. returns that was to be ignored; what was that provision that was to be ignored?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being outside of the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, in his written report in Commission's Exhibit 493-B, he refers to the letter of November 12, and he has testified as to why his letter of November 12 is to be ignored. He has testified that certain statements with respect to 5 per cent. returns are to be ignored, and I think 6222 for the enlightenment of the Commission and the record the witness should explain what he means by 5 per cent. return should be ignored.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. The paragraph in the letter stating that up to 5 per cent. of our stock was to be returned each month to the manufacturers.

Q. Are you referring to the last sentence on Respondents' Exhibit 43-A, which reads as follows: "Also, that stores were expected to return copies up to 5 per cent. of their stock in any individual department for any given month." Is that what you are referring to? A. Right.

Q. And that was to be completely ignored? A. As far as my departments were concerned.

Q. Well, now, as a matter of fact, is not the reference to that 5 per cent. the following: That J. L. Hudson & Company protested that if they had to return all the copies in their store at that time it would deplete their stock to too great an extent, and therefore they asked that they be not required to return not more than 5 per cent. of their stock in any one given month?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being improper cross- 6224
examination.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor please, I want to know what he understands——

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. Let you bring out all that I cared about hearing in that line.

Mr. Albert: Exception. That is all.

Redirect examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. MacDonald, with reference to this agreement of November 16, and the instructions to the Guild shopper, Mrs. Miller, as set out in Commission's Exhibits 493-A and B, was that agreement carried out by the Guild shopper?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as improper re- 6225 direct; no proper foundation has been laid.

Mr. Martin: I submit it is a perfectly proper question, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: There is not a single bit of testimony, your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Is that the question we are asked about?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Mr. Albert: May I point out the additional objection, that this witness has not testified to a single bit of knowledge on his part as to the activities of the Guild shopper. He has restricted his examination—rather, Mr. Martin has restricted his examination specifically to the conference.

Examiner Bennett: I think the record is filled with what the Guild shoppers do, and——

Mr. Albert: That may be, but not with regard this witness' knowledge of it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I know—well, we are not so prolific with the record as you seem to be.

6227 There isn't any use of piling up the same matter over and over again on the record. I will let you recall the witness for further direct examination to that extent, and will instruct him to answer the question, and overrule the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Repeat the question.

(Question read.)

A. It was.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you have to return any garments? A. No, we did not.

6228 Mr. Martin: That is all.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you return any garments at all, Mr. MacDonald, during that period? A. Not after the conference.

Q. But was there any investigation as to whether or not there were copies being sold in your department? A. Yes.

Q. And you maintain, then, that the only reason that dresses were not returned was because none were adjudged to be copies; is that it?

Mr. Martin: He did not testify——

A. Well——

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

The Witness: Let me hear the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, we were exempted on the dresses in question as being sold generally in town.

6230

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do I understand you to mean, Mr. MacDonald, that as each case came up you would then get an exemption? A. Right.

Q. But investigation was made— A. That is right.

Q. —in each case, first? A. That is right.

Q. And you applied for exemption to the Fashion Originators Guild? A. To the shopper.

Q. To the shopper. And, so far as you know, the shopper communicated with the Fashion Originators Guild, and as the result of that communication an exemption was granted with respect to whatever the shopper was complaining about; is that it? A. I don't know what action the shopper took with respect to the Guild. My exemption came directly from the shopper. 6231

Q. I see. About how many such cases, asking for an exemption, would you say arose after this conference of November 16, and down to the date of the red carding?

A. A total number of dresses involved?

Q. Yes. A. Or total number of styles?

Q. Total number of dresses and total number of styles.

A. The total number of dresses was fifty-seven.

6232

Q. Yes. A. The total number of styles——

The Witness: May I refer to my notes, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

A. (Referring to paper) Six styles.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How many instances would you say that covered? A. You mean how many times did the shopper visit us?

Q. And how many exemptions would you say that covered? A. Six exemptions, six styles.

Q. At six different times? A. At—six separate exemptions, although there was more than one style sometimes at one period.

Q. Yes. What I mean is this, and I want to be sure that we understand each other perfectly, that while there were fifty-seven dresses that were involved, only six times during the course of the period between November 16 and the time of the red carding was it necessary to appeal for exemption on the ground that you had copies; is that what you mean? A. That is right.

Q. And there were no complaints of copies other than these complaints that you have referred to? A. There were other shoppings. At one other time the shopper checked for a style without leaving any definite instructions as to whether it was a copy or not.

Q. I see. And did you— A. She wrote to the Guild asking for a confirmation. At the time the confirmation came back the dress had been sold out.

Q. I see. And with the exception of these matters that you have referred to, there were no complaints that the basement was handling any copies? A. No complaints.

Q. And except for those instances, the basement was complying with the policy with respect to not using copies; is that so?

The Witness: Read the question.
(Question read.)

A. The basement complied to the copies, or to the dresses, which the shopper had judged were copies.
Q. That is what I say.

Mr. Martin: That is not what you said.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you say the shopper adjudged them copies, you do not mean specifically that the shopper passed on whether they were copies or not, and nobody else, do you?
A. Well, as far as her instructions, the shopper, together with her information, adjudged whether the dresses were copies or not. 6236
Q. That is, preliminarily, the shopper would state that it was her belief that the copies were being sold in other stores?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Q. Is that not so?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

6237

Q. That is, it was merely a preliminary investigation by the shopper?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Q. And the final question as to whether a dress was a copy or not was not to rest with the shopper, was it?
Mr. Martin: Objected to.

6238

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I do not think we are going into that.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Whereupon, at 12 o'clock noon, a recess was taken until 1.30 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION, 1.30 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You
6239 may proceed.

LOUIS B. SAPPINGTON resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, do you remember whether or not Mr. Post of the Fashion Originators Guild was in Detroit in May of 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see him at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any meeting with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What took place at that time? A. There was a dis-
6240 cussion about the Guild policies and J. L. Hudson Company's co-operation with the Guild. There was also a discussion of change in policy of the Guild as far as the $10.75 houses were concerned, $10.75 dress houses.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you remember having a conversation at this time with Mr. Post? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what the conversation was about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what Mr. Post told you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. What did Mr. Post tell you? A. Mr. Post stated that the buying offices in New York, the Association of Buying Offices, had agreed that all price restrictions were to be removed on Guild copies. In other words, that there was no restriction at all, as to what price line the Guild could adjudge copies. Also, that definite arrangements had been made for $10.75 houses to become affiliates with the Guild, or, at least, join the Guild in some respect or another.

6242

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, may I ask that the witness not refresh his recollection from the exhibit that he has referred to, since he has testified that it needs no refreshment? During all of this period, I believe—I am not certain—he has been looking at that exhibit and refreshing his recollection. I would like his independent recollection. He has before him, I believe, the copy of the exhibits that have been placed in evidence, and I think he is reading from it; I am not certain.

Mr. Martin: Now——

Mr. Albert: May I have a ruling on my request, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: I think his Honor has already ruled on it. 6243

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will let the examination continue.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, had anything occurred prior to this time which caused you and Mr. Post to have any discussion along these lines?

(There was a short pause.)

A. I am not certain. I believe Mr. Post's visit followed up a visit on the part of Mr. Goldston with reference to a copy which was in dispute; that is, on which we hadn't agreed first. I believe Mr. Post, when he first came into my office, discussed that matter.

Q. With reference to the question of $10.75 houses, had there been anything prior to this meeting which caused you to bring that subject up? A. Yes. We had—we had raised that question with the Guild a number of times regarding the control of copies in the lower price lines.

(A document was handed to the reporter by Mr. Martin.)

6245

(A certain document was thereupon marked Commission's Exhibit No. 496 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What question has been raised with reference to that? A. Well, the question——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial and irrelevant to the Commission's complaint.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6246 A. The question had been raised what was—what the Guild was doing or would do with respect to our competitors who were selling dresses which we were asked to remove from sale.

Q. And in what price line would that be? A. Well, that would be at that time—that would be $10.75 cost and below.

Q. What was the original agreement with the Guild with reference to that? A. May I ask that the question be repeated?

6247

Q. (The question was read.) A. Our understanding of the original agreement with the Guild was that——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the question has been asked, what was the original agreement, not what their understanding was.

Mr. Martin: I think it is a very proper answer to the question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, sir. A. Our understanding of the original agreement with the Guild was that it would not cover dresses under $16.75 cost.

6248

Q. Had you been requested to return any garments that cost less than that? A. Yes, I believe we had.

Q. Did your firm have any objection to including the lines below $16.75?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, no foundation has been laid, calling for the conclusion of the witness.

Examiner Bennett: You mean "have" or "make"?

Mr. Martin: Made to the Guild.

Examiner Bennett: "Make objection to the Guild," is that what you are trying to get?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

6249

The Witness: May I have the question.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Albert: I think the question has been amended.

Mr. Martin: Change the word "have" to "make."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did your firm make any objection?

Mr. Haycraft: To the Guild.

Mr. Martin: To the Guild to include the lines below $16.75?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Why? A. Because our competitors——

6251 Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to that, asking for a conclusion of the witness, no foundation has been laid, and certainly the question shouldn't be asked prior to a determination to what objection was made and when it was made and how it was made.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain an objection until you make further foundation.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. To whom was the objection made? A. The objection was made to the A.M.C. and to the Fashion Originators Guild. Mr. Post——

Q. All right. A. Mr. Post, in our discussions with him.

Q. Now, why did you make objection?

6252 Mr. Albert: May I ask, if it please the Court, some preliminary questions before we proceed, in order to further lay a foundation?

Mr. Martin: Just a minute.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. When did you make objection? A. I don't recall the exact time because we made many.

Q. Now, why did you make the objection?

Mr. Albert: May I further ask Mr. Martin most respectfully to ask whether these objections were made orally or in writing?

Examiner Bennett: Well, all right. I wish you would bring that out.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What form did your objections take? Were they oral objections or were they written objections? A. Both.

Q. Now, when—and you say you don't recall when? A. (Witness shakes head negatively.)

Q. Now, why did you make objection?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to 6254 that. The best evidence ostensibly on the testimony thus far adduced are the written objections.

Examiner Bennett: No, I think not. You may answer. They are both written and oral. You may answer. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. We objected because dresses that we were asking to —that we were asked to take out of our stock and send back to manufacturers were on sale in competing stores in Detroit.

(A document was handed to the Reporter by Mr. Martin.)

(Whereupon a certain document was marked 6255 Commission's Exhibits Nos. 497-A, 497-B and 497-C for Identification.)

Mr. Haycraft: Commission's Exhibit 496 is being re-marked, the original being substituted for the copy.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 496 for Identification, and ask if you can identify that letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter written by Mr. Bergdahl to me April 10, 1935.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits Nos. 497-A, B and C and ask can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. This is a letter written to Mr. Oscar Webber by Mr. Bergdahl, dated December 4, 1935.

Q. Is that the letter referred to as being the letter of December 4th, in Commission's Exhibit No. 494-A? A. Yes, sir.

6257 Q. Were these original letters received in your office? A. That one was, yes, sir. (Indicating.)

Q. Commission's Exhibit 496 for Identification? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Was this letter received by the J. L. Hudson & Company, Commission's Exhibits 497-A, B and C? A. Yes, sir.

The Witness: May I correct a statement that I made, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

The Witness: May I correct a statement that I made?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, certainly.

The Witness: I stated that in our original agreement with the Guild we would not go below 6258 $16.75; that should have been $10.75 cost.

Examiner Bennett: $10.75?

The Witness: It was $10.75 instead of $16.75; yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: In the return of merchandise.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I see.

Mr. Albert: May I have that statement read?

(Statement read.)

Mr. Albert: In other words, that was an error in your original testimony, Mr. Sappington?

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Martin: He has so testified.

(Papers were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 498-A, 498-B, 498-C, 498-D and 498-E.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, I hand you Commission's Exhibits 498-A to E, inclusive, for identification, and ask can you identify them? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. Order form of the J. L. Hudson 6260 Company.

Q. Is that the form of order you use in placing all of your orders? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that order contain any stamp on it?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as being entirely immaterial and irrelevant, and merely the same type of testimony as Mr. Sappington has previously given. He has testified that a stamp was placed upon the order. He now brings in a blank order slip with a stamp on it which has not been used and states that is the type of stamp that they placed on the order, and that is the type of order that they used.

Mr. Martin: He has not stated that is the type 6261 of stamp.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Martin: Will you let me ask the question?

Examiner Bennett: You may complete it.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Is that stamp placed on the order the same stamp that was placed on all of your orders in pursuance to your signed declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial. The best evidence of the stamp that was used upon the orders that were placed is a copy of the order containing the stamp and not an illustration of it.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Yes, sir; exactly.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibits 498-A to E, inclusive.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

6263

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 498-A, 498-B, 498-C, 498-D and 498-E, heretofore marked for identification, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, with reference to Commission's Exhibits 493-A and 493-B, was that matter brought to your attention? A. You mean the matter covered in this (indicating)?

Q. Covered in the exhibit. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the agreement therein referred to in effect in other departments of Hudson's Store than the basement store? A. Yes, sir.

6264

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, do you know what brought about the red carding of the Hudson Company?

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the question be repeated.

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: "Yes" or "no."

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Well, what was it? A. We were advised by the Guild shopper in the early part of February, and our buyer was advised, that he had on sale a dress that was a copy of a Guild registered style. There were several visits between the Guild shopper and the buyer and the department, but the result of those visits—it was agreed during those visits that we would have two hours, or about that length of time, to shop our competitors to find out whether or not that dress was on sale; which we did, and we found the dress in three other stores. That matter was called to my attention as a result of a telegram from the Guild to a buyer of the department in which the dress was found. 6266
Following out the instructions which I had had, as a result of the meeting held in Mr. Dowley's office regarding exemptions, I wrote a letter to Mr. Post, or at least to the Guild—I think the letter was addressed to Mr. Post—asking for an exemption on this dress for it was being offered for sale by competing stores.

Following the writing of that letter I was away from Detroit for two or three days. What transpired after that letter was written——

Mr. Albert: You refer to subordinates?

Mr. Martin: Now, I object to any interpolation or interruption on the part of counsel. Counsel knows full well that these remarks by him are not proper, and I have been inclined to be charitable 6267 towards such interpolations, but I am at last driven to the point where I am forced to believe that they are willfully and maliciously made on his part.

Examiner Bennett: Make a motion to strike.

Mr. Martin: I move that his remarks be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: They may be stricken.

A. What transpired following, or during the period I was away from Detroit, I will have to tell you, because of the telegrams, and so forth, which I read, which were sent back and forth between the J. L. Hudson Company and the Guild.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to any testimony by this witness as to what happened while he was away. Mr. Dowley, his superior, is right here in court. Mr. Simmons has been called away. Other buyers of J. L. Hudson Company are right here in Detroit and are perfectly competent to tell us from firsthand knowledge 6269 what occurred at this particular time, and I object to this witness giving us such unnecessary hearsay as to what occurred while he was away.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I think this witness is fully competent to testify as to what took place in his departments for which he was directly responsible. This was information which came to him. I will ask him the question first——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did this information come to you in the usual course of business?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial.
6270 Why is the Commission afraid to put Mr. Dowley on——

Mr. Martin: The Commission will handle its case as it sees fit, Mr. Albert.

The Witness: Mr. Dowley was away, too.

Examiner Bennett: The witness may answer.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did this information come to you in the usual course of business? A. Yes.

Mr. Martin: I think it is perfectly competent for him to testify, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: I press——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was relied upon by you? A. Yes.

Q. And acted upon? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: I press my objection.

Examiner Bennett: There was final action take, was there?

The Witness: While I was present; yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right, I will overrule the objection. 6272

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead and tell your story.

A. There was a telegram sent between—there was an exchange of telegrams between J. L. Hudson Company and the Guild.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you the copy of those telegrams with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right, sir, go ahead. A. Following that a letter was written to the J. L. Hudson Company by the Guild 6273 stating that they would deny——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to any qualification or description of any written document not in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, that is sustained.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you the letter which they wrote? A. Just a minute. I will have to look and see.

Q. All right, sir. Take your time. A. Yes, sir; I have this letter.

(Paper handed to the reporter by Mr. Martin.)

(Whereupon a document was marked Commission's Exhibits No. 499-A, 499-B and 499-C for Identification.)

(Several papers were handed to the reporter by 6275 Mr. Martin.)

(Whereupon certain documents were marked Commission's Exhibits Nos. 500, 501-A and 501-B, 502 and 503, respectively, for identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 500 for Identification, and ask you, can you identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a telegram from the Fashion Originators Guild to the buyer of the dress department in which the copy was found by the Guild shopper.

Q. Was this telegram referred to in your testimony a few minutes ago? A. That is right.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits No. 501-A and 6276 501-B for Identification, and ask, can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a copy of a letter which I wrote to Mr. Post February 8, 1936.

Q. Is that referred to in your testimony of a few minutes ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this letter written in reply to the telegram, Commission's Exhibit No. 500? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 502 for Identification and ask, can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a telegram from Mr. Post addressed to me in reply to my letter to him.

Q. Was that referred to as part of the correspondence concerning which you testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this telegram received in reply to Commission's Exhibits No. 501-A and B? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 503 for Identification, and ask, can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is that? A. This is a telegram from Mr. Oscar Webber to Mr. Post.

Q. Is it a copy of a telegram? A. Copy of a telegram, yes, sir.

Q. Is that part of the testimony which you gave a few minutes ago? Is that part of the correspondence referred to? A. Yes, sir. 6278

Q. Was this telegram sent in reply to Commission's Exhibit No. 502? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits No. 499-A, B and C for Identification, and ask, can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is that? A. That is a letter from Mr. Post to Mr. Oscar Webber dated February 11.

Q. Now, is that part of the correspondence referred to in your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that letter written in reply to Commission's Exhibit No. 503? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Sappington, was any reply made to this letter from Mr. Post to Hudson & Company, which is Commission's Exhibits No. 499-A, B and C for Identification? Was there any reply made? A. That is the last letter I looked at? 6279

Q. Yes. A. No reply was made to this letter; no, sir.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I offer in evidence these exhibits, Commission's Exhibits No. 499-A, B and C, No. 500, 501-A and B, 502 and 503.

(The letters immediately referred to above were handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please—off the record.)

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Mr. Alber: May I have this on the record? May I be permitted to make objection to having something withdrawn?

Mr. Martin: Nothing is being withdrawn that you have any right to object to, sir.

Mr. Albert: I would like to know, I would like to be appraised of what is going on.

6281 Mr. Martin: All right. You are being appraised of it.

Examiner Bennett: Make a statement.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please——

Mr. Albert: I don't know what is going on, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Make a statement definitely of the situation, a full statement.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, Commission's Exhibits No. 481 and 482 are statements containing figures and also certain matter on the bottom of the statements in typewriting. These exhibits were received in evidence by your Honor only in so far as the figures are concerned. The other matter was deemed extraneous and was refused acceptance in evidence.

6282

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: I now hand your Honor two statements which contain the exact figures as contained on these two exhibits without the other matter thereon which was not accepted in evidence, and ask that these two new sheets be substituted in place of the old. They are the exact same figures

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, there is absolutely no necessity for the substitution of Exhibits 481 and 482 by any other sheets of paper, by reason of the fact that it affirmatively appears in the record——

Mr. Martin: I might say that the exhibits are not a part of the record, do not appear in the record. You are simply being furnished copies of those by the stenographer at your request, but that is not a part of the record in this case.

Mr. Albert: Well, then, accepting Mr. Martin's statement, if it please the Court, I again submit that the Commission has offered Exhibits 481 and 482—— 6283

Mr. Martin: And they were not received——

Mr. Albert: And they should be received and remain in the record exactly in the manner that they are at the present time, and there is no reason for substituting anything for it. The record affirmatively and clearly shows as to what is contained in the exhibit as a part of the record.

Mr. Martin: Only the figures were accepted.

Examiner Bennett: These documents which are now submitted have been verified as to the figures; have they?

Mr. Martin: They have, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right; objection, if there is an objection, is overruled. 6285

Mr. Albert: Exception. Now, may I ask if it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Examiner Bennett: If you please. The reporter is instructed to mark these two new papers the same as the originals and substitute them for the copies which were originally offered.

Mr. Martin: And to return the originals to the Commission's attorneys?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, exactly.

(The papers referred to were marked by the reporter Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482-A and B; and substituted for the copies which were originally offered.)

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, may I ask that Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482-A and B, as they presently appear, remain in the custody of the Federal Commission's attorneys and not be 6287 returned to J. L. Hudson & Company by reason of the fact we wish those exhibits, which have been identified now as inter-office communications between J. L. Hudson & Company employees, to be made available to the respondents and I don't believe that the Commission wishes to in any way make it impossible for us to get a hold of relevant material of very vital importance, of very vital information.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that is a request to the attorneys. There was an offer pending.

Mr. Albert: May I have an answer, if your Honor please, with respect to my previous request?

Examiner Bennett: You made it to the attorneys. Your request is in the record.

6288 Mr. Albert: I haven't received an answer. I would like to know what course to pursue.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, the attorneys heard you, I imagine.

Mr. Albert: May I have an answer to my request, Mr. Martin?

Mr. Martin: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: May I have an answer to my request with respect to Exhibits 481 and 482?

Mr. Martin: Would your mind stating your request over again?

Mr. Albert: Yes. Would you like it in simple language?

Mr. Martin: Yes.

Mr. Albert: The simple language is that I don't want those exhibits to go back to J. L. Hudson & Company. They contain information which is very substantially in favor of the respondents' case herein, and I am not desirous that anything should happen to those exhibits, and by reason of the fact that they are marked as Commission's exhibits, I most respectfully request you to keep those exhibits and make them available to the respondents 6290 at the proper and appropriate time.

Mr. Martin: Which is evidence which you are not entitled to have, and I will take such care of these exhibits as I see fit.

Mr. Albert: Am I to understand, then, that you refuse to assure me that those exhibits will remain with the Federal Trade Commission?

Mr. Martin: That is satisfactory to me.

Mr. Albert: All right. If it please the Court, I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit 481 and Commission's Exhibits 482-A and B, not as conclusive or as proof of the statements therein contained, but as evidence of inter-office communications from J. L. Hudson & Company. 6291

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: You mean to tell me that the Commission is going to object, your Honor, to the admission of evidence which they produced and originally offered in evidence and to which I objected? What are they trying to conceal?

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Read the record as to the pending documents beginning with Nos. 499-A, B and C.

(The record was read.)

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I would like to call to your attention Commission's Exhibit No. 483-A.

Examiner Bennett: Will you wait until we get through?

Mr. Martin: I beg your pardon.

Examiner Bennett: The respondents have before them certain exhibits that were offered in evi-

6293 dence.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I withdraw my previous objection to the offer into evidence by the Commission of Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482-A and B and ask that they be marked in evidence in their entirety.

Mr. Martin: I think your Honor has already ruled.

Examiner Bennett: We are all through with that so far as I am concerned. You have before you a certain matter now. I should not have permitted those exhibits to have been injected in this matter, but I thought that I had missed something in the record, but it has been injected and it has been disposed of now. Let's go ahead.

6294

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Feldman: Judge, I think we ought to have a conference on this off the record. There is one thing I would like to point out to you.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record, then.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 499-A, 499-B, 499-C, 500, 501-A, 501-B, 502 and 503 were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have testified that no reply was made by your firm to the letter of February 11 from Mr. Post to Mr. Webber, which is in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 499-A, B and C. Why was no reply made to this letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial, calling for a conclusion of the witness, not binding upon the respondent——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: —no proper foundation has been laid.

6296

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. We were red carded before we could reply.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was it right after this time, Mr. Sappington, that your firm was red carded? A. After which time, please? Q. After the period of this correspondence which has just been admitted into evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: Mark those for identification, please.

(Documents were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 504 and 505.) 6297

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, I believe that you testified on Friday that studies were made showing the effect of the red carding on the different departments of your dress business. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 504 for Identification, and ask can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

6298 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Direct.

Q. What is it? A. This is an analysis of piece sales at certain price lines for Department 358.

Q. Was it made by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the regular course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those figures are correct, to the best of your knowledge and belief? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence, Commission's Exhibit 504.

Mr. Meder: What department was that in?

Mr. Martin: 358.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to Commission's Exhibit 504 unless further 6299 explanation is made of what these figures mean. I believe the exhibit is perfectly unintelligible in so far as the figures are concerned as to what the figures refer to. I further object to the gratuitous inclusion in the exhibit of certain remarks "We don't know where that came from"; "We don't know who made that"——

Mr. Martin: The witness has testified he made them.

Mr. Albert: ——"We don't know what they are predicated upon"; and, further, upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: I think there should be some further explanation of this exhibit.

6300 Mr. Martin: All right, your Honor. I will have it further identified.

Examiner Bennett: If it can be done by the witness to advantage, and I would object to general statements.

Mr. Martin: Under the heading of "Remarks"?

Examiner Bennett: Statements made as to June and July.

Mr. Martin: I am perfectly willing——

Examiner Bennett: Where they are definite statements of results of figures, I think that they may be taken as——

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, we have several exhibits here referring to all of this same type, referring to the different departments.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: Now, if you would like us to, we are perfectly willing to cut those remarks off, just leaving the figures and let the witness explain it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I don't object to statement of figures where it is made, a statement of figures and that alone. I don't see that there is 6302 any objection to these general statements. I suggest that we take those remarks off of all of them.

Mr. Martin: Yes, we will do that.

Examiner Bennett: Well, just as you choose. Just as you choose.

Mr. Martin: That being the case.

(The remarks referred to were cut off.)

Examiner Bennett: What I had reference to as to further explanation, Mr. Martin, was the meaning specifically, the meaning of those columns.

Mr. Martin: Yes. I will ask him that, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, with reference to Commission's Exhibit for Identification, 504, will you explain to me just what this first column of figures under the heading '35, '36 volume change means? A. That is the volume change, 1936, compared with 1935, for the months designated in this column (indicating). For example, in February—— 6303

Mr. Albert: Do you mind if I follow?

Mr. Martin: Certainly not. Come around.

A. For instance, in February, 1936, the volume in dollars was 11.6 per cent. below the volume in dollars for February, 1935.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. And so on down? A. So on down that column.

Q. Down the line? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what does the next line refer to? A. The next column referred to the piece sales, the difference in piece sales on the same basis. In other words, in February of 1936 we sold fifty-nine more pieces in that department than we did in February, 1935.

6305 Q. And so on down the line? A. Minus is designated as minus, whereas nothing is designated as plus. I can put plus in there if you want plus put in each case.

Q. Now, what do— A. These are retail price lines, $29.75, $35, $39.75; and these figures designate the same comparison as the figures in this column (indicating)?

Mr. Albert: Column 2?

The Witness: In column 2.

Mr. Albert: So that under $29.75——

The Witness: We have sold nine more pieces—eight more pieces.

Mr. Albert: Meaning that you sold eight more?

The Witness: Eight more. Seventeen less (indicating). (Indicating) Thirteen more.

6306 Mr. Albert: I see.

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: With that explanation, I offer this in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court I object. May I question on the voir dire first, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: May I question on voir dire?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you personally prepare this record, Mr. Sappington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, you took the figures off the books of J. L. Hudson & Company yourself? A. That is right.

Q. Now, aside from the fact that these are a comparison of the total figures, have you made any study to determine the cause of the change?

Mr. Martin: I object to that, as to these exhibits, as far as these exhibits are concerned. That 6308 is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: The exhibit, so far as it appears, is merely a statement of fact for what it is worth, for whatever it may be worth.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I think it is not yet connected with this particular card ing, as I see it. It is merely a statement of the two years for whatever that may mean. I will overrule the objection. Received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 504, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.) 6309

By Mr. Martin:

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, I hand you Commission's Exhibit 505 for Identification, and ask can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. This is an analysis of figures for Department 369.

Q. Does the same explanation that was given as to the various columns of figures in Department 358, which is Commission's Exhibit 504, apply equally to this exhibit? A. No, sir.

Q. All right, sir. Will you explain what these are? A. In these, the first two columns do. The third, fourth, fifth, and sixth do not, because these are cost prices while those are retail.

Q. All right. A. Otherwise they are the same, except that in this column (indicating)——

Mr. Meder: Don't say "this." Say the number of the column.

6311 The Witness: One, two, three, four, five. Except in column 5, instead of listing the difference in piece sales we have listed the actual piece sales, 104 in 1935, 14 in 1936.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I see. Who prepared this analysis? A. I prepared that.

Q. That was done in the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Relied on by the store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is correct? A. Yes, sir; so far as I know.

Mr. Martin: I offer that in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 505.

6312 Mr. Albert: I object, if it please the Court, to the introduction of Commission's Exhibit No. 505 upon the grounds previously urged with respect to Department 358; and I further object to the inclusion of explanatory matter without any testimony with respect thereto as set forth after the star on the exhibit.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to remove that note in the exhibit and bring it out in the testimony? You may bring it out in the testimony.

Mr. Martin: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: You may bring it out in the testimony.

(The note referred to was crossed out by Mr. Martin.)

Examiner Bennett: All right. The explanatory matter that has been objected to has been eliminated. The other objections are overruled and the document is received in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 505.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 505, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.) 6314

(A document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 506.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 506 for Identification, and ask, can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. Analysis of figures for Department 338.

Q. Who prepared it? A. I prepared it.

Q. In the usual course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is information relied on in your store in the ordinary course of business? A. Yes.

Q. And is correct? A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. Will you explain just what those figures represent? 6315
What are the figures in the columns? A. The same as Department 358, which was the first exhibit in this group.

Q. In other words, the same explanation? A. The same explanation.

Q. As was given for Department 358 will apply to this? A. In all cases. I mean, in all columns.

Q. Which was Commission's Exhibit No.— A. 504.

Q. 504? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: What do the top figures refer to, $29.75, $35?.

The Witness: Retail price lines.

Mr. Albert: That is the retail selling price of the dresses in Department 338?

The Witness: Yes, of these dresses.

Mr. Martin: I offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 506.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, may I ask that counsel for the Commission, if they desire any explanation from the witness of any exhibits which they intend to present, that that 6317 explanation appear in the record, that there not be colloquy between counsel for the Commission and the witness while I am reading other exhibits? The same objection to Commission's Exhibit 506 as to the previous exhibits.

Examiner Bennett: The same ruling. Received in evidence.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 506, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(A document was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 507.)

By Mr. Martin.

6318 Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 507 for Identification, and ask, can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. This is an analysis of piece sales for Department 369, February to June, inclusive.

Q. Who prepared it? A. It was prepared for me by our office staff.

Q. Was it relied upon by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Used in the regular course of business? A. Yes.

Q. Believed to be correct? A. Yes.

Q. Will you further describe what those columns there represent? A. I believe that is clear. These are cost prices (indicating). The years are definitely designated.

Mr. Meder: Designate it so the record will show what it is all about.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What does the top row of figures refer to? A. Cost price, cost prices.

Q. And the next row refers to what? A. The two years, 1935, 1936.

Q. Now, coming down the page, what do the figures in the first column refer to? A. Piece sales by months for the year 1935. 6320

Q. And the second column? A. Piece sales for the same month for the year 1936.

Q. And those piece sales for 1935 and 1936 are in which price range? A. $8.75.

Q. And the other columns across the page refer to the same thing in different price ranges? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit 507.

Mr. Albert: Objected to upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid, immaterial and irrelevant.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received. 6321

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 507, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

(Documents were marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 508 and 509.)

6322 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 508 for Identification, and ask, can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. These are the net piece sales in dresses for the spring season, February through July, 1935, for these departments listed in the first column.

Q. Who was that prepared by? A. Prepared by our office staff.

Q. For you at your request? A. Yes.

Q. In the ordinary course of business? A. Yes.

Q. And as such relied upon by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And believed to be true? A. Yes.

6323 Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit for Identification 509, and ask, can you identify that paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is that? A. These are the net piece sales of dresses for the spring season of 1936, February through July.

Q. And the same explanation as was given with regard to Commission's Exhibit 508 will apply equally to this one? A. Except that this is for 1936; that is for 1935.

Q. Was this prepared for you at your request? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the ordinary course of business? A. Yes.

Q. And relied upon by you? A. Yes.

Q. And believed to be correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer Commission's Exhibits 508
6324 and 509 in evidence.

Mr. Albert: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received in evidence.

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 508 and 509, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, have you formed any opinion as to the effect of the red carding upon store?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as calling for a conclusion of the witness, and no proper foundation has been laid demonstrating what studies he has made or what tests he has taken into consideration.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer as to whether you have formed an opinion.

6326

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Have you formed an opinion? A. May I ask a question?

Q. Have you formed an opinion of the effect of red carding on your store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, with reference to Commission's Exhibits Nos. 481, 482-A, 483-A, 485, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508 and 509, will you tell me what has been the effect on Hudson's Store of the red carding by the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; calling for the conclusion of the witness, and no proper foundation has been laid; and, in addition thereto, the exhibits now in evidence speak for themselves and the question goes beyond the information contained in the exhibits. 6327

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will ask the witness to give his opinion on that if he wants to connect it up with the exhibits which have been presented to him we will hear him upon that point. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6328 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, sir. A. The question is what effect? May I have the question?

Q. (Question read.) A. To cause a loss of business.

Q. Will you——

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it may be stricken. I wish that you would follow the usual course about opinion evidence, ask him what his opinion is, and then let him make his explanation; if he wants to 6329 use these documents in making an explanation, why——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you tell me what is your opinion as to what effect red carding has had on Hudson's Store?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial, and not binding; no weight; no probative force or effect unless we know what factors the witness took into consideration in forming his opinion.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. That is a matter for cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6330

A. Because of the red carding we were denied admittance to certain houses. Because of that it was impossible for us to get certain types of garments in certain price lines which we needed to take care of a business that we had already developed.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; that is what he is telling about, what effect.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you just go ahead and explain what effect these things have had, explain their effect on Hudson's Store?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I strenuously object to this witness being given carte blanche to say whatever he wants to. I suggest that if the Commission seeks to elicit any information from this witness that it be done in the usual customary manner of question and answer and 6332 not a speech by the witness. I don't know what the witness is going to testify.

Mr. Martin: Do you want me to lead the witness?

Mr. Albert: You mean to tell me he does not know what to tell you unless you want him, that he does not know what the effect is?

Examiner Bennett: Make any objection you wish to make, not a speech.

Mr. Albert: All right. I make an objection on the ground it is not specific——

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Go ahead and give your opinion.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 6333

Examiner Bennett: At such length as you see fit, but keep to the point as to what effect it had on the store and its business.

A. Well, as these analyses show, in certain of these departments——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Name those departments.

A. Well, in Department 358, for example——

Mr. Albert: What exhibit is that, Mr. Sapping ton?

The Witness: 504.

Mr. Albert: Do you mind if I follow you while you are talking from that exhibit?

Mr. Haycraft: You say 358?

The Witness: 358.

By Mr. Martin.

6335

Q. All right, sir, go ahead and tell us what effect it had on Hudson's Store? A. This shows a loss in volume of 11.6 in February; 8.7 in March; 19.4 in April; 21.2 in May. Increase of 10.6 in June; increase of 23.5 in July. Those figures pertain to the dollar volume. Now, it is my belief that our inability to obtain merchandise from Guild houses was responsible for this showing. The showing that this department made in February, March, April and May.

Q. Have you any explanation as to the June and July figures? Yes, sir.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; no proper foundation has been laid. I do 6336 not think the Court is interested in the witness' explanation unless we know how he reached it. Anybody can look at the figures and give some kind of explanation.

Examiner Bennett: If it is his opinion that that was caused by the red carding, why, we are willing to hear him. That is what he seems to be testifying to.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What is your explanation for the figures of June and July?

Mr. Albert: Same objection, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: All right, overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. The figures of increase of 10.6 in June were caused by promotions at lower price lines not affected by the Guild houses. The increase of 23 per cent. in July was due to earlier sales of custom suits that we had a year ago, thus increased sales of reduced merchandise accumulating from 6338 the previous months.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, turn to the next department, Department No. 369. A. All right.

Q. All right, go ahead and explain what effect the red carding has had on Department 369?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I point out to the Court that the witness is seemingly reading from a piece of paper that is right in front of him. I respectfully suggest that a foundation be laid to determine whether or not this witness needs in view of his testimony, to read what the effect 6339 was, rather than to tell his own opinion on it. We are not asking him to read what somebody else prepared.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer. Go ahead.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, sir.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. The——

Mr. Albert: May I point out for the record, your Honor, that the witness is now reading?

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

Mr. Martin: Also have the record——

Mr. Albert: In fairness to the witness, I will say that he has now put the paper aside.

Examiner Bennett: You have your objections; overruled. Let the witness state his answer.

6341 A. (Resumed) Department 369. This analysis shows a decided drop in piece sales for every month except the month of March for the spring season of this year compared with the spring season of a year ago. At $10.75 cost we had a decided drop in pieces sales for February, March, April and May. At $11.75 cost we had a very heavy drop in piece sales, during February, March, April and May. For example, in February, we dropped from 104 pieces to 14; in March, we dropped from 123 pieces to 3.

Now, the drop in piece sales at $10.75 for these four months was due to our inability to buy misses' daytime street dresses from certain Guild houses that we had done business with for a considerable period, and for whose 6342 merchandise we had developed a definite demand on the part of our clientele in Detroit.

The heavy loss at $11.75 cost was due to the loss of one resource, a member of the Guild, with whom we did business almost entirely at the price line, and whose merchandise we were unable to replace.

Mr. Albert: May we have the name of that resource, your Honor?

The Witness: C. H. D. Robbins.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Sappington, let us have the explanation. A. In the $12.75 cost price line, our comparatively good showing there is because of merchandise which we obtained from a Guild resource who sold us following the red carding, and who subsequently resigned from the Guild according to his statement to us.

Mr. Albert: May we have the name of that resource, your Honor?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I object to the witness being forced to divulge his source of supply. 6344
That is a question which is of great moment to these merchants, and I do not think, in fairness, that they should be required to divulge their trade secrets.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: Wait. The matter is not——

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Examiner Bennett: We will go ahead and get the answer.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may bring it up again on cross-examination.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead and answer the next question. A. In De- 6345 partment 338 we show a volume loss of 11.6 for February; an increase of 1.5 for March; a loss of 18.6 for April. We show a loss in piece sales for February of 1, an increase of 9 piece sales for March; a loss of 112 piece sales for April. At $29.75 we show a loss of 40 pieces.

Mr. Albert: May I suggest, if it please the Court, that the witness not read off the figures? They are on the exhibit.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I object to this. This witness has a perfect right to refer to anything that is in evidence in making any explanation.

Mr. Albert: He is not making an explanation, your Honor. All he is doing is reading off the figures which are in evidence.

Mr. Martin: If you will quit interrupting and give him a chance——

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead. Go ahead with your answer.

6347 A. I should be very glad to make this just as short as possible. The figures contained in columns 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, for the months of February, March and April, show that this department did not keep pace with the store as a whole, and we believe this was due to the lack of our inability to buy Guild merchandise—with one exception, the piece sales, or column 5, for the month of March, under the heading $39.75, show an increase of seventeen pieces. This, we believe, is due to a carry-over of dresses which we had from the month of February, which were delivered to the store before the red carding took place, and which we sold in the month of March.

The other figures I don't think have any bearing on the Guild situation, inasmuch as by that time in this department we had been able to develop some resources which 6348 replaced those we had done business with formerly.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. All right, sir.

Examiner Bennett: Is it your contention, Mr. Sappington, that there was no other factor which might have accounted for your fall off in sales?

The Witness: There is no other factor that we know of, your Honor, that caused the falling off in sales in these particular cases.

Examiner Bennett: I see.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, did Guild activities have any effect on any of the other departments of your store?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, calling for a conclusion of the witness; and no proper foundation has been laid.

Mr. Martin: I think this witness has testified he has made a complete study of the situation to 6350 determine what effect the Guild activities have had upon this store, and that he has formed an opinion, and I think he is——

Mr. Albert: That is about all we know, what he predicates his opinion——

Mr. Martin: I think he is fully qualified—well, you can bring that out on your cross-examination, Mr. Albert.

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may answer, Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Answer the question. 6351

Mr. Albert: The attorney for the Commission is seeking to qualify his witnesses——

Examiner Bennett: Complete your question.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did the Guild activity have any effect upon the other departments of your store?

Examiner Bennett: You have your objection and it is overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Along the same lines our inability to buy merchandise that we needed in order to make our assortments comprehensive in order to put us in a competitive position in the retail field in Detroit, and in order to take care of the demands of our particular clientele who had expected to find certain things in our store in the spring season of 1936, because of their previous experience.

6353 Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I move that the entire latter part of the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

By Mr. Martin,

Q. Has it had any effect on your customers, so far as their good will towards Hudson is concerned?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as calling for the conclusion of the witness, and no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he knows.

6354 By Mr. Martin.

Q. If you know.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. I believe it has, yes.

Q. What effect? A. Well, they have—they have not been able to find the kind of garments in our stocks that they would expect to find from their previous experience with us; they have been unable to order the special order for merchandise that we had in stock during the month of February which we had always—which service we had always given our customers.

Q. Have you formed any opinion as to the effect it has had on your competitive standing with the other stores in Detroit?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as being immaterial—unless a foundation is laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6356

A. No, I have not.

Q. Have you formed any opinion as to what effect it has had upon your ability to compete with other stores?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, unless a foundation is laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Well, we know that certain merchandise that is on sale being displayed and advertised by competing stores is not available to us.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive. 6357

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, do you know whether or not any effort was ever made to organize a local Guild in Cleveland as an affiliate of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Examiner Bennett: Cleveland or Detroit.
Mr. Martin: I mean in Detroit.
Examiner Bennett: Yes.
Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Among retail dealers as an affiliate of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as leading, no proper foundation having been laid; testifying to matters which are not in evi-6359 dence. Mr. Martin knows very well the vice in that question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What efforts were made, if you know? A. J. L. Hudson Company was asked to send representatives to a luncheon held at the Hotel Statler at which Mr. Post and Mr. Golby talked to us about the formation of a retail Guild, or branch, whatever it was, in Detroit.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I ask that the answer be stricken unless we have a statement 6360 from the witness as to the substance of what Mr. Post said, when he said it, and who was there, and not his opinions and conclusions as to what was said.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Well, were those the only steps taken to your knowledge, towards the formation of a local guild among the retailers here in Detroit?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: I wish you would determine whether Mr. Sappington was there or not, whether he attended that meeting.

Mr. Martin: I did not hear, your Honor; I beg your pardon.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you attend the meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: He has testified.

By Mr. Martin. 6362

Q. Who else was there?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to the entire line of testimony and ask it be stricken out upon the ground it forms no part of the Commission's complaint, being entirely irrelevant to this proceeding.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead. A. The question is, who was there?

Q. Yes. A. They were——

Q. To the best of your recollection. A. Three other 6363 people from the J. L. Hudson Company. Do you want the names of the people, or just the general statement?

Q. The names. A. Mr. Himelhoch was there of Himelhoch Brothers. Mr. Siegal was there.

Q. Who does he represent? A. Siegal's.

Q. All right, sir, any others? A. There was a representative there from—no, I cannot recall any of the other individuals. There was quite a large number of tables.

Q. Can you recall what other stores were represented, to the best of your recollection? A. I believe Tuttle & Clark was represented; Russek's——

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I ask that this latter testimony be stricken. The witness has testified he was not certain who was there. We certainly do not want his best recollection to something he is not certain of. I think the Commission has made the same cross-examination repeatedly.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6365 By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Sappington. A. Well, there was a group of, I should say, fifteen people from the downtown retail section.

Q. Were any other meetings held, to the best of your knowledge and belief, in an effort to organize a local guild among the retailers?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to the question upon the ground it is leading; upon the further ground it assumes a state of facts not in evidence; and I ask that the latter part of the question in particular be stricken out as to the organization of a retail guild.

6366 Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, sir. A. There was a second meeting held.

Q. Were you present at that meeting? A. I was not.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Post said at the first meeting at which you were present?

Mr. Albert: May we have the time fixed, if it please the Court? We still have not had that fixed.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. When were these meetings held, do you recall? A. I think I could determine if I could refer to my notes, but I don't remember.

Q. Go ahead, sir, and refer to your notes. A. The second meeting was held about the 8th of May.

Q. Do you recall when the first meeting was held? What year was that? A. 1935.

Q. Do you recall when the first meeting was held? A. 6368
The first meeting was previous to that.

Q. Approximately how long? A. Oh, I couldn't tell you.

Mr. Albert: In other words, you recall the second meeting at which you were not present better than you do the first meeting at which you were present.

Mr. Martin: I ask that that remark be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, in the light of the fact that after all this testimony has been going in, we now find it refers to incidents that occurred at least in May of 1935, and to all intents and purposes from the witness' testimony, some of 6369 it may have occurred in 1934; I ask that the entire line of testimony be stricken out as in no way relevant to this proceeding or to the complaint of the Commission, especially in the light of the fact, I believe—I am not certain of this statement—that the witness has testified that nothing happened with respect to it thereafter. I do not see what earthly purpose this line of questioning can have.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Post said at the meeting at which you attended? A. In general, yes.

Q. What did he say? A. He outlined the purposes, and——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask that the witness be instructed——

Mr. Martin: Your Honor, please——

6371 Mr. Albert: To tell us what Mr. Post said.

Examiner Bennett: Let the witness testify; you are moving to strike it out.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Mr. Post outlined the purposes, the purposes of the Guild, why it was organized and what it was attempting to do, and also told us that the Guild would be interested in having a local guild formed in Detroit to regulate the—some of the activities of the merchants here with respect to any agreement that they might reach locally, and with 6372 respect to the administration of the Guild's affairs in Detroit.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question. The question was: What did Mr. Post say? That means that the witness should tell us exactly or in substance the words that were used by Mr. Post and not his interpretation of the meaning of the words by saying that he outlined this and he outlined that, and by reason of the testimony of the witness, I believe that the answer should be stricken out as not responsive to the question.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please——

Mr. Albert: We are not interested in his opinion of what was said.

Mr. Martin: I don't think it is necessary for me to reply to such quibbling as that.

Mr. Albert: Far from quibbling. I don't want his interpretation of what was said. The witness was asked, "What did Mr. Post say?"

Examiner Bennett: All right. Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception. 6374

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, as a result of this meeting which you attended, and of the other meeting which you did not attend, was a local guild established in Cleveland?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Mr. Martin: I mean in Detroit.

Mr. Albert: Now, I ask the Court to admonish Mr. Martin to cease from leading this witness? The question certainly should be phrased in a very proper legal form, which is well known to Mr. Martin: What was the result of this conference, and not a statement of what he wants the witness to say. 6375

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead.

Mr. Martin: I withdraw that question temporarily.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did Mr. Post make any representation as to the advantages to be achieved from a local guild? A. He did.

Q. What were those advantages? A. He stated that by the organization of a local guild we would be able to reach certain agreements in Detroit among ourselves, and that——

Q. As to what? A. Well, as to alteration charges, for example.

Q. What else? A. As to the time we would hold promotions; sales. As to the time we would hold clearances; as to the time we would hold our August fur sale; as to 6377 the time we would hold our August coat sale; any agreement that might be reached among retailers as to their activities, either in maintaining certain prices or in maintaining certain times for doing certain things.

Q. What other advantages did he outline? A. He stated that if a local guild were formed that local guild could agree among themselves to do certain things.

Q. Such as what? A. Such as I have just enumerated. They can agree that they would not hold their August fur sale until a certain time; they could agree that they would not cut the price of a $16.95 retail dress below a certain figure in a sale, for example; they could agree that they would make—get certain prices for alterations; this—they could—this retail body could make any agree-6378 ment that they wanted to among themselves regarding any of their business activities.

Mr. Albert: You didn't need Mr. Post to tell you that—didn't need Mr. Post to tell you that, did you Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: I object to that statement. I ask that it be stricken out.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What was the result of—were there any other representations made by Mr. Post as to advantages which would accrue to the— A. Yes. Mr. Post pointed out that if this retail organization were formed among the retailers in Detroit that the Fashion Originators Guild would assist the local organization in enforcing its regulations.

Q. In what way?

(There was a short pause.)

Mr. Albert: May we have the witness' answer, your Honor? He has remembered pretty quickly everything else.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to this constant interpolation of Mr. Albert here. The witness has got a perfect right to answer this question in his own time. He is not obliged to jump off the minute I ask the question. He has a right to refresh his memory. 6380

The Witness: I am not certain.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did he make any representations as to any other part that the Guild could play in the local field?

Mr. Albert: May we have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I don't remember. 6381

Q. Did he make any representations as to a local shopper? A. Not at that meeting that I recall? We had a local shopper at that time.

Q. Was any discussion had as to how the expenses of the local shopper were to be borne? A. Not at that meeting.

Q. Did you ever have at any meeting that you ever attended? A. Not at any meeting that I attended, no, sir.

Q. Were any representations made at this meeting as to any other local guild as to what they were doing?

Mr. Albert: Oh, that is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial and irrelevant. How far are we going with this mess? May we not have the most important question, which Mr. Martin has refused to put to this witness, as to what was the result of all of this, your Honor? Certainly, if nothing resulted from this conference, the entire thing is immaterial and irrelevant, but seemingly the Commission doesn't want to ask that question.

6383 Mr. Martin: I asked it and counsel objected to it.

Mr. Albert: And the question was withdrawn.

Mr. Martin: And the question was objected to by counsel.

Mr. Albert: I objected to the form of it.

The question was withdrawn completely. Ask him the question, "What was the result of this conference?"

Mr. Martin: I will conduct this examination as I see fit, and subject to his Honor's rulings, not as you see it. The sooner you get that through your head the better off we will be and the quicker we will progress in this case. Will you read the question, please?

6384 (Question read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. By Mr. Post. A. As I recall it, he referred to other local guilds, which ones I couldn't say.

Q. Did he state that guilds had proved successful in other cities?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, the witness has testified that he doesn't know what Mr. Post said about other local guilds. In the light of my objection to Mr. Martin, he has the audacity to put the words right in the witness' mouth.

Mr. Martin: He did not say——

Mr. Albert: Now, I say, if it please the Court, there is a time beyond which Mr. Martin should be not permitted to lead this witness.

Mr. Martin: He made no such statement.

Examiner Bennett: You have made an objection?

Mr. Albert: I object to the question as leading.

6386 Examiner Bennett: All right. I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What did he say?

Examiner Bennett: I think we have gone as far as——

Mr. Albert: I could tell you what the answer is now, Mr. Martin.

The Witness: I don't recall.

Mr. Martin: Your intelligence overwhelms me.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection to the question.

6387 The Witness: I don't recall what Mr. Post said about other local guilds except that he mentioned that there were other local guilds.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What was the result of these meetings? A. No action was taken in Detroit.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know why? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Just a moment. If it please the Court——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. State why.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I move that this entire line of testimony be completely stricken out as bearing absolutely no relevancy whatsoever to the complaint of the Commission or to anything 6389 that has occurred in Detroit with respect to any relationship between the Fashion Originators Guild and J. L. Hudson & Company; as forming no part of the complaint whatsoever.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Now, I also——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. State why.

Mr. Albert: I also ask that the answer of the witness be stricken out as not responsive, upon the ground that Mr. Martin in every single question that he put to the witness on this particular matter 6390 asked whether or not Mr. Post made certain representations, and Mr. Martin knows that the word "representations" has a legal connotation, and in every single answer the witness refused to say that Mr. Post made any representations of any kind, but merely stated what it was, that Mr. Post suggested or said, or what the discussion was.

Mr. Martin: I think your Honor has already fully ruled on those objections.

Mr. Albert: May I have a ruling on my motion, please?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. It is denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: I object to that as being irrelevant, no proper foundation has been laid whatsoever; calling for a conclusion of the witness and asking for the operation of the witness' mind.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead and answer.

A. The J. L. Hudson Company was not willing to go 6392 ahead with the formation of a local guild. In view of the fact that we stated that we were not interested, the other merchants said—some of them said to us that they would not be interested unless we were, and we were not.

Mr. Martin: That is all.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask that the entire testimony be stricken out by reason of the fact that seemingly there was some very vital and important reason why this alleged local guild program was not adopted, and we find that the innocuous and logical reason that nobody was interested in it, and certainly under such a statement of circumstances there can be no relevancy or bearing whatsoever upon this complaint of the Federal 6393
Trade Commission, which mentions nothing about it in their complaint as to the fact that a local retail guild was discussed for some time and nothing was ever done about it.

I ask that the entire line of testimony of the witness with respect to this local guild be completely stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

If it please the Court, we have gone about roughly speaking, a half an hour beyond the usual time. Does your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Oh, no, we haven't.

Mr. Martin: I don't think so.

Examiner Bennett: We haven't gone to our usual time.

Mr. Albert: We started a half an hour sooner.

Examiner Bennett: We stopped a half an hour sooner in the morning.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, your Honor.

6395 Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you testified, did you not, that with respect to certain matters which were brought up by the Commission that you obtained certain information from "Women's Wear"; isn't that so? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. Didn't you testify that you learned of something from "Women's Wear," from a reading of "Women's Wear"? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you testify that you first learned of the red carding of J. L. Hudson & Company from a reading of "Women's Wear"? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you testify that you learned it from the local 6396 representative of "Women's Wear"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You read "Women's Wear"? A. Sometimes.

Q. You have read it rather assiduously of late, have you not?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: I am laying a foundation, if it please the Court.

A. No, sir.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. You have not been reading the reports in "Women's Wear" of this trial thus far?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial and not in proper form.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You attended the commencement of these hearings in New York, did you not, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

6398

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I want to show that this witness has thoroughly prepared himself with respect to the type of cross-examination that he is going to meet.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I hope so.

Mr. Meder: He has.

Mr. Haycraft: We will concede that.

Mr. Meder: We will concede that.

Examiner Bennett: Sustain the objection. Go ahead and cross-examine, if you have any.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you had the minutes of the hearings thus far as regards the examination of Taylor & Company and Strawbridge & Clothier? 6399

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, will you turn, if you please, to your copy of Commission's Exhibit No. 481? I am sorry. May I change that to 479 and 478? Was that prepared in the ordinary course of your business, Mr. Sappington? A. This was prepared at my request.

Q. Specifically for this hearing, was it not? A. Specifically for our information.

Q. To be used on this hearing? A. If necessary.

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has answered the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You vouch for the accuracy of it, do you not? A. I believe it is accurate.

6401

Q. Well, now, do you wish us to impute any qualifications to the use of the word "believe," or do you mean that you vouch for the accuracy? A. I accept it as accurate, yes.

Q. All right. Now, with respect to Commission's Exhibit 479, let's save time. I assume you will give the same answers as to its accuracy, will you not? A. Yes.

Q. Those are the outstanding orders as of February 15, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. In the main, when were these orders placed in January of 1936? A. Oh, I should say starting with December.

Q. Back in December, perhaps— A. December of 19—

Q. '35? A. Let's see. Yes, December, 1935, and January, 1936.

6402

Q. Just to be certain of my position, if you will, Mr. Sappington, Commission's Exhibit 478 is a complete list of the Guild houses with whom you did business on February 1, 1935, to January 31, 1936, is that correct? A. 478-A, B, C?

Q. Yes. A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Will you turn to Commission's Exhibit 479-A?

Mr. Martin: Now, I object to the incorrect statement by counsel for the respondent. The exhibit speaks for itself. It says "Guild Houses Used." Now he puts in the word "complete" list of Guild houses.

Mr. Albert: You don't mean to infer for one moment that this is an incomplete list, do you?.

Mr. Martin: I don't——

The Witness: This is a list of houses——

Mr. Martin: Just a second. It is not a question of what he infers. I just don't want an improper statement made for the record. He can testify as to what it means.

The Witness: I mean that this list, 478-A, B and C——

6404

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes? A. Is a list of houses that our buyers visited and from—and in some cases—I can't testify in all cases—we bought merchandise from, but I know that in the majority of cases, I should say in 99 per cent. of the cases, we bought merchandise from houses listed on Commission's Exhibits 478-A, B and C, and that in all cases we visited them.

Q. Let me make this certain. In the light of, I think, what is Mr. Martin's confusion and objection, you haven't omitted from Commission's Exhibit 478-A any Guild houses from whom you purchased dresses in 1935, have you? A. In 1935?

Q. Yes, down to January 31, 1936? A. I don't think 6405 so.

Q. Well, don't you know? A. Not positively.

Q. You don't? A. Not positively.

Q. Are you afraid that the same thing is going to happen to you as happened to Taylor in Cleveland, Ohio, their list of Guild houses? A. I don't know what happened to Taylor in Cleveland.

Mr. Martin: Objected to.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, turn to Commission's Exhibit 479. A. All right.

Q. Show me where the Dolces dresses are. A. Very well.

Q. Show me where Dolces dresses is listed in Commission's Exhibit 478-A. A. Under Antman & Barick.

Q. Well, that is a different name? A. Well, we call him John and the other fellow calls him Jack, but Dolces 6407 and Antman & Barick are the same house.

Q. Antman & Barick and Dolces are the same house? A. That is right.

Mr. Martin: Ha, ha.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You say you didn't see the Taylor testimony? A. I did not.

Q. Now, will you look at Commission's Exhibit 479-A under Department 369?

Mr. Martin: What?
Mr. Albert: Under Department 369.
The Witness: 479.
6408 Mr. Albert: 369.
Mr. Martin: Page X-1190.
The Witness: All right. I have it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you find for me, if you please, unless that also is under a different name, the house of H. N. Fried Company as a Guild house with whom you did business as listed under Commission's Exhibit No. 478-A? A. Well in the case of Department 379, it doesn't necessarily have to be on that list.

Q. Now, will you please find for me that name on the list? A. Because——

Mr. Albert: I ask that the witness be directed to answer my question, your Honor. I have asked him to find me the name "Fried" on the list—that is, Commission's Exhibit 478-A. If Mr. Martin wants to take him on redirect, he may do so.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: All I want to know is whether it is on that list.

Mr. Meder: The list speaks for itself. 6410

The Witness: I will have to go on through every other item.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes, go through the list.

Mr. Martin: Just a second, Mr. Witness. Counsel has stated all he wants to know is whether it is on that list. I respectfully submit that the list is in evidence and speaks for itself.

Mr. Albert: I asked him to find it on the list, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: You did not. You just made the statement that all you wanted to know was whether it was on that list or not. 6411

Mr. Albert: If Mr. Martin concedes that it is not on the list——

Mr. Martin: I am not conceding anything.

Mr. Albert: I will ask the witness to find it for me.

Mr. Martin: I object, your Honor.

The Witness: I don't see it.

Mr. Martin: The list speaks for itself.

The Witness: I don't see it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, is H. Lipman listed as a Guild house with whom you did business in 1935?

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I object to this line of cross-examination. It is highly irrelevant and immaterial as to whether——

Examiner Bennett: I am going to overrule your objection. Go ahead.

The Witness: Answer?

6413

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it there? A. I don't see it.

Q. I ask you whether or not you can find Radiant Dress listed as a house from whom you had outstanding orders on Commission's Exhibit 479-A listed on your Exhibit 478-A, which is your complete list of the houses? A. I don't see it. The complete list for 1935.

Mr. Martin: He didn't—your Honor, I object to his using the words "complete list" again. That has been brought to counsel's attention once.

Mr. Albert: And it is——

Mr. Martin: It is stated here. Here is the heading of the exhibit. I think it is highly improper for counsel to keep trying to put words in the exhibit which are not there.

6414

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, the witness has just this moment said that it is a complete list for 1935, and it is so complete that they put in houses whom they approached during the year but with whom he is not certain that they even bought merchandise. That is how complete 478-A is supposed to be, for the information of this Commission, and for this Commission to form findings on.

Examiner Bennett: I think he was uncertain. I think he was somewhat uncertain as to its completeness.

Mr. Albert: Yes. He certainly became uncertain after I went for it.

Examiner Bennett: I got that impression at least. And I don't think you are adding anything to the question by putting in that implication.

By Mr. Albert. 6416

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, will you turn to Commission's Exhibit No. 479-B at page X-1191? A. Right.

Q. Then you see Joseph La Vay listed as a house with whom you had an outstanding order on February 15, 1936? A. Right.

Q. That order was placed, roughly speaking, either in January, 1936, or December of 1935? A. Not necessarily.

Q. It could have been placed before then? A. No; it could have been placed later.

Q. It could have been placed later when? A. It could have been placed in February.

Q. About what time? A. It could have been placed February 1. I don't know what time but it could have been.

Q. And was that the first order that you ever gave to Joseph La Vay & Company? 6417

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

A. I don't know.

Mr. Martin: As being irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you do business with them before February 1, 1936? A. I don't know.

Q. You haven't the slightest knowledge? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you find that out for me? A. I think so.

Q. Will you do so?

Examiner Bennett: Well, now, we will adjourn until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning at this place.

(Whereupon, at 4.40 o'clock P. M., August 17, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

6419

Court Room No. 722,
Federal Building,
Detroit, Michigan,
August 18, 1936.

Met pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may re-
6420 sume the stand, Mr. Sappington, please.

LOUIS B. SAPPINGTON resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, did you find out on what day your order was placed with Joseph Levay & Company? A.

That information, I think, will be here this morning. We were not able to get it before we left the store.

Q. May I ask whether you have that information with respect to the balance of the concerns listed on Commission's Exhibit 479-B, or are you only bringing it over with respect to Joseph Levay & Company? A. Well, we hadn't —we didn't leave any instructions to that effect at the store, no.

Q. Can you tell me when your order was placed with Bernard Appel? A. No.

Q. Have you any objection to having one of the gentlemen who are here with you call the store and ask them to bring that information over when they come over? A. Well, could I address the Court, please? 6422

Examiner Bennett: Why, yes.

The Witness: I would like to ask to add to my testimony of yesterday afternoon regarding the list which we submitted showing the house, the Guild houses that we used in 1935. Now, there has been some objection to that list because it did not contain some of the names that were used on the list of Guild houses that were—which we had merchandise on order at the time of our red carding. I went through my files and I drew out the list from which we compiled our list of Guild houses in 1935. Now, that list is on the back of a letter written to Mr. Dowley by Mr. Post, November 8, 1935, and 6423 that is the basis of our list, the only means we had of obtaining a list that we thought would be at all authentic. Now, this list is headed "Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.," and lists dress members, affiliated members, and so forth, does not contain the names which Mr. Albert referred to yesterday afternoon.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, with respect to H. N. Fried, H. Lipman, Radiant, Joseph Levay and Bernard Appel, you did know that they were Guild houses, whether or not they were on the list which you just referred to, didn't you? A. I can't tell—I can't say definitely that we did know. We did at the time.

Q. You included them on Commission's Exhibit 479-B, which is a list of— A. That is right.

Q. —of orders on hand with Guild houses? A. That is a list of orders on hand with Guild houses.

Q. When— A. As of that time. I can't—I cannot tell 6425 you whether those houses were members in 1935 or not. They were members then apparently because they refused to deliver us what we had on order, stating that they would not deliver because the Guild told them and they couldn't deliver.

Q. Well, now, they obviously were members of the Guild at the time that the order was placed, were they not? A. That may not necessarily be true. I don't know.

Q. You made no effort to check it? A. At the time we placed the orders?

Q. Yes. A. I don't think—I don't know that.

Q. You made no effort to check it at the time you submitted this list, Commission's Exhibit 479-B? A. At the time we made up our 1935 list——

6426 Q. 479-B? A. No.

Q. You made no effort to check it, then? A. We used this list. We thought this list was the best basis of information.

Q. May I see that list that you are referring to? A. Certainly.

Q. So that you now say that in order to determine whether or not you had certain houses outstanding—certain orders outstanding with Guild houses on or about

February 15, 1936, you checked with a certain list upon a letter from the Fashion Originators Guild dated November 8, 1935?

Mr. Martin: I object to that as an incorrect statement. The witness did not state that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is the fact, Mr. Sappington, as regards your determination of what houses were Guild houses as set forth in Commission's Exhibit 479-B, in which exhibit you have set forth a list of certain houses from whom you could not obtain merchandise after the red carding by reason of the fact that they complied with the Guild program? 6428

Mr. Martin: I object to that as an incorrect statement. Commission's Exhibit 479-B is a list which is headed "Merchandise on order with Guild houses at the time of red carding."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, I will simplify it, then: From what source did you determine that the houses listed on Commission's Exhibit 479-B were Guild houses at the time in question? A. From what source?

Q. Yes. A. From the houses themselves.

Q. At that time? A. At that time.

Q. So that you didn't obtain that from this list that you have referred to? 6429

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness did not testify to that fact.

Mr. Albert: I am asking him affirmatively if that is so. I don't care whether he testified to it or not.

Mr. Martin: Don't put the words in his mouth.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

A. The list of houses with whom we had merchandise on order at the time of red carding——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. Is a separate and distinct list taken from our records plus a check with the houses themselves as to their reasons for not delivering.

Q. When was that check made? A. That check was made very shortly after our red carding, within ten days or two weeks.

Q. During the course of 1935 had you made any purchases from Bernard Appel? A. I don't know.

6431 Q. Had you made any purchases from Joseph Levay? A. I don't know.

Q. Had you made any purchases from Dolces Dress? A. Yes.

Q. During 1935? A. Yes.

Q. Had you made any purchases from Milton Altmark? A. Yes.

Q. Had you made any purchases from H. Lipman? A. Can't answer that definitely.

Q. Had you made any purchases from Radiant? A. I don't know.

Q. Had you made any purchases from H. N. Fried? A. I don't know.

Q. So that the only one that you don't know whether or not you made any purchases from during 1935 are the 6432 houses which I have attempted to demonstrate have been improperly omitted from Commission's Exhibit 478? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Those are the only houses that you don't recall. You definitely recall the others that I have mentioned. A. You haven't asked me all of the houses that we bought from on this list. You simply picked out one or two.

Q. Those that I asked you about you have remembered, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. Would you be good enough to turn to Commission's Exhibit 481? Now, Mr. Sappington, will you be good enough to explain the meaning of that particular exhibit, what the figures stand for? First, what does the first line of figures stand for in which you have $12.75 to $13.75, $14.75, $15.75? Are those cost prices or sales prices? A. Cost price.

Q. Cost prices. And what do the figures with respect to the months represent? A. Piece sales.

Q. Actual piece sales in the department for that period; is that it? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Mr. Martin: Answer so that the stenographer can get it. 6434

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is this an accurate compilation of the piece sales? A. To the best of my knowledge and belief, it is.

Q. Are you trying to qualify your answer in any way?

Mr. Martin: I object to that statement. The witness made a complete statement. He was asked, was the list correct, and he said it was to the best of his knowledge and belief.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, if it please the Court, I do not think that the Commission wants to take anything that this witness won't subscribe to as being accurate on direct examination. Then, on direct examination, in order to get this exhibit into evidence, the witness testified very affirmatively that it was accurate. 6435

Mr. Martin: I don't see——

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I don't see any discrepancy in his testimony.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, have you a copy of Commission's Exhibit 481 in front of you?

Mr. Martin: Yes, he has.

A. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you be good enough, please—it is a very simple computation—to total the first line of figures in that exhibit? A. Which way, this way or—vertically or hori-6437 zontally?

Q. Vertically. A. Vertically.

(Witness figures.)

Q. What total did you get? A. Two hundred and seven.

Q. Will you try the third line of figures? A. Three hundred and fifty-seven.

Q. Three hundred and fifty-seven? A. That is right.

Q. And what total is given there? A. It is pretty indefinite here. It looks like 337.

Mr. Martin: Get the exhibit and refer to it.

The Witness: That is right. 337.

6438 By Mr. Albert.

Q. What total did you get? A. Three hundred and fifty-seven.

Q. Now, will you total the fifth column, please? A. Six hundred and thirty-four.

Q. Six hundred and thirty-four? A. That is right.

Q. Will you be good enough, please, to re-add the third column? You have made a mistake in adding it. A. No. I get 337.

Q. Three hundred and thirty-seven is correct? A. Yes.

Q. You added it the first time and you got 357? A. That is right.

Q. The fifth column you have added and gotten the same answer as contained in the exhibit. Now, will you add it again, please, and see that you have made a mistake in adding that column? A. Six hundred and twenty-four.

Q. Instead of 634? A. That is right.

Q. So that your addition of the third column was incorrect and the present computation is correct; and your addition of the fifth column was incorrect and the present column is incorrect; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. And is the—— 6440

Mr. Martin: Now——

Q. Are the rest of the figures on Commission's Exhibit 481 equally accurate? A. I will check them if you wish.

Q. Well, Mr. Sappington, you realize this is a judicial hearing, don't you? A. Sure.

Mr. Martin: I object to that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Weren't these figures thoroughly checked and rechecked before they were submitted to this Commission for its attention? A. I understood so.

Q. But you don't know? A. I was told so, yes.

Q. And quite obviously somebody here in preparing 6441 these figures is making errors; isn't that so? A. It is possible.

Q. I mean, you want to be fair about it, don't you? It is quite obvious that some errors have been made in that computation?

Mr. Martin: I object to that. It is quite obvious that an error has been made.

The Witness: One.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. One error, but where we find one error, God knows where the other errors are; isn't that so?

Mr. Martin: Suppose you look for them?

Q. Isn't that so, Mr. Sappington? A. I don't know.

Mr. Martin: Instead of asserting that they are there.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You don't know. All right, sir. By the way, I no-
6443 tice in Commission's Exhibit 483-A the department number referred to is not contained in the exhibit. What department is that, the junior miss dress department? A. 483-A; yes. Department number?

Q. Yes. A. 371.

Q. That is 371. I mean, I wasn't certain. I wanted to check it. Now, will you turn, if your please, Mr. Sappington, to Commission's Exhibit 483-A? Will you be good enough to tell me, please, as to the meaning of the figures that are contained after the statement "After red carding and during red carding"? You see that during red carding there is an itemization there that the department made a 1 per cent. gain. What does that refer to? A. It refers to the month of February.

6444 Q. I mean, what type of gain does it refer to? Is it on dollar volume, on piece sales, on volume of sales, or what? A. It is on the total dress volume.

Q. In that department? A. In that department.

Q. For February? A. For February.

Q. As compared with 1936? A. With——

Q. With 1935? A. With 1935; that is right.

Q. And Commission's Exhibit 485 contains the same comparative percentages as regards net increases or decreases in dollar sales for the various departments referred to for 1936 over 1935; is that not correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Will you look at Department 371 on Commission's Exhibit 485? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And we find that for February the department went ahead of 1935 32.4; is that not correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, will you turn to Commission's Exhibit 483? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And we find that the department went ahead, according to Commission's Exhibit 483, for the month of February, only 1 per cent.? A. Not the department.

Q. What is it? A. Total dress volume. 6446

Q. Did you not just tell me that the 1 per cent. gain referred to the— A. Total dress volume.

Q. —total dollar volume? A. Total dress volume in dollars.

Q. Yes. A. Total dress volume in dollars, yes; that is correct.

Q. What does Commission's Exhibit 485 refer to? A. Total department volume.

Q. Now, let me understand this: Is Commission's Exhibit 483 only a part of Department 371? A. That is right.

Q. That is, you have just taken— A. Just the dresses.

Q. —a portion of that department? A. Taken just the dresses.

Q. Well, what else is there in that department? A. Coats and suits. It is the junior wear department. 6447

Q. Well, then, when you entitle Commission's Exhibit 483 as the junior miss dress department; is that not incorrect? A. Well, I might have said junior miss dress section in the junior wear department.

Q. Yes, that would have been a great deal more frank. A. Would have been a little more specific, but I think it is specific enough here where we refer only to the total dress volume, it is clear to us.

Q. It is clear to you? A. Yes.

Q. But, necessarily, it must be clear to the Commission. A. Well——

Q. Your inaccurate figures in Commission's Exhibit 481 were likewise clear to you, were they not?

Mr. Martin: I object to any such proceedings.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, when I asked you what Commission's Exhibit 483 was, you stated what that department was; without qualification you told me that that was Department 371, did you not?

6449

Mr. Martin: I object, your Honor; he asked him what department it was and he replied..

Mr. Albert: Precisely. And I think that the witness, if he had been frank and fair in his answer, should have told me that that was a subdivision of Department 371.

Mr. Martin: I do not know that the Commission is interested in what you think, either..

Mr. Albert: The Commission will most certainly be, Mr. Martin.

Mr. Martin: I will be surprised if they are.

Mr. Albert: It is about time that you got a few surprises.

Mr. Martin: I think so; you have not given me any yet.

6450

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What does the fourth column of figures in Commission's Exhibit 483-A, the fourth and fifth columns, refer to? A. You mean the one beginning 23 per cent. gain, or the one beginning 95? I mean, do your count the months as a column, or just the figures?

Q. No, the one beginning 95.—A. The one beginning 95?

Q. Yes. A. Those are piece sales of dresses in 1935 at $10.75 and $12.75 cost.

Q. That is, actual piece sales? A. Net piece sales.

Q. What do you mean by net piece sales? A. I mean the sales after the credits are taken off.

Q. You mean by units? A. Units.

Q. So that in 1935, in November, you sold 95 dresses in this subdivision of Department 371; is that what you mean? A. That is right, at $10.75 and $12.75 cost.

Q. Right. And in 1935 you sold 225 dresses? A. That is right.

Q. And your 95 dresses in 1935 brought in a net or a 6452 gross volume of $12,491? A. No.

Q. Well, how do you explain the meaning of the figures? A. The figures in column 1?

Q. Yes. A. $12,491 are the figures for the total dress volume in the department.

Q. That is, without referring to Junior Miss Dress Department? A. The total sales of dresses in the Junior Miss Dress Department 371.

Q. Yes. A. The figures in column 5 are the piece sales for the $10.75 and $12.75 cost dresses only.

Q. So that the figures in columns 1, 2 and 3 have absolutely no relationship to the figures in columns 4, 5 and 6? A. Well, they have some relationship, they contain the 95-piece sales at these two cost prices, yes.

Q. But you cannot contrast the figures in columns 1, 2 6453 and 3 with the figures in columns 4, 5 and 6 in order to reach a particular result, can you? A. No.

Q. And there is no explanation on this exhibit as to what these figures mean, is there? A. I think so.

Q. Under— A. Under "Before Red Carding" we have total dress volume covering the first, second and third sections; we have cost dress piece sales, $10.75 and $12.75, heading the remainder of the space, the third, fourth, fifth and sixth columns.

Q. Yes, but you do not specifically say that columns 4, 5 and 6 are again only a part of the subdivision of Department 371?

Mr. Martin: I object, your Honor; the exhibit is perfectly plain and speaks for itself. He has described what it is, and with the description and the exhibit itself, I see no need of going into those far off fields that my friend is trying to get into.

Mr. Albert: They are not particularly far off fields, if it please the Court. I think it is quite obvious when an exhibit of this kind is presented, taking contrasting theories, of determining per-6455 centages and volumes, it is quite obvious that the only purposes in presenting an exhibit of this kind is to confuse the Commission.

Mr. Martin: I object to that statement, your Honor, and ask that it be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer that question.

A. No, we do not make any statement there that—other than appears on the exhibit.

By Mr. Albert.

6456

Q. And when you have five figures running right across a line, both referring to periods of 1934 and five and five and six, and two of the five referring to percentages of gain or loss, do you not think it is reasonable for the party that is reading that exhibit to infer that those figures have some relationship, one to the other? A. Oh——

Q. —without a detailed explanation on it? A. I don't think so. I think it is perfectly clear.

Q. You think it is? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. From merely a reading of that? A. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, looking to March, on this subdivision of Department 371; and turning over to column 4, which refers to a subdivision of the subdivision, how many dresses were in the subdivision of the subdivision of that department in March of 1935? What was the total stock volume at that time? A. I can't tell you.

Q. You have not any idea? A. No.

Q. What was the total stock volume in 1936? A. I don't know. 6458

Q. So that in so far as these figures are concerned, it is impossible to tell the percentage of dresses sold of the stock on hand at the time in question, is it? A. There are no stock figures on this sheet, no.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, were there any unusual conditions in the dress industry at the beginning of 1936 that would affect your store volume? A. I believe that at about that time there was considerable talk about a strike.

Q. Was there not a little bit more than a talk about a strike? A. Not from the results.

Q. Not from the results? A. There was no strike.

Q. There was no strike. Was there anything that accomplished a result similar to a strike in so far as your ability to obtain merchandise was concerned? You seem to be quibbling about the word "strike." 6459

Mr. Martin: I move that that be stricken, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: What was the last remark?

Mr. Martin: Read the remark.

(Remark read.)

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

The Witness: What is the question?

(Question read.)

A. We had plenty of merchandise as far as delivery or—with the exception of—in the early part of the year—with the exception of our inability to get merchandise from Guild houses.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was not there a stoppage in February and March of 1936? A. There was a slowing up on delivery.

6461 Q. And did not that affect your volume? A. No.

Q. On hand? A. We don't think so.

Q. Have you got the figures of your volume on hand? A. I can get them.

Q. Will you be so good as to? A. I will. May I ask my assistant to get those figures now, or would you prefer them later?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, if you prefer to.

The Witness: Would you take care of the stock figures, Mr. Simmons? In 371 dresses on $10.75 and $12.75 costs? I think you know about the way I would like to have it prepared.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, I do not know what the witness means by "I think you would know 6462 about the way I would like to have it prepared."

The Witness: I mean the form.

Mr. Albert: We want the figures as they are.

The Witness: I mean the form; I mean the form, so that I can understand.

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Mr. Meder: That is silly. Justice Court stuff. We will bring the original, if you would like to have it.

Mr. Albert: I would like it very much.

Mr. Meder: We will be glad to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, will you turn to Exhibit 505? A. That is in yesterday's?

Q. That is in yesterday's.

Mr. Martin: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you Commission's Exhibit 505? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you look at the third column, please? A. 6464
Headed "149"?

Q. Right. What does that 149 refer to? A. It refers to the increase in piece sales.

Q. In Department 369? A. In Department 369 at——

Q. For 1936 over 1935? A. For the month——

Q. For the month of February? A. At $8.75 cost.

Q. At $8.75. Now, will you turn to Commission's Exhibit 507? This exhibit, I presume, is equally accurate with the other exhibits? A. I believe so.

Q. Will you be good enough to add the first column of figures under 1935 in the $8.75 piece line? A. 1569.

Q. And the exhibit is "1570"; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, will you not be good enough 6465 to add that, you will find that it adds up to 1579? A. That is right, 1579.

Q. So that the first column is a mistake; isn't that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, on your own figures for the first and second columns, you have that in 1935, 1570 dresses were sold, and in 1936 2656 dresses were sold—not the corrected figure I have given you, but using your own figures—to

Q. Oh, no, use your own figures, not my percentages. Use 1570, the figures your auditors used to figure out the percentage. It would not be much of a trick to find a difference in percentage if we take different totals, Mr. Sappington. A. Sixty-nine per cent.

Q. Sixty-nine per cent.? A. That is right.

Q. And on your own figures, your auditors have presented a figure here of 67 per cent.? A. That is right.

Q. That is correct? A. That is correct.

6467 Q. So that they have made a mistake there. Will you turn to the $12.75 column, and add your figures for 1935, and in order to save time, Mr. Sappington, will you take my statement of the fact that that column does not add up to 586, as set forth in the exhibit, but adds up to 583? A. That is right.

Q. You can check it. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. So that on Commission's Exhibit 507 there are three mistakes in simple computation of the figures that have been presented; is that not so? A. That is right.

Q. Now, on Commission's Exhibit 505, in the difference in piece sales between 1935 and 1936, we have the first figure for February as minus 57. Does that mean that for the $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75, the net difference
6468 in amount of piece sales is 57 in favor of 1935, that you sold 57 less pieces in 1936 than you did in 1935? A. No, that is for the total department.

Q. For the total department? A. Yes.

Q. So that in heading Commission's Exhibit 505, analysis of Department 369, again you have not told the whole truth, have you?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The exhibit speaks for itself, as to what it is, if it has a heading to it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What does Commission's Exhibit 505 refer to? A. Well, all the columns are marked; it is an analysis of Department 369.

Q. Well, that is what I am saying. A. But you can——

Q. Does not 57 refer to the price lines that you have there? A. It refers to the piece sales for the total department, the same as 1.6 refers to the volume for the total department.

Q. Then the figures under $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 had no relationship to the first two columns of figures; is that true? A. Yes; they are included in the first two columns. 6470

Q. They are included but you can't tell, you can't possibly compare them in order to get the figure 57; can you? A. It wasn't our intention that you should do so.

Q. You didn't explain that to the Court, did you? A. It wasn't asked.

Mr. Martin: Object.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In other words, you don't intend to make clear anything that the Commission's attorneys don't ask you about?

Examiner Bennett: It is in for what it is worth.

By Mr. Albert. 6471

Q. Mr. Sappington, let's get it straight. What does the first column refer to? A. The first column was the percentage of volume change in dollars, '35 against '36.

Q. For what price lines? A. All price lines.

Q. All the price lines. All types of garments? A. All types of garments, everything in 369.

Q. Everything in the department? A. That is right.

Q. No matter where it is in the store? A. That is right.

Q. What does the second column refer to? A. It refers to the comparison, to the different piece sales.

Q. Yes. A. For the entire department.

Q. For the entire department? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. All price lines? A. All price lines.

Q. All types of garments? A. All types of garments.

Q. Wherever situated in the store? A. Wherever situated in the store.

Q. Do you sell anything else in that department aside from ready-to-wear? Do you sell any hose or accessories 6473 of any kind? A. No.

Q. You are quite certain? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the first two columns then completely refer to the whole department? A. That is right.

Q. All price lines? A. That is right.

Q. What does the third column refer to? A. $8.75 cost dresses.

Q. And the second column—the next column, the fourth column? A. $10.75 cost dresses.

Mr. Meder: Keep your voice up.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are there all types of ready-to-wear merchandise included in that $8.75 cost of your third column? A. All 6474 types of ready-to-wear? No, sir.

Q. So that again we have another subdivision of the department in that you have eliminated coats and ready-to-wear suits from your third column, and your third column refers solely to your $8.75 dresses; isn't that right? A. There are no suits or coats in that Department 369. There are nothing but dresses in there.

Q. Very well. And your $10.75 cost column, which is the fourth column, what does that refer to? A. That refers to the difference in piece sales at $10.75 cost.

Q. Solely in the dress line? A. Solely in the dresses. That is all there are in 369, nothing but dresses.

Q. Nothing but dresses in the whole department? A. What we consider dresses. There might be a technical differentiation if you get to an item called a four-way suit, which is a trade term. We consider that a dress. And everything in Department 369 comes under our dress classification at the J. L. Hudson Company.

Q. Your $11.75 and your $12.75 column, I presume your answers would be the same as to those? A. That is right.

Q. Now, what have you omitted in listing in your last four columns that was included in your first two columns' computations? A. Well, there might have been some——

Q. I don't care what there might have been, Mr. Sappington. You stated that the last four columns referred to specific subdivisions of the department, and that the first two columns referred to the entire department. Now, what have you omitted to spread out on the record for the Commission after the first two columns that are included in the first two columns?

Mr. Martin: I object to that question, your Honor. It hasn't been shown that anything has been omitted. I suggest he lay a foundation and ask him if anything has been omitted.

Mr. Albert: The witness has been differentiating between the first two columns and the last four columns, your Honor, ever since I started on this exhibit. I don't think any greater foundation need be laid. I think he sunk himself far enough.

6477

Examiner Bennett: What is the pending question?

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. I would have to consult the records in that department in order to answer that question. There are times when additional price lines are included. I cannot tell you without looking at the records whether any additional price lines to those listed on this page were included in February, March, April, May, June and July, or not.

Q. But you were quite certain that something had been omitted when I first started to question you about this, didn't you? A. No.

Q. Weren't you, Mr. Sappington? A. No.

Q. Well, now, it is possible, then, that the last four columns of Commission's Exhibit 505 do reflect the total change in piece sales for Department 369 for 1935-1936; isn't that so? A. They have a bearing on the total piece sales, yes.

Q. Of course, they would have a bearing on it. I am asking you whether or not—let me put it this way. The question is withdrawn. If there have been no additional price lines in that department for that period, you state that you are not certain whether there were or not, then the last four columns in Commission's Exhibit 505 contain the difference in piece sales for the entire department; isn't that so? A. I don't know whether they do or not.

Q. What do they contain? A. They contain the piece sales for the price lines that have been indicated. The column 2 contains the difference——

Q. You have stated— A. —in piece sales for the total department.

Q. Right. A. Now, whether or not the piece sales at 6480 $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 cost comprise the total piece sales in the department in the month of February, I cannot tell you without looking at the record in the store.

Q. In order to see whether any other price lines were sold, is that so? A. During that month, yes.

Q. Right. Now, if no other price lines were sold during that month, then the figures here will constitute the difference in piece sales for that department for the entire department; isn't that so? A. If we had no other merchandise in the department in the month of February except $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 cost, then the pieces given on this sheet should total—correspond with the total pieces for the department, if that is true.

Q. Right. Well, now, will you be good enough, please, between now and this afternoon, or now and to-morrow morning, to determine for us, rather, for the Commission, what price lines were sold in these departments in February, March, April, May, June and July in 1935 and 1936 in addition to the ones here listed? A. If we can get that. If we can get that information. I believe we can.

Q. Therefore, Mr. Sappington, to make it perfectly 6482 clear—and with the indulgence of the Court at the expense possibly of some repetition—there is no relationship as far as the determination of how the figure was arrived at between column 2 of Commission's Exhibit 505 and the other four columns? A. Column 2 contains the other four columns.

Q. Naturally, but it also contains other figures? A. Possibly; I don't know.

Q. Will you compute, if you please, the total difference in piece sales between 1935 and 1936 for February for Department 369 in the price lines indicated, and see if you get minus 57? A. I don't think that is necessary because we don't know that that includes the whole department.

Q. So that if you do not get minus 57, Mr. Sappington—
I am trying to get at a simple method of checking up on 6483 your figures merely from the figures that are in the exhibit. If you don't get minus 57, that means that there were other subdivisions of this department that were taken into consideration; is that not so? A. I don't know. I told you that we would have to look at the record to find out what it shows.

Q. In other words, when you say you don't know, you are not taking any chances that the computation of the price lines indicated on 505 haven't been inaccurately made; is that not so? You just want to see if you can check on it?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness answered the question fully and fairly.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you be good enough to find out for us exactly what other price lines were sold in the Department 369 for the months indicated, because obviously without that we cannot check on the figures even as presented in this ex-
6485 hibit? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, is the same philosophy for the preparation of Commission's Exhibit 506 prevalent in that exhibit as is prevalent in Commission's Exhibit 505? A. Yes.

Q. That was prepared in the same way? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that the last three columns in addition, or subtraction of the last two columns, or any manipulation of the last three columns will not necessarily give you the computation that is set down in the exhibit in the second column? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you obtain the figures for us, please? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, will you turn, Mr. Sappington, to Commission's 6486 Exhibit 507?

Mr. Albert: May I ask the indulgence of the Court for a minute or two?

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, the witness indicated a desire for a short recess.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will give him a recess of five minutes.

The Witness: Thank you.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may resume.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, coming back to Commission's Exhibit 505, Mr. Sappington, and turning to the column "$11.75 cost," we again find a different sort of computation of figures than is contained in the rest of the exhibit. Will you explain that, please, as to what you mean by 104 to 14? A. I mean that the piece sales, "$11.75 cost," dropped from 104 pieces in February of 1935, to 14 pieces in February of 1936.

Q. So that the figure 14 in that column corresponds to the figure minus 191 in the $10.75 column; is that it? A. Oh, no. 6488

Q. Will you explain that, please? A. I just stated that under $11.75 cost the figures indicated that the piece sales dropped from 104 pieces in February of 1935 to 14 pieces in February, 1936.

Q. Yes. You are correct. That is my mistake. The difference between 104 and 14 corresponds to the figure in 191 in $10.75 cost? A. That is right.

Q. That is right. Now, turning to Commission's Exhibits 508 and 509, what do those figures constitute? They constitute—if I may paraphrase it for you—correct me—the difference in the net piece sales in the departments listed for all types of merchandise for all price lines between 1935 and 1936; is that correct? A. No. 6489

Q. What then? A. Exhibit 508 gives the actual net piece sales.

Q. Yes. A. For the spring season of 1935, February to July.

Q. Yes. A. For the departments listed in the first column.

Q. Including all price lines and all types of merchandise sold in the department? A. That is right.

Q. And 509 gives it for 1936; is that not right? A. That is right.

Q. So that addition or subtraction of the comparative figures for the respective months for departments listed will give you the difference in the net piece sales for those departments between 1936 and 1935; isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. All right. A. With the exception of Department 331, inasmuch as this is for dresses only.

Q. I don't quite understand that. A. Well, you see, this Exhibit 508 is headed "Dresses" and Exhibit 509—

Q. 508 is headed "Dresses"? A. Yes. Commission's 6491 Exhibit 508, "Dresses, Net Piece Sales, Spring, 1935."

Q. Go ahead. A. 509, "Dresses, Net Piece Sales, Spring, 1936."

Mr. Meder: Ha, ha!

The Witness: Now, in Department 371 and in Department 385 we carry merchandise which is not dresses.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that— A. This is for dresses only. Now, in Departments 338, 358, 359, 367, and 369, all the merchandise we carry in those departments we consider as dresses.

Q. So that when you head up this Exhibit 508 and 509 as "Dresses"— A. It means dresses.

6492 Q. And the inclusion of Departments 371 and 385 refers only to the subdivision of those departments and not to the entire department? A. Only to dresses in those departments.

Q. And refers to the dress subdivision? A. Well, if you choose to call it a subdivision. We have no subdivision of the department.

Q. But you haven't included, in Commission's Exhibits 508 and 509, everything that is sold in Departments 371 and 358, have you—385, have you? A. No, sir.

Q. So that to that extent the exhibits are not perfectly clear, are they? A. It pertains to dresses.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I think the exhibit is perfectly clear. It is headed "Dresses" on both exhibits. The exhibit speaks for itself.

Mr. Albert: Yes, the exhibit is clear now.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have headed Commission's Exhibits 508 and 509, "Net Piece Sales"? A. That is correct.

Q. Will you turn to Commission's Exhibit 505, and will you turn to the second column? How is that headed up? 6494
A. Piece sales.

Q. What is the difference? A. No difference.

Q. Well, then, shouldn't you have headed the second column of Commission's Exhibit 505, "Net Piece Sales"?

Mr. Haycraft: Ha!

A. Possibly, but all of these figures are net. We deal only in net figures.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes, but you are using two contrasting— A. No, there is no contrasting——

Q. —figures here. One is piece sales and one is net piece sales. A. They mean the same thing. 6495

Q. You didn't explain that, did you?

Mr. Albert: The witness shakes his shoulders.

The Witness: Took it for granted.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You took it for granted? A. It is obvious to us. We deal only in net figures, every figure.

Q. If you deal only in net figures, why was it necessary to head up Commission's Exhibit 508 as "Net Piece Sales"?

Mr. Haycraft: Ha! I object to that, Mr. Examiner; no sense to it, nonsensical and farcical, these questions are getting to be now.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, we have here two exhibits with different titles on them, and I assume that when two exhibits are placed into evidence, one with one title and one with another, that we are referring to different things.

Examiner Bennett: Will you let me see those exhibits, please?

6497 (The exhibits referred to were handed to the Examiner.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is 508 and 509.

Mr. Albert: Has your Honor 505?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: The second column is headed "Piece Sales." Now, the figures which correspond to that is the difference between the figures presented on Commission's Exhibit 508 and the figures presented on Commission's Exhibit 509, but Commission's Exhibit 508 and 509 are headed "Net Piece Sales." I don't think that is clear unless it is brought out.

Examiner Bennett: What is the pending question?

6498 (The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

A. It wasn't necessary. It could have been headed "Piece Sales."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington—question withdrawn.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin, will you turn to page 3528 of the record? I am going to refer to that.

Mr. Martin: I haven't yesterday's copy of the record.

Mr. Albert: Do you want to follow it with me?

Mr. Post: Sit over here. Do you want to sit over here?

Mr. Martin: No, that is all right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, referring to Commission's Exhibit 504. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does the figure —59 in the second column, the first line, mean? A. The difference in piece sales for the month of February between 1935 and 1936. 6500

Q. Does that mean that you sold 59 less units in that entire department during that time? A. That is right.

Q. Now, I read you the question and answer with reference to that column propounded by Mr. Martin, and ask if you wish to change your testimony: "Now, what does the next line refer to? Answer: The next column referred to the piece sales, the difference in piece sales on the same basis. In other words, in February of 1936 we sold 59 more pieces in that department than we did in February, 1935"? A. That is wrong. That is a misstatement.

Q. You want to correct your statement to say that it is 59 less pieces, is that correct? A. 59 less pieces in 1936 than in February, 1935.

Q. All right. 6501

Mr. Martin: Is that all from that?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have testified that you have made a study of the trend of sales. What elements did you take into consideration in making that study? A.

Stock on hand, advertising, sales help, all the factors tha pertain to getting business in a retail establishment.

Q. And those factors enter into the question whether o not a department goes ahead of a prior year or falls be hind a prior year; isn't that so? A. They may. The may, yes.

Q. There is no question of that in your mind, is there A. No.

Q. Would you say that the physical space allotted to department is also something to be taken into considera tion? A. It might have an effect.

Q. The promotional sales in a department? A. The 6503 might have an effect.

Q. The amount of mark-up? A. That might have a effect.

Q. The window space allotted to a department? A That might have an effect on the volume.

Q. And all those things are the various elements whic will or may affect the volume in a department, is that no so? A. Some of the elements.

Q. Of course, another very vital element to be taken int consideration is the change of the personnel of the depart ment, if any; is that not so? A. Well, it depends o which personnel you mean.

Q. Well, let us say, for instance, if a buyer changes there was one buyer in January and a new buyer in Feb ruary; that may perhaps affect the volume of the depart 6504 ment? A. It might; it might.

Q. And if there are any physical alterations made i the department, that also might affect the department is that not so? A. It might help; it might hurt.

Q. At least, during the time that the physical altera tions in a department are being made, would you say tha that might tend toward a lessening of the efficiency o the department; that is, during the course of time whe repairs were being made? A. I think that is a matter o opinion.

Q. Well, what is your opinion? A. Why, I have no definite opinion one way or another.

Q. How do you feel about it? A. In my experience I have seen departments that were moved about do an excellent business.

Q. Yes. A. Seemed to stimulate them.

Q. And— A. And we usually consider it a matter, if a department claims that it loses business because it is being moved or changed, we consider that a matter largely from the standpoint of alibi.

Q. I see. A. We don't take that seriously in our business.

Q. Yes. But I was not referring to that, was I, Mr. 6506 Sappington? A. Referring to what?

Q. Was I referring to the fact that departments are being moved around, or was I referring to the fact that physical alterations and repairs are being made in a department where it is situated? A. Well, I understood that you meant moving around.

Q. Let me have your answer. A. Yes, physical alterations and moving around usually go hand in hand.

Q. I will go with you on that. But now let me have your opinion as to whether or not repairs and improvements, physical improvements being made in a department, in its particular situation in a store, will not affect the volume of that department, while alterations, physical improvements, and repairs are being made? A. Not nec- 6507 essarily.

Q. So that with workmen working around the department, and tools cluttered around, and woodwork thrown around, and hammering going on, and show cases being torn down and replaced, you say that that would not affect the customer volume any in the department? A. We don't throw woodwork around, and we don't tear down show cases, and we don't tear plaster in the customer's—in front of a customer and that sort of thing. Where we have alterations, we handle them in a very orderly manner, and we do it to the least possible disturbance of business, and——

Q. But there is some disturbance? A. —and we rebuilt almost our entire store, and our volume increased steadily.

Q. Well— A. —and I can show you plenty of figures.

Q. Yes, but there was some disturbance, was there not? A. There was some disturbance, but not necessarily a loss in business.

Q. Now, with respect to Department 338, Mr. Sappington, where was that located in 1935? A. In 1935 Depart-6509 ment 338 was located on the sixth floor of J. L. Hudson & Company, on the Woodward Avenue side of the building about 70 or 80 feet from the south wall.

Q. Was it located in the same place in 1936? A. Approximately.

Q. What do you mean by approximately? How far was it moved back, forward, or sideways? A. I could not tell you without looking at the plans.

Q. But it was not in its identical space, was it? A. Not in the exact location.

Q. Now, with respect to Department 358, where was that located in 1935? A. In just about the same place as 338.

Q. Both— A. They used the same room.

6510 Q. Both side by side? A. No, this way (indicating).

Q. Or were they inter— A. Intermingled.

Q. Intermingled? A. That is right.

Q. The dresses of the department were intermingled? A. No, some of the dresses were on one side of the room and some on the other. These two departments, 338 and 358, used two rooms. Certain price lines were in one room, certain price lines in another room, in both departments. Certain wardrobes were established in one department and certain wardrobes were established in the other department.

Q. Was one whole side of the room Department 358, and the other whole side of the room Department 338? A. I cannot tell you exactly.

Q. Or were the showcases intermingled? A. There weren't any showcases.

Q. What do you call them? A. Wardrobes.

Q. One wardrobe was 338 and one wardrobe 358, and perhaps two 358 and two 338? A. Perhaps; not always; there was no definite arrangement of stock.

Q. Do both departments handle the same price lines of merchandise? A. Approximately, yes, for the most part of the stock.

Q. What is the difference in the type of merchandise 6512 handled by the departments? A. One was women's and one was misses'.

Q. One was women's and one was misses'? A. Yes.

Q. Was Department 358 moved in the same way? A. 358 and 338 were moved about together.

Q. Both together? A. Yes.

Q. They were not in the same space they had previously occupied, and you are not certain where they were moved to? A. Well, I know where they are now.

Q. Well, didn't you say that you had to have the plans in order to tell how far they were moved? A. You asked me how far, yes.

Q. Did you mean by that that you did not know the exact number of feet they were moved? A. That is right.

Q. Have you any rough idea? A. They are almost in 6513 exactly the same place that they were before.

Q. But not in exactly the same place? A. Well, I can't tell you, I say, without looking at the plans.

Q. Right. A. But almost.

Q. Now, at any time during the period from February 1, 1935, to the present time, were Departments 338 and 358 in any other part of the store, or part of the floor, than where they are at the present time?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think we will assume that there has not been any thimble rigging of the departments.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, with all due respect, I do not think we can assume that, unless the witness testified that it has not been moved.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to assume it.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have any alterations or repairs or improvements
6515 been made with respect to Departments 338 and 358, in so far as their physical condition is concerned?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, as being too indefinite. Let him fix a time.

Mr. Albert: Any time covered by the period to which your figures relate, Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Martin: I still object to it. Let him name the specific time to which he refers.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will overrule the objection.

Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. What period do you mean, Mr.——

6516

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Any period. I am seeking information from you. A. I am not clear. Our schedule of improvements on the sixth floor covered quite a long period. Now, I cannot recall without consulting our schedules in our superintendent's office when the departments in which you are interested were affected. It is quite possible that Departments 338 and 358 were completed, all changes made, before the 1st of February.

Q. Yes. A. 1936. That is quite possible.

Q. But you are not certain? A. I am not certain, and I could not answer exactly without consulting the schedules which are undoubtedly available in our superintendent's office.

Q. Will you consult those schedules, please? A. I will consult them.

Q. And is——

Mr. Haycraft: Much ado about nothing.

Examiner Bennett: So far as I recall, you have the facts as to what was done with these departments for the last two years—that is, they seem to remain in practically the identical positions in 6518
J. L. Hudson Company's place of merchandising. Now, you are asking about fixing of a time with more definiteness when some sort of a slight change took place, and I am going to instruct the witness to do as he pleases about getting that information. I think it is of no particular consequence, and I am not going to put a burden on him if he does not feel like doing it.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, is not it a matter of fact that the alterations and the improvements that have been made with respect to the departments in question have been of 6519 such a radical nature and of such a vital nature that merchandise men from all over the country have been visiting J. L. Hudson Company in order to examine these improvements?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I believe he has stated that there has been a little change made.

I want to prove that these changes have been very vital and of quite a sizable amount, and must, of necessity, have had some effect upon their department.

Examiner Bennett: Well— I want to ask a question or two.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Mr. Sappington, have you a recollection as to the approximate time that you began any changes which might have been made in those departments in the physical location and physical conditions under which they were 6521 operated? A. Yes, your Honor. I believe the changes were begun late in 1935. Whether that came in November or December, I am not certain, but I believe it was in November.

Q. Can you give the approximate date when they were finished? A. No, sir; I cannot do that without consulting records, because the departments were finished in rotation.

Q. Within a month or two? A. Yes, they were finished in rotation. There was a definite schedule applied as to when certain departments were to be completed.

Q. Would they run longer into 1936 than the period during which changes were made in 1935? A. Oh, no, they were completed by March, 1936.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right.

6522

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Sappington, was not there a new department just completed last week in the store, and an announcement made of it in the newspapers?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. The way the question was asked does not mean anything.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When did you finish air conditioning the departments, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

A. I couldn't tell you.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.
Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it fair to say, Mr. Sappington, that with respect to most of the figures that have been presented with re- 6524 gard to the various departments, without going specifically and technically into each department for each month, that most of the departments, if they fell behind during February, March and April, picked up in May and June—is that a fair statement? A. I couldn't answer that without looking up the records.

Q. At the particular figures? A. Yes, I would have to consult the figures before answering that question.

Q. Well, would you say that if alterations were not completed generally until March of 1936, as you testified in answer to the Court's questions, and if the records reveal that there was a decrease up until March, in either your dollar volume or your total volume of sales, and that that decrease lessened in May and June, would you not 6525 say, in your opinion, from your experience in the dress line, that the alterations made in the departments possibly had some effect on the volume? A. Not necessarily, no, I wouldn't say that.

Q. Very well. Now, Mr. Sappington, will you turn, please, to Commission's Exhibit 483-A again, and on the second page of that exhibit we find there a list of resources—do you follow me? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that a list of resources from whom merchandis was purchased during all of 1935? That does not cove any particular period of time, does it? A. It says, "Fal season of 1935."

Q. What period does that take in? A. That takes i from the 1st of August to the last of June.

Q. Is Joan Junior known under any other name? A That is the only name that I know of.

Q. Now, will you show me, please, Joan Junior liste as a Guild house with whom you did business, or whos dresses you used during 1935, as contained in Commi sion's Exhibit 478-A? A. The list of Guild houses wit 6527 whom we did business in 1935 was listed on a separat sheet, the same as the list of Guild houses with whom w did business in the suit department, as illustrated in Com mission's Exhibit 478-B. In giving this information, o in submitting these exhibits, the list of Guild houses fo the junior department was left out.

Q. All junior department? A. For the junior depar ment. I found that in my file this morning.

Q. So that in comprising Commission's Exhibit 47 you omitted entirely dresses purchased in a particula department? A. Accidentally.

Q. Is that it? A. We accidentally——

Q. Well, accidentally or not, it is no less an error, is it

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

6528 A. It is not included.

Mr. Martin: Object to that statement.

Mr. Albert: Now——

Mr. Martin: And ask that it be stricken fro the record. There is no evidence that it is in erro at all, the witness stated that it was not offered i evidence——

Examiner Bennett: Well, it may stand.

Mr. Haycraft: Ruling?

Examiner Bennett: Let it stand.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, referring again to Commission's Exhibit 483-A, in the list of resources we find Dalton—do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. Am I correct in saying that the asterisk under the column heading "Guild" means that that is a Guild house? A. That is what it seems to indicate, yes.

Q. Now, can you tell me from what source you determined that Dalton was a member of the Guild? A. Well, 6530 either from the buyer or from the merchandise manager, I do not know which, but that is the way we got most of our information about the members of the Guild, either—

Q. Did you not look at that list? A. Either from the list on the back of your—of the Guild stationery, or from our market contacts.

Q. Would you be good enough, please, to look at the list you referred to and see if you can find Dalton listed as a Guild house? A. No, it does not seem to be here.

Mr. Martin: What is that list you referred to?

The Witness: It is under the junior miss houses, I suppose; it is not under the junior miss houses or in the other listing.

6531

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When the buyer told you——

Mr. Martin: What date does the list refer to?

The Witness: As near as I can tell, it refers to 1935.

Mr. Martin: What particular time in 1935?

The Witness: This letter is dated November 8.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When a buyer told you that a particular house was a Guild house, did you check that with the list to which you have referred to see if the buyer was correct? A. No, not always.

Q. You took the buyer's word for it, and you have taken the buyer's word for all the testimony that you have given that you have not had personal knowledge of, but that was communicated to you by the buyer; is that not so? A. Not necessarily.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Sappington, do you not know personally that Dalton is not a Guild house? A. I 6533 do not.

Q. And never was a Guild house? A. I do not.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, coming back to Commission's Exhibit 505, which refers to Department 369, you stated that column 2 refers to the net piece sales of the department. Is that correct, despite the fact that the column is headed "Piece Sales, 3536"?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. It is repetition; he is going over the same ground.

Mr. Albert: I wish to point out another discrepancy. Your Honor please. I am merely recalling to the witness' memory what he testified to.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

6534 A. Piece sales or net piece sales, they mean the same thing.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Right. Now, turning to Commission's Exhibit 507, which is likewise headed "Analysis of Department 369." We find there the total piece sales; is that not right? A. That is right.

Q. But that designation of piece sales does not refer to the net piece sales of Department 369, but rather refers to the piece sales in the price lines indicated in that exhibit; is that not right? A. That is right.

Q. So that piece sales is used on Commission's Exhibit 505, in one sense, and is used on Commission's Exhibit 507, in another? A. Exhibit 505, the piece sales, meaning the piece sales for the whole department.

Q. Right. A. Commission's Exhibit 507, the piece sales mean the piece sales for the four cost prices set forth on that sheet.

Q. So that, as I said, the designation "Piece Sales" in Commission's Exhibit 505 is different than the designation "Piece Sales" in Commission's Exhibit 507? 6536

Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

A. Piece sales are always piece sales, they cannot be anything else.

Q. Yes, but piece sales in Commission's Exhibit 505 refers to an analysis of Department 369, and in Commission's Exhibit 505 piece sales refers to an analysis of Department 369, meaning the net piece sales of the entire department, and piece sales referring to analysis of Department 369 on Commission's Exhibit 507——

Mr. Martin: Now——

By Mr. Albert. 6537

Q. ——refers solely to the price lines indicated, and not to the whole department as the exhibit is headed; is that not so?

Mr. Martin: I object to this long peroration on the part of counsel for the respondent. If your Honor please, the witness has stated two or three times exactly what these figures and designations refer to, and the exhibits speak perfectly clear for themselves. So, I object to any continuance of keeping on going into that same question, asking him the same question over again.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I want to urge it, and I think it has been demonstrated now that black on an exhibit means one thing, in one place, and black on an exhibit referring to the same department means something else in another place, and how can anybody check up on these figures when terms are used indiscriminately and interchangeably with respect to the same terms which 6539 appear as to the same department.

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, do you know whether or not Department 338 occupied more physical space in 1936, or less physical space in 1936 than it did in 1935? A. No, sir. I don't know whether or not I found more or less. I know that it was adequate at both times.

Q. So that physical space of Department 338 in reaching your conclusion or opinion as to what caused the differ-
6540 ence between the volume in 1935 and 1936 is unknown to you? A. I am quite sure that the space had nothing to do with it. It was adequate at both times.

Q. Will you please answer my question? You don't know what the difference in the amount of physical space is, whether it had any effect or not?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to that. There hasn't been anything shown that there was any difference.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: He hasn't answered that that is so. That is exactly the answer I want.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. There is no foundation for further questioning along that line. He doesn't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did Department 358 occupy more or less space during the period from February 1, 1935, to July, 1935, as contrasted with the period February 1, 1935, to July, 1936? A. I do not know.

Q. You have no knowledge of that. And is the answer 6542 the same with respect to Department 359? A. I don't know the exact space occupied by any of the departments during 1935 or 19—or at present, the exact square feet.

Q. I am not asking you that. I am asking you generally, did the departments—were the departments allotted more or less space in 1936 over the space that they were allotted in 1935?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has already answered that.

Mr. Albert: He has answered, your Honor, in a very quibbling fashion that he doesn't know it in feet and inches. I didn't ask him that.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, he doesn't know.

Mr. Albert: Very well. 6543

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to further asking of that question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, do you know how many sales were held in Department 338 in the period of February, 1935, to July, 1935? A. The number of sales?

Q. I am not referring to specific itemized sales of articles, Mr. Sappington. You understand that.

Examiner Bennett: You mean promotional sales?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Promotional sales. A. No.

Q. Do you know how many promotional sales were held in Department 338 in the period of time referred to in 1936? A. No.

Q. And do you know the information along that line for any of the departments? A. No.

6545 Q. So that that element was not taken into consideration in reaching your opinion; is that right? A. Yes, it was taken into consideration in reaching my opinion.

Q. Do you know what the volume of stock was in Department 338 in the period referred to in 1935? That is, in my question which I asked you at the present time I am referring to the period for which you submitted figures. A. From February to July.

Q. From February to July, 1935, and from February to July, 1936. A. Yes.

Q. So that I won't repeat the time. A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Do you know what the volume of stock was in Department 338 for that period? A. Well, I don't keep that 6546 figure in my head, but I have it with me.

Q. You have the figures with you at the present time? A. Yes, the price lines covered in the testimony, yes.

Q. Will you give us those figures, please? A. Department 338, first?

Q. If you please. A. Now, I would like to—our figures—I would like to make a slight explanation here, if I may?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: Please. Our figures on stocks are made up by weeks so that I will have to give you the weeks in February and the weeks in March, April, May, June, July and so forth.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You haven't up to the present time, totaled those figures? A. Well, no. We don't total them. They are of no use to us totaled because we operate by weeks.

Q. Did you attempt to obtain or find any one figure demonstrating the volume of stock on hand? A. We have no figure that could do that. I couldn't give you any 6548 figure, single figure that would show our stock on hand.

Q. In that department? A. No.

Q. Wouldn't the addition of the various weeks give you that? A. No.

Q. Wouldn't you be able to deduct, carry over of each week in order to get the figure? A. (Witness shakes head negatively) No.

Q. Couldn't you strike an average? A. No, average wouldn't mean anything.

Q. Well, then, as a matter of fact, wouldn't giving us the weekly figure not mean very much? A. Oh, yes, it means a great deal. It tells us exactly what we had. That is the shortest period of time to which we can bring these figures down.

6549

Q. But wouldn't the figure of a second week of a month also include, let us say, some dresses that were in the department in the first week? A. Oh that is possible, but our—we—we develop these figures to show our ability to take care of business at these price lines as nearly as figures can by indicating the number of pieces we have to take care of our business during that week.

Q. Well, let's simplify it, Mr. Sappington. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, averages with respect to your volume in 1936 you have testified wouldn't mean a thing; isn't that so? A. Oh, no.

Q. I mean, averaging each week in order to obtain a single figure? A. Well, averaging——

Q. For 1936? A. Average the figures, averaging the weekly stock figures indicating the number of pieces on hand.

Q. Yes. A. The weekly figures for any given period of time, a month or a season or a year, wouldn't mean anything to me.

Q. Right. That is what I thought you said. A. Yes.

Q. But contrasting your average for 1936 and your aver-
6551 age for 1935 would give you a proper figure to compute by? A. It wouldn't mean anything to me. It would be just a figure, as far as I am concerned.

Q. Wouldn't that in some way permit you to determine the sales trend? A. You mean that number of pieces on hand?

Q. No, your average number of pieces on hand in 1936 as contrasted with your average number of pieces on hand in 1935, each figure being computed by the same method. A. Oh, it would be a figure, but I don't know what it would mean.

Q. Very well. That is all I wanted to get. A. I have never seen such a figure.

Q. All right.

6552 Mr. Haycraft: Let the record show, Mr. Examiner, that the witness has not been allowed to answer the question as propounded to him about this stock on hand. He has the figures here ready to answer the question but the question has not been pressed.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, did you make any investigation of the amount of advertising by J. L. Hudson & Company with respect to the departments on hand as contrasted between 1935 and 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you find? A. I can't answer that because I don't carry those figures in my head, but I have them here.

Q. Can you tell us approximately what you find? A. Oh, no, no, sir.

Q. Well, look at your figures and let us have them. A. Which departments?

Q. Department 369. A. Department 369. Which month? Right straight across?

Q. Yes. A. Our advertising figures and all the figures that we handle on advertising are on the basis of comparison and are in percentage. Department 369, January of 1936, 5.9 per cent. 6554

Q. What does that mean, Mr. Sappington? A. 5.9 per cent. of the sales.

Q. Right. A. In January, 1935, 5 per cent. of the sales; in February of 1936, 5.3 per cent. of the sales; in February of 1935, 3.1 per cent. of the sales; in March of 1936, 4.5 per cent. of the sales; March of 1935, 6.6 per cent. of the sales.

In each case the first figure I will give '35 in order to avoid repeating. The second figure is '36. I am wrong again. The first figure will be '36. The second figure will be '35.

March, 4.5, 6.6; April, 4.0, 5.0; May, 4.6, 3.3; June, 3.7, 3.2; July, 4.9, 3.5. 6555

Q. The first figure given in each case— A. The first figure given in each case is 1936; the second figure given in each case is 1935.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, do those figures refer to the entire Department 369, or do they refer to the various subdivisions with respect to which you have— A. The entire department.

Q. The entire department?. A. The entire department.

Q. So that in so far as their figures are concerned, there is no specific direct relationship to the particular department for which you have given figures? I mean, they are naturally included? A. Yes, in this department there happens to be because the figures we have given on these exhibits from $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 cost——

Q. Yes. A. —are the important price lines in this department, and are the price lines to which we restrict practically all of our advertising, I would say over—90 per cent. or over, except during clearance periods and our month-end periods, which is our clearance for each 6557 month.

Q. Have you got any figures to prove that? A. Oh, I know that to be a fact.

Q. Well, now, then, if those price lines are the most important things in the department, and most of your business in that department is restricted to those price lines, and most of that merchandise is Guild merchandise, why, in Commission's Exhibit 369, have you split your figures to include the total department of the net piece sale and haven't given us the figures with respect to those particular price lines?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to that.

A. I don't believe—I am sorry——

6558 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Take a look at Commission's Exhibit 505.

Mr. Martin: You just referred to another exhibit. You referred to Exhibit 369. What exhibit are you referring to?

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: Make that Exhibit 505.

Mr. Martin: I object to the question. It is unintelligible.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. With respect to your advertising, Mr. Sappington, you just stated that the advertising figures that you have presented apply to the particular price lines that you have —for which you have presented figures for that department, because those price lines comprise most of the business that is done in that department, and the rest of the business is very little; is not that so, and that is why——

Mr. Martin: No. 6560

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —your advertising figure covers the price lines for which figures have been presented?

Mr. Martin: I object to any such statement as that.

Mr. Albert: I am asking the witness if that is what he said.

Mr. Martin: Well, that is all right.

Mr. Albert: He can contradict me.

Mr. Martin: And I am objecting to the question. The witness did not state that. He testified that his advertising referred to the entire department, that in this particular instance those price lines 6561 were the main items in that particular department to which he was referring.

Mr. Albert: And we——

Mr. Martin: And that, therefore, 90 per cent. of the advertising did directly refer to those particular lines.

Mr. Albert: And so I am asking him whether or not the merchandise in Department 369 not included in $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 is not an insignificant portion of that department.

Examiner Bennett: Is that your question now?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: We have no objection to that.

The Witness: Nothing is insignificant in Department 369. It may be a small proportion, but, after all, "small" is a relative term, and I told you that I couldn't tell you exactly without consulting the record. Now, I don't know how much additional merchandise there was in that department in February. I do know this, that our advertising policy 6563 with respect to Department 369 confines itself to the promotion for the most part, for the very large part, to the price lines $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 cost.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that the figure in column 2 of Commission's Exhibit 505 in February, minus 57, some of that decrease is due to the fact that no advertising, or very little advertising effort was put behind the merchandise in Commission's Exhibit 505, which was not in the price lines $8.75, $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75; doesn't that follow? A. Very little advertising was put behind that merchandise in either 1935 or 1936. It has no bearing on the figure for either 6564 year. Our policy was just the same in 1935 as it was in 1936.

Q. About how many units would you be leaving out of the computation if in computing piece sales for '35 and '36 in February, the Department 369 entirely omitted all price lines not in compass with the $8.75 and $12.75 price lines?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already testified that he couldn't answer that question without the figures.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, let the record show that the figures, advertising figures, were produced for all departments at the request of Mr. Albert, and the question was not followed up.

Mr. Albert: Let the record also show, if it please the Court, that thus far the figures that have been presented are total figures for departments, and they have not been explained as to how they specifically apply to the subdivisions of various departments which have been presented here; and let the record also reveal that they don't show the price 6566 lines, the breakdown of the price lines for which figures have been submitted.

Mr. Martin: I move that the statement be stricken as an incorrect statement of fact.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to let both statements stand. I think there is no special obligation on the part of the cross-examiner to put anything in that he does not see fit to put in, whether it is produced or not produced, because I do not think it means anything to call attention to that fact in the record.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, you knew Mrs. Miller, did you not? 6567
A. I have met Mrs. Miller.

Q. She is the Guild shopper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was her customary method of operation in the store?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; no proper foundation.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he knows; if he doesn't know, he may say so.

A. I don't believe I had enough contact with Mrs. Mill to know her method of operation. I saw her at certain times. I didn't see her regularly. Whether or not she did—she always did what she did when I saw her—I couldn't say.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. She was known to you, wasn't she, before she commenced her duties as a shopper of the Fashion Originators Guild?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial, and having no bearing on this issue, 6569 also, outside of the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Albert: Does the Commission wish to withdraw the paragraph in its complaint in which it charges that Guild shoppers spied? Do you mean to tell me that the Commission's attorneys don't know what they are charging in their complaint?

Mr. Martin: Oh, yes, we know. Read the question.

Mr. Albert: That is what the question has been about ever since we left New York, to demonstrate that the Guild shoppers openly went into the various retail establishments, made themselves known, and acted with the full consent and co-operation of every retailer and did nothing in an underhanded 6570 or spying manner.

Mr. Martin: I think if you will read the question back, you will see that you asked what she did before she was a shopper.

Mr. Albert: That wasn't the question at all. The question was——

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor, please, the question was, "Did you know her before she was a shopper?"

Mr. Meder: Read the question back.

Mr. Martin: Read the question back.

Examiner Bennett: Never mind. You may answer the question.

A. I did not. I did not know Mrs. Miller before she was a shopper for the Guild.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether or not she was known to J. L. Hudson Company?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert. 6572

Q. Or to any executives or buyers in J. L. Hudson Company?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial and calling for the opinion of this witness, which he absolutely couldn't know.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, if he knows; if he doesn't know, why, he may say so.

A. I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that Mrs. Miller was at one time employed by J. L. Hudson Company? 6573

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. I don't—I didn't know, no.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess for luncheon until 2.

(Whereupon, at 12.35 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, in order to curtail cross-examination on this, can you answer this question: Would you say that Mrs. Miller's activities in shopping J. L. Hudson Company were not in any way surreptitious or secretive or underhanded, and that J. L. Hudson & Company were at all times generally aware of the fact that she was shopping 6575 the various departments?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. I would say that there were times when we didn't know what Mrs. Miller was in the store for, whether she was there to detect copies, whether she was there as a matter of general observation, or what; and there were often—after she had completed her work, she announced what she had come to find out and not when she first arrived.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. But you knew Mrs. Miller? You knew she was a 6576 shopper? She didn't conceal the fact at any time that she was the Guild shopper, did she? A. No, she didn't conceal the fact that she was a Guild shopper.

Q. Do you mean by your previous answer that there were times when she might have come into the store and, without first seeing the buyer, started to shop the particular department? A. That is right.

Q. But after she shopped the department, she would generally speak to somebody about it, if she found anything? A. Sometimes she did.

Q. And as a general rule, you knew what she was doing and what she was there for? A. No. We didn't know whether she was there—what she was there for until she told us what she was there for.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibits 475, 480 and 486?

(The exhibits were handed to Mr. Albert.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, in connection with Commission's Exhibit 475, which is the declaration of co-operation, that declaration of co-operation is signed specifically by G. R. MacDonald for the basement store, is it not? A. That is right. 6578

Q. Mr. MacDonald is the man who was on the stand here yesterday; is he the man, the MacDonald that is referred to? A. Yes.

Q. This declaration of co-operation was to apply to your ready-to-wear department, isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. In connection with Commission's Exhibit 475, was any letter sent, or any communication had with the Fashion Originators Guild of America prior to the signing of the declaration of co-operation? A. Before we signed the declaration of co-operation, we received a letter from the Guild or from Mr. Rentner, at least—from Mr. Rentner, on Guild stationery, stating the policy of the Guild.

Q. That is Commission's Exhibit 480? A. 480-A. 6579

Q. Right. A. 480-A, right.

Q. Was any communication from you—by "you" I mean either yourself personally or J. L. Hudson & Company, as you will—to the Fashion Originators Guild in answer to Commission's Exhibits 480-A and B? A. Not that I recall.

Q. And in addition, Commission's Exhibit 486, in evidence, is advice from the A.M.C. to you to sign the declaration of co-operation, is it not? I am referring to the telegram from Bergdahl to you personally, Commission's Exhibit 486. A. I think Exhibit 486 states what it states.

Q. Yes. Now, is there any restriction of any kind contained in Commission's Exhibit 475?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. The exhibit is in evidence and will speak for itself.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I think I will sustain the objection unless it is made more specific.

6581 By Mr. Albert.

Q. In connection with the signing of Commission's Exhibit No. 475, being the declaration of co-operation of J. L. Hudson & Company, was there ever any request by J. L. Hudson & Company for any exceptions with respect thereto? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to the signing of the declaration of co-operation? A. Not prior to the signing.

Q. You received the letter of Mr. Rentner—withdrawn. The letter of Mr. Rentner, Commission's Exhibit 480, is dated June 16, isn't that so? A. That is so.

Q. Is it your understanding that you had until approximately July 5 to sign the declaration of co-operation if you wanted to sell the fall lines, roughly speaking? A. I 6582 suppose we could have waited until July 5. There was no penalty attached to our not waiting.

Q. You have anticipated my next question, Mr. Sappington. And despite the fact that you had until July 5, and probably received Mr. Rentner's letter on or about June 17, your declaration of co-operation signed without exception was delivered to the Fashion Originators Guild on June 22; is that not so? A. I cannot answer as to that definitely. There is a date there, June 22, which I assume was put there by the Guild office.

Q. Have you any reason to believe that that declaration of co-operation was not signed and received by the Fashion Originators Guild at the time stated? A. No; I would say that is approximately correct.

Q. Right. Now, I do not suppose—and I mean no inference of any kind by this question—that J. L. Hudson affixes its signatures to any documents or representations of any kind without being sincere with respect thereto, does it? A. No, sir.

Q. And, of course, when you signed the declaration of co-operation you meant everything that was contained in there to be a statement of J. L. Hudson's policy; is not that so? A. Yes, sir. 6584

Q. So that you believed, when you signed the declaration of co-operation, that the elimination of style piracy was for the protection of the public, didn't you?

The Witness: Your Honor, it is difficult for me to answer that question "yes" or "no" without explaining how we felt when we signed this declaration of co-operation and sent it in to the Guild.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, you have testified——

Mr. Martin: Now, just a minute. You asked him——

Mr. Albert: I will bring it out, Mr. Martin. If it please the Court—— 6585

Examiner Bennett: The question isn't being pressed?

Mr. Albert: No.

Examiner Bennett: As I understand it.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When you signed the declaration of co-operation, that was sincerely meant to be a declaration of policy of the J. L. Hudson & Company, was it not? A. Well, again I can't answer that question without explaining the background for our signing the declaration of co-operation with the Guild.

Q. When the J. L. Hudson Company signed the declaration of co-operation, was that not a sincere representation of the policy of J. L. Hudson & Company? I think that question can be answered "yes" or "no."

6587 Mr. Martin: If your Honor pleases, the witness has already testified that he could not answer that "yes" or "no," and he can answer it with explanations. He said that three times now.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, I will put it this way:

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you mean that in signing the declaration of co-operation, J. L. Hudson & Company departed from its policy of not signing anything which was not a sincere representation of its policy? A. I cannot make our position clear unless I am allowed to explain what we discussed and what we decided before we signed this declaration of co-operation.

6588 Q. In submitting the declaration of co-operation on direct examination you made no explanation thereof, did you? A. I don't know. My testimony is in the record.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, don't you recall what you testified to? A. No, I don't remember it exactly.

Q. Well——

Mr. Martin: As a matter of fact, he was not asked the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I do not want to know exactly. I want to know generally. Do you not know that you made no explanation of the point of whether or not J. L. Hudson & Company was sincere in their representation of the matter contained in the declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. That question was not asked of him.

Mr. Albert: In other words, if the lantern is not lit when it is swinging when the train is approaching, he is not going to testify that it wasn't lit when somebody gets hit when they cross the crossing, is that it? 6590

Mr. Martin: I object to that and ask that it be stricken from the record.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, in June of 1933 how many manufacturers would you say were members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you tried to determine how many there were?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant. 6591

A. I believe the——

Mr. Albert: I am laying a foundation, if it please the Court. I believe the Court knows exactly where I am going and I think the witness knows.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. I believe that the manufacturers that belonged to the Guild in 1933 were listed on the Guild stationery.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Quite right. A. And were listed on Mr. Renther's letter.

Q. Quite right. And did you make any tabulation of the number that there were? A. We were familiar with them at the time.

Q. No, I mean— A. No, I didn't count them.

Q. You didn't count them? A. I thought that I could count them at any time.

Q. Yes. Will you accept for the purpose of further questioning my statement that there are approximately thirty-five houses listed on that letterhead? A. I would 6593 like to see the letter.

Q. Thirty-five garment houses? A. I would like to see the letter.

Q. Go ahead and count them. A. I would say that is about right.

Q. Roughly? A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, isn't it exactly thirty-five, Mr. Sappington? A. I don't know. I didn't count them. I just glanced at the list.

Q. How many manufacturers of garments would you say that there were in the industry in 1933, roughly speaking? A. All types of garments?

Q. In the price lines that we have been discussing. I do not want any definite figure, just an approximate 6594 figure? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Would you say that there were 5,000? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Would you say that there were 4,000? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Would you say there were only thirty-five? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Have you any idea whatsoever? A. I don't——

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. The witness has already said that he wouldn't know; that he had no idea.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Won't you give me your estimate as divisional merchandise manager, or assistant, of J. L. Hudson & Company, where you have been employed now for the last number of years, about which you have testified that you have had complete charge of the industry, of the number?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

6596

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —of the manufacturers?

Mr. Martin: He has not testified——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —of the number of manufacturers that there were in June of 1933? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you make any investigation at that time when you received Mr. Rentner's letter of June 16? A. Any investigation of what?

Q. Of the number of manufacturers that there were in addition to the thirty-five listed on Commission's Exhibit 480? A. No.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, do you know how many members there are in the Fashion Originators' Guild of America to-day—manufacturers? A. No, I would not know that. 6597

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being immaterial and irrelevant as to how many manufacturers there are in the Guild to-day.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know——

Examiner Bennett: I overrule the objection.

The Witness: Pardon me?

Examiner Bennett: I think you have answered, I say; I overrule the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know that all the members of the Fashion Originators Guild at the present time were in business and operating in June of 1933? A. Pardon me, I did not 6599 get the first part of the question, I am sorry.

(Question read.)

A. No, I do not.

Q. Without stretching your modesty too greatly, Mr. Sappington, would you not say that in June of 1933, J. L. Hudson Company was one of the leading department stores in the United States? A. That is right.

Mr. Martin: Well, we are willing to stretch it, if necessary.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Doing a great volume of business? A. That is correct.

6600 Q. And, as a matter of fact, with respect to the total volume of business done under one group, was not J. L. Hudson Company among the first three department stores in the United States? A. Well, I don't know, because I don't know what the other store figures are.

Q. Well— A. I knew that it was somewhere near the top.

Q. Pretty nearly the top. A. Somewhere near the top.

Q. Perhaps the first five? A. Might be among the first five.

Q. That is, you would be willing to include them in the first five, but you do not want to say it was the first three, but at least it was pretty nearly that close to the top? A. Approximately.

Q. Is that correct? A. Approximately.

Q. And in 1933 the J. I. Hudson Company were members of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, were they not? A. That is right.

Q. And at that time was not the combined sales of member stores of the A.M.C. in the neighborhood of $300,000,000 annually? If you know. A. I don't know.

Q. Was it near that figure? A. I haven't any idea.

Q. Would you say it was $200,000,000 annually? A. I don't recall ever having seen a combined figure for any year. 6602

Q. For any year. A. For the A.M.C. stores.

Q. Let me read to you from this letterhead of the Associated Merchandising Corporation the following: "The combined sales of member stores represent nearly $300,000,000 annually."

Mr. Martin: Objected to. Is that letter in evidence?

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Mr. Martin: What is it?

Mr. Albert: It is the photostatic copy.

Mr. Martin: I will see what it is.

6603

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you now change your testimony to the effect that you have never seen a statement with respect to the combined sales? A. I don't recall ever having seen any such statement.

Q. Well, you have received letters from the Associated Merchandising Corporation, have you not? A. Oh, yes.

6604 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Cross.

Q. Did you receive a copy of the Phil Reilly letter that went out to all associated stores of the Associated Merchandising Corporation approximately February 14, 1936? A. To whom was the letter addressed?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. There was no evidence in the record that this witness ever received any such letter from Mr. Reilly, and I move that any reference to that letter be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: Well, unless——

By Mr. Albert.

6605 Q. Have you ever seen——

Mr. Martin: Just a second. Let his Honor rule.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to let him go ahead and see if it develops anything. It certainly is not relevant up to this point.

Mr. Albert: Quite right, your Honor, but I think it will soon appear to be quite relevant.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And have you ever seen any figures with respect to the capital of the Associated Merchandising Corporation?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant to the issues in this case; not proper cross-examination.

6606 Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will sustain the objection. I will grant the motion to strike the whole matter from the record.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you ever see any letterhead of the A.M.C. containing the statement "Capital, $1,000,000"?

Mr. Martin: I understood his Honor granted the motion to strike all of this.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: I ask your Honor to bear with me for just a few more questions so that I can tie all this up. I cannot jump into a subject from the middle, and I respectfully ask——

Examiner Bennett: I understand. I thought I had indulged you very liberally in time to get somewhere.

Mr. Albert: May I ask your Honor's further indulgence for just one or two more questions in order that I may tie up the matter which I am driving at in a manner that I deem best?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will vacate the motion to strike, if that is what you are after, until you ask some more questions in an attempt to connect it up with some thing relevant to the inquiry. 6608

The Witness: The question please?

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial whether he ever saw it or not.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know what the capital of the A.M.C. is?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. 6609

Mr. Albert: Exception, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, coming back to Commission's Exhibit 475, a declaration of co-operation, you personally signed it also, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That was signed by you, was it not, on behalf of the better dress department, so-called? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you have stated that you cannot answer my question as to whether or not you were sincere in signing this declaration of co-operation in supporting the statement that the principle of eliminating style piracy was for the protection of the public, have you not?

Mr. Martin: Now, just a moment, if your Honor please, before he answers this question. I now renew my motion to strike all of these other questions and answers.

6611

Examiner Bennett: All right, they may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I have not as yet tied it up.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you have gone to a different subject altogether.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, the questions that I have propounded are directed at precisely what I am now in the middle of.

Mr. Martin: I fail to see any connection.

Examiner Bennett: It is too mysterious for me. I have not got to it.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I am very grateful if it is mysterious to everybody. I hope it is mysterious to the witness also, but I do not think it is.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: May I explain to your Honor off the record?

Examiner Bennett: Why, yes, if you care to do it, I would be glad to have you do it. I will ask the attorneys to be present.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: All right, if you bring that out. On the showing of the attorney as to what he is going to try to prove, why, I will permit further questions.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you answer the last question?

The Witness: What is the question?

(Question read.)

A. I cannot answer questions regarding our signing the declaration of co-operation unless I can be given the opportunity to explain. 6614

Q. Well, what is your explanation? A. All right. We considered inasmuch as this was a different arrangement from anything that we had ever had experience with before that the declaration of co-operation with the Guild, and the whole Guild idea was largely an experiment—we were sympathetic with the ideals which had been outlined to us—we were will to go along and to try out the idea, in so far as that willingness to go along is concerned we were sincere. The ideas that we received from Mr. Rentner's letter, and the ideas that were given to us regarding the Fashion Originators Guild in its original conception we thought were sufficiently worth while for us to co-operate in attempting to find out whether or not it would work. That was our whole idea in signing the declaration 6615 of co-operation. Mr. Rentner stated in his letter that the Guild was proceeding on the principles that the Guild comprised all the outstanding style houses in the country. That was a very significant statement. If the Guild comprised all the outstanding style houses in the country we were interested in doing a style business, the Guild was trying out a problem which it claimed was important to style houses. We were willing to see what it was all about, and in so far as that willingness is concerned we were decidedly sincere.

Q. Is that your complete answer, Mr. Sappington? A. Yes.

Q. So that you agree that style piracy is an evil in the industry, do you not?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He did not make any such statement at all. It also is irrelevant and immaterial as to whether he thinks style piracy is an evil or not.

Examiner Bennett: I understand that that is not in controversy under the theory of the Commission.

6617 Mr. Albert: Do I understand, then, if it please the Court, that the Commission concedes that style piracy is an evil in the industry?

Mr. Haycraft: The statement is in the record as to what the Commission's position is.

Examiner Bennett: That is a matter for the attorneys. I do not know what their theory is, except as I gather it from what they say, that this is not—and from the pleadings—that this is not an issue, that it assumes that it is an evil or assumes that it is not an evil—they still attack——

Mr. Albert: Your Honor please——

Examiner Bennett: They still attack the methods——

6618 Mr. Albert: I wish to——

Examiner Bennett: ——of the respondents.

Mr. Albert: Yes. But may I say this, your Honor? That with all due respect, I do not believe that in the light of what has just been said, that the Commission's attorneys have made their position quite clear on the record with respect to whether or not style piracy is considered to be an evil, and, very frankly, I must throw myself upon the mercy of the Court, and, frankly, upon the mercy of the Commission's attorneys and state that I am ignorant of their position, and I respectfully beg of the Court, and of them, that if their position has been stated, that it be stated for my benefit, because I frankly have no knowledge of their position on that subject whatsoever, and I believe we can save a great deal of time if it is repeated as to what it is. I do not see why there should be such a mystery about it.

Mr. Haycraft: I am not going to be put in the position of repeating anything, Mr. Examiner. Counsel for the respondent was present when the 6620 statement was made on previous occasions. He can refer to the record and find out what it was. So far as concession is concerned, there is no concession as to style piracy, or anything else. We merely stated what we conceded to be the issues, and that was not one of the issues. The record will stand as to what was stated before. I have no wish to repeat it, because I might not use the exact same wording I used before, and there might be some misunderstanding from that very fact, so I would rather stand on the record as it is now; but there is no concession. I make that statement, that there is no concession on our part that style piracy in the industry is not an evil. It is not an issue.

Mr. Albert: With all due respect to the Commis- 6621 sion's attorney, if it please the Court, I do not intend to be bound by their contentions as to what the issues are in the case. Style piracy, whether an evil or not, is a legal question, and unless information is brought out with respect—except the Commission makes a concession with respect thereto, I respectfully submit that when we got up on the record, if we have to, that there is nothing in the record as to whether the program is an evil one or not.

Mr. Haycraft: It is not a legal question at all.

Mr. Feldman: I beg to differ on that, your Honor. The question of whether or not a method of competition is fair or unfair involves a number of facts. The inference drawn from those facts is a pure question of law. The facts that go to make up or go to determine whether or not a particular practice is a competitive evil, therefore, becomes not only an issue, but becomes a question upon which 6623 the Courts ultimately must determine, and therefore the problem necessarily becomes a legal one.

Examiner Bennett: I think in view of what seems to be a difference of opinion, or, rather, a radical difference of opinion, as to what is and what is not an evil, whether this thing is or is not in issue, that is, style piracy, I think I will permit the cross-examiner to go into that to a certain extent.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer. Overruled.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(The question was read.)

Mr. Albert: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

6624 Mr. Martin: Now, I make the further objection that he is not limiting it as to time or as to price lines.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I don't quite see whether—withdrawn. I don't quite see the distinction Mr. Martin is making. Stealing is stealing at any time, whether it be of a two-cent piece or of a five-dollar piece or of a million dollars.

Mr. Martin: The question of time as of 1933 might be one thing, might be an evil, and in 1936 it might not be an evil, so I——

Mr. Albert: To save time, I will put it this way:

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, was style piracy an evil in 1933? A. I don't know because I don't know. I am not sure that there were any styles to pirate? I am not sure that there was any originality in the styles that were claimed to have been stolen. I think that whole question is very much in doubt.

Q. Are you a member of the N.R.D.G.A., Mr. Sappington? 6626

Mr. Martin: Objected to, immaterial and irrelevant as to whether he is a member of the N.R.D.G.A., and it has no bearing on the issues in this case.

Examiner Bennett: What is the N.R.D.G.A.?

Mr. Martin: The National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain the objection. I think we are going too far afield.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that I may understand you perfectly, Mr. Sappington, as I understand it, you have no opinion one way or another as to whether or not style piracy is an evil in the industry? A. I have no opinion because I am not sure that there are any original styles to steal. 6627

Mr. Martin: Now——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. But you wouldn't say that there were not, would you?

Mr. Martin: Excuse me. Just a minute, Mr. Albert. If your Honor please, at this time I would like to renew my motion to strike all of the evidence relative to A.M.C. Counsel has been allowed full opportunity; it was stricken once and then he came around and made explanation to your Honor and was allowed to proceed and he is going on and on and he still has not shown any relevancy to those questions, and I renew my motion and respectfully ask that that evidence be stricken out.

Examiner Bennett: Are you through with this line, Mr. Albert?

6629 Mr. Albert: No, your Honor. We are still on this declaration of co-operation, and he still hasn't explained it, and I still have to cross-examine him on it.

Mr. Martin: The A.M.C. was in first and now the N.R.D.G.A.

Mr. Albert: That was a subdivision of this particular question that came up as a result of an answer that he gave to the question.

Examiner Bennett: I am going to let you go ahead for a while. You are repeating the ground that you have been over. You are going over it again.

Mr. Martin: What was your Honor's ruling?

6630 Examiner Bennett: I am going to indulge him further. He says he is not through.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What did you mean, Mr. Sappington, when you said that you were sympathetic with the ideals of the F.O.G.A. when you signed the declaration of co-operation? A. Well, in June, 1933, we felt that if the formation of the Guild could contribute anything that was of value to the better dress business, we would be interested in seeing what could be done, if anything.

Q. What did you expect it to contribute? A. We didn't know. We thought the platform of the Guild was highly idealistic, somewhat indefinite. We didn't know what they would do.

Q. You mean idealistic in the sense it was attempting to elevate the ethics of the industry? A. Idealistic in the sense that it was impractical.

Q. In all phases of it? A. Well, mostly, yes.

Q. And despite the fact that you believed that it was impractical, and by that you mean you didn't believe it would work, you, nevertheless, signed the declaration of co-operation? A. We had to.

Q. What do you mean by you had to? A. If we didn't 6632
we couldn't see the lines of these houses which Mr. Rentner says comprised all of the outstanding style houses in the country when they opened their lines for our buyers on the 5th of July.

Q. Do you mean to tell me that J. L. Hudson & Company, one of the five leading department stores in the country in 1933, a member of the A.M.C., with the backing of the A.M.C.——

Mr. Martin: Objected to. There is no evidence here that they have the backing of the A.M.C.

Mr. Albert: May I be permitted to finish my question, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, go ahead.

The Witness: May I have the question read back? 6633

(The question was read as follows: "Q. Do you mean to tell me that J. L. Hudson & Company, one of the five leading department stores in the country in 1933, a member of the A.M.C., with the backing of the A.M.C.——"

By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Continuing) —with the ability to bring pressure to bear in 1933 of the A.M.C., as is being done at the present time, was forced to sign the declaration of co-operation when in 1933 there were only thirty-five manufacturers in the Guild?

Mr. Martin: I object to this question. I move that the same be stricken. There is no evidence here to show that they had the backing of the A.M.C. at that time or that they have at this time, and that they had these tremendous sources and could bring pressure to bear on these manufacturers. I think the question is highly improper and ask that it be stricken.

6635 Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I am going to overrule your objection and let him answer, if he has an answer. You may answer.

The Witness: May I have the question, please?

(The Reporter read the question as follows: "Do you mean to tell me that J. L. Hudson & Company, one of the five leading department stores in the country in 1933, a member of the A.M.C., with the backing of the A.M.C., with the ability to bring pressure to bear in 1933 of the A.M.C., as is being done at the present time, was forced to sign the declaration of co-operation when in 1933 there were only thirty-five manufacturers in the Guild?")

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I submit that that part certainly about the pressure being brought at the present time is highly improper.

6636 Examiner Bennett: Well, if the witness disagrees with the statement of facts so that he can't answer, why, that is another thing. Let him say so.

The Witness: Your Honor, that seems to be quite an involved question. There are so many elements included there, I don't believe I can answer such a question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Take them one at a time, Mr. Witness, and answer each one in there. A. Will you ask them that way?

Mr. Albert: Will you repeat the question, Mr. Stenographer?

(The question was read again.)

A. We considered this a matter of individual store—we considered this an individual store problem. We were interested in seeing what would be developed, what the Guild could do, what the Guild wanted to do. We were advised by our A.M.C. office as indicated in the telegram submitted in Exhibit—— 6638

Mr. Meder: 486.

A. (Continuing) —486, that they recommended, after full consideration, that we sign up on exactly the same basis.

Q. Is that your answer, Mr. Sappington? A. That is the answer.

Mr. Albert: Now I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive and ask that he answer my question.

Examiner Bennett: Denied.

By Mr. Albert: 6639

Q. What did you think the Guild was going to do, Mr. Sappington, when they established this program? A. I didn't know then and I didn't know at any time.

Q. You don't mean to tell me that you joined an organization without knowing what they were going to do, did you, or what their policy was or what their program was? A. I didn't know. My experience has shown that I definitely didn't know.

Q. I am not speaking now specifically; I am speaking generally. You mean to tell me that you didn't know what the program of the Guild was when you signed the declaration of co-operation? A. I read the statement of the declaration of co-operation and we read Mr. Rentner's letter.

Q. Yes. A. And in so far therein we knew what the plan of the Guild was at that time. We didn't know that it was going to be changed; we didn't know how it was going to be administered.

Q. Now, at that time what did you conceive to be the program of the Guild? A. At that time we conceived that 6641 the program of the Guild was to attempt to stop style piracy.

Q. Did you agree with that——

Mr. Martin: Wait a minute.

A. Down to——

Mr. Martin: Let him finish his answer.

A. Down to $10.75 cost.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. In dresses.

Q. Is there anything in the declaration of co-operation that restricts the Guild program or plan of $10.75 and up?
6642 A. No; there is nothing—there is no restrictive——

Q. And you stated that you got your information with respect to the program from a reading of the declaration of co-operation, didn't you?

Mr. Martin: That is not a correct statement, your Honor.

The Witness: Reading of the declaration of co-operation.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And the Rentner letter? A. And the Rentner letter.

Q. And the declaration of co-operation is specifically signed by G. R. MacDonald of the basement store, isn't that so?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. That has already been testified to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, will you be good enough to look at Commission's Exhibit 494-A? A. Yes, sir. (Wit- 6644 ness refers to Exhibit 494-A.)

Q. Have you 494-A? A. 494-A, yes, sir.

Q. Did you take any steps in 1933 similar to those mentioned in Commission's Exhibit 494-A, which is a letter from Mr. Webber to Mr. Bergdahl, and which states, "In the meantime, I do not believe it would be wise for us to take steps to organize other retailers in opposition to this movement"? A. We had no occasion to, then.

Q. By that do you mean that there was nothing that you feared in 1933? A. There was nothing in 1933. The Guild had not been organized; the Guild had not administered its affairs; the Guild had not enlarged its scope; the Guild had not done things that we had no conception it would do. We went in—— 6645

Q. So that, despite the fact——

Mr. Martin: Let him finish his answer.

Q. (Continuing) —that all of those matters concerning the Fashion Originators Guild at that time, and the fact that it was in its infancy, you still say that you were forced to sign the declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Martin: Just a second. Mr. Sappington, had you finished your former answer?

The Witness: No, I hadn't at the time.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead and finish it, then.

The Witness: Could I have my answer, please?

(The answer was read.)

The Witness: We went in with a clear field. We have had no disagreement at the time. We were willing to see what was going to happen. We were willing to go along.

By Mr. Albert.

6647 Q. So that you voluntarily signed the declaration of co-operation, didn't you? A. We did not. We would not have signed the declaration of co-operation if we had not been told that we could not see the lines on the 5th of July. Now, this matter came up in the latter part of 1932. We didn't know anything the whole first half of 1933. We heard from Mr. Rentner on this proposition as early as December, 1933. We only took action when we were told that if we didn't take action we couldn't see the lines on the 5th of July.

Q. But you took no steps whatsoever in an attempt to counteract what you thought was pressure being brought to bear upon you in asking you to sign the declaration of co-operation? A. There was nothing to counteract.

6648 Q. Now, Mr.— A. Because, as I stated before, the Guild——

Q. That is all, Mr. Sappington. That is satisfactory. A. The Guild had not been formed.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, did J. L. Hudson & Company at any time register any protest to the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to its policy and the furtherance of its policy of protecting styles during the year, the balance of the year 1933 and the year 1934? A. I couldn't answer that question without going over our correspondence.

Q. Well, didn't you go over your correspondence before you came in here? A. Not completely. There might be something in it that I didn't see.

Q. Well, after all, you are here to make a good case for the Commission, aren't you?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I respectfully object to any such insinuation as that. The witness is here——

Mr. Albert: It is more than insinuation, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Will you just wait a second?

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

Mr. Martin: Until I go ahead, sir? The witness 6650
is here under subpoena of the Commission to testify. He has been sworn to tell the truth. He has been frank and above-board in answer to all questions that have been asked him, and I resent the implication on the part of counsel for the respondents that this witness is here to deliberately make a case for the Commission with the implications contained in his statement, and I move that the same be physically expunged from this record.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, there isn't anyone in the dress industry that doesn't know that J. L. Hudson Company is opposed to the Guild and will do everything in its power—properly—I don't in any way—— 6651

Mr. Martin: Well, your question——

Mr. Albert: —mean to impugn their methods to destroy the Guild, for their own selfish purposes.

Mr. Martin: I move that that statement be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: Will you read the first statement?

(The last question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will grant the motion to strike both statements.

Mr. Martin: On the last motion, I ask that that be stricken, too.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I have. I granted your motion.

Mr. Martin: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: To strike both statements.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Sappington, that J. L. Hudson Company would like to see the Guild disbanded?

6653

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, am I not permitted to show the bias of this witness?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, certainly. Overruled.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. Go ahead, sir.

A. No, that isn't the fact.

Mr. Albert: Ha, ha, ha!

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You amaze me, Mr. Sappington. Would you like to sign the declaration of co-operation? A. Ha! Because we do not agree with the way the affairs of an organization 6654 are administered, or because we do not agree with their present principles, that doesn't mean we would like to see them wiped out.

Q. Will you concede that in so far as the program of the Guild generally is concerned, aside from the method of its administration, that it is a good program for the industry? A. I won't concede anything without advice.

Q. I am asking you for your opinion, not for someone else's. We have seen what happens when you get figures from someone else. You don't want to rely on those any more, do you? A. My opinion doesn't count. It is the opinion of the J. L. Hudson Company.

Q. I would like to have your opinion as assistant merchandising manager. You are on the stand. You have given some very widespread opinions here to-day. You are not afraid to tell us your opinion, are you?

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, the witness has testified that he has no opinion. I think that is a complete answer.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, there has been absolutely no such testimony by the witness. He has referred us, not to subordinates this time, to 6656 superiors, his superiors. Now, if Mr. Dowley and Mr. Webber will be called to testify as to the Guild's program, we may leave Mr. Sappington off on this proposition.

Mr. Martin: It is not relevant in this case in any way.

Mr. Albert: I think it is quite relevant, your Honor. Your Honor has already ruled on that point.

Examiner Bennett: He is trying to show prejudice, as I understand.

Mr. Albert: Certainly, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: If you can show it, it is all right. 6657

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What is your opinion, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: I renew my motion, your Honor. I thought you just ruled on it, that he had answered.

Examiner Bennett: I think that he said that he had no opinion. That is my understanding.

Mr. Albert: I respectfully differ, if it please the Court. He merely said he couldn't give it without advice.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead and find out whether he has an opinion.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you an opinion? A. Of what?

Q. What have we been talking about, Mr. Sappington? Of the program of the Guild. A. The present program of the Guild?

6659 Q. The general program of the Guild to eliminate style piracy, aside from the question of its physical administration.

Mr. Martin: Objected to as to form.

By Mr. Albert,

Q. Have you an opinion of the program of the Guild? A. The present program?

Q. Yes. I mean the program for eliminating style piracy is the same as it was when they started.

Mr. Martin: I object.

By Mr. Albert.

6660 Q. Aside from the question of the administration of that program, now, all my question is directed at is, what is your opinion of the program of the Fashion Originators Guild of eliminating style piracy, and not of the method of doing it?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as not being a question, a separable question. It is not in proper form and it is objected to.

Mr. Albert: It is quite separable, your Honor. I think it is quite obvious.

Examiner Bennett: I think the question is too narrow in its scope. I think if you want to ask him for an opinion you will have to cover the policies and the methods of the Guild.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have stated, Mr. Sappington, that J. L. Hudson has no desire to eliminate the Fashion Originators Guild because of the fact that you differ merely in the administration of the program, rather than with the Guild program. Is that a fair statement of your previous testimony? A. I said that because the J. L. Hudson Company might differ with the methods or the scope or the changes 6662 in a program does not necessarily mean that the J. L. Hudson Company would like to wipe out the administrators of the program or the people connected with the program.

Q. All right. Now, let me ask you this question: Does J. L. Hudson Company subscribe to the policy of eliminating style piracy?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. He has testified that he couldn't tell that, that that was a question of policy.

Mr. Albert: Here is an executive of this firm.

Mr. Martin: Just a minute.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, who is offered here instead of his superiors as having full knowledge of the policies of J. L. Hudson & Company. I think it is a perfectly competent question to ask this witness. 6663

Examiner Bennett: I think in view of his answer, I think he has answered two or three times saying that he was not certain, that he was uncertain that there was any such a thing as style piracy, that there are any styles which are original and can be pirated. I wouldn't think he would be able to answer that question in view of that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, then, let me ask you this, Mr. Sappington: Does the attempted elimination of style piracy benefit J. L. Hudson & Company in lines above $10.75? A. I don't know.

Q. Is there any benefit obtained by J. L. Hudson & Company from the attempted protection of styles above $10.75?

6665 Mr. Martin: He has testified that he doesn't know.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer. He may answer.

A. I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you discussed this matter with your superiors in J. L. Hudson & Company as to the effect of the Guild program on the better dresses? A. Why, as I recall, I think we have discussed from time to time the Guild policies; whether we have discussed the effect or not, I couldn't answer definitely.

Q. Is it your opinion that the better price lines need 6666 protection from the evils of copying? A. I don't know what the better price lines need. They need more value, I know that.

Q. Well, confining yourself to answering my question—

Mr. Martin: He has already——

Q. (Continuing) —would you say that they need protection?

Mr. Martin: He has already told you that he didn't have any opinion on it.

A. I don't know what they need.

Mr. Albert: Well, now, may I see Commission's Exhibit 491-A?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, to what were you referring when you wrote to Mr. Bergdahl on May 9, 1935: "I believe the idea is sound and that it could be worked"? What did you mean by that? A. That is not the whole statement.

6668

Mr. Martin: Is that the complete statement?

The Witness: I mean, it would be rather difficult for me to say what I meant unless you read the entire sentence.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Very well, I will read the whole statement: "But not by the methods the organization is now attempting to follow." What was their stand about the program as aside from the methods? A. Well, at that time, May, 1935, it was still my belief that there was something to the idea as originally proposed by the Guild, of attempting to control the copying of high-priced dresses. If, as I have said before, the high-priced dresses are actually copied from an original style which has always—which I have always doubted.

6669

Q. You personally? A. Yes, I personally.

Q. That does not reflect the opinion of the other executives of the store, though, does it? A. Hah! I don't know about that.

Q. You mean to tell me you have not discussed this situation with the other executives? A. That particular opinion?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. You have not discussed with Mr. Dowley the question of whether or not style piracy is an evil in the industry?

Mr. Martin: I object to the question as immaterial.

A. The question was whether or not their original styles were copied, is the statement which I made. Now, I have told Mr. Dowley what I thought. I don't know what he thinks.

Q. What do you mean when you refuse to admit that style piracy exists, and that you are doubtful as to whether 6671 or not original styles can be copied?

Mr. Martin: Now, your Honor please, I object to that. He has not refused to admit that style piracy exists. His statement was he did not know whether there were any originals or not.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry. Has there been a ruling?

Mr. Martin: I object to the question.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I will let him answer.

The Witness: Do I answer? Read the question, please.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Martin: There are two questions, your Honor. I object to the form of the question. Let 6672 him ask it in proper form.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if the witness questions the accuracy of the facts, why, of course, he can modify his answer.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead and answer, if you have an answer.

A. I—in the first place, I don't—I doubt the authenticity of the idea, or I doubt the fact that the styles, which are claimed to be original styles are original. Now, if the styles are not original, and if they in themselves are adaptations or copies, then you do not have a copy when those styles are reproduced. In other words, I doubt—I question the fundamental principle underlying the whole style piracy idea, which is that the originals are actually originals.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Have you ever been to manufacturers— A. Oh, yes.

Q. —Mr. Sappington? A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Were you there when they were preparing their lines? A. Well, I imagine so. I imagine that many of 6674 the times I have been in the showrooms.

Q. Do you not— A. There have been lines prepared; they are always developing new numbers for their lines.

Q. New numbers? A. New numbers.

Q. By that, do you mean original numbers? A. I mean different numbers.

Q. Different numbers. Do you know approximately the course of designing a line?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, far afield, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: If the Court please, this witness has testified, unsolicited and voluntarily, his opinion that there is no such thing as style piracy.

Mr. Haycraft: Unsolicited? 6675

Mr. Albert: That there is no such thing as an original design to be copied. I want to find out what he knows about the business.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I respectfully submit that the witness has not testified—he says that according to his—counsel has said— He has said that he has serious doubts, and he does not know that there is such a thing as an original design. He has not testified that there was not one.

Mr. Albert: As I understood, the witness does not know one way or another whether there was such a thing as an original style.

Mr. Martin: Nor has he volunteered anything. Everything he has given has been at the questioning of counsel for the respondent.

Mr. Albert: Yes, but his original statement was volunteered thereto——

Mr. Martin: No——

Mr. Albert: I have tried to break it down.

Mr. Martin: His original statement was in answer to a direct statement by you.

6677 Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that particular question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Sappington: Aside from the question as to whether or not certain manufacturers made up original designs, is it true that certain other manufacturers copy the designs that are made up by these first manufacturers?

Mr. Martin: Now, I object to this line of questioning, your Honor. This was brought out by counsel on cross-examination. He asked this witness direct questions, which he answered, and now he is seeking to cross-examine him on his own cross-

6678 examination——

Mr. Albert: Not in the least, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: —and I respectfully suggest to the Court, and urge, that these questions are improper and should be excluded.

Mr. Albert: Not in the least, if it please the Court. This witness has t ndered, he has put into evidence certain instruments without explaining them. He has attempted to attack the Guild upon its question of program as regards style piracy, and I believe that I should be permitted to cross-examine this hostile witness upon that point and find out what he knows.

Mr. Haycraft: Hostile to whom?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I am going to sustain the objection. I think we are getting into a new field that is of doubtful relevancy.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, I show you Respondents' Exhibit 44, which is an advertisement in "Women's Wear Daily," dated Tuesday, July 11, 1933, announcing the co-operation of certain manufacturers—— 6680

Mr. Martin: Just a second, if you please.

(A document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 44.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you see this advertisement in "Women's Wear," Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I object to any——

Examiner Bennett: Better ask him in the ordinary way. 6681

Mr. Martin: I further wish to call to your Honor's attention that we have here what purports to be a photostatic copy of something, and I would request that the original be produced if they want to have it identified.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, did you see an advertisement appearing in the "Women's Wear Daily" on Tuesday, July 11, 1933——

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —containing the information as set forth in Respondents' Exhibit 44?

Mr. Martin: I object to the form of the question, your Honor.

6683 Mr. Albert: I have not asked him to identify any—the originality of any exhibit—I am asking him as regards the information contained in that exhibit, which I am showing him to refresh his recollection, and I can show him anything to refresh his recollection.

Mr. Martin: That is not in evidence, and I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Albert: I cannot very well put it in evidence, your Honor, before the witness gives me the very simple answer as to whether or not he has seen it.

Mr. Martin: You did not ask him that.

Mr. Albert: I certainly did ask him that. I

6684 asked it three times.

Mr. Martin: You know how to get a paper identified if you want it identified, Mr. Albert. I suggest that you ask him the proper questions.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection as to the form of the question.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, you are aware of the fact——

Examiner Bennett: Take a recess of ten minutes.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Mr. Meder: May we quit to-day at 4.30 o'clock, your Honor? The witness has an important engagement.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I think so.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you were vitally interested, were you not, in following the program of the Guild in 6686 order to determine whether or not it was going to be practical, is that not so? A. Well, we did not hear much from the Guild for quite a long time after June of 1933, except—

Q. What do you mean by "quite a long time"?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him finish.

Mr. Martin: Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry.

A. —except in Mr. Post's visits occasionally, and our contacts in New York with manufacturers and——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you not make any attempt to obtain information from the Guild as to how things were going? A. No, 6687 the information that we got came to us, I would say, gratuitously. We were not policing it, and it was not our program, it was not our proposition, and we were pretty doggone busy—excuse me—we were very busy taking care of our own jobs.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Sappington, despite the fact of your testimony, as to your interest in seeing how practical the program would be, you did not even attend one of the meetings here in Detroit with respect to the program of the Guild; is that not so?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to. His testimony is, as I understand it, that they were willing to give it a trial.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you answer my question, Mr. Sappington?

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Shall I answer?

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

6689 A. We did not attend the meeting to which you refer, which I imagine is the second meeting which Mr. Post held.

Q. Is that just an example of the old saying, that there are none so blind as those who will not see?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Martin: I move it be stricken.

The Witness: Your Honor, I did not finish my reply to the first question.

Examiner Bennett: All right, go ahead and answer it.

6690 A. We did not attend the second meeting because it was our understanding that the second meeting was to be about practically about the same matters that was covered in the first meeting.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, when you say "we"——

Mr. Meder: Have you finished?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I am sorry. Have you finished? A. And we were not—"we"—I say "we," I mean the J. L. Hudson Company, and myself included, because I was the person who was informed as to the subject-matter to be covered in the second meeting.

Q. Yes. A. We were not interested in the subject-matter covered in the first meeting. We understood that the subject-matter covered—and the meeting was extremely long, lasting from about 12 to 3 o'clock——

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

A. (Continued) —it took up a great deal of our time. 6692
We understood that the subject-matter for the second meeting was to be similar, if not identical, to the subject-matter for the first meeting. We had heard it; we were not interested; it involved the formation of a local guild. That is the reason we did not attend the second meeting.

Q. Now, are you through with your answer? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in the course of that answer you stated, I believe, generally, that you were the man who was concerned with the Guild program, generally speaking?

Mr. Martin: He did not make——

A. I happen to be the person.

Mr. Martin: —that statement at all. He said he was——

Mr. Albert: I am asking him for an explana- 6693
tion.

The Witness: I happen to be the person who was told what was going to be discussed in the second meeting.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I see. Very well. Now, was there anybody in J. L. Hudson & Company who attempted to follow the program of the Guild to see whether or not it was being worked practically?

Mr. Martin: I think he has already testified to that, your Honor.

Mr. Albert: Not in the slightest, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Yes, he has, and made the statement——

Examiner Bennett: All right, let him answer. Overruled.

Mr. Martin: All right, go ahead, sir.

A. We were all—by "we," I mean the buyers, the divi-
6695 sional merchandise managers, Mr. Simmons and Mr. Dunham and myself—were all interested in the Guild program. We were receiving information from time to time in the course of business as to what was being done. We were not—we did not constitute an investigating committee. We accepted the information that was given to us——

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Now— A. —as I said before, it was not our program, it was not our organization; we were simply going along. When information was given to us, we took the information.

Q. And you were going along without knowing where you were going, aside from what you heard? A. Well, we 6696 received correspondence from the Guild and our buyers were in the market talking with the Guild members and Guild affiliates.

Q. Now, did you, in August, 1933, when you were still a new member of the Guild, or, rather, when you were still a new co-operating retailer, did you learn that the Dress Creators League of America, Inc., the organization of $10.50 manufacturers in the dress industry, were collaborating with the registry division of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. We may have. I cannot answer definitely. That is quite a long time ago.

Q. You testified pretty thoroughly and specifically with respect to a great many things that have occurred in that period of time. A. I cannot testify specifically as to that.

Q. And you do not know whether or not the $10.50 manufacturers co-operated with the Guild in August of 1933? A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, all of these people who were interested—of all of these people who were interested in the Guild program that you testified to, the buyers, your assistant divisional merchandise manager, your executives who were superior to you—did not any of them tell you, or did you not learn through them, or did you not learn gratuitously—is the word you used—or did you not learn from any source whatsoever in the dress industry, that in August of 1933 the $10.50 manufacturers started to co-operate with the Guild? 6698

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already answered the question. It is needless repetition.

Mr. Albert: This witness, if your Honor please, has been very precise in his definition of words, and I have now made the question most conclusive.

Mr. Martin: He has answered it pretty inclusively.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.) 6699

A. No, it is my recollection that the $10.50 manufacturers, or $10.75 manufacturers, and I believe they are the same group, that the discussion regarding them becoming affiliated with the Guild took place early in 1935.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, and that there was no discussion with them before that time? A. I don't recall anything specific.

6700 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Cross.

Q. "Women's Wear" is the Bible of the dress industry, is it not, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: I am laying a foundation, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it not? A. Well, "Women's Wear" is a trade paper.

Q. I mean, every well informed buyer, and divisional merchandise manager, and general merchandise manager, 6701 who wants to learn anything about the industry, and keep informed of the times in the dress industry, reads "Women's Wear" rather assiduously, is that not so? A. I don't know.

Q. Well, do you not? A. Well, I think inasmuch as Mr. Shaffner is in the room, and a representative of "Women's Wear," it is rather embarrassing for me to answer that question.

Q. Do you think it was embarrassing for you to state that Mr. Shaffner told you first about the red carding? A. Not embarrassing to me; it might have been embarrassing to Mr. Shaffner.

Q. And you state that he told you personally about that, is that so? A. I did not state that; no, sir.

6702 Q. But that it was learned first through him; is that it? A. Through a representative of "Women's Wear," I stated.

Q. Well, did you learn it through a representative of "Women's Wear"? A. I did not.

Q. In other words, you were told by someone else in the organization that they had learned it through a representative of "Women's Wear"?

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, that has been gone into thoroughly, and I do not see any purpose in going——

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor, we just went off on a slight tangent.

Mr. Martin: Only a slight one?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, I show you Respondents' Exhibit 45——

Mr. Haycraft: Identification?

Mr. Martin: For identification?

(A document was marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 45.)

6704

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —for Identification, and ask you whether or not you ever were apprised of the information contained in that advertisement of "Women's Wear"?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. This exhibit is not in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I am trying to lay a foundation for it, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Well, that is no way to do it. You know the proper way to do it. We just went over that once.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection in the form of the question as you ask it. You can find out whether he can identify it, and if he can, 6705 let him do it; if he cannot, have it identified in the proper way.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, can you identify Respondents' Exhibit 45 for Identification——

Mr. Martin: Now——

Q. —as——

Mr. Martin: Excuse me. I beg your pardon. I thought you had finished, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —as an advertisement appearing in "Women's Wear Daily" on Wednesday, August 9, 1933?

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, that is a photostatic copy. I call for the original of the document.

Mr. Albert: All right. Do I understand that it
6707 is Mr. Martin's procedure hereafter that he refuses to accept the respondents' offer of a photostatic copy of a document upon the ground that he wants to see the original?

Mr. Martin: You understand it as to this particular exhibit.

Mr. Albert: Well, will Mr. Martin accept the production of a photostatic copy at this time upon my assurance, and upon condition that we will produce for him the original advertisement as it appeared in "Women's Wear," which is at the present time back at our office in New York?

Mr. Martin: That is fine, if you will produce the original.

Examiner Bennett: All right
6708 Mr. Albert: Thank you.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Can you identify that paper? A. Well, it looks to be a photostatic copy of a page in "Women's Wear." It is about the way the "Women's Wear" pages look.

Q. Do you recognize it as something you have seen before?

Mr. Albert: Do you think I was asking you to identify that——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Mr. Albert: —copy of the "Women's Wear," and their model and design, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: I object.

Examiner Bennett: I am asking him if he has seen it before.

The Witness: I cannot testify that I have seen it before; no, sir.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right.

By Mr. Albert. 6710

Q. Did you become aware in any way of the information that is set forth on that exhibit that is marked Respondents' Exhibit 45 for Identification?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. This document has not been identified.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I shall sustain an objection——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: He says he cannot testify that he has seen it before. I do not see how you can refresh his recollection by something he has never seen before.

By Mr. Albert. 6711

Q. Do you mean by that, Mr. Sappington, that you never saw this particular ad?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: I am trying to qualify him.

Mr. Martin: That particular ad is not in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if you want to ask him about something or other, if you have some fact that is within his knowledge, which you wish to develop, please ask him about that particular fact. That paper evidently does not refresh his recollection, and evidently cannot possibly refresh his recollection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me ask you just one more question, Mr. Sappington. Were you aware of the fact that on or about August, 1933, the Dress Creators League of America, Inc., which comprises the $10.50 manufacturers, announced their collaboration with the registry division of the Fashion Orig-
6713 inators Guild of America, Inc.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already testified that he did not know that.

Mr. Albert: If that is his testimony, I will accept it, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead. Answer it, please, if you know.

A. I was not aware of the circumstance mentioned as of that date.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if you don't know, say you don't.

The Witness: I was not aware of the circumstance you mentioned as of that date.

6714

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, of what date were you aware of it? A. I cannot tell you exactly. Some time during the fall of 1935.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, what did you mean, and what is your knowledge about the way copies are adjudged to be such in pursuance of the Guild program? A. Well, the Guild had a committee called the Piracy Committee, I believe.

Q. Yes. A. And in some instances, at least, whether or not in all I couldn't say, the dresses under discussion were referred to this Piracy Committee.

Q. Yes. A. I understand that in some cases there were on this committee dress manufacturers who were members of the Guild. Whether that was true in all cases or not, I do not know. It was my understanding that in some cases that was true. I do not know whether all cases under dispute were referred to this Piracy Committee or not. I do not know whether they ruled in every instance where 6716 a copy was referred to us. I assumed it was—it was my belief that this Piracy Committee was a part of the Guild organization. So that when I stated that the Guild adjudged certain dresses to be copies, I assumed that the workings of this committee were carried, or the functions of this committee were carried out under the Guild administration, that the committee was a part of it.

Q. Is it your belief that this Piracy Committee is a permanent committee? A. I didn't think it was a permanent committee.

Q. Or is it constantly changing? A. I thought the personnel varied.

Q. Constantly changing? A. I do not know how constantly.

Q. Did you know, Mr. Sappington, that the A.M.C. 6717 buyers served on that committee, and Mr. Bergdahl also served on that committee?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial.

Mr. Albert: It is the last question on the point, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Object to it.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if it is the last question.

A. I don't know that Mr. Bergdahl served on that committee, or that an A.M.C. buyer served on that committee. I knew that some buyers had served on that committee, some buyers from some retail stores.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And aside from this general information about which you have no certain knowledge, you do not know how the Piracy Committee worked; is that correct? You know nothing more about the Piracy Committee than what you have told us? Let me put it that way? A. I know that in some cases the Piracy Committee called in the manu-6719 facturers involved for a statement.

Q. I do not mean as regards as how they actually operated. I mean as to their set-up, as to what you have told us about their set-up, you know nothing further about that? A. No, I know nothing further.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Now, that is a closed chapter.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, when was it that you received this information from a representative of "Women's Wear" to the effect that you had been red carded? A. I believe it was on the morning of the 14th of February, 1936.

Q. And the letter which you received from the Fashion
6720 Originators Guild returning to you your declaration of co-operation is dated February 14, 1936, and I believe you testified that you received it on the 15th; isn't that so? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.) Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make any reply to that letter of February 14, 1936? A. We didn't have——

Q. You are forgetting. A. Yes. Yes, sir. Excuse me.

Q. You didn't have an opportunity to reply to that other letter? A. That is right. Thank you.

Q. You are welcome. You did make a reply to the letter of February 14? A. Yes. There is a letter in the exhibits from Mr. Richard Webber. I don't recall the date, but it is in the—it is one of the exhibits.

Q. You are referring to Commission's Exhibit 477, dated February 27? A. Oh, that is right. We didn't make any reply to it.

Q. No reply whatsoever? A. When our declaration was returned.

Q. Right. A. Not at that time.

Q. And from February 14 until February 27, J. L. Hudson Company made no inquiry of the Fashion Originators Guild with respect to the red carding? 6722

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial. They had already been red carded.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

Mr. Martin: You may answer.

Examiner Bennett: Is that true?

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

The Witness: May I have the question? I am not quite clear on it.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, I believe we did during——

By Mr. Albert. 6723

Q. Written communication I said, Mr. Sappington. A. Communication?

Mr. Martin: You didn't say communication.

The Witness: You said inquiry, I believe.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, consider that I have amended my question to mean written communication. A. Not that I know of.

Q. Now, what letter is that that you were referring to, and you thought I was questioning about when you started to say that you hadn't had time to answer? A. Well, that is one of the Commission's——

Q. Just what is the date of the letter? A. It is in the exhibits.

Q. You were so conscious of it I thought you knew it offhand. I am trying to find it, and I cannot find the number.

Mr. Martin: The letter of February 11, wasn't it?

The Witness: It ought to be somewhere around
6725 February 11.

Mr. Martin: Yes. Here it is. It is Exhibit 499-A. Is that the one?

The Witness: It is not in this book.

Mr. Martin: 499. It is a letter from Post to Webber.

The Witness: That is right. February 11.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is Commission's Exhibit 499-A? A. 499-A.

Q. That is dated February 11, 1936; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And between February 12, 1936, and February 15, 1936, you wrote no letter in response to the letter which 6726 you received from the Fashion Originators Guild of America, dated February 11, 1936; isn't that so?

Mr. Martin: That is objected to as an incorrect statement. He has already testified that he had knowledge of the red carding as early as February 14, the morning of February 14. Now he is coming over to the date of the time when he received their letter from the Guild on the 15th.

Mr. Albert: I am not referring to that. Permit me to ask my question the way I want to. I am referring to his answer to this letter.

Mr. Martin: I have no objection——

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: Now, very obviously what he is trying to prove is that there was a time between the receipt of that original letter and red carding in which he could communicate. Now, the facts are different because he has already testified that on the morning of February 14 he received the notification that they were red carded, and Mr. Albert 6728 is now trying to take two days' advantage.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, the record shows all of that. You may answer. Overruled.

The Witness: We did not reply to the letter because in the last paragraph Mr. Post stated: "We have no doubt that you share our desire to have this matter settled one way or another during the current week. Now, if you will refer to a calendar of 1935 you will see that the current week extends beyond the day on which we were red carded. We assumed that this letter gave us an opportunity to reply up to Saturday night, which would be the close of the current week, so that if a reply was in the hands of the Fashion Originators Guild on the following Monday we would be fulfilling the re- 6729 quest made by Mr. Post.

I believe that the 14th of February comes on Thursday.

Mr. Martin: Here is a calendar.

The Witness: Here is a calendar—no, this is '36. Is there a '35? Oh, excuse me.

Mr. Feldman: You want '36.

The Witness: February 14 is on a Friday. We considered that from the statement made in Mr. Post's letter that we had until Saturday night to discuss the matter and make our reply.

Now, inasmuch as we were informed of the red carding on Friday morning, we assumed that the committee or the decision must have been made extremely early Friday morning or the previous day on Thursday, which was the 13th. Now, the reason we didn't reply is that action was taken before we had an opportunity to reply, because the letter definitely states that we could have during the current 6731 week.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, did you inquire immediately upon receipt of this return of your declaration, in the light of your opinion that you had until Saturday, as to whether or not the Guild or the committee would not permit you to answer by Saturday? You went along on an assumption on a very important thing of red carding, which you stated has affected your business, and which I believe you, as divisional merchandise manager, could have foreseen—do you mean to tell me that you made no inquiry to determine whether or not you could not be given more time to decide whether you wished to continue to co-operate?

6732 Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I object to any such statement that the witness went along on the assumption, when it had the written physical evidence that they had been red carded.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Martin: And they had returned his declaration.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, when did you first learn that the manufacturers had been apprised of the fact that you were red carded? A. When our buyers went, and Mr. Simmons, the assistant divisional merchandise manager, went into the market.

Q. When? A. I can't give you that exact date, but Mr. Simmons can.

Q. Approximately when? A. I should say about February 16, 19——

Q. The following week? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't that so? A. That is right.

6734

By Mr. Albert.

Q. There wasn't anything additional, any additional information that you had with respect to red carding except Commission's Exhibit 476; isn't that so, Mr. Sappington? A. No, sir.

Q. Is that so, Mr. Sappington? A. No, sir. We had additional information.

Q. Now, you know, do you not, that manufacturers are not apprised of the fact that a retailer has been returned, his declaration of co-operation has been returned, until some time after the declaration of co-operation has been returned; don't you?

Mr. Martin: How would he know that?

6735

Mr. Albert: I am asking him if he knows.

A. No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Don't you know, as a matter of fact, that it takes some time to get these red cards out to all of the manufacturers, during which time while you may have your declaration of co-operation returned to you, the manufacturers are not aware of it as yet; don't you know that? A. No.

Q. Then do I understand it to be your opinion that as regards the letter of February 14, 1936, that was an irrevocable determination as far as you were concerned that you were red carded? A. Yes.

Q. Then why did you write the letter of February 27, in which you create a doubt as to whether or not you thought that that was a definite irrevocable red carding when you say, "If your aforementioned letter did not have the effect of severing our relationship completely, 6737 please consider this letter as doing so"? A. We wanted to be certain.

Q. Then you were uncertain? A. We wanted you to be certain.

Q. Well, weren't you uncertain of the fact? A. We were not.

Q. Isn't that what that means? A. We were not in doubt about it.

Q. Well, now, let me read that to you again. A. We wanted you to know from us.

Q. Yes. A. We had known from you that our relations were severed. In other words, you, the Guild, kicked us out.

Q. Yes. A. Now, we wanted to know that we accepted the kicking out by the Guild, and that we in turn severed 6738 our connections with the Guild.

Q. And is that your best explanation of Commission's Exhibit 477? A. That is my best explanation.

Mr. Martin: Object to the form of that question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In other words——

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —you want to inform us of the fact that we should be now aware of the fact that what we did we meant. A. That what you did we understood you meant, and that we meant the same thing in kind.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 18, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

Court Room No. 722,
Federal Building, 6740
Detroit, Michigan,
August 19, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCCEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may resume.

6741

LOUIS B. SAPPINGTON resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

Q. Certain of the exhibits, Mr. Sappington, that were placed in evidence with respect to the figures of various departments represent reports prepared by Mr. Touff, do they not? A. Some of them.

Mr. Albert: I would like to ask Mr. Martin if Mr. Simmons is going to take the stand. If he is I respectfully ask that he be excluded during the remainder of the cross-examination. I thought that we had agreed that he was to be excluded prior hereto.

Mr. Martin: I do not recall any agreement. I am perfectly willing for him to be excluded.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: You may retire, Mr. Simmons.

Examiner Bennett: You may ask him to retire to another room.

6743 (Mr. Simmons left the hearing room.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you copies of those reports with you? A. I haven't a copy of all of the reports.

Mr. Martin: Which reports?

A. Of all the reports that Mr. Touff has made to me, no.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you copies of reports that were made to you by Mr. Touff in connection with the specific exhibits that have gone into evidence? A. I have only copies.

6744 Mr. Martin: Just a minute. Which specific exhibits do you refer to? That is rather broad, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any reports, any inter-office communications with you made by Mr. Touff in connection with any of the specific exhibits that have gone into evidence?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial whether he has got them with him or not.

Mr. Albert: Again Mr. Martin wants me to ask the six questions first.

Mr. Martin: Wait——

Examiner Bennett: Well, that may be strictly true. I am going to let him answer, however.

The Witness: I have copies with me of the reports that are now in the record as exhibits.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You mean you have copies of the exhibits as they exist in the records? By that you mean the transcription 6746 of the report by the stenographers? A. I think so. I am not sure that I have all of those without making a search.

Q. I see. Have you Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482? A. Yes.

Q. Have you Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 for Identification— A. You mean the original?

Q. —Mr. Sappington? A. The originals?

Q. The original exhibit which contained the inter-office communication of Mr. Touff. You knew from my very first question what I was asking you about. A. I haven't those.

Q. You haven't those? A. No.

Q. Where are they? A. I don't know.

Q. Who has them? A. I don't know. 6747

Q. Were they returned to you? A. No.

Q. They were not?

Mr. Albert: I call upon Mr. Martin to produce Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 for Identification, containing the inter-office communication of Mr. Touff to Mr. Sappington with respect to the particular departments, a resumé of the figures of which is contained in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 in evidence.

Mr. Martin: That is objected to. Those exhibits are not in evidence, and I object to the production of them unless I am required to do so by your Honor.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor the following facts——

Examiner Bennett: A portion of the papers that are in evidence are available.

Mr. Albert: Yes. That is quite right, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: But Commission's Exhibits 481 and 6749 482 in evidence, as they exist at the present time, contained inter-office communications to Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Martin: I object to that statement. That is an incorrect statement. Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 are in evidence.

Mr. Albert: There were certain matters in connection with Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 that did not go into evidence, if it please your Honor. They were contained on the original exhibits that were presented by the Commission for identification. On those original exhibits there was certain information, certain advice, certain remarks, certain criticism by Mr. Touff for the en-
6750 lightenment of Mr. Sappington in connection with that specific exhibit. Now, I ask the Commission, who is in possession of that exhibit, who is in possession of that inter-office communication, which seemingly throws enlightenment upon an exhibit now in evidence, to produce that exhibit in order that I might cross-examine Mr. Sappington about it.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, I respectfully submit that counsel for respondent certainly has no right to cross-examine this witness on something that is not in evidence. Here is what is in evidence (indicating). He has a full and complete right to cross-examine him on what is in the evidence, the exhibits that were offered and received in evidence; but I respectfully submit that he has no right whatsoever to cross-examine him on exhibits which are not in evidence.

Mr. Albert; If it please the Court, I certainly should be permitted to cross-examine the witness upon information supplied to him by the man who prepared that exhibit which vitally affects that exhibit, but I cannot do it unless the Commission 6752 permits me to see what this man's report to Mr. Sappington is, unless the Commission is seeking to suppress evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: This is an investigation, your Honor. They are not prosecuting us.

Examiner Bennett: I understand that. I think, though, I will leave it to the discretion of the attorneys. It is their case. If they do not want to——

Mr. Albert: Very well. If it please the Court, I offer to prove——

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: —that if——

Examiner Bennett: Those documents outside 6753
of——

Mr. Albert: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: The documents, outside of the portions that are in record, are documents which are not competent or anything that can be proved by them, so I do not see how you can offer to prove from those documents.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, was there any inter-office communication to you from Mr. Touff in connection with Commission's Exhibits Nos. 481 and 482 in evidence? A. Yes.

Q. Have you that inter-office communication with you? A. No, sir.

Q. Is it in your office? A. I can't tell you; I don't know.

Q. Do not you know whether or not you have copy of it? A. I do not.

Q. Is it the only copy that you have, the one that was given to the Federal Trade Commission? A. It is the 6755 only copy I know of.

Q. It is the only one that was prepared? A. No; I don't believe it is the only one prepared. We usually prepare two or three duplicates of everything that is typed. Sometimes they are used, and sometimes they are not.

Q. Where are the duplicates? A. I don't know.

Q. Will you be good enough to look for them for me and if you find them will you be good enough to bring them in with you this afternoon? A. I will make a search.

Mr. Martin: I object to that.

Mr. Albert: So now the Commission objects to the witness volunteering to give me information that is in explanation of his own exhibit.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will give the witness

6756 the same instruction that I have always given, that he is not under obligation to do it, but if he cares to do it for accommodation of the attorneys——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any objection——

Examiner Bennett: ——you may do it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —supplying me with the copy of the inter-office communication from Mr. Touff to you made in connection with Exhibits 481 and 482? You understand that, in fairness, the Commission has instructed you that you are not under compulsion to bring it in if you do not so desire. Now, have you any objection to bringing it in? A. Yes; I think I should prefer not to.

Q. Is that because there is anything in that inter-office communication which contradicts or in any way differs with your interpretation of Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 as they now exist in the record? A. No.

Q. Does that inter-office communication support Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482 as it now exists in the record? A. No. It contained additional information that was for my information, for me personally. 6758

Q. That information that it contained, that additional information, is that something that in any way contradicts or differs from anything that you have said on the witness stand here to-day? A. It contained some of Mr. Touff's personal opinions.

Q. Which differs from yours? A. Well, I wouldn't know unless I refreshed my memory. They may or may not.

Q. What is your objection in bringing it in if you do not know what is in it? You do not want to take a chance; is that it? 6759

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor. He has already testified as to what his own opinion is. He has testified as to what his own opinion is, and he has testified that he does not care to bring this additional information in. Now, it contains Mr. Touff's opinion. Mr. Touff will be placed on the stand and Mr. Albert can cross-examine Mr. Touff at full length as to his opinion. He will be placed on the stand.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Touff is going to take th stand?

Mr. Martin: He is.

Mr. Albert: Is that what I understood you to say? Very well.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, the testimony that you have thus far given with respect to various policies and opinions, are the policies and opinions of J. L. Hudson Company, are they not? I mean, you have not interjected 6761 here any personal opinions of yours which are not the policy of J. L. Hudson Company or the opinions of J. L. Hudson Company, have you? A. Some of the statements that I made may be my own personal opinions, yes.

Q. Differing from those of J. L. Hudson Company? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Well, then— A. I would not know unless you told me which opinions you refer to. That is rather a blanket questions, covers a lot of territory.

Q. It certainly does, and so did your answer that some of them were your own personal opinions. What do you mean by that? A. You would have to tell me which opinions—which ones you want in certain cases.

Q. You volunteered the information that some of them
6762 were your personal opinions, certainly, as distinguished from the fact they were the opinions of J. L. Hudson Company.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, he did not volunteer anything; he answered the question.

Mr. Albert: All right, he answered the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What were you thinking of when you said that such of your opinions that you have expressed here were per sonal opinions? A. As I recall your questions yesterday, you were very insistent that I give you my personal opinion——

Q. Yes. A. —if I did so, it was my personal opinion.

Examiner Bennett: I think the record shows.

Mr. Albert: Very we

Examiner Bennett: —w opinions are personal and what are not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you tell me, please, whether or not there is such a thing as origination in styles? A. There may be, but it goes a long time back in history. 6764

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that you mean to-day there is no origination in style, that all styles were originated a long time back in history? A. I would not say that there is none; but I would say that there is very little, if any.

Q. To what extent— A. I don't know.

Q. —is there origination in styles? A. I don't know, but in my opinion very, very slight.

Q. Well, then— A. If any. I am not sure that there is any, but I would concede that if there is any, it is very, very slight.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, you mean by that, when you say that the difference is very slight, that the difference is a change of a button, or a change of a collar, or a slight change of a sleeve? 6765

Mr. Martin: Now, your Honor, please, it is understood that I have an objection to all of this line of inquiry?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I will sustain an objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, what is it that your customers expected to find in your store in the spring season of 1936 because of their previous experience which they could not find? A. Certain types of dresses from certain houses that we have done business with over a considerable period of time.

Q. What types of merchandise? A. Well, that is a detail that I think Mr. Touff could testify on much better than I can.

Q. You mean that you do not know the types of merchandise that are missing, in a general way? A. Oh, yes, 6767 in a general way.

Q. Well, that is all I want. A. Well, misses' daytime dresses principally, certain types of sports dresses and junior dresses at $10.75 and $12.75 cost.

Q. Well, now, your customers did not know those dresses as misses' daytime dresses? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Or this department dress.— A. Oh, yes.

Q. —or that department dress, did they? A. Oh, yes; yes, indeed.

Q. That is, they went to those particular departments? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And they noticed that a certain type of dress in that department, as distinguished from the same type of dress in that department, was not in stock; is that it? A. I 6768 don't understand the question. I am sorry. I don't know what Mr. Albert wants to know.

Q. You have testified, Mr. Sappington, that your customers claimed that they could not get the same type of goods in 1936 that they had previously; is not that correct? A. I testified that we know we are not offering to our customers certain types of merchandise that we have offered previously, and that we know are available on the market, were available on the market during the spring season, and that our competitors offered to our customers.

Q. Well, now, what is there about the merchandise that you are offering this year that differs from the merchandise that you were offering last year? A. Oh, we are not offering it; we cannot get it.

Q. Yes. That is quite true. You have been telling us that for three days, Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Martin: I move that be stricken.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. What is there, Mr. Sappington, in Guild merchandise that is necessary to J. L. Hudson & Company—is that plain language? I think that is reducing it to its most elemental language. Now, if you will be good enough to 6770 give me an equally elemental reply I think we will all be very happy. A. I shall try very hard.

Q. I do not think you have to try very hard; I think you know the answer. A. There are many things in the merchandise, and also in the production of the merchandise——

Q. Well, may I suggest— A. Now, those two things go hand in hand.

Q. Yes. Now, may I suggest that you leave the question of production of merchandise——

Mr. Haycraft: Oh, now——

The Witness: I can't.

By Mr. Albert. 6771

Q. —to the end of your answer and tell us the other things first, if you will?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, your Honor.

A. Those two things go hand in hand. Excuse me, I did not know whether you were listening or not?

6772 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Cross.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Oh, yes, I am listening. A. There are certain style features, there are certain types of merchandise that the Guild houses make, that we like, that we have shown to our customers, season after season. One example is $11.75 cost dress made by C. H. D. Robbins. We cannot duplicate that dress.

Now, because a manufacturer makes a desirable dress is not the whole story. His ability to deliver that dress as fast as we want it is equally important, particularly in the misses' daytime field where the turnover is very rapid, where hot numbers develop fast, and it is where it is necessary to get twenty or thirty of the style, and get them in a hurry. Now, the houses that we have selected from the market as the houses best equipped to do that, particularly in the $10.75 cost field, happen to be Guild houses——

Q. Are those what are called preferred resource houses-

Mr. Martin: Let him finish.

Q. —by the A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: Were you through with your answer, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, he dropped his voice.

The Witness: Yes, I am through.

6774 Mr. Martin: All right, then.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are the latter houses you have referred to the preferred resource houses of the A.M.C.?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial. His testimony is not as to what is preferred by the A.M.C., but what is preferred to by Hudson.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, do you contend that there are no other houses manufacturing a $11.75 dress, aside from C. H. D. Robbins? A. I did not say that.

Q. Well, what is there about C. H. D. Robbins dress that cannot be duplicated? A. Well, there are certain methods of handling, the styling of the dress; there is a certain conception that you, if you are buying and selling 6776 dresses, that you get when you see that dress; there is a certain desirability about that dress that is very hard to describe, because it is involved in the styling of the dress.

Q. And it has a distinctive buying appearance— A. It has.

Q. —which is recognized, and which you cannot get from any other house? A. It has a distinctive appearance, yes.

Q. And you cannot get that from any other house? A. We have not been able to duplicate any resource in the market, to duplicate the $11.75 dresses that we bought from C. H. D. Robbins this spring.

Q. And that is a designing type, a designing element that cannot be gotten from any other $11.75 house—do 6777 you mean to tell us that, Mr. Sappington? A. I don't know whether it is a designing element or not; certainly it is a type of garment——

Q. You said it is a distinctive line, and a distinctive style. Do you mean to tell me that that cannot be copied, that no other house can make it? A. I don't know.

Q. Is that what you mean? A. I don't know whether any other house can make it or not; no other house is making it.

Q. You said you cannot duplicate it, did you not? A. I meant in the market. I cannot find it in the marke

Q. Have you attempted to subsidize any manufacturer to duplicate dresses——

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial and outside of the scope of proper cross examination.

Mr. Albert: I think it is right on the point, your Honor, on this question that it cannot be duplicated.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection to that.

6779

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you chipped into the A.M.C. pot?

Mr. Martin: Objected to; same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. That has been gone into in the record and it has not been shown that the A.M.C. is able to duplicate those things.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did the A.M.C. ask you for any contributions to subsidize manufacturers?

Mr. Martin: Objection. Same objection.

6780 Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, what is there, Mr. Sappington, about that C. H. D. Robbins dress that you cannot get any place else? A. Oh, I think you would get a lot more information if you would ask that question of Mr. Touff; he has been buying those dresses for years. I——

Q. Well, is there— A. I have seen them in the department. I have been in the market, but I cannot—I cannot give you those technical—that technical information as well as a dress buyer. Now, you have been told that Mr. Touff is coming on the stand; if you want that information, you can get it from him.

Q. Do you mean, Mr. Sappington, that you have not sufficient information upon which to predicate your opinion that there is no such thing as origination in style?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, after all this time that you have had to think, 6782
Mr. Sappington, what is the rest of your answer? A. Yes. I meant to say because I have enough information to form a very definite opinion about the origination of style.

Q. What is that information you have? A. Information I have obtained from my contact with the garment business for a number of years. I know that dresses are designed with a Georgian this, or an Elizabethan that, and claimed original, and those same styles come back from the ages. We have stuff coming from the Chinese—how many thousand years old is that? Somebody makes a dress with a Chinese touch to it? Original style? No. Somebody makes a Georgian dress. Original style? No. They copy a man's coat that was worn in the 1800's. Original style? No. Of course it is not original. That 6783 has been ruled on in courts outside of this country a long time ago.

Q. When did you make a study of those cases?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain an objection. I have gone into that and into it and into it, and we are not getting anywhere. And what i it, after you get it into the record?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I inform you what I intend to do with this witness, off th record, on this particular phase?

Examiner Bennett: Oh, you may inform me, bu I—I am rather skeptical. We are not going to tak a recess at this time.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: It is not necessary to argu the case on the record with the witness. All right you may proceed.

6785 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, is it your contention that when an Elizabethan trend is the fashion for the season, that is in the models without variation of any kind?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question, please.

(The question was read.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may answer. Overruled.

6786 A. No; there are variations applied all along the line, of course, but still you have the distinctive features present. Otherwise it couldn't be recognized. That doesn't mean that the style is an original style.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is there anything new under the sun, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

A. I have heard——

Mr. Martin: As irrelevant, immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, do you distinguish between the trend of style and the design of a dress?

Q. Do I understand, then, if it please the Court, along this same line that your Honor will sustain all objections of Mr. Martin to any questions of mine seeking to elicit from the witness upon what he predicates his opinion that there is no such a thing as style origination? 6788

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I think that is a fair statement.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, did you ever get any hot numbers from houses other than Guild houses? A. You mean by that question to cover every price line we carry?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And were those hot numbers equally as hot as anything that the Guild produced?

Mr. Martin: Oh, objected to, your Honor. 6789

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. I couldn't answer that without going over our records of re-orders.

Q. Well, will you agree that—I withdraw the question. Who supplied you with hot numbers; have you any idea? A. I couldn't answer that without going over the records.

Q. So that at the present time you have no knowledge as to what houses other than Guild houses have supplied you with hot numbers?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant. He has testified that houses other than Guild houses have supplied him with hot numbers, and as to which particular ones I can't see the relevancy of it.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

6791 Q. From whom did you get Guild merchandise after the red carding, Mr. Sappington?

Mr Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer the question. The question is very general. I presume it calls——

The Witness: Your Honor, I should prefer not to mention the names of the houses that we obtained Guild merchandise from after red carding.

Examiner Bennett: Yes; I shall not insist on that.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: I supposed that the general statement——

6792 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington——

Examiner Bennett: Would be proper to so general a question. I didn't expect that it called for naming individual houses.

A. From various houses.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, you testified that you obtained merchandise from a Guild manufacturer during the time that he was a member of the Guild, that that manufacturer had since resigned; did you not? A. I did.

Q. Will you give us the name of that manufacturer who provided you with Guild merchandise? A. Your Honor, I should very much prefer not to do that.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask you in that connection, Mr. Sappington, whether you think it would be a serious injury to the business of Hudson & Company?

6794

The Witness: And to the manufacturer also, yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, since that manufacturer is no longer a member of the Guild what injury do you think could occur to him by your divulgence of his name?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has already testified that he thought it would injure both his store and the manufacturer.

Mr. Albert: And I suppose we are supposed to be bound by that answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, the fact, of course, goes to the weight of the evidence, but I will not ask the witness or attempt to force him to give up information of that sort.

6795

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, is your testimony to the effect that you purchased Guild merchandise from Guild manufacturers and your subsequent refusal to reveal the names of those manufacturers interjected into these proceedings for the sole purpose of attempting to cause dissension among the members of the Guild manufacturers?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think the witness should be permitted to comment upon that statement.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. Go ahead.

The Witness: Could I have the question, please?

(The question was read.)

6797 The Witness: I was asked the question. I gave the true answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In other words, you refuse to tell me whether or not your testimony with respect to these Guild manufacturers having supplied you with merchandise has been interjected maliciously and solely for the purpose and with the knowledge that your testimony would be read in "Women's Wear" and would create the impression among the minds of the Guild that you were able to get merchandise after you were red carded; is that so? A. No.

Q. Well, then, what is your answer to the question? You refused to answer it twice now. A. Simply that I was asked the question and I answered and I gave you 6798 the fact.

Q. You answered that you didn't want to give the names because you thought it might cause injury to the manufacturer; isn't that so? A. I didn't want to give the name because the manufacturer definitely asked us not to give the name.

Q. I see. Wasn't that evidence of the fact, as far as you were concerned, that at the time that manufacturer was doing an immoral, unethical thing in breaking his agreement with the Guild and that you were aiding him in doing that?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, your Honor.
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. At the time that you got this merchandise from the Guild manufacturer, or allegedly obtained this merchandise from the Guild manufacturer, didn't you know that he was breaking his promise to the other manufacturers?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. 6800
Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, I again ask you for the fourth time and I haven't as yet received an answer: Isn't it true that you have testified that certain manufacturers who were Guild members gave you merchandise after you were red carded, and you have declined to give us the names of those manufacturers solely for the purpose of having it appear that Guild members were not abiding by the Guild rules, and by reason thereof cause dissension among the Guild members?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, may I ask that Mr. Simmons be requested to leave the 6801 stenographer's room where the minutes are being dictated into a machine in his presence as they are being read off here this morning.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think Mr. Simmons has excellent powers of concentration if he can get very much from that. I am going to let it stand.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: Ha, ha.

Mr. Albert: May I ask for the last question.

The Reporter: You were about to make an offe of proof.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, that if were permitted to examine the witness with respec to the names of the manufacturers, Guild member at the time of his red carding who allegedly sup plied him with merchandise while they were mem bers of the Guild, the witness would be unable t bring in records demonstrating the ct that manu facturers who were members of the Guild at th time of the red carding furnished him with Guil

6803 merchandise.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you obtain any Guild merchandise through fic titious accounts, Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

Mr. Martin: We withdraw the objection.

A. You—what do you mean—may I ask what you mean by fictitious accounts?

6804 Mr. Albert: Will you read the question and answer?

(The question and answer were read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, let me give you this example. Bloomingdale, one of the A.M.C. stores, purchased Guild merchandise through another house. When the merchandise was de livered to that other house, it was redelivered to Blooming dale's. Now did the J. L. Hudson Company ever do anything like that?

6805

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. I am going to let him answer.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. Go ahead.

A. We have never bought any merchandise through Bloomingdale's, no, sir.

Q. Did you think that I asked you whether or not you bought merchandise through Bloomingdale's? A. You asked me for——

6806

Q. And did I state that anybody bought merchandise through Bloomingdale's? Isn't it a matter of fact that I stated— A. Yes.

Q. —that I stated Bloomingdale's bought merchandise through a third party? Isn't that what I stated? A. Well, as I recall it——

Q. You know, a good boxer, Mr. Sappington, when he gets hit hard always smiles. Is that why you are smiling?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant and immaterial.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, will you answer my question, please? A. I don't know what you mean like that. That is too general I can't answer.

6807

Q. Well, now, look. Let me put it on elemental terms. J. L. Hudson Company is red carded and can't get Guild merchandise according to you; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. There are stores that can get Guild merchandise; isn't that so? A. That is so.

Q. Did J. L. Hudson & Company ever have these stor that can get Guild merchandise order the Guild mercha dise and then transship it, reship it, redeliver it, or go u back alleys and deliver it to J. L. Hudson & Company? A Do you mind if I smile when I say no?

Q. No, but you didn't smile, Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Meder: Ha, ha, ha.

Q. (Continued) You didn't smile, Mr. Sappington. A Well, it is very hard to smile and say "No."

Mr. Meder: Ha, ha, ha.

6809 The Witness: Ha, ha.

Mr. Martin: Ha, ha.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Watch. No (indicating). A. Your mouth is differ ent than mine.

Q. Now, that we have had a little jesting, which is very acceptable on this hot day, Mr. Sappington, and we all enjoyed it— A. Thank you.

Q. You are quite certain of that?

(There was a short pause.)

Q. Do you have to stop and think or don't you know?

Mr. Martin: Let him answer the question.

6810

A. Ha, ha. That is an important question. I want to be very careful. Yes, I am quite certain.

Q. You are quite certain? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Did you have to think back as to the manner in which you obtained Guild merchandise? A. Oh, no.

Q. To be certain that that was not one manner of ob taining it? A. No, sir.

Q. But you did take some time to think very deeply on the point, didn't you?

Mr. Martin: Object to that.
The Witness: Ha, ha.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, isn't it a fact, or is it a fact that the alleged Guild manufacturer who has since resigned from the Guild sold you merchandise through Rosenthal-Kallman?

Mr. Martin: Objected to, and I move that the word "alleged" as used in the question be sticken 6812 out, and I object to the answer and the question.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, you say that the good will of your customers has been hurt by the Guild program.

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has gone into that thoroughly on both direct and cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. Well, in several ways. We had merchandise on 6813 order, on special order, at the time of the red carding, and had been on order a considerable period of time. As customers came in inquiring about the delivery, we had to tell them that we couldn't get the merchandise. We had merchandise in stock at the time of red carding in the latter part of February and the first part of March in our higher-priced lines where size ranges are not complete. And this is an ordinary way of doing business; it is done in every store, in every shop; customers would come in and wa one size or one color we didn't have. She would ask to special order that size for her. We had to say that w couldn't do it. We had one very important customer, very prominent woman in Detroit, who is quite influentia who is—who was very much upset and couldn't unde stand why we couldn't give her the kind of service that sh had been able to get in our store previously, and could ge at other stores in Detroit. We had plenty of occurrence like that.

Q. Did you explain why? A. No, we didn't explai why.

6815 Q. Didn't you give her any reason? A. We told her i was impossible for us to get merchandise.

Q. Were you ashamed of the reason?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as being irrelevant an immaterial.

Mr. Albert: He brought it up, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: He didn't bring up anything. He answered your question.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

6816 Q. Did you tell her that the reason it was impossible for you to get merchandise was because you refused to protect her in the style of dress that she wanted, in see ing to it that that dress could not be copied in the City of Detroit?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. The witness has al ready stated fully what he told.

Mr. Albert: He has merely—he has merely given the ultimate fact; not the reason.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I think it is unnecessary to go into these arguments in the examination on cross or direct.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Of course, Mr. Sappington, the fact that the customer was disgruntled or dissatisfied about something affected the good will of Hudson & Company; did it not? A. We think it did.

Q. So that the good will that you built up with your customer, and—withdrawn. Now, Mr. Sappington, do not you concede that there is any good will to protect on the part of the manufacturer of the dresses which you seek? 6818

Mr. Martin: Read that question back to me.

(Question read.)

Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this case.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: I will have to ask for the question again.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: I didn't understand the question when it was first asked.

(Question read.)

The Witness: I am sorry. I can't answer the question. I don't understand it. 6819

By Mr. Albert.

Q. The manufacturers whose dresses you seek? A. Seek?

Q. Seek. A. Seek, s-e-e-k?

Q. The dresses that you want. A. Yes.

Q. S-e-e-k. A. I see. All right.

Q. Have a good will that they have established in their dresses, haven't they? A. Good will with the retailer, I suppose, yes.

Q. Yes. I mean that it is obvious because you are so insistent on getting them; isn't it? Isn't it? A. We are not insisting on getting them because of the good will that the manufacturer has established between himself and us. We want the dresses because we feel that they are desirable for our stocks. They enable us to put—to maintain a competitive position with other retailers in Detroit and enable us to go along with our business as we have established it.

6821 Q. Well, now, isn't it a fact that you want their dresses? A. That is why we want them.

Q. Doesn't that constitute—I am referring to your desire to get their dresses as distinguished from other houses—doesn't that constitute good will that that manufacturer has built up with your store, that you would want his merchandise in preference to somebody else's? A. Well, I don't know.

Q. What is good will, Mr. Sappington? Let us see if you know what good will means, if that isn't good will. A. Well, I suppose the good will is the friendly feeling that exists between an organization and its customers.

Q. Built up as a result of what? A. Of satisfactory dealings over a period of years.

6822 Q. And so, as a result of satisfactory dealings over a period of years, you are very friendly to Guild manufacturers now; is that it? A. We are very friendly with the Guild manufacturers; yes.

Q. And doesn't that constitute good will between the manufacturers and yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Now, if they couldn't satisfy you with their merchandise, that good will would be vitally affected, wouldn't it? You wouldn't be quite so friendly with them, would you? A. Well, we might be.

Q. You mean— A. I think good will is more a matter of ethics, partly a matter of ethics. We might feel just as friendly toward a manufacturer, although we couldn't use his goods.

Q. Well, that isn't good will, is it? That is merely comradeship. A. Well——

Q. Or you merely dislike the man. A. Very indefinite thing.

Q. But manufacturers are in business to make a profit; aren't they? They don't want your good feeling unless you buy goods from them? A. That is right. Not necessarily.

Q. So that— A. No.

6824

Q. You are still friendly with them and don't buy goods from them; it is not good will, is it? A. It could be.

Q. Haven't the manufacturers a substantial item to protect in attempting to preserve their good will with you? A. Yes.

Q. Doesn't that good will consist of preventing it, if possible, the loss of their business to competing manufacturers? A. Yes, I should think so.

Q. And when competing manufacturers copy their styles at lesser prices and make it possible for your customers to get goods from these competing retailers at lesser prices to the loss of your business, does not that affect the good will of your business with the Guild manufacturers? A. I don't know why it should.

Q. Well, now, let us see. Let us assume a hypothetical case. 6825

Mr. Martin: I object to any further questioning along this line, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think it has gone far enough.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, is it your contention that if you had maintained your volume of Guild merchandise your departments would automatically have gone ahead in dollar volume? A. I can't answer that positively.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, were you on active—shall I say—duty, with J. L. Hudson Company all during 1935? A. No, sir.

Q. During what period of time were you not on active duty? A. Well, part of August.

Q. For how long a period of time would you say? A. Well, part of August, September and October.

6827 Q. So that, for, roughly speaking, approximately two and a half months of 1935 you were away from the business; is that what you mean? A. Well, I was at home. I had constant touch with the business through my assistants, through Mr. Dowley. I telephoned; most of the important matters were discussed with me; practically every important decision was discussed with me. I had arthritis which makes it very difficult to move. I don't think it affected my ability to discuss plans and to think; I don't think my ability to think was any worse than it is normally.

Q. And you hope that it has not manifested itself thus far? A. I hope it is not permanent, I can tell you that.

6828 Mr. Feldman: We hope so, too.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you a letter signed by Mr. Bergdahl, and ask you if you recognize that to be his signature? A. Yes, I think that is Mr. Bergdahl's signature.

Q. Mr. Bergdahl is the gentleman whom you refer to in A.M.C. as one authorized to speak for J. L. Hudson Company——

Mr. Martin: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. —as being the intermediary between J. L. Hudson Company——

Mr. Martin: Objected to. There is no such statement in the record.

Examiner Bennett: I remember none. The witness would know whether he made such a statement.

The Witness: I don't recall making such a statement. There are occasions when Mr. Bergdahl is given the authority to make arrangements for us, but there is no blanket authority given to Mr. Bergdahl to make arrangements for us. 6830

By Mr. Albert:

Q. And he has generally acted, on numerous occasions, as the zone officer between J. L. Hudson Company and the Guild and other members of the A.M.C. Stores, and the Guild; is that not so, and you have had various conferences with him with respect to Guild policies, and, as a matter of fact, you have placed into evidence some letters and telegrams passing between you and Mr. Bergdahl with reference to Guild policies?

Mr. Martin: I object to the form of the question. He is trying to cover everything in one question. Let him ask separate questions. 6831

Mr. Albert: I think we will do——

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you recall the summary——

The Witness: I think so, there are some—I will answer it backwards. I can remember the last part better. There are some exhibits from Mr. Bergdahl to the J. L. Hudson Company. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And he has— A. We have asked Mr. Bergdahl's opinion on various matters, yes.

Q. And he has at various times communicated to you the result of conferences that he has had with the Fashion Originators Guild, has he not? A. He has told me personally, and I believe in correspondence, of certain discussions that he has had with the Fashion Originators Guild, or some of its members.

Examiner Bennett: Later on there may be a motion to strike if it is not properly cleared up.

6833 (Photostatic copy of letter from Mr. H. O. Bergdahl, Association of Buying Offices, Inc., by Special Committee, under date of August 3, 1935, to Mr. A. M. Post, Executive Director, Fashion Originators Guild of America, 512 Seventh Avenue, New York City, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 46, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, is it a fact, Mr. Sappington, that the sole reason for the refusal of Guild members to sell you merchandise was the result of your policy, of your refusing to cooperate in protecting their originations? A. No, sir.

6834 Q. What other reason is there, Mr. Sappington? A. For the reason that the manufacturers shut——

Mr. Martin: Wait just a second— Ask him whether there is any reason first.

Mr. Albert: I think it is logical, if that is not the only reason there must be some other reason.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Let him answer.

Mr. Martin: Go ahead.

A. The reason the manufacturers refused to sell his merchandise was because we were red carded by the Guild——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were you— A. —and they were told not to sell us merchandise.

Q. That is quite true, perhaps, but were you not red carded by reason of your announced policy of refusing to co-operate in protecting the origination of Guild merchandise? A. We were not.

Q. Why were you red carded? A. We don't know.

Q. And after all this testimony you still do not know 6836 why you were red carded? A. We think we were red carded unfairly and unjustly.

Q. And despite the fact that you think you were red carded unfairly and unjustly, you made no request of the Fashion Originators Guild from February 14 down to February 27 to determine why you were red carded? A. We did not. The way we were treated by the Guild we did not want to make any request from him.

Q. So you did not care about it? A. Yes, we cared.

Q. Then why did you not find out about it? A. We were handled in such an unjust and unfair fashion that our firm refused to lower themselves to a point where they would discuss the matter again.

Q. And that despite the fact that you were unaware of 6837
Guild methods, as you testified to, that you had not made very much examination of the Guild methods——

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

Mr. Martin: Read the question. We did not quite get it.

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: Question withdrawn.

Tightly Bound

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, do you not know as a matte of fact that if J. L. Hudson Company advised the Fashio Originators Guild of America of its intention to co-opera with the Guild policy of protecting the style of members the Guild, that J. L. Hudson Company can have all of th merchandise that it wants? A. Nobody has told me tha

Q. What is your opinion about it?

Mr. Martin: I object to his opinion.

A. I don't know.

6839 Q. You don't know? A. I don't know what the Guil would do; I know what the Guild has done.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Sappington, I tell you now that i J. L. Hudson Company subscribes to the program of pr tecting Guild merchandise, that J. L. Hudson Company can get all of the merchandise from Fashion Originators Guild members that it desires, are you now willing to sign a declaration of co-operation? A. Are you suggesting that we turn the other cheek? We have been slapped once.

Q. I am not suggesting anything at all, Mr. Sappington A. I cannot decide on that. That is a firm policy. That is a matter to bring before the firm of the J. L. Hudson Company, not to me.

Q. Will you bring it before the firm? A. No.

Q. In other words, you are— A. Not until all this legal 6840 question is settled. We are in doubt as to the legality of the proposition.

Q. Were you not in doubt of the legality of the propos tion when you first joined the Guild? A. No.

Q. You were not? A. No.

Q. You were convinced of it? A. No, we did not tak up the question of the legality of the proposition.

Q. You did not investigate it at all? A. No.

Q. You just joined something without knowing what it was all about? A. No.

Mr. Albert: That is all, Mr. Sappington.

Examiner Bennett: All right. No redirect?

Redirect examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you were requested by Mr. Albert to obtain certain information with reference to the moving of departments in your store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you bring it here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have that information available with you now? A. Yes. 6842

Q. What did you find out?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as improper redirect.

Mr. Martin: I suggest that it is highly proper, your Honor. It was brought here at Mr. Albert's request, and brought out by him.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I think it is proper redirect examination if you want to go into it.

Mr. Martin: All right.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What did you find out, Mr. Sappington?

Examiner Bennett: I think it is not important. 6843

A. Why, we—I found that Departments 338 and 358, which were the departments under consideration—under discussion yesterday—were located permanently in their present location on the 24th of December, 1935, which was a month and a half before we were red carded, so that all of the disturbing, or alleged disturbing elements that might has been inflicted on these two departments while their quarters were being rehabilitated, took place befo the 14th of February, 1936, so that they were in an i proved condition, with new rugs, new upholstery, ne appointments in all respects by the 14th of Februar 1936.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did they have air conditioning in 1936? A. The had air conditioning; yes, sir; in 1936.

Q. But not in 1935? A. But not in 1935.

Q. Now, with reference to any other affected depar ments, what did you find? A. Department 369, which wa 6845 one of the departments under discussion yesterday, was i its permanent location on the 31st of December, 1935, an has not been disturbed since, and is in almost exactly th same spot in which it is located all of the previous yea that is 1935.

Q. All right. Anything else—wait just a moment. Di you make any further investigation to determine whethe moving of the department had an effect on its busines A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. What effect? A. I took one, the suit Departmen No. 300, which was moved, moved four times between th latter part of November and the 31st of December, when i was in its permanent location. This department durin these two months when it was moved four times had a 6846 increase of 97 per cent. in November and an increase o 32 per cent. in December. This increase is in dolla volume.

Q. Did you make any further investigation? A. I mad a further investigation of the fur department, which wa moved from the sixth floor, which had been its permanen location, to the—I mean, I beg your pardon—moved fro the fifth floor, which was its permanent location, to th sixth floor, which was a temporary location, was move back again to the fifth floor, to its new permanent location, which was different from its old location of the fur department. In its new temporary location on the sixth floor following a move late in December, between Christmas and New Years, that department had an increase of 6.8 per cent. In February, part of the time on the sixth floor, part of the time back in the new location, new permanent location on the fifth floor, this department had an increase of 35 per cent., so that it is not necessarily true that moving around makes a department lose business.

Q. Now, with reference to Commission's Exhibit 478—

6848

Mr. Albert: What exhibit is that?

Mr. Martin: 478, and so forth.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. —which is a list of Guild houses used by dress departments in 1935, I believe in your testimony you stated that that list did not contain a list of the junior resources; is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you such a list? A. I believe I have.

(List of "Guild houses with whom we did business during 1935 in the Junior Miss Department," under date of August 1, 1936, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 510.)

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibit 510 for Identification, and ask, can you identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a list of Guild houses with whom we did business in 1935 in the Junior Miss—in the Junior Miss Department.

Mr. Albert: Which is a subdivision of 371?

The Witness: No, the Junior Miss Department is 371; these are dress manufacturers.

6850 Louis B. Sappington—For Commission—Redirect.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was this prepared for you at your request? A. Ya sir.

Q. In the ordinary course of business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And relied upon by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And believed by you to be correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Martin: I offer the same in evidence, your Honor, as Commission's Exhibit 510.

Examiner Bennett: Received. I hear no objection.

6851 (List referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 510, was marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you were asked on cross-examination yesterday—did you know that Mrs. Miller, the Guild shopper for Detroit, was formerly an employee of Hudson's? I now ask you how many employees does J. L. Hudson Company have? A. Well, it varies between six and eight thousand.

Q. So that it would be quite reasonable if you were not to remember the particular employee in that number? A. Yes, sir.

6852 Mr. Albert: Does that include its secretaries and stenographers?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. The six and eight thousand includes all employees, does it not? A. It includes all employees; yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, up until the time Hudson's was red carded, did they co-operate with the Guild from the time they originally signed the Declaration of Co-operation up until the time of red carding?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

Q. Did they co-operate?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as being improper redirect, and fully covered on direct and cross-examination.

Mr. Martin: I suppose you will concede that they co-operated?

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Albert: I will have to take a leaf from the book of Mr. Martin and Mr. Haycraft. I concede nothing; I admit nothing.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. 6854

Mr. Albert: I will agree to nothing.

Mr. Martin: O.K.

Mr. Haycraft: Insist on the question.

Mr. Martin: We will insist on the question.

Mr. Albert: I will concede that they don't think that they co-operated.

Mr. Martin: We insist on the question, then, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You seem to be opening up a field of inquiry that may go a good ways.

Mr. Martin: I didn't hear you.

Examiner Bennett: I say, you seem to be opening up a field of inquiry that may go a good ways.

Mr. Martin: No, sir. That is the only question I am going to ask him. 6855

Examiner Bennett: All right. I will let him answer. Overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, with reference to the letter from Mr. Maurice Rentner to Hudson's, which is in evidence——

Mr. Albert: Would you mind repeating the fir part?

Mr. Martin: With reference to the letter fro Mr. Maurice Rentner to Hudson's.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Which is in evidence as Commission's Exhibit—yo know what the number of that is?

Mr. Albert: 480-A, B and C.

By Mr. Martin.

6857 Q. 480-A, B and C, and with reference to the 35 manu facturers listed thereon, were those manufacturers th principal source of supply for Hudson & Company?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

Mr. Martin: At that time.

Mr. Albert: Object to the form of the question as leading, no foundation has been laid; improper redirect, and we are now reopening up the entire case.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

Mr. Martin: All right, sir. Go ahead.

A. Yes, sir. As far as our higher-priced business.

6858

By Mr. Martin.

Q. As far as what? A. As the higher-priced business is concerned in the upper price lines. These were the most important sources of supply.

Q. The witness was asked, referring to page 3701 of the record, was asked this question by Mr. Albert: "Q. Did you take any steps in 1933 similar to those mentioned in Commission's Exhibit 494-A, which is a letter from Mr.

Webber to Mr. Bergdahl, and which states: 'In the meantime, I do not believe it would be wise for us to take steps to organize other retailers in opposition to this movement.'" The answer was: "A. We had no occasion, then." Now, I ask you what happened in the meantime at the time which this letter referred to?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as improper redirect; completely covered in the testimony.

Mr. Martin: Not covered in it at all, your

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

The Witness: Yes, sir. The Guild had changed 6860 its policy from the time we had went into it to the time this letter was written. It had included—it had included some of the lower price line manufacturers, and it had extended its scope, and it was requesting us to return copies of dresses down to less than $3 cost, which dresses were on sale in our competitors' stores. There was no such situation in existence at the time we signed the Declaration of Co-operation.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Sappington, you just testified that prior to red carding you returned—prior to red carding you co-operated with the Guild? A. Yes, sir. 6861

Q. In such co-operation, did you return any merchandise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you any correspondence relative to that?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

A. I think so.

Mr. Albert: If it please, as improper redirect.

Examiner Bennett: Why, I don't see why we should go into it and open up that thing again. My recollection is that it has been covered already.

Mr. Martin: All right, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Sustain the objection.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. There are one or two more questions I want to ask you, Mr. Sappington: You made the statement that you made a study of the effect of red carding on Hudson's. You have testified as to what your study was based on, the 6863 opinion you had come to, and what your opinion was based on, and certain figures were produced and offered into evidence.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I ask——

Mr. Martin: Just a minute. Just a minute. Let me finish.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment.

Mr. Martin: Just wait until I finish my question.

Examiner Bennett: Just a moment until the question is asked.

By Mr. Martin.

6864 Q. Now, certain errors were discovered in these figures which had been corrected, and the figures are now correct. Now, I ask you in view of these changes in the figures, you wish to make any change in your conclusion, or is your conclusion the same as it was formerly? A. Just the same, yes.

Q. Now, this morning you testified that because of Guild activities, you were unable to show goods which some of your competitors in this field carried. Do you know who any of these competitors are who were showing goods which you cannot show because of being red carded?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as improper redirect; no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Who are they? A. Himmelhochs, Siegal's, Russek's, Kern's. Well, among others there are a large group.

Mr. Martin: That is all, your Honor. 6866

Examiner Bennett: Recross-examination?

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, I suggest that it is——

Mr. Haycraft: There is ten minutes, yet.

Mr. Martin: Oh, that is all right.

Examiner Bennett: If he has any recross.

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, do you not know as a matter of fact that the basis of Guild action of red carding of J. L. Hudson Company was because of the Guild's belief that J. L. Hudson Company were evasive——

6867

Mr. Martin: Oh——

Q. —in their attempted and alleged compliance with the Guild program?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as not proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think that was gone into.

Mr. Haycraft: What is that?

Examiner Bennett: That was gone into. He may answer.

A. No, sir.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you aware, Mr. Sappington, in the performance of your duties in keeping in touch with the affairs in the industry, that other retailers throughout the industry are desirous of having the Guild program extended fully?

6869 Mr. Martin: Objected to as irrelevant, immaterial, and not a proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, in answer to Mr. Martin's question with respect to your testimony on page 3701, you stated that your different position arose from the fact that the Guild had changed its policy; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You also mean by that that at the present time you are attempting to organize retailers against the program of the Guild?

6870 Mr. Martin: Objected to. There is no such statement that he was doing that then or now.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it was referred to. I will let him answer.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

6871

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, in the letter referred to the following statement is made: "In the meantime I do not believe it would be wise for us to take steps to organize other retailers in opposition to this movement." And your answer was: "We had no occasion to then." Now, since it is your contention, if you have occasion now, have you been organizing retailers against the program of the Guild? A. No, sir.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. We have not been.

Q Have you joined in any program of organizing retailers against the program of the Guild?

6872

Mr. Martin: Objected to. He has already answered the question.

Mr. Albert: He has been quibbling, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: He has not been quibbling at all.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to that. Supposing he is. What does it mean to the record?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, you have admitted that there were certain errors in the figures that you have presented; is that correct? A. There were some errors in addition, I believe.

Q. And those errors were merely discovered as a result of an examination of the very exhibit without an examination of the figures upon which the exhibit is found; isn't that correct? A. I don't think the errors in addition have anything to do with the figures submitted. They were simply errors on the sheet which were totaled. To my knowledge, those were the only totals that were ever made of those figures, and the totals were not taken from our records.

6874 Q. Is it not possible that in the light of the fact tha errors were made on the exhibits themselves, do you o do you not admit the possibility that errors may have bee made in taking the figures off your records?

Mr. Martin: Objected to. Well, go ahead.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may an swer.

A. I don't think there is any relation——

By Mr. Albert.

6875 Q. I am not asking if there is any relation, Mr. Sap pington. A. Because——

Q. I am asking you this simple question: Is it your opinion, one way or the other, that since errors were made in the preparation of the particular exhibit, that perhaps errors might have been made in compiling the figures that constitute the exhibit? A. Because there were errors in that exhibit I do not believe that for that reason there may be errors in the original figures.

Q. No possibility of it? A. Because of that I do not think that there were errors in the other figures.

Q. Doesn't it indicate a tendency to err? A. If you are human you have a tendency to err, certainly.

Q. And of course men who prepare those exhibits are human? A. As far as I know.

6876 Q. And they have showed that they erred; isn't that so?

Mr. Albert: That is all, if you don't want to answer.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will take a recess until 2 o'clock for luncheon. Thank you Mr. Sappington.

The Witness: Thank you.

(Witness excused.)

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION. 2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

Have you a witness, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, but I will have to wait a minute or two until my brief case gets here.

I will ask Mr. Simmons to come and be sworn at this time.

WALTER E. SIMMONS was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows: 6878

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. State your full name? A. Walter E. Simmons.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Simmons? A. 19987 Renfrew in Detroit.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Assitsant divisional merchandise manager.

Q. Of what firm? A. J. L. Hudson Company.

Q. How long have you occupied that position? A. Since the spring of 1932.

Mr. Albert: What was that?

The Witness: Spring of 1932.

By Mr. Haycraft. 6879

Q. Before that what did you do? A. I was in the research department at J. L. Hudson's.

Q. For how long? A. Since early in 1928.

Q. Now, when you were in the research department what were your duties—just explain generally. A. Well, I was—main merchandise duties around the store, different types of reports, service checks, and that sort of thing, and later research director.

Q. In your present position, what are your duties, and what have been your duties since you assumed that position, if there has been any change? A. I went down there as assistant to Mr. Sappington who had charge of the—of all the ready-to-wear. I had certain of the dress departments, the ones that I had I still have.

Q. What were the dress departments that you had under your supervision? A. You mean the numbers?

Q. The numbers and the description of the articles that you sold? A. Department 338, which was the women's better dresses; Department 339, which is inexpensive evening dresses; Department 358, which is misses' better 6881 dresses.

Mr. Albert: What was that number?

The Witness: 358.

Mr. Albert: 338, 339 and 358?

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Martin: What was 358?

The Witness: Misses' better dresses. 359, that is the gown shop; 366, women's inexpensive dresses; 367, women's moderately priced dresses.

Mr. Albert: What was that list?

The Witness: 367, women's moderately priced dresses and larger sized dresses, they are both in that department; 368, misses' inexpensive dresses; 369, misses' moderately priced dresses; 385 sports 6882 apparel shop; 386, which is the home frocks department on the street floor.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, what are your duties with respect to the operation of these various departments? If they vary, indicate in which way they vary. A. I handle the detail work in connection with the preparation and the checking of buying plans. I handle the advertising, which is submitted to me by the buyers, window displays and other similar publicity. I have every morning the selling sheets, getting inventories, have stock reports for these departments, go over with the buyers their buying plans when they are ready to go to market, and go over mark-downs with the buyers when they want to take them, anything in a general way, with the merchandising in these dress departments.

Q. Does each department have buyers that work under you? A. All except Department 359.

Q. What is the situation with respect to that department? A. Department 359, the merchandise is bought by Miss Fowler, who is in New York. We have an assistant here who is in charge of the department, locally, an assistant buyer. 6884

Mr. Albert: May I ask that be repeated?

(Answer read.)

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, will you name the buyers for the other departments that you have named already? A. Yes, Departments 338, 358, and 369, Mr. Touff.

Q. Mr. David Touff? A. Mr. David Touff.

Q. All right. A. Departments 339, 368 and 366, Mr. Frank Wilton.

Mr. Albert: What are those numbers again? 6885
366——

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: What is 366, women's inexpensive—

Mr. Feldman: Women's inexpensive dresses.

The Witness: 367, Miss A. Kimball; 385 and 386, Miss E. Hromek. 359 I have already given.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How often do you contact the buyers in these departments? A. When they are in town, numerous times every day; they are all on the same floor.

Q. Prior to June, 1933, were these same individuals in charge of the department, of the respective departments buying in the respective departments, or have there been changes since that time? A. There have been changes.

Q. Who were the buyers of these departments in June 1933? A. I am not positive of all the buyers.

Q. Was Mr. Touff? A. I can tell you the ones who were not there.

6887 Q. Which of those buyers was not with you in June 1933?

Mr. Keller: Mr. Haycraft, will you speak a little louder, please? I cannot hear.

The Witness: What was the question, please?

(Question read.)

A. Miss Hromek and Miss Fowler was not doing any buying for us.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When did Miss Fowler start to buy for you? A. The fall season of 1935.

Q. And started about in August, would you say? A.

6888 The merchandise that she first brought in came in in the end of July and the first part of August.

Q. Just state briefly what the usual procedure is for the buying of merchandise in your department, say, during the year 1935?

Mr. Albert: Will you please read the question?

Mr. Haycraft, would you mind speaking a little bit louder? We cannot hear the questions.

(Question read.)

A. The buyer first makes up his plan that he has so much that he needs to buy, and then the usual procedure is to go into the market and make those purchases.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the market that the buyers go to, or did go to in 1935? A. Principally New York City.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first learn of that Guild? A. I don't recall exactly.

Q. When did you first learn of that in an official capacity in your store? A. I don't recall that. 6890

Q. Can you give us the year? A. No, not exactly; I think 1934.

Q. How did it come to your attention? A. We were—the buyers received instructions that all the orders that they placed with manufacturers were going to have a Guild stamp on it.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 498-A, and ask you if that is a copy of the stamp that you have in mind? A. That is right.

Q. Was that practice followed throughout that year? A. Instructions that were ordered were that every order book was to be stamped that way before the book was issued to the buyers.

Q. Did anyone check up to see whether that was done or not, to your knowledge? A. It was the duty of the office 6891 manager of the merchandise office there to check that; he had charge of the books.

Q. How long did that procedure follow in your organization? A. From the time we started we did not stop until the time that we were red carded.

Q. Can you fix that time? A. 14th of February, 1936.

Q. I notice that this stamp provides that "this order is placed upon the seller's warranty that the above garments are not copies of styles originated by the members of th Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. The pur chaser reserves the right to return any merchandise whic is not as warranted." I will ask you whether or not an garments were returned in your department pursuant t that warranty? A. Yes, there were.

Q. How did you determine when a garment was to b returned?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please th Court, as entirely cumulative and covered by Mr Sappington's testimony. I do not think we should have a reiteration by every witness of the practice 6893 Examiner Bennett: Are you pressing the ques tion?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right; overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes. A. We had a Guild shopper who would mak requests that we return copies. Sometimes we returned copies when—of our own volition.

Q. First, as to the Guild shopper, when did the shopper first shop your department? A. I do not recall when she 6894 started.

Q. Do you recall the year? A. No, I don't.

Q. Who was the shopper? A. Mrs. Miller, or Mead, as she was married in the course of her duties, I believe.

Q. Did she shop your store in 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you returned them of your own volition, what method did you follow to determine whether or not the garments should be returned?

Mr. Albert: Same objection, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; you may answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. We had the original—we had a dress in our stocks at one price. We had a dress come in that the buyer of the department having this first dress would come to me and say he thought there was a copy—would be judged, and if we all agreed that it was a copy the dress was returned.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, with respect to the shopper, what was the procedure followed there in 1935, say along in the summer or early fall? A. It was not always the same.

Q. Well, can you give us an illustration? A. Sometimes she would come in and she usually had a sheet, a mimeographed sheet with a sketch on it. She would be looking for a dress that looked like this sketch, and sometimes she would come to the buyer, or myself, and sometimes the assistant buyer, and ask us if we had that dress in our stocks. Sometimes she came into the stocks first, found the dress, and came to us and said that she had found this dress which looked to her to be a copy of this report which she had.

Q. Then what was the procedure when she told you that? A. That procedure varied, too. 6897

Q. All right. Can you give an illustration of the different procedure that was followed, the different method of procedure? A. If she brought—eventually, regardless of how it started, the dress would eventually come to me, that she had reported as a copy. That dress was then—sometimes we admitted it was a copy and returned the dress immediately, and the report made to Mr. Sappington as to what actions we had taken. Sometimes, as they go down into lower-priced dresses when they were shopping for copies in lower-priced dresses——

Q. When you say "lower-priced," what price do you mean? A. $7.75 cost, $6.75 cost—she would come in and say that she had found a copy. We would agree that it was a copy and we would take that dress off sale at that time, and when she reported, and then we would shop to see whether competitors in town had that dress. If the same dress which she was complaining of as being a copy —if that dress, or the same dress, being a copy, was found in our competitors', downtown, around Woodward 6899 Avenue, we were permitted to put that dress back on sale rather than return it. Other times she would come in and say she had a copy and on $10.75 cost, and up, dresses as well as on lower-priced dresses, we would wire the manufacturer and see if he acknowledged that that dress was a copy before we returned it to the manufacturer. Then, later, the dresses which were copies were not taken off sale while we were looking to see if other stores in town had those copies.

Q. When did that last situation, condition that you have just described, first take place? A. Later in the fall of last year.

Q. Were you present at a meeting in Mr. Dowley's office on November 16, 1935, which was attended by Mr. Goldston of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, I was. 6900

Q. Do you recall who else attended that meeting besides yourself? A. Mr. Dowley, Mr. Goldston, Mr. Preston, Mr. MacDonald.

Q. Do you recall what transpired at the meeting? A. As it affected my departments?

Q. Well, will you testify, then, as to what transpired at the meeting as it affected your departments?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. All right. To the best of your recollection what transpired; that is, who spoke and what did they say? A. There was a discussion as to how Mrs. Mead was working in the store on reported copied dresses. Mr. Goldston's request of Mr. Dowley, Mr. Preston; went over the procedure with which Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Mead was going to follow in the future. We were—she was to come in, shop our stocks. If she found a copy that she felt was a copy she was to bring it to the attention of the party in charge of the department. If that person thought that the dress that Mrs. Miller was complaining about was on sale in another store in Detroit, he was to inform Mrs. Mead to 6902 say that we would like to shop these stores and find out if the dress was there, and, if so, what stores had them. We agreed that our comparison shoppers could complete this task in two hours. At the end of two hours then Mrs. Mead was to come back to the party she talked to in the store and get their report. They reserved the right for Mrs. Mead to check this findings that we had and if we all agreed that dress was to stay on sale at the store during the time that we were checking the dress to see what stores had it in that two hour period. We were still to leave the dress on sale.

Q. Was there anything said at that meeting by Mr. Goldston with respect to the right of Hudson's to reorder a dress that was under investigation? A. I don't recall. 6903

Q. Did the representatives of Hudsons, including yourself and Mr. Dowley and Mr. Macdonald, make any agreement not to re-order pending the investigation?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to the question. The witness has answered that he doesn't recall, and now Mr. Haycraft is trying to put the answer in the witness' mouth.

Mr. Martin: He said he didn't recall what Gol ston said.

Examiner Bennett: Do you recall anything wit relation to that topic?

The Witness: We didn't agree that we would n re-order because no such instructions were eve issued to the buyer.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, prior to this meeting do you recall any specif instance where you notified a manufacturer of garment that it had been alleged to be a copy before it was returne 6905 to the manufacturer?

Mr. Albert: May I have the question?

Q. (The question was read.) A. Yes.

Q. Relate the instance that you have in mind. A. W returned—we had a request for a return of a dress t Bernard Appel.

Mr. Albert: What?

(The answer was read.)

The Witness: Because it was a copy.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What were the circumstances under which tha 6906 claim was made that it was a copy; that is, how did yo arrive at that? A. Mrs. Miller came to me with a sketc of a dress in our stock. The original sketch was from dress by Townley Frocks, and she had a copy which w had purchased from Bernard Appel.

Q. Townley Frocks was a member of the Guild? A Yes, sir.

Q. And Bernard Appel was not? A. That is right.

Q. What was the cost price of that dress; do you re call? A. Not exactly.

Q. Do you know the range that it was in, approximately? A. It was $10.75 or $12.75.

Mr. Albert: Is that retail or cost?

The Witness: Cost.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you do? A. We took the dress off sale and wired Bernard Appel stating that we had a complaint that his dress was a copy.

Q. What was the next step? A. Mr. Appel wired us back that positively it was not a copy.

Q. Then what did you do? A. Leaving the dresses that were still on sale, I called Mrs. Miller. I told her that 6908 was the information she had.

Q. You told what? A. Told Mrs. Miller the information that we had.

Q. Oh. Then what did she do? A. She told me that she would get in touch with the Guild in New York and see what they wanted to do about it.

Q. Did you hear from her again? A. Yes. She came back and said there had been an agreement that this dress was—with Bernard Appel. He agreed it was a copy.

Q. What happened next? A. We had never heard from Mr. Appel that he had agreed that it was a copy, so we wired Mr. Appel.

Q. Well, what transpired next? A. Mr. Appel wired that it wasn't the case. This went back and forth and 6909
Mr. Goldston came to Detroit, stopped in Detroit to—Came over to see us about the dress. We had the dress off sale during this period.

Q. How long a period of time transpired? A. About a week, I should say.

Q. What did Mr. Goldston have to say about it? A. We brought the garments which we had over to the large office on the sixth floor, and he told us there had been a.

controversy about this dress as to who had it first, a that if we would change the buttons on the dress we cou put it out on sale.

Q. Did you do it? A. We got the buttons from Berna
Appel, changed them and put the dress out on sale.

Q. Was that dress a popular or unpopular number?
Why, I would say it was fair.

Q. Fair? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Now, after the meeting of November 16, 1935, wh was the procedure that was followed? A. Well, when garment was shopped, told us—Miss Mead told us that w had a copy during the period of the shopping that th 6911 garment was left on sale instead of being put off the flo off sale, style, the whole style.

Q. How long did that procedure take place? Did follow in your store, in your department? A. That wa because we were following that procedure of that the arg ment came up, and we were red carded.

Q. Are you familiar with the incident which brough about the red carding? A. Yes.

Q. What was the incident?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please th
Court, as cumulative.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. If you know
If you know, tell about it.

The Witness: It was over a complaint of a dre
6912 which we had in our inexpensive dress departmen which was supposed to be a copy, which we foun to be on sale in competitive chain stores in dow town Detroit. Which we did not take off sal which we did not return.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you follow the procedure which you have jus outlined with the shopper? A. Mr. Wilton did.

Q. When did that take place? A. Early in February.

Q. Now, you said a moment ago—strike that out. When did you first learn that there was any objection to that procedure on the part of the Guild? A. Mr. Wilton received a wire from the Guild.

Q. Do you know the date of that? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know where that telegram is? A. No, I don't.

Q. What transpired after the receipt of the telegram? A. I took the telegram to Mr. Sappington.

Q. Then what happened? A. I don't know.

Q. That was the end of it, as far as you were concerned? A. We were told to leave the dresses on sale.

6914

Q. When did you first learn that the store had been red carded? A. At a meeting in a conference room on the eleventh floor.

Q. What date? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you ever attempt to buy any goods, any merchandise from Guild manufacturers subsequent to that time? A. I didn't.

Q. Did you ever accompany a buyer to the manufacturer's showrooms in an attempt—where the buyer was trying to buy garments from Guild manufacturers subsequent to that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When? A. In February, 1936.

Q. Can you give us the date? A. 20th and 21st, I was in New York.

6915

Q. Who was the buyer? A. Mr. Touff.

Q. Where did he go? A. Went to Frank Starr-Friedlander.

Q. Who did you see there? A. Mr. Friedlander.

Q. What did you do? What did Mr. Touff do, or you? A. We were there for two purposes.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I object to the answer as not responsive. He was asked what he did there. I further object to the question u the ground that it is not binding upon the respo ent.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was Friedlander a member of the Guild at th time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the obje tion. You may answer.

6917 Mr. Haycraft: Give him the question, please.

Q. (Question read.) A. We tried to get delivery merchandise which we had on order with Frank Star
Friedlander, and wanted to buy more merchandise.

Q. What did Mr. Friedlander tell you? A. He told u
he couldn't sell us any more. He was sorry that h couldn't deliver us the merchandise that we had on orde

Q. Did he tell you why? A. Because we had been re carded.

Q. Did he say you had been red carded? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he tell you how he knew you had been re carded? A. No, he didn't.

Q. Did he say anything about a meeting he attended
A. Yes, he did.

6918 Q. What did he say about that? A. He told us that h had attended a meeting.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, n proper foundation has been laid for this whatso ever. We are now getting a statement by a thir party with respect to what occurred at a meetin somewhere, some time, without the slightest bit o foundation having been laid, and the answer bein solely as a result of a leading question by Mr. Ha craft.

Examiner Bennett: What are you going to show——

Mr. Albert: I object to the question.

Examiner Bennett: What do you expect to prove by this witness in this connection?

Mr. Haycraft: I expect to prove the circumstances under which he was red carded.

Examiner Bennett: Under which what?

Mr. Haycraft: He was red carded.

Examiner Bennett: To prove this member's knowledge of it?

Mr. Haycraft: To prove the knowledge that came to this witness from a representative, a member of the Guild. 6920

Mr. Albert: As to what occurred some place else.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, sir; occurred in the meeting of the Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. All right. You may answer. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception. If it please the Court——

Mr. Haycraft: Go ahead.

A. Mr. Friedlander told us that he felt that we had placed the order with him in good faith and he would like to deliver the orders of the merchandise which we had on order. He had attended a meeting, however, and a vote had been taken on the question of whether merchandise should be delivered that was on order when stores were red carded, and a vote had been that the merchandise should not be delivered. He had voted to deliver us the merchandise. 6921

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, what did you do then after he told you that?

A. Well, we left.

Q. Where did you go next? A. Went to Milton Al mark.

Q. Whom did you see there? A. Mr. Altmark.

Q. What did he tell you? A. He was rather evasive he did not want to answer.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask tha that be stricken as a conclusion of the witness. H was asked what Mr. Milton Altmark said. Is h afraid to tell us what Mr. Altmark told him?

Examiner Bennett: If you remember.

Mr. Albert: We have a pretty good idea of wha Mr. Altmark will tell this man.

6923 Examiner Bennett: Or tell the substance.

A. Mr. Altmark said he would get Mr. Post on the lin and find out from Mr. Post what the status of our order was.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, what did he do? A. He got Mr. Post on th line, and Mr. Post said, "To bring the fellows over."

Q. Well, what did you do next? A. We went over wit Mr. Altmark.

Q. Where did you go? A. Went to the Fashion Orig nators Guild headquarters.

Q. Whom did you see there? A. Mr. Post, Mr. Gold

6924 ston.

Q. Who did the talking? A. Mr. Post.

Q. Did Mr. Altmark say anything? A. Yes.

Q. What did Mr. Altmark say? A. He said that thes two fellows had come down to him to see whether or no they were going to get delivery of merchandise that wa on order, that they had to—they were faced with having merchandise in their store, if they could not get what they had coming from him, that they wanted to go out and try and buy it some place else, but they did not want to run the risk of getting in another batch from somebody else and double their stocks. He felt that was a very fair question, and that they were entitled to an answer.

Q. What did Mr. Post say to that? A. Mr. Post said that the merchandise was on order, could not be delivered, because the stores that had been red carded had breached their contract in that they had broken their agreement with the Guild. He said he was speaking off the record, that if Hudsons wanted a—testimony and exact legal evidence on that, that they would have to see their lawyers.

Q. Well, whose lawyers? A. Guild lawyers. 6926

Q. Was anything further said by Mr. Post? A. He said that not only could the merchandise not be delivered but that they had counsel which indicated that that merchandise that had been placed, the orders accepted in good faith by the manufacturer, if that merchandise was now in work, that manufacturer had to dispose of that merchandise, that if he took a loss on the disposal of that merchandise, he had grounds to bring suit against Hudsons for the difference between the price which we placed on the order and the price at which he disposed of that merchandise which we had ordered.

Q. Was that all he said? A. That is all.

Q. What did you do then? A. We left with Mr. Altmark.

Q. Did you call on any other manufacturers? A. We 6927 went to A. Goodman.

Q. Whom did you see there? A. Mr. Goodman.

Q. What did you say to him? A. Wanted to know what the chances were of getting the merchandise we had on order.

Q. What did he say? A. He said he was sorry, he could not ship it to us.

Q. Did he tell you why? A. He said that we knew th conditions.

Q. That you knew them? A. That we knew the con ditions.

Q. Anything further said? A. No, he said he had lot on order for other stores that were going to suffer muc worse than we would.

Q. Did he say anything more? A. No.

Q. What did you do then? A. We quit trying to ge delivery of merchandise on order.

Q. Where did you go? A. Back to the office.

Q. Then what did you do with respect to getting mer
6929 chandise to sell in your store? A. That night we tele phoned California and placed an order—open order in the California market for merchandise.

Q. Anything further? A. Mr. Touff placed some orders in New York.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, were you successful in replac ing the merchandise that you had on order with Guild manufacturers at the time that you were red carded?

The Witness: Will you repeat that question?

Q. (Question read.) A. No, we were not, not all of it.

Q. Can you give us some illustration of instances? A. Yes.

6930 Mr. Albert: Instances of what, if it please the Court?

Mr. Haycraft: Where he was not able to ge the replaced merchandise which he had on order with Guild manufacturers?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely irrelevant, solely cumulative. I think the record is clear with respect to the matter.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may give instances, if you know them.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. We were able to replace the orders we had outstanding with Guild houses of costumes, both untrimmed and fur trimmed in our gown shop.

Mr. Albert: What department was that?

The Witness: 359.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. From what Guild manufacturers were you purchasing costumes for your Gown Shop? A. Max Heit, Herman Beispell, and others.

Q. When were those orders placed, approximately? A. I don't recall.

Q. When did you expect to sell the goods that were on order February 14 in your Gown Shop? 6932

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. It is entirely immaterial, wholly speculative and purely cumulative.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to the question in that form. If you want to show when they would go on sale in the regular course of business, and he knows, if there is any regular course of business, well, I will be glad to have you you bring it out.

Mr. Haycraft: That was the intent of the question, if the Court please. I will try it again.

By Mr. Haycraft. 6933

Q. When, in the ordinary course of business, would the goods which you had on order with Max Heit and Herman Beispell be sold?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, how can a witness answer that question unless we first have some testimony as to when he might have asked for a delivery date of those dresses? We do not know what type dress is, how long it would take to manufacture, or anything else. It might take three to six weeks to deliver those dresses—when he is attempting to tell us when they are to go on sale without telling us the first——

Mr. Haycraft: Better let him answer, give him a chance to answer and then we can find out.

Mr. Albert: If the Commission wants an answer of that type, I will have no objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection; go ahead.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

6935

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. They would go on sale when we received them.

Q. Can you be any more definite as to time than that, any recollection of what the situation was in that department at that time? A. We had delivery on part of our costume orders for the spring season; part was still outstanding.

Q. What is the spring season, what period of time? A. Opens up in the Gown Shop in late January and runs through Easter.

Q. What attempts did you make to get garments that would replace the garments that you had on order from 6936 Max Heit and Herman Beispell? A. We sent money to open orders to Miss Fowler, which is our customary procedure, asking her to buy costumes. We sent her types that way, names, sizes, colors, costumes—that customers wanted costumes like we had in stock, to buy those.

Q. With what success? A. She did not get any costume suits.

Q. All right. Did the red carding, and your inability to get garments from Guild manufacturers, have any other effect upon Department 359? A. Well, it made it impossible to get special orders on merchandise in stock, which is our customary procedure, to carry small stock, and special order, the size and color that the customer wants. That was bad from the customer's point of view.

Q. Now, with respect to the sports shop, Department 385, do you recall what orders you had outstanding in that department at the time you were red carded? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you recall the names of the manufacturers from whom you purchased garments sold through that department? A. Yes.

Q. Who were they—Guild manufacturers, I mean to say? A. Houses like Adler & Adler, Star Maid, Kane Weill. 6938

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 479-B and ask you whether or not it refreshes your recollection as to what orders were outstanding at the time the Hudson Company was red carded—Department 385? A. I don't recall what type of merchandise—it would be sport dresses and sport coats in that.

Q. Does that exhibit refresh your recollection as to the orders that were outstanding at the time——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

Q. —at the time of the red carding?

Mr. Albert: I object to the question upon the ground that the witness has now, two or three times, answered that he does not recall as regards that department, even after looking at the exhibit. 6939

Mr. Haycraft: That is what I am trying to find out, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: How many times do you want to try?

Examiner Bennett: If it does not refresh your recollection——

Mr. Haycraft: I am trying to find out from the witness——

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Haycraft: ——as to a certain thing, and I thought I was entitled to ask him again if it refreshed his recollection.

Examiner Bennett: Let him answer.

A. Other than they were sport dresses and sport coats I do not recall any.

By Mr. Haycraft.

6941 Q. I will ask you whether or not these outstanding orders were filled for that department? A. I don't recall whether any were delivered.

Q. Are you in a position to testify as to whether or not the red carding by the Guild of the Hudson Company had any effect upon Department 385? A. It hurts us very badly——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the answer is "yes" or "no."

A. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Are you in position? Yes. All right.

6942 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. All right. Will you testify as to what effect it did have upon Department 385? A. It hurt us badly——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask that be stricken. We want the facts, not his conclusion as to how it hurt him.

The Witness: We did not have golf dresses.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How did the fact you did not have golf dresses affect your business?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. Before the red carding we had the exclusive Detroit outlet for the Helen Hicks and the Raggey golf dresses. 6944

Q. Who were the Raggey golf dresses made by? A. Adler & Adler—no, Star Maid.

Q. Who made the Helen Hicks? A. Adler & Adler.

Q. Had you advertised them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have customers asking for them? A. We did.

Q. What did you tell them? A. Did not have them now.

Q. Were you able to replace them? A. No, sir.

Q. Why not? A. Those two dresses have, as I understand, "Patented" on the sleeve—and another some sort of patent—that no other manufacturer can produce.

Q. I will ask you now, Mr. Simmons, whether or not you are in a position to testify—that is, whether you have an opinion as to whether the red carding by Hudson Company by the Guild had any other effect upon any of the other departments under your supervision about which you have not yet testified? That can be answered "yes" or "no." A. Yes. 6945

Q. Now, in your opinion, what other effect has red carding had on the departments under your supervision? A. It has injured 358 department.

Q. In what way? A. Since the red carding, that department, in my opinion, has not had a first class stock $29.75, $39.75 street dresses.

Q. Any other effect? A. It hurt Department 338 temporarily.

Q. In what way? A. That we could not get good dresses at the $29 and $39 price line, street dresses.

Q. Any other? A. It has hurt Department 369 at certain price lines.

Q. In what way? A. Through an inability to get the type of merchandise which we have previously sold at those prices.

6947 Q. Are you familiar with "Vogue" and "Harper" promotions carried on in sport shops?

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the question be repeated, please?

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. What is the procedure followed in such promotional schemes? A. The manufacturer would have a promotion that he was going to run in "Vogue" or "Harper's" as a fashion magazine. He would offer to include our name in this feature, usually with several sketched garments. He would come in, ask us if we wanted to be in it. Sometimes we went in. If we liked the merchandise, we went 6948 in, in those promotions.

Q. Was any advertising done in connection with it? A. Sometimes.

Q. Now, in your experience, prior to the red carding, had Guild houses co-operated with the Hudson Company in such promotions? A. Our regular resources did.

Q. Do you recall some of them? A. Yes, Crystal; that is about the only one I recall.

Q. Do you recall Grossman-Siegal?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I do not think the witness should be led in this direct manner by Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: I think I am entitled to refresh his recollection, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: That is a fine refreshment of a witness' recollection by asking him the name!

Mr. Haycraft: It is usual, nothing unusual about that.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. All right. I overrule.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Question read.) 6950

A. Grossman-Siegal had promotions on Strooks Camel's Hair Coats.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you participate in that promotion? A. Yes.

Q. Did you carry the garments manufactured by those manufacturers in stock prior to the red carding? A. We did.

Q. Then what effect did it have upon that branch of your business—what effect did the red carding have upon that branch of your business? A. We did not have the Strooks Camel's Hair Coats.

Q. Did you have any calls for those coats after your stock was depleted? A. We did, and still do. 6951

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the question and answer be repeated?

(Question and answer read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When was the last time that such a promotion was put up to you? A. We have had, before the red carding, and was offered us——

Q. Well, I mean since the red carding, has anyone attempted to get you to co-operate in such a promotion since the red carding? A. They have told us what we have missed by being red carded.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask that that be stricken as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that the question be repeated to the witness.

(Question read.)

A. No.

6953

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you familiar with the Guild house known as Mutual Rosenbloom? A. Yes, I am.

Q. Is it your understanding that Mutual Rosenbloom is a Guild house—now, Mr. Simmons, what line of merchandise does the Mutual Rosenbloom manufacture and sell, or what do you buy from them? A. Sports dresses.

Q. Do they do any national advertising? A. Occasionally.

Q. Under what feature or title? A. They run features on a certain line of dresses, usually with some fabric story to them.

Q. Has Hudson's ever been invited to co-operate in that promotion? A. Yes.

6954

Q. Before red carding or after? A. Both.

Q. Were you able to co-operate after red carding? A. No, because we could not buy the dresses.

Q. All right. Is Kane Weill another one of the resources? I think that you named them.

Q. Do they conduct nationally advertised promotional schemes? A. Occasionally.

Q. At the same time? A. Yes.

Q. And before red carding had you been invited to participate in those? A. I do not recall.

Q. Have you participated in joint advertising, promotional joint advertising with other department stores throughout the country fostered by Guild houses, Guild manufacturers, in magazines such as "Vogue" and "Good Housekeeping"? A. I don't recall.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 500 and ask you if you can identify that. Do you recognize it? A. I recognize it.

Q. What is it? A. It is a wire Mr. Wilton received about the dress we didn't take off sale in February.

Q. Is that the one you mentioned in your testimony? 6956
A. That I took to Mr. Sappington.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. How often did your buyers go into New York, Mr. Simmons? A. We have no regular schedule.

Q. How often would you say, on the average? A. I wouldn't want to make a guess.

Q. You mean to tell me that as assistant divisional merchandise manager you don't know how often your buyers go to New York? A. As often as necessary.

Q. Well, how often is necessary? A. Depends on how fast we sell the merchandise.

Q. Have you checked up on their expense accounts lately? A. I haven't. 6957

Q. Have you any knowledge or any facts upon which you can draw to determine how often your buyers have gone into the market? A. I don't have any myself.

Q. How often have you gone to New York? A. I wouldn't know exactly.

Q. How often do you think you went into New York in 1935? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. How often do you think you went into New York i 1936? A. I don't recall.

Q. How often did you go into New York after the re carding? A. I don't recall.

Q. When was the last time you went into New York A. I don't know that.

Q. Do you know when J. L. Hudson Company signe the Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild? A. I don't.

Q. Did you ever know when these buyers signed th Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild? A. I don' recall that I did.

6959 Q. But the first time you heard of the latter was i the latter part of 1934; is that correct? A. I said I didn' recall exactly.

Q. Well, I am not asking you for any exact time. Abou the latter part of 1934, I believe, is what you testified to

Mr. Haycraft: He didn't say the latter part.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Some time in 1934? A. Some time, I think, I te tified.

Q. When was it? Was it in the beginning of 1934, o the latter part of 1934, or the summer of 1934? A. I don' recall.

Q. But it definitely was not in 1933? A. I testified o 6960 that.

Q. Was it in 1933? Could it have been 1933? A. I don't recall.

Q. You do not know? A. I don't recall.

Q. Well, now, when is the first time that you recall that you placed the Guild stamp on your orders? A. I don't recall that.

Q. As a matter of fact, didn't you testify that the firs time you learned of the Guild is when you were require to put the stamp on the Guild orders in 1934? A. As I recall, that was the date.

Q. Well, that is all I asked you. A. You asked me the time.

Q. The first time you put the Guild stamp on the order was some time in 1934; wasn't that right? A. As I recall.

Q. Have you any doubt of your testimony? A. I didn't write it down when we put the first stamp on the order.

Q. Would you say you put it on in 1932? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you put it on in 1931? A. I wasn't in ready-to-wear then.

Q. Did you put it on in 1933? A. I don't recall. 6962

Q. 1935? A. Yes.

Q. You put it on in 1935? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. You are certain of that? A. It was on the orders, then.

Q. I see. Well, now, working backward, was it on in 1934? A. I don't recall.

Q. Now, you don't even recall that it was on in 1934? A. I testified about that.

Q. Well, now, you testified for Mr. Martin that you put the Guild stamp on the order in 1934. Do you want to change that testimony that you are not certain of when it went on?

Mr. Haycraft: Do you want to change your question and get it right? 6963

Mr. Albert: No. The witness can correct me if I am wrong.

Mr. Haycraft: Let "Mr. Martin" stay in it, then. I am the one that asked the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you answer the question?

The Witness: What was the question?

(Question read.)

A. I don't recall. That is exactly what I said.

Q. When were you first told by any of your superior that J. L. Hudson Company had signed the Declaration of Co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I don't recall.

Q. Would you say it was 1934? A. I don't recall.

Q. Would you say it was 1933? A. I don't recall.

6965 Q. You haven't any memory whatsoever about that? A. I don't recall that.

Q. The Guild stamp, Mr. Simmons, involves the question of office and store policy of J. L. Hudson Company, doesn't it? A. It did.

Q. And yet you cannot remember when that policy was first adopted, but you can give us detailed information with respect to conversations with Mr. Post and meetings addressed by Mr. Post some time ago; isn't that right? A. I don't recall the date of the stamp. I don't recall the date the stamp was placed on the orders.

Q. Well, now, I am not asking for the exact date, Mr. Simmons. All I want is an approximation of the time if you can give it to me. A. I don't recall.

6966 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 475 and ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to when J. L. Hudson Company signified its intention to co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I don't see any date on here.

Q. You cannot tell unless you see the date? A. That is the first time I ever saw that.

Q. You never saw the Declaration of Co-operation before? A. (Witness shakes head negatively.)

Mr. Albert: May I have the—it is Commission's Exhibit 475.

The Witness: This is almost like that, except that it has this down here, and the date up here.

Q. Do you see that date, does that refresh your recollection at all? A. It says June 22.

Q. Now, you say that you never saw this Declaration of Co-operation before? A. I did not.

Q. Was it in any way discussed between you and Mr. Sappington? A. I don't recall.

Q. Now, were you not instructed in any way, or given any advice with respect to store policies at the time that 6968
J. L. Hudson Company signed the Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. When was that? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did J. L. Hudson Company have any other policy differing from that at the time that you were instructed about the fact that J. L. Hudson Company had signed the Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild? A. I don't recall.

Q. You do not know what the policy of the store was prior to its Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild? A. I don't recall.

Q. You do not know what it was, or you do not recall? A. I don't recall.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 498-A, B, C, D and E and ask you if that is the matter in which the 6969 Guild stamp was placed on your orders? A. It is.

Q. To whom does the top sheet of that exhibit go? A. To the manufacturer.

Q. That goes to the manufacturer? A. That is right.

Q. And the bottom sheets are kept by the J. L. Hudson Company for your various— A. Records.

Q. —records and files? A. That is right.

Q. I ask you to show me if the Guild warranty stam is contained on any of the duplicates of the orders tha are retained in the J. L. Hudson Company's file?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and im material.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

A. I testified to that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. No, you said it was on the top sheet only. A. O the first sheet.

6971 Q. Right, and it is not contained on the other sheet A. On the pink and yellow copies, it was on the original

Q. Only on the original sheet that is sent to the manu facturer? A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, you stated that dresses agains which the charge has been brought that they were copie would eventually be brought to you for your determina tion; is that correct? A. I saw them, eventually.

Q. Did you pass upon the question of whether or no they were copies? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you render any opinion on the matter? A. N sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, what instructions were given t your shoppers with respect to their duties in so far a 6972 shopping competitors are concerned after a dress had bee complained of as a copy?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and im material.

Mr. Albert: Most material, if it please the Court

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answe

A. They were shown the dress.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. Asked to see if they could find that dress, or a dress exactly like it in shops up and down Woodward Avenue and around on Farmer and Gratiot.

Q. How many shops were they requested to go to? A. Only important chain stores and shops on that price guarantee, whatever it should be.

Q. Were they to continue to shop the number of stores even though perhaps if they went to the first store they found it there? A. They were to see who all had the dress.

Q. And if they found it at the first store, they were not to come back and report, but to bring in reports as regards the presence of that dress in all competitors? A. That is correct. 6974

Q. When was the meeting in J. L. Hudson Company at which you learned of the fact that you had been red carded? A. I do not recall.

Mr. Haycraft: "Where" did you say, or "when"?

Mr. Albert: When.

The Witness: I don't recall.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Where was it? A. At the conference room on the eleventh floor.

Q. Was that the first knowledge of the fact that you had been red carded? A. Yes. 6975

Q. Were minutes kept of that meeting? A. I don't recall.

Q. Was that a board of directors' meeting? A. I do not know what a board of directors' meeting would be there.

Q. Of a corporation, or was it merely a meeting of the executives of the store, of the divisional merchandise manager and the buyers? A. I don't know.

Q. Who was there? A. I don't recall everybody.

Q. What? A. I don't recall everyone.

Q. Well, give us a cross-section of who was there? A. Mr. Dunham——

Q. Who is he? A. Assistant in charge of coats, some of the other garment departments.

Q. Yes. A. Mr. Preston, Mr. Oscar Webber, Mr. J. B. Webber, Mr. Dowley; there were others but I don't recall.

Q. All right. That gives us a pretty good idea of the general type of meeting it was, Mr. Simmons. Thank you. This red carding was pretty important, was it not? A. It meant we were shut out of some resources.

6977 Q. Well, it was pretty important to J. L. Hudson Company and to you, was it not? A. Certainly.

Q. Vitally affected your business, you have testified? A. Certainly.

Q. Has it not? A. Certainly.

Q. And yet you cannot remember when you first learned of the fact that you had been red carded? A. I do not know the date.

Q. You do not know the date? A. No.

Q. You are positive of that? A. Yes.

Q. How do you know that you were first red carded on February 14? A. That is what we had been told.

Q. You were told that at this meeting? A. I don't recall when we were told.

Q. Who told you that? A. I don't recall.

6978 Q. Is not your entire knowledge of this particular matter predicated upon what you have heard or read with respect to the testimony given here? A. No, sir.

Q. When was this meeting at J. L. Hudson Company in relation to February 14? A. I don't recall.

Q. Well, aside from this meeting at the J. L. Hudson Company, when was the first contact that you had with any manufacturer in which you were told that you had been red carded? A. February 20 and 21st.

Q. Now, when was this meeting in relation to February 20 and 21st? A. Prior to that.

Q. How long prior to it, do you know? A. I don't recall.

Q. But you had no actual knowledge of that until you actually went out into the market, is that so? A. No.

Q. You had no personal knowledge of the fact that you had been red carded, aside from what you have told, until you went out into the market; is that not so? A. That is it.

Q. Mr. Simmons, you testified that you were told to change the buttons on the Bernard Appel dress; is that so? A. Yes.

Q. Was that the only difference that there was in the 6980 two dresses; do you know? A. That is what we were told to do.

Q. Who told you that? A. Mr. Goldston.

Q. Who? A. Mr. Goldston.

Q. When? A. When he was in Detroit at the office.

Q. You have not any written memorandum of that, have you? A. No.

Q. What date did he tell you that? A. I don't recall.

Q. Approximately when? A. March, 1935.

Q. And that was the end of the entire matter? A. That meeting?

Q. Yes. A. So far as I know—we put the dress on sale.

Q. At that time? A. He told us to.

Q. Do you not know, Mr. Simmons, that there was a 6981 difference between the two dresses in so far as the cut of the collar was concerned? A. I don't.

Q. Do you not recall that there was a difference in the two dresses in so far as the material was concerned? A. I did not see the material in the other dress.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Simmons, any differences in the dresses other than the buttons? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you ever see the original? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, you testified to the fact that Miss Fowler purchased dresses for your Gown Shop, di you not? A. I did.

Q. Who is Miss Fowler? A. A girl in New York.

Q. We can presume that from the fact that we pref the name with "Miss" and that you have testified that sh was in New York. Have you no further knowledge of th fact of who your buyer is than the fact that she is a gir and that she is in New York, or is that the extent of you knowledge? A. I do not know of any title that she has

Q. By whom is she employed? A. I don't know wh pays her salary.

6983 Q. Where does she make her office? A. 1440——

Q. There is no sense in fencing with me, Mr. Simmons you are going to tell me that she is with the A.M.C. befor I get through——

Mr. Haycraft: Wait a moment. I move that b stricken from the record.

Mr. Albert: It is ridiculous that we should hav to waste time in this way.

Mr. Haycraft: May counsel be admonished no to engage in this type of cross-examination? W have had too much of it in this kind of questioning There is no need of it, and it is certainly not th type of conduct that we usually have in a hearin before the Federal Trade Commission. I respect

6984 fully ask that counsel be warned and admonishe in that respect——

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases——

Mr. Haycraft: The witness was interrupted, h was trying to answer the question when the tirad was made by counsel for the respondent.

Mr. Albert: Yes, and we get a very——

Mr. Haycraft: I move it be stricken and tha counsel be admonished.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it may be stricken, if you want.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, who is Miss Fowler, Mr. Simmons, in her relation with the A.M.C. and in relationship with the J. L. Hudson Company?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. No foundation laid that the witness knows anything about—

Mr. Albert: Then let him say he does not know.

Mr. Haycraft: It is an improper question, the way it is framed. 6986

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is Miss Fowler employed by the A.M.C.?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, no foundation laid that this witness knows.

Mr. Albert: Will you tell me he does not know by whom his own buyers are employed?

Mr. Haycraft: You will find out if you will ask a proper question. He said he did not know who paid her salary. That was answer enough. You cannot by browbeating and loud language and abuse of a witness hope to get anything——

Mr. Albert: The witness does not look particularly frightened, Mr. Haycraft. 6987

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I am not worrying about the witness at all.

Examiner Bennett: All right, go ahead with the examination.

Mr. Albert: May I have a ruling, if it please the Court, on the objection?

Examiner Bennett: I did not understand there was a question pending. Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: You may answer, if you know, and if you do not——

A. I was never told. I was told Miss Fowler was going to buy our Gown Shop merchandise.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, does she not make her office with the A.M.C.? A. 1440 Broadway.

Q. In the A.M.C. offices? A. Yes.

Q. Does she not only buy gowns for the other members
6989 of the A.M.C.? A. I don't know.

Mr. Haycraft: I wish to have the record show, Mr. Examiner, that I have no objection to the record containing proper evidence of who Miss Fowler is, and her connection with the Hudson Company or with the A.M.C. It is no crime and the facts can and may be developed. What I am objecting to is the browbeating tactics employed toward this witness, when he has testified he did not know who paid her salary and did not know who employed her——

Mr. Albert: Nobody asked——

Mr. Haycraft: He is not in position to know. He was not placed here for that purpose. He is not 6990 a high official of the Hudson Company and this certainly is not the proper procedure in a case of this kind.

Examiner Bennett: Well, that is disposed of.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, we have had a long speech by Mr. Haycraft, and I want to say that it was entirely uncalled for in the light of the fact that when I asked the witness "Who is Miss Fowler?" I got the very enlightening answer that she is a girl and that she is in New York. Now, certainly, if anything shows that the witness is trying to evade giving me an answer, an answer of that kind demonstrates it fully.

Mr. Martin: You also leave out that he had previously testified that she was their buyer.

Mr. Haycraft: What more do you want, and what more is relevant to the issues in this case?

Mr. Albert: May I quote your own remarks, Mr. Haycraft? Let me try the case in my own way.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

6992

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you not know, as a matter of fact, Mr. Simmons, that Miss Fowler purchases dresses for Strawbridge & Clothier, William Taylor Son——

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; he has already answered the question.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he does not know, he can say he does not know.

Mr. Haycraft: He has already said he did not know.

Mr. Martin: He already said he did not know, your Honor.

6993

A. I answered once that I did not know, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does my mentioning of the names of those members of the A.M.C. refresh your recollection? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, did any of these manufacturers with whom you had a discussion tell you anything else as a reason why they would not sell you other than the fact that you were red carded? A. I told them what Mr. Friedlander said about the meeting he attended.

Q. Yes. Well, did you ask him why you were red carded? A. We asked him if he knew, yes.

Q. Did you ask him why you were red carded, not if he knew that you were red carded? A. No.

Q. You were not interested in finding out why you were red carded, were you? A. We asked him if he knew.

Q. What? A. We asked him if he knew why we were red carded.

Q. Yes. A. We did not ask him why.

6995 Q. You did not ask him? A. No.

Q. Did you ask anybody why you were red carded? A. No.

Q. Do you know why you were red carded? A. I have been told.

Q. Aside from that you do not know? A. No.

Q. Who told you? A. I don't recall.

Q. You do not know who told you you were red carded? A. I don't recall who told us why we were red carded?

Q. Yes. Is that correct? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, with respect to these promotions in "Vogue" and in "Harper's," is this, roughly, what you are referring to, that certain manufacturers advertised their dresses in "Vogue" and in "Harper's," and in their 6996 advertisements they list certain retail stores where these dresses are sold? A. That is right.

Q. Is that, roughly speaking, the idea? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And you do not pay anything toward the printing of that advertisement? A. No.

Q. Do you? A. We have a——

Q. It is a courtesy extended to you by the manufacturers? A. In return for buying merchandise.

Q. And it arises from the fact that he believes that as a high type retail store it would enhance the value of his goods if it were known that you were selling them; is that not so? A. I do not know why he does it.

Q. Now, is it not a fact that the reason why you are not being invited to be listed in "Vogue" and "Harper's" is because you refused to protect his styles, and because it is possible for your customers to obtain copies from your store of the merchandise of high style that is being sold by the other retailers who are listed in those advertisements? A. That is not what I was told.

Q. Yes. You testified that you were told that the reason why you were not put in the advertisements was because you were red carded. A. That is right. 6998

Q. But every effect has a cause; is that not so?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Well——

Mr. Haycraft: That is argument, argumentative.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. We will adjourn until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 19, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned:)

6999

Court Room No. 722,
Federal Building,
Detroit, Michigan,
August 20, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

7001 Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. This is a reconvening of Docket No. 2769, the Federal Trade Commission against Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. et al., from yesterday. The witness may take the stand. You may proceed, Mr. Albert, when you are ready.

WALTER E. SIMMONS resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, you have testified with respect to a certain gathering at which Mr. Post made some re-7002 marks. Was that the first—shall I say—conference in Detroit which he addressed, or was it the second? A. That was the only one I attended.

Q. Do you know how many times he was in Detroit? A. I wouldn't have any way of knowing.

Q. Do you know whether or not this conference about which you have been speaking was the second or his first? A. No, I wouldn't know.

Q. Do you know that he was in Detroit at another conference? A. No, I don't know.

Q. Can you fix the time at which this conference took place? A. I believe——

Q. Which you attended? A. I believe I testified to that.

Q. Well, will you tell me again? A. The spring of 1935.

Q. By that do you mean April or May? A. Along in there.

Q. That is, you are not definitely certain which— A. No, I didn't make any notes.

Q. —which month it was? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, what is it that Mr. Altmark told Mr. Post when you went with Mr. Altmark to Mr. Post—you at least remember testifying to that yesterday, do you not? Do you recall that? A. Yes. 7004

Q. What was it that he said? A. Mr. Altmark said that these two gentlemen had come to see about whether they were going to get delivery on the merchandise which they had on order with Mr. Altmark.

Q. What else did he say? A. That he thought that was a fair question and he had come over to get an answer.

Q. What else did he say? A. He thought it was a fair question and that while we had been—why we were trying to find out in order that we would not get a double stock in case this merchandise should be delivered.

Q. Was what Mr. Altmark said a fair representation of the conversation that you had had with Mr. Altmark? A. Yes.

Q. I mean, I take it from the way you told the story you had a conference with Mr. Altmark, you went up to Mr. Post, and then Mr. Altmark told Mr. Post what you and he had been discussing? A. We went to Mr. Altmark and told him what we wanted to find out. He called Mr. Post, and then he talked to Mr. Post in Mr. Post's office. 7005

Q. What do you mean by that, you were afraid you would have double stocks?

Mr. Albert: At this time, may it please the Court may I ask that Mr. Touff be excused from the room if he is here?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(Thereupon Mr. Touff left the court room.)

The Witness: Shall I go ahead?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

A. Well, we had certain amounts of merchandise on order, in this case the Department 358. If we were not going to get this merchandise we had to have things to sell because we were getting ready for a fashion week.

7007 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. If we would go out and buy more merchandise and then Mr. Altmark would deliver his merchandise we would have that much more than we needed, because when we had placed these orders we thought we had covered our needs to the best of our ability.

Q. Did you expect any difficulty in placing the orders then, to cover the merchandise that Mr. Altmark might not send you? A. We had not shopped them.

Q. You had not even attempted to, is that it? A. We wanted to know what was going to happen first to what we had on order.

Q. That is, you had made no attempt to replace the merchandise? A. Mr. Touff had been down before I went 7008 to New York.

Q. Yes. A. And I am not familiar with just what he had done.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. These orders, Mr. Simmons, that were not filled, I presume have not been paid for, have they?

Mr. Martin: Objected to as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Have not been paid for, you say?

Mr. Albert: Have not been paid for.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he knows I will let him answer.

A. It is not my job to pay the bills.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether they have been paid for? A. No, I never check the bills that are paid or not paid.

Q. Is J. L. Hudson Company in the habit, if you know, of paying for merchandise that is not delivered? A. They pay after they get an invoice.

Q. Well, do you think you could risk saying that, in your opinion, they have not been paid for? 7010

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; he does not know.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain an objection.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Examiner Bennett: There is no use in filling up the record with statements from a witness who does not know anything about it.

Mr. Albert: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, have you any idea of the number of manufacturers available to the A.M.C. for the purchase of dresses at the price lines covered by the Guild? 7011

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

A. I have no idea what is available.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. None whatsoever? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see a list of manufacturers who were not Guild houses? A. I don't recall that I did.

Q. By that do you mean that you may have seen it, but you are not sure, or do you mean that you have never seen such a list? A. I don't recall that I ever saw a list.

Q. Do you know that the A.M.C. has supplied its member stores with a list of available resources? A. No, I don't know it.

Q. And since you don't know that there is such a list, of course you have never attempted to contact the houses 7013 that are on that list, have you?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Q. Except——

Mr. Haycraft: The respondent——

Q. Except as you may know them aside from that list?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to it. The witness is not a buyer nor put on as a buyer.

Mr. Albert: He is in——

Mr. Haycraft: There is no occasion——

Mr. Albert: He is in charge of his buyers, your Honor. He certainly ought to know what his 7014 buyers are doing.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid for that.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer. I think there is a statement in the question, though, that is not exactly enlightening.

Mr. Albert: I withdraw the question.

Mr. Haycraft: I will say for the record, Mr. Examiner, that we have a buyer for the Hudson Company that is waiting to testify in this case, and any question of this kind may be propounded to him and an answer received.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Haycraft got up yesterday afternoon and whined in a long speech that I was not permitting him to cross-examine, to question this witness whom he was presenting as having full knowledge of everything.

We are up against the same proposition, that he is handing me on to some other subordinate.

Mr. Haycraft: That is absurd.

Mr. Albert: When I start to cross-examine this witness——

7016

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

Mr. Haycraft: I have never said this witness knew everything.

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead with the cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: Which obviously he does not.

Mr. Haycraft: He knows enough. Don't worry about that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether that list was made available to your buyers? A. No, I don't.

Q. You don't know anything at all about that list; do you? A. No.

7017

Q. You don't know whether your buyers have it or not? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of it? A. I don't recall that I did.

Q. You are in supervision of these buyers, aren't you? A. That is right.

Q. You have to pass upon their listing of what they wish to buy at a particular time, don't you? A. Pass on the money and the pieces that they are going to buy.

Q. Mr. Simmons, will you tell me whether or not to your knowledge any of the departments under your supervision were furnished with a list of resources compiled by the A.M.C.? A. I don't know. They may have gotten it in New York.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. They may have gotten it in New York. I don't know.

Q. They didn't get it through the J. L. Hudson Company? A. Not through me.

Q. You have never had any discussion with them about any such list? A. No.

Q. Did you compile a list of available resources? A.

7019 No.

Q. Did you investigate in any manner the possible resources that were available to your buyers? A. I instructed the buyers to.

Q. But you paid no attention to it? A. I am not that familiar with the market.

Q. Mr. Simmons, what do you consider a first-class stock? A. A stock that as nearly as possible takes care of our customer demands.

Q. What do you consider is your customer demand? A. The things that they ask for from day to day, and week to week.

Q. What do they ask for from day to day? We will pursue this until you finally give me the answer. A. It is a 7020 certain type of garment.

Q. What type of garment? I can follow you right along, Mr. Simmons. A. Good, high fashion, style right, well made, well tailored, good fabrics, desirable colors at the right price.

Q. What do you mean by high fashion? A. Good style.

Q. That is what you mean when you said you could not get a first-class stock in Department 358? A. That is right.

Q. What are the things that you consider good style? A. I don't understand the question.

Q. What constitutes good style? What are the elements that make up good style? A. The styling of the garment, the cut of it, the fashion points on the garment, the trimming.

Q. Do you mean by that the novelty of the style? A. Not necessarily.

Q. But possibly? A. Possibly.

Q. And the fact that is a style is an origination? A. I don't know about that.

Q. You don't know whether there are originals; do you? A. I never investigated.

7022

Q. Didn't you ever try to determine whether or not a dress was an origination or not? A. No.

Q. You don't know the difference between an original dress and a copy? A. No.

Q. Do you know the difference between a dress and a copy of that dress? A. I know that if we have a dress at one price, and we get it in another price, and they look just alike——

Q. Yes? A. That they are alike.

Q. One is a copy of the other? A. They might both be copies of something else; I don't know.

Q. I am not asking you that, Mr. Simmons. A. You asked me if one was a copy of the other.

Q. That is all I am asking you.

7023

Mr. Haycraft: You got his answer. There is nothing wrong with that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I didn't ask you to contrast it with anything else.

Mr. Haycraft: Ha, ha!

A. No, I don't know if one is a copy of the other.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. Well, now, have you ever made a distinction between an original dress and a copy? A. No.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's turn to page 3840 of the record, where you were speaking a little volubly, and you weren't careful.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner; the form of the question.

Q. And we find this question.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

7025 By Mr. Albert.

Q. (Reading) "Q. When you returned them of your own volition, what method did you follow to determine whether or not the garments should be returned?"

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Q. (Reading) "A. We had the original." A. That is the original as far as our stocks were concerned. That was the first dress of that particular style that came to our stocks.

Q. So that in so far as you knew up to the time that you had it, nobody else had made a dress of that style? A. We had never had it in our stock.

7026 Mr. Albert: May I ask the repetition of the witness' previous answer?

(Answer read.)

By Mr. Albert,

Q. So that your conception of what is an original dress is the original delivery to you; is that it? A. No.

Q. What do you mean? A. I have no conception of what an original style might be, as far—I started to say that I have no idea of what a conception—of what an original style is, but that when a buyer comes to me and says, "I have this garment," as far as we are—I am concerned, that is the first time I have seen it. It is to the interest—my interest, if he has a good dress, not to have that dress sold at a lower price under certain conditions.

Q. Well, now, then, wouldn't you agree with me that your conception, or the J. L. Hudson's conception of what is an original dress is determined by the fact that the dress is originally delivered to J. L. Hudson, and that the first party that delivers the dress to J. L. Hudson is regarded as the original originator of the dress?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, the form of 7028 the question.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: Includes the J. L. Hudson Company, which is not——

A. My personal ideas aren't the J. L. Hudson Company's ideas, necessarily. I don't speak for them.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You don't speak for them? A. Not as to the market; no.

Q. Who are you speaking for, the Emporium of San Francisco? A. No, my own ideas.

Q. That is all you have been giving us here? A. What 7029
I do at the store.

Q. Your personal opinions? A. Not of my personal opinions, all of them. Sometimes you ask my personal opinions.

Q. Yes. A. Sometimes you didn't.

Q. Well, now, I am not asking for your personal opinion. You are the assistant merchandise or assistant divisional merchandise manager of J. L. Hudson Company; are you not? A. Right.

Q. And you are subordinate, as I understand, to Mr. Sappington, are you not? A. Right.

Q. And I believe that you were here and heard Mr. Haycraft yesterday say that you had knowledge of a great many things in connection with the business; did you not?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not being a correct statement of what I said.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I don't see that that is important. Go ahead with the witness.

By Mr. Albert.

7031 Q. Aside from the fact, Mr. Simmons, of a determination of the time when a dress is delivered, have you any knowledge or have you ever attempted to find out whether or not a dress is an original? A. No.

Q. And J. L. Hudson & Company has co-operated with the Guild ever since they signed the declaration of co-operation?

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike that. I object to that question and move that it be stricken.

Q. Isn't that so?

Examiner Bennett: Has this witness testified to that?

Mr. Albert: Oh, yes.

7032 Mr. Haycraft: I don't know when. That question was not propounded to this witness.

Examiner Bennett: He testified, as I remember, of beginning at some indefinite time to put a certain stamp on the orders and continued that until the red carding.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor. To save time, I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. From the time, is it your contention that J. L. Hudson & Company—or, rather, from the time that you first put the stamp on the orders, did J. L. Hudson co-operate with the Guild? is that correct? A. As far as I know, to the time of the red carding.

Q. Are you at all doubtful about it as far as your departments are concerned? A. I don't know what was done by the firm.

Q. That is, you won't assume responsibility for what was done in your departments; is that it? A. I said I didn't know what was done by the firm.

Q. I am asking you about your departments. Did your 7034 departments co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild from the time that you first put that Guild stamp on the orders? A. The instructions I had for my departments as to co-operation with the Guild——

Q. Yes? A. —was to put the stamp on the orders——

Q. Yes? A. —and to co-operate with the Guild shopper.

Q. Is the total extent of your attempt to co-operate with the Guild merely putting that stamp on the order, as far as your departments are concerned? A. The buyers then went further, probably.

Q. You don't know? A. I don't know what the buyers do in the market.

Q. You haven't the slightest idea with respect to it? A. No.

7035

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, in answer to my question as to whether or not your departments fully co-operated after you put the stamp on, you said that you had no idea of what your buyers did in the market; didn't you? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. What has your buyers, what they did in the market, got to do with your departments co-operating here in the J. L. Hudson Company store? A. The buyers do for the departments.

Q. Aren't you willing to declare for your departments that your departments have fully co-operated with the Fashion Originators Guild since the time that you put the stamp on the orders? A. I can't testify for the buyers.

Q. I am asking you for your departments that you have supervision of and that you have control of, and with respect to which you exercise a modicum of control. A. I told you that the buyers were instructed——

Q. Didn't you say that you had seen your buyers four or five times a day? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, didn't you know from them whether or not they were co-operating with the Guild? A. I didn't 7037 ask them.

Q. Didn't you make any effort to determine whether or not they were obeying the asserted policy of your store, or wasn't that one of your duties? A. I told you what my duties were.

Q. And that was one of them? A. To see that they put the stamp on and to co-operate with your shopper.

Q. All right. Now, how did you perform your duties of seeing that they co-operated with the shopper? A. Made it very definite that they were to be courteous to Mrs. Miller when she came into the store.

Q. Yes. A. Gave her the information that she requested.

Q. Yes. A. To the best of my knowledge they always did that.

7038 Q. And that is the state of your control over your departments to determine whether or not they have co-operated with the Guild— A. In addition——

Q. Is that what you want us to understand?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him answer—wait a minute.

A. In addition to making sure that the stamp is on the order.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. Mr. Simmons, as the assistant divisional merchandise manager of J. L. Hudson Company, controlling the various buyers in these departments, and as one naturally interested in the dress industry, have you any knowledge as to the contentions of manufacturers with respect to the fact that their styles are originals and originations? A. No manufacturer ever discussed that with me.

Q. Did you ever hear of the term before "original styles"? A. Only Mrs. Miller has talked about original styles with me.

Q. And, aside from that, you never heard of the ques- 7040 tion of original styles? A. I don't recall.

Q. You never discussed it with Mr. Sappington? A. No, sir.

Q. Never discussed it with Mr. Touff? A. No, sir.

Q. Never discussed it with any of your other buyers? A. No.

Q. You never asked what was all this business about copies and originals, and why do we have to determine what is a copy and what is an original?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, he has gone far enough, it seems to me.

Mr. Albert: Of course, if Mr. Haycraft will con- cede I have plumbed the depths of this witness' ignorance, I will desist. 7041

Mr. Haycraft: I will concede nothing to such a statement, and I move that that language be stricken.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the witness answer the question.

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may have an answer.

A. I was instructed that we put this stamp on the order and to co-operate with the shopper, and when she came in and told me I referred that to Mr. Sappington. She—

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You never made inquiry?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Albert: He has finished. I am sorry.

Mr. Haycraft: You know he has not finished.

A. I referred it to Mr. Sappington, who made any decisions in that particular instance.

7043 Q. Did you— A. Each instance was taken up individually.

Q. Did you not ever make inquiry as to what all this—shall I say—hocus-pocus was about? Were you not ever interested in it?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

A. It was part of all the day's business.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You did not know what all this was? This was all hocus-pocus to you, in your store, wasn't it?

Mr. Haycraft: I object, Mr. Examiner. Do not

7044 answer the question until I have a ruling.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. This business of attempting to determine whether or not a dress was a copy of something else was something new in your store, after you were instructed to put the stamp on the order, was it not? A. I don't recall.

Q. You do not recall whether or not you had ever tried to determine whether a dress was a copy before you put the Guild stamp on the orders? A. I recall that sometimes Mr. Touff would raise a question.

Q. When? A. Oh, off and on, they would have garments come up that they were referred to Mr. Sappington.

Q. Off and on when? A. From time to time.

Q. What time? Will you fix it, please? Before you put your stamps on the Guild order, or after you put your stamps on the Guild order? A. I don't recall when we started to put the stamp on the order.

Q. Well, did you ever, prior to the time that you put the stamp on the Guild order, have to determine whether or 7046 not a dress in your store was a copy of something else?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness has said he does not remember when he started putting the stamp on the order. How could he answer that question?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer if he can.

(Question read.)

A. I never determined whether any of those questions—merely brought to me, and I referred them.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that before you put the Guild stamp on the orders, 7047
J. L. Hudson Company made investigation as to whether or not a dress was a copy of another? A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall whether or not any of your buyers made complaint that some of your other buyers were selling copies of dresses that they bought? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you recall your name? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Mr. Martin: I move——

Mr. Haycraft: I move that the last question be stricken, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

Mr. Albert: That is all, Mr. Haycraft. I am not going to waste any more of the Commission's time to get "I don't recall."

Examiner Bennett: Have you any redirect?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, just a few questions.

Examiner Bennett: How?

Mr. Haycraft: I have just a few questions.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

7049 Q. I will ask you whether or not the activities that you engaged in in the returning of dresses to manufacturers pursuant to the warranty clause placed on orders, was a part of your co-operation with the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. Now, yesterday, you were cross-examined with respect to your testimony on the Bernard Appel matter; I will ask you whether or not you had any correspondence with Bernard Appel in that connection?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely cumulative; and Mr. Haycraft's testimony with respect to that matter is in the record, that this witness knows nothing about it, and he refused to permit me—and now I am making this with more certainty of what I am saying when 7050 Mr. Haycraft said I refused to permit him with respect to Mr. Sappington—Mr. Haycraft refused to permit me to have this witness identify the correspondence, or anything in connection with it, and refused to give me his correspondence on it.

Now, it is improper redirect, and anything with respect to it so far as this witness is concerned has been thoroughly covered on cross-examination.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, if you will recall the matter yesterday was an attempt on the part of counsel for the Commission to get this witness to identify correspondence between J. L. Hudson Company and the Guild with which the witness was not familiar, and which the witness could not identify. He had testified under cross-examination that he had had correspondence with Bernard Appel. He was not allowed, or asked, to go into that matter.

Now, in order to make the story complete, I wish to say at this time that I am going to recall Mr. Sappington, properly identify the correspondence that counsel for the respondent had in mind yesterday, and introduce it in evidence, but that is only a part of the story. This witness had correspondence with Bernard Appel with respect to that transaction. I am now asking to identify that correspondence. If it is properly identified I shall offer it into evidence. If it is not sufficiently identified I shall retain it and offer it at a later time when it is more completely identified. 7052

Examiner Bennett: Well, all right.

Mr. Haycraft: That is the reason that I am asking the question which I have now asked.

Examiner Bennett: Well, all right. Read the question.

(Question read.)

7053

A. I did.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, I show you Commission's Exhibit 511 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that?

(Copy of telegram from Simmons, The J. L. Hudson Company, under date of March 4, 1935, to Bernard Appel, 35 Kneeland Street, Boston, Massachusetts, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 511.)

A. Yes, that is a wire I sent to Mr. Appel.

Q. On what date? A. March 4, 1935.

(A telegram under date of March 5, 1935, from Bernard Appel, Inc., to Simmons, care J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 512.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

7055 Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 512, and ask you to identify that? A. That is Mr. Appel's reply to my wire.

Q. Dated when? A. It is dated March 5.

(Copy of letter under date of March 14, 1935, from assistant divisional merchandise manager, The J. L. Hudson Company, to Bernard Appel, 35 Kneeland Street, Boston, Massachusetts, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 513.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 513 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can. That is a letter I wrote Mr. Appel.

7056 Q. Was that a carbon copy? A. That was a carbon copy of that letter.

Q. Was the original of that letter sent to Mr. Appel in the usual course of business? A. It was.

(Letter under date of March 15, 1935, from B. Appel, Bernard Appel, Inc., to Mr. W. E. Simmons, assistant divisional merchandise manager, The J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, Michigan, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 514.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 514 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. That is a letter I received from Mr. Appel.

Q. Under what date? A. March—he sent it on March 15.

Q. When did you receive it? A. I don't recall exactly.

Q. Was it in reply to your letter of March 14? A. It was.

(Letter under date of March 27, 1935, from B. Appel, Bernard Appel, Inc., to J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, Michigan, attention of Mr. W. E. Simmons, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 515-A and 515-B.) 7058

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 515-A and B, and ask you if you can identify them? A. Another letter from Mr. Appel.

Q. Under what date? A. Dated March 27, 1935.

Q. Is that the original? A. It is.

Q. Did you receive it? A. I did.

Mr. Haycraft: Now, I offer these exhibits in evidence, Mr. Examiner, with the statement and assurance that other correspondence from the Guild with respect to this same matter, which will complete the story, will be offered later in the day. 7059

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Mr. Haycraft: If you would rather, I can withhold the offer of these, but I think there might be some examination of this witness with respect to it.

Mr. Albert: I object to this, if it please the Court, as being entirely improper redirect, as being another evidence of the manner in which this hearing is being conducted by the Commission. This man was on the stand yesterday and testified orally with respect to the Bernard Appel matter, and the Commission at that time did not put into evidence, or attempt to put into evidence, this correspondence which I understand he has identified as being between himself personally and Appel & Company. At that time——

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say any such thing.

Mr. Albert: What?

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say any such thing
7061 that it was his personal correspondence. What is the matter with you anyway? Don't you want to represent things right at all?

Mr. Keller: Is the firm.

Mr. Haycraft: You don't say he was representing his firm. It is not personal correspondence.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Haycraft, did you think that I meant that this witness sent it out on his personal letterhead?

Mr. Haycraft: I do not know what you meant. I know what you said.

Mr. Albert: Don't be so stupid about things.

Mr. Haycraft: You are stupid, not me.

Mr. Albert: This letter was signed personally
7062 by Mr. Simmons and that is all I meant when I said he had personal correspondence.

Mr. Haycraft: It is not signed personally by Mr. Simmons or anything of the kind, and you know it.

Mr. Albert: What are your initials, Mr. Simmons?

The Witness: W. E.

Mr. Albert: W. E. S.?

The Witness: "S," yes.

Mr. Albert: And when you dictate a letter, I presume that your initials appear on the letter at the bottom; is that not so?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Now, I repeat that this correspondence was in the Commission's file yesterday when they examined this man orally with respect to this very transaction, and it was kept out. Now, after cross-examination, after this witness has been asked whether or not he examined the files with respect to the incident, and he said that he could not recall, we have this correspondence brought in.

I object to it, if it please the Court, on the ground 7064 that it is improper redirect.

Mr. Haycraft: I believe counsel laid a foundation for it himself by his statement.

Examiner Bennett: Any other objection?

(Mr. Albert examines papers.)

Mr. Albert: No objection, Mr. Examiner. The objection is withdrawn.

Examiner Bennett: They may be received in evidence. That is, Commission's Exhibits 511 to 515-B.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 511, 512, 513, 514 and 515-A and 515-B, were marked as exhibits and received in evidence.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you want these? 7065

Mr. Haycraft: I want to ask him a few questions about them.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, after you had received the telegram of March 5, Commission's Exhibit 512, from the Bernard Appel Company, what did you do next?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as thoroughly covered on redirect, and is now covered by the exhibits in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I am doing that, Mr. Examiner, as a foundation question for the next exhibit.

Mr. Albert: It was a foundation question all day yesterday.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, go ahead.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may answer. A. What was the question?

7067 Examiner Bennett: Do not go into anything you have covered on direct questioning.

Mr. Haycraft: I will try not to as much as possible; this is a basis for the next letter. That is all I want to find out.

The Witness: What was the question?

(Question read.)

A. I called Mr. Sappington, read him this wire, and later sent it up to him.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, then, did anything else transpire before you wrote to Mr. Appel on March 14, Commission's Exhibit 513? A. Yes.

7068 Q. What happened? A. Mr. Sappington had had some word that the Guild agreed—disagreed with Mr. Appel, so he called me and asked me to write Mr. Appel again.

Q. And you wrote Mr. Appel this letter of March 14? A. March 14.

Q. All right. Now, I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit 514, which is a letter from Mr. Appel to yourself dated March 15, and ask you what transpired between that letter and the next one you received from Mr. Appel dated March 27, 1935?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, as fully covered——

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: —improper redirect.

A. Mr. Sappington had had more information from the Guild on this matter and had asked me to get in touch with Mr. Appel again.

Q. Did you do so? A. I believe we wired him.

Q. Do you have a copy of that telegram? A. No, I don't. 7070

Q. Do you know what you wired him?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he knows he may answer.

A. No, I don't recall.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recall what further word Mr. Sappington gave you on the transaction? A. After this letter?

Q. No, before, between the letter of March 15 and the letter of March 27, from Mr. Appel? A. Well, the Guild still had not—there was still an argument between the 7071 Guild and Mr. Appel, and we were in between.

Q. When was the meeting that you referred to yesterday in your testimony at which Mr. Goldston told you to remove the buttons, with respect to the letters which you have just——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court——

Q. —was it before——

Mr. Albert: —as improper redirect.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer if he knows.

A. It was after this letter.

Mr. Haycraft: All right. That is all.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. When was your recollection refreshed about all these, Mr. Simmons?

7073

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, nothing to show that his recollection was refreshed. The letters are there and speak for themselves.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: What was the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: You may answer, if there is any question about that.

A. I was shown these yesterday afternoon.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yesterday afternoon? A. Yes.

7074 Q. You had not seen them before? A. No.

Q. Did not know anything at all about them before? A. I testified yesterday that I had wired Mr. Appel and that he had wired me back.

Q. Yes. A. And we had had correspondence with Mr. Appel.

Q. How about the letters? A. I did not recall exactly how we had gotten back and forth.

Q. How about the question of your knowledge of the Guild's activities in this particular matter? A. I testified that my contact with the Guild was through Mrs. Miller.

Q. Through Mrs. Miller? A. Yes.

Q. Did you just tell us that you wrote certain letters and sent certain telegrams as a result of certain conversations with Mr. Sappington? A. To Mr. Appel?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And yesterday, when we were having this discussion about whether or not there was any correspondence on the matter, you were restricting your answers to "I don't recall" to what correspondence passed between J. L. Hudson Company and the Guild, were you not? A. That is what 7076 you asked me.

Q. And you did not volunteer that you had any correspondence with Mr. Appel, did you? A. You did not ask me that.

Q. I said, you did not volunteer it, did you?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He is not expected to volunteer. He is not in a place to volunteer.

Mr. Albert: Oh, I see; we are supposed to conceal facts?

Mr. Haycraft: No, you are supposed to conceal facts, but you are supposed to be lawyer enough to ask questions to get the facts.

Mr. Albert: Well, we will see whether or not I could have gotten the facts, Mr. Haycraft. 7077

Mr. Haycraft: All right, if you had asked the witness any question about correspondence he had with Mr. Appel, he would have given you whatever he knew about it, and you know it.

Mr. Albert: Supposing you had asked him about that correspondence on your redirect?

Mr. Haycraft: I did.

Mr. Albert: I have full faith and confidence that if you had——

Mr. Haycraft: I did, and he stated his recollection about it. You did not cross-examine him about it.

Mr. Albert: Can you find that in the record for me?

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly.

Mr. Albert: Where you asked whether or not he had correspondence with Bernard Appel?

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly.

Mr. Albert: Did you offer that correspondence in evidence?

Mr. Haycraft: No, I did not. I do not have to 7079 offer correspondence in evidence. Are you not lawyer enough to know that?

Mr. Albert: What?

Mr. Haycraft: Are you not lawyer enough to know that?

Mr. Albert: I am lawyer enough to know that you are not one.

Examiner Bennett: Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

Examiner Bennett: I wonder if you gentlemen are through? You may proceed, Mr. Albert.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, what information did you have from the Fash-
7080 ion Originators Guild, Mr. Simmons, with respect to this matter?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness said he had no contact with the Fashion Originators Guild.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

A. My contact with the Guild was through Mrs. Miller.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you have any knowledge whatsoever of what the Fashion Originators Guild wanted with respect to this matter?

The Witness: Will you read me the question, please?

(Question read.)

A. Mrs. Miller told me that they wanted us to return the Appel dress.

By Mr. Albert. 7082

Q. Was that all she told you? A. Yes.

Q. Anything else? A. Because it was a copy of Townley's dress.

Q. Aside from the fact that Mrs. Miller told you to withdraw this dress because it was a copy of Townley's dress, you had no knowledge whatsoever of what the Guild's position was in this matter; is that so? A. Mr. Sappington, when I would call him and tell him about these, said that there was—that there was an argument about it, a disagreement.

Q. And is that all that you knew, that there was a disagreement, and that Mrs. Miller told you to return the dress because of the fact it was a copy of a Townley dress? A. As I recall, that's right.

Q. That is all you knew? A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you tell me where you got the information from as contained in your letter of March 14 to Bernard Appel, being Commission's Exhibit 513 in evidence, reading as follows: "Now, the Fashion Originators Guild informs us that you have agreed to withdraw this stock from your line and are again demanding that we return the dress to you"? A. Mr. Sappington had given me that.

Q. So that you did more about the Guild's position than merely that Mrs. Miller told you to withdraw the copy, and that there was a disagreement about it; is that not so?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner; the question does not mean that at all. I object to the form of the question.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: That language quoted there does not carry anything further.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Go ahead.

7085

A. On occasions like this, Mr. Sappington would call me, and if I had started a correspondence with Mr. Appel, as in this case, tell me what to ask him.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like to inquire, Mr. Examiner, if there are going to be any questions on cross-examination. We have waited ten minutes now since the last question was propounded.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Simmons, was it the policy of the J. L. Hudson Company to wire the manufacturer in order to determine from him whether or not his dress was a copy? A. On a 7086 complaint?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. How many times was that done, do you know? A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Have you any idea as to how many times such a manufacturer agreed that his dress was a copy of another? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did any manufacturer ever agree that his dress was a copy of another? A. No, not as I recall.

Q. That you are certain of? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you mean when you said that J. L. Hudson Company determined whether or not a dress was a copy of another of its own volition?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as not proper recross-examination. It wasn't brought out on redirect at all. I examined this witness about this particular correspondence with Appel.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. All right. Let's confine ourselves to that, please.

Mr. Albert: What was your Honor's ruling?

Examiner Bennett: I say, sustained. Let's confine ourselves to that. 7088

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Examiner Bennett: To the redirect. If there is anything in that correspondence you want to develop, why, that is all right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, was this the regular policy of J. L. Hudson Company? I am quoting from your letter, Commission's Exhibit 513: "We are still keeping this dress in our stocks until you agree with the Guild that the dress is a copy." A. Not to return it to the manufacturer until we had gotten an agreement or had not heard from him that it was a copy.

Q. So, in other words, unless the manufacturer agrees 7089 that his dress was a copy, you kept it on sale?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. That isn't what the witness said at all.

Mr. Albert: Well, let him contradict me if it isn't.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the use of putting things—

Examiner Bennett: Well, ask him.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question?

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection in that form. The question did not cover his last answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, that your recollection has been refreshed with respect to your correspondence with him, has your recollection likewise been refreshed since yesterday with respect to Respondents' Exhibits 47, 50 and 51?

7091 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, first, Mr. Examiner, with respect to the form of the question. The witness' recollection has been refreshed with respect to his correspondence with Appel. It was not with the others, and even if it was, it would have no bearing upon the exhibit which respondent attempted to get in yesterday because the witness did not recall the testimony, had never seen it before, and it is not proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I understand there is an offer——

Mr. Haycraft: There is going to be a witness who will testify and identify all of this correspondence.

Examiner Bennett: There is an offer that the Commission will put that in the record in the regular way, that there is a witness who can identify them. This witness in his testimony yesterday said that he cannot identify it, and we are wasting time.

7092

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right, you may have an exception.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Mr. Albert: Just a moment, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Simmons, is the subject-matter and the substance of Commission's Exhibit 513, a letter of March 14 by you and the statements therein contained, matters which you know of your own knowledge? A. After the first wire, things that went to Mr. Appel was what Mr. Sappington instructed me to send him.

Q. That is, did Mr. Sappington give you the information? A. That is right, because——

Q. That is contained in the letter? A. That is right.

Q. And aside from the fact that Mr. Sappington told you what to write, you have no knowledge of the accuracy of what is contained in this letter? A. I don't recall every- 7094 thing in the letter. Can I see it?

Q. Did——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it unless the witness is shown the letter.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did Mr. Sappington look over this letter before it went out? A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know whether or not he initialed it in any way?

Mr. Haycraft: Show him the letter. I object to that question unless he sees the letter.

Mr. Albert: I am asking this witness, your 7095
Honor——

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead.

Mr. Albert: He should know.

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. He did not? A. No.

Q. Did you tell him that you had sent the letter? A. He told me to send it. When he tells me to do something I do it.

Q. He gave you the subject-matter that you were to put in the letter? A. Right.

Q. Now, did he give you this statement: "We wired you because we have agreed upon a policy of not returning a dress to a manufacturer until that manufacturer informs us that he has copied the dress from the Guild house"—did he tell you that? A. Is that what the letter says?

Q. Is that right?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him see the letter. Let him
7097 see what else is in there.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

(The letter referred to was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. The second sentence (indicating).

Mr. Haycraft: I insist, Mr. Examiner, that the balance of the sentence be read also. It wasn't a sentence at all. It was a part of a sentence. I certainly object to that.

By Mr. Albert.

7098 Q. Read the balance of the sentence into the record, Mr. Simmons, and see if it has anything to do with the first part of the sentence.

Mr. Haycraft: It certainly has. It has a lot to do with it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Read the full sentence. A. All right. "We wired you because we have agreed upon a policy of not returning the dress to a manufacturer until that manufacturer informs us that he has copied the dress from the Guild house."

Q. Now the rest is what I did not read. A. "We have had cases where both the Guild house and a lower priced manufacturer copied the dresses from the same source."

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. With whom was any agreement made?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

7100

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That you were not to return a dress to the manufacturer unless that manufacturer agreed that his own dress was a copy? A. We had that policy in the store.

Q. With whom did you agree? You say, "We have agreed upon a policy." Whose policy was that? A. The store's, J. L. Hudson Company.

Q. You didn't agree with anybody else about it, did you? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: Ha!

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You didn't agree with the Fashion Originators Guild about it? A. No. 7101

Q. The Fashion Originators Guild didn't say that you couldn't—you shouldn't return a copy until the manufacturer had agreed that it was? A. No.

Q. And that is— A. As far as I know.

Q. And that is what you consider co-operation with the Guild program, is that so? A. That was the policy.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

A. (Continuing) That was the policy I was instructed to follow.

Mr. Haycraft: What was the last answer?

(The last answer was read.)

By Mr. Albert:

Q. What are the cases, Mr. Simmons, in which a Guild house and a low priced manufacturer copied dresses from the same source?

Mr. Haycraft: If he knows.

Mr. Albert: I knew very well that he was going 7103 to say that he didn't know or didn't recall.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that statement and ask that it be stricken.

Mr. Albert: I just want another "I don't recall" on the record.

Mr. Haycraft: You want the truth. That is what you will get.

Mr. Albert: I withdraw the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Simmons, do you know in what cases Guild houses and a lower priced manufacturer copied a dress from the same source? A. I don't recall any.

Q. You mean by that that you don't know any? A. I 7104 don't recall any.

Q. You mean by that that there were some, but you can't remember? A. I can't remember whether I was told of any or not.

Q. Did you ever discuss it with Mr. Sappington? A. I don't recall.

Q. Where he told you to send this letter under your signature as a representation of an assistant divisional merchandise manager—did you ask him whether there were any cases? A. No.

Q. And yet you made this representation in this letter? A. That is what the letter says.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Mr. Haycraft: Nothing further.

Examiner Bennett: Are you through?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. That is all with Mr. Simmons.

(Witness excused.)

LOUIS B. SAPPINGTON was thereupon recalled as a witness for the Commission, and, having been previously sworn, testified further as follows: 7106

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

(Letter from Jack Goldston, Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., New York City, under date of March 16, 1935, to Mr. L. B. Sappington, The J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, Michigan, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 517-A and 517-B.)

Q. Mr. Sappington, I show you Commission's Exhibits 517-A and B for Identification, and ask you if you can identify them? A. Yes, sir. 7107

Q. And tell us what that is? A. This is a letter written to me by Mr. Goldston of the Fashion Originators Guild, March 16, 1935.

(Copy of letter from Assistant General Merchandise Manager, under date of March 18, 1935, to Mr. Jack Goldston, Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., 512 Seventh Avenue, New York City, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 518.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 518 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. A carbon copy of a letter which I wrote to Mr. Jack Goldston, March 18, 1935.

Q. Is it in reply to the one you just identified from him? A. In reply to his letter of March 16.

Q. Was the original of this letter sent to Mr. Goldston
7109 in the regular course of business? A. Yes, sir.

(Letter from Jack Goldston, Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., New York City, under date of March 25, 1935, to Mr. Sappington, J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, Michigan, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 519.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 519 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This is a letter from Mr. Jack Goldston to me, March 25, 1935.

Q. Did you receive it? A. I did.

(Letter from Albert M. Post, Executive Director, 7110 Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., under date of April 2, 1935, to Mr. L. B. Sappington, J. L. Hudson Company, 1206 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, was marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 520-A and 520-B.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 520-A and 520-B for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. A letter from Mr. Albert Post to me, dated April 2, 1935.

Q. Did you receive that? A. Yes, sir.

(Letter from Albert M. Post, Executive Director, Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc., under date of April 3, 1935, to Mr. L. B. Sappington, J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit, Mich., was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 521.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 521 for Identification, and ask you whether or not you can identify that? 7112
A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from Mr. Albert Post to me, dated April 3, 1935.

Q. Did you receive that? A. Yes, sir.

(Photostatic copy of paper signed by "The Committee" was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 522.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 522 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This is a photostatic copy which was enclosed in Mr. Post's letter of April 3, 1935.

7113

Mr. Haycraft: I offer this correspondence in evidence, Mr. Examiner.

(Counsel studied correspondence.)

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to Commission's Exhibit 518 unless the letter referred to in Commission's Exhibit 518 as being enclosed therein is also presented——

Mr. Haycraft: It is in evidence.

Mr. Albert: —for identification, or unless it is pointed out in evidence as to what is meant by that letter, which particular letter in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I will straighten that out in a moment.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Sappington, calling your attention to Commission's Exhibit 518 for Identification, and to the letter referred to therein, mentioned by counsel for the respondent as being a copy of a letter from Mr. Appel, I will direct your attention to Commission's Exhibit 514 and ask you 7115 if that is the letter referred to in that Commission's Exhibit 518? A. Yes.

Mr. Feldman: What is that number?

Mr. Haycraft: Commission's Exhibit 514 is the letter referred to in Commission's Exhibit 518?

A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: The documents are received as Commission's Exhibits 517 to 522, inclusive.

(Documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 517-A, 517-B, 518, 519, 520-A, 520-B, 521, and 522, heretofore marked, were received in evidence.)

7116 Mr. Haycraft: Now I would like to have the other exhibits, Mr. Feldman.

(Counsel hands papers to Mr. Haycraft.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I now show you Commission's Exhibit 519, which is a letter from Mr. Goldston to yourself under date of March 25, 1935, in which he refers to a meeting of the Piracy

Committee, and call your attention to the following language at the bottom of the letter: "I will be in your city within the next week or so and look forward to meeting you." I will ask you whether or not Mr. Goldston did call on you when he was in Detroit, subsequent to that letter?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as improper redirect.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I am——

Mr. Albert: Apparently is not necessary to recall this witness for that purpose.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, this correspondence will not tell the whole story if this testimony 7118 is not elicited, and I think, in fairness to the Examiner and the Commission and the witness as well, that the whole story should go in.

Mr. Albert: Why was not this correspondence put into evidence when this man orally testified to it? If the whole story cannot be gotten just from the oral evidence aside from the letters?

Mr. Haycraft: You have your objection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I do not conceive this as redirect.

Mr. Haycraft: No, it is not redirect.

Examiner Bennett: It is a recalling of the witness for further direct examination.

Mr. Albert: On a matter he has already testified 7119 to, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Bennett: If he wants to go into that—

Mr. Haycraft: He never testified to that.

Examiner Bennett: —subject further to a reasonable extent, why, I will let him do so. Objection overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

7120 Louis B. Suppington—For Com.—Recalled—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. Yes. Mr. Goldston advised us—advised the store, and talked with me, after March 25.

Q. Did he discuss the subject-matter of a letter of March 25? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on that occasion who was present besides yourself—was anyone else present besides yourself and Mr. Goldston? A. Mr. Simmons and Mrs. Miller.

Q. Now, then, will you testify as to what took place at that meeting?

7121 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as having been told on his previous direct testimony——

Mr. Haycraft: No, no.

Mr. Albert: He testified previously.

Mr. Haycraft: No, never mentioned on his previous testimony.

Mr. Albert: Why was it withheld?

Mr. Haycraft: It was not withheld. I told you before——

Mr. Albert: What is the sense of putting the witness on the stand back and forth like this. You put the witness on and then withdraw him and then put him back to discuss something that was up for discussion on his original examination.

7122 Mr. Haycraft: I attempted to interrogate this witness with respect to returns, and upon your objection I was not allowed to do it. This matter came up on cross-examination, as you know, with Mr. Simmons, and I am recalling this witness now in order to straighten out a situation which developed on that examination.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. The matter of the controversy on the Appel-Townley matter was discussed. Mr. Goldston told us what had occurred in New York with reference to the work of the Piracy Committee. He asked us to return the dress to Mr. Appel. After considerable discussion of the subject, we agreed that we would return the dress to Mr. Appel, and the matter apparently was settled until Mr. Goldston supplemented his discussion by telling us after we had agreed that we would do it, that it was not necessary to do it, that if we would change the buttons on the dress we could go ahead and sell it, that if we took the buttons off, they would no longer—if we took the buttons off and put new buttons on, that the Guild would not consider the 7124 dress a copy of the Townley dress, and it would be satisfactory if we would continue to sell the garment.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. And did you do so? A. I instructed Mr. Simmons to do so.

Q. Now, did you subsequently to that conversation with Mr. Goldston meet Mr. Post and discuss this matter? A. Quite some time later. I think on Mr. Post's next visit he mentioned this matter, but not—that was quite a little time later.

Q. Was that after the date of the correspondence, April 2, 1935— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —the two letters from him, April 2, 1935, and April 7125
3, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Commission's Exhibits 520 and 521? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did Mr. Post have to say on that occasion with respect to this matter? A. Well, Mr. Post, as I recall, opened his conversation by accusing the J. L. Hudson of non-co-operation, and I told him that I thought we had co-operated fully in the matter, and stated what had occurred, and Mr. Post gave me to understand at that time that he had not heard from Mr. Goldston, and he did not know what the disposition of the Bernard Appel was on the part of the J. L. Hudson Company.

7126 Louis B. Sappington—For Com.—Recalled—Direct.

Q. Was that all he had to say about it? A. That was all he had to say. He said a great deal regarding our non co-operation before I acquainted him with the facts.

Q. What did he say about that? Did he say anything further than that, after that? A. No, no, sir; we discussed another matter entirely.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Mr. Post: May I see those exhibits, please?

Mr. Albert: May we have those exhibits?

7127 (The papers were handed to counsel.)

Mr. Haycraft: We have one more question that has occurred to me.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Sappington, I call your attention to Commission's Exhibit 513, a letter dated March 14, 1935, and the following language in that letter: "In reply to our wire you informed us that your style was not a copy as you had the same dress on your line last year. Now, the Fashion Guild informs us that you have agreed to withdraw this style from your line and are again demanding that we return the dress to you. We are still keeping this dress in our stocks until you agree with the Guild 7128 that the dress is a copy. Will you kindly wire at once giving your position on the dress and also inform us whether or not we should return the dress to you." I will ask you whether or not the statement which I have just read to you was the policy of the Hudson Company at the time that the letter was written? A. When there was a disagreement—that is, when we did not agree with the Guild shopper that a dress was a copy, when it was not an obvious thing to us that it was a duplication of another we got in touch with the manufacturer to get his n and get his story, which was back of the manufac-to the dress during the time when that was in doubt pt the merchandise on sale. If the manufacturer no reply to our inquiry from him, which was often se, as to whether or not his dress was a copy, we ed the dress to him immediately. We gave him a two for reply. If as in the case of the Appel situa-he manufacturer strenuously objected, then we l for more definite information before we took action.

cases we made the decision. If we di agreed with anufacturer, then the dresses went back to him, and s the only case that I know of that went this far 7130
there was any definite disagreement.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

examination by Mr. Albert.

Now, Mr. Sappington, do you recall when it was that oldston had this conversation with you? A. Can't on exactly, but it was some time the latter part of
.

It was definitely in March, was it not? A. Yes, I bet was in March. I——

It wasn't in February, was it? A. No, it wasn't in ary.

Did you make any reply to the Fashion Originators 7131 letter of April 2, Commission's Exhibits 520-A and
. Is that the letter from Mr. Post.

I believe so. Yes. A. No, I do not.

I read to you from this letter—that is, Commission's its 520-A and B. We were advised by our Mr. Jack on that Mr. Appel of Boston had informed you that ncy Committee consisting of three retailers had adl his dress as no copy of the Townley Frock dress.

Mr. Goldston suggested that we send the actual report to you in order to assure you that the information we had transmitted was correct; and, secondly, to show you how absolutely undependable might be the defendant manufacturers' statements concerning his own transaction." Now, in the light of the fact that you say that in the end of March, 1935, Mr. Goldston told you certain things with respect to clearing up the question of whether the Appel dress was a copy, do you not think that the letter of April 2, 1935, from Mr. Post, does not support your story that Mr. Goldston told you to change the buttons, since after that conversation with Mr. Goldston there is still corre-
7133 spondence with respect as to whether it is a copy, and there is still correspondence with respect to the second Piracy Committee?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to any second Piracy Committee. There is nothing to show that there ever was a second Piracy Committee.

Mr. Albert: We will get to that, Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the question. The question assumes a fact that is not in the record.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Sappington has shown that he can contradict me on facts, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: The reference is made to a second Piracy Committee. There is no evidence of any 7134 second Piracy Committee in this record. Read the correspondence.

Mr. Albert: Hold that last question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How many Piracy Committees were on the Appel dress, Mr. Sappington? A. Only one that I know of.

Q. Only one that you know of? A. That is right.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 517-A, which is the letter of March 16 from Mr. Goldston to you, and read this sentence to you: "The Piracy Committee acting on the Barney Appel dress viewed—viewed—the two garments and judged it a copy." Is that the Piracy Committee you are referring to? A. I don't know anything about this Piracy Committee.

Q. Did you make any inquiry about it? A. No.

Q. You were informed of the fact that the Barney Appel dress had been adjudged a copy by a Piracy Committee in this letter; were you not? A. That is right.

Q. And despite that fact, that was not sufficient for you as to the question of whether or not the dress was a copy? 7136
A. This is a letter—this is all I know about the Piracy Committee. That is the question you are asking me.

Q. Didn't you have faith in the statement of Mr. Goldston to you that the Piracy Committee had passed upon the matter? A. I never accepted it nor questioned it.

Q. Didn't you? A. I didn't, no.

Q. Didn't you make any inquiry with respect to it? A. No.

Q. You were a co-operator with the Fashion Originators Guild, were you not? A. That is right.

Q. At that time you were informed that a Piracy Committee had passed upon the dress, had you not? A. That is what I was told.

Q. In this particular letter? A. That is what I was told. 7137

Q. Wasn't that sufficient for you as to the fact that it was a copy? A. No. We went ahead with the investigation.

Q. What investigation? A. Obviously it wasn't sufficient as to whether or not the dress was a copy.

Q. In other words, you insisted that the manufacturer must admit that it was a copy? A. We felt that in view of his very strenuous objections, in view of the fact that he was a friend of ours, that we were doing business with him, that we owed some consideration to his statements, inasmuch as they were violently in opposition to the statements of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Q. Have you ever known any manufacturer to admit that his garment was a copy? A. By silent consent, yes.

Q. Hold that just a moment, Mr. Sappington. Now, I show you Commission's Exhibit—this photostat hasn't the number on it.

The Witness: It is marked some place.

Mr. Martin: It is the next one to that letter (indicating).

7139

Mr. Haycraft: It is right under your thumb.

Mr. Albert: Yes.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 522. A. Yes.

Q. And ask you what is the date of that Piracy Committee report? A. March 23.

Q. That is the second Piracy Committee report, is it not?

Mr. Haycraft: Does it say so?

A. It doesn't say so. It says in the matter of determining.

7140

Q. Yes. A. It doesn't say redetermining, reviewing, or anything else.

Q. Yes. Very well. Now, will you answer my original question, Mr. Sappington? A. What is the question?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. There is no original question pending that I know of. He answered them all.

Examiner Bennett: Ask him what you want.

Mr. Albert: All right. I will reframe it, your Honor. It was some time ago.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You testified that Mr. Goldston gave you the information with respect to the Appel dress in March, the latter part of March, 1935? A. That is right.

Q. And you received from Mr. Post his letter dated April 2, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After the receipt of Mr. Post's letter dated April 2, 1935, was any question raised in your mind, assuming Mr. Goldston said what you say he did, that he had no 7142 authority to make a statement? A. Certainly not.

Q. None whatsoever? A. None whatsoever.

Q. Despite the fact that Mr. Post's letter informs you of the Piracy Committee report and makes no mention of what you are to do in order to correct the deficiency in the dress? A. I understood Mr. Post's letter of April 2.

Q. Yes. A. Simply to be a statement to me.

Q. Yes. A. That Mr. Appel had appeared before the Piracy Committee.

Q. Yes. A. And that the Piracy Committee had judged his dress to be a copy of the Townley dress, not—and not covering in any way our action regarding the Appel dress which we had in stock. I considered that Mr. Goldston had full authority to dispose of that matter himself. 7143

Q. Did you inquire of Mr. Post, in answer to his letter of April 2, whether or not he had been told by Mr. Goldston of what you say Mr. Goldston told you? A. Why should I? He was an authority—representative of the Fashion Originators Guild with full authority. He is a member of the staff there. Why should I take my time to find out whether or not the various members of the Fashion Originators Guild keep in touch with each other or not?

Q. Now, this question, Mr. Sappington, of J. L. Hudson Company insisting upon a determination by the manufacturer as to whether or not his own dress was a copy was a subject of dispute between you and the Guild, was it not? A. Yes, it was, in that instance.

Q. Weren't you told by Mr. Post that every other retailer who had had that dress had returned it without question? A. I don't recall that.

Q. You do not know? A. No, sir.

Q. Did not Mr. Post—didn't you say that Mr. Post told you that you had not co-operated? A. Yes. He understood that we still had the Appel dress in our stocks and 7145 we had done nothing further about it. He told me that he didn't know what Mr. Goldston—what arrangements Mr. Goldston had made with us. He didn't know that Mr. Goldston had told us that if we took the buttons off and put new buttons on it would be all right to sell the dress. I can understand Mr. Post's position.

Q. With respect to the statement in Commission's Exhibit 513, Mr. Sappington, the top one there (indicating). A. No, that is 518.

Q. I mean 518. That is the one. A. Right.

Q. That is the letter from Mr. Simmons? A. No, that is the letter from myself, 518.

Q. Then I meant 513. It is also a yellow sheet of paper. A. Yes.

7146 Q. Did you in any way inform the Guild that it was your policy not to return dresses until the manufacturer had agreed that that dress was a copy?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that. That isn't what the witness said was the policy of the Hudson Company.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer.

A. No, because that wasn't our policy exactly. That was our policy in cases of dispute.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is there any statement qualifying that in this letter of March 14 of 1935 that that policy is adopted only in the case of a dispute?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner, as not proper cross-examination. The exhibit speaks for itself. This witness did not write the letter. It is not the witness' letter.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

7148

Mr. Albert: May I remind Mr. Haycraft, if it please the Court, that the witness through whom this letter was gotten stated that it was dictated upon the instruction of Mr. Sappington and that it was Mr. Sappington's—the substance of the letter was Mr. Sappington's and not his own. He was merely doing it by instructions and he knew nothing about it.

Mr. Haycraft: What the witness said, Mr. Examiner, upon the question being propounded to him by counsel for the respondent, that Mr. Sappington did not see the letter and did not check the letter to O.K. it in any way. Therefore, it is not a proper question.

Examiner Bennett: It is addressed to Mr. Appel, is it?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes. This is the Appel letter.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Sappington, did you give these instructions to Mr. Simmons to write the following to Bernard Appel: "We wired you because we had agreed upon a policy of not returning a dress to a manufacturer until that manufacturer informs us that he had copied the dress from the Guild house"? A. Not exactly that way.

Q. Well, then, he made a mistake? A. I think he misunderstood.

Q. You didn't correct this letter? A. I didn't see the letter.

Q. You didn't see it at all? A. Until just now.

Q. This is the first time you saw it? A. Yes. No, I have seen it in our files, seen a copy in our files, but not until after this whole matter was disposed of.

Q. Despite the fact that you were giving instructions to 7151 a subordinate to write a letter containing statements of the J. L. Hudson Company policies, you did not examine the letter to see if he correctly stated those policies? A. I didn't think it was necessary. Mr. Simmons doesn't make very many mistakes.

Q. Then Mr. Simmons' letter of March 14, 1935, is a mistake in so far as it is a statement of what you told him to send?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: What did he say?

Mr. Haycraft: You may answer.

A. It doesn't state the policy exactly, no.

7152 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then it is a mistake? A. He left out something, and it is incomplete. I would say it is incomplete rather than a mistake.

Mr. Feldman: A bit of omission?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Sappington, when was this conversation with Mr. Post you referred to in which the subject of the Appel letter was brought up? A. I don't recall. It was some time later, whether it was a week or two, or as long as three or four weeks, I couldn't tell you. It was so—it was enough later so that I had almost forgotten the matter.

Q. And aside from a specific discussion of what transpired between J. L. Hudson, Mr. Goldston and Mr. Appel, did Mr. Post discuss with you in any way other differences between J. L. Hudson Company and the Guild in which Mr. Post believed you were not co-operating? 7154

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I want to bring out the full conversation.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not believe it is relevant.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. You may answer, if you remember.

A. I don't believe he did. We used this as an example.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Didn't he further give you an example of the fact that J. L. Hudson Company was behind or backward in its co-operation by telling you and citing to you the fact that on the Bernard Appel dress every other retailer that handled it had sent it back without question as soon as they got the first Piracy Committee report? A. Well, if he did, I didn't take it very seriously because Mr. Goldston told me—— 7155

Q. Well, now— A. —something else.

Mr. Martin: Let him finish.

The Witness: About the same matter. He said there was a lot of controversy about the Bernard Appel dress.

Mr. Albert: That is all.

Examiner Bennett: That is all.

(Witness excused.)

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn for luncheon until 2.10 o'clock P. M.

(Whereupon at 12.40 o'clock P. M. a recess was taken until 2.10 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION, 2.10 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may resume.

Mr. Haycraft: I will call Mr. Touff to the witness stand this time.

Examiner Bennett: You will be sworn, please.

DAVID SAUL TOUFF, was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission, and having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft. 7160

Q. Your name, Mr. Touff? A. David Saul Touff.

Q. Where do you live? A. Detroit.

Q. What is your occupation? A. I am a dress buyer.

Q. A little bit louder so everybody can hear you. A. I am a dress buyer.

Q. For what firm? A. J. L. Hudson Company.

Q. How long have you been a dress buyer for the J. L. Hudson Company? A. I have been a buyer for the J. L. Hudson Company nine and a half years.

Q. What department or—strike that out. When you first became buyer for the J. L. Hudson Company, what did you buy? A. I was a buyer of sports apparel.

Q. Was there a department for that particular type of goods at that time? A. Yes. 7161

Q. What was the department number? A. 385.

Q. How long have you been a buyer of sports apparel? A. From February, 1927, to July, 1931.

Q. During that period of time did you buy for any other departments? A. (Witness shakes head negatively.)

Q. Subsequent to July, 1931, what did you buy for Hudsons? A. I bought misses' moderate priced dresses, daytime dresses.

Q. What department? A. Department 369. Until—

Q. Anything else? A. Until February of 1933. Yes. And I had two better dress departments added.

Q. What were the numbers of those departments? A. Department 338, women's better dresses; Department 358, misses' better dresses.

Q. So since February, 1933, you have been buying for those three departments? A. Yes. And at one time during that period I bought for Department 359, which was the gown room.

Q. For how long a period? A. From August to June.

Q. What year? A. From June, 1933, until June, 1934—

7163 from August, 1933, to June, 1934.

Q. Now, what is the price range of the dresses that you buy in Department 338, cost price range first? A. From $12.75 to $25.

Q. And the approximate retail price range? A. $21.75 to $39.75.

Q. What is the cost price range of the betters bought for Department 358? A. From $12.75 to $25.

Q. And the retail prices? A. From $21.75 to $39.75.

Q. What is the cost price range for Department 369? A. From $8.75 to $12.75 cost.

Q. The retail price range? A. From $13.95 to $19.75.

Mr. Albert: $13.95 to what was that?

The Witness: $13.95 to $19.75, daytime dresses

7164 only.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, now, has it been your custom during the period of time from February, 1933, up to, say, January, 1936—strike that out. From February, 1933, until January, 1936, where did you buy the garments for these three departments? What market? A. We bought very largely in New York.

Q. Did you personally go to New York? A. Yes.

Q. What was your custom as to the frequency with which you went to New York from February, 1933, to January, 1936? A. You mean how many times did I go?

Q. Yes, how many times, a year or season or whatever way you can measure it? A. Well, it varied with the season. This is just a guess. It probably was forty times a year.

Q. How many seasons do you recognize as a year in your business? A. Two.

Q. What are they? A. Spring season and fall season.

Mr. Meder: Keep your voice up.

7166

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When did they begin and when did they end?

Mr. Meder: Talk loud.

A. Well, we considered the spring season starting February 1 and ending July 31; and the fall season, August 1 ending January 31.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is there any difference between types of dresses that you buy for those two seasons? A. Yes.

Q. What would you say is the difference? A. Well, we have very definite style difference between spring season and fall season, different types of dresses, different colors of dresses, different materials. 7167

Q. Now, with respect to the merchandise that you buy for Department 359 prior to January, 1936, who were your principal sources of supply?

Mr. Albert: Pardon me, Mr. Haycraft. Did you say 359 or 369?

Mr. Haycraft: My mistake. Make that 338.

The Witness: What is the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Ask him for the individual names or classification?

Mr. Haycraft: I am asking him for names, if he can recall them.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

A. Our principal sources of supply for Department 338 were—is it necessary to give this information?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am not going to force you to give your sources of supply, if you——

7169 Mr. Haycraft: Well, I will change the question.

Examiner Bennett: —think it is going to do your business harm.

Mr. Haycraft: I will change the question.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Prior to—I will put the question this way: Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. When did you first learn of its existence? A. I can't recall that definitely.

Q. Well, give us an approximate date, if you can. A. I should say shortly after its organization, probably—I don't know when that was—1932, I imagine.

7170 Q. Do you recall the occasion when the J. L. Hudson Company signed a declaration of co-operation with the Guild? A. No.

Q. You do not? A. No.

Q. Do you recall the time when you were required by—first I will ask who your superior is? A. Mr. Simmons.

Q. Do you recall a time when you received any instructions? Did you ever receive any instructions from Mr. Simmons with respect to placing a so-called warranty stamp on orders placed with dress manufacturers? A. All order books for dress buyers were stamped before they were given to us.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court. I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is not responsive, but it is the information that they are trying to get.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 498-A, and ask if you can identify the stamp contained thereon? A. Yes.

7172

Q. Is that the stamp you have in mind in your last answer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that the stamp that was placed on all orders that was placed in your department? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know when that stamp was first placed on orders which you plated with dress manufacturers? A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Can you give us an approximate date? A. I would have to guess at it.

Q. Well— A. It is so long ago.

Q. Well, did you place it on there in 1933? A. It was before that.

Q. Did you place it on there in 1934? A. It was before that.

Q. During and throughout the year 1935, did you continue to buy dresses for Departments 338, 358 and 369? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any knowledge as to whether or not any of your sources of supply were members of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I will ask you to testify as to your understanding as to the sources of supply for Departments 338, 358 and 369 that were Guild houses during the year 1935, that you can recall? A. I am afraid I missed the first part of the question.

Mr. Albert: Now, then——

Examiner Bennett: Would it damage your business to disclose it?

The Witness: If I gave the names?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: I will be giving my competitors the names of the people I was previously successful with.

Examiner Bennett: Well, answer that question
7175 as to whether or not, in your judgment——

Mr. Meder: On behalf of the company, I will instruct the witness that during 1935 he may give those names.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

The Witness: You want the names or principal sources of supply for the three departments?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes. A. For 1935?

Q. Yes. For each of the departments. Take up 338 first. A. 338, Antman & Bark.

Mr. Albert: What was that?

7176 The Witness: Antman & Bark. Matthes & Kadetsky; Ed Garrick.

Mr. Albert: What was that?

The Witness: Ed Garrick.

Mr. Feldman: Garrick.

The Witness: Baron Dress Company; Shatco; Miller & Rudy; Henry Ganz.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How do you spell Rudy? A. R-u-d-y.

Mr. Albert: What was the last one?

The Witness: Henry Ganz. They are the most important ones.

Mr. Albert: Would you mind speaking up a little louder, Mr. Touff?

The Witness: I am sorry.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. That is 338? A. 338 department.

7178

Mr. Albert: The last one was Henry Ganz?

The Witness: Henry Ganz.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, 358. A. 358, the most important resources were Milton Altmark; Strouse-Miller; A. Goodman; Mary Lee; Frank Starr-Friedlander; Capri; Harry Cohn. Those are the most important.

Q. All right. Now the same for 369. A. International; Aywon; Whitlan-Schneider.

Q. What was that? A. Whitlan-Schneider; C. H. D. Robbins; Lila Modes; Famous Dress; Gracette; Bretter & Swessman.

Q. What is that, Greiter? A. Bretter, B-r-e-t-t-e-r. Asterly; Lipman Brothers. 7179

Q. Is Lipman Brothers different from H. Lipman, or is that the same? A. No, I don't know; I don't know any H. Lipman.

Q. It was Lipman Brothers that you did business with? A. Yes.

Q. Did you mention H. M. Fried in Department 369—was that a source of supply? A. It was not an important source of supply until the beginning of 1936.

Q. Did you mention Dolcet Dress, or is that Antman & Bark? A. Antman & Bark and Dolcet are the same.

Q. Now, with respect to Department 338, source of supplies that you have mentioned, can you testify as to the percentage of your total purchases—garments purchased in that department—which consisted of Guild resources? A. What percentage of the merchandise was Guild merchandise?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Albert: What department are you referring to?

Mr. Haycraft: 338, in 1935, at the beginning of 7181 1936.

A. It would be a guess.

Q. You haven't any figures on it? A. No.

Q. Could you make an estimate? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, the witness has testified that it would be a pure guess. I don't think the Commission is interested in anybody's guess.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him make an estimate, if he can make one that approximates the situation.

Mr. Haycraft: I can't hear you.

Examiner Bennett: I say, I will let him make 7182 an estimate if he can make one that approximates the facts.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Haycraft: That is what I wish to get, yes sir.

A. I would say that in 338 department 65 per cent. of our merchandise came from Guild houses.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your estimate as to the percentage of Guild houses from which you purchased the merchandise for Department 358? A. At least——

Mr. Albert: Is that also a guess, Mr. Touff?

The Witness: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Albert: Is that also a guess?

The Witness: Much less than the other one. About 95 per cent.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, what is your estimate for Department 369? 7184
A. About 75 per cent.

Q. Did you continue to buy from those Guild houses during the year 1936? A. No.

Q. When did you stop? A. When we were red carded.

Q. When was that? A. February the 14th.

Q. What year? A. 1936.

Q. When you say you were red carded, what do you mean by that? A. I mean that the Guild instructed their membership they were to ship us no further merchandise.

Q. When did you first learn that? A. I don't know the date.

Q. Did you make any attempt to verify that information? A. Yes.

Q. What did you do? A. I went into the market and 7185 tried to get my goods.

Q. When did you do that? A. Either the Monday or the Tuesday following, my very next trip to New York.

Q. You mean following the 14th? A. Yes.

Q. Here is a calendar. Will you refresh your recollection on that? A. Either the 17th or the 18th—probably the 17th.

Q. What did you do? A. Well, I went to the various manufacturers I had been in the habit of doing business with, doing my business with, asked them if they were going to ship the merchandise that was on order, and was told that they were not.

Q. Do you recall how many of the manufacturers you called on? A. During the course of that week I spoke with every important manufacturer that we do business with.

Q. Was there anyone with you on any of those calls? A. Yes, Mr. Simmons was with me at one time.

Q. Do you have a recollection of making—strike that out. On what manufacturer did you call when Mr. Simmons was with you, if you remember? A. We called on 7187 three.

Q. Which ones were they? A. We spoke to Mr. Sam Friedlander, Frank Starr-Friedlander; Milton Altmark, and Abe Goodman.

Q. What did Mr. Sam Friedlander tell you when you called on him? A. He told me that he did not expect to ship the goods that was on order unless the red card was lifted.

Q. Did you say anything other than that? A. We wanted to know at that time—in fact, our major interest in talking to Mr. Friedlander was to find out whether or not we were going to have to take his merchandise if the red card was lifted in addition to what we might subsequently buy. In other words, if we went out and re-bought 7188 merchandise to replace what was on order with him, and the red card was lifted within a week or so, would we have to take what we had subsequently purchased and what was already on order with him. Mr. Friedlander was very co-operative about it and said that he didn't know what was going to happen and regretted it all very much, but if the red card was lifted, if we wanted the merchandise, we would be at liberty to take it. If we didn't want it, it would not be necessary to take it. He would absorb it in the interest of business.

Q. Did you ask him any question with respect to why had been red carded? A. (There was a short pause.)
ere was probably some discussion about that, but he n't know why we had been red carded.
Q. You mean by that, that that is what he told you, or at did he say? A. (There was a short pause.) I can't ember the details of that discussion.
Q. Well, now, what was the other call that you made?
We went to see Milton Altmark.
Q. What did he have to say? A. Well, we discussed same situation with him, and he was not quite as corative about it.

Mr. Albert: I ask that that be stricken, if it 7190
please the Court, as not responsive.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the witness being interrupted in the course of his answer.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Go ahead.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: Explain in detail what you mean by co-operating.

The Witness: Well, he didn't make the same offer that Mr. Friedlander had made, that if the red card was lifted we need not take the merchandise. He thought that we were asking a very fair question, however, and called Mr. Post on the telephone to ask him what the attitude of the Guild would be in 7191 such an event, in the event that the red card was lifted. Mr. Altmark told me that Mr. Post told him over the telephone that rather than have us go through the market asking that question of every manufacturer that we do business with, that we should come to his office and he would explain the Guild attitude on it directly to us. Mr. Altmark and Mr. Simmons and I went to Mr. Post's office.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What happened when you got there? A. We we shown into Mr. Post's office, and Mr. Altmark present the question that was involved to Mr. Post. Mr. Post sa that they had taken the question up with their attorne and the Guild situation was simply this: That we ha broken our agreement with the Guild; that, as such, t membership of the Guild could not ship us merchandis In the event that the red card was lifted and the misu derstanding straightened out, they would expect the mer bership of the Guild to ship that merchandise; that a loss arising to a member of the Guild from not being ab 7193 to ship the merchandise through his having to dispose it at distress prices would be the responsibility of t store, and the store could be sued to collect.

Q. Was that all that was said by Mr. Post? A. Yes, si

Q. What did you do then? A. We left. We went see Mr. Goodman.

Q. Did you present the same proposition to him? Yes.

Q. What did he say? A. Substantially what Mr. Frie lander had said.

Q. Did any of them tell you why you had been re carded? A. The impression was pretty general that w had been red carded because of our refusal to return certain dress that the Guild had asked us to return.

7194 Q. Did you know anything about that transaction? I did not.

Q. It was not in your department? A. No.

Q. What did you do after your conversation with M Goodman? A. I think we went back to the office and think we called and advised Detroit of Mr. Post's conve sation, and I think that we were advised to start replacin the goods immediately as best we could. And we called we called California to have certain merchandise boug for us out there.

Q. Did you make any further attempt to replace the goods while you were in New York on that trip? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do? A. Well, I set about the business of looking for new people to buy from for every one of those departments—quite a task.

Q. Were you familiar with the New York market? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, you didn't have any difficulty doing that, did you? A. I had a great deal of difficulty doing it.

Q. What was the matter? A. It was impossible for me to buy enough satisfactory dresses for my departments.

Q. Has that situation changed any since that time? A. 7196
Very slightly.

Q. What is the situation to-day? A. In Department 338 the situation is somewhat corrected; some of those resources have been replaced. We are still without the one single resource that provided us with our largest supply of merchandise.

Q. Which was that one? A. Antman & Bark.

Mr. Feldman: Who?

The Witness: Antman & Bark. I still have considerable difficulty in Department 338 buying enough desirable half size dresses. Department 358——

Q. Before we leave 338, may I ask you—well, go ahead, 7197
I will not interrupt you. A. In Department 358 the picture remains very much the same. It is still impossible for me to buy anywhere near enough desirable dresses, satisfactory dresses for Department 358. Department 369, the situation is somewhat corrected, but it is likewise impossible to buy enough dresses of the $10.75, $11.75 and $12.75 costs to-day, or buy on——

Q. Have you thoroughly canvassed the New York market? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you gone to any other market? A. I have been in Chicago and Cleveland.

Q. More than once? A. Often.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, from your experience that you have described here, do you have any opinion as to whether or not your inability to get merchandise from the Guild resources, subsequent to the red carding by the Guild, has had an effect upon the departments for which you buy? A. A very definite effect.

Q. Will you testify as to what that effect is, beginning with 338?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, 7199
the exhibits in evidence speak for themselves.

Examiner Bennett: Well, we will have his opinion, if he has one.

A. Department 338 was materially affected during the months of March and April by not having enough satisfactory dresses. Department 358 was materially affected during the entire spring season by not having enough desirable dresses at $29.75 and $39.75. Department 369 is materially affected all during the spring season, until about the 15th of June, by not having enough desirable dresses that cost $10, $11 and $12.75.

Q. What happened in June to remedy the situation? A. We had a style change, it was a little bit unusual and 7200 unexpected, and made it possible for us to meet our figures at those prices with the limited market that was available.

Q. In what price line was that that you were able to meet the situation? A. At $10.75 cost.

Q. At $10.75 cost. How about the $11.75 and $12.75? A. The $11.75 price line has never been corrected at any time during the spring season. The $12.75 price line is in a similar situation to the ten.

Q. Now, will you describe in detail just how Department 338 was affected, that is the price line, the name of the source of supply and so on? A. Well, we have been in the habit for a period of years of doing business with those people that I have named, to build up a clientele, people who wanted that type of merchandise, starting with probably March 1 or March 15, when that merchandise was completely cleaned from our stocks, that we were unable to offer them that type of merchandise any longer, that standard of merchandise any longer. The biggest loss we suffered in that department was the loss of Anton & Bark, who made a sizeable dress to sell for $29.75, and which it was impossible to replace. We lost business all during the 7202 spring season at $29.75, as a result of that.

Q. Were you able to replace the garments that you had been buying at Henry Ganz? A. Henry Ganz made a very useful woman's dress, and they are the only house in New York that made that type of a dress, and it is impossible to replace it.

Q. Were you able to replace the garments that you had been buying from Matthes & Kadetsky? A. Not during the spring season, but I think for fall we will have replaced Matthes & Kadetsky and Ed Garrick.

Q. And Ed Garrick also? A. Yes.

Q. But you did not during the spring? A. No.

Q. Now, referring to Department 358, will you give the same detail as to the effect on the different lines and the names of the different manufacturers who were supplying 7203 the garments? A. Well, with the red carding of Department 358, there were only three or four houses left in the market, making daytime dresses to sell at $29.75 and $39.75. Only one of those houses was, to our point of view,—to my point of view—a satisfactory source of supply. As a result, we were non-competitive at $29.75 and $39.75 all spring. We did not have desirable assortments at $29 and $39 during this spring season. We lost busi ness at those prices continually. We probably will agai this fall.

Q. Your testimony just referred to the daytime dresses
A. That's right.

Q. Was there any effect upon evening dresses in tha department? A. Well, we had previously done a ver large part of our evening dress business with Frank Star
Friedlander, a resource which we lost, and a resourc which I am finding it extremely difficult to replac although there are quite a number of evening dress house available for us to buy from, it seems impossible to bu 7205 that—a dress as satisfactory as his.

Q. Now, will you give the same testimony with respec to Department 369? A. 369, we lost every resource bu one that we had used as a supply for $10.75 and $11.75 an $12.75 house dresses. All during this spring season w lost business as a result of not having a sufficient supply o satisfactory types, satisfactory dresses. We will probabl continue to lose business at those same prices again thi fall.

Q. In your opinion, did the inability to replace re-order for merchandise from these manufacturers and from th manufacturers, Guild manufacturers, supply garments fo Departments 358 and 369, have any effect upon the sale in those departments? A. It had a very considerabl 7206 effect. Every dress that—practically every dress that w were running, getting business on at the time of the re carding, we were forced to drop, had to go out into th market and attempt to buy dresses to replace them, ge new numbers established, running numbers established
We lost the whole basis of our immediate operation, ou immediate re-order numbers.

Q. Mr. Touff, do you have any opinion as to what fac tors should be taken into consideration in determinin what is a desirable source of supply of merchandise fo garments? A. Yes.

Q. In your opinion, what are the factors that go to make up a desirable source of supply, or resource as it is known in the trade? A. Well, first of all, a resource must make the type of dress that we are successful in selling. A great many manufacturers who make satisfactory dresses that are not satisfactory to us—that is, they make satisfactory dresses but they are not satisfactory to us. A manufacturer has to make the kind of dress we are successful in selling, both as to style and type, standard of workmanship and fit, and we find that a manufacturer, to be successful, for a store of our size, has to be equipped to handle volume business quickly and efficiently. Many manufacturers who make desirable dresses are not 7208 equipped to give them to us in as large quantities, and in as short a space of time as we find it necessary to have them. Also, we find it necessary, because of our competitive position, to have what are known in the trade as top dresses, dresses that come from houses who style them well, make them well. It is absolutely essential that we have the best style dresses?

Q. What has been your experience as to the material used in the sources of supply by members of the Guild as compared with non-Guild members? A. The members of the Guild, being the largest manufacturers in the trade—

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I ask that that be stricken as a conclusion of the witness for which no foundation has been laid and volun- 7209 teered in the answer?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the witness being interrupted. I am asking this witness for his opinion and his conclusions and that is what I want.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think that he should have some knowledge and experience.

Mr. Haycraft: That is a matter of cross-examination when we get through with his testimony, Mr. Examiner, if he doesn't believe he is competent to testify.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I overrule the objection. You may proceed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Complete your answer.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the answer as far as he got.

(The reporter read as follows: "The members of the Guild, being the largest manufacturers in the trade—")

Mr. Haycraft: Now read the question to him.

(The reporter read as follows: "Q. What has been your experience as to the materials used in the 7211 sources of supply by members of the Guild as compared with non-Guild members? A. The members of the Guild being the largest manufacturers in the trade—")

The Witness: The members of the Guild being the largest manufacturers are very generally in a position to have confined to them, brought to them for their first selection the most desirable items in the piece goods market, the most desirable items in the trimmings market, that are available. It is naturally to the best interest of the large piece goods houses and the large trimming houses to have the manufacturer who has the largest outlet use his product. Because of this many of the Guild houses 7212 are—have at times some of the most desirable items in the market and have them exclusively for themselves.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Would you say that that fact is a factor to be taken into consideration in determining the desirability of a resource? A. Absolutely.

Q. What have you been doing, Mr. Touff, during the past two weeks to replace merchandise that you have been buying from the Guild or that you have been accustomed to buying from the Guild at this time of the year, Guild manufacturers at this time of the year? A. I found it very difficult to complete my early fall plans. I have been to Chicago three times on fall merchandise; I have been to Cleveland once; I have been in New York four times. I have as yet been unable to complete my August appropriations which would normally have been completed a week ago.

Q. Are you having any trouble in any particular line, or is it a general condition with respect to all of the merchandise you handle? 7214 A. I am incomplete in all three departments, having some particular difficulties in Department 369.

Q. What are your difficulties in 369? A. I have been unable to buy enough $10.75 cost wool dresses of the type that I formerly bought and sold very largely in the months of August and September from two or three Guild houses.

Q. In your opinion, will that have an effect upon the sales—strike that out. In your opinion, will your inability to complete your lines have an effect upon the sales of the J. L. Hudson Company in your departments during the coming season?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the question is objected to. We are now trying to make the wit- 7215 ness a prophet. Maybe nobody is going to buy any wool dresses in August.

Mr. Haycraft: I am asking for his opinion.

Examiner Bennett: Well, let him give it for what it is worth. I think it will be difficult——

The Witness: I think it will—the J. L. Hudson——

Examiner Bennett: —to answer the confidence.

The Witness: J. L. Hudson Company's business will suffer at certain price lines as a result of my not being able to buy those dresses.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Which price lines do you have in mind? A. $16.95 price line.

Q. That is retail price or wholesale price? A. Yes, retail price.

Mr. Haycraft: Mark that.

(A certain document was thereupon marked
7217 Commission's Exhibit 523 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 523 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it?

(There was a discussion off the record.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you state what that is? A. This is a listing of manufacturers who make better dresses from the Fairchild directory for the fall of 1936 and a rather broad classification by type and price line.

7218 Mr. Albert: May I have the answer repeated?

(The answer was read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you prepare it? A. Yes.

Q. And is it based upon your experience and knowledge? A. Yes.

Q. Is it correct? A. To the best of my ability.

Q. What price lines have you included in this? A. I have broken down the misses' daytime dresses into cost prices of $12.75 and $14.75, $16.75 and $18.75 to $25.00 inclusive; $29.75 and up; all misses' evening dresses in one classification; all women's dresses in one classification; all cotton dresses in one classification; and maternity dresses in one classification.

Q. Now, in the classification of $29.75 and up, what did you include in the up? A. They are all houses who manufacture dresses who formerly in the season manufacture dresses that cost $29.75 and up; includes a great many manufacturers who manufacture dresses that probably wholesale for $100 and up. It is a very broad classification. 7220

Q. Does the exhibit also contain a summary of the classification that you have indicated? A. The exhibit shows the totals for each of those classifications.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

(The document referred to was handed to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may we have some further explanation of the meaning of this summary?

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: There is no objection to asking questions about it because it has not yet been received in evidence. I will be glad to ask some further questions. I reserve it then because I anticipated the rule of—— 7221

Mr. Albert: Well, in that it represents this witness' opinion of a list of houses with respect to the various price lines.

Mr. Haycraft: It is the Fairchild list, as I understand.

Mr. Post: (Mr. Post shakes head negatively.)

Mr. Albert: And the fact that they are either Guild or non-Guild, I have no objection, your Honor, but in so far as the accuracy of it is concerned, I don't, of course, concede that.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. All right.

Mr. Albert: But as this witness' opinion and as his listing——

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Albert: —and that it was prepared by him and merely is a matter of his opinion, I have no objection to it being admitted.

Examiner Bennett: Well, received.

7223 (Whereupon the document heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 523 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft:

Q. Mr. Touff, in the first column of this exhibit appears a list, the first column of this exhibit is headed "Manufacturer" and a number of names thereunder. What are those names; are those the sources from which they were taken? A. From the Fairchild's directory.

Q. Which issue? A. The early fall, 1936.

Q. What divisions of that directory? A. That directory is——

Q. Divided? A. Is not divided according to price line.

7224 Q. Then the division according to price line and according to this exhibit is your selection by yourself? A. That is right.

Q. Now, immediately following the list of manufacturers are a group of red x's after certain of the manufacturers' names. What do those red x's signify? A. They are members of the Guild.

Q. Now, in the first numerical column, that is, the column headed "$12.75-$14.75" appear black x's after certain names and red x's after certain names. I will ask you to indicate what those x's signify. A. The black x's signify that the manufacturer opposite x is a non-Guild manufacturer, manufacturing dresses at $12.75 and $14.75, and the little red x that is in there in pencil means that the Guild house standing opposite that x manufactures dresses at the same price.

Q. All right. Now, is that explanation true also for the remaining columns? A. Yes.

Q. $16.75 and so on? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the bottom of the exhibit after the reading "Summary" I find certain figures: 75, in the first column. What does that indicate? A. That indicates that there are 7226 that many people in that listing that are members of the Guild.

Q. Is that a totaling of the red x's? A. That is right.

Q. Then in the column headed "$12.75-$14.75" I find the figure 9. What does that represent? A. That means that there are nine non-Guild manufacturers listed in the Fairchild's directory making that price dresses.

Q. Now, under the column headed "$16.75" I find in the summary the figure 4. What does that represent? A. There are four manufacturers in the Fairchild's directory manufacturing at $16.75, dress manufacturers in the Fairchild's directory that are not members of the Guild.

Q. Now, in the column headed "$18.75 to $25.00" I find the figure 5. What does that represent? A. That there are five manufacturers who are not members of the Guild 7227 whose names are listed in the directory, who manufacture dresses at approximately those prices.

Q. Now, the next column headed "$29.75 and up" I find in the summary the figure 25. What does that represent? A. There are twenty-five better dress manufacturers who are not members of the Guild, who manufacture dresses that cost aproximately $29.75 and higher.

Q. Now, in that column "$29.75 and higher" do you have any knowledge so that you can testify as to how many of those were $29.75 as distinguished from the higher prices? A. No.

Q. You do not? A. It does not affect my department.

Q. It does not affect your department. All right. Now, the next column headed "Misses' Evening" I find nineteen names in the summary and the figure 19 in the summary. What does that represent? A. That there are nineteen non-Guild houses making misses' evening dresses which cost $12.75 up, whose names are listed in the directory.

Q. Now, with respect to the column headed "Women's 7229 Day & Eve," I find the figure "26" in the summary; what does that represent? A. That there are twenty-six manufacturers listed in the Fairchild Directory who are not members of the Guild, who make women's daytime and evening clothes, at a cost above $12.75.

Mr. Albert: May I ask, if it please the Court, whether the witness means by that there are only 26 listed in Fairchild's directory?

Examiner Bennett: That is what he says. I do not know what he means by it.

Mr. Albert: Or whether that list contains 26 of those that are listed in Fairchild? I don't think it is clear.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think——

7230 Mr. Haycraft: You will find out when you get your turn.

Examiner Bennett: That is his statement. I do not know.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, under the heading "Cotton." I notice the figure "3" in your summary. What does that represent? A.

That the Fairchild directory lists three houses who make cotton dresses above $12.75, who are not members of the Guild.

Mr. Albert: Is that above $12.75?
The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. $12.75 and above, or above $12.75? A. $12.75 and above.

Q. And the last column headed "Maternity" has "1" in the summary; what does that represent? A. That there is one house listed in the directory as a better dress house who makes maternity dresses, that is not a member of the 7232
Guild.

Q. Now, I notice in each of these columns there are red x's indicated a line drawn over the name of the manufacturer; what does that mean? A. That is the classification that I would put that—that particular Guild house in.

Q. I see, from your experience. A. Yes.

Q. Now, I notice in the lower left-hand corner under the caption "Non-Guild," "$16.75" four names listed. What does that represent? A. That represents the names of the four houses that are in the $16.75 column that are non-Guild.

Q. All right. And then I notice the names of five manufacturers under the caption $18.75; what does that represent? A. They are the five houses that are non-Guild 7233 houses available at $18.75 to $25.

Q. I notice that one of these five houses, namely, Ben Schwartz-Max Heit, has a check mark over it; what does that check mark signify? A. Well, that house was not available to us last——

Q. In other words— A. It is a new house.

Q. A new house? A. Yes. I might say that—if I may—that in all these things the classification is rather broad since any manufacturer makes a variety of price lines; because I have classified them as a $16.75 house does not mean he makes only $16.75 dresses. He might at certain times of the year make 10's, and he might at the same time he is making the $16.75 make $35's.

Q. What is your classification based on? A. On what his line is—what he generally makes—what his general classification would be in the trade.

Q. Was this exhibit restricted to the New York market? A. Yes.

Q. And does not include manufacturers outside of the New York market? A. Well, it includes the manufacturers that are listed in the Fairchild directory.

7235

Q. Well, can you explain what you mean by that answer? A. I think there is one manufacturer who is listed in the Fairchild directory who has a showroom—no, there are two—that I can think of offhand who are listed in the Fairchild directory, who have showrooms in New York, and are therefore listed, and do not do their manufacturing in New York.

Q. Which ones are they? A. I recall offhand Baron Dress Company and Matthes & Kadetsky.

Q. And Baron Dress Company, the factory is located where? A. In Boston.

Q. And Matthes & Kadetsky is located where? A. In Boston.

7236

Mr. Albert: May I ask one question, Mr. Haycraft, if you have no objection, as to what Fairchild manual the witness is referring to?

Mr. Haycraft: He said the spring and fall.

The Witness: No.

Mr. Haycraft: Or he said——

The Witness: The early fall of 1936.

Mr. Haycraft: The early fall of 1936.

Mr. Albert: The fall of 1936 manual.

Mr. Post: Dress manual, dress directory?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have a copy of it with you?

Mr. Post: Ready-to-wear—is there a distinction between ready-to-wear and the question?

(Witness hands booklet to counsel.)

Mr. Albert: May I see it?

Mr. Haycraft: I will have it marked for identification if you wish.

Mr. Albert: Will you mark it for identification?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I will.

(The booklet referred to was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 524.) 7238

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 524 for Identification, entitled "Fairchild's Women's Wear Directory of New York, Dress and Costumes, Advanced Fall, 1936," and ask you if that is the document from which Commission's Exhibit 523 was prepared? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Have you any objections to our borrowing that manual?

Mr. Haycraft: No, indeed, I thought you had one.

Mr. Post: No.

By Mr. Haycraft. 7239

Q. Now, I will ask you whether or not you made a similar study, or prepared a similar exhibit, for $10.75 dress houses located in New York? A. Yes.

(A paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 525.)

Examiner Bennett: We will take a ten-minute recess.

(There was a short recess taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 525 for Identific tion, and ask you if you can identify that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. It is a listing I made of the $10. daytime dress houses in the directory, as to whether th are Guild or non-Guild?

Q. They were taken from the same source as the oth exhibits, Commission's Exhibit 523, they were taken fr the Fairchild Directory— A. Yes.

7241 Q. —Commission's Exhibit 524 for Identification? Yes.

Q. And the red column of X's indicated what? A. T Guild houses.

Q. And the column of black X's under the caption "no Guild" indicates what? A. The non-Guild houses.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence, Comm sion's Exhibit 525.

Mr. Albert: No objection, if it please the Cou as evidence of this witness' computations, witho conceding the accuracy of it.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(Document referred to, heretofore marked f identification Commission's Exhibit 525, w 7242 marked as an exhibit and received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I notice in the right-hand column of this exhibit, o posite the name "Goldstein & Entin," which is printed non-Guild house, the word "Drop" before "Guild." Wh does that mean? A. That means that he resigned from t Guild during the spring season.

Q. This year? A. Yes.

Q. I also notice the same notation after the name "Phil Zahn & Co., Inc." A. That is the same reason.

Q. I notice a star in front of Joe Levine & Company, Inc., with the word "Konette." A. That means that Konette should be inserted there for alphabetical order.

Q. In other words, it should be a part of the list ahead of Joe Levine? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. I notice the totals have been changed a few times. The present totals are eighteen for Guild and twenty-two for non-Guild; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And you have checked this pretty carefully, have you? A. That is right. 7244

Mr. Haycraft: That is all; you may cross-examine.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Touff, you listed certain resources for Departments 338, 358 and 369 in response to Mr. Haycraft's questions. Were those the resources in those departments for J. L. Hudson during the year 1935 down to January 31, 1936, or down to the day of red carding? A. I think I said that they were the most important ones.

Q. Yes. Were you confining the resources when you listed them to Guild houses, or did you include all resources? A. He asked me for the most important resources in the department. 7245

Q. Yes. A. I gave him the most important ones.

Q. Were all those resources only Guild resources, or did you give him the resources for 1935, which I believe that previous to that you have stated that you could not reveal? A. Those are obviously not Guild houses, because there are two or three involved that are not.

Q. Exactly. That is why I asked you the question. I wanted to be sure that you knew what you were giving him, and that I was not mistaken in believing that you were attempting to give him only Guild houses. Do you recall when J. L. Hudson Company signed the Declaration of Co-operation? A. No.

Q. Have no remembrance of it whatsoever? A. None.

Q. Did you ever discuss it with any official of J. L. Hudson Company? A. No.

Q. Did you ever discuss it with Mr. Sappington? A. I don't recall.

Q. Did not Mr. Sappington call you in and say "Here we have signed a Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild; you have to conduct your department in such and 7247 such manner hereafter?"

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; nothing to show that Mr. Sappington is this witness' superior; he said that Mr. Simmons was.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did Mr. Sappington call you in to tell you that "from here on we have to conduct the department in a certain way"? A. No, not that I recall.

Q. How did you become aware of the necessity of complying with the Guild rules and regulations?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as nothing in the direct testimony to indicate that he did.

7248 Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. You may answer. Overruled.

A. I don't recall.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When did you first see the Guild stamp on J. L. Hudson Company's orders? A. I can't tell you.

Q. When you first saw the Guild stamp on the J. L. Hudson Company orders did you make any inquiry as to what it meant? A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you mean to tell me, Mr. Touff, that you saw——

Mr. Albert: May I have that exhibit, Mr. Martin?

(Mr. Martin hands document to Mr. Albert.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —this additional warranty on your order, which was necessarily on the order, and never made inquiry of anybody in J. L. Hudson Company what it meant? A. I did not say that.

Q. You do not recall whether you ever did. A. I said I did not remember making inquiry.

Q. Yes. A. It is a pretty long time ago. 7250

Q. Did you have any conference with Mr. Simmons about it? A. I can't remember.

Q. Did you have any conference with Mr. Sappington about it? A. I can't remember.

Q. Did you have any conference with Mr. Dowley about it? A. That, definitely no.

Q. Did you have any conversations with any of the other buyers about it? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it the subject of any discussion whatsoever among the buyers? A. I am sorry. I don't recall.

Q. I am sorry, too. Did you have any difficulty with any of your manufacturers when you placed that stamp on your order? A. No.

Q. Did any of your manufacturers ask you what it 7251 meant? A. No.

Q. Did any of your manufacturers refuse to accept the order with that stamp on it? A. No.

Q. Were you given any instructions that that stamp was to appear on all orders and was to be accepted by manufacturers upon pain of the order not being placed with them? A. I don't think I understand that.

Q. Were you given instructions by anyone in J. Hudson Company that unless that stamp appeared on order, and unless the manufacturer was willing to ac the stamp on the order, that you were not to place order with such manufacturer? A. There were no o orders to place.

Q. Well, now, let me reframe the question. Obviou this stamp had not always been on the J. L. Hudson C pany orders; isn't that so? A. That is right; yes, si

Q. There was a certain period of time when it bega appear on the order blanks? A. Yes.

Q. Is not that so? Now, were they printed on the o

7253 blanks, or were they put on with a stamp? A. They w stamped.

Q. Who stamped them, the buyer? A. No, I don't kn

Q. You received the order blank already stamped? Yes, sir.

Q. Were you given any advice as to what to do if manufacturer refused to accept the order with that st on the order blank? A. No.

Q. Did you know what to do if a manufacturer refu to accept the stamp, the order without the stamp? A. occasion never arose.

Q. Nobody ever questioned you? A. Nobody ever

Q. About the stamp? A. Nobody ever refused to ac the order with that stamp on it.

7254 Q. So that in so far as you were concerned, when first saw that stamp on the order, you didn't know significance of it or the absolute necessity of its not be stricken off the order? A. Isn't that two questions?

Q. Answer one at a time, then, if you think it is. A can understand it when I read it.

Q. Yes. A. I think that is the answer to the first q tion.

Q. In other words, you needed no explanation of w it meant? A. No.

Q. Now, since you needed no explanation of what it meant, did you know what to do if a manufacturer said, "I won't take an order with that stamp on it"?

Mr. Haycraft: I am going to object to that question. The witness said the occasion never arose. I don't see the relevancy nor the materiality and it is not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: I think it is quite material, if your Honor pleases.

Examiner Bennett: Well, you may answer. Go ahead.

A. I was never instructed on the subject. I never asked 7256 for information on the subject.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that in so far as your instructions were concerned, you were at liberty to place an order with any manufacturer without this stamp on the order?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Q. Isn't that so?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not a proper summary of what the witness has said.

Mr. Albert: Let the witness explain. I am willing to let the witness explain. 7257

Mr. Haycraft: I am objecting to the misleading information being placed in the question.

Mr. Albert: It can't be misleading information in the question when I am asking the witness what he did and what he was accustomed to doing in the matter.

Mr. Haycraft: You are not asking that.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer, give his understanding.

Mr. Martin: Read the question.
(Question read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. The Court said you may answer the question.

The Witness: Will you repeat it for me?
(Question read.)

A. That is not true.

Mr. Post: What was the answer?
Mr. Martin: "That is not true."

7259

By Mr. Albert.

Q. May I ask you what you mean by "That is not tr
A. I was unable to place an order without that stam
it. There were none. There were no orders that d have the stamp on.

Q. Mr. Touff, you don't have that order book with in the manufacturer's showroom, do you? A. Yes.

Q. You have the specific order with you? A. This

Q. Yes. A. I have one just like it.

Q. Well, I mean a facsimile of it? A. Yes.

Q. Do you make the order out right there? A. S times.

7260 Q. Is it necessary that it be confirmed? A. Is it n sary to be confirmed?

Q. That the order be confirmed, or does your wri out of the order right then and there constitute a order? A. If I write it out?

Q. Yes. A. If I write it out in the showroom and l it, the manufacturer can accept it as an order.

Q. And it is unnecessary for him to receive a confi tion from Detroit, from J. L. Hudson Company? A.
write it on his order book, it requires a confirmatio

Q. Yes. You are familiar with the firm of Milton Altmark, Inc., aren't you, Mr. Touff? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they are a Guild house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And still are a Guild house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the volume of dresses that Milton Altmark sells or sold for 1935? A. What is the volume?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know.

Q. And what is the volume of Milton Altmark for 1935, do you know? A. No.

Q. Are you familiar with Bender & Hamburger, Inc., as a Guild house? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what their piece volume is? A. No, sir.

Q. For 1935? A. No, sir. 7262

Q. Do you know what their dollar volume is for 1935? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you familiar with Capri Frocks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a Guild house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what their unit volume is for 1935? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what their dollar volume is for 1935? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you familiar with Leonard Saltzman, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know them to be a Guild house? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what their unit volume is for 1935? A. No.

Q. Do you know what their dollar volume is for 1935? 7263
A. No.

Q. Are you familiar with Joe Copeland, Inc.? A. No.

Q. You are not familiar with them? A. No.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I am going to object to further questions of this type of the witness. If necessary to prevent further cross-examination along that line, I will concede that the witness does not know either the unit volume nor the dollar volume of the Guild manufacturers or of any other manufacturer.

Mr. Albert: Does counsel for the Commission also concede that the witness doesn't know anything at all about the unit volume nor the dollar volume of non-Guild manufacturers?

Mr. Haycraft: Did you hear what I said?

Mr. Post: He added something to it.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the statement.

(The statement of Mr. Haycraft was read.)

Mr. Albert: That is accepted.

7265 Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Albert: I have been specifically examining the witness, Mr. Haycraft, from Commission's Exhibit 523. Will you concede the same lack of knowledge with respect to the houses encompassed within the price range of Commission's Exhibit 525? I mean, you are not making a distinction?

Mr. Haycraft: No, I am not making any distinction.

Mr. Albert: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, you stated that you had a conversation with Mr. Friedlander, together with Mr. Simmons, in 7266 New York just after you were red carded; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it that you told Mr. Friedlander with respect to your fear of double stock?

Mr. Haycraft: Fear of double stock? I object to that question. He didn't say anything about that.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: The Court has said you may answer.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

A. I didn't use the word "fear." I don't think I used that word.

Q. Well, you didn't want to take any chances on a double stock, isn't that so? A. We asked Mr. Friedlander what was his attitude, and what his attitude would be if in the event we went out and purchas[illegible]erchandise to replace what we had on order with him, w[illegible] his attitude would be in the event that the red card were lifted within the next week or two—would he expect us to take the merchandise that was on order or not.

Q. Did you expect the red card to be lifted in a week or two? A. I didn't, no.

Q. What led you to believe that the red card—with- 7268 drawn. Did you make any inquiry of your superiors as to the possibility of the red card being lifted in a week or two?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Overruled.

A. Did I make any inquiry of my superiors?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. I don't think so.

Q. You didn't inquire of them at all with respect to that? A. No, sir.

Q. What led you to believe that the red card might be 7269 lifted in a week or two?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. He hasn't said that he believed it.

Mr. Albert: The Court's ruling?

Examiner Bennett: You may answer, if you have an answer.

A. I didn't say that I believed it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, naturally, when you asked Mr. Friedlander whether or not he would send you dresses, or whether or not you would be required to take his dresses if the red card was lifted in a week or two, you were foreseeing the possibility that it might be lifted in a week or two, weren't you? A. I was simply being cautious.

Q. Were you going to mark time as regards the purchase of dresses while you were determining whether or not that red card was going to stay on? A. No.

Q. You wanted to go out and get dresses, didn't you?

7271 A. Yes.

Q. And as a matter of fact, your expectation that the red card might be lifted in a week or two wasn't an honest statement, was it?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. He didn't say he expected.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Or an honest expectation?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it. He didn't say he expected.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

7272 Q. When you were in New York did you go out to see Mr. Post at all? A. On one occasion.

Q. With Milton Altmark? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ask him of the possibility of the red card being lifted in a week or two? A. No.

Q. You didn't discuss it with him at all? A. No.

Q. Didn't ask him whether or not it would be a wise thing to lay off and not buy anything for a week or two, that maybe the whole thing would be fixed up? A. No.

Q. Wasn't he the logical person to ask that?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know whether any efforts were made by your superiors towards the lifting of the red card?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrevelant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

7274

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Touff, Mr. Friedlander's statement to the effect that the red card, if the red card were lifted, you could take as much of the merchandise as you had ordered, as was on hand—was that what you said? A. No.

Q. What exactly was it? I am not quite certain of that, Mr. Touff. A. Repeat it? I said that Mr. Friedlander said that if the red card should be lifted we could take the merchandise that was on order, if we wanted it, and if we didn't want it, he would absorb it himself. There wouldn't be any difficulty about it.

Q. And that was the position of Mr. Friedlander personally; isn't that so? I mean, he was speaking then only for his own behalf? A. Yes.

7275

Q. As his policy with respect to J. L. Hudson Company if the red card were lifted? A. Yes.

Q. And in no way was he speaking for any other member of the Guild? A. No.

Q. Now, in your discussions either with Friedlander, with Altmark, Goodman, or with Mr. Post, was there any discussion whatsoever of why a red card was issued? A.

I don't recall the conversations with the manufacturers well enough because there was no such conversation with Mr. Post.

Q. You are positive that the matter was not gone into? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you didn't ask Mr. Post, "What is all this red card about? Why did we get a red card?" A. No.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. Very.

Q. But you don't recall whether or not you had such a conversation with the manufacturers? You may have had such a conversation, but you do not remember whether there was one or not; is that correct? A. I don't recall 7277 the nature of the conversation, sir.

Q. I believe you stated that the issuance of the red card constitutes a claim by the Guild that J. L. Hudson Company had reached its agreement with respect to the declaration of co-operation. Is that a proper paraphrase of what you stated? A. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You may answer. A. No.

Q. And you are proud of the fact that you are a buyer of J. L. Hudson Company, are you not?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

A. Yes.

7278

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you are proud of the fact that they bear the reputation of being one of the leading department stores in the country, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you mean to tell us that you did not defend J. L. Hudson Company from the claim that it had breached its agreement to observe the declaration of co-operation when you spoke to these manufacturers?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Were you not resentful of the fact that J. L. Hudson Company had been red carded?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Haycraft: I think it goes to the bias of the witness, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: I presume that you are going along the same line. 7280

Mr. Albert: Well, I would like to take it for both lines, your Honor, showing the witness' bias. Of course, if the question is answered, it will be answered "Yes," but it will be ruled on specifically.

Examiner Bennett: I do not get just how this would show his bias.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor. Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, when you stated that Altmark was not as co-operative as Friedlander, did you mean simply that Altmark would not make the same statement that you could have the merchandise or not, as you desired, if the red card were lifted within a week or two? A. Yes. 7281

Q. That was the only thing you meant by that, is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. Is that your conception of co-operation, Mr. Touff—

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —that a manufacturer should give you an edge? Do you understand what I mean?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. The witness has testified to what he meant and what he said, and I object to any further——

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: If your Honor please, may I point out that the witness has stated that one manufacturer agreed to give him merchandise if the red 7283 card was lifted in two weeks.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

The Witness: Shall I answer?

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

Mr. Haycraft: If he does understand; I am sure I do not.

The Witness: I cannot answer that question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You used the word "co-operative," Mr. Touff.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, but he did not——

Q. What did you mean when you used the word "co-

7284 ope ative"?

Mr. Haycraft: He did not use the word correctly.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When did you mean when you used the word "co-operative" in describing the different agreements that it was possible for you to make with two different manufacturers?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to. He has already answered that question twice, once for me and once for the respondents.

Mr. Albert: He used the word, your Honor, without explaining what he meant.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think he has answered that already.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, is it your understanding of the declaration of co-operation that upon a retailer being red carded he is not to receive any merchandise subsequently 7286 from Guild manufacturers then on order?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to; no basis for it; no foundation laid that this witness had any knowledge of the declaration of co-operation. If you recall his direct examination, Mr. Examiner, he testified that he did not know anything about it; he had never seen it, and——

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

A. I have never seen a declaration of co-operation.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was it explained to you in any way? A. No.

Q. Have you had any discussions about it? A. No. 7287

Q. So you do not know what it is that you have been required to conform to in your purchase of dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; he testified what his instructions were and he complied with same.

Mr. Albert: May I have an answer, if it please the Court, without a statement of evidence from

Mr. Haycraft, and without a reminder to the witness? I think the witness is capable, perfectly, to answer the question and telling me exactly what he said.

Mr. Haycraft: I think, Mr. Examiner, I am entitled to object.

Mr. Albert: Make a legal objection without stating——

Mr. Haycraft: When counsel includes in his statement erroneous facts, or assumes facts which are not in the record.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

7289 (Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

A. I did not say that.

Q. What did you say? A. I said that I had never seen the articles of co-operation.

Q. Yes. A. The agreement of co-operation, or whatever it is.

Q. Were they ever explained to you? A. Not as such.

Q. What do you mean, "not as such"? I do not think that is quite clear. A. No one ever took the articles of co-operation and went over them with me and said, "These are the points involved."

Q. What were your instructions with respect to the purchase of copies?

7290 Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. He did not say he had any.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you have any instructions with respect to the purchase of copies?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. Nothing to show that there are such things as copies.

A. No.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: I think the witness answered "No."

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that you were not restricted in the purchase of copies?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think the question implies a misstatement.

Unless you are almost through, we will take an adjournment until to-morrow morning. 7292

Mr. Albert: Oh, no, your Honor, far from being through.

Examiner Bennett: How?

Mr. Albert: Far from through, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: We will adjourn until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Haycraft: That is good; I was afraid he was going to quit.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 20, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned.)

7293

Court Room No. 722,
Federal Building,
Detroit, Michigan,
August 21, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 10 A. M.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

7295 Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

DAVID SAUL TOUFF resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Touff, you prepared certain figures pertaining to charts and analyses of the total volume both in units and in dollars of your respective departments and gave those analyses to Mr. Sappington, did you not?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to it. Not proper cross examination, irrelevant and immaterial.

7296 Examiner Bennett: Not covered——

Mr. Haycraft: Not covered by the direct examination.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Sustained.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the witness has also testified orally as to the effect of the recarding on his departments.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, he has testified orally. You are asking him for those figures; if that is what you are doing, that is all right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, in connection with the opinion that you have given us with respect to the effect on the various departments of the red carding, did you make any report with respect thereto to Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer that.

A. I should answer, did you say?

By Mr. Albert.

7298

Q. Yes. A. I made a great many reports to Mr. Sappington.

Mr. Albert: May I see Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482, please?

(The exhibits were handed to Mr. Albert.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482, which are analyses of Departments 338 and 358 with respect to piece sales, and ask if those exhibits, as presently shown you, are in the same condition as they were when you handed them to Mr. Sappington?

7299

Mr. Haycraft: Just a moment. Don't answer. I object to that on two or three grounds. First, there is nothing to show—there is no foundation laid that the witness prepared these exhibits and had anything to do with them; and, secondly, it is not proper cross-examination. He wasn't interrogated about them.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: I will make the question simple, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Touff, in connection with Exhibits 481 and 482, now shown you, did you make any written report, render any written opinion, or attach to those reports any written remarks for Mr. Sappington?

Mr. Haycraft: The same objection.

Examiner Bennett: That is sustained. If you want to find out whether he made those figures for Mr. Sappington, that is all right.

By Mr. Albert.

7301 Q. Did you have those figures prepared for Mr. Sappington? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't recall? A. I don't know.

Q. Did Mr. Sappington ask you to prepare those figures? A. Mr. Albert, these figures are available in the store. They are part of our unit control system. Anybody might make these figures.

Q. Have you seen those figures before? A. I have never seen these figures, these exhibits before, no.

Q. Have you seen those figures, not those exhibits, Mr. Touff? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you analyze those figures for Mr. Sappington? A. I haven't seen these figures. I don't know that I have seen these figures before.

7302 Q. Do you mean by that that you are referring to the figures on that specific sheet of paper?

Mr. Haycraft: That is what he was asked about, is it not? I object to anything else.

Mr. Albert: I asked for Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482.

Mr. Haycraft: They are in evidence.

Mr. Albert: For identification. May I point to the ruling of the Examiner with respect thereto.

that Commission's Exhibits 482-A and B for Identification may be referred to in that manner? I ask for Commission's Exhibits 482-A and B for Identification.

Mr. Haycraft: I want to say this, Mr. Examiner, that 481, 482, the original exhibits that were identified, were offered in evidence as they were then prepared. They were admittedly not competent. Counsel for the respondent objected to them. They were rejected so far as the explanatory matter was concerned and admitted so far as the figures were concerned. In order to keep the record straight, we withdrew those exhibits and inserted and submitted exhibits that are now Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482, and withdrew the original exhibits which had been marked for identification because of the fact that they contained irrelevant, immaterial and incompetent matter. Now, it certainly would be no proper procedure for the respondents to be given access to papers which were not in evidence for the purpose of cross-examining a witness who did not identify the original exhibits. 7304

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: That matter has been up and disposed of and we are not going to reopen it. You may ask any questions you want to from the exhibits of that number in the record, but we are not going out hunting for papers that have been rejected as incompetent. 7305

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, may I point out with respect to the statement of counsel for the Commission that the matter contained in Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482-A and B for Identification was objected to originally on the ground that it could not be properly proved at that time against the respondent. Its competency of proof against the respondent by the Commission is one thing; when the respondent seeks to use the remarks of this witness in connection with those exhibits, that is another thing.

Mr. Haycraft: We did not——

Mr. Albert: In addition thereto, your Honor, I wish to point out that I have specifically offered those exhibits into evidence sight unseen, that I have withdrawn the objection that I made to Mr. Haycraft's offer of evidence. Now that we have 7307 the witness on the stand who prepared the remarks with respect to those exhibits which we only saw cursorily, am I to understand—I merely want to make certain, your Honor, so that I shall not pursue the subject any further—that I have no access to, nor will the Commission's attorneys furnish me, nor will the Court direct the Commission's attorneys to furnish me with Commission's Exhibits 482-A and B as originally marked for identification?

Examiner Bennett: So far as the Examiner is concerned, that matter is closed. I have no objection to the attorneys giving you those papers if they want to give them. They are in the custody of the attorneys.

7308 Mr. Albert: Very well, then. I make formal demand upon the Commission's attorneys to produce Commission's Exhibits 482-A and B for Identification, as originally presented by the Commission, containing remarks by this witness with respect to the figures now in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 481 and 482.

Mr. Haycraft: Counsel for the Commission respectfully declines the request.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Mr. Haycraft: On the ground that there is no logical reason why that should be done. The exhibits which are in evidence are in evidence. They were identified by Mr. Sappington when Mr. Sappington was cross-examined with respect to them. This witness was not interrogated with respect to these exhibits in question. He has given his testimony orally and is subject to cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, the exhibits are in evidence, of course, and may be used in cross-examination, the exhibits which are in the record. I think that the general subject was covered as to the effect on the departments, and would be relevant as to that particular thing.

7310

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert,

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, you testified that certain improvements in your department arose from the fact that a new style commenced at about June or July; was that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What did you mean by that? A. I mean for the first time we had a demand, starting as early as the 1st of June, becoming very prominent about the 15th of June, for black daytime dresses. This was a demand which we had never experienced before, during the summer season, that carried through June and July, made it possible for us to sell dresses at $16.95 where previously in the month of July the price line was fairly dormant.

7311

Q. Did you have a sufficient supply of dresses? A. I would say no.

Q. What type of black dress are you referring to, Mr. Touff? Any particular type of black dress? A. Yes.

Q. What type? A. They were made——

Q. Sheer black dresses? A. They were shade sheers, marquisettes, chiffons; the best selling styles were tunics.

Q. Were what? A. Tunic styles.

Q. And is this the first time, in June, that J. L. Hudson ever had a demand for black sheer dresses, the first year? A. It is the first year that there ever was so substantial a demand, so large a demand.

Q. Isn't what you mean that you were particularly successful this year in selling black dresses over previous years, rather than that there has been a sudden demand in June of 1936 for black dresses? A. That is not what 7313 I mean.

Q. Wasn't there ever a demand for black dresses prior in the summer, prior to 1936? A. I think I have said that before.

Q. And is the improvement, using the word generally, in your departments that you referred to, again speaking roughly, May, June and July? A. That is too rough.

Q. June and July? A. I think the testimony was made on the basis of July.

Q. Only July? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Very well. Is the improvements in July due solely to the fact that there was this style change and you sold a lot of black dresses? A. I wouldn't say solely, but very largely.

7314 Q. The most important consideration? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Touff, are you distinguishing 1936 from previous years upon the ground that the demand for these sheer dresses, and the type that you have spoken about, has been for black dresses rather than for navy or for dark brown? A. I don't think I understand your question.

Q. Are you distinguishing your improvement in July of 1936 over the previous years upon the ground that you sold a black dress? Do you understand the question? A. (There was a short pause.) I am afraid I don't.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that the type of dress you have spoken of, aside from the question that you called it a black dress, is sold year in and year out in June and July and the color generally varies between navy, dark brown and black, and that some years you will sell a lot of navy dresses, some years you will sell a lot of dark brown dresses, and some years you will sell a lot of black dresses, but the type of dress as distinguished from the color always has a demand in July or June; isn't that so? A. Now I understand your question. I will answer it.

Q. Go ahead. A. Normally the demand for dark dresses, navy and brown, which we normally have in the spring season, we begin to satisfy as early as the beginning of January. By the time we arrive at the 1st of June or the 15th of June that demand is pretty well satisfied. Any dresses that we sell after the 15th of June we generally sell at a lower price. This was a new developing demand, one that we had not experienced before at this time of the year.

Q. And it is your contention that normally you sell sheer dresses in January? A. Yes, certainly.

Q. Do I understand you correctly, then, Mr. Touff, that prior to this year J. L. Hudson Company had never had such a demand for this type of dress at this particular time? A. We never previously had demand for marquisettes, chiffon, sheer tunic dresses starting about the 15th of June and carrying through the month of July.

7317

Q. Did you know what I asked you about, Mr. Touff, that I was asking you about a dark sheer dress? I didn't say anything at all about tunics. A. You asked me——

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question, then, if you didn't include——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then I will place it to you definitely, specifically.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness said——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is it your contention that J. L. Hudson Company, prior to 1936, July or June, never had a demand for dark sheer dresses? A. I have answered that question three times.

Q. That is the best answer that you have given? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Who were the Guild houses that you used in Department 358? A. You mean the list of Guild houses that I gave you yesterday or every Guild house that I ever used in Department 358?

Q. No, for 1935, the ones from whom you got the bulk 7319 of your goods? A. Milton Altmark.

Q. Yes. A. Straus-Miller.

Q. Yes. A. Mary Lee.

Q. Yes. A. Frank Staf-Friedlander.

Q. Yes. A. A. Goodman.

Q. Yes. A. Charles Lang.

Q. Who? A. Charles Lang, L-a-n-g.

Q. Who? A. Charles Lang.

Q. Yes. A. Jack Herzog.

Q. Yes. A. Kaplan & Moskowitz.

Q. Yes. What was that one? A. Kaplan & Moskowitz.

Q. Yes. A. Goldstein and Anton. I think that would cover the important ones.

Q. Those are all the important substantial Guild houses
7320 from which you obtained most of your merchandise for Department 358, is that correct? A. Oh, I forgot Capri.

Q. Yes. A. I think that covers them.

Q. Is there anyone else you forgot? A. It is possible, but I can't recall them right now.

Q. Did you forget Harry Cohn? A. You asked me about Guild houses.

Q. That is not a Guild house? A. No.

Q. Now, yesterday you didn't tell us about Lang, Herzog, Kaplan & Moskowitz or Goldstein and Anton, did you? A. No.

Q. Did you forget them yesterday? A. No.

Q. What made you omit them? A. There was a difference in the question, I believe.

Q. What was the difference? A. Yesterday I understood the question to be that I was to give the Guild houses that I did the substantial part of my business with. I didn't understand the question that way this morning.

Mr. Albert: Will you be good enough, Mr. Stenographer, to read my question?

(The record was read.) 7322

A. Most of the names that I have given you are the most important names. Names that I added to-day were less important, but I used them.

Q. You don't consider the houses from whom you obtained the bulk of your goods as important, is that it? Collectively? A. I am afraid I don't understand that.

Q. All right. It is not important, Mr. Touff.

Mr. Albert: All right. It is not important now.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, what was the non-Guild houses from whom you purchased substantially the bulk of your merchandise for Department 358 in 1935? 7323

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question, as to the form of it. It is impossible to answer.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Haycraft: He has already testified he bought the bulk from the Guild houses; how could he buy the bulk from the non-Guild houses?. He cannot purchase from two places.

Examiner Bennett: Well——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Who are the most important non-Guild houses from whom you purchased merchandise in 1935? A. Harry Cohn, Famous Dress.

Q. Any others? A. I think not.

Q. Those are the only two non-Guild houses? A. Those are the only two that I can recall now.

Q. Anybody else would be very small orders, if at all, 7325 is that it? A. Even these were.

Q. Now, what is there about the dresses that you purchased from Guild houses for Department 358 that you could not obtain from non-Guild houses? A. They were not as satisfactory for our purposes.

Q. That is, satisfactory with respect to what? A. Salability.

Q. Salability with respect to what? What types are there in those dresses that you purchased from the Guild houses that you could not get from the non-Guild houses? A. Well, I think we could write a doctor's thesis on it.

Q. Well, if you think you can get a degree from it, let me have a minor thesis on it. A. Well, Mr. Albert, I explain it this way: We had been doing business with cer- 7326 tain of these houses for several years. We had built up a demand for the type of merchandise that they made, as far as type, certain customers who demanded other types of merchandise that they made were not in the habit of coming to our store to look for it, as they knew, over a period of time, that they would not find it. It was essential that we have the types of merchandise that came from those few Guild houses. I find it impossible to buy enough dresses of that type to satisfy my demand. Number—that is only my beginning.

I think that the Guild houses monopolizing such a large part of that particular market, as they did, also monopolized a great part of the desirable novelty piece goods, trimmings, and so forth, and I think that the Guild houses handling such a large volume of the business in that field naturally would have more satisfactory styles than the houses—the Guild houses that were left.

Also, over a period of years' experience, we had found that certain people make better dresses, better manufactured dresses, better intrinsic dresses, better fitting dresses than other manufacturers. We had weeded out the ones that we felt that we could not make money on, or approach making money on, and those houses were largely in the 7328
Guild——

Q. Well— A. —entirely in the Guild.

Q. Is that all, Mr. Touff? A. Yes.

Q. What is the type of dress that you were referring to for which there was a demand that you had built up in your store? A. The type of dress that is manufactured by the resources that I gave you.

Q. Mr. Touff, what is it in a dress that makes it salable? A. Well, you ask a question that demands general answers. I cannot answer it in anything but generalities.

Q. Tell me this: Can you say that the quality of the merchandise that is used in the dress contributes towards its salability? A. Sometimes.

Q. Would you say that needlework in a dress con- 7329 tributes towards its salability? A. Sometimes.

Q. Would you say that the tailoring in a dress contributes towards its salability? A. Yes, sometimes.

Q. Would you say that the very name of the manufacturer who makes the dress contributes towards its salability? A. We have no names in our stock, or practically none.

Q. Would you say that the style of the dress contributes towards its salability? A. Yes.

Q. Now, all of these elements are elements that are taken into consideration by you when you go out to purchase a dress, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. When you are looking for a dress that is salable? A. Yes.

Q. Now, excluding all the other elements which you take into consideration, what do you look for in style that you think contributes towards the salability of a dress? A. Style must be wearable by a large number of people; it must be in a fashion trend——

7331 Q. Well— A. —and it must be at a point in a fashion trend——

Q. I am sorry. I did not hear that last. A. And it must be at a point in the fashion trend where a large number of people are wanting it.

Q. Now, then, a large number of people are wanting it. That contributes towards its re-order value, does it not, rather than your initial desire to purchase it? A. Well, I always try to buy dresses that will be re-ordered.

Q. Of course, but when you say that it must be at a specific point in the fashion trend, that it will be purchased again by others; that is a question of re-order, is it not? A. I don't think so.

Q. You do not know for certain, when you purchase a 7332 dress from a manufacturer, predicated upon your knowledge of what will sell, that it actually will sell? A. No one does.

Q. Of course not. You rely upon your experience and your knowledge of dresses to purchase a type of dress, or a style of dress, that you think will sell? A. Yes.

Q. Do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in what way do you determine whether or not a dress is in the fashion trend when you look at it? A. By a number of sources of information that come to me.

style information, that comes to me through periodicals, reports, and that sort of thing, and that development that I can see of the fashion trend in the goods that we are selling in our store.

Q. What do you mean by the fashion trend? A. That takes rather a long answer, if you do not mind.

Q. If it takes a long answer, we will have to have a long answer. A. All styles originate—

Q. After all, we have been here two months. You can hold us up another month. We don't care.

Mr. Martin: I move that be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

7334

A. All styles—probably all styles—originate with a few very important people whom the rest of the world has a tendency to watch. Some few smart continental women, some few movie actresses, who have a reputation in their cities, or in the country, for being well dressed, whom other people imitate the things that they wear, are followed, or imitated, or are followed in the things that they wear by people whom they come in contact with. There is a selective process that goes on all the way down the line because some people don't like some of the things that they wear. Those high fashion pieces, as we call them, eventually reach the volume houses and again a process of selection is gone through, and eventually they become—some of the things that those people wear—become volume fashions. The history that they go through from the few people who originate them, to their volume acceptance, is their trend.

7335

Q. That is your conception of what the fashion trend is, what you meant, that a dress must be in the fashion trend: is that it?. A. That is a broad picture of it.

Q. Is not what you have discussed, rather, the mechanics, the process, the description of how a dress is copied down? A. Of course not.

Q. It is not? Now, is it your contention that the actresses in Hollywood originate the styles which th wear?

Mr. Haycraft: I object. He did not say so.

Mr. Albert: I am asking him if that is his co tention, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid for that.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answe if he has an answer.

Q. (Question read.) A. No, it is not my contention.

7337 By Mr. Albert.

Q. All right. Start back behind these Hollywood actresses, and tell us where the Fashion trend originates that these Hollywood actresses wear? A. Well, you have to go way back into history and make a study of the history of fashion from the earliest days.

Q. Yes. A. And decide where all these fashions originally—peasant costumes, historic costumes, military costumes, that they decided that certain dressmakers or certain couturiers decided they are going to use as an inspiration for a new dress.

Q. And who is that that decides that? A. Who is it that decides it?

Q. Yes. A. A great many things that have to do with 7338 deciding it, Mr. Albert. I mean, if they have an oriental exhibit in London, as they had two years ago, we are liable to find a great many clothes in Paris of oriental inspiration——

Q. No, no, no——

Mr. Haycraft: Let him answer. Do not interrupt him.

Mr. Martin: Let him answer the question.

A. If we have an exposition in Paris, a Colonial exposition, showing all the French colonies, and all their handicraft, and so on, we find a great many things in the Paris openings that reflect that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And if they open up a hole in Egypt and find another Tutankhamen, then you have an Egyptian trend; is that not so? A. Well, it could conceivably be so.

Q. How? A. I say, it could conceivably be so.

Q. I mean, that is how you had that as the style trend a couple of years ago; is that not so? A. I don't recall it.

Q. Or is that before your time? A. How long ago was 7340
it?

Mr. Martin: About twelve years ago.

Mr. Albert: Twelve years ago.

The Witness: I don't remember.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You do not remember all the brown make-ups that the girls had on at that time, with their dresses?

Mr. Martin: Do you, Albert, do you?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that the most recent trend in style developed as the result of—shall I say—influence of Mae 7341
West?

Mr. Haycraft: Let him answer that question. It is all right. Just shows how silly the questions can be.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that that was one of the recent trends in style? A. I would say that one of the recent trends in style, as recently as two years——

Q. Yes. A. —had evolved from an American histori costume that Mae West chose to wear in a certain picture

Q. Right. And that developed a certain trend in th style of dresses, did it not?. A. Temporarily.

Q. Well, all of these are temporary, are they not? A I said that there was a process of selectivity involved. I think in that process of selectivity that fashion—had a tendency to go by the boards, I think it was discarded.

Q. Now, granting that a certain trend of style develops who is it that refines the style, the trend, for present-day conception? I mean, it is not your contention that when you have an oriental wave, or you have an Egyptian wave, 7343 or you have a throw-back to the Empire period, that the dresses of those respective periods are worn to-day exactly as they were in those times? I do not think you meant to contend that, did you? A. No.

Q. All right. Now, who is it that adapts or refines or develops—using any word that you wish—these trends, so that they will be adaptable to present-day custom and uses? A. Well, they are probably changed by a great many people, initially. If we are speaking of the couturier in Paris, they are probably a great deal changed by the couturier's clientele. There are smart Parisian women, American, Continental women, Argentine, and so on, who make certain changes in those dresses as they buy them, and have them to suit themselves, rather 7344 than exactly as the couturier shows them. Then, I have doubt, as a matter of fact I know that when our American designers, and stores, go into the Paris market to buy those things, they make certain changes on them also before they bring them to this country, and when they are brought to this country, a great process of selection and change goes on, because some of them are copied exactly, some of them are not. Each designer, each buyer, each stylist does a little something to the dress, to the style that makes it very slightly different than the one before. Is that what you mean?

Q. And, therefore, is it your contention that couturiers of Paris, generally speaking, conform the trend of a fashion to the present-day custom, of usage, and that the American manufacturers take the trend from the Parisian couturiers? A. No, that is not my contention. My contention is that of the great many things that the Paris couturiers show, our American manufacturer, our American store, selects those few things which they think will be accepted by the American public.

Q. But the American manufacturer gets his inspiration in the first place from the Paris couturier; is that not so? A. There are other fields of inspiration, and——

Q. Is not that the main source—— 7346

Mr. Martin: Let him answer.

Q. —Mr. Touff——

Mr. Martin: Let him answer. He had not finished.

Examiner Bennett: Have you finished?

The Witness: I had not finished.

Examiner Bennett: All right, finish.

A. There are other fields of inspiration besides the Paris couturier, although the Paris couturier is probably the most important. I think that answers both questions.

By Mr. Albert. 7347

Q. Yes. Now, Mr. Touff, in the creation of a dress, how many component parts would you say must be taken into consideration? I mean, you have various types of sleeves, you have various types of cuffs, you have various types of tunic, you have various types of skirts. A. It is almost an infinity, Mr. Albert.

Q. Almost an infinity of varieties, of changes that you can have in a dress; is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. And that is equally so, is it not, to a great extent as to the changes which you can have in a dress even in a particular fashion trend; is that not so?

The Witness: Repeat the question, please.

Examiner Bennett: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: Could you rephrase it?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You say in the fashioning of a dress there are so many elements to be taken into consideration, as to amount to almost an infinity of elements; is that not so?

7349 A. Yes.

Q. Now, that infinity of elements is naturally reduced when you have a dress that conforms in general to a certain fashion trend. I mean, if you have a certain fashion trend in which you are trying to manufacture a dress, you will naturally omit from your consideration in the manufacturing of that dress the oriental trend, if it happens to be an Empire dress; is that not so? A. Not all——

Q. To a great extent? A. A consistent designer would. They aren't all consistent.

Q. Yes, of course. Within a particular fashion trend? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't the amount of elements that one may take into consideration in order to have a dress consistently in the 7350 fashion trend, doesn't that amount of elements, almost approaching infinity as far as listing them is concerned? A. If I understand you correctly, you want me to say that there are a great many styles that can be built in the same fashion trend. Is that right?

Q. A great many designs. A. Styles.

Q. Styles? A. Yes, that can be built in the same fashion trend.

Q. Almost infinite, isn't that so? A. A great many.

Q. Would you say that— A. It all depends on what you mean. If you mean if you take a velvet button off and put a jet button on, if that makes another style, then infinite.

Q. No, I do not think that you want to create the impression that that makes it another style, if it is a different style dress otherwise. A. I don't know what your impression is.

Q. Is that what you wish to contend, that there are some elements— A. You said that changing them would make a—you could make by changing them around you could make infinite variety within the same fashion trend.

Q. Yes. But what I mean by that is, in the dress proper, 7352 not in the ornaments which you put on the dress. A. Well, Mr. Albert——

Q. Isn't that so? A. Mr. Albert, there are very few basic silhouettes that we use at any one time.

Q. Yes. A. Leading fashion prognosticators of the moment say that we have three. Some people disagree. Some say two, some say six, but there are only a limited number of accepted silhouettes, fashion bodies, and the rest of the dresses depend entirely for its change of ornaments and detail.

Q. And detail? A. Yes.

Q. Now, how many factors can a manufacturer take into consideration in the development of his silhouette of the dress, assuming for the sake of argument, purely, that there are three silhouettes without in any way being bound 7353 by your statement. A. Yes.

Q. In the development of the silhouette of the dress, how many elements would he take into consideration?

Mr. Haycraft: You understand the question?

The Witness: I am afraid not.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

The Witness: Could you illustrate it?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you aware of what the three silhouettes are, Mr. Touff? A. I don't say that there are three.

Q. Well, of the possible three silhouettes, whether or not you believe there to be only two, three or one. A. Yes.

Q. How would you describe them, briefly? A. Well, now, this is another person's opinion, not my own. Is that a proper part of testimony?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. If it is the opinion of skilled persons in that business.

The Witness: I am not at liberty to quote the 7355 person's name.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it isn't necessary to give the person's name if it is information that comes to you in the course of your study and work.

The Witness: We have a silhouette at the moment which is carried through for quite some time with a wide broad shoulder and a very slim skirt. That is the one that we are all very familiar with. We have the silhouette at the moment developing with a fitted waist, bodice and a flair skirt, wide skirt, a dress of peasant inspiration. We have a silhouette developing—we have a silhouette with us with a moderate shoulder line and a tunic, a full tunic starting from the waist line.

7356 Q. Mr. Touff, in this description of the three silhouettes you have mentioned, the wide shoulder, a moderate shoulder, a fitted waist, a narrow skirt, a flair skirt and a full tunic starting from the waist. You may have mentioned other elements but I couldn't get them quite that fast. Isn't that so? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Mr. Haycraft: Just speak up.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, cannot those be consolidated in any number of combinations? A. If I understand your question correctly, the answer is no.

Q. Let me put it this way, Mr. Touff: Not all of these—Cannot all of these various elements be interchanged? A. You mean, can we put a tunic on a dress with a wide shoulder and a flairing skirt?

Q. If you want to make it that way. A. Not very well.

Q. It may develop, can it not? A. I cannot see it in the picture yet, no.

Mr. Albert: May I have a repetition of the witness' answer. 7358

(Record read.)

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, aside from the fact that you cannot see it yet, do you say that you cannot have a dress with a wide shoulder and a flair skirt with a tunic?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to unless——

A. You——

Mr. Haycraft: Just a minute. Unless the question confines it to a style trend or to a conceivable style trend.

Mr. Post: That is what a silhouette is, Mr. Haycraft. 7359

Mr. Haycraft: You can make any sort of a combination, I suppose, physically.

Mr. Albert: It is perfectly apparent what the question is directed to, with in the line of the inquiry.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, of course——

Mr. Haycraft: I do not believe that there should be——

Mr. Albert: Is that objected to because the witness is merely taking so long a time to answer?

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer it if it is understood that he is talking about the practical dresses made to manufacture and sold to his customers.

Mr. Albert: Certainly.

Examiner Bennett: That he is not speculating on any possible caricature of a dress that might be made.

The Witness: Well, your Honor, if I answered "yes" to his question it would be in the realm of 7361 speculation, certainly.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I would expect you to answer the question in the light of what could be manufactured and sold to customers according to your experience.

The Witness: I don't believe it could be manufactured and sold under the present fashion trend.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Under the present fashion trends? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And had you been asked whether or not dresses of the Mae West silhouette would have been sold within the past two years, if you would have been asked that six or 7362 seven years ago, I believe your answer would have been that you don't see how it could possibly be so in the fashion trend of that time; isn't that so? A. I would have answered it as I answered your question before, it would be in the realm of speculation.

Q. Quite. But not within the realm of impossibility? A. No.

Q. Because it is in the realm of speculation because from one year to the next we don't know what the fashion ead will be; isn't that so? A. Very. Not from one year the next, no.

Q. Well, from one year— A. Over a period of years.

Q. Over a period of two or three years. I think we all derstood what I meant by that. A. (Witness nods head firmatively.)

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, may we have a short recess to let the witness get a drink of water?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. We will have a recess for ten minutes.

(There was a short reces taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed. 7364

Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, in the adaptation, or, to use a general word, which I think you will understand as a general m, in the adaptation of the fashion trend, present-day tom and usage, will you concede or will you deny—what your thoughts—that each manufacturer contributes ething to the particular model which reflects the fashtrend either in a grouping of certain elements that come the dress, merely in their arrangement, or else in the rporation of a dress of a feature different from the gen run of the particular time? A. I will concede that e manufacturers contribute something.

. Yes. A. Not all manufacturers. 7365

. Not what? A. Not all manufacturers.

. Not all? A. No.

. Now, will you say that "some manufacturers," who ontribute something in the model in the adaptation of fashion trend, for the greater part are Guild houses?

No, I wouldn't say that at all.

Would you say that in the main the "some manufacrs" who contribute something in the model in the tation of the fashion trend— Will you repeat that?

(Question read.)

Mr. Albert: Withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that of the "some manufacturer who contribute something novel or different to the mo within the fashion trend, the first ones who do that a the Guild houses? A. No, I don't think I can concede th

Q. Is that because there are a few others than the Gu houses who do contribute, or because you feel persona that there isn't a higher percentage of Guild houses who that? A. I am afraid I don't understand.

7367

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the question, to t form of it. If he wants an explanation of his a swer, let him ask for it.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You have stated that you cannot say that of the ma ufacturers who contribute something different, somethi novel or something new in the adaptation of the fashi trend, present-day custom and usage, that you cannot s that the houses that first do that are for the most pa Guild houses? A. Did you say "for the most part" t other time?

Q. Yes.

7368

Mr. Haycraft: You mean in this country?

The Witness: Well——

Mr. Haycraft: That is too general, Mr. E aminer.

The Witness: And it is a statistical questi without any statistics.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, when you stated the Guild manufacturers we the largest, you knew nothing about their volume of un or their volume of dollar units; did you? Now, predicated upon your same general knowledge of the industry, can you not tell me one way or the other—if you cannot, say so—that the Guild houses are generally, for the most part, the first ones to contribute, to add something to the models that reflect the fashion trend? A. No, I cannot admit that.

Q. Would you say that the non-Guild houses were the first ones that did that? A. I can't say that.

Q. Would you say that it was equal between the two types of houses?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to the question as assuming something which the witness hasn't testified to, 7370 and it is not in the record, and that is that any manufacturer originates anything.

Mr. Albert: I think we are perfectly clear about what we are about, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask the witness if he can answer that.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he can't, he won't answer.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question, please?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Can you answer that?

The Witness: I can only answer that both types 7371 of houses contribute to that practice.

Examiner Bennett: That is, you are not saying which is first or which is predominant?

The Witness: I wouldn't know that.

Mr. Haycraft: There were a couple of questions and answers that you didn't get.

Mr. Albert: I heard them.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that you cannot tell in your opinion from you knowledge of the industry whether or not the Guild house or the non-Guild houses contribute more to the differenti ation, to the novelty of models within the fashion trend A. It is impossible to tell that.

Q. And there is nothing in your experience, there is n knowledge upon which you can draw in order to form a estimate or an opinion of that; is that so? A. That is so

Q. Well, now, Mr. Touff, you have testified that prior t 1936 H. Fried Company was not a particularly important house to you and that in 1936 it did become an important 7373 source of supply; did you not? A. I didn't testify that they became an important source of supply, no. I testified that they were not an important source of supply in 1935.

Q. Didn't you testify that they became an important source of supply in 1936? A. I don't think so.

Q. I give you this question by Mr. Haycraft: "Q. Did you mention H. N. Fried in Department 369? Was that a source of supply? A. It was not an important source of supply until the beginning of 1936." Do you recall that testimony? A. Yes.

Q. Do you want to change your testimony that you did not testify that it was an important source of supply?. A. Well, the choice of words was probably a little bit ill ad-7374 vised.

Q. Who advised you to choose your words? A. I might have left out the word "important."

Q. You mean that it is not an important source of supply for 1936? A. No.

Q. Do you want to change your testimony because of the fact that prior to 1935 H. N. Fried & Company did not have an outstanding designer for its dresses, and that in the beginning of 1936 H. N. Fried & Company did obtain an outstanding designer for its dresses, by reason of which the high style of its dresses improved considerably?

The Witness: Will you read that to me, please?

(Question read.)

The Witness: Can you make that a simple question? I know what you are driving at, but just make it an easy question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. If you know what I am driving at, in the light of the fact that you know what I am driving at, answer and we will save time. A. H. N. Fried was not an important source of supply to us in 1935. 7376

Q. Yes. A. They were anything but an important source of supply to us in 1936. My choice of words in yesterday's testimony was ill-advised.

Q. So that you want to— Have you any knowledge of the volume of business that you did with H. N. Fried & Company up to July of 1935? A. You mean for the previous six months?

Q. Yes. A. Well——

Q. A rough— A. —a very vague guess.

Q. A rough guess. A. Less than $500.

Q. Less than $500? A. Yes.

Q. Have you any idea of the amount of the volume of your business with H. N. Fried & Company from July, 1935 to January 1, 1936? A. Oh, five or six hundred dol- 7377 lars.

Q. Same amount. That is, with respect to all departments? A. It is only used in Department 369.

Q. H. N. Fried only sold to Department 369? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the volume of your business with H. N. Fried & Company after January 1, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. What would be your estimate of it?

The Witness: Your Honor, I think that t might be embarrassing information to give to c petitors, and embarrassing information for manufacturer.

Mr. Albert: Are we suddenly becoming emb rassed, your Honor, after a revelation of all of t amount of his volume?

Examiner Bennett: The revelation of whate he has given thus far was with the consent of t management, for 1935, and if the management w —or the attorney who is here present for J. Hudson Company—wants to release the witness 7379 that matter, why, it is all right, but without th release I cannot try to force him.

Mr. Meder: Your Honor please, we would pref that he not answer such a question as that.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Meder: You can see the reason for it.

Mr. Albert: I confess I cannot.

By Mr. Albert,

Q. Mr. Touff——

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhib 479-A?

Mr. Haycraft: Do you want the witness to loo at it?

7380 Mr. Albert: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Will you look at Commission's Exhibit 479-A, subdivi sion under Department 369, and tell me how much goods you had outstanding under order with H. N. Fried & Com pany on February 15, 1936? A. It is very funny—it is $947.

Q. So that when would you say that goods was placed on order? A. It was placed on order the first week in January.

Q. How? A. The first week in January.

Q. Were there any deliveries against that order? A. Yes.

Q. So that in the light of the fact that you do not wish to disclose the amount of the order, am I correct in saying that the order that you placed with H. N. Fried & Company, commencing January, 1936, is somewhere in excess of $947?

Mr. Haycraft: I object.

Mr. Albert: I think that is reasonable, your Honor; I am not asking for the exact figure. 7382

Mr. Haycraft: You can draw your conclusions from it, but I object to the exact question.

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that not so?

The Witness: You say I may answer?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. So that in the first month of 1936 the total of your orders on H. N. Fried & Company was in excess of your entire order for 1935, roughly speaking? 7383

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial. I do not see what probative value there is to that question.

Examiner Bennett: Well, it is in the record.

Mr. Albert: It has quite a bearing on the precise question, if it please the Court.

Examiner Bennett: I say, it is in the record.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

Examiner Bennett: I do not see what we a gaining by asking the question.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Touff, will you tell me what it about H. N. Fried & Company that resulted in your pla ing orders with them in the month of January in exces of the total amount that you had placed with that firm i 1935?

7385 Mr. Martin: That is objected to.

A. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. If you can. A. Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to—not in conformance with the facts in the record. Five and six make eleven hundred, in my addition?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will sustain it on the ground of being totally irrelevant, as far as I can see.

Mr. Albert: It is merely a foundation question, your Honor.

7386 Examiner Bennett: Well, foundation for what? For contradicting the witness' testimony?

Mr. Albert: That is right.

Examiner Bennett: Well, on the same point that you have already contradicted it——

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, if you think I have already contradicted the witness, I will desist.

Examiner Bennett: Why; surely, you have already contradicted him.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: So I see nothing in this.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, do you know Emma Kirby? A. No.

Q. Do you know of her? A. Yes.

Q. Who is she? A. Who is she? She is a designer.

Q. And quite a capable designer, is she not? A. I would prefer not to pass opinion.

Q. Would you consider that she has an excellent reputation in the industry and is well known in the industry? A. Do you ask those as two separate questions?

Q. Well, answer them separately. A. She is very well 7388 known in the industry.

Q. Would you say that she has an excellent reputation as a designer? A. I don't know.

Q. By whom is she employed at the present time, if you know? A. There has been a lot of confusion there in the last few weeks, and I don't know.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Kirby, do you not know that the lady in question is a designer of dresses for H. N. Fried & Company? A. Ha, ha. I don't want to be Mr. Kirby.

Mr. Post: May I say, off the record——

(There was a discussion off the record.)

The Witness: What is the question?

(Question read.) 7389

A. That she is a designer of dresses for H. N. Fried & Company; is that the question?

Q. Is the question, yes. A. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you know that she was a designer for H. N. Fried & Company in January, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Do you also know that Miss Kirby was not a designer, was not associated with Fried & Company for the whole of 1935? A. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: What do you mean by that any part of 1935, or——

The Witness: I think you said for all of 1935 that she was not associated with Mr. Fried for all of 1935.

Examiner Bennett: At any time?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That she only went into H. N. Fried in the latter part of 1935? A. Yes, that is the question I was asked.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I wondered, because the question was ambiguous.

7391 Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, you have testified that by reason of the red carding, it was impossible for you to purchase dresses that were satisfactory for your departments? A. I did not testify to that.

Q. What did you testify? A. I think it is in the record. I said enough dresses, enough satisfactory dresses.

Q. Eough satisfactory dresses? A. Yes.

Q. Did you mean by that in number or in style? A. Well, that question would have to be answered both.

Q. That is, you did not have a sufficient number of dresses, and you did not have a sufficient number of 7392 dresses of the style to which your customers were accustomed; is that it? A. I could have bought all my dresses in one style, and I would have had the right quantity.

Q. Yes. A. I had to have both variety of style and quantity.

Q. Right. I believe you also testified that it was absolutely essential that you have the best style, did you? A. I either testified that, or some of the best style dresses.

Q. And, is it, therefore, your contention that the Guild houses have the best style dresses? A. No, it is my contention that they have some of the best style dresses.

Q. And you can get good style dresses from other sources than the best styles? A. Some.

Q. Some. Well, now, let us put it this way, Mr. Touff:—And perhaps we can get off the subject: I believe you are aware substantially of what the Guild's contentions are with regard to this proceeding, are you not?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Albert: It is a foundation question.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer 7394
if it is a foundation question. If you are going to ask him on this proceeding——

Mr. Albert: No, I am not, your Honor. Of course not.

The Witness: Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: If you are not, why, say so.

The Witness: I am not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. All right. Let me put it this way: The Fashion Originators Guild contend that manufacturers originate designs in dresses. Are you aware of that? Mind you, I am not asking you whether you agree with it or not; I 7395 am asking you whether you are aware of the fact that that is a contention of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. Yes, it is.

Q. You are. And that there is a contention of the Fashion Originators Guild that a manufacturer who originates a design within the fashion trend has a right to be protected against that original design being copied; are you aware of that? A. That that is your contention?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of the fact that there is also contend among manufacturers in the industry that there is such evil as style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that; not an issue this case.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: Are you connecting that with the Guild?

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: The question does not co

7397 nect it up.

Mr. Albert: Read the question.

(Question again read.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. —by manufacturers in the industry—assuming th I mean members of the Fashion Originators Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I am going to let hi answer. If we are going to have a question founde on all this—go ahead. If you are aware of it, wh say so, and if you are not, why, say so.

A. Yes, I am aware of it.

3798

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you also aware of the fact that it is the conte tion of retailers who have co-operated, and are co-operatin with the Fashion Originators Guild, that there is an ev in the industry known as style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: That is manifestly objected t No foundation at all in the record, and no place i the pleadings.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I am asking if this man knows that that is a contention in the industry among retailers who are co-operating with the Guild.

Mr. Haycraft: That is off the point.

Examiner Bennett: Is that a foundation question?

Mr. Albert: A foundation question.

Mr. Haycraft: There is not such a question either in the record or anywhere else.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I sustain an objection to that.

Mr. Albert: Exeeption. 7400

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are you aware of the fact that it is the contention, or the claim, of certain retailers who are members of the Fashion Originators Guild, who are co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild, that an evil exists which is harmful to retailers, known as style piracy? What is your answer?

Examiner Bennett: Answer it, if you know anything about it.

A. I am not aware of it.

Q. You are not aware of that contention among retailers— A. No.

Q. —who are co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. No. 7401

Q. Do you agree that there is such an evil in the industry as style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: That was not the first of it.

Mr. Albert: Let me ask it in the order I like, Mr. Haycraft.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

A. Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. There is an evil in the industry of style piracy?
Yes. You understand that that is my personal opin
Q. Yes, of course.

Mr. Haycraft: Do you want the answer to rest of your question?

Mr. Albert: No.

Mr. Haycraft: All right.

Mr. Albert: I have got enough.

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I move to strike all of question as originally propounded and the pres 7403 question, as being of no probative value to issues in this case, and as irrelevant and immate to the issues in this case and of no probative va in this proceeding.

Mr. Albert: Most of them are irrelevant, if please the Court—we have had that out before.

Examiner Bennett: I think I will grant the tion to strike, if that is what you are after. I thi it is just playing with the situation——

Mr. Feldman: Oh, no.

Examiner Bennett: I do not believe it has a bearing.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, it is the c tention of the respondent in this case that if th is an evil existent in the industry, ruinous to 7404 the component parts of the industry, manufact
ers and retailers——

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say that.

Mr. Albert: —and which is injurious to the c tomer——

Mr. Haycraft: He did not say that.

Mr. Albert: —that, if there is such an evil, t industry has a right to take steps to correct th evil. Now, I believe I have elicited from this witness the fact that there is such an evil as style piracy.

Examiner Bennett: Oh. the fact of the opinion that he has, that there is such an evil—now, as I understand it, and I think that matter has been gone into, probably repeatedly in the record—there is no contention on that particular issue on the part of the Commission.

Mr. Feldman: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor pleases, we had this identical matter brought up, I believe it was either yesterday or the day before yesterday, and I put 7406
the direct question to the Commission, and it certainly would have saved a great deal of time, both to-day and in the future—I put the direct question to the Commission—will they concede that there is an evil in the industry known as style piracy, and that it is injurious to manufacturers and to retailers—and they refused to make that concession, if your Honor pleases.

Examiner Bennett: I understand—I do not know—I think that is probably true, but they have contended that it is not an issue in this proceeding.

Mr. Albert: Well, if your Honor pleases——

Examiner Bennett: And they are making affirmative issues. Now, when you come to present your case, why, that may be another matter—— 7407

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

Examiner Bennett: ——hat I will have to pay attention——

Mr. Albert: Will your Honor bear with me just a moment?

Examiner Bennett: I will have to pay attention to what you say when you present your case.

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor, but will you with me a moment?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: It is all very well for the Com sion's attorneys to say that that is not in issu these proceedings, and with all due respect to Commission's attorneys, that is not a matter their decision. We contend, if it please the C that in so far as the Circuit Courts of Appeals concerned, and the United States Supreme C the question of whether or not a program is rected at eliminating an evil known to exist in 7409 industry is a matter which has a great deal of pr tive weight in the determination of whether not that program is illegal, was in restraint of t or not. Now, then, I believe, therefore, that should be permitted to bring out from hostile nesses presented by the witness in support of t case, the very vital proposition, and the very subject, that there is an evil in the industry, s as style piracy, which will add so much more pr tive force to the respondents' contention that th was such an evil.

Mr. Feldman: Oh, I think the code cases very clear on that point.

Mr. Haycraft: How about the Sugar Institu

Mr. Feldman: How about the Sugar Institu

7410 Where they said, for the purpose of eliminatin boycott was proper.

Mr. Haycraft: A boycott was never proper.

Mr. Feldman: Did not say anything of the k in the Sugar Institute.

Mr. Haycraft: You better read it again, Geo

Examiner Bennett: If it is in the record—i is in the record you may make any use of it wh you choose.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor pleases, in order to obviate this recurring discussion with respect to the matter in hand, in order that respondents may know exactly where they stand in attempting to meet the issues presented by the Federal Trade Commission, its attorneys, I ask the Federal Trade Commission's attorneys now formally, as to whether or not they will concede that there is an evil in the industry known as style piracy. Now, they have been very equivocal about admitting or denying it, and they refer us back two months ago to a stipulation that was entered into. I think it would be very simple, and very helpful, 7412 and of great assistance to all that are concerned, if we could have a declarative statement, a very simple one, from the Commission, upon that point. It would take a great deal less time than all of this discussion which has now twice arisen within the past two days.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. May I——

Mr. Martin: May I ask what date this was two months ago that we entered into this stipulation?

Mr. Haycraft: I made the statement—I told them again this week—I do not see why it has to be repeated all this time.

Mr. Albert: Then am I to understand——

Mr. Haycraft: If the Examiner wants me to, I will make it again. 7413

Mr. Feldman: The first day or second day.

Examiner Bennett: I wish you would reply distinctly to the——

Mr. Haycraft: The reply is "no concessions"; is that plain enough?

Mr. Feldman: Well then——

Mr. Albert: There you are, your Honor. May I ask now, that your Honor, in the light of that statement by counsel, reconsider your determi tion to strike from the record this hostile witne opinion that there was such an evil as style pira in order that the record may be clear with resp thereto?

Mr. Haycraft: Well, then, Mr. Examiner, I spectfully suggest that that is a part of their affir ative case. If they are going to make it an issu we may take it before the Commission at that tim
In other words, if the time ever comes when t respondent attempts to make that question an i sue, it may be necessary to take this case to t 7415 Commission to decide whether it will be an issu and I certainly do not want the record——

Mr. Albert: At this time, your Honor——

Examiner Bennett: It may be plead. Of cours when we come to the respondents' case that is a di ferent proposition.

Mr. Albert: May I point this out, your Hono that if the witnesses presented by the Federal Trad Commission, who certainly are, to say the least biased as against the F.O.G.A., all admit that there is such a thing in the industry as an evil, known as style piracy, that then and in that event it become a grave question for the consideration of the Com mission, as to whether or not the respondent will be 7416 required to make answer to the Commission's charge——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: Does counsel contend that the wit ness showed his bias when he said that that was an evil?

Mr. Albert: No. But, if your Honor pleases, if a witness in J. L. Hudson Company, who h s been red carded——

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Albert: —will admit that there was such a thing as style piracy——

Examiner Bennett: He said it was his opinion, he was not speaking for J. L. Hudson Company.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor please, his opinions have been taken as gospel here by the Federal Trade Commission's attorneys down to this point, so that to suddenly say that he is not qualified, or that his opinion means nothing——

Examiner Bennett: No.

Mr. Albert: That he can only have an opinion on one thing and not another.

Mr. Haycraft: I haven't any quarrel with his 7418 opinion.

Examiner Bennett: We are wasting a whole lot of time. I have told you what my decision is, and I have told you that I was not going to change it at this time.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor. Exception.

Examiner Bennett: You have it in the record. It is there physically and make any use of it you choose.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: I think most of the testimony of this witness upon fashions is wholly at variance with that statement which you made as to his opinion.

7419

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, will you please take Commission's Exhibit 523.

Mr. Martin: If you will give it to him.

(Commission's Exhibit 523 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Touff, will you be good enough to tell me whe you obtained the information that Gillis Gowns, Inc., was Guild house? A. I got that information from the Ne York office.

Q. What do you mean by your New York office? A. the A.M.C. office.

Q. Do you know where they got the information from A. No.

Q. So that aside from the fact that you made inquir of them you have no knowledge of the facts that—as to th fact that Gillis is a Guild house? A. Gillis—no, I hav 7421 not.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that Gilli Gowns, Inc. never has been at any time a member of th Fashion Originators Guild? A. No, I don't know that.

Q. Yet, without checking up on this you have presented this list as an accurate list? A. There is no way of find ing out who belongs to the Guild.

Q. And I assume you got the same information in the same manner with respect to Phyllis Martin, Inc.? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know, as a matter of fact, that Phyllis Martin, Inc., has never been a Guild house? A. No.

Q. Mr. Touff, you relied upon the A.M.C. for your in formation as regards what are and what are not Guild 7422 houses. Did you also make any inquiry from them as to possible sources of supply?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to.

Mr. Albert: We have in here, if it please the Court, a tabulation of sources of supply prepared by this witness. I wanted to get a break-down of that list.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness testified that this list was prepared from the Fairchild Directory and not from anything that the A.M.C. had.

Mr. Albert: If he gets a list from the advertisements appearing in the New York Evening Journal, the Commission wants that and doesn't want the facts brought out as to the other possibilities of preparing a list from more reliable sources or from more inclusive sources?

Mr. Haycraft: Then, I take it, you want to concede for the record that the list prepared by the A.M.C. is more reliable and more conclusive than the Fairchild list which counsel for the respondent, Mr. Weisman, used on more than one occasion in his cross-examination of Commission's witnesses?

Mr. Albert: I don't say that in the least. I don't say that in the least. 7424

Mr. Haycraft: It sounded like it.

Examiner Bennett: You may find out whether he checked the list by any outside source.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you use any other source for your information aside from—what is that?

Mr. Post: Exhibit 524. But that is no list.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you use any other source for compiling Commission's Exhibit 523 than the Fairchild Women's Wear Directory of New York, advanced fall, 1936, being Commission's Exhibit 524 for Identification? A. I don't think so. 7425

Q. Well, don't you know— A. It was made up quite some time ago. I think—I think I used this exclusively (indicating Exhibit 524).

Q. Exclusively? How long ago did you make up that list? A. Oh, about four weeks ago, or more.

Q. Is it at least four weeks ago that you made up th list? A. Yes. There was one correction made on it sin then.

Q. Can it possibly be more? A. Yes, it can possibl be more.

Q. Now, is this list (indicating Commission's Exhib 523) an abstract of the names appearing in Fairchild, o does this list indicate (indicating Commission's Exhibi 523) a repetition of all of the names appearing in Fai child in the various price line? A. They are not classifie by price line in this book.

Q. Mr. Touff, you have here a list of fifteen manufac 7427 turers in the price line $12.75 to $14.75. Are there an additional manufacturers in that price line whose name appear in Fairchild and do not appear on Commission's Exhibit 523 within that price line? A. There are manufacturers who make $12.75 dresses whose names are not on this chart, whose names are in Fairchild's.

Q. Are in Fairchild's? A. Yes.

Q. So that Commission's Exhibit 523 is a selective list of the houses listed in Fairchild's in the various price lines set forth in Commission's Exhibit 523; isn't that so? A. No, that is not so.

Q. How many additional manufacturers in excess of fifteen are there in Commission's Exhibit 524 who are not listed on Commission's Exhibit 523? A. I don't know.

7428 Q. But there are some? A. Yes.

Q. You have no idea of the number? A. No.

Q. Now, in the $16.75 price line there are fourteen houses listed. Have you any idea as to how many additional manufacturers there are in that price line listed in Fairchild's whom you have not listed in Commission's Exhibit 523? A. There are no manufacturers of misses daytime dresses costing—who are generally considered $16.75 houses, or whom I would consider $16.75 houses who are listed in the Fairchild Directory that are not on this page.

Q. So that the total number of $16.75 houses listed in Fairchild's is fourteen? A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. Whom you would consider $16.75? A. I didn't say that, either.

Q. How else did you classify it? A. That I know.

Q. That you know? A. (Witness nods head affirmatively.)

Q. Did you make any inquiry or any investigation from any other list aside from Fairchild's? A. I have been continually making inquiry.

Q. Yes. And from what list did you make inquiry? A. None, specifically.

Q. The only list that you chose was the Fairchild list? 7430
A. That is the list I chose to make this report.

Q. Yes. Now, then, the $16.75 price line, there are seventeen manufacturers set forth. Are there any additional manufacturers named in the Fairchild Directory who are not named in your list, being Commission's Exhibit 523? A. There are no houses making $18.75 to $25 misses' daytime dresses that I know listed in the Fairchild Directory.

Mr. Post: That are not on the list.

The Witness: That are not on my list.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you examine any other directory in an effort to find whether or not there were additional manufacturers 7431 other than those named in your Commission's Exhibit 523?
A. Not for the purposes of making this report.

Q. And is the same true of your $29.75-up column? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of the other columns? A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of the fact that the A.M.C. prepared a list of resources for members of the A.M.C.? A. Yes.

7432 Q. The question is, whether or not Berke-Vogel, liste on the A.M.C. list of $12.75 houses who are not—who we non-Guild members, is contained in your exhibit, Com mission's Exhibit 523?

Mr. Haycraft: Objection to the reference to th Commission's Exhibit 523.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule it for the purpose. I think your statement as to the purpos covers the matter.

A. Berke-Vogel——

7433 By Mr. Albert.

Q. No. Is it listed, Mr. Touff? A. It is not listed.
Q. Is Berke, Press & Berke listed? A. No.
Q. Is Bowdin & Tourmen contained in your list? A. No.
Q. Is Harry Butler contained in your list? A. No.
Q. Is Darny Frocks contained in your list?

Mr. Haycraft: How do you spell that?
Mr. Albert: Darny, D-a-r-n-y.

A. No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is Harry Harston Frock contained in your list? A
7434 Yes.

Q. Is Milton Russell contained in your list? A. Milto Combs Russell.

Q. Yes. A. He is not in this list.

Mr. Haycraft: K-o-h-n?
The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is Konette Frocks contained in your list? A. No.

Q. That was added on? A. Yes. That is, I think it is.

Mr. Haycraft: The answer is "Yes"?

The Witness: The answer is "No."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. All right. Is G. & J. Lipman—no, excuse me. Withdrawn. Is McKenzie & Fine contained in your list? A. No.

Q. Is Mattie Lucille contained in your list? A. No.

Q. Is New York Dress & Costume contained in your list? A. No.

Q. Is Pickwick Dress contained in your list? A No.

Q. Is Rembrandt Frock contained in your list? A. No. 7436

Q. Is Rothbardt Dress contained in your list? A. No.

Q. Is Sackin Lindner contained in your list?

Mr. Haycraft: I have an objection to this whole line of cross-examination, Mr. Examiner?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you have an objection.

Mr. Haycraft: As I said before, it is not intended to be a complete list of all the sources in the country. It is only as to the resources that the witness was familiar with and experienced with.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, that is what we will find out after he gets through. If it doesn't mean anything, why, it doesn't. I want to see.

Mr. Haycraft: What is the last one? 7437

Mr. Albert: Sackin Lindner.

Mr. Haycraft: How do you spell it?

The Witness: S-a-c-k-i-n.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is Normal Stuart contained in your list? A. Yes—No. No.

Q. Is B. Tobias contained in your list? A. No.

Q. Is Weingartner Dress contained in your list? A. No

Q. Is Alexander White contained in your list? A. No

Q. Is Whitmore contained in your list? A. Not in thi list.

Q. Now, all of these dress houses that I have listed that I have named, are contained in the list submitte by the A.M.C. for the use of its buyers for the store connected with the A.M.C.; is that correct? A. Yes.

Examiner Bennett: Were these houses with whic you did business, these houses on the A.M.C. list?

The Witness: Your Honor, most of the house that he has interrogated me about are in the othe

7439 exhibits which I gave at the same time as this one

Examiner Bennett: Oh, I see.

The Witness: And the others I will be examine about later, I think.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right.

Mr. Haycraft: Did you do business with them That is the question the Examiner propounded.

The Witness: I know every single house that h asked me about and I have done business with mo of them.

Examiner Bennett: I see. All right. That i they were included then in your available resource of supply and you still say that your resources wer inadequate?

7440 The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Haycraft: I think, Mr. Examiner, the poi here is they weren't in the price line.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I understand.

Mr. Feldman: They are on the price lines.

The Witness: No, they aren't.

Mr. Feldman: According to the A.M.C. list, the are.

The Witness: According to the A.M.C. list—I mean, according to the list of this time, George, Milton Altmark might be a $12.75 manufacturer, but you know that he isn't, according to this kind of a list.

Mr. Haycraft: In other words, Mr. Examiner, what we are doing here is proving the——

Mr. Post: You mean the A.M.C. list.

Mr. Haycraft: Proving the unreliability of the A.M.C. list, Commission's Exhibit 475 now.

The Witness: No, we aren't proving that, either. Are we off the record or not?

Examiner Bennett: No, you are not off the record. 7442

The Witness: Well——

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess until two for lunch.

(Whereupon, at 12.35 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION. 2 P. M.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed, Mr. Albert.

Mr. Albert: May we have Commission's Exhibit 525? Where is Commission's Exhibit 450? 7443

(Papers handed to counsel.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, you told us that certain of the names of manufacturers who appeared on the A.M.C. list, Commission's Exhibit 450-E, and who do not appear on Commission's Exhibit 523, appear on Commission's Exhibit 525; is that not so? A. Yes.

Q. Now, of those names does Berke-Vogel appear on Commission's Exhibit 525? A. No.

Q. Does Harry Butler appear on Commission's Exhibit 525? A. No.

Q. Does Darny Frocks appear on Commission's Exhibit 525? A. No.

Q. Does McKenzie-Fain appear on Commission's Exhibit 525? A. Well, I don't think it—it does not, no.

Q. Does Rothbart appear on Commission's Exhibit 525? A. No.

Q. Or does Alexander White appear on Commission's Exhibit 525? A. No.

7445 Mr. Albert: Where is Commission's Exhibit 523?

Mr. Martin: Here.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, turning to the fifth column on Commission's Exhibit 523, headed "Misses' Evening." A. Yes.

Q. And comparing with Commission's Exhibit 450 as to a similar heading of the list of manufacturers manufacturing misses' evening dresses, does Eugene Party Frocks appear on Commission's Exhibit 523?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection to this line of examination.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

7446 A. No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does Fashion Dress appear on Commission's Exhibit 523? A. No.

Q. Does George Jackson appear on Commission's Exhibit 523? A. No.

Q. Nor does Novel Dress appear on Commission's Exhibit 523? A. No.

Q. Does Rosetta Gowns appear on Commission's Exhibit 23? A. No.

Mr. Albert: Now, if your Honor pleases, I do not want to take up too much time with this. Does your Honor believe that this is a sufficient cross-section demonstrating the various manufacturers that have been omitted from Commission's Exhibit 523?

Examiner Bennett: I do not think we have had the whole story.

Mr. Albert: No, I mean so far as the market, that——

Examiner Bennett: Well, I know. I think that such as it is we have had plenty of it, but I think 7448 that the vital part of the story, as I understand it, is left out. If you will give me those three documents, I will ask some questions—I may be wholly in error, but I am sort of confused as to the situation, and the confusion arises from this sort of—from this examination.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Is the Fairchild Directory classified as to price lines? A. No, sir.

Q. Who made the classification as to price lines that appear in your list? A. I did.

Q. As taken from the Fairchild Directory, you did? A. Yes. 7449

Q. That is your own price line classification? A. Yes.

Q. Does that price line classification coincide with the price line classification of A.M.C.? A. Well, I will have to explain that, your Honor.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I will have to explain that.

Q. Yes. That is what I wish you would explain. I get the confusion as to— A. Manufacturers are very frequently known as manufacturing dresses of a certain price range.

Q. Yes. A. And we categorize them in the market as a $10.75 manufacturer, or a $16.75 manufacturer. That does not mean that at any time that manufacturer makes only dresses of that price; the bulk of his dresses may be that price, but the $10.75 manufacturer—and I know $10.75 manufacturers who make garments as high as $49.50 cost——

Q. Yes. A. —I would still classify that house as a $10.75 manufacturer because the bulk of his product is $10.75. Now, this list of the A.M.C. that is being continually referred to, certain houses which Mr. Albert has called to my attention in the $12.75 list are really $10.75

7451 manufacturers—at least, I consider them $10.75 manufacturers.

Q. Yes. A. At the time the A.M.C. made that list those manufacturers perhaps had a dress or two dresses or five dresses on their line at $12.75, but I included them on my $10.75 list because that was the bulk of their business.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I see.

The Witness: There are manufacturers in that list who also make other—who are making $10.75 dresses in the spring season, for example, who did not make them when I made my list.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Yes. In other words, you made a list and classify 7452 it in the light of your own requirements as resources? A. My experience with those resources.

Q. Yes. Your experience and your requirements. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it does not necessarily coincide with the A.M.C. list? A. No, sir; because——

Q. Does the A.M.C. list throw any light or enlarge the scope of your resources? A. That is——

Q. In those particular lines, except to the extent that you have indicated now? A. Yes.

Q. That there might be a few dresses? A. Yes, it does change it to the extent that the A.M.C. list to which Mr. Albert referred is a list that was prepared on April 4. I don't know whether you are familiar with it or not, but the mortality in the dress business is notorious.

Q. I see. A. That list is out of date.

Q. I see. I see.

Examiner Bennett: All right. That explains the situation, I think, so far as I am concerned.

By Mr. Albert. 7454

Q. Do you know whether or not the A.M.C. has gotten up a subsequent list, Mr. Touff? A. Yes.

Q. They have gotten one up later than this one? A. Yes.

Q. Have you a copy of it? A. No.

Q. Have you it in your records in the J. L. Hudson store? A. I don't think so.

Q. You merely have heard of the fact that they have gotten one up; is that what you mean? A. No, no. I have seen one.

Q. You have seen one? A. Yes.

Q. Did you use that list? Did you consult that list at all? A. I use the Fairchild Directory. I had to have a standard. 7455

Q. And that is the standard you chose? A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Touff, in the A.M.C. list, being Commission's Exhibit 450, is not each house there listed classified in each department in that list for each price line? Let me put it this way: The A.M.C. list— A. Yes.

Q. —does not classify houses as you have according to their most popular price lines, does it? A. May I see it?

Mr. Martin: There it is right there.

Mr. Albert: Disappeared again.

Examiner Bennett: Here it is.

A. (Continuing) Yes. Practically every house that you have called to my attention as not being on my list at $12.75, that I have explained as on our list at $10.75, is also on this list at $10.75.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What I mean is this, Mr. Touff: If a house manufactures $10.75 dresses, $12.75 dresses, $14.75 dresses and 7457 $16.75 dresses, then that house is on that list under each one of those price lines; is that not so? A. On this list, yes.

Q. So that if a name appears on the A.M.C. list which does not appear on your choice of names which you have taken from the Fairchild Directory, then you have not included any name from the A.M.C. list regardless of its price line?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection. I think the witness has made clear what he has done. You can find out from him by asking him directly as to whether those A.M.C. list make his supply adequate—the resources.

7458

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Touff, can you make an estimate of the number of names that appear in the Fairchild Directory from which you chose the manufacturers set forth in Commission's Exhibit 523? A. No.

Q. Would you say that there are approximately 1800 names listed in that directory? A. You might say so, but I would not.

Q. Would you say that there was less than a thousand?
A. I wouldn't say anything about it; I couldn't.
Q. Have you any idea on it? A. No.
Q. Assuming that there are approximately 1500 names set forth in that directory, do we understand you correctly to say that of that number, without binding you that there are 1500, that whatever that number is, only 167 are available to you as resources, the 167 being the number of houses that are set forth in Commission's Exhibit 523?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection. He may answer.

7460

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, in your opinion; that is all I want to know.
A. Now, let us see. 167 are on the one list; is that right?
Q. That is right. I am referring to Commission's Exhibit 523. A. That of the 1500, or approximately, that there are in this book, only 167 of them make a price merchandise that I classified?
Q. Right. A. To the best of my knowledge, yes.

Mr. Albert: That is all I wanted to know.

Examiner Bennett: Let us see that book, please.

(Counsel hands Commission's Exhibit 523 to the Examiner.)

7461

Mr. Haycraft: That is in the price lines in that exhibit.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: Your witness, Mr. Haycraft.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You made a statement on cross-examination, Mr. Touff, as to who contributed novelty ideas to adaptations style trends, and you were asked whether the members of the Guild did more than the non-Guild members, and you said that they both did. Was that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What is your explanation of your answer?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as improper redirect, calling for the conclusion of the witness. All that we are interested in is the fact—all I asked him about was the fact, and not an explanation of what he meant by it.

Mr. Haycraft: You asked for an opinion. I am asking for the explanation of the opinion. Perfectly proper.

Examiner Bennett: What is the pending question?

7463 (Question read.)

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may answer. Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

A. Well, I believe that both Guild and non-Guild members take any particular fashion or any particular style, give it their own interpretation by changing it somewhat, by changing the ornaments, changing the decoration very slightly, making it their own dress. I don't think that there is any greater tendency among the Guild houses to do this than there are among the non-Guild houses to do the same thing.

7464 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You were asked about whether Miss Kirby was a designer for the Fried Company in 1935. I will ask you whether or not the fact that Miss Kirby was employed as a designer by the Fried Company had anything to do with your increasing any of your business with that company in the beginning of the year 1936?

7465

Mr. Albert: If it will help the witness, I will object to the question as improper redirect, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection.

A. Well——

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think the witness needs any assistance.

A. (Continuing) Well, it did indirectly. It was not her ability as a designer that interested us as much as it was the use of the name.

7466

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, with respect to Commission's Exhibit 523, which has been the subject of cross-examination, you were asked a number of questions with respect to houses that were not listed in the $12.75 list on that exhibit. A. Yes, sir.

Q. For instance, Berke-Vogel. Why did you not include Berke-Vogel in that list? A. Because Berke-Vogel is out of business.

Q. Why did you not include Harry Butler? A. Because Harry Butler was making sport dresses in the spring season and is at best a blouse house, a shirt house, to the best of my knowledge is not making dresses this fall. At least, dress department dresses. He may be making a new sport department dresses.

7467

Q. Milton Schlussel?

Mr. Albert: Milton Kohn Schlussel.

A. Milton Schlussel was on my $10.75 list.

Q. McKenzie-Fine? A. I didn't include them because they are out of business.

Q. Rothbart? A. I left Rothbart off by accident. It was a mistake.

Q. Alex White? A. Alexander White is a sportswear house.

Q. Now, the other dresses to which your attention was called are included in the $10.75—your $10.75 list. I will call them to you if you will refer to it. A. Yes, sir.

Q. $10.75 list. Berke, Press & Berke? A. That was included.

Q. Bowden & Toumen? A. They are included.

Q. Konette? A. Konette was included.

Q. New York Dress? A. Was included.

7469 Q. Mattie Lucille? A. Included.

Q. Pickwick? A. Pickwick.

Q. Rembrandt? A. Was included.

Mr. Albert: Do you want the list of those that were not included, Mr. Haycraft?

The Witness: I think I have it right here.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, all the rest of the names were mentioned. Were they included in your $10.75 list with the rest of them that counsel mentioned listed in your $10.75 list? How about Eugene Party Frocks? A. Out of business.

Q. Fashion? A. They make women's evening dresses which I don't buy.

7470 Q. George Jacobson? A. George Jacobson makes wedding dresses. I don't buy them.

Q. Novel Dress Company? A. Novel Dress Company is a wedding dress resource. I didn't list them.

Q. Rosette Gowns? A. Rosette Gowns? I think that is R-o-s-e-t-t-e.

Mr. Albert: Yes.

The Witness: Is a junior house, a junior affiliate.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Touff, when you say that one of the houses mentioned makes a wedding dress, do you mean that they make a wedding dress exclusively? A. That exhibit is headed "Daytime Dresses."

Q. Yes. But it doesn't appear anywheres on your list, does it? A. I made no list of evening dresses because Department 339 is apparently not in question and I don't buy for that department. There are no wedding dresses or no evening houses on that list at all, on the $10.75 list, Mr. Post.

Mr. Post: Oh. 7472

Q. That particular house isn't listed anywheres, including under "Misses' Evening" or "Women's Evening," is it? A. No.

Q. So that when you say it is not listed under "$10.75"—A. If that house were to be listed, Mr. Albert, it would have to be listed under $10.75 on this list, in the $10.75 classification, and this is a daytime classification.

Q. In other words, it is merely your judgment that these houses do not make a sufficient number of $12.75 evening dresses and that you have included them solely in the $10.75; is that it? A. I haven't included the house at all.

Q. Mr. Touff, do not the houses which you have defined as sport houses also make a tailored dress for the afternoon? A. I would say the most departments of our type, of Department 369, are unsuccessful with retailing the kind of a dress that those manufacturers make because it is too simple, too set, and those things are much better or much more profitably retailed in a sports shop. 7473

Q. Now, you say you left Rothbart off your list by mistake? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it possible that you have been in error with respe to omitting other names? A. I don't—I have done my be to be conscientious, to present a real picture.

Q. Well, is it fair for me to ask you and for you t answer that since you have admitted that you have mad a mistake in omitting one name, do you recognize th possibility that you have perhaps omitted other name despite the fact that you have made a conscientious effor that— A. I will admit that if you will admit that I hav got a pretty high batting percentage.

Q. That remains to be seen, Mr. Touff, after we prese our lists.

7475 Examiner Bennett? Overruled.

A. To render the declaration profitable.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Why did you sign up again? A. To be able to bu from the Guild resources.

Mr. Haycraft: That is all. I ask for an adjour ment to 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, as the wi ness referred to by this witness as being famili with the details of the dress business, and partic larly with respect to the cause of the red cardi and the situation at that time and the names the resources of the dress department is in Ne 7476 York to-day and will not be back until to-morro morning.

At the time I put Mr. Kern on I had been l to believe that he could testify as to those thing but apparently did not because he was not famili with the details sufficiently to do so; that he willing to have Miss Patterson here to-morro morning at 10 o'clock and I should like to have adjournment until that time.

Examiner Bennett: Well, under the circumstances I am going to deny the motion and we will adjourn to resume in room 1123 in Chicago at 10 A. M. on Monday.

Mr. Albert: 1123. What building is that?

Examiner Bennett: 1123 New Post Office Building.

Mr. Albert: Thank you.

Examiner Bennett: And I do it because I think that the prospects are that the Commission will get no useful testimony out of these witnesses.

(Whereupon, at 3.15 o'clock P. M., August 21, 1936, the hearing in the above entitled matter was adjourned.) 7478

Room 1123, New Post Office Building,
433 West Van Buren Street,
Chicago, Illinois,

August 24, 1936.

(Met, pursuant to notice, 9 o'clock A. M., C. S. T.)

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

APPEARANCES:

E. F. HAYCRAFT, Esq., and R. J. MARTIN, Esq., appearing for the Federal Trade Commission.

M. A. ALBERT, Esq., GEORGE FELDMAN, Esq., and HERBERT S. KELLER, Esq., appearing for the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc. 7479

WILSON & MCILVAINE, by J. H. S. LEE, JR., Esq. (120 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois), appearing for Marshall Field & Company.

BEN. J. ALTHEIMER, Esq., and ALAN J. ALTHEIMER, Esq. (10 South LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois), appearing for Henry W. Wyzanski, witness.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

This is a reconvening of hearing from Detroit, Mic gan, on Friday, August 21, 1936.

Mr. Haycraft: Has the witness been sworn?

HENRY N. WYZANSKI was thereupon called as a witn for the Commission, and, having been first duly swo testified as follows:

7481

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Will you give your full name to the Court, plea A. Henry N. Wyzanski.

Mr. Feldman: It sounds like a Boston name

The Witness: It is Boston.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Wyzanski? A. 3500 L Shore Drive, Chicago.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Merchant.

Q. Where are you employed? A. Mandel Brothe State Street, Chicago.

7482

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, at t time I respectfully request that all prospective w nesses be excluded from the hearing room.

Mr. Haycraft: I do not have any that I know Are there any witnesses here for the Federal Tr Commission hearing?

Examiner Bennett: I think there are none. there any any, why, I will ask any persons w have been called as a witness for the Federal Trade Commission to please retire to the next room.

Mr. Martin: Any witnesses in the Van Ogden case? I guess not.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is your occupation with Mandel Brothers? A. Merchandise manager of the upstairs ready-to-wear, millinery, furs, silks and synthetic fabrics, and the basement store.

Q. How long have you had that position? A. Why, I have been merchandise manager of the basement since February 1, 1929, and assumed the upstairs functions early in September, 1934. 7484

Q. What are your duties in the position that you hold? A. I consider my duties to be the increasing of the sales and the profits.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, may we have the question answered, not what he considers his duties, but what his duties are?

Mr. Haycraft: Well, I think that is good enough. A man considers his duties—his interpretation of them, that is what I want.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Go ahead.

The Witness: I consider my duties to be the increasing of the sales and the profits of the things under my supervision, by the formulating of a policy consistent with the store policy, and getting together the best possible organization for the carrying out of that policy and aiding that organization by any help that I can give them in the carrying out of that policy. 7485

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are the buyers of the merchandise in those departments under your supervision? A. They are.

Q. The sales force as well? A. No, the sales force is under the service end of the business.

Q. But the buyers are under you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have separate, or distinct departments under your supervision in the dress departments and in the basement? A. Yes, I do.

Q. How are the departments arranged over which you have charge—take the upstairs store, for instance? A. Do you mean by number?

7487 Q. By number, if they are numbered, and by name if they have a name, also. A. Department 5 is "Misses' Better Dresses, $25 and up."

Mr. Albert: Is that retail or wholesale?

The Witness: Retail, except in the summer, when they go down to $15 in cotton dresses. The same applies to Department 38, which is "Women's Better Dresser." Department 81 is "Misses' Dresses, $15 to $29." Department——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is this wholesale or retail? A. Retail.

Q. All right. A. Department 84 is "Misses' Dresses," carrying the same prices. Both those departments go down

7488 to $12.95 in the summer season. We have Department 35, which is $8.95 to $12.95 dresses, which goes down to $5.95 in the summer season, and up, occasionally has gone down to $3.95 in cotton dresses, in the summer season.

Mr. Albert: What is that department?

The Witness: Dresses.

Mr. Albert: Will you be good enough to find out, Mr. Haycraft, what that is—women's?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Women's dresses?

Mr. Albert (continuing): —junior, misses'——

The Witness: Women's—I mean, women's and misses' dresses. We have Department 78, which is the junior department, carrying regular dresses from $8.95 up to $39, and in the summer goes to $[illegible].95 on silk or acetate dresses, and $3.95 on cotton dresses. We have the sports department, Department 49, which carries dresses from $5.95 up to—upon occasion—$59. In the summer, it goes as low at $2.95 on cotton dresses. In the basement store, 7490 we have Department 103, which carries misses' dresses up to $12.95, and Department 115, which carries women's dresses equally as high.

Mr. Albert: Is 115 also in the basement?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know where the dresses are bought that are sold in those departments under your supervision? A. Why, I know our leading resources, I wouldn't say that I know every one of them.

Examiner Bennett: Do you mean in what cities?

By Mr. Haycraft: 7491

Q. Do you know where they are located, the leading resources? A. Yes, I know where they are located.

Q. Where are they located? A. In New York, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Los Angeles.

Q. Now, out of these various markets that you have described, which one, would you say, was the principal market? A. New York.

Q. Why is that true? A. I would say because the largest number of manufacturers whose goods sell readily in our store, are located in New York.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. To what class of trade does your store cater? A. Medium to better.

Mr. Albert: Medium to what?

The Witness: Medium to better, in the upstairs store and volume trade in the basement.

7493 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Inc.? A. As it affects our store.

Q. When did you first learn of the existence of that organization? A. I would say some time in the spring of 1933.

Q. How did it come to your attention? A. There were various discussions in our store as to whether or not we should co-operate with this guild in the way they wanted us to.

Q. And with whom were those discussions had? A. I believe with our management and——

Q. Do you recall the names of the individuals that were in on the discussion? A. Leon Mandel and Mr. Post.

Q. Mr. Albert M. Post? A. Yes.

7494 Q. Was Mr. Post with the store at Mandels in 1932 when you assumed the duties in the basement store? A. I don't believe so, I think it was 1939, I am not positive.

Q. How long did he continue with Mandel Brothers? A. I believe it was four years.

Q. What was his position there? A. Merchandise manager of the upstairs ready-to-wear and intimate apparel.

Q. You succeeded him? A. I did.

Q. What was the outcome of these discussions that you referred to? A. The outcome was that we should sign the declaration of co-operation with the Guild with a rider attached to it, to the effect——

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to any description of any written document that is not in evidence.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have a copy of this declaration of co-operation, or the rider that you refer to? A. Our attorney has.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you produce it, please? 7496

(Mr. Altheimer hands paper to Mr. Haycraft.)

Mr. Haycraft (indicating): I show you Commission's Exhibits 527-A and B, and ask you if you can identify those two sheets of paper?

(The papers referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 527-A and B for Identification.)

The Witness: I don't follow what you mean by "identify."

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you identify it? Do you know what it is? A. I know what they are, yes.

Q. All right, what are they? A. 527-A is a declaration of co-operation in anti-piracy between Mandel Brothers and the Fashion Originators Guild and—— 7497

Q. Is it dated? A. No.

Q. All right. A. And 527-B is a letter, copy of a letter of June 23, 1933, to the Fashion Oirignators Guild signed by Mandel Brothers.

Q. Who signed the original of that letter? A. Mr. Post.

Q. Albert M. Post? A. Yes.

7498 Henry N. Wyzanski—For Commission—Direct.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the exhibits which have just been identified.

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibits 527-A and B, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the date of the letter you just identified? A. June 23rd, I believe.

Q. 1933? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

7499 Examiner Bennett: Received.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I call your attention to paragraph two of Commission's Exhibit No. 527-B, which says that "In signing this we are calling attention to the two reservations which were discussed at our meeting, and wish to stipulate that this declaration is approved with these reservations." What meeting did that refer to? Do you know where this conference was held, that is referred to in this letter?

Mr. Albert: I object to the question as immaterial.

The Witness: No, I don't.

Examiner Bennett: Do you want to ask him

7500 about anything that is in that letter, that is in practice, afterwards, as to whether it was used, and he knows? It is all right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, in the first of these reservations, one, that it applied only to the upstairs store, I will ask you whether or not you were present when a discussion was had with respect to that reservation?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, the witness has already testified he was not there.

Mr. Haycraft: No, he hasn't anything of the kind.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

The Witness: I was present at the meetings in our store when it was discussed.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Yes. All right. Why was that reservation made?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, the exhibit speaks for itself. 7502

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Why was that reservation—question please.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Because it was contrary to the policy of our basement store not to have copies. The principle of our basement store is "Fashion at a price." It is a slogan which we have long had, and we feel that a buying motive of style merchandise in our establishment is one known as economical emulation. Mrs. Jones wants what Mrs. Astor has, and she cannot afford to pay the price that Mrs. Astor pays; therefore, she wants the closest approximation of it at the price she can afford to pay, and such a declaration of co-operation with the Guild would be inconsistent with the policy of our basement store, which has long been established. 7503

Q. Now, the second reservation: "If any manufacturer refuses to accept the return of any merchandise sent to him for violation of the Warranty Clause, we reserve the right of decision regarding its final disposal. If it is necessary for us to reaccept this goods and sell it, such sale shall not be termed a violation of this declaration." I will ask you whether or not the subject-matter of that reservation was discussed at meetings in the Mandel store, which you attended? A. I was not present at those meetings.

Q. You were not present at those meetings? A. I don't recall being there.

Q. In other words, meetings which you were present at involved the basement store policy? A. Yes.

Q. Over which you had jurisdiction at that time, is that correct? A. That is correct.

7505

Q. Now, in the declaration of co-operation itself, Commission's Exhibit No. 527-A, reference is made to a certain clause which for the want of a better name we can refer to as the warranty clause; are you familiar with that? A. Yes, I am.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 498-A, and ask you if you can identify in any way the stamp on that, the warranty stamp on that exhibit? A. Yes, I can identify it.

Q. Is that the stamp—is that the language of the stamp used by your store on orders? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what was the custom, in what way, rather, did Mandel Brothers comply with the declaration of co-operation as to the placing of such warranty stamp on orders?

7506

A. That is, placed them on orders when we had bought merchandise from manufacturers.

Q. Now, beginning with June, 1933, after June 23rd, 1933, on what orders was such stamp placed? A. On dress orders.

Q. With what class of manufacturers? Well, did you place it on all orders, for instance, did you place it on basement store orders at that time? A. We did not place it on basement store orders at that time, no.

Q. All right. That was covered by the reservation. Did there ever come a time——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask that Mr. Haycraft's last statement that that was covered by the reservation, be stricken out. I think it is about time that Mr. Haycraft ceases to testify.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, I will ask the witness—what was the reason for not placing it on orders placed for the basement store? A. Because, according to the rider of our original—articles of co-operation—we did not have to put it on basement orders. 7508

Q. Did a time ever come when you had to put it on basement orders? A. Yes, we did.

Q. When did that time come? A. It was in the early fall of 1935.

Q. What was the occasion? A. The Guild declared that in keeping with our declaration of co-operation we would have to put it on all orders, despite the fact that we had this rider making it apply only to the upstairs store.

Q. Was that declaration or requirement in writing, or orally? A. In a bulletin from the Guild.

Q. Do you have that bulletin with you? A. I believe we do.

7509

Mr. Altheimer: What date, do you know?

Mr. Haycraft: What date?

The Witness: I think we had one around November, saying that it should be on all orders.

(Thereupon Mr. Altheimer hands a paper to Mr. Haycraft.)

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 528-A and B, for Identification.)

(Mr. Albert picks up the exhibit just marked Commission's Exhibit 528-A and B.)

Mr. Haycraft: It has not been identified yet.

Mr. Post: It is already in evidence, is it?

Mr. Albert: Sure.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 528-A and B, and ask you if you can identify them?

Examiner Bennett: What is it?

The Witness: It is a bulletin from the Fashion
7511 Originators Guild of America stating that among other things that——

Mr. Albert: No.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do not describe it, just give us the date. A. November 6, 1935, addressed to Mandel Brothers.

Q. Signed by? A. Signed by Fashion Originators Guild, Albert M. Post.

Q. Albert M. Post was then director? A. Executive director.

Q. That is the same Albert M. Post who was at one time merchandise manager of Mandel Brothers? A. Yes.

Q. And the same man that made the reservations in 7512 Commission's Exhibits 527-A and B? A. That is right.

Mr. Feldman: 1933?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, did you discuss this matter with Mr. Post, this putting of the warranty stamp on all orders including the basement store? A. I don't recall any such discussion.

Q. Well, since November 6th, 1935, have you been placing the stamp on all basement orders? A. Yes, we have.

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, can you testify as to the percentage of merchandise, source of merchandise resources for your upstairs store, that consists of members of the Guild, Guild manufacturers? A. I cannot testify as to the percentage of manufacturers. I can testify as to the percentage of goods that we used in 1935 in the Guild price lines and the percentage that came from Guild resources?

Q. What percentage is that?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, that is objected to, unless we know upon what figures the witnes bases his estimate. I do not think the Court is interested in knowing or hearing what the witness thinks he can tell us about it. 7514

Mr. Martin: He did not say that.

Mr. Haycraft: I have qualified that.

Mr. Albert: What study he has made of it, if it please the Court—we are now even omitting the very varied proposition that Mr. Haycraft has of asking the witness "Have you made a study" and when he says "yes" that he has made a study, we get the answer without knowing what he has studied, at least let Mr. Haycraft ask him whether he has made a study of it.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Mr. Bennett: Give us your best knowledge.

The Witness: What is it? 7515

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead.

Examiner Bennett: Give us your best knowledge. Read the question.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: 61.4 per cent. of the merchandise we used in 1935 in Guild price lines, came from houses—members of the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you include in the Guild prices—what price range? A. $10.75 and up.

Q. Cost? A. Cost.

Q. You did not include the lower price lines as mentioned in Commission's Exhibit No. 528-A? A. No, because many of them are not members of the Guild this year.

Q. I see. Now, had there been a discussion, or correspondence, between you and the Guild with respect to the inclusion of the lower-priced manufacturers and the return of goods by the basement stores prior to November 7517 1, 1935? A. I wrote Mr. Post a letter, I believe it was—it was in the fall or September, 1935, I think it was in September, telling him that it would be a hardship on our basement store, and asking him for his best advice.

Q. How long then had it been that they had been asking you to co-operate to that extent? A. Beginning with the fall season of 1935. I place it some time in July or August, 1935.

Q. What was that requirement at that time? A. That we place——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, that is objected to unless we have the correspondence to which the witness is referring.

7518 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you have some of that correspondence? A. I have a letter to Mr. Post.

Mr. Altheimer: To or from?

The Witness: To Mr. Post.

(Thereupon paper was marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 529.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 529, and ask you if that is the letter you have in mind? A. That is the letter I have in mind.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer in evidence Commission's Exhibit No. 529.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. The original of that letter was sent to Mr. Post, was it? A. That is correct.

Q. Who at that time was representing the Guild, was he? A. That is right. 7520

Q. That is, he was executive director of the Guild? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 529, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you get any reply to that letter? A. I did.

Q. Do you have that here also this morning? A. I do.

(Witness produces paper.)

(The paper referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 530 for Identification.) 7521

Mr. Albert: No objection, if it please the Court, except for the pencil notations and underlined parts in pencil that appear on the letter, which did not originally appear on it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, they may be eliminated. It is received with the understanding that notations made thereon and markings may be eliminated.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, it is perfectly all right with us.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 530-A to E, inclusive, was received in evidence. Being a letter of September 18, 1935, to Henry Wyzanski on the letterhead of the Fashion Originators Guild, signed by Albert M. Post.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

7523 Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, I believe you started to say that you had discussions on this matter as early as July and August, 1935, is that correct? A. No, I did not say discussions.

Q. What was it, correspondence or—was there any more correspondence on this besides what you have stated? A. No.

Q. It says in this first paragraph of Commission's Exhibit No. 529 from you to Mr. Post: "You will remember that when we spoke about not having copies of Guild Dresses in our Subway, you said that we would have an understanding that you would be most lenient with basement stores because, as you yourself said, they must meet competition." Now, what did you refer to there when 7524 you said "When we spoke about not having copies of Guild dresses" when you quoted Mr. Post? A. It must have been a discussion that we had on the subject; I do not recall what it was.

Q. But do you recall the discussion at all? A. No, I can't say that I do.

Q. Now, the next paragraph you refer to the style of 515 from Solo. Who is Solo? A. Basement resource.

Q. And that is not a member of the Guild? A. No.

Q. Do you recall what cost price that dress was? A. No, I don't.

Q. Now, I notice you name Carters, Gaylords, Pages, Graysons, who were they? A. Chain shops in Chicago.

Q. When you say you returned style 799 through D. R. A. Who was D. R. A.? A. Basement Dress Resource.

Q. Not a member of the Guild? A. No.

Q. What does the D. R. A. stand for? A. That I don't know; it is the name of a firm.

Mr. Post: Probably Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Witness: Daughters of the American Revolution, probably, Mr. Post says. 7526

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Then you refer to style 943 from Varsity; is that also a non-member? Of the Guild? A. Yes.

Q. When you used the language "best selling dresses" what did you have in mind there? A. Best selling dresses, that would be dresses in—dresses selling fast.

Q. Do you recollect as to how fast these dresses were selling? A. I don't have any recollection now, no.

Q. When you say "we have hurt the Subway's business" in what way did it hurt the Subway's business?

Mr. Albert: I object to the question, if your Honor please, no proper foundation has been laid as to any study, or analysis, or comparison of figures this man has made to enable him to reach a conclusion as is asked for. 7527

Mr. Haycraft: I do not think it is necessary.

Mr. Albert: Oh, yes.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: What was the question, please?

(Last question read.)

The Witness: By returning dresses that were selling fast, instead of being able to keep them in stock and selling them, we were missing potential sales, and furthermore, by not being able to re-order them we were losing further sales.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, the first paragraph of Mr. Post's reply, Commission's Exhibit No. 530-A to E, mentioning a man by the name of Johnny Groff—who is he? A. Head of our New York office.

7529 Q. You have an office in New York, do you? A. Yes, we do.

Q. Mention is also made of Weintraub—who is he? A. At that time he was divisional merchandise manager of the basement store, under me.

Q. In the third paragraph, I find this language: "Our position is that we will consider any request for exception of a specific model, but only with substantiating evidence of any claims. In such cases we expect the store to co-operate by removing the garments immediately from sale pending an investigation as to the existence of the same dresses in unsigned stores." I will ask you whether or not that policy was thereafter followed by your store in co-operation with the Guild? A. Yes, we followed that policy.

Q. What was the basis for an exception of a specific 7530 model?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court; the letter speaks for itself.

Mr. Haycraft: I am asking him not for the letter, but what the basis was that the store actually followed, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, followed in practice?

Mr. Haycraft: In practice.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Be more specific than the letter. Objection overruled.

The Witness: I don't recall any exceptions.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, I did not hear the answer.

The Witness: I don't recall any exceptions.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you recall any attempt to get exceptions, to get a model excepted from the requirements to be returned? It says here "We will consider any request for exception of a specific model." A. Well, whenever the Guild shopper pointed out we had what she said was a copy, we would 7532 always ask her for proof.

Q. And if she furnished proof, then what did you do? A. Immediately returned the dresses, we took them off sale upon her calling it to our attention, and then we returned them when we found out—when she had proved that they were copies.

Q. Well, did you make any investigation among your chain store competitors to see whether or not that model was being sold by them?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, that is objected to as to form, as being a leading question.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: May I have the question? 7533

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Yes, we did, as outlined in our letter to Mr. Post, they were on sale at chain stores. We found that they were on sale at chain stores.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When you found that they were on sale at chain stores, what was the practice? What did you do then?

A. We abided by the Guild's decision, and took them off sale. That is the reason for my complaint.

Q. You returned the models to the manufacturer? A. Yes, yes, we did.

Q. Did you ever make any request for an exception, as indicated in the paragraph I read to you a while ago?

Mr. Albert: That is objected, if it please the Court. The witness has previously testified he never did. That is why we have had seven or eight questions that have followed that answer in an attempt by Mr. Haycraft to lead the witness.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

7535

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Who was the shopper in the Chicago area? A. Miss Kindler.

Q. On page four of this letter from Mr. Post, there is a mention made of Miss Popel, who is she? A. She was the dress buyer for those basement departments at that time.

Q. In the third paragraph, third completed paragraph of this letter, there appears the statement: "We will ask our representative not to continue what we call 'open shopping.'" What does that mean? What does that refer to?

Mr. Albert: If the witness knows, your Honor.

7536

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, what is your interpretation of it.

Mr. Albert: We are not interested in his interpretation, if it please the Court. We want to know what it means, not what he thinks it means.

Mr. Haycraft: I am interested in what this witness' interpretation is, he received the letter.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, he may answer.

The Witness: Continuous shopping of our department in an endeavor to find Guild copies.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Was that, as a matter of fact, discontinued at that time? A. I believe it was for a short period.

Q. Do you remember how long? A. No, but I think it was around two to three weeks.

Q. After two or three weeks, did Miss Kindler continue to shop in your department? A. Oh, yes, we have had returns from the basement since then to the Guild, because of her shopping. 7538

Q. Who is the other shopper besides Miss Kindler?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, there is no testimony here that there is another shopper.

Mr. Haycraft: All right. I am reading from the last paragraph on page four of this letter, Commission's Exhibit No. 530. "We are now employing two shoppers in Chicago."

The Witness: I don't know.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you know who the other shopper was? A. I don't.

Q. Do you belong to the Michigan Avenue Guild, local Guild, Mr. Wyzanski? A. We do not. 7539

Q. Have you ever been requested to subscribe funds to defray the expenses of the shoppers in Chicago, on the part of the Guild? A. We have, we have been requested.

Q. Have you complied with that? A. No, we have not.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, what has been your experience in complying with the requirements of the Guild in returning copies to non-Guild manufacturers, subsequent to September 1, 1935, the date of this letter, September 18th.

Mr. Albert: May we have that question a little more definite, your Honor? It opens up a wide field, and I would like to be able to make an objection as to what the witness is going to answer. I think Mr. Haycraft can—if he has various subdivisions of the question, can very readily ask him each one first.

Examiner Bennett: Have you in mind something specific you want to bring out?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, I will ask him first, whether or not Mandel
7541 Brothers has always returned garments which the Guild claims to be copies of styles of Guild manufacturers? A. Yes, we have always returned from our store Guild—copies of Guild dresses.

Q. Do you have an opinion as to the effect that that practice has had upon the business of your basement store, since that time? A. I have a definite opinion that it has hurt us.

Q. In what way has it hurt you? A. Because it is contrary to the policy of our basement store, which is to give fashion at a price, and we are not keeping faith with our customers in doing that, to the fullest extent, because we are not able to give them the closest approximation to what they want at the price they want to pay; therefore, I feel we have hurt our business. In addition, there has 7542 been certain best selling numbers which we have been forced to discontinue selling and have not been able to re-order. That is evidence of that.

Q. Has that had an effect upon your ability to compete with retail stores that are not co-operating with the Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, absolutely no foundation laid for that question, as to what his competitors are doing, and what his ability is to compete.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: We believe that if chain stores have copies of Guild dresses, as we know they have had from our various shoppers, and we don't have them, that we will not get the fullest amount of business because we are not carrying out our policy of giving fashion at a price.

Q. Do you have in mind any particular instance where this has been proved, since, say, September 1, 1935? A. In the basement store, none other than those quoted in that letter, but we have had many returns to the Guild, so I assume that is a common practice. 7544

Q. Well, has it affected at all any of your price lines in your other stores—other departments? A. Yes, I believe that in our lower-priced departments upstairs we have been hurt by not having Guild copies.

Q. Do you have any illustrations of that? A. We have one that I can remember, late this spring.

Q. What was that? A. We had a large order with a manufacturer for 2500 dresses, placed to meet the business we had with that manufacturer last year, when we sold some 6,000 of his dresses in June, and at the time the dresses started to arrive in the store Miss Kindler called to our attention the fact that one was a Guild copy. So we had to return that dress, which we did, and canceled all others of that particular style that were on order. 7545 In canceling that style, as well as returning those which we had received, it broke up our assortment, because this was a one-piece style, and in order to keep our assortment balanced from a customer viewpoint we had to cut down—we felt we had to cut down some of the dresses that were on order in two-piece styles, to keep the assortment in balance. In so doing, we canceled a great many dresses, and, as a result, did not secure the business until such time as we obtained permission from the Guild to carry the dresses. That was an exception in the upstairs store, that we secured.

Q. Then you did secure an exception in the upstairs store? A. Yes, we did.

Q. Although you never have in the basement, is that correct? A. No, I don't recall any in the basement.

Q. Now, after this instance you have just now referred to, where you had to—do you know how many actual dresses were returned, or how many dresses were canceled, pursuant to that?

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, I did not understand
7547 the question. May I have it read?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Haycraft: Pursuant to the instructions from the Guild.

The Witness: Originally, 1100 dresses out of the 2500 ordered.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. With whom did you take up the matter in trying to get an exception on that return? A. That was taken up by the New York office. I took it up first with our New York office, who took it up with Mr. Post, and they were unsuccessful in securing an exception, and I sent Mr. Post a wire.

7548 Q. Do you have that telegram here present in the court room? A. I believe we have.

Q. Telegram to Mr. Post. What date was that? A. I think it was June 11th, 12th, or around there.

(Whereupon a telegram was marked for Identification Commission's Exhibit 531-A and B.)

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 31-A and B, and ask you if you can identify that? A. es.

Q. What is it? A. It is a wire that I sent to Mr. Post.

Q. When?

Examiner Bennett: Date?

The Witness: On June 12th, saying that——

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. 1936?

Mr. Albert: Never mind what it says. 7550

Mr. Haycraft: All right. I offer it in evidence.

y Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Is this the telegram you have in mind in your testi-ony just now (indicating)? A. Yes.

Mr. Keller: What year?

Mr. Haycraft: 1936.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The telegram referred to, heretofore marked for Identification Commission's Exhibits 531-A and 531-B, was received in evidence.)

7551

Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, after sending this telegram, did you get any ply to it from Mr. Post? A. I got a telephone call.

Q. How long after you sent the telegram, did he call you the telephone? A. I believe it was the same day.

Q. What did Mr. Post tell you on that occasion? A. told us that it had been a mistake in New York, that Harris thing had broken, and that it was a misunderstanding with Sterns Brothers in New York, and, th

furthermore, he did not feel that the situation was co parable in Chicago, where we had the line exclusively, a people in various stores in New York had it and need it in order to meet competition, and I brought out t point that we had competition with our own figures. W had sold 6,000 of the dresses last year, in that month, a we had made plans to sell many this year, and that were not meeting our sales of last year, or our potenti sales figures, and that consequently it was working hardship on us. I felt that—I told him that we were wi ing to co-operate with the Guild as much as anybody el 7553 was, but that we wanted the same privilege that eve other Guild store had, and that we did not see why should be singled out in Chicago and compared wi
Sterns and Wannamakers and Loesers and Frankl
Simon, and stores like that in New York, and stores other cities throughout the country, which were membe of the Guild, but which were carrying these dresses, b cause the Guild shopper evidently had not detected the at those stores. And, after a long discussion which had over the phone, upon our saying that we would ma it very clear to Mr. Harris that we did not want to b copies in the future, Mr. Post gave us the privilege of car ing these copies.

Q. Harris was the manufacturer? A. Yes.

Q. Well, did he allow you to place any re-orders?

7554 Yes.

Q. He allowed you to complete this sale, at that tim
A. Oh, yes.

Q. How long were these dresses off sale? A. My origi wire to the New York office asking them to see Mr. P about it was on style 809; the first style which caused the big cancellation, and that was on May 14th. And telephone conversation with Mr. Post was, I believe,
June 12th, in answer to this wire, so that 809, the st

for which we had the most on order, was off sale for more than a month. By the time we got it in again, and in addition to which we had styles 813 and 829 coming into our store for an "ad" on a Tuesday morning, which was around that period, the middle of June, and on Monday, when we were going to O.K. the "ad" on these dresses, we got a notice from the Guild, a sketch showing style 813 as a copy, so we immediately took style 813, which we had just received, off sale, and changed our "ad" from a two cut "ad," to a one cut "ad," and ran style order 809, showing that we were still co-operating completely with the Guild.

Q. Now then, when did you place that back on sale? A. 7556
Well, I think we received shipment on these dresses around the 20th of June.

Q. Then did you continue to sell them, for how long a period? A. We still have them on sale, and we have sold over 6,600 of them, despite the fact that we started out selling beyond the peak of the season.

Q. Would you say those were hot numbers? A. I would say they were the hottest thing in summer dresses, and our sales passed the peak of the season, which would seem to indicate that our original plans of buying 2500 originally, so that we could more than double last year's sales, shows that our plans were correct, otherwise we would never have been able to sell that many past the peak of the season.

Q. What was the difference between those dresses and 7557 the dresses that you sold the year before, manufactured by the same manufacturer? A. They were of a different fabric, and styles were somewhat different.

Q. How long have you been selling those particular numbers in your store, 809, 813? A. Well, we really did not have a chance to sell 809. It was in, I would say, not more than two days before the Guild shopper caught it, and that led to our original return and cancellation and our wire to the New York office.

Q. And the 813 has not really been put on sale? A. N

Q. Or 809? A. No.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Did the orders which you placed with Mr. Harris f those garments contain the warranty clause? A. Yes, the did.

Q. Was any representation made to you by Harris as whether or not they were copies?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please t Court, as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

7559 The Witness: I was not there at the time t styles were bought, I don't know.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I do not thi we have as yet had a statement as to what pri these dresses were selling at. I may be mistake about that. Did you get——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What price were they? A. $5.95 retail.

Q. What was the cost price on them? What was t cost?

Mr. Keller: Wait just a moment.

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: I do not wish to disclo that at this hearing, if the Court pleases.

7560 Mr. Haycraft: Very well. I will withdraw tha

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Were they silk dresses or cotton dresses? A. Th were synthetic fabrics.

Q. As I understood your testimony a moment ago, y said that 809—you referred to 809 and 813—I will a you whether or not the style 809 was a style known your store prior to the time you placed your order? A. Yes, our buyers claimed that we had it the previous year.

Q. From the same manufacturer? A. Yes.

Q. Had you been successful, or otherwise, with it on the previous year? A. I don't recall.

Q. Pursuant to the policy of your store, would you have returned those dresses to the manufacturer if the Guild had not requested it?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Haycraft. 7562

Q. Your firm is still co-operating with the Bureau? A. Definitely.

Mr. Albert: That is a surprise.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Has there been any change in the requirements on the part of the Guild as to placing of warranty stamp on orders?

Mr. Albert: May I have that question repeated?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: We are still placing the stamp on all our orders.

7563

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Including the basement? A. Including the basement.

Q. Is the shopper, Miss Kindler, still shopping your store? A. Yes.

Q. You are still returning copies to the manufacturer? A. Yes. We returned some last week.

Q. Do you keep any record of the copies that you return, as to the number of garments that you return? A. No.

Q. Can you recall the name of any of the manufacturers whose garments you have returned?

Mr. Altheimer: On behalf of Mandel Brothers, we wish to object to that question, on the ground we do not wish to disclose our sources, to whom we return, or from whom we purchase.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Is it your contention, Mr. Witness, that that would do your business an injury? A. Yes.

Mr. Altheimer: We feel it would disclose so-
7565 called trade secrets, our sources of supply.

Examiner Bennett: I shall not press it.

Mr. Haycraft: I think that's all.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(A short recess was thereupon taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed, Mr. Albert, with the cross-examination.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you mind telling us the difference between your position and that of divisional merchandise manager, and as to whether or not the divisional merchandise man-
7566 ager is your superior, or your subordinate? A. The divisional merchandise manager would be my subordinate.

Q. He would be your subordinate? A. Yes.

Q. Does the divisional merchandise manager have charge of the same number of departments of which you have testified, or a lesser number? A. Our organization is set up so that I have an assistant in my upstairs functions and a divisional manager in the basement, and in that upstairs department the assistant works in the same departments I do, and in the basement the divisional manager works in the same departments that I do.

Q. So that the divisional merchandise manager has charge, under your supervision of Departments 103 and 115? A. That is correct.

Q. And no control over the other departments, is that it? A. Control over all the other departments in the basement, but not of the upstairs dress departments, or any upstairs departments.

Mr. Albert: Are these the exhibits?

Examiner Bennett: Do the gentlemen mind if I ask them not to smoke during the proceeding? I cannot make an exception. 7568

Mr. Albert: Before I proceed with the cross-examination of this witness, I would like to ask the Commission's attorneys as to whether or not they expect to call upon Mr. Post for any evidence or testimony with respect to Commission's Exhibits 527-A and 527-B, since, if the Commission does intend to call upon Mr. Post, who signed Commission's Exhibits 527-A and 527-B, I would like to curtail or even withhold my cross-examination of this witness with respect to those exhibits until Mr. Post takes the stand. He is the man who actually signed them, and had the conference with respect to that, and I do not want to waste time with this witness on it.

Mr. Haycraft: I haven't any idea of calling Mr. Post on those exhibits. They speak pretty well for themselves. 7569

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, what percentage of your merchandise is purchased in New York? A. Is purchased here?

Q. In New York. A. I don't know.

Q. What percentage of your merchandise is purchased in Boston? A. I don't know.

Q. What percentage of your merchandise is purchased in Cleveland? A. I don't know.

Q. What percentage of your merchandise is purchased in Chicago? A. I don't know.

Q. What percentage of your merchandise is purchased in St. Louis? A. I don't know.

Q. What percentage of your merchandise is purchased in Philadelphia? A. I don't know.

Q. What percentage of your merchandise is purchased 7571 in Los Angeles? A. I don't know.

Q. By how much does the percentage of your merchandise purchased in New York exceed that purchased in Boston? A. By a very great deal.

Q. Have you any idea as to the amount? A. I would say at least 100 to 1.

Q. By how much does the purchase of your merchandise in New York exceed the purchases in Cleveland? A. By a greater percentage than that.

Q. You mean by that, that for every unit purchased in Boston you purchase 100 units in New York? A. That is right.

Q. By how much does the amount of your purchases in New York exceed that purchased in Chicago? A. Oh, I would say fifteen to one.

7572 Q. And St. Louis? A. On a 100 to 1 basis.

Q. Philadelphia? A. Slightly more than Boston.

Q. And Los Angeles? A. The same as Boston.

Q. On what calculations do you base your estimates? A. My best judgment, from memory, as to where we buy most of our merchandise.

Q. When did you last see the figures? A. I have never seen any such figures by cities, but I have some figures by resources, and that would be my judgment.

Q. That is a correlation of the figures by resources, as far as you know them to be located in a particular city?
A. That is right.

Q. What would you say was the total dollar volume of your purchases in New York?

Mr. Altheimer: We object to that.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: The witness' counsel objects to that?

Mr. Altheimer: Yes. We prefer to have that line of questioning changed. We cannot see where the dollar volume in sales, of purchases, is material to the issues in this proceeding. 7574

Examiner Bennett: Are you inclined to press that, Mr. Albert?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, there has always been a very grave question that originated in the Commission's evidence thus far as to the resources of these various concerns. We have a witness coming in here that has given us an opinion as to where these resources come from, he has given us statements of comparisons of resources, such as New York purchasing 100 dresses to 1 purchased in Boston.

Certainly, I believe, that, under the circumstances, I should be permitted to find out upon what he bases his figures. 7575

In addition to that, if the Court please, I believe that in the interest of saving a great deal of time, by reason of the fact that this witness should have those figures at his finger tips, the evidence should be disclosed, in order to obviate the necessity of our subpoenaing the books of Mandel Brothers, to find out how accurate these figures are, which we intend to do if we do not get at least an estimate of them from this witness.

Examiner Bennett: That will probably be y privilege when you get around to putting in y side of the case. In view of your attitude, I th
I shall sustain the objection of the attorney the Commission, who, I believe, has objected t as irrelevant, and I consider it irrelevant, so as I can see.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I p out that in my opinion the attorney represen this particular witness has no right to object the ground of immateriality or irrelevancy.

Examiner Bennett: I am talking about the 7577 torney for the Commission. He objected.

Mr. Albert: Oh, I see. Exception.

Examiner Bennett: As I remember the rec the attorney for the Commission did not place within a specific limit.

Mr. Haycraft: No, I did not.

Examiner Bennett: He simply asked for ci

Mr. Albert: He did ask as to what cities amount of merchandise was purchased.

Mr. Haycraft: I might point this out, Mr.
aminer, in view of the fact that the witness asked, that this witness was not interrogated to the effect of red carding, which is the usual p where we get into this question about the ex and the effect of the red carding. This wit 7578 was interrogated only as to the fact of the dema of the Guild as they are enforced on members.

Examiner Bennett: I see no relevance of matter.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Let us go ah

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, is it part of your duties to supervise the actions of the buyers, and of your subordinates, in seeing to it that they honestly and fairly conform to the policies adopted by Mandel Brothers? A. Yes, it is.

Q. And in the performance of that duty, do you check up, upon the actions of the buyers in that respect? A. As many of them as time allows.

Q. I don't quite understand what you mean by "as many of them as time allows." Are there any buyers who have a free rein to do as they wish? A. No, but they are given leave for initiative, and to do things in accord- 7580 ance with our policies, and, naturally, since they are working for me, I am in contact with the major ones, but there may be, and undoubtedly there are, some details with which I am not familiar. I have over sixty departments under my jurisdiction. It would be impossible to know the details in all of them.

Q. Take, for example, the Guild program. Did you make any investigation as to whether or not all your buyers were placing the stamp upon their orders, as required? A. Oh, yes, I definitely did that.

Q. Did you make any investigation to determine whether or not the buyers were attempting not to purchase copies in their various departments? A. Yes, we made that investigation. 7581

Q. In all departments? A. Yes.

Q. You have testified to knowing a certain Miss Kindler. Who was she? A. A Guild shopper in town here.

Q. When did you first meet her? A. I can't recall.

Q. Have you any general recollection? I don't want any specific date. Within a month or two, or even three or four months. A. It was some time after I became associated with the upstairs ready-to-wear.

Q. And when was that? A. Early in September, 1934.

Q. And you met her shortly thereafter? A. I don't know whether it was shortly or not.

Q. Would you say you met her within six months afterwards? A. I wouldn't know that, I can't recall that.

Q. You haven't any idea at all? A. No.

Q. Do you recall the circumstances under which you met her? A. Without knowing definitely, it seems to me that I recall meeting her when she brought to our attention the fact that we had some Guild copy in stock, and asked us to return it.

Q. So that the first time you met her, was when she 7583 made the first complaint? Was that the first time you met her, when she made her first complaint as to copy? A. I believe it was. I can't remember.

Q. Would you say that you had not met her before then? A. No, I would not be able to say that.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Miss Kindler approached you in any way, and informed you of the fact that she was going to shop the store? A. No. I understood that to be her function.

Q. When did you so understand that to be her function? A. Some time after I became associated with the upstairs ready-to-wear.

Q. Then you understood that prior to the time when she first brought in a complaint with respect to a specific 7584 dress, that it was a copy, isn't that so? A. What was that question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Let me put it this way, Mr. Wyzanski. Was Miss Kindler introduced to you, or did you meet Miss Kindler, or did you hear of Miss Kindler as a Guild shopper, prior to the time when she first made a complaint with respect to any one dress being a copy?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question on the ground the witness said he could not remember when it was he met her.

Mr. Albert: I think I should be able to prove the witness' memory, and point out certain things to him, in order to recall it to him.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Haycraft: He said the first time.

Examiner Bennett: If you have any recollection.

The Witness: I believe that before I met Miss Kindler I knew there was such a person as Miss 7586
Kindler who was the Guild shopper. Does that answer your question?

Mr. Albert: Yes, I think that is fair.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. From whom did you learn that fact? A. My assistant, Mr. Byrne.

Q. And what is his position with Mandel Brothers? A. He is assistant to me in the merchandising of the departments under my supervision in the upstairs store.

Q. Do you recall what it was that he told you about Miss Kindler? A. I can't recall anything he did say, other than the fact that the Guild shopper was Miss Kindler.

Q. Did he tell you as to when he had met her? A. No. 7587

Q. Did he tell you as to the method of her operation? A. Why, I don't remember whether I knew of her methods from Mr. Byrne, or any previous time as to the method of Guild shopping.

Q. What was the method of Guild shopping? A. Miss Kindler would come in and shop the store, either shopping the store looking for copies, which I understand Mr. Post said in his letter was called open shopping, or she would come in looking for a specific copy that some st might have said we had, and she was checking up to s if we had it.

Q. In that latter case, did she first approach you,
Mr. Byrne, or any of the buyers, and tell them she h a report that a specific dress is a copy, "this is the diagra of the dress. I am going to look for it. Do you kn where it is"? A. No. Her procedure is to go into the d partment, call it to the attention of the buyer, and a him to take it off sale.

Q. That is, she would first see the buyer? A. Yes.

Q. Did you just hear me state your testimony here,
7589 the effect that there were two types of shopping? A. Y
Q. Was that correct? Was that what you testified t
A. I believe it was.

Examiner Bennett: I will ask the witness thi

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Have you any detailed knowledge of the proceedi by the shopper when she came into your store, that is, to just what she did? A. Not in any particular instan but her general procedure.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That's all I want.

7590 By Examiner Bennett.

Q. You know her general procedure, do you? A. Y
I know her general procedure.

Examiner Bennett: All right. He may answ

By Mr. Albert.

Q. With respect to this second type of shopping, which a complaint has been made that Mandels has in stock a copy of a dress, what was the procedure of Miss Kindler with respect to investigating that complaint? A. Go in the department, speak to the buyer, look for the dress, with the help of the buyer.

Q. With the help of the buyer. Then what happened? A. If we had the dress, and if Miss Kindler had the sketch from the Guild, or proof that it was a copy, it was taken off sale and returned.

Q. What proof would you require that the dress was a copy? A. Either a sketch from the Guild, or a signed statement from Miss Kindler that it had been up before a Piracy Committee, and had been adjudged a copy.

Q. Do you know in what manner a dress is adjudged a 7592 copy before the Piracy Committee? A. No.

Q. Have you made any inquiry in connection with your duties in order to determine upon what basis a dress has been adjudged a copy, by reason of which adjudgment it is necessary for Mandel Brothers to return a dress?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, as too indefinite.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. He does not seem to know about the piracy procedure, and what is the use of mussing it up?. That is in the record already.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, when did you first hear of the Piracy 7593
Committee?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as not proper cross-examination, and no foundation laid.

Mr. Albert: This witness has testified, in response to the question, that dresses were returned after they were adjudged copies by a Piracy Committee. We then have a very startling statement that he knows nothing about how the Piracy Committee works. I don't think that I am bound by that, and I think I should be permitted to find out what he knows about a Piracy Committee, when he testifies to it voluntarily.

Examiner Bennett: You have the facts upon which to base a judgment as to that. I will sustain the objection to further questioning along this line.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, to your knowledge, is there anything secretive about the manner in which Miss Kindler 7595 shopped the various departments?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, unless there is some definition of what he means by "secretive."

Mr. Albert: I would suggest the Commission explain what it means by that in its complaint.

Examiner Bennett: That is a general term. He may answer. Overruled. Have you the question?

The Witness: Was there anything secretive?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I would say "no."

By Mr. Albert.

7596 Q. That is, all your buyers knew her, you knew her, she came in openly, did not attempt to conceal her identity, or what she was doing in any manner, did she? A. No.

Q. Now, you testified, Mr. Wyzanski, that there were various conferences and discussions in your store upon the question as to whether or not Mandel Brothers should co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild. First will you tell us who it was that engaged in those dis cussions or conferences? A. Those that I attended, our general manager, Mr. Mandel, and Mr. Post.

Q. Which Mr. Mandel is that? A. Leon Mandel; and it was generally discussed from time to time at the luncheon table at which all of us ate.

Q. I am referring now particularly to the time when you signed the declaration of co-operation. A. That is what I am discussing.

Q. That is what you are referring to, also? A. Yes.

Q. Is the Mr. Leon Mandel that you refer to the gentleman that is sitting in the room at the present time? A. Yes, he is.

Q. What was the policy of Mandel Brothers with respect 7598 to copies and the sale of copies prior to the time when you signed the declaration of co-operation? A. I don't know what the policy was under Mr. Post.

Q. Mr. Post was in charge at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Do you think he would know? A. I would think so.

Q. And he is present in the room now, is he? A. Yes, he is.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, you testified that you took dresses off sale on proof that they were copies. Is this proof that you refer to the letter that you have also referred to which was generally shown you by Miss Kindler, to the effect that a style piracy committee had passed upon the matter? Is that the only proof you require?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the form of the ques- 7599
tion. I don't recall that the witness used the word "proof."

Mr. Albert: If Mr. Haycraft will look at the record, he will see that the witness specifically said "proof."

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Read the question, please.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So that you had full faith and confidence in the actions of the Piracy Committee with respect thereto, and the reports on it presented to you by Miss Kindler? A. Well, I would not go so far as to say that. We would return the dresses, take them off sale and return them, because we had signed a declaration of co-operation with the Guild; and, since it is our function to bring to our customers the best that the market affords, we feel we have to have a free market to do that, and, in order to have a free market, we have to go into the Guild houses, and we would not do anything that would endanger our 7601 being deprived of that free market, consequently a statement from the Guild that such and such was a copy would be immediate cause for us taking them off sale and returning them, because we wanted to maintain that free market.

Q. You know what I asked you, don't you? A. I was explaining it.

Q. Let us find out whether Mandel Brothers is fish or fowl. Is it your contention that you are co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild solely by reason of fear? A. We only are co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild because we believe that in practice—that is, because although we believe that in practice it has hurt our business in the basement and in some of our upstairs de-7602 partments, we are co-operating with them so that we can do as we have always done, bring the best in the market to our customers. We believe that is our function, that is for the upstairs store, and that also applies to the basement, in that we feel that we have a policy in our basement of fashion at a price, and we want to be consistent in that policy; and, as I said before, we believe the main buying in the basement is that of economical emulation.

Q. I would like to get a simple statement from you with egard to the policy of Mandel Brothers, and I will give ou all the opportunity in the world to explain all of the ancy terms which you have just used, but I would like simple statement from you as regards Mandels policy. oes Mandel, or did Mandel Brothers sign that declaraion of co-operation in the sincere belief that style piracy as an evil in the industry, and with the desire to elimiate that evil?

Mr. Haycraft: I have objected to it.

Examiner Bennett: You have your objection. Please don't try to argue across the table in that way. You may ask a foundation question. 7604

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was there any decision at the conference with reect to whether or not there was such an evil existed the industry as style piracy? A. There was a discusion of whether or not there was such an evil as style iracy.

Q. What was said about it? A. That it was a very nteresting theory.

Q. Is that all that was said about it? A. And that the ress business being as bad as it was at that time, that might be a good thing to go along on this experiment.

Q. Is that all that was said about it? A. No. There as also said that if we did not, we would not have 7605 free market to buy the best merchandise available.

Q. Is that also what was discussed? A. Yes.

Q. What was the merchandise that was available to you the market at that time, do you know?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

The Witness: Prior to the signing of the declaration you mean?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Yes. A. All the merchandise.

Q. What merchandise would you have been cut off from at that time if you had not signed the declaration of co-operation? A. Merchandise coming from those members of the Guild, those people who were members of the Guild at the time of the signing of the declaration.

Q. Who were the members of the Guild at the time of the signing of the declaration of co-operation? A. I don't recall them.

Q. Do you recall their number? A. A member?

Q. Do you recall their number? A. No.

7607 Q. Do you know whether or not it was more than a hundred? A. I believe it was less.

Q. About how much less would you say it was? Would you say it was ten?

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I object to the form of this question upon the ground that there is nothing to show that this witness is the one who discussed that matter and was informed as to the matter. The record shows that Mr. Post was the man who was in charge of that department. If you want to ask this witness what Mr. Post said about it, all right, but that is not this witness' testimony. I object to the form of the question.

7608 Mr. Albert: May I call the Court's attention to the fact that I specifically asked Mr. Haycraft before I commenced cross-examining this witness as to whether or not he was going to call the man who had all the knowledge of it, upon the ground I did not want to start cross-examining this witness as to his knowledge if he was going to call Mr. Post, and Mr. Haycraft stated he was not going to call Mr. Post. Now, he seeks to stop me from cross-examining this witness as to his knowledge as to what happened in his presence.

Mr. Haycraft: No, I am not objecting to your asking this witness as to what transpired at that conference, not in the least. My objection is running to the assumption by the cross-examiner that this witness took certain knowledge to the conference and gave it to the conference. He is examining him as if he were the one who knew those things. The record does not show that. If he wants to ask Mr. Post that, very well, but this witness is not in a position to do that.

Mr. Albert: Will Mr. Haycraft permit me to call Mr. Post while we are in Chicago?

Mr. Haycraft: No. You may call him when 7610
we get through with the Commission's side.

Mr. Albert: In other words, the Commission wants to leave its case in a very faulty position at the present time in Chicago as regards the fact that Mandel Brothers signed the declaration of co-operation, and does not want to call the man who signed it on behalf of Mandel Brothers, is that it?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. I think we are getting nowhere with that.

Mr. Albert.

Q. Prior to your signing the declaration of co-operation, did you receive any correspondence from the Fashion 7611 iginators Guild? A. Did I personally? No.

Q. Did you see any correspondence from the Fashion iginators Guild? A. No, I did not.

Q. Was there any discussion at these conferences as to number of manufacturers who were members of the ild? A. I don't know, I don't remember.

Q. Was there any discussion or investigation made prior your signing the declaration of co-operation as to the number of manufacturers in your various markets who manufactured at the price lines which you say you wanted or needed? A. There were none made of me. I don't know whether anybody else did.

Q. Did anybody make any? A. That I don't know.

Q. Was your opinion sought as to the matter at these various conferences? A. Only in regard to the basement were they sought.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Post made any investigation with respect as to those matters? A. I don't know.

7613 Mr. Albert: Does your Honor want to adjourn at this point? It is the customary adjourning time.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. We will take a recess until 2 o'clock for luncheon.

(Witness excused.)

(Whereupon, at 12.30 o'clock P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION.

(Hearing resumed at 2 o'clock P. M.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed, Mr. Albert.

7614

HENRY N. WYZANSKI thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, did you make any reply whatsoever to Commission's Exhibit No. 530-A and 530-B? A. No.

Q. With respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 528-A——

Mr. Albert: Did you put this in evidence?

Mr. Haycraft: I thought I did; if I did not, I will offer it now.

Mr. Albert: It should be in evidence.

Mr. Martin: I think, as a matter of fact, it was not offered, Mr. Post spoke up at the time and said a copy of that letter was already in evidence. I do not think it was.

Mr. Albert: Do you know what the number of it was before?

Mr. Martin: No.

Examiner Bennett: Are you going to offer it? 7616

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, we will offer it.

Examiner Bennett: No objection to it. It may be received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 528-A and 528-B," was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you have any conference with Mr. Post with respect to the subject-matter of this letter, Commission's Exhibit No. 528, dated November 6th, 1935? A. No, not that I can recall.

Q. Did you have any conference with him prior to the receipt of this letter? A. Not that I can recall. 7617

Q. When you say "not that you can recall," are you restricting your answer to a personal conference with Mr. Post, or do you mean by that that you were not present at any conference which was addressed by Mr. Post? A. I meant it on a personal basis.

Q. But you were present at conferences that were addressed by Mr. Post, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. With respect to the subject-matter of this letter?

Mr. Martin: Show him the letter.

Mr. Albert: What is your answer?

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: Show the witness the letter so that he knows what you are referring to.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, I thought he knew what I was referring to.

The Witness: Yes.

(Mr. Albert hands letter to the witness.)

The Witness: No, I was not.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, and prior to the receipt of 7619 that letter, was not Mr. Post present in Chicago, and did he not address a conference attended by various retail establishments of the City of Chicago? A. I have attended conferences at which Mr. Post spoke in Chicago; but I don't remember the date of them.

Q. Were they not with respect to the subject-matter of that letter? A. I only remember being at one conference in Chicago at which Mr. Post addressed the merchants here, and I—my recollection of that conference did not include all the things in here.

Q. Did not include all the things in there? A. No.

Q. What was there in that conference addressed by Mr. Post that covered any of the subject-matter in that letter? A. My recollection of that conference was that it was the 7620 hope of the Guild that they would be able to get the chain stores to sign a Declaration of Co-operation with the Guild, and it was the hope at that time that if he was successful, that would extend our own protection down into lower-priced lines.

Q. What was the date, approximate date, Mr. Wyzanski? I don't want to hold you down even to the precise months of that conference? A. I haven't—I really don't remember.

Q. Would you say it was the summer of 1935? A. I really don't know.

Q. Would you say it was the spring of 1935? A. I don't know.

Q. Would you say it was the winter of 1934? A. I know it was not the winter of 1934, because it was after I came upstairs.

Q. So that it was some time in 1935? A. I would say yes.

Q. Did Mr. Post tell you in what manner he expected to get the co-operation of the chain stores? A. As I recall it, he said that he would—expected to get their co-operation by having them sign the Declaration of Co-operation.

Q. Was that the only thing that was discussed with respect to that? A. That I cannot say, I cannot remember. 7622

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, was not the subject of that conference the inclusion in the Guild of the manufacturers of $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 dresses? A. It may have been, I don't remember.

Q. Is not it a matter of fact that the question at that conference was directly put to the retailers then present, as to whether or not they had any objection to the inclusion in the Guild program of manufacturers of $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 dresses? A. My recollection is that it was expressed as a hope.

Q. Did you or anybody representing the Mandel Brothers oppose any steps which the Guild might take towards the fruition of that hope? A. No, we did not.

Q. Did you, in any way, present any arguments opposing the inclusion in the Guild of manufacturers of $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 dresses? A. No. 7623

Q. As a matter of fact, is it not true that every single retailer in the Chicago district who was present at that conference expressed his affirmative consent and acquiescence to the Guild, including in its program the $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 manufacturers? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Do you recall that a vote was actually and specifically taken upon the proposition? A. No, I don't recall such a vote.

Q. Would you say that there was no vote taken? A. No, I couldn't say that.

Q. In other words, you do not recall one way or the other whether a vote was taken? A. I do not recall whether a vote was taken or not.

Q. After Mr. Post addressed this conference, did Mandel Brothers, through you, or any other of its subordinates, employees or executives, express its opinion with respect to the subject-matter of the conference either in letters to the F.O.G.A., or otherwise? A. No, we did not, although I believe it is my recollection that Mr. Groff, the head of our New York office, spoke to Mr. Post about it.

7625

Q. Was that discussion which you referred to as having occurred between Mr. Groff and Mr. Post on the question of policy, or was it on the question arising by reason of a particular dress which had been adjudged a copy? A. On the policy as affecting the basement—I don't know that—I cannot answer that question, I was not there, I was not there.

Q. In other words, is this a fair estimate of what you wish to say, that Mr. Groff and Mr. Post had a conversation about something, that you do not know what it was? A. Well, I know that it was in respect to the basement not being able to carry copies, contrary to our original agreement.

Q. But was there anybody acting under the authority of Mandel Brothers, either Mr. Groff, Mr. Leon Mandel, Mr. Weintraub, Mr. Byrne, or anybody acting with the authority and consent of Mandel Brothers, who, in any method, either orally or in writing, dissented from the policy of including in the Guild program $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 manufacturers? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Tell me this, Mr. Wyzanski, assuming that Mr. Post said, as you have testified, that it was the policy of the Guild to include as co-operators the retail chain stores, were you in favor of that inclusion?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: I think it is most relevant, your Honor, in the light of the testimony.

Mr. Haycraft: Relevant to what? Of what this witness was in favor——

Examiner Bennett: What do you expect to show by that?

Mr. Albert: Since you have testified, Mr. Wyzanski, that Mr. Post stated that the Guild expected to take into co-operation the retail chain outlets, did Mandel Brothers, through any subordinate of any kind, protest against this inclusion, either in writing or orally? 7628

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer.

The Witness: No, because we already had a letter on file making it apply only to the upstairs stores.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. You mean to tell us that it was Mandel Brothers' interpretation of the inclusion of the hope of including chain store operations in the Guild program, that it was not to apply to your basement store? A. No, I mean to say that we already had our objections on file. 7629

Q. Yes. A. And if a decision were reached by the Guild it certainly would have been reached over our objections.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, did not you understand the purpose of that conference, whatever may have been the understanding before that time, to be the desire on the part of the F.O.G.A. to get the consent of all retailers upon inclusion in the Guild program of, one, $6.75, $7.75 and $8.75 manufacturers, and, two, of chain store retailers? A. I recall that as a hope, yes, that was expressed then.

Q. Well, was not that the purpose of the meeting to find out whether or not there was any objection to that broadening of the F.O.G.A. program? A. I looked upon it as a statement of facts, in the making of which decision we would not have any part, like other decisions.

Q. And you just sat idly by and listened to a statement on the part of Mr. Post, without in any way trying to enlighten him as to your opinions on the matter, is that so?

7631 A. Yes, I think Mr. Post was aware of my opinion.

Q. When did you communicate it to him? A. Well, from the time of our original discussion, that the basement should be included.

Q. When was this? A. December of 1933, at the time we signed the original declaration.

Q. You were present at this conference, were you not? This one you just referred to?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. You noted your appearance? A. I don't know what that means.

Q. Was your name noted down as being present at this time? A. I was present, I don't know if there was any roll call.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, what was the purpose of the 7632 original reservation that was made in the signing of the Declaration of Co-operation? A. Not allowing copies of styles in our basement store would be inconsistent with the policy of our basement store; which was to promote style merchandise at a price, fashion at a price, and, as I said before, the leading buying motive for customers coming into the basement is that of economical emulation. They want the closest approximation they can possibly get to better merchandise at the price they can afford to pay.

and we felt that the inclusion of copies from our basement store would be inconsistent with our basement policy. We owe it to our customers.

Q. What was the discussion at that conference with respect to the elimination of copies in your upstairs store, in order to show why you have a reservation in your basement you had to know the problem that was confronted at the upstairs store, did you not, and you discussed that, did you not? A. I don't believe I had to know it, no, I was merchandising the basement at that time.

Q. Do you know anything at all about the problem that confronted your upstairs store? A. At that time you mean?

Q. Yes. A. Just by hearsay of being in on several meetings and discussions and luncheons and the like.

Q. What was said at those discussions and conferences and luncheons or wherever else you got the information from, as to what Mandel Brothers instituted as respecting its upstairs store?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to, as there is no showing that Mandel Brothers instituted any policy with respect to its upstairs store.

Mr. Albert: If Mr. Haycraft wants to concede they never obeyed the declaration, I will take the concession.

Mr. Haycraft: It is an entirely different proposition, including something and co-operating, are two entirely different terms, as I understand it.

7635

Examiner Bennett: I do not believe this witness is competent to go into the policy of the upstairs store at this time. There is nothing in the testimony indicating that he is.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Prior to 1934, Mr. Wyzanski, you were, I believe, in charge solely of the basement store? A. Prior to September of 1934?

Q. Yes, and your first connection with the upstairs store, the upstairs department store, was after September of 1934, is not that correct? A. First connection of a direct responsibility?

Q. Yes. A. I was on the advisory board for the store.

Q. You were on the advisory board for the upstairs store? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to September 1, 1934? A. Yes.

Q. When did you get on that advisory board? A. I don't recall the date.

Q. All right, did not you discuss, as a member of the advisory board for the upstairs department, what effect 7637 the Declaration of Co-operation would have on your upstairs store? A. I don't believe so.

Q. Your upstairs departments? A. I don't believe it was ever brought up in an advisory board meeting.

Examiner Bennett: Excuse me. Were you a member of the advisory board before that declaration was signed?

The Witness: Yes, I was.

Examiner Bennett: I will let you go into that.

Mr. Haycraft: I would like, Mr. Examiner, to find out what that advisory board was, counsel said for the upstairs store. Now, I do not know whether that is——

Mr. Albert: Counsel did not say; the witness said that.

7638

Mr. Haycraft: No, the witness did not say that. That is the point. That is the reason I am clarifying that. Read the record.

(Thereupon the record was read as follows: "You were on the advisory board for the upstairs store? A. Yes. Q. Prior to September 1, 1934? A. Yes. Q. When did you get on that advisory board? A. I don't recall the date. Q. All right, did not you discuss, as a member of the advisory board for the upstairs department, what effect the Declaration of Co-operation would have on your upstairs store? A. I don't believe so. Q. Your upstairs departments?")

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does not the advisory board, Mr. Wyzanski, cover the whole store? A. Yes.

Q. Does not it consider the problems of the whole store? A. Some of them, when they are brought up.

Q. Does not it consider the policies for your upstairs ready-to-wear departments? A. It may and it may not. We have no occasion—it is purely advisory to the management. 7640 The management may or may not bring things up to the advisory board.

Q. Just exactly who are the advisory board? Are they the experts on policies for the store? A. They are the heads of the various pyramids within the store.

Q. Do you mean to tell us the advisory board of Mandel Brothers did not consider the effect of the signing of the Declaration of Co-operation on the upstairs departments or the ready-to-wear departments, the upstairs store? A. I mean that exactly. As I recall it, it was a determination made by Mr. Post with Mr. Mandel.

Q. And nobody else had anything at all to say about it? A. In making the decision, no.

Q. Did anybody discuss it? A. Not at the advisory board. 7641

Q. Well, now, you say not at the advisory board; where was it discussed? A. Because, as I told you before, I have heard it discussed at lunch, and I have heard it discussed in Mr. Mandel's office with Mr. Post.

Q. Who else was present besides Mr. Mandel and Mr. Post and yourself? A. I don't recall anybody else being there.

Q. And they discussed the effect on the upstairs department store of the signing of the Declaration of Co-operation? A. That I cannot recall; there were many conferences, I may have been in only one or two of them.

Q. Do you recall the ones that you were at? A. Yes, I do, some of them.

Q. What was said as regards the upstairs departments? Forget your basement for a while. A. As I recall it, it was the feeling that Mandel Brothers——

Q. No, no, I do not want the feeling. What was said, Mr. Wyzanski? A. That is what I am trying to give you.

Mr. Haycraft: Who said it?

7643

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And who said it?

Examiner Bennett: It is a good deal to ask the witness.

The Witness: I cannot answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Just give us the general substance of the discussion. A. That is what I am trying to do. The feeling was that Mandel Brothers——

Q. No, Mr. Wyzanski, please do not give us the feeling. A lot of things can be said that resulted in an entirely 7644 different feeling. What I would like to have is what was said, not the interpretations, your feelings that resulted from a result of what was said. A. I don't believe I could do that, sir.

Examiner Bennett: All right. If you do not recall it——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. So, then, in so far as you are concerned, you can throw no light whatsoever upon the policy of Mandel Brothers signing the Declaration of Co-operation with respect to the upstairs departments, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And you do not know how Mandel Brothers felt about signing the Declaration of Co-operation with respect to its upstairs departments, is that so?

Mr. Haycraft: Object to it, he has tried his best to tell you what that was, and you would not take it.

Mr. Albert: The sum and substance of it is nothing.

Mr. Haycraft: You would not let him say what the feeling was. He tried twice to tell you what it was. 7646.

Mr. Albert: Since when has the Commission tried its cases on feelings?

Mr. Haycraft: You asked for it right now, and that is what he is trying to tell you.

Mr. Albert: I did not ask for that.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question and you will see.

(Last question read as follows: "Q. And you do not know how Mandel Brothers felt about signing the Declaration of Co-operation with respect to its upstairs departments, is that so?")

Mr. Albert: As regards to what they said, Mr. Wyzanski.. 7647.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that last question.

Examiner Bennett: Well, sustained.

The Witness: What did you say?

Examiner Bennett: I sustained the objection.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Are there any intra-office communications in Mandel Brothers between Mr. Leon Mandel and yourself, between

Mr. Mandel and Mr. Post, or any other of the executives or employees or buyers of Mandel Brothers with respect to the consideration of whether or not Mandel Brothers should sign the Declaration of Co-operation for its upstairs departments? A. I have looked through the file and I could not find it.

Q. None whatsoever? A. None.

Q. How long were you in charge of the basement store of Mandel Brothers, Mr. Wyzanski, before September, 1934? A. I went to work there on September 1, 1927, as assistant merchandise manager, and became merchandise manager of the basement January 1, 1929.

7649 Q. Prior to your connection with Mandel Brothers, with whom were you associated? A. William Filene & Sons, Boston.

Q. William Filene & Sons of Boston? A. Yes.

Q. Were you in charge of the basement there also? A. No.

Q. Were you in the basement in Filenes? A. I was.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, you referred to approximately 6,600 dresses that you sold, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Of that 6,600, how many were copies, do you know? A. No, I believe three styles were adjudged copies. I don't know how many of the 6,600 were of those three styles.

7650 Q. How many styles were encompassed within that order of 6,600 dresses? A. There was no order for 6,600 dresses.

Q. You mean that there were several orders placed, aggregating 6,600 dresses? A. I mean that we had sold 6,600 dresses.

Q. Do you mean that you purchased more than 6,600 dresses? A. That's right.

Q. How many dresses did you purchase? A. It is very difficult to tell how many dresses were ordered, because there have been so many cancellations forced on us because some of them were Guild copies, the first of which I mentioned to you when we had the style 809, and then when we were planning to run that off, cut ad style 813, and in order to do which we had to cut our original order down because it made the two-piece dresses out of proportion to the one-piece dresses; so that I cannot tell just what the orders, minus the cancellations, totalled.

Mr. Bennett: I see. You have not the information?

The Witness: Not on the total number of orders.

Examiner Bennett: I see, all right. That's it.

7652

By Mr. Albert.

Q. How many styles were encompassed within the orders that were placed from which you sold the 6600 dresses? A. Originally six, and then three more were added.

Q. Nine. Of that nine, three have been adjudged to be copies, is that so? A. That's right.

Q. Now, would you say that the sales of those nine styles bear the same proportion as the amount of copied styles bear to the total amount of styles? A. Would you mind repeating that?

Q. That is, would you say that approximately 4400 dresses were sold of the other six styles, and 2200 dresses were sold of the style 809, of the other three styles that you say were adjudged copies? A. No, no, I would not say that. 7653

Q. What would you say the figures were? Have you any idea? A. I haven't got them in my mind, no, but I know that is not the fact, as you have stated it.

Q. Would you say it was fifty-fifty? A. I can't answer that, it would be a guess on my part

Q. Were the other styles that you obtained, and which were included among the 6600 dresses, good styles? A. Yes, I believe they were good styles.

Q. Would you call them, in the parlance of the trade, hot numbers? A. Yes, some more than others.

Q. Well, of course, I mean— A. They were not all equal.

Q. Every style is not a hot number, we will all concede that. Now, with respect to the other six styles, that were not adjudged copies, you were not stopped originally from selling those, were you? A. No, we were not stopped from selling them, but it broke up our selling program.

Q. Just what do you mean by that? A. Well, as I say, we set out to do a big business because we knew we had sold so many last year, 6,000 of them, and we 7655 had every feeling that they were hotter this year than last year, to quote your word, and we went in with an original order of 2500 without having sold any, and so we must have had a lot of confidence in the merchandise when, because Miss Kindler had called our attention to the fact that style 809 was a copy, we returned style 809 and we cancelled those on order. I mean, they all did not come in, it was a part shipment. We then had to cut our order down considerably—the number of 809 that we had—because it made it out of proportion. 809 was a one-piece style, and so we had to cut down some of the other numbers, even though they were not copies, and in doing so we destroyed the advertising plan. We did not have enough of the goods. It was very difficult to go into the large advertising campaign that we had 7656 originally planned on.

Q. Were these styles that you have just referred to the same style as Harris had used the previous year? A. No. I said that there was one style 829 that was very similar to the style that he had used last year.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, have you any idea, or do you know anything at all with respect to the background of the sale of these dresses by Harris, Mandel Brothers, and to these other retail stores, which you had testified had them? A. I don't know what you mean by background.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was a deliberate plan of Harris to dump these copies on the market?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: At this particular time?

The Witness: No, I don't know.

Mr. Haycraft: Wait a moment, wait a moment, wait for a ruling.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think the question is of doubtful validity, but it does not mean anything anyway. 7658

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Bennett: The witness does not know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was Mandel Brothers in any way associated with the A.M.C., Mr. Wyzanski? A. Not in its domestic business, no.

Q. Well, just what are you differentiating? A. We do some of our foreign buying through the A.M.C. foreign offices.

Q. And you, therefore, have access to the A.M.C. for information and for assistance and advice on various things? A. Not on domestic matters.

Q. Not on domestic matters? A. (Witness shakes head negatively.) 7659

Mr. Haycraft: You will have to say "yes" or "no," the reporter cannot get the shaking of your head.

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Wyzanski, does not Mr. Groff of your New York office have occasion to very often consult with the A.M.C. as to policies of buying, as to various resources, and things of that concern? A. In fulfilling his function as head of the New York office he consults with most everybody in the market for advice.

Q. Including the A.M.C.? A. Yes, he consults with them too.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that Mr. Groff in his capacity as head of the New York office joined the A.M.C. and subsidized advertising? A. I don't get that at all.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question.

Mr. Albert: The question is withdrawn.

Mr. Haycraft: Physically?

7661 Examiner Bennett: It is withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, did you ever have any discussions with Mr. Harris with respect to this particular order? A. The original order?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. None whatsoever? A. No.

Q. The order was just placed? A. Oh, I knew about it.

Q. Without any discussions? What? A. Oh, I knew about it long before the order was placed, I knew that they were going to try to do something to beat our last year's figures and go ahead with them.

Q. Did not Mr. Harris tell you that these three styles
7662 were copies of merchandise? A. No.

Q. You are quite certain of that? A. Quite certain.

Q. Now, after the original order was placed, Mr. Wyzanski, did you have any conferences with Mr. Harris with respect to the order? A. No—what do you mean? How long after?

Q. Any time after, after you placed the order? A. Not until such time as we had sent back 809 and cancelled the rest of 809.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that the first time that you had any knowledge of the fact that these dresses were being sold in the New York market was when Mr. Harris informed you of that? A. Oh, no, no.

Q. When did you first learn that these dresses were sold in the New York market? A. When I saw the ads in the New York stores, Guild stores.

Q. How long was that after you received notice of the fact that the dresses that you had were copies? A. As to date, I cannot answer, but I know that I saw the ads on these styles after we had returned ours, run by Guild stores in New York.

Q. Do you know when these dresses were delivered to 7664
the New York stores, or when they placed their orders for these dresses? A. Since ours was one of the initial orders, why, I assume, it was after ours.

Q. That is exactly the point. Was not Mandel Brothers the first concern that received a delivery of these dresses from Harris? A. Well, that I couldn't tell, I don't know.

Q. Did you not just say you were one of the initial stores? A. To order?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. What makes— A. It would be natural if you had that much business to go against, you would start early planning to go against it.

Q. You do not mean to convey to the Commission the idea, do you, that the New York stores were selling these 7665 dresses for some time prior to the delivery to you of these dresses and for some time prior to you being informed that you were handling copies? A. Prior to what delivery?

Q. Prior to the delivery to you of these styles? A. You mean prior to the delivery which we were forced to return?

Q. Right. A. That I don't know.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Wyzanski, as a result of the correspondence attached with respect to this particular transaction, and as a result of the conferences or the discussions that you had with Mr. Post, and from what you heard on behalf of Mr. Harris, is not this the fact, that Mandel Brothers were the first ones to place the order with Harris, that subsequently the New York stores in a very short time thereafter also placed their orders and placed their advertising for it, and as soon as it was pointed out that the New York stores had these copies, they also were informed of the fact that they were selling copies and were ordered to take them off, or 7667 requested to take them off, is that not so? A. Well, part of that question you asked me something about whether the New York stores ordered, but I have no idea when they ordered theirs.

Q. And you have no idea from that, despite the communications that you had with respect to this matter with the F.O.G.A., and despite your discussions with Mr. Post, and whatever discussions you may have had with Mr. Harris, or with Mr. Groff of your New York office? A. As to when the other stores originally ordered theirs, is that the question?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know when the other stores originally ordered theirs.

Q. How long a period of time would you say elapsed between the time that you were notified that you were 7668 selling a copy, or had a copy in stock, at the time that you saw the dress advertised in the New York market? A. I remember the date as being the 14th that I received a wire in our New York office, asking them to speak to Mr. Post about the possibility of our carrying style 809, and it was some time from between then, and I would say the end of the month, that I saw these ads in New York after we had returned style 809.

Q. This, you say, was about May 14th? A. My wire to our New York office was of May 14th to speak to Mr. Post about it.

Q. About the question of whether or not 809 was—A. About——

Q. —I mean were copies? A. Yes, about asking Mr. Post's permission for us to carry it.

Q. You are certain that that wire was not sent in April? A. Yes, quite certain.

Q. You are sure of that? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. It was sent around May 14th? A. Yes.

Q. That is when you first learned or had any suspicion of the fact that 809 was a copy? A. Yes, it was called 7670 to our attention by Miss Kindler immediately preceding that.

Q. Yes, and you are as certain of that testimony as you are of everything else you testified to? A. Well, I am reasonably certain of it.

Q. And are you as certain of everything else as you are of that? A. I cannot differentiate.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

The Witness: Might I refresh my memory and look up that wire? I have it here.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, certainly.

The Witness: Will you get that wire? So that I can refresh my memory on it? 7671

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: It is an exhibit, is it not?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

The Witness: I asked the Court if I could refresh my memory.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the indulgence of the Commission a moment or two?

The Witness: May I talk to my attorney a moment?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, certainly.

(Witness leaves the stand.)

Examiner Bennett: The Examiner has permitted the witness to refresh his recollection as to that date in order to get that date correct.

If you wish to you may ask him about it, if you wish.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you still say the date is May 14th? A. The date on it, the date on which I wired the New York office—it was May 14th.

7673 Mr. Albert: I would like to have the telegram marked for identification.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Respondents' Exhibit 52 for Identification.)

Mr. Martin: That is this year?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence the Respondents' Exhibit No. 52.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The telegram referred to, heretofore marked for identification Respondents' Exhibit 52, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Albert.

7674 Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, I believe that in taking out Respondents' Exhibit No. 52 in evidence you also took a letter from your file by which you refreshed your recollection, is that right? A. No, it was just attached to that.

Q. Attached to that telegram? A. Yes.

Q. Did it have anything to do with the telegram?

Mr. Haycraft: Did it have anything to do with the telegram—that is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to the examination.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did the letter which you took from your file in any way amplify or give any information with respect to the subject-matter of the telegram in so far as Mandel Brothers is concerned?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to the fishing expedition.

Mr. Albert: It certainly is a fishing expedition, I admit it.

7676

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

Mr. Albert: This witness took a letter which certainly had some connection with the telegram, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I sustain the objection.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence a letter extracted by the witness from the letter file to which he has referred to as being attached to Respondents' Exhibit No. 52, which is now in the right inside coat pocket of the witness.

Examiner Bennett: That offer will be stricken from the record. There is no such letter before the Examiner.

Mr. Albert: I offer in evidence a piece of paper that is in the right inside coat pocket of the witness, which he has testified was attached to Respondents' Exhibit No. 52.

7677

Mr. Haycraft: Where do you think you are, in Turkey, Russia, or where?

Mr. Albert: I thought so all the way up to now. I think you are beginning to see the relevancy of it.

Mr. Haycraft: I am beginning to see your tactics, all right enough.

Examiner Bennett: The language of the offer may be stricken from the record.

Mr. Albert: Don't tell me that the Government is afraid of the respondents.

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: Your Honor please, the only purpose the witness had was to look at the telegram for the purpose of refreshing his memory. Counsel has asked him a pointblank question, "Are you as sure about that date as you are about all the other testimony you have given?", and the witness went to the record for the purpose of finding that one telegram to refresh his memory on the subject.

7679 Examiner Bennett: Yes, we are not going any further in the record on that.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, what do you mean in Respondents' Exhibit No. 52, "Disappointed delivery so bad"? A. May I see it? It meant that we had not gotten complete delivery on our 2,500 dresses.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. When did you get complete delivery? A. Well, we never got them, because we had to cancel.

7680 Q. Is that what you were referring to? Is that what you were referring to by the bad delivery, "disappointed delivery so bad"? A. Disappointed on our delivery of our complete order.

Q. When did you return Harris style 2809? A. I have no recollection of that date; prior to that, I imagine, I am not sure.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you did not return any Harris style number of dresses until after this tele gram? A. Oh, yes, excuse me, we took them off sale, we did not return them.

Q. So that at the very time that you were informed that Harris style 809 was a copy, the delivery was bad up to that time, is that not so? A. Yes, but there is a big distinction between May 14th and June 20th.

Q. But up to May 14th delivery on style 809 was bad, was it not? A. Wasn't complete.

Q. So that your previous testimony that "disappointed delivery so bad" referred to the fact that you could not get delivery because it was a copy, that is so, is it not? A. I don't recall making that statement.

Q. Did not you attempt to convey the thought that "disappointed delivery so bad" referred to the fact that delivery had been stopped on 809 because it was a copy? 7682
A. At the time I sent this wire, as you pointed out, we had not as yet retutrned the dresses, because the wire said: "However, under present arrangement compelled to return copies suggest Groff or Leon Mandel state situation to guild to see if exception could be made to keep us competitive with other stores that have copies of same style." So at that time we had hopes of continuing running style 809, otherwise I never would have made this reply and among other styles that were not then on delivery, 809 was one. Is that what you meant?

Q. And the fact delivery was bad had nothing whatsoever to do with the fact that you had been informed that it was a copy, was that not so? A. I don't see any relation 7683 between the two.

Q. How far behind was Harris in deliveries on May 14th?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is no relation between the two. Why go into it?

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor the purpose of that question?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

(Short interruption.)

Examiner Bennett: You may answer.

The Witness: I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you any idea? A. No, I cannot recall.

Q. Were they eight weeks behind on delivery? A. I don't know the date of the original order. I couldn't say.

Q. Can you get it? A. I imagine it is on file in our 7685 New York office; the order was placed in New York.

Q. Is that the only place where it was on file?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. It is so far away from the issues.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain an objection to asking the witness to get further information unless he has it in his possession here.

Mr. Albert: Is that information in Chicago?

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: If your Honor please, we will make an objection to the interrogation of the witness along that line.

Examiner Bennett: Beg pardon?

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: I say, we will make an objection.

7686 Examiner Bennett: Yes. Well, I have always advised witnesses that on cross-examination they were not under obligation to go out and get new matter for the cross-examination, and I still advise the witness to that effect. If he wants to do it as an accommodation to the cross-examining attorney, I have no objection; but, as an obligation, I advise him that he is under no obligation, and I so instruct this witness.

Mr. Albert: Do I understand, then, that the witness declines to give the information?

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: Counsel objects to it, and the Court sustains the objection.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. In what record will such information be found?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: I renew the objection.

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Albert. 7688

Q. Is there a record of such an order, and of the delivery date with respect thereto?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the witness has refused, upon advice of counsel, to give me the information. The only way I can find out sufficient about such an order to name it in a subpoena duces tecum is by finding out from the witness exactly where the record may be obtained. I am not asking him to disclose the contents of it, but unless I can at least question the witness as to what the name of it is, the respondent is hamstrung in its 7689 attempt to receive the testimony. The only place we can find that out is from Mandel Brothers.

Examiner Bennett: When you get to that point, I think, as a matter of fact, that you have sufficient information. I am sure you cannot get a subpoena duces tecum to get it on cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: No. I mean, however, when we get back to New York.

Examiner Bennett: That is later.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor. Exception.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, what do you mean, in Respondents' Exhibit 52 in evidence, by "Paris Style 809 direct copy"? What do you mean by "direct copy"? A. I mean Miss Kindler had come in and told us that the dress is a direct copy, and we must take it off sale, and return it.

Q. What is a "direct copy," a copy of what? A. Under the Guild regulations a copy of a Guild dress.

7691 Q. You mean a copy of an original style? A. I believe that is the usual wording.

Q. Did anyone associated with Leon Mandel have any conference with Mr. Harris with respect to these styles that you have been referring to?

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as too indefinite.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he knows.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Who? A. Our New York office.

Q. By that do you mean Mr. Groff? A. Mr. Groff and Mr. Eisinger.

7692 Q. Aside from Mr. Groff and Mr. Eisinger, did any one from Mandel Brothers discuss with Harris the question of these styles being copied? A. In answering my first question, there wasn't anything about copies in the question, I might not have answered it right.

Mr. Haycraft: That is why I said it was too indefinite, Mr. Examiner. That is why I objected to it.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will sustain an objection to that question.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike the answer.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did Mr. Groff or Mr. Eisinger in any way discuss with Mr. Harris——

Mr. Albert: Question withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know the substance of the discussion between Mr. Groff and Mr. Eisinger and Mr. Harris? 7694

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. With respect to these styles?

Mr. Haycraft: There is nothing in the record on that.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. You were not present? A. No, sir.

Q. Were they under your instructions? A. I was responsible for their action, yes.

Q. Did they report to you on this particular question? 7695
A. After the style had been declared a copy, not before.

Q. Do you know what they did? Do you know about the substance of what their conference was about with Harris? A. Yes, I do.

Examiner Bennett: Very well.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What was that substance, Mr. Wyzanski? A. That I had told them we would have to return the style because it was a copy, and they went to talk it over with Harris and he told them that other stores that were co-operating with the Guild were buying the dresses, and he did not see any reason why we should not buy them.

Q. Did he tell you anything else? A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Byrne had any discussion with Mr. Harris? A. Yes, he did, but this was not at that particular time. He was in Chicago at 7697 that time.

Q. Who was in Chicago? A. Mr. Byrne. He later discussed it with Mr. Harris, I believe.

Q. Did Mr. Byrne tell you what was his discussion with Mr. Harris? A. Yes.

Q. What was the discussion that Mr. Byrne had with Mr. Harris? A. That Mr. Harris said we were very foolish letting his business slip out of our hands, because other stores co-operating with the Guild were buying them.

Q. Did Mr. Harris tell Mr. Byrne anything else? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Leon Mandel had a discussion with Mr. Harris? A. I don't believe Mr. Leon Mandel had a discussion with Mr. Harris.

7698 Q. As a matter of fact, didn't Mr. Harris tell you that these styles had been given to him by the A.M.C. to copy? A. He definitely did not.

Q. Are you quite certain? A. Positive.

Q. Did he tell that to Mr. Groff? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did Mr. Groff tell you that he told him? A. No.

Q. Did he tell that to Mr. Eisinger? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did Mr. Eisinger tell you that he told it to him? A. No.

Q. Did he tell that to Mr. Byrne? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did you obtain information from any source— A. I didn't get that first part.

Q Did you obtain information from any source that Mr. Harris had been given these styles to copy by the A.M.C.? A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, in abiding by its express declaration of co-operation with the Guild, did Mandel Brothers' store abide by the letter as well as the spirit of the declaration? Did Mandel Brothers use all of the dresses which you have referred to as being ordered in that group of nine styles, of which you sold 6600? 7700

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as meaningless.

Mr. Albert: To dispose of.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

Mr. Haycraft: He has already answered that question.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: Sustained. I think we have gone into that as far as is proper.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did Mandel Brothers always return to the manufacturer dresses which had been adjudged copies of Guild manufacturers' dresses? A. In all except one instance. 7701

Q. What instance was that? A. In one instance we took advantage of the clause in our rider that if the manufacturer did not want them back, we reserved the right to dispose of them as we saw fit. That is in the letter that excepted the basement, attached to our original riders, clause No. 2.

Q. Do you know how you disposed of the dresses in that instance?

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, do you know whether or not Mandel Brothers ever purchased merchandise from Guild manufacturers and then resold the same to retailers who had been red carded?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception. If the Court please, I offer to prove that if this witness had been permitted to answer this question he would have answered that Mandel Brothers had purchased merchandise
7703 from Guild manufacturers not for its own consumption, and that it had shipped it to retailers who had been red carded for sale by such retailers.

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: For the purpose of this record we take exception to the statement of counsel, as to what he is offering to prove by this witness in this case.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike it.

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: And we move to strike it.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, what effect upon your upstairs department has the sale of a copy of a dress being sold 7704 in the upstairs department when sold in the basement? A. What was the question again?

(Question read by the reporter.)

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Is that an actual situation? A. It is a conceivable situation.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: I have no facts upon which I could base any answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. What effect upon your upstairs department has the sale of a copy?

Mr. Albert: Question withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, do you know that certain manufacturers in the industry contend that there is an evil existing known as style piracy? 7706

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know that there are certain retailers in the industry who contend that there is such an evil existing in the industry, known as style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection; irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling.

Mr. Haycraft: Beg pardon? 7707

Examiner Bennett: Same ruling.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you discuss at the time of signing the Declaration of Co-operation the question that there existed an evil in the industry known as style piracy? A. That question came up for discussion in some of the conferences that I was at.

Q. Is it true that at the time of the signing of that Declaration of Co-operation Mandels believed that the principles declared by the members of the Guild with respect to the program were proper for the protection of the public, the retailer and the manufacturer?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is no foundation laid to that question. The witness said it was discussed, then counsel asks him whether or not that was Mandel's policy.

Examiner Bennett: Well, do you know anything about it? I will let you answer if you know. Read the question.

7709 (Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: They thought it was a theory which might well be experimented with.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And you have experimented with that theory— A. We have.

Q. —up to the present date? A. We have.

Q. And you have not withdrawn your Declaration of Co-operation? A. We have not.

Q. And since the broadening of the scope of the program of the Guild——

Mr. Albert: Question withdrawn.

7710 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, does Mandel Brothers believe that manufacturers of original dresses should be protected in the design of those dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is nothing to show there is such a thing, no foundation laid for that question.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Have you ever gone into the New York market to assist in buying dresses? A. To assist in buying them?

Q. Yes. A. I have gone into the New York market with the buyers to give them my advice.

Q. In the course of your duties have you ever made a comparison of the dresses which have been adjudged copies with the dress of which they have been claimed to be copies? A. I have seen both, yes.

Q. What was the basis of your comparison? A. There was no comparison that I made.

Q. You just looked at them? A. That's all.

Q. Aside from the administration on behalf of Mandel 7712
Brothers of the policies set forth in the Declaration of Co-operation, have you any knowledge of the theory upon which such Declaration of Co-operation is predicated, as to the meaning of style piracy or origination in dresses, and of the right to protection of origination in dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: What is the question, please?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I have some ideas about it.

By Mr. Albert.

7713

Q. What was there about the Guild merchandise which made it necessary for you to obtain the same and which formed the basis for your signing the Declaration of Co-operation as you have testified to? A. I didn't know that I had testified to that.

Examiner Bennett: What was that question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Haycraft: I did not get to object before the witness answered, but I object to the form of the question.

Examiner Bennett: If he understands the question, I will let him answer. I think he has already answered it two or three times.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did you not testify, Mr. Wyzanski, that the reason why the Declaration of Co-operation was signed was in order to obtain merchandise from the Guild manufacturers? A. I testified that that was one of the reasons.

7715 I did not say that was the only reason.

Q. What were the other reasons? A. That Mandel Brothers was interested in experimenting with this theory of style protection to see if it could be successful.

Q. Was that by reason of your belief that an evil existed known as style piracy? A. It had nothing to do with my belief at the time.

Q. How about Mandel Brothers' belief?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know anything about it?

Mr. Haycraft: No foundation laid.

7716

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you know whether Mandel Brothers had any belief on that subject? A. Yes. I believe—it is my recollection that they thought it was a theory worth experimenting with.

7717

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That the protection was a theory worth experimenting with, isn't that what you said? A. That protection was? What do you mean?

Q. That protection of styles was a theory worth experimenting with. A. Yes, that is right.

Q. What was it that they thought would be a good idea to try to protect? A. Prevent the copying of better dresses.

Q. What was there about the better dresses that was copied? A. Those facts that would make a style piracy committee adjudge it to be a copy.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to what those facts are? A. No specific knowledge.

7718

Q. Isn't it a matter of fact that what was sought to be protected and what Mandel Brothers was trying to protect was the style of dresses as originated by these manufacturers?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to. There is nothing to show these manufacturers ever originated anything yet.

Mr. Albert: I am asking this witness——

Mr. Haycraft: There is no foundation for it.

Mr. Albert (continuing) —if that is what he was trying to protect.

Mr. Haycraft: There is no foundation for it.

Mr. Albert: Do you have to lay a foundation for everything you ask this witness? We are finally getting this witness to the point where he is admitting a few things.

7719

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Haycraft: I say there is nothing to show that there is anything, Mr. Examiner—that they ever originated any.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that. It seems to be loaded.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was the copying of better dresses, whatever that may mean, an evil at the time that you signed that Declaration of Co-operation? A. There was a question as to whether it was an evil. There was a definite question as to whether it might have been or might not.

Q. Was there any discussion with respect to that? A. I believe there was.

7721 Q. Was there any decision on that discussion as to whether or not the copying of better dresses was an evil or was not an evil? A. I think the decision was to be left to experience by co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild, that it was a theory we wanted to experiment with.

Q. What theory did you want to experiment with? A. Whether copying, style piracy, was an evil.

Q. Do you mean to tell me that Mandel Brothers declared they would co-operate with a scheme to protect something which it did not believe was an evil? A. I didn't say it did not believe it was an evil. I said it did not know; it might be and it might not.

Q. Without knowing or deciding that an evil existed,

7722 they signed a Declaration of Co-operation to return dresses? A. They quite evidently did.

Q. Can you explain how co-operating in a policy of protection demonstrates that an evil exists?

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: If your Honor please, before the witness answers that question I would like to have some definition read into this record as to what type of evil counsel is questioning the witness about. Is he talking about evil from the standpoint of the manufacturer, or evil from the standpoint of the retailer, or evil from the standpoint of the consumer? Just what is this evil we have heard a great deal about this afternoon?

Mr. Albert: I will be very glad to enlighten counsel. I read from the Declaration of Co-operation signed by Mandel Brothers—signed by Albert M. Post, who was at that time merchandise manager of Mandel Brothers, and, if the Commission wishes to obtain the information that counsel has requested, Mr. Post is in the room at the present time and can testify fully as to it. As regards the actual matter in hand, in order not to have any encumbering of the record, I ask counsel particularly to read what Mandel Brothers signed. 7724

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: I would suggest that you confine your questions to the witness' end of this delaration of policy and what it shows.

Mr. Albert: May we have the last question and the answer? That is, may we have the last question read and may the witness answer it?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that as argumentative.

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert. 7725

Q. Will you explain what there is in the mechanics of protection that would reveal to Mandel Brothers the existence or non-existence of the evil of style piracy?

Mr. Haycraft: Same objection.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain that objection.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Does Mandel Brothers still subscribe to the Declaration of Co-operation as signed by it originally? A. Mandel Brothers still subscribes to the original declaration, plus the rider that we attached to it.

Q. In the light of the fact that the program of the Fashion Originators Guild to-day, subscribed to by those who have signed the Declaration of Co-operation and are abiding by it to-day, does not include the rider, Commission's Exhibit 527-B, is the Fashion Originators Guild to interpret your answer as a withdrawal of your Declaration of Co-operation?

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: We object. That is not an issue for this hearing. Whether or not Mandel Brothers stays with the Guild or no longer stays with it certainly should not be decided by the witness.

Mr. Albert: We have had an equivocal answer by this witness. It has been demonstrated, I believe, thus far that the policy of the Guild does not include the exceptions at present contained in Commission's Exhibit 527-B. This witness has stated that the policy of Mandel Brothers as of to-day has not in any way altered, and that in so far as it was concerned they agree with the policy of co-operation only in so far as Commission's Exhibit 527 is consistent with their original declaration. I believe, in the light of the testimony that has been given, the Commission should know and should be informed as to what is the intention of this witness.

Examiner Bennett: What is the pending question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: Objection sustained.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

Examiner Bennett: That is a matter you can settle between the Guild and Mandel Brothers. We are not going into that.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Has your experience with protection of styles in the light of your co-operation pursuant to the Declaration of Co-operation shown there is an evil known as style piracy in the industry?

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you understand that? A. It is very difficult for me. 7730

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; too indefinite as to what he means by "industry."

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer if he understands it.

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: Evil to whom, if your Honor please? To the retailer, the manufacturer or to the buyer?

Mr. Haycraft: It is too indefinite.

Mr. Albert: I will accept the amendment to the question. I will let him answer it individually.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer the whole matter, if he recognizes any evil in the industry. I imagine we will have to take it by and large as to whether it is, on the whole, an evil or a benefit. 7731

Mr. Haycraft: It is also objected to as irrelevant and immaterial to the issues.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. If he knows, he may answer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. And if you want to differentiate between manufacturer, retailer and consumer and state either that it is or is not an evil with respect to either one of them, you may answer it in that way. A. We like to look at it from a customer viewpoint and we are interested in the experiment as being possibly beneficial to those customers that buy better dresses in our store. I believe that was one of the hopes with which we signed the declaration. That is why we called this theory an experiment. And, while we believe that it has been of benefit to dresses in the better price lines, we cannot establish it, we cannot seem to prove 7733 it within our store. As I have stated before, it has definitely hurt the basement because it is contrary to our policy down there.

Q. Would you say that style piracy is an evil in the industry in so far as the manufacturer is concerned? A. I don't know.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; no foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

The Witness: I am not a manufacturer.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that style piracy was an evil in the 7734 industry in so far as the retailer was concerned, with the exclusion of the basement?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection. He has answered that as fully as he can, it seems to me, and very frankly.

(Whereupon, at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 24, 1936, the hearing in the above entitled matter was adjourned, to reconvene at 10 o'clock A. M. of the following day, Tuesday, August 25, 1936.)

7735

Room 1123, New Post Office Building,
433 West Van Buren Street,
Chicago, Illinois,

August 25, 1936.

Met pursuant to adjournment, 9 o'clock A. M., C. S. T.
Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

Same appearances, and:

7736

GEORGE H. LIKERT, JR. (1313 Wells Building, Milwaukee, Wisconsin), appearing for Ed. Schuster & Company, Inc.

PROCEEDINGS.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

HENRY N. WYZANSKI thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Cross-examination (continued) by Mr. Albert.

7737

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, after the signing of the Declaration of Cooperation do you know what instructions were given the buyers with respect to the merchandise that they purchased, specifically with respect to the purchase of copies?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to unless it is restricted to the department over which Mr. Wyzanski had direction at that time.

Mr. Albert: He may still know, if it please the Court, the instructions generally.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if he knows. You may answer as to your department, if you know, Mr. Wyzanski, or if you have knowledge you may answer.

The Witness: I do not know definitely.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you know for your own department? A. None of those provisions applied to my own departments at that time.

Q. Well, what was the practice among the buyers in your department?

7739

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to; no foundation laid.

Mr. Albert: This happens to be the laying of the foundation, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Ask him if he knows. If you know, you may answer.

The Witness: My buyers at that time went out and bought merchandise as they always have.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, I mean, frankly, Mr. Wyzanski— A. Yes.

Q. —I want the record to be clear—that is, your buyers did not? A. You are talking about the sub-buyers at the moment, are you not?

7740

Q. Yes. I mean, they did not go out and look for copies; they bought merchandise, that is all; they bought dresses as they saw them? A. They bought dresses that they thought the public would like best.

Q. Right; and in attempting to purchase them they did not specifically go out and look for a copy of any particular dress, did they? I mean, they shopped the market and bought what they thought was proper for the department? A. I would not say that. We always had the thing out down in the basement as to what—not only our upstairs store, but other upstairs stores were doing.

Q. Yes. A. And we attempted to get the same type of merchandise in our basement. at basement prices,

Q. Well, would you then say that in the basement your buyers specifically attempted to purchase copies of the better dresses? A. I would not make it as general as that. I would say that if there was something particularly hot in the upstairs store, or throughout the country, that they would do their level best to get merchandise as close to it as possible in their price lines.

Q. So that perhaps at particular intervals they might see, or not, a particular dress, that they would attempt 7742 to get that, but as a general policy it was not the policy of the buyers to continually try to get copies for the basement in the way—I mean, I want the record to be clear in fairness to Mandel Brothers. A. It is hard to define the word "general." There were many cases where they did.

Q. Specifically purchase copies? A. Specifically attempt to purchase copies, and in the buying of other dresses they undoubtedly bought copies whether they knew they were copies or not.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Wyzanski, do you know what effect upon the value of a better dress was the sale of the copy of that dress in the market to the public? A. No—are we continuing this discussion in the basement?

Q. No. 7743

Mr. Albert: Will you read the question, please?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I am confused by "in the market to the public."

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, we will leave out "in the market to the public."

A. Read it again.

(Last question read as follows: "Q. Well, now, Mr. Wyzanski, do you know what effect upon the value of a better dress was the sale of the copy of that dress?")

Q. What, in your opinion, is the effect on the salability of a better dress selling, let us say, for $29.75 on a copy of that dress being sold for $16.75?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, not proper cross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

The Witness: What did you say, sir?

7745 Examiner Bennett: You may answer if you have any opinion.

The Witness: I could conceive of a dress at $16.75 being a copy of a $29.75 dress and hurting the sale of that $29.75 dress.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. That is, isn't it a little bit more than conceiving that it would hurt? Don't you know from your experience that the sale of a copy of a better dress has definitely and does definitely and will always definitely hurt the salability of that better dress? A. I know definitely that that is not true as you have expressed it—always definitely.

Q. In very rare cases will it not affect the salability of 7746 a better dress? Is that not so? A. I know of two cases this spring where our store bought dresses from a man and they were retailed at $35 and he was a non-Guild man and there were copies of that dress in stores in Chicago and we continued to sell that dress at $35 and sell it successfully, because the other manufacturers did not have that something—I don't know what it was—it was the line or the fit or something that made our dress continue to sell at $35, and we did not take a single reduction right through the summer season.

Q. Well, then— A. (Continuing) I know of a similar case in Marshall Field's.

Q. Would you say that the other two dresses were copies of your $35.75 dress—whatever price you mentioned? A. Yes, I would say they were copies.

Q. Despite the fact you say they could not compare with your dress, there was something about them that was lacking? A. Yes, but it was the fit, must have been the fit. I cannot conceive of anything else, because they were copies.

Q. Where were these other two dresses sold, do you know?

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: We would not like, Mr. 7748
Examiner——

Examiner Bennett: I do not hear you.

Mr. Ben J. Altheimer: We would not like the witness to testify as to who the buyers were that handled the dresses, who they were, and what competitors handled the dresses, because other people may go there and buy them.

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor exactly what I am getting at? I would like to do it to your Honor personally without revealing the purpose of the examination thus far, because if I do that it will be defeated automatically. I think your Honor will agree with me as to the relevancy of the question and the pertinency of it. 7749

Mr. Haycraft: I think we are way off from the issues in this case, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: I beg your pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: I say, I think we are way, way off from the issues in this case.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Are you objecting?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I am objecting—irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection as irrelevant.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor will permit me?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, can you give us an estimate of the number of styles handled in the basement during 1935? A. I could not.

Q. Have you any idea whatsoever, a rough estimate? We are not asking for anything specific. A. No. I am sorry.

7751 Q. Can you give us an estimate of the number of styles that you handled in your basement which are copies of Guild merchandise? A. No, I cannot.

Q. Do you know how many different styles you have in your basement to-day? A. No, I do not.

Q. Can you make any estimate of the number of copies of Guild merchandise that you have in your basement store to-day? A. I assume that there are none because we are being shopped.

Q. Aside from that, you don't know? A. Well, I am relying upon the accuracy of Miss Kindler, and also on our buyer, who is instructed not to buy Guild copies.

Q. Have you at any time prior to this hearing prepared any statistics showing the number of styles generally used 7752 in your basement? A. No, I never have.

Q. Have you, prior to this time, ever prepared statistics or comparative figures showing the number of copies of Guild merchandise that you have used in your basement? A. No, I never have.

Q. Have you at all investigated or shopped the stock of your so-called competitors in an attempt to determine the number of styles that your competitors generally have on hand? A. Your question reads "total number of styles"?

Q. Yes. A. No, we never have.

Q. Have you ever shopped your competitors to determine the number of copies of Guild merchandise that they have ever had on hand at a particular time? A. I can't say that we have made a survey, but our shoppers have reported off and on from time to time the presence of Guild copies in chain shops.

Q. But as regards the number of those copies you cannot say; is that so? A. I cannot say as regards to number, except that it has been a continuous occurrence.

Q. In so far as you know is it possible that the shopper that shopped your competitor each time reported on the same copy as being present? A. I don't think the life 7754 of the average dress would last as long as our shoppings have been over a period of time.

Q. Is there anything in your investigation that might lead you to——

Mr. Albert: Question withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Can you tell us definitely, as a result of your shopping, whether or not a particular competitor had more than one copy of Guild merchandise in stock at any particular time, and if so, the number? A. It is my recollection that they had many Guild copies.

Q. How many would you say, as a result of your shopping investigations? Have you any idea? A. Oh, I have 7755 seen reports that stated three or four from time to time.

Q. Three or four in stock at a particular time? A. Styles.

Q. Styles? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how many styles that particular competitor was showing in addition to these three or four copies of Guild merchandise?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: It is most relevant, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: I don't know that and I don't know how many additional Guild copies they might have, other than the ones that the girl reported on.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. As a matter of fact——

Mr. Albert: Withdrawn.

7757 By Mr. Albert.

Q. Your opinion, Mr. Wyzanski, that these competitors were selling copies of Guild merchandise is predicated—is this correct?—solely upon the opinion of your shopper who shopped the competitor? Is that so? A. No.

Q. Upon what, in addition to that, do you base your opinion that this particular copy was actually a copy? A. The opinion of the buyer, who is in the market and used to report to me how much she was being hurt, that she saw others selling styles that she saw orders on being shipped to Chicago because I would not let her sell those styles, and complaints that her business was being hurt thereby.

Q. The only information upon which you predicate your 7758 belief that copies are being sold by competitors is on the information given you by the shopper in the store and by your buyer who said that she could not buy the merchandise, is that correct? A. No.

Q. Well, what else? A. My own opinion, from what seems to me a common-sense viewpoint, that if Guild dresses are good styles and if a person does not belong to the Guild and they are selling merchandise in the cheap price lines and they want to give the customers the best styles that they can, that they would naturally tend toward buying Guild copies. That is my opinion, I say. It may not be so.

Q. So that, in so far as your opinion is concerned, you base it purely upon the assumption that they must have Guild copies in order to sell their dresses?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to; not his testimony at all.

Examiner Bennett: He has answered "No," I think, hasn't he?

Mr. Haycraft: I didn't hear it.

7760

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Wyzanski, have you prepared up to the present time any figures showing the ratio of copies of Guild merchandise in your basement store as compared with other merchandise sold in the basement store? A. No, we have not made such a study.

Q. Have you those figures for any period of time at all? A. No, we have not.

Q. Then your opinion——

Mr. Albert: Withdrawn.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Then, despite the fact that you have no comparative 7761 figures upon which to predicate your belief, it is your opinion that the basement store has been hurt by your inability to obtain copies? A. I do have such comparative figures to this extent, that we know we have sent back fast-selling styles, styles that we were selling in our basement, styles that we would have re-ordered and got potential sales on, and by returning them we must have lost business, because the styles were selling and we did not re-order them.

Q. Have you made any concomitant gains in your better departments? A. I tried to answer that question yesterday by saying that we think it is a good thing in our better dresses, but in examining our figures we cannot prove it.

Mr. Albert: That's all.

Redirect examination by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. At the time you held the conferences with Mr. Post and Mr. Mandel, before the signing of the Declaration of Co-operation agreement, Commission's Exhibit 527-A, what was the position that Mr. Post held? A. He was 7763 merchandise manager of the ready-to-wear and intimate apparel, Mandel Brothers.

Q. You were asked to testify as to what was said at those conferences, and you started to testify twice and you were interrupted. I will ask you now to testify as to what—

Mr. Albert: I object to the statement of Mr. Haycraft.

Mr. Haycraft: May I complete my question?

Mr. Albert: I am sorry. I thought you had completed it.

Examiner Bennett: Complete it.

Mr. Haycraft: Let the reporter read it as far as I had gone.

(Question read by the reporter.)

7764

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing)—transpired at those meetings as to the policy of Mandel Brothers with respect to the subject matter of the Declaration of Co-operation?

Mr. Albert: Are you through, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: I am through.

Mr. Albert: If the Court please, I object to the gratuitous inclusion of an irrelevant and unfounded statement by Mr. Haycraft with respect to the question involved. I also object to the question upon the ground it is improper redirect.

Examiner Bennett: My recollection is that that was gone into on cross-examination. You may answer it yourself, sir, with sufficient accuracy to tell us, if you know the substance of what was said at those conferences.

The Witness: I have a recollection of it; I have a definite recollection, but I cannot swear to it.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Give us your best recollection. A. My best recollection is that it was discussed and the feeling was that it was a theory worth experimenting with, and that for this reason and the fact that Mandel Brothers wanted to be able to give its customers the best that the market afforded and be able to go into any resources in the market —for those two reasons, as I recall it, to my best recollection, that is the reason we signed the Declaration of Co-operation. 7766

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How many dresses did you actually return to the Harris Company as a result of the advice of the shopper that they were copies?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as improper redirect. The testimony has shown he was eventually permitted to sell them all. 7767

Mr. Haycraft: I am trying to find out how many were actually returned, if he knows.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer. Overruled.

A. Of style 809 we had 700 on order. How many of them came into the store I do not know. But those that did come into the store were returned and the remainder of the 700 that did not come into the store were canceled, in addition to which there were 400 other dresses canceled which were not copies, so that our assortment might be kept in proper proportion between one and two-piece styles, as I explained yesterday.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. As to the other numbers, 813 and 829, those were all canceled; is that right? A. No.

Q. What was the situation with reference to that? A. 813 we were forced to take off sale because it was a copy.

7769 That was the one where we had the ad running for Tuesday, the merchandise came in Monday, we got notification from the Guild it was a copy, so we took it off sale, and we changed our ad from a two-cut ad to a one-cut ad, running a dress that had not been called a copy, thereby depriving us of potential sales on the other one.

Q. How about 829, what did you do about that one? A. I don't recall the details of 829.

Recross-examination by Mr. Albert.

Q. I believe Mr. Haycraft asked you how many of style 809 were returned to Harris; is that correct? A. That is correct. I believe so.

Q. What was your answer? A. My answer was I could 7770 not tell him how many were returned. I did know we had 700 on order, but I did not know how many had come in, but that those that did come in we returned to Harris and canceled the remainder of the order, and in addition 400 other dresses.

Q. Did you return all of the dresses to Harris, or cancel all of the dresses which you had ordered from Harris? A. Of that style.

Q. Of that particular style? A. 809. And in addition, as I said, other styles that were copies, to make the order balance.

Q. When you specifically refer to style 809, do you mean that that style was one of the styles of which dresses were not sent to Stix, Baer & Fuller?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to.

Mr. A. J. Altheimer: We object to it.

Mr. Haycraft: It is not proper recross-examination.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection.

By Mr. Albert. 7772

Q. Now, Mr. Wyzanski, in so far as Mandel Brothers is concerned, what is their opinion as to the program of the Guild in its attempt to eliminate style piracy? Is it still an experiment?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as not proper recross.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, Mr. Haycraft asked the witness questions with regard to what they felt when they signed the Declaration of Co-operation, upon the ground that the witness had been prevented from answering matters with respect thereto on his cross, and therefore he brought it out on his redirect.

7773

Mr. Haycraft: Right up to that time.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Objection overruled.

A. Yes, we still feel that the experiment is going on and we do not believe that sufficient evidence has been gathered as yet to indicate whether it has been successful or unsuccessful.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that in all departments? A. In our better price lines. We feel that in our lower price lines, in our basement, that it has hurt us; but we subscribed to the theory originally as an experiment and we are still going along, trying to find the answer.

Q. What are you trying to find the answer to? A. Whether or not the elimination of style piracy will be a good thing for Mandel Brothers' customers.

7775 Q. In so far as Mandel Brothers is concerned, therefore, there is such a thing as style piracy, and the sole question is as to the possibility of eliminating it? Is that correct?

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to, going into a matter that was gone into on cross-examination before; mere repetition.

Examiner Bennett: I will sustain the objection to that.

Mr. Albert: That's all.

Mr. Haycraft: Nothing further.

(Witness excused.)

Examiner Bennett: Do you have another witness?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

7776 Mr. Likert: May I enter my appearance as attorney for the witness?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. Give it to the reporter, please. What is your name?

Mr. Likert: George H. Likert, Jr., of the firm of Kaumheimer & Kaumheimer, at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Examiner Bennett: Are you appearing for the witness?

Mr. Martin: He is appearing for the witness, yes, sir.

Mr. Likert: Yes, sir.

RALPH T. FRIEDMANN was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Martin.

Q. Will you state your name? A. Ralph T. Friedmann. 7778

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, where do you live? A. Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Vice-president of Ed. Schuster & Company, Inc.

Q. How long have you been in the employ of Schusters? A. Some sixteen years.

Q. How long have you been in your present position? A. Three years.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, what position did you hold with Ed. Schuster & Company in the fall of 1932? A. I was treasurer and general merchandise manager.

Q. What was your position in the winter, spring——

Mr. Martin: Strike that out. 7779

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What was your position in the summer of 1933? A. In the summer of 1933 I held the same position, treasurer and general merchandise manager.

Q. In the winter and spring of 1935 what position did you hold? A. Vice-president and assistant general manager.

Q. What business is Schuster Company engaged in? A. Retail Department Store.

Q. Do they have a ready-to-wear dress department, or departments? A. They do.

Q. What are those departments, do you know? A. They have a women's and misses' department, and a Budget Shop.

Q. Who is in charge of those particular department? A. We have a divisional merchandise manager in charge, with a group of buyers under him.

Q. Do they report to you? A. The buyers report to me —may I have the question please?

7781 (Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Not directly.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did they in the years 1932 or 1933? A. Buyers reported to the divisional merchandise manager, the divisional merchandise manager reported through my assistant, to me.

Q. Now, just briefly, what were your duties as Treasurer and general merchandise manager of Schusters in the years 1932 and 1933? A. I was responsible for the merchandising and promotional activities of the business, with a group of divisional merchandise managers reported to me.

7782 Q. Now, what were your duties in 1935 and 1936? A. Executive part of the responsibility of the general management—executive responsibilities of the business.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, have you ever heard of an organization known as the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated? A. I have.

Q. When did you first hear of it? A. 1932.

Q. Do you recall in what way it was brought to your attention? A. Well, we received a letter, as I remember it, from the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Mr. Martin: Mark these papers Commission's Exhibits 532-A to D and 533-A to I.

(Thereupon papers referred to were marked Commission's Exhibit 532-A to D, inclusive and 533-A to I, inclusive for Identification.)

Mr. Albert: You will save some time on the identification if you will let me see that.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Friedmann, I hand you Commission's Exhibits 532-A to D for Identification and Commission's Exhibits 533-A to I, and ask, can you identify those papers (indicating)? A. I can. 7784

Q. What is that? A. Letter sent to me by Maurice Rentner, chairman of the Fashion Originators Guild of America.

Q. Under what date? A. Date of December 16, 1932.

Q. What is the next exhibit, the next number? A. 533-A?

Q. Yes. A. That is a—I believe a copy—it is a memorandum attached to it, as nearly as I know.

Q. That is attached to the letter? A. Yes.

(Mr. Martin hands to Mr. Albert paper marked Commission's Exhibits 533-A to D, inclusive.)

Mr. Albert: Have not these gone in before?

Mr. Martin: I think it has. 7785

Mr. Albert: I mean, why put it in again Oh, well.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, is this the letter that you referred to in your testimony a few minutes ago, when you testified that you first heard of the Guild through receiving a letter from

Mr. Rentner in 1932—is this the letter you referred to (indicating)? A. It is.

Q. Now, after the receipt of that letter, which advised you of the Fashion Originators Guild, did you have any conferences with any of the officers of the Guild? A. I did not.

Q. Are you familiar with any of the other objects, or aims, or activities of the Guild, other than those outlined in Mr. Rentner's letter of December 16th, which is Commission's Exhibit No. 532-A?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, if it please the Court, as not within the complaint of the Commission, and 7787 being entirely irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Martin: I do not think that needs any argument by me, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Well, I will let him answer.

Mr. Albert: We are back in 1932, your Honor.

Mr. Martin: His Honor has ruled on the question.

The Witness: May I have the question read?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the Commission be asked to fix the time as to what he is speaking of?

Examiner Bennett: Yes, fix the time.

By Mr. Martin.

7788 Q. Since you first became acquainted with the Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as entirely immaterial and irrelevant, if it please the Court.

Mr. Martin: His Honor has already ruled on that.

Mr. Albert: Well, there was no fixing of time before. We are not interested in what happened back in 1932 or 1933.

Mr. Martin: No, you are not interested in anything that you do not think is going to help you.

Examiner Bennett: Yes. I will let him answer.

Mr. Keller: I move that that last remark be stricken.

The Witness: May I have the question read, please?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: No, I am not.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, did Schuster Company enter into any agreement with the Fashion Originators Guild as a result of 7790 this letter of Mr. Friedmann's, this letter of December 16th, 1932 (indicating)? A. We did not.

(Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits 534-A to D, inclusive, for identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Mr. Friedmann, I hand you Commission's Exhibits No. 534-A to D, inclusive, for identification, and ask, can you identify that paper (indicating)? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter to me under date of June 19, 1933 from Maurice Rentner, chairman of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated.

Q. All right, sir. Now, Mr. Friedmann, have Schusters ever signed a Declaration of Co-operation with the Fashion 7791
Originators Guild of America? A. No, sir. We wrote a letter.

Q. Did you enter into an agreement of co-operation and anti-piracy?

Mr. Albert: That is objected, if it please the Court, as calling for a conclusion of the witness. The witness has testified he did not sign the Declaration of Co-operation.

7792 Ralph T. Friedmann—For Commission—Direc

Mr. Martin: All right.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question ing?

Mr. Martin: That is all right; I will wi the question. Will you please mark these Commission's Exhibits 535, 536 and 537.

(Thereupon papers referred to were Commission's Exhibits 535, 536 and 537 fo tification.)

By Mr. Martin.

7793 Q. (Indicating) I hand you Commission's Exhi 535 for Identification and ask, can you identify tha I do.

Q. Sir? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. A Declaration of Co-operat Anti-Piracy.

Q. (Indicating) I hand you Commission's Exhi 536 and ask, can you identify that? A. I do.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from me to the F Originators Guild of America.

Q. (Indicating) I hand you Commission's Exhi 537 for Identification and ask, can you identify tha I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is an acknowledgment of ceipt of my signed Declaration of Co-operation wi 7794 members of the Guild.

Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, I h objection to Commission's Exhibits 536 a going into evidence, but I do not see that t any particular necessity for Commission's E 535.

Mr. Martin: Now, if your Honor please, in evidence, Commission's Exhibits 536 and

Examiner Bennett: Received; no objectio

(The papers referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 536 and 537, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, I will ask you is this letter of July 8th from you to the Fashion Originators Guild, which is Commission's Exhibit No. 536, the Declaration of Co-operation you signed with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. It is.

Q. And I ask you if Commission's Exhibit No. 537, is an acknowledgment on the part of the Fashion Originators Guild of the receipt of the Declaration? A. It is. 7796

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 536, which is the Declaration you signed, and Commission's Exhibit No. 535 for Identification, which was the form that the Fashion Guild sent you, and ask you if you will point out if there are any differences between those two papers (indicating)?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, the documents speak for themselves.

Examiner Bennett: Are you asking him to point out the difference?

Mr. Martin: I beg your pardon?

Examiner Bennett: Are you asking him to point out the differences which caused him to sign one Declaration? 7797

Mr. Martin: That is right.

Examiner Bennett: And not to sign the other?

Mr. Martin: That is right.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him point out what he regards as the differences.

Mr. Albert: Do you mind if I look over your shoulder?

The Witness: No.

Examiner Bennett: He may state what he regards as the differences.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What is the difference between those two statements? A. I would say that in the second paragraph of the Declaration which says that: "We do not and will not buy for our ready-to-wear departments any copied or pirated dresses of garments created by members of your association."

Mr. Albert: That is Commission's Exhibit 535 you just read from?

7799

Mr. Martin: For Identification.

Mr. Keller: That is a letter of——

The Witness: Our letter of July 8th, 1933, second paragraph stated: "We do not wish to buy, and wil not knowingly buy, for our ready-to-wear departments any copied or pirated dresses or garments created by members of your association."

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Am I to understand that the only difference is that in your agreement, as signed by you, you inserted the word "knowingly"? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Albert: Mr. Martin omits to include that in the Declaration signed by Mr. Friedmann there is also the statement not contained in the general form "we do not wish to buy."

7800

Mr. Martin: I inadvertently overlooked that, Mr. Albert.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Martin: I will put that question again.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. The only thing is that in the agreement as signed by you, Schuster Company, you made the statement that you did not wish to buy and "will not knowingly buy"? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, do you know what was the reason for making that change? A. As I recollect, we felt that we would not be able to determine ourselves whether or not we were buying a copy.

Q. Now, do you know the reason why your signed any Declaration?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to as immaterial, if it please the Court. 7802

Mr. Martin: I think it has a very material bearing.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; he may answer.

The Witness: May I have the question?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

("Now, do you know the reason why you signed any Declaration?")

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. What were your reasons for signing the Declaration in the form as signed by you? A. I would say there were three reasons——

7803

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, I object to the witness saying that he would say what the reasons were——

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please——

Mr. Albert: ——the question was what the reasons were at that time.

Mr. Martin: I object to counsel for the respondent interrupting the witness in the midst of an answer to a question. If he wants to object he can wait until the witness goes ahead and answers, but to interrupt him there in the middle of it, is highly improper.

Mr. Albert: We have to wait until the house burns down, your Honor, before putting the hose on it?

Mr. Martin: Right.

Mr. Albert: The witness is obviously not answering the question. I do not see why the record should be cluttered up when it is obviously not an answer to the question.

7805

Mr. Martin: You did not give him a chance, Mr. Albert; he was interrupted before he got started.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer the question.

The Witness: What was the question?

(Last question read and answer as given read.)

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead and enumerate them.

The Witness: Namely, in a letter from Mr. Rentner to us he had stated that all the outstanding lines would be shown in the fall through the Guild; secondly, we wanted access to these lines; and; in the third place, the divisional merchandise manager recommended that we sign that Declaration.

7806

By Mr. Martin.

Q. (Indicating) I hand you Commission's Exhibits for Identification No. 534-A to D and ask you if that is the letter of Mr. Rentner to which you refer in which he advised that lines would be restricted to those who signed the Declaration? A. It is the letter and memorandum.

Q. Did the purposes of the Fashion Originators Guild, as understood by you at the time you signed the Declaration, agree with, and were they in accord with the policies and the practices, of E. Schuster and Company, at that time? A. I would say the principles were.

Q. What was your primary motive in signing the Declaration?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as entirely immaterial, irrelevant. He has given us all the reasons, your Honor. We are getting into metaphysics when we start asking the witness as to which reason outweighed another reason.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if you have one, you may answer; overruled.

7808

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: To make it possible for all my buyers to have access to the showing of the fall lines, which, in accordance with Mr. Rentner's letter to me— May I change that and put it in better English? In view of the fact that——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. See if Commission's Exhibit No. 534-A for Identification in any way refreshes your recollection (indicating)?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court——

The Witness: Yes, it is in the memorandum——

7809

Mr. Albert: ——the witness answered, he had not seemed to need any refreshing of recollection. I do not see why Mr. Martin pushes a letter under the witness' nose and tells him to look at it and give his answer after reading the letter.

The Witness: No, I don't need that, I don't need that.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, the witness has a perfect right, without a tirade on the part of opposing counsel, to refer to these documents to refresh his recollection, if he so desires.

Mr. Albert: No question about it, your Honor, when he asks for it, and says he needs his recollection refreshed; but when he is answering from memory and seemingly needs no aid to his memory, I object to Mr. Martin sticking the evidence under his nose and telling him to read from it, practically.

Mr. Martin: I object to you setting up yourself as the arbiter as to whether he needs refreshing or not.

7811 Mr. Albert: That is the point to the objection, your Honor. I am not setting myself up as the arbiter. I am just objecting to the practices of Mr. Martin.

Mr. Martin: You certainly are——

Examiner Bennett: All right. Will you read the question?. And read the answer so far as it has gone, and let the witness finish his answer.

(Last question and answer read.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Go ahead. A. In a memorandum attached to Mr. Rentner's letter of June 19th to Ed. Schuster & Company, he had stated that all the outstanding lines would be shown by Guild houses; we felt it imperative and necessary 7812 that we have access to those lines.

Mr. Albert: May I see that a moment, Commission's Exhibit No. 534?

(Witness hands paper to counsel.)

Examiner Bennett: That letter has been used so much I think it should be in the record.

Mr. Albert: It is.

Mr. Martin: Your Honor please, this same letter, I have no objection to putting it in, and I do not think——

Mr. Albert: If your Honor feels you want this particular letter, I have no objection, but it has been in before.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, all right, then.

Mr. Martin: But this same letter is in the record.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

Mr. Martin: I think two or three times already.

Examiner Bennett: With that statement, of course, that is sufficient. 7814

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, after the date of July 8th, 1933, did you co-operate with the Fashion Originators Guild as indicated in your letter of that date? A. So far as I know, we did.

Mr. Martin: Do you know what exhibit the stamp is?

Mr. Albert: 306. Speak generally about the stamp. I will not——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Did you, in accordance with your agreement, place a warranty stamp, or cause to be placed the warranty stamp, set out in your letter of July 8th? A. I instructed that it be done. 7815

Q. That it be placed on all orders? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Mr. Albert Post of the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Mr. Friedmann? A. I do.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Post either in a personal conference or over the telephone, just prior to March 21st, 1935? A. I did not.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 538 for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin:

Q. (Indicating) I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 538 for Identification and ask can you identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter under date of March 21, 1935, from me to Mr. Post.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, with respect to Commission's Exhibit No. 538 for Identification, I know we ought to object to it upon the ground 7817 that proper foundation has not been laid as to the actual mailing of it. What I do wish to object to is this, your Honor, that undoubtedly there is a reply to that letter, that the respondents had no idea whatever as to who was going to be put on here, that we have not gotten in the Milwaukee correspondence and cannot check upon it.

Mr. Martin: For your information I have a reply and that will be introduced in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Very well, your Honor, subject to the introduction of the reply, I have no objection to the admission of Commission's Exhibit No. 538.

Examiner Bennett: It is received as Commission's Exhibit No. 538.

7818 Mr. Martin: It has not been offered yet.

Examiner Bennett: I understood that it was offered at the time.

Mr. Martin: No, I now offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit No. 538.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 538, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, I hand you Commission's Exhibit No. 538, for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, and ask did Schusters co-operate with the Guild from the time of signing the declaration on July 8th, 1933, up to the date of that letter (indicating)? A. Although I had given instructions that the stamp be affixed to all orders, evidently these instructions had not been thoroughly carried out in all instances.

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the reporter read the answer?

(Answer read.) 7820

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was the stamp affixed on all orders——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, as having been previously answered.

Mr. Martin: If you will kindly wait until I have finished my question.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry. I thought you had dropped your voice.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. (Continuing) —was the stamp affixed to all orders in all price lines? A. So far as I know, yes. The instructions were so given, so far as I remember. May I add to that, on rush orders also. 7821

Q. Did you receive any reply from Mr. Post to your letter of March 21? A. I believe I did.

Mr. Martin: I will ask this document be marked for identification as Commission's Exhibit 539.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 539 for Identification.)

Mr. Albert: May I point out to your Honor that we have reached the recess hour?

Examiner Bennett: Yes. We will take a ten-minute recess.

(A short recess was thereupon taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. After March 21st, 1935, Mr. Friedmann, did Schuster continue to—do you know whether or not Schuster continued to place the warranty stamp on all orders?

7823 Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. There is no testimony in evidence that prior to that time they placed it on all orders. The question assumes a state of fact not in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: You can cut out the word "continue". Let us not have a controversy about that. We have the record.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Friedmann, whether, after March 21, 1935, the Guild "warranty stamp" was placed on all orders? A. Instructions were given that it be done.

Q. That it be placed on all orders, regardless of price? Afterwards, I am referring to. A. Instructions were given that the stamp be placed on all orders over $7.75 whole-7824 sale.

Q. Over $7.75 wholesale? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know why that distinction was made at that time?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. No foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Do you know? A. Because in our letter to Mr.——

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Just answer "yes" or "no". Do you know why that distinction was made? A. Yes.

Q. Why was the distinction made? A. Because, in our letter to Mr. Post, we stated that we would place the stamp on orders on dresses over $7.75.

Q. I hand you Commission's exhibit for identification No. 539 and ask you if you can identify that (handing document to the witness)? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter to me from Mr. Post under date of March 23rd, 1935.

Q. Was that received by you in reply to your letter of March 21st, which is Commission's Exhibit 538? A. It was.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 539, was received in evidence as Commission's Exhibits 539-A to 539-F, inclusive.)

Examiner Bennett: You may proceed.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Was Commission's Exhibit No. 539-D enclosed with this letter?

7827

Mr. Albert: It is in evidence, Mr. Martin. We will concede it was sent. Why waste time?

By Mr. Martin.

Q. That was received with this letter? A. It was.

Q. And also this memorandum? A. It was.

Q. Now, Mr. Friedmann, with reference to your letter of March 21, and Mr. Post's reply thereto, under date of March 23, Commission's Exhibits 538 and 539, do you know the reason for the limitation to the $7.75 price line of the Guild stamp? A. I do.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, no foundation laid as to the source of his knowledge.

Examiner Bennett: He says he knows. He may answer.

The Witness: A. I do.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. What was that reason?

7829

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. You may answer.

A. I was advised by the merchandise manager in charge of ready-to-wear, and my assistant, who was also active in the Ready-to-Wear Division, that it would be necessary for us to make that $7.75 price stipulation in order to have free access to both the higher price and the lower price dress markets.

By Mr. Martin.

Q. Do you know whether subsequently to March 21, 1935, the promise which you made to Mr. Post in your letter of March 21, namely, that you would use the stamp and co-operate down to $7.75, was kept? A. I ordered it so.

7830

Mr. Martin: I will ask that this document be marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 540-A and B.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 540-A and 540-B for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's exhibits for identification 540-A and B and ask you can you identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a letter from Mr. Post, addressed to me, dated July 1, 1935.

Q. Was it received by you? A. It was.

(Mr. Martin handing document to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Albert: No objection, may it please the Court. We are not certain of it. That is why I make no objection.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I offer in 7832 evidence Commission's Exhibits 540-A and B.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 540-A and 540-B, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, I will ask this be marked Commission's Exhibits 541-A and B.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 541-A and 541-B for Identification.)

By Mr. Martin.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits 541-A and B for 7833 identification and ask you can you identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. A letter to me from Mr. Post, under date of November 8, 1935.

Q. Was it received by you? A. It was.

(Mr. Martin handing paper to Mr. Albert.)

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, it is stipulated between counsel that Commission's Exhibit No. 541-A and B for Identification, being a letter from Mr. Albert M. Post to Mr. Ralph T. Friedmann, of the Edward Schuster Company, under date of November 8th, 1935, is the same letter which was sent by Mr. Post to all retailers who had signed the declaration of co-operation with the Fashion Originators Guild, and a copy of the same is in evidence.

Mr. Post: As 361-A and B. I will check it.

Mr. Martin: A copy of which is already in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 361-A and B.

Mr. Albert: Commission's 541-A and B is the same as Commission's Exhibit 361-A and B, whatever the date of it.

7835

Mr. Martin: Yes. That's all.

Mr. Albert: No questions.

Mr. Martin: If your Honor please, it is now a quarter past twelve. Mr. Haycraft was to take the next witness, and he is not here at this time, nor is the witness. I would ask that you adjourn at this time, instead of waiting until 12.30, that we adjourn now for lunch, after which Mr. Haycraft will be back, and available.

Examiner Bennett: All right. We will reassemble at 1.50.

The Witness: Am I excused?

Mr. Martin: You are excused.

(Witness excused.)

7836

Examiner Bennett: Hasn't the witness a subpoena?

Mr. Martin: Yes, sir, but we had expected there would be some cross-examination, consequently we finished earlier than we had planned.

Examiner Bennett: We will recess until 2 o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 12.20 o'clock, P. M., a recess was taken until 2 o'clock, P. M. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION.

(Hearing resumed at 2:25 o'clock P. M.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please. You may proceed.

Mr. Albert: If your Honor pleases, before we commence this afternoon, I think, in all fairness to the respondents, we should have some indication from the Commission as to how they intend to proceed with their case from this point on.

We are not very near New York. It is necessary for us to get various files. We have attempted to bring as 7838 many as we can, and, at the present time, we cannot anticipate, we have not the slightest knowledge, as to who the Commission intends to put on as their witnesses.

As a result, undoubtedly cross-examination will be delayed by reason of the necessity of respondents' attorney after a witness is put on, getting out the correspondence with respect to that particular witness, so that I believe, in fairness, we should at least be told who the Commission expects to put on, in the attempt to save time.

Far more important than that consideration is the following, your Honor: We have noticed here in the corridors since we have been in Chicago, yesterday and to-day, two witnesses who ostensibly are going to be called in Minneapolis. The Commission has indicated that in so far as they are concerned, they expect to take testimony 7839 in Chicago here for a few days, then go to Minneapolis, and then come back.

It seems to me if these witnesses can come down from Minneapolis, and are in Chicago here at the present time, it is most unreasonable and unfair to require the respondents, who have to pay their expenses out of their own pockets, and do not get them from the Government, to go up to Minneapolis and pay the expenses of going up there solely for the purpose of meeting people who are here in Chicago at the present time, and then coming back to Chicago in order to take testimony here.

Either the Commission should continue its hearings in Chicago, and complete them here, and then go up to Minneapolis, if necessary, so that we can leave for New York from Minneapolis, or else put those Minneapolis witnesses on here in Chicago where they are at the present time, and where they have been attending the hearings in Chicago.

I cannot see any purpose whatsoever in our having to 7841 go up to Minneapolis to see people there who are here now. I do not think our request is an unreasonable one, and I think we should have some indication from the Commission's attorneys as to what their intentions are in that matter.

Mr. Martin: May I ask, isn't it necessary, in going from Minneapolis to New York, to come through Chicago?

Mr. Post: It is necessary, but it is not necessary to stop in Chicago. I am something of a native.

Mr. Haycraft: I assumed, Mr. Examiner, that counsel for the Commission had some privileges or responsibilities in this case. I do not understand that we have to take orders or directions from counsel for the respondents as to whom we shall call, or where we shall call them.

7842 Mr. Albert: We are not in any way attempting to give any orders to the Commission's attorneys, whatsoever.

Mr. Haycraft: Certainly the methods being used are not conducive to getting anything in that respect. When counsel for respondent tells the Examiner, and, through the Examiner tell counsel for the Commission, why, they should do this, and why they should not do that, it is not going to get him anywhere.

Mr. Albert: It seems to me it is a confession of weakness on the part of Mr. Haycraft if he assumes there is any threat in what I said. There certainly could be no threat in what I said against the Government of the United States. What I do say is, it seems to me to be most unreasonable to make us go up to Minneapolis, and then make us come back here, when the Minneapolis witness is here; and it certainly seems more unreasonable when the Minneapolis witnesses are in Chicago, to refuse to answer that question.

I may say that no matter how much it costs us, the Government will not get us to discontinue this case because of lack of funds, and if that is the theory Government's counsel are going on, they can put it out of the window immediately. Nor is there any reason whatsoever 7844 why, if we have funds to combat them, and will combat them, that those funds should be unnecessarily exhausted. It seems to me there can be no point whatever in going to Minneapolis when those people are in Chicago to-day, especially in the light of the fact that the Government attorney does not wish to tell us who they have in Minneapolis, aside from those they have here to-day.

Mr. Haycraft: With the attitude you are taking now you are not going to get anything. If you would come to me as one attorney to another, instead of going at it this way, there would be no difficulty. We have accommodated you all we possibly could.

Mr. Albert: No.

Mr. Haycraft: The facts will show to the contrary. 7845

Mr. Martin: I think the record will pretty well show what accommodation you have had in the past.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the Court, in the exercise of reasonable discretion, to inquire of the Commission's attorneys the necessity for going to Minneapolis when Minneapolis' witnesses are here in Chicago at the present time and the Commission's attorneys refuse arbitrarily to say whether or not they need anybody else in Minneapolis aside from those they have in Chicago to-day?

There are certainly some rights which respondent has. I will state the philosophy of the Commission's attorneys has been to ride rough-shod wherever they can, but I think it should be stopped at this point, in so far as that precious schedule is concerned.

Examiner Bennett: I would be glad to have the Commission's attorneys indicate their reasons for going to Minneapolis, or whether they have additional witnesses there, if it is true that their witnesses are here and might be heard.

Mr. Haycraft: I haven't anything to say on the matter, Mr. Examiner.

7847 Examiner Bennett: Well, don't you think, that you ought, for the record?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Bennett: The Examiner is of a different opinion. Have you any other witnesses?

Mr. Haycraft: Beg pardon?

Examiner Bennett: I say, I wish you would answer his question. Have you any other witnesses, other than those who are here in Chicago now, who you want to hear in Minneapolis?

Mr. Haycraft: I must respectfully decline to answer. In the first place, it is an assumption, Mr. Examiner, that I do not think should be made—that is, that there are witnesses present and ready to testify—which is contrary to the fact.

7848 Mr. Albert: I did not say they were ready to testify. I said they were in Chicago and it certainly would be more comfortable for them to stay here a day than to make seven of us go up to Minneapolis, with the attendant expense.

Examiner Bennett: If you will just wait and not interrupt, I do not understand that anything except stubbornness would prevent your making a reasonable statement as to why you want to go to Minneapolis.

7849

Mr. Haycraft: There are a number of reasons, Mr. Examiner, that I do not mind telling you.

Examiner Bennett: Well, what are they?

Mr. Haycraft: But I certainly feel no responsibility to tell counsel for the respondent.

Examiner Bennett: I want it now for the record, seeing that you have made an issue of it.

Mr. Haycraft: My responsibility, in the first place, is to the chief counsel of the Federal Trade Commission.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, I understand that.

Mr. Haycraft: The chief counsel of the Federal Trade Commission has been consulted and has authorized counsel 7850 for the Commission to call witnesses in Minneapolis and to have a hearing in Minneapolis. The names of those witnesses and whom they represent I am not permitted to disclose.

(Discussion outside the record.)

Examiner Bennett: Have you a witness ready?

LOUIS LIBERMAN was thereupon called as a witness for the Commission and, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Haycraft.

7851

Q. Will you state your name? A. Louis Liberman.

Q. Where do you live, sir? A. 3443 North Shephard Avenue, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Merchandise manager of major and minor apparel at the Ed. Schuster & Company stores, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Q. How long have you been in that position? A. Thirteen months.

Q. What did you do before that? A. I was idle for a period of six months.

Q. And before that what did you do? A. Apparel merchandise manager of Stix, Baer & Fuller Company, St. Louis, for nearly nine years.

Q. As apparel merchandise manager for Stix, Baer & Fuller, what were your duties? A. To supervise the merchandising, promotion and sales of ready-to-wear.

Q. Garments of what nature? A. Women's and misses' coats, suits, furs, dresses; junior apparel, girls', and sports wear.

Q. Did you do any buying yourself, or were buyers
7853 working under you? A. We had a corps of buyers for all these departments.

Q. What have been your duties since you have been associated with the Schuster Company? A. In the same capacity, merchandising, promoting the sale of apparel.

Q. Do you have buyers working under you now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How is the business divided, in the Schuster store, as to price lines of merchandise sold? A. Well, any particular department?

Q. Yes, do you have more than one department of womens' dresses? A. In dresses we have three divisions, womens' and misses', and the budget shop.

Q. Now, what price lines do you have in each of those divisions? A. In the budget shop we carry dresses retail-7854 ing up to—$5.98; in the women's and misses' regular dress departments we start at $6.98, upwards.

Q. In both? A. In both women's and misses'.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Originators Guild of America, Incorporated? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first learn of its existence? A. I believe back in 1932.

Q. While you were working for— A. Working for Stix, Baer and Fuller, St. Louis.

Q. What did you learn about it then? A. It was handled more or less through the general merchandise office.

Q. When you came with the Schuster Company, was that concern co-operating with the Fashion Originators Guild? A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. In what way did the Schuster Company co-operate with the Guild, at the time that you first came with them? A. Endeavoring to carry out the standards of practice that had been established by the F.O.G.A.

Q. Well, what did they do in that respect, anything? A. We had placed the Guild stamp on all orders that were purchased by the buyers in the market, and also through our New York representation. 7856

Mr. Haycraft: Where is that Guild stamp exhibit?

Mr. Albert: He did not use it. He just referred to it. He referred to it from the Declaration of Co-operation.

Mr. Haycraft: It is on here somewhere.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 536 and ask you whether or not the stamp that you refer to is set forth on that exhibit—the language of the stamp? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at that time was this stamp placed on all orders, or was there any limitation? 7857

Mr. Albert: May we have the time fixed?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When you came with the—when was it you said you said you went with the Schuster Company? A. On July 31, 1935.

Q. Now, will you answer the question? A. What is the question?

(Last question read by the reporter as follows: "Now, at that time was this stamp placed on all orders, or was there any limitation?")

The Witness: To the best of my knowledge the stamp was placed on all orders by the buyers.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, do you know whether or not there were any garments that were returned pursuant to the warranty? A. I believe there was, yes.

Q. Do you have any recollection of such returns, as to the names of any of the manufacturers, to whom returns 7859 were made? A. I believe all such records are on file.

Q. You haven't any recollection? A. No.

Q. Have you had prepared for your use in this proceeding a statement of those returns? A. I have.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 542 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 542 for Identification and ask you if that is the statement you refer to? A. Such a statement is correct.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence, Commission's Exhibit 542.

7860 Mr. Albert: I have no objection to the admission of this exhibit in evidence, your Honor, except to the statement that prefixes it, or, rather, to the second line of the statement that prefixes it, "Because Guild stated dresses were copies." I believe the exhibit should go in with the statement "Returns of dresses to vendors"—above the second statement.

Mr. Haycraft: Mr. Examiner, I will be glad to ask the witness some questions on that, but it would not be relevant to this case.

Mr. Albert: Unless he wishes to concede, your Honor, that they were adjudged copies.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 542, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: The witness has made one statement, Mr. Examiner, that I should like to—contrary to my understanding of the situation—and I should like to be allowed to refresh his recollection. 7862

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court—are you through, Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, again I rise to object to statements by counsel for the Commission, leading the witness in no uncertain terms. I think it is both out of place for Commission's counsel to state that the witness has given evidence that is contrary to his interpretation, or contrary to his knowledge, or contrary to the inferences that have been drawn from the investigation that the Commission has made. The witness has given his testimony with respect to a certain matter, and the Commission cannot—certainly cannot attack the credibility of its own witnesses. 7863

Examiner Bennett: This is not the document signed by this witness. I would think that would be sufficient to change his testimony upon it. I will sustain the objection to that, to your objection.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What was the practice of the Schuster Company in July of 1935 with respect to returning garments to manufacturers under the warranty clause that was stamped on orders?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, that is objected to as entirely immaterial. At the same time, the Commission certainly has shown what the practice is with respect to the return of garments that are adjudged copies; it is purely cumulative, and I can see no purpose that can be gained from asking this witness the mechanics of returning dresses.

7865

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; I will let him answer as to that particular form.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Shall I answer, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

The Witness: The practice was that the Guild shoppers that shopped the Schuster stores and made claims on merchandise—or on styles that were on sale—at which time we were so notified that they were copies, we returned the merchandise. This specimen—or this copy you have here—is a direct result of having received instructions and memorandum through the Guild representatives in Milwaukee.

7866

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You are referring now to Commission's Exhibit No. 542? A. That is right.

Q. Who was that shopper, do you recall her name? A. I believe in the fall of 1935 there was a shopper there, representative of the Guild by the name of Israel; later succeeded by a girl named Horwitz.

Q. Do you have any knowledge as to how often she shopped your store? A. I have not.

Q. Now, when you returned garments to the manufacturers for the reasons stated, did the manufacturers always accept them? A. No, sir.

Q. What was your experience in that respect?

Mr. Albert: Are we referring to the period after July 1, 1935?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

The Witness: I can't recall such correspondence; that is on file.

(Thereupon papers were marked Commission's Exhibits 543-A, B and C for Identification.) 7868

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you acquainted with Mr. Albert M. Post, who is executive director of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. I am.

Q. When did you first meet Mr. Post? A. I can't recall; a number of years ago.

Q. At the time that you became associated with the Schuster Company, was he in his present position as executive director? A. He was.

Q. Do you recall having had correspondence with him with respect to the activities of the Guild in Milwaukee? A. I had.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 543-A to C for Identification and ask you if you can identify it as a letter received from Mr. Post? 7869

Mr. Albert: May I see it, your Honor?

Examiner Bennett: The witness has not identified it as yet. Can you identify it (handing paper to witness)?

The Witness: This letter was received by me.

7870 Louis Liberman—For Commission—Direct.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. From Mr. Post? A. From Mr. Post.

Q. On what date—what date? A. In early September of 1935.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 543-A to C, was received in evidence.)

7871 (Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 544 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 544 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. That is a carbon copy of the reply to the letter.

Q. Carbon copy of your reply to Mr. Post's letter dated September 5th, 1935, being Commission's Exhibit No. 543-A to C? A. That's right.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

7872 (The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 544, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, in Commission's Exhibit No. 543-A, a letter from Mr. Post to yourself, reference is made to a Mr. Greenblatt—who is he? A. Mr. Charles Greenblatt was my predecessor at the Ed. Schuster Company store.

Q. This statement is found in the letter: "I am sure you are aware of the situation in St. Louis where practically every store has subscribed. I know that Milwaukee would straighten out very quickly if your store and the Boston store sent their checks." Do you know what Mr. Post was referring to there?

Mr. Albert: I think the letter speaks for itself, if it please the Court; it is obvious that if the rest of the letter was read it would indicate what was meant.

Examiner Bennett: Well, if there is any particular reason to which this refers, I would like to have it. He may answer. 7874

The Witness: May I have the question again?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I believe it was a matter of establishing a local Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did the Schuster store send in any checks in response to this letter? A. I do not know.

Q. Was there anything done while you were representing the Schuster Company with respect to the formation of a local Guild in Milwaukee? A. No, sir.

Q. At the bottom of page 2 of Mr. Post's letter is a postscript stating the following: "As recently as to-day a Milwaukee store (Hixons, I believe) complained to us 7875 about a certain local condition which could be straightened out in no other manner than by using the Guild." Do you know what Mr. Post referred to in the language I just read to you? A. I do not.

Q. There is a green ink notation in the right-hand margin of page 2; do you know in whose handwriting that is? A. I do not.

Mr. Haycraft: Will you concede that is Mr. Post's handwriting?

Mr. Albert: We will concede that that is Mr. Post's handwriting.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, directing your attention to Commission's Exhibit No. 542, and the instances with which you are familiar, when the Schuster Company returned dresses to vendors, because the Guild shopper told you they were copies of styles of Guild manufacturers, do you have any opinion as to the effect of that practice or policy upon the business of the Schuster Company? A. Such merchandise taken out of our shops naturally had a bad 7877 effect in loss of sales.

Q. In what way? A. That we could not meet competition in the lower price brackets.

Q. Competition of whom? A. Chain stores and specialty shops, also basement departments.

Q. Were you required at any time to return what was known as "hot numbers"?

The Witness: Please, your Honor, I would not know just how to qualify that—and answer as to "hot numbers."

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Well, are you familiar with the term "hot number"? A. I have heard it used.

7878 Q. Do you know what it means? A. You mean my interpretation of it?

Q. Yes. A. It may be a style that has particular vogue at the moment.

Q. Well, were you required to make returns of such styles? A. We were.

Mr. Albert: I am sorry, I did not get that, Mr. Liberman—you were not or you were?

Mr. Martin: We were.

The Witness: We were.

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibits 545-A and B for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 545-A and B for Identification and I ask you if you can identify it? A. I received such a letter.

Q. What is the date of it? A. January 13, 1936.

Q. Who is it from? A. Mr. Al Post.

Q. The executive director of the Fashion Originators Guild of America? A. That is right. 7880

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 545-A and B; and received in evidence.)

(Thereupon a paper was marked Commission's Exhibit 546 for Identification.)

Mr. Haycraft: Does counsel for the respondent concede that the pen notations in green ink on the first page of this letter are in Mr. Post's handwriting (indicating Commission's Exhibit 545)?

Mr. Albert: Yes, it is. 7881

Mr. Keller: What is the date of that?

Mr. Martin: January 13th, 1936.

The Witness: That is a carbon copy of a letter that I wrote to Mr. Post (referring to Commission's Exhibit 546 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. On January 20th, 1936? A. That's right.

Q. And is it in reply to the letter of Mr. Post, Commission's Exhibit No. 545-A and B? A. That's right.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence (Exhibit 546).

Mr. Albert: Is that January 13th?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 546, was received in evidence.)

7883 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Liberman, do you have any independent recollection of the subject-matter of these two letters? A. Pardon?

Q. Do you have an independent recollection of the subject-matter of these two letters? A. I believe they are stated right in the correspondence.

Q. I say, do you have an independent recollection aside from the correspondence, as to what the two letters were about? A. No.

Q. (Indicating) I call your attention to the second paragraph of your letter to Mr. Post dated January 20th, 1936, Commission's Exhibit No. 546, reading as follows:

7884 "Relative to the garment involved, wish to state that we were under the impression that anything costing under $4.75 was not to be considered a copy of higher priced merchandise or would conflict with the F.O.G.A." Does that refresh your recollection?

Mr. Albert: Now, if it please the Court, the witness has stated that he has no independent recollection, and he has stated that the transaction is accurately reflected in the letters.

Now, the letters are the best evidence of what transpired between the Guild and himself, and I do not think there is any information of any kind necessary from the witness. Both letters are most full and concise upon the points involved in the letters. The letters are the best evidence of what they show, and I object to any interrogation with respect to the letters.

Examiner Bennett: He may be interrogated as to his knowledge of that particular thing. As I understood it, that is what he is doing now, not attempting to contradict what is in the letter.

Mr. Albert: I beg your pardon? 7886

Examiner Bennett: I think it is not the purpose to contradict what is in the letters, but merely to show this witness' knowledge or lack of knowledge of the situation.

Mr. Albert: May I respectfully suggest to your Honor that I agree that it certainly—the question cannot certainly be directed at an attempt to contradict the letters, and that if he is merely asking the witness his recollection in order to substitute the letters, the letter is already in evidence and speaks for itself, and is the best evidence of the contents.

Examiner Bennett: I will overrule the objection, and let him answer.

The Witness: May I have the question? 7887

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: May I ask your Honor if I can see the letter from Mr. Post, probably I can derive some information from that?

(Mr. Haycraft hands the letter to the witness.)

The Witness: Matter of Gainmore dress—style 616—was a dress purchased through our New York office, through Cavendish, for our budget shop. I believe it cost $3.75. This letter states——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, may I suggest that a mere repetition of what the letter states is not going to be particularly helpful, and will merely clutter up the record?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. My question was whether or not the language to which I direct your attention refreshed your recollection as to the subject-matter of the transaction involved therein? A. It is answered in this third paragraph in my reply to Mr. Post.

Q. I will ask you this question now. In the light of the 7889 language to which I have directed your attention, was the Guild stamp, warranty stamp, placed on the order placed by the Cavendish Company for this particular garment?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, the witness—

The Witness: To the best of my knowledge.

Mr. Albert: The witness has answered.

Examiner Bennett: Is the Guild stamp covered in those letters?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Examiner Bennett: How?

Mr. Haycraft: No.

Mr. Albert: May I ask that Mr. Haycraft's question and answer be read? At the time I was making my objection I could not get his answer, and I do 7890 not know what went into the record.

Examiner Bennett: Yes, you may have it.

Mr. Albert: Will you read it, please, Miss Fisher?

(Question and answer read.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. If that is true, then, why did you object to returning the garments?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, is the Commission now attempting to impeach his own witness the same as he did before? He is now attempting to impeach the letter that is now in evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: I have never attempted to impeach anybody, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: He is now attempting to vary or alter the terms of this letter which is in evidence, and it speaks for itself, and I say that the Commission's attorney should be foreclosed from any further examination on this point.

Mr. Haycraft: I am merely trying to clarify the situation through the witness; perhaps the witness 7892 can clarify it and perhaps he cannot, if it please the Court. Candidly, I am puzzled, because I cannot tell why he should object to returning a garment if he put a stamp on it.

Examiner Bennett: What is the question?

Mr. Albert: I think Commission's attorney can very well leave that to the respondents.

Examiner Bennett: What is the pending question?

(Last question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Albert: I press my objection, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer. Overruled.

7893

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: This particular dress was purchased by the Cavendish office for the Budget Shop, the cost price of which was $3.75.

In my letter to Mr. Post, I stated there that, to the best of my knowledge, we agreed not to purchase copies of dresses under $4.75, I believe. It was a new stamp that was offered, all orders had to be stamped.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Then, is it your testimony that while you put the stamp on all orders, you did not agree to return garments under $4.75, is that it? A. That is as I understood.

Mr. Haycraft: I wanted to get it straight. I will ask to have this document marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 547-A, B and C.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibits 547-A, 547-B and 547-C for Identification.)

7895 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 547-A to C for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. This is a letter received by me under date of January 23rd.

Q. 1936? A. 1936.

Q. From Mr. Post? A. From Mr. Al. M. Post.

Q. In reply to your letter to him of January 20, Commission's Exhibit 546? A. That is right.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: Which is the letter of January 20th?

Mr. Post: That is 546.

Mr. Albert: No objection, if the Court please, except to the pencil notations that appear on that letter.

7896

Examiner Bennett: All right. Commission's Exhibit 547-A, B and C, without the pencil notations, is received.

(The letter referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 547-A, B and C, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask this be marked for identification Commission's Exhibit No. 548.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 548 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 548 for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This telegram was received by me from Albert M. Post.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer the telegram in evidence, dated February 5, 1936.

Mr. Albert: Is 547 January 23rd?

Mr. Post: Yes.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: Received. 7898

(The telegram referred to, heretofore marked for iden ication Commission's Exhibit 548, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you reply to this telegram of February 5, 1936?
A. I believe there was an answer.

Q. Did you reply in writing? A. I cannot recall.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask that this be marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 549.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 549 for Identification.) 7899

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. When did you first know that the Schuster Store had been red carded? A. At midnight of February 11th.

Q. How did you learn that? A. Why, I happened to get an early morning newspaper of the 12th; such notice was in the "New York Times," Tuesday, February 12th.

Q. Did you see any publication in "Women's Wear"?
A. Of Tuesday, February 12th.

Q. I will ask you to identify the paper I am handing you now, marked Commission's Exhibit 549 for Identification. A. That's right.

Q. What is that I just handed to you? A. The memorandum on the left is a copy of the news item that I saw in the "New York Times." The copy of the right is the article that appeared in "Women's Wear," under date of February 12th, 1936.

Q. Where were you at the time? A. New York City.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer that in evidence, the exhibit which contains both the newspaper statements.

7901 Mr. Albert: May it please the Court, this is objected to, on the ground that it is in no way binding upon the Guild. It is merely a reporter's conception of something that has happened, without any accuracy contained in the article itself.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 549, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did you do, Mr. Liberman, after you saw this notice in the newspapers, or these notices? A. I notified Ed. Schuster & Company, Milwaukee.

Q. Did you contact the Guild in any way? A. No, sir.

7902 Q. Subsequent to that time, did you have any conversation with Mr. Post? A. I did.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. I believe it was Tuesday morning, February 11th.

Q. What did you say to Mr. Post, and what did Mr. Post say to you on that occasion? A. I phoned Mr. Post and told him that I was in town. Mr. Post asked me whether or not I was ready to sign up a new declaration of co-operation. I told Mr. Post that I had not the power ttorney to sign any such agreement. Mr. Post then ed that it would be necessary to take action against Schuster & Company.

Mr. Albert.

. When was this, Mr. Liberman, please? A. That was sday, February 11th.

Mr. Haycraft.

. Well, that was before February 12th, not after- ds, was it not? A. Beg pardon?

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question. 7904

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: That was before February 12th.

Mr. Haycraft.

Did you have any more conversation with him after had been red carded? A. Not any, none whatsoever.

Mr. Albert: May I interrupt for one moment, if your Honor please? I do not believe I am clear as to when this conversation with Mr. Post took place that he was just referring to.

Mr. Albert.

Did that conversation take place on February 11th? uesday, February 11th, New York City. 7905

Over the phone? A. Yes, sir.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten minutes.

(A short recess was thereupon taken.)

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

The Witness: May it please the Court, I would like to make a correction in my statement.

Examiner Bennett: All right. Make it.

7906 Louis Liberman—For Commission—Direct.

The Witness: Referring to Exhibit No. 548, this telegram, it occurred to me afterwards that this telegram was turned over to the management of Ed. Schuster & Company, and I believe that they made some decision relative to taking this matter up further with the Guild.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you do anything further about it? A. No.

Mr. Albert: May I have that correction repeated?

7907 Examiner Bennett: Read it.

(Answer read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you have any instructions to take the matter up with Mr. Post when you went to New York on February 11th? A. I did.

Q. And what were your instructions at that time? A. To communicate with Mr. Post, and to advise him that I could not at that time sign any new declaration of cooperation.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask to have marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 550-A and B.

7908 (The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 550-A and 550-B for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibits 550-A and B for Identification, and ask you if you can identify that? A. I have seen this before.

Q. Where? A. In Milwaukee, copy of which I received personally.

Q. And it is a letter from whom to whom? A. A letter from Mr. Al. Post to the firm of Ed. Schuster & Company, Inc.

Q. Under what date? A. Under date of February 11th.

Q. Where were you when you got a copy of it? A. I was in Milwaukee.

Mr. Albert: No objection.

Examiner Bennett: It may be received.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 550-A and 550-B, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft. 7910

Q. Upon ascertaining that the Schuster firm had been red carded, what did you do next with respect to the matter? A. I waited for further developments and information from the store.

Q. How long did you wait? A. Until I returned to Milwaukee, at the end of that week.

Q. Did you make any attempt to get any goods from the manufacturer? A. I personally did not.

Q. Did you issue any instructions at that time? A. In answering the question, I would like to make this statement, that I do not believe the dress buyer was in the market at that particular time, but went subsequently.

Q. Did you have any outstanding orders with Guild houses at that time? A. We did. 7911

Q. Do you have an independent recollection with what houses? A. I cannot say offhand.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask this document be marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 551.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 551 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I show you Commission's Exhibit 551 for Identification and ask you what it is, if you can identify it? A. Exhibit C of the Comptroller's office shows the list of vendors, also the outstanding orders with Guild houses, as of February 11, 1936.

Q. Was that prepared pursuant to your request? A. It was.

Q. Did you receive it from your Comptroller? A. I did.

Q. Are you satisfied it is correct? A. I am.

Q. Are you familiar with the names of the resources named on there? A. I am.

7913

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: May I ask who Esco is on this, Mr. Haycraft?

The Witness: Ed. Schuster & Company.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court, upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled; received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The document referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 551, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

7914

Q. How many buyers do you have? A. In dresses?

Q. In dresses, in these two departments, 57 and 63? A. One buyer.

Q. One buyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is it? A. At the present time, or at the time of this?

Q. At the time of the red carding? A. Miss Grace Turner.

Q. Did she make any attempt to buy dresses from Guild manufacturers——

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing) —after February 11, 1936?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to.

The Witness: She so reported to me.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to. No foundation laid. May I ask the Court to admonish the witness that, while I am making an objection, the witness should not attempt to answer the question? 7916

Examiner Bennett: Strike out the answer until there is a ruling on it. Now, read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: And you object?

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor. There is no foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. He may answer.

The Witness: She so reported to me.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What did she report to you? A. That the firms that she had been accustomed to buy merchandise from at the various price levels, she was unable to see the merchandise, or place orders for Ed. Schuster & Company. 7917

Q. Is Miss Turner now with the Shuster Company? A. She is not.

Q. When did she leave? A. About July 14th.

Q. Referring to Commission's Exhibit 551, I notice under the heading "Disposition," certain notations as to cancellation, balance canceled, and so on, with dates. How were those cancellations made? A. After a period of time that the order was due, the orders were automatically canceled by the order department, the outstanding order department.

7918 Louis Liberman—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Does the Schuster Company have a New York office? A. They are a member of the Cavendish Trading Company.

Q. Where are they located in New York City? A. 1412 Broadway.

Q. Does the Cavendish Trading Company have buyers calling on the dress manufacturers in New York City? A. They have buyers that represent Cavendish Trading Corporation, member stores.

Q. Are there Cavendish buyers representing your store, the Schuster Store? A. There are.

Q. Do you know who they are, or were in February, 1936? A. Miss May Snyder and Wilson Rogers.

7919 Q. Do you know whether or not Miss Snyder or Mr. Rogers made any attempt to look at the line of dresses manufactured by Guild manufacturers, or to purchase dresses from such Guild manufacturers? A. It has been so reported to me.

Q. And what did they report? A. That Ed. Schuster & Company were red carded and could not see the merchandise.

Q. Who could not see the merchandise? A. The buyer for Ed. Schuster Company.

Q. You mean Miss Snyder and Mr. Rogers? A. No, Miss Turner, representing Ed. Schuster & Company.

Q. Did Miss Snyder and Mr. Rogers attempt to look at the lines or purchases dresses from the New York Guild manufacturers on behalf of the Schuster Company? A.

7920 I can't answer that.

Q. Has the Schuster Company been able to buy merchandise in any way from Guild manufacturers subsequent to February 11th, 1936? A. They have tried.

Q. Have they been successful? A. No.

Q. Mr. Liberman, do you have an opinion as to the effect upon the business of the Schuster Company of the red carding of that company by the Guild?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, as immaterial, and no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Answer yes or no, whether you have an opinion?

The Witness: It has had.

Mr. Albert: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Haycraft: It may be stricken.

Examiner Bennett: It may be stricken.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you to answer yes or no as to whether you have an opinion? A. I have an opinion, yes. 7922

Q. Has the effect been good or bad?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, if it please the Court, no proper foundation has been laid as to the sources of his belief.

Examiner Bennett: He may answer; overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: Bad.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. In what way? A. It has definitely retarded the display, the sales, and the ways and means of catering to Ed. Schuster and Company's clientele on dresses retailing at $16.95, and above. 7923

Q. Is that all? A. It has put us in very bad competitive position.

Q. In what way? A. That we have——

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court, I ask that this testimony be stricken out, upon the ground that it is a conclusion of the witness pure and simple, and I believe that the answer to Mr. Haycraft's questions called for the facts.

Mr. Haycraft: I did not ask for any facts; I asked for his opinion, that is all he is testifying to.

Examiner Bennett: There is a question pending, is there not?

(Last two questions and answers read.)

Examiner Bennett: Go ahead; overruled.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

The Witness: We have been unable to secure the merchandise which the Ed. Schuster and Company stores have been accustomed to carry over a period of years at price lines of $16.95, $19.95, $22.75, $25 and $29.75.

7925 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are those costs or retail prices? A. Retail prices.

Q. What would be the wholesale range of those prices that you have just given the detail of? A. $10.75 to $16.75.

Q. In your opinion, has the red carding had any effect upon the $7.75 cost price line? A. At the time we were red carded it had.

Q. And was that effect good or bad? A. At that time it was bad.

Q. In what way? A. Many of the resources in that price range had joined the Guild, subsequently had resigned.

Q. Do you have an opinion as to whether or not the red carding of the Schuster Company by the Guild has had 7926 any effect upon the prestige of the Schuster Company in Milwaukee?

Examiner Bennett: Have you an opinion, yes or no.

The Witness: I have an opinion, yes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Has that effect been good or bad? A. Bad.

Q. In what way? A. With reference to securing a type of dress that is only produced by Guild members.

Q. To what class of trade does the Schuster store cater? A. Among the clientele is a type known as half sizes.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. They are cut on special patterns and known generally in the trade as half sizes resources; dresses that are cut for—on lines that fit women that are either short, tall, stout, or take sizes other than recognized standard sizes in apparel.

Q. Whom were your resources for that type of garment? A. Among such resources was Antman and Bart, Anderman and Bob, Harry Frank, Little Brothers, Weinberg and Weinberg, Alper and Barons. 7928

Q. Are these all Guild manufacturers? A. They are.

Q. Were you able to replace these lines of merchandise that you referred to from other manufacturers, subsequent to February, 1936? A. We have not as yet found such resources.

Q. Has that inability on your part had any effect upon the business of Schuster's? A. It has.

Q. What has been the effect? A. Loss of sales volume.

Q. In what price lines? A. Dresses retailing at $16.95 and above.

Q. What would be the cost line of those? A. $10.75, $12.75, $14.75 and $16.75. 7929

Q. Have you made any study of the stock of merchandise in the dress departments under your supervision? A. I have.

Q. Have you formed any opinion as to the effect upon the stocks carried by Schuster and Company? A. I have.

Q. What is your opinion in that respect? A. That it has retarded the sale of merchandise volume—pardon me, I would like to correct that—that it has retarded the sale of merchandise in the stores and also caused a decrease in sales volume compared with the year previous.

(Thereupon a paper was marked for identification Commission's Exhibit 552.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 552 for Identification and ask you if you can identify that? A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. It is a summary of dresses on hand from February 10th to July 6th for the women's and misses' departments at retail price lines of $16.95, $19.95, $22.75, $25, $29.75, $35 and $39.75, showing stocks on hand at these points compared with the year previous.

7931

Q. That is, from February 10th to July 6th, in the year 1935 and 1936? A. And 1936.

Q. Did you take this exhibit into consideration when you based your opinion which you just now gave? A. I did.

Q. Who prepared this for you? A. Through the Comptroller's office.

Q. Prepared in the usual course of business? A. It was.

Q. Are you satisfied it is correct? A. I am.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Albert: I object to it, if it please the Court, upon the ground that no proper foundation has been laid.

7932

Examiner Bennett: I wish you would get the significance of the stock on hand on the business of the store.

Mr. Haycraft: I will ask the witness to testify as to that.

The Witness: What is the question, please?

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What is the significance of the figures contained in this exhibit, Commission's Exhibit No. 552, as to the stock on hand? A. This here memorandum shows that after a period of a couple of weeks after we were red carded, we were unable to get the desirable merchandise to sell at these price lines and that our stocks actually suffered—we did not have entree to such lines as the Schuster Company had been accustomed to handling in their stores, and that we could not find—or that the different reports to me were that she could not find—replacements.

Examiner Bennett: Did that have any effect upon the volume of your sales? 7934

The Witness: We—that is I—felt that it definitely did.

Examiner Bennett: All right, I will overrule the objection; it may be received.

Mr. Albert: Exception.

(The paper referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibit No. 552, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you made any recent attempt to buy ladies' dresses from Guild manufacturers? A. We have.

Q. How recently? A. I believe during July an order was placed by a Schuster representative. 7935

Q. With whom was this order placed? A. It was placed by our New York representative with the Sheila-Lynn Company.

Q. I hand you Commission's Exhibits for Identification 553-A and B, and ask you if you can identify that? A. This is a letter received by Ed. Schuster & Company relative to an order that had been placed by a representative of the Cavendish Trading Corporation, representing Ed. Schuster & Company.

Q. What is the date of the letter? A. July 31, 1936.

Q. Who signed it? A. The letter is signed by Myra Horowitz, representing Sheila-Lynn, Inc.

Q. Did you receive that letter? A. It came through the regular course of business, upon my return to New York.

Q. And you also received the paper attached to it? A. That was attached to the memorandum.

Q. To the memorandum, or to the letter? A. To the letter.

Mr. Haycraft: I offer them both in evidence, as 7937 Commission's Exhibits 553-A and B.

Mr. Albert: No objection, if the Court please.

Examiner Bennett: Received.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 553-A and 553-B, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How many buying seasons do you have at your store, buying or selling seasons? A. Two seasons.

Q. What are they? A. Spring and autumn.

Q. When do they begin? A. The spring season, purchasing starts in December. In the fall season, it starts 7938 the end of July or the end of June.

Q. Would you say that you are now in your fall season of purchasing? A. That is right.

Q. Have you been able to make any purchases from Guild manufacturers? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have an opinion as to the effect that that inability is going to have on your purchase of fall merchandise for the Schuster stores? A. I have.

Q. Will you state that opinion?

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court. It is purely conjectural as to what may happen in the future. We haven't any idea of where he may be able to get dresses, or what may happen a week from now, two weeks from now, or two months from now. It is purely prophecy, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: On the present status, of course, based on his inability to get merchandise from the Guild.

Mr. Albert: I don't think we can go on the hypothesis that there is going to be a continuation of anything at the present time with respect to the 7940 merchandise.

Mr. Haycraft: Read the question back. I think it assumes that.

(Question read by the reporter.)

Examiner Bennett: All right. You may state your opinion.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. You may state. A. I feel, as long as Ed. Schuster & Company is red carded, and do not have entree to such lines as I have mentioned, which, among others, would include the International, A-1, Casino, Willet & Snyder, in the half-size and large size dress manufacturers, I definitely feel that we cannot give to our clientele the type of 7941 merchandise they have been accustomed to buy in the store. It does not place us in a competitive position to cater to such customers that have come into Ed. Schuster's in years past, or seasons past, to buy the type of merchandise that I have enumerated.

(Whereupon at 4.30 o'clock P. M., August 25, 1936, the hearing in the above-entitled matter was adjourned, to reconvene at 1 o'clock P. M. to-morrow, August 26, 1936.)

Room 1123, New Post Office Building
433 West Van Buren Street,
Chicago, Illinois,
August 26, 1936.

Met, pursuant to adjournment, 1 o'clock P. M., E.S.T.

Before: JOHN W. BENNETT, Examiner.

(Same Appearances.)

PROCEEDINGS.

7943 Examiner Bennett: You may take the witness stand, Mr. Liberman. Any further interrogation?

Mr. Haycraft: Yes, I have some.

Examiner Bennett: Be in order, please.

LOUIS LIBERMAN thereupon resumed the stand as a witness for the Commission, and, having previously been sworn, testified further as follows:

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Liberman, yesterday while you were on the witness stand you identified Commission's Exhibit No. 552 as an exhibit showing a summary of dresses on hand February 10th to July 6th, 1935 and 1936, from the six retail 7944 price lines, Departments 57 and 63 of the Schuster Company, and stated that——

Mr. Albert (interposing): What page is that?

Mr. Haycraft: 4461.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Continuing) —and made a certain statement with respect to that exhibit. I will direct your attention to the testimony on that page, and your reply, and the Examiner's question, and just ask you to read it again so as to familiarize yourself with the contents. A. With reference to the——

Q. Do not read it out loud, just to yourself? A. No, I mean, 552——

Q. Yes, read your answer, and the Examiner's question, and your answer to that. A. (Witness examines record.)

Q. Now, in your answer there you said that it definitely did have an effect upon the volume of your sales; what did you refer to in that answer? A. I referred to one of the major price lines involved in this report.

Q. Which one did you refer to? A. The one at $16.95.

Q. The retail price line? A. The retail price, $16.95. 7946

Q. Now, what effect did the conditions of the stocks, and the inability to replace these stocks, have upon the volume of your sales?

Mr. Albert (interposing): In the $16.95?

Mr. Haycraft: In the $16.95 line?

The Witness: With the permission of the Court, I would like to read some figures here that have been compiled.

Examiner Bennett: Is that part of your answer?

The Witness: Yes.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

The Witness: In Department 57, women's dresses, February to June, inclusive, for the year 1935, total purchases of our entire stock at $10.75 was 21.90. 7947 In 1936 our percentages to total stock purchased at $10.75 was 8.67. Our purchases from Guild houses in 1935 at $10.75 cost was 62.7, or $6402, against $463 in 1936, or 13 per cent.

In the misses' department, at $10.75, our total purchases in 1935 to total stock was 19.30; in 1936, 10.27. Total purchases of $10.75 from Guild houses in 1935, from February to June, inclusive, was $7294, against $750 in 1936, or in percentage, 1935 to 1 purchases at $10.75 dresses was 84.8, against 17 per cent. for 1935.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. 17 per cent. for what? A. 1936—excuse me.

Q. Well, now——

Mr. Albert (interposing): Now, if it please the Court——

By Mr. Haycraft.

7949 Q. (Resumed) —what is your interpretation of these figures? A. Pardon?

Mr. Albert: If it please the Court——

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. (Resumed) What is your interpretation of these figures that you have given?

Mr. Albert: I ask that the testimony of the witness with respect to the last question be stricken from the record. The witness is reading from a paper not in evidence. He has not used the figures to refresh his recollection. We have not any foundation laid with respect to the accuracy of these 7950 figures, and, under the circumstances, if it please the Court, I think that the witness' answer should be stricken out.

I believe that the impression—at least that I got—was that he was going to refer to figures on testimony orally, from them. Now, I believe that the least that should be done is for Mr. Haycraft to follow the accustomed procedure he has followed, and lay a foundation for placing this particular paper in evidence, so that it is open to us, at least, for a question to be examined upon.

Examiner Bennett: The matter did not come up in that way. The witness was answering a question, and, as I understand, he may use any source which he thinks is available as a foundation for his answer. He is taking the responsibility in using that. Of course, that document on cross-examination is available to you for cross-examination.

Mr. Albert: May I respectfully ask, if the Court please, that the document be marked for identification, so that we may know what we are referring to?

Examiner Bennett: Well, I think that is all 7952 right, if you want it, but I thought you might identify it—I do not think there will be any trouble about the identity of the document; you will have the witness here available.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: I think I have a question pending, Mr. Examiner.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: It definitely shows, of the major price lines which we were involved in with the red carding of the Guild, that the $10.75 cost price line was where we suffered the most.

By Mr. Haycraft. 7953

Q. Now, have you made any study of the purchases made from Guild houses as between 1935 and 1936, of the $10.75 price line, cost price line, in these two departments—that is, the purchases of garments bought from Guild houses, compared between those two?

Examiner Bennett: He gave figures on that—he just gave figures on that in the last answer, did he not—six thousand?

Mr. Haycraft: That is right.

Examiner Bennett: Seven thousand is another?

Mr. Haycraft: That is right. I should say "sales" instead of "purchases." Will you make that change? Well, I will withdraw it and ask another question.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Have you made a study of sales, the volume of sales by these two departments, as between 1935 and 1936? A. Two departments?

Q. Women's and misses' dresses? A. I don't quite get that.

7955 Q. In the $10.75 price line? A. In the $10.75 price line.

Q. Or any price line that handled Guild merchandise? A. I would again like to refer to some memorandums I have here.

Examiner Bennett: All right.

(Witness refers to paper.)

The Witness: Department 57, women's dresses—

Mr. Albert: Same objection, if the Court please, to the witness reading from any document that is not in evidence.

Examiner Bennett: Yes.

Mr. Keller: No foundation laid.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer; the document is available for your cross-examination.

7956

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Go ahead. A. From February to June, inclusive, 1935, 1936, at $12.95 retail, we had a drop of 44 per cent in sales. At $14.95, we had a drop of 0.8 percentage. At $16.95, we had a drop in sales of 47 per cent. At $19.95 we had a drop of 5.1 in sales. At $22.75, we had a drop in sales of 33.7. At $25, we had an increase of 47.3. At $29.75, we had an increase of 88 per cent.

Misses' dresses, Department 63, at retail, $12.95, we had a drop in sales of 25.9. At $14.95, we had a drop in sales of 3.44. At $16.95, we had a drop in sales of 33 per cent. At $19.95, we had a drop in sales of 24.1. At $22.75, we had a drop in sales of 28.8. At $25, we had a drop—or had an increase of 6.4. At $29.75, we had a drop of 52 per cent.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. What explanation do you have for these decreases in certain lines, and increases in other lines, as you have testified?

7958

Mr. Albert: Objected to, may it please the Court; no foundation laid.

By Examiner Bennett.

Q. Have you an explanation for it? A. I have.

Q. Go ahead and give it. A. That in the fall of 1935, in planning for the spring of 1936, we were planning to go out after some better dress business, and in the months of December and January we went into the market to increase our stocks in these price lines, and to also build up possibilities of greater volume in the higher brackets for the coming year. It was decided on, in our buyers' meeting for 1936, in all price lines and all departments of apparel, to go for higher unit sales.

7959

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. To what figures does this present explanation that you now give refer? A. To the sales for the period covered in this report.

Q. In what price lines? A. From $16.95 retail to $29.75.

Q. Why is it that you show a decrease in certain of those lines and an increase in others? A. In the better merchandise, that is merchandise retailing at $25 and above, we had received a fairly representative stock previous to being red carded. The lower price lines, naturally, is merchandise on which you can get much better service in the way of delivery, and it depends a great deal on getting re-orders through on orders on merchandise that has already had customer acceptance.

Mr. Albert: May I ask that the last part of the answer be repeated?

Mr. Haycraft: Read it to him.

(Last part of answer read by the reporter.)

7961 By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Mr. Liberman, can you testify as to the Guild houses from whom the Schuster Company was buying merchandise during the fall of 1935 and the spring of 1936, at the time they were red-carded? A. I can, if I have the list available.

Q. Do you have such a list? A. I have such a list.

Q. Will you refresh your recollection from that list? In doing so, so far as you can, give as much description of the house, of the concern, as you can, as to its type of merchandise? A. Types?

Q. Yes, types. A. In the women's department, I would like to refer to the following vendors: Anderman-Bob Burns, Inc.

7962

Mr. Albert: Can that list be marked for identification? He is again reading from a list.

Examiner Bennett: It will be available, of course. I don't know that we want to fill up the record with that sort of identification. Do you want it identified, Mr. Haycraft?

Mr. Haycraft: I would rather do it just the way it is being done, but if the Examiner rules otherwise, we can identify it.

Examiner Bennett: Well, let's identify it.

(The document referred to was marked Commission's Exhibit 554 for Identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Can you identify Commission's Exhibit 554 for Identification? A. Yes.

Q. What is it? A. It is a memorandum of resources taken from the files of Ed. Schuster & Company on purchases from Guild resources from February to June, inclusive, 1935, and also 1936.

Q. What department? A. Department 57, women's dresses. 7964

Q. What is the source of the information contained therein? A. The source is through the regular course of business, business practice and through the comptroller's office, compiled by direction of the comptroller.

Mr. Albert: May I ask the witness whether he has an additional copy of that with him, so I can follow him?

The Witness: There is no objection?

Examiner Bennett: No, it is all right.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. How are you going to testify? A. I will take the original. 7965

Mr. Haycraft: All right. Off the record.

(There was a discussion off the record.)

The Witness: Among the houses I would like to call attention to is Anderman-Bob Burns, Inc., a house that I was informed made exclusively half sizes.

Dresden Dress Co., Inc., also manufacture a similar type of garment under the half size classification.

Harry Frank, a resource for large sizes.

Friedman Dress Company, a resource for women's and large sizes.

A. Goodman & Co., Inc., a resource for half sizes.

LaRue Dresses, Inc., a resource for large sizes.

Lyttle Brothers, Inc., a resource for half sizes and large sizes.

C. H. D. Robbins Co., a resource for daytime misses' dresses.

Sam Steinberg & Co., Inc., a resource for sportswear, sports types, misses' dresses.

Star Maid Dresses, Inc., also a resource for 7967 misses' tailored and sports type merchandise.

Weinberg-Weinberg & Alpern, a resource for large misses' sizes.

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Are you familiar with the Fashion Wear Dress Company? A. I am not entirely familiar with them.

Q. Are you familiar with Ginsburg & Abelson? A. I have heard of them, but I am not familiar with them.

Q. Are you familiar with E. M. Marcus & Company? A. I have heard the name, and know it is a resource for misses' dresses, from which we have purchased dresses.

Q. Are you familiar with the Radiant Dress Company, Inc.? A. Yes, it is a resource for misses' large size dresses.

7968 Q. Of this group that you have identified here as resources, I will ask you to testify as to those of this group that can be replaced by manufacturers of dresses outside the Guild.

Mr. Albert: That is objected to, may it please the Court; no proper foundation laid.

Mr. Haycraft: It is a continuation of the same type of testimony had in the previous record, only a little more in detail.

Examiner Bennett: I prefer to have it on the actual trade; that is the best evidence.

Mr. Haycraft: All right. To make a better foundation for it, I will ask you this:

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. I will ask you whether or not Schuster Company has attempted to replace any of the manufacturers you have named as sources of supply since the red carding? A. We so instructed the buyer, that it was in her duty and functions to find such replacements.

Q. Has she been successful in all cases? A. She has reported back to me that she has nothing. 7970

Q. Now, can you testify as to those instances, in the names of those houses you have listed here, that she was not successful in replacing? A. From personal recollection, among the houses that she tried to buy merchandise from and was unsuccessful, I would like to call attention to the following: Anderman-Bob Burns, Inc., Harry Frank, Lyttle Brothers, C. H. & D. Robbins Company.

Mr. Albert: Now, may it please the Court, I ask the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question.

Examiner Bennett: That part of it is evidently not responsive. It may be stricken.

Mr. Haycraft: I think I can ask a question which will straighten it out. 7971

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Did you issue instructions for the buyer to replace the merchandise which you were purchasing from and had been purchasing from those companies which you have named? A. I did.

Q. With what result? A. That we did not receive at any time during the period covered a representative line of merchandise to replace the vendors mentioned.

7972 Louis Liberman—For Commission—Direct.

Q. Are you familiar with the situation with respect to the other resources that you have named? A. I am not entirely.

Q. By that you mean you do not know whether the buyer was able to replace their merchandise or not? A. No, I don't.

Q. Is that what you mean? A. That is right.

Q. I ask you to give the same information with respect to the resources of your misses' department, Department No. 63.

Mr. Haycraft: I ask that this be marked Commission's Exhibit 555-A and B for Identification.

7973

(The documents referred to were marked Commission's Exhibits 555-A and B for identification.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Do you identify the paper handed you? A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is the number on it? A. 555-A and B.

Q. What is it? A. It is a memorandum or list of firms whose sales to Ed. Schuster & Co., Inc., during February to June, inclusive, 1935 and 1936, were included as purchases from Guild houses for Department 63, identified as misses' dresses.

Q. Was this prepared from the same source as the other? A. It was.

7974

Mr. Haycraft: I will offer this in evidence as Commission's Exhibit 555-A and B.

Examiner Bennett: Any objection?

Mr. Albert: Objected to, may it please the Court; no proper foundation has been laid.

Examiner Bennett: Overruled. Received.

(The documents referred to, heretofore marked for identification Commission's Exhibits 555-A and 555-B, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Haycraft.

Q. Now, I will ask you whether or not you are personally familiar with all the firms named on these exhibits? A. I am not.

Q. I notice there are certain pencil marks after the names of a number of firms in this exhibit. Did you place them on there? A. I did.

Q. And what did they signify? A. Some of the outstanding resources from whom purchases were made during the time specified.

Q. And you are familiar with them yourself? A. With some of them.

Q. Perhaps you had better testify, then, of the list of 7976 names contained in Commission's Exhibit 555-A and B, will you testify as to those concerns with which you are familiar as resources for the Schuster Company, giving a brief description of what you understand them to be? A. Aywon Dress Co., Inc., daytime dresses for misses. Fred A. Block, ensemble dressy type garments. Casino Dresses, Inc., daytime street-wear type. Cecele Dance Frocks, Inc., formal wear.

Q. May I interrupt? I notice that on the exhibit there are certain marks on the left-hand margin in pencil. Did you place those on there? A. I believe I was advised that such firms had resigned from the Guild.

Q. Is Cecele Dance Frocks one of such firms? A. I think it is.

Q. All right. Go ahead. A. Elvia Dress Co., Inc., a 7977 popular price line of dresses. The same applies to M. & S. Extract. F. E. D. Dress Company, Inc., an outstanding line of daytime dresses. International Dress Company, Inc., daytime frocks. Lee Claire Costumes, Inc., formal type dress. Lipman Brothers, a daytime street type of ensemble dresses.

Marie-Lynn Dance Frocks, Inc., formal wear. Parisian Manufacturing Company, Inc., daytime dresses. C. H. D.

Robbins Company, daytime frocks. Schultze-Zuch Company, Inc., formal dresses and gowns. Star Maid Dresses, Inc., tailored and sports type dresses.

Sam Steinberg & Company, Inc., tailored and sports type dresses. Topaz Frocks, Inc., popular price daytime dresses. David S. Westheim Corporation, daytime dresses. Zobin-Mayer, Inc., daytime dresses. Phil Zahn & Co., Inc., daytime frocks.

Q. Out of this list of manufacturers that you have named here, will you testify now as to those that you understand have resigned or gotten out of the Guild since February 11, 1936? A. I would like to ask permission 7979 of the Court, that whatever statement I would make would have to be only from hearsay.

Q. Well, testify as to what you understand. A. Lipman Brothers, Schultze-Zuch Company, Incorporated, Stern & Goldberg, Inc., Topaz Frocks, Wein Frocks, Philip Zahn & Co., Inc., Elvia Dress Co., Inc., M. & S. Extract, Gracette Dress Company, Inc.

Q. Then, is it your testimony that you have access to those houses as resources at the present time? A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. That is, the last list that you have just given? A. Yes.

Q. I would like to have you testify as to which of this list of manufacturers that are now members of the Guild, whose merchandise you have not been able to replace from 7980 non-Guild houses. A. Not having shopped the market, I could not answer that question.

Q. What about the reports of your buyers in that connection? A. Among the resources I feel definitely we have not been able to replace has been the Aywon Dress Company, Bender & Hamburger, Incorporated, International Dress Company, Inc., Parisian Manufacturing Company, Inc., Parnis-Levinson, Inc., Star Maid Dresses, Inc., Sam Steinberg & Company, Inc., David S. Westheim Corporation.

Q. I will ask you whether or not you took into consideration the information that you have just now testified to with respect to the resources in giving your opinion on yesterday as to the effect upon the Schuster Company of the red carding? A. I didn't get that.

Mr. Haycraft: Read it.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: It was on such list that I formed my opinion yesterday.

Mr. Haycraft: That's all, Mr. Examiner.

Cross-examination by Mr. Albert.

7982

Q. What is the number of your budget department, Mr. Liberman? A. The classification for that in our records is 61.

Q. And the misses' is 63? A. Correct.

Q. And the women's? A. Department 57.

Q. When you took over these three departments, Mr. Liberman, what were your duties with respect to them? A. To merchandise, to manage and promote sales in these departments.

Q. And, in line with those duties, is it fair to say that it was your obligation to watch the volume of your stock, the turnover, your mark-ups, your mark-downs, and things of that nature? A. It was.

Q. And, without stretching your modesty, I suppose 7983
when you associated yourself with Schuster Stores, and took over these departments, it was your intention and desire to improve upon your predecessor, isn't that so, as regards the record that he made? A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Greenblatt is no longer with the store? A. That is true.

Q. Have you any idea as to the reasons why he was replaced? A. I have not.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Examiner Bennett: Sustained.

Mr. Albert: May I have Commission's Exhibit 543, please?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, you recall that you were questioned with respect to a letter written you by Mr. Post, dated September 5, 1935, being Commission's Exhibit No. 543, A, B and C (indicating)? A. I received the letter.

Q. Now, do you recall that Mr. Haycraft asked you 7985 what it was that Mr. Post was referring to in that letter? A. May I have the question, please?

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I would have to have that memorandum or testimony.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Haycraft asked you this question: "Q."—this statement is found in a letter, and then he quotes from the letter: "I am sure you are aware of the situation in St. Louis where practically every store has subscribed. I know that Milwaukee would straighten out very quickly if your store and the Boston store sent their checks." Do you know what Mr. Post was referring to there? A. I 7986 believe I have made a reply to that.

Q. Do you recall what your reply was? A. That it was with reference to starting a movement for a local Guild.

Q. Now, will you please examine Commission's Exhibit No. 543-A, and point out to me in that letter what you believe to be has reference to any request by Mr. Post for the establishment of a local Guild? A. I took it from the second paragraph—that is the meaning of the second paragraph.

Q. Is that the only paragraph in the letter that you think refers to the question of the establishment of a local Guild? A. That was my supposition from that paragraph.

Q. Now, let me ask you this—and I am quoting from that paragraph: "At that meeting we understood that the stores agreed to support the cost of a local shopper, by making subscriptions to the Guild." Is that what you say refers to establishment of a local guild? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know what a local shopper is? A. A local shopper is some—is an individual selected and obtained by the—that is a shopper that is—well, now, your Honor, I would request that the question be simplified, whether 7988 a store shopper or an F.O.G.A. shopper.

Q. What did you believe Mr. Post was referring to when he used the words "local shopper"? A. A Guild shopper.

Q. What do you know, or, what is your opinion, as to the duties of a local shopper, who is employed by the Guild? A. Not having been present at the meeting that was held by the Milwaukee retailers, I am not familiar with that situation, and cannot—I am not qualified to give an answer.

Q. Have you never come in contact with the local Guild shopper? A. I have.

Q. What do you understand to be the function of the local Guild shopper? A. The local Guild shopper makes the rounds of the various stores—to some of the stores as I understand it—and goes through stocks and selects 7989 such merchandise as she feels, or has received reports on, are copies of Guild merchandise.

Q. Did you know those to be the duties of the local shopper, on September 5, 1935? A. I presume that's what her duties were.

Q. I asked, did you know that those were her duties when you received this letter, dated September 5, 1935?

7990

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that question. The witness has testified to what he thought——

Mr. Albert: The answer was not responsive.

Mr. Haycraft: ——and understood——

Mr. Albert: The answer was not responsive, your Honor.

Mr. Haycraft: What he thought, he did not say he knew.

Examiner Bennett: Do you know, or did you know?

The Witness: Would you mind repeating the question, please?

7991

(Last two questions and answers read.)

The Witness: I took it for granted that it was.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Well, then, is it not a matter of fact, that all that this letter referred to and suggests is a contribution to the support of that local shopper? A. I am unfamiliar with any circumstances or any meetings prior to having received this letter regarding contribution to the expense of maintaining a local shopper.

Q. Well, then, how can you testify that this letter referred to the establishment of a local Guild? A. I presumed that from the tone of that paragraph.

Q. Now, this paragraph refers to nothing else except the desire of the Guild to secure the support of a local retailer and the support in maintaining the local shopper, is that not so?

7992

Mr. Haycraft: I suggest that the witness be allowed to read the paragraph.

Mr. Albert: I will let him read it all he wants to.

Mr. Haycraft: And indicate what he had in mind.

(Mr. Albert hands paper to witness.)

The Witness: I again state that I do not know what the respondents' attorney has in mind, only the fact that—of being—to use the initial movement for establishing a Guild and to support this—or by contributing to the support of such Guild through local sources.

Mr. Albert: May I have the answer read?

(Last answer read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Did I understand you to say—and if I am making a mistake, correct me—that prior to the receipt of this letter you were not familiar with the matters contained and referred to in this letter— A. Absolutely not. 7994

Q. —as regards to the establishment of a local Guild or a local shopper? A. Absolutely not.

Q. Had no knowledge of it whatsoever? A. None whatsoever.

Q. Were you ever present prior to September 5, 1935, at any conferences or meetings or gatherings which were addressed by Mr. Post? A. I was not.

Mr. Haycraft: Where? That is too indefinite, Mr. Examiner.

Mr. Albert: I do not think that Mr. Haycraft wants me to ask him every city in the United States when he says he was not present at any.

Mr. Haycraft: Unless it refers to Milwaukee, I object to it. That is the reason I am—trying to make it conform to proper cross-examination. 7995

Mr. Albert: As a matter of fact——

Mr. Haycraft: —Milwaukee or St. Louis, one or the other.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Liberman, were you not present at a meeting addressed by Mr. Post in St. Louis? A. I was not.

Q. I call to your attention the following statement in a letter addressed to you by Mr. Post: "At the time of my last western trip we held a meeting in Milwaukee similar to the one you attended in St. Louis"——

The Witness: If I may, your Honor, refresh Mr. Post's memory, to the fact that I was invited to a luncheon and I was not employed at the time specified, by any concern?

By Mr. Albert.

Q. But you were present at such a meeting, were you? A. I was not.

7997 Q. Well, are you attempting to distinguish the fact that you were not present by the fact that you were not employed by Schuster & Company at the time that you attended such meeting? A. I was not employed at all, and that I did not attend this meeting, and I was invited in at a social luncheon.

Q. Yes? A. And that's all.

Q. Were you present at that luncheon? A. I was present at that luncheon which was given by friends in St. Louis, had nothing to do with F.O.G.A.

Q. Who was present? A. Mr. Roy Lockhart.

Q. Of where? A. St. Louis.

Q. What store? A. Now he has his own shop.

Q. What store did he have then? A. I believe he had 7998 just opened his own shop.

Q. At that time? A. As far as—or slightly—just before.

Q. All right. Who else was present? A. Mr. Herman Hirsch.

Q. What store? A. Stix, Baer and Fuller Company, Mr. Irwin Soger, Kline's Incorporated, Mr. Post and Mr. Golby.

Q. Mr. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild? A. That's right, and myself, to the best of my recollection.

Q. Do you recall what the purpose was for that luncheon gathering of these representatives of retail stores? A. I do not.

Q. Do you recall what discussion was had at the meeting? A. I do not.

Q. Do you state—is it your testimony—that at that meeting attended by these representatives of retail stores in the St. Louis District, attended by Mr. Golby of the Fashion Originators Guild, and by Mr. Post of the Fashion Originators Guild, that none of the problems or policies of the Fashion Oringinators Guild were discussed? A. I do not, and I was not present as representing any firm who were at that time interested in any of the prob- 8000 lems of the local merchants with the F.O.G.A.

Q. I am willing to concede that you were not interested in them, Mr. Liberman, but I am asking you as to the fact of what was discussed, and as a man present whether or not you had heard it and paid attention to it? A. I was not. I was there merely as a social guest.

Q. And you paid— A. It was not an official meeting, and I was there at the invitation of one of the men present.

Q. You paid no attention to what was said? A. I was not interested.

Q. Aside from whether or not you were interested in what was said, did you pay attention to what was said? A. I did not.

Q. Were you present at the table while the discussion 8001 was going on? A. I didn't know there was a discussion going on.

Q. Well, what did the men talk about? A. I don't know.

Q. You have no recollection whatsoever? A. None whatsoever.

Q. Do you recall when this meeting was held? A. I do not.

Q. Well now, in order that there can be no question about the matter, Mr. Liberman, I ask the indulgence of the Court for possibly repeating this question: Is the only matter contained in Commission's Exhibit No. 543-A upon which you predicate your belief that this letter concerned the establishment of a local Guild, contained in the second paragraph of the letter? (Counsel hands paper to witness.)

Mr. Haycraft: I think that has been answered, Mr. Examiner, I object to it.

Mr. Albert: I am willing to concede that, your Honor. I just want to make absolutely certain that 8003 I understand the witness' testimony, and it will not take very long for him to answer.

Examiner Bennett: All right, go ahead and answer.

Mr. Haycraft: Read it carefully.

Examiner Bennett: Read the question.

(Last question read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Is that correct, Mr. Liberman? A. Yes.

Mr. Albert: Very well.

By Mr. Albert.

8004 Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, did you see Commission's Exhibit No. 548, being the telegram to you from Mr. Post, upon its arrival at the store? A. I did.

Q. And you received it? A. I did.

Q. And you turned it over to whom? A. I turned it over to the Board of Managers.

Q. Do you know what action was taken with respect to this telegram, their answer? A. I do not.

Q. When did you leave for New York prior to the time when you stated you were in New York about February 11th, or February 12th? A. I left Milwaukee Sunday, February 10th.

Q. And from February 5th to February 10th you did not know what your Board of Governors—was it, you said? A. Board of Management.

Q. —Board of Management had done with respect to the telegram, Commission's Exhibit No. 548? A. It was handled—I believe that the Board of Management turned this telegram over to the General Merchandise Manager, who left immediately after that for New York.

Q. Do you know what the General Merchandise Manager did with regard to it? A. I do not.

Q. Did you receive any reports on it? Prior to the 8006 time that you arrived in New York? A. I did not.

Q. Who is the General Merchandise Manager? A. Milton Blank.

Q. Do you know whether or not he went up to see Mr. Post in response to this telegram? A. I do not.

Q. Did you come in to New York on that occasion for the purpose of seeing Mr. Post with respect to the contents of this telegram? A. Well, I don't get the question, whether you refer at the time that—that the Board of Management had received this telegram, or later?

Q. Now, you received this telegram February 5th, is that not correct? A. That is right.

Q. And you left for New York on February 10th? A. Yes.

Q. Were you coming into New York for the purpose of 8007 discussing this telegram with Mr. Post? A. It was one of the things that I hoped to take up with Mr. Post after I got to New York.

Q. When did you take that up with him? A. On Tuesday, February 11th.

Q. Now, Mr. Liberman, are you not a bit confused about your dates, when you said— A. Well, if you can find any discrepancies I would like to have you so state.

Q. I mean, you have referred, I believe, to Tuesday as February 12th, and also to Tuesday as February 11th? A. Tuesday——

Q. I mean, in that respect, are you not a bit confused? A. February 11th?

Q. And you spoke with Mr. Post? A. Mr. Post.

Q. On February 11th? A. On Tuesday, February 11th, if that is the correct date.

Q. Well, so that we have no side discrepancies— A. No.

Q. —I suggest that you forget whether it was Tuesday or Wednesday, and just refer to February 11th? A. Well, it was very pertinent that I remember that date.

8009 Q. It is? A. Yes.

Q. Why is it pertinent that you remember it? A. Because being about eight and a half hours late getting into Chicago from Milwaukee, and missing train connections.

Q. But, nevertheless, you referred to Tuesday as February 12th, and to Tuesday as February 11th. A. If I made an error, I am willing to acknowledge it.

Q. All right. Now, the calendar reveals that Tuesday was February 11th. A. Right.

Mr. Haycraft: Monday, February 10th, and Sunday, February 9th.

Mr. Albert: Right.

The Witness: I am sorry.

8010 By Mr. Albert.

Q. When did you first meet with Mr. Post? A. Regarding this matter?

Q. Yes. A. Being red carded? On Tuesday, February 11th.

Q. That was during the morning? A. The morning of February 11th.

Q. What was the conversation that you had with him? A. I believe I have answered that question yesterday; it is in the testimony.

Q. Would you be good enough to tell me in a little more detail? A. I think the details are the telegram memorandum. I would like to refresh my memory regarding it. I believe it stated the fact that I called Mr. Post and told him I was in town, and, further, stated that he was anxious to know whether or not I had—was prepared to sign a new Declaration of Co-operation of the F.O.G.A. The sum and substance was that I told Mr. Post that I did not have a power of attorney to make any agreements or sign any new contracts.

Q. What did he say in response to that?' A. Then he stated the fact, if I remember correctly, that he had given us sufficient time in which to think this thing over, and demanded that we give him an immediate answer, and if so notify the firm. 8012

Q. Did not you understand, Mr. Liberman, by Mr. Post's remarks to you at that time, that the Declaration of Co-operation that had been previously signed by Schuster and Company was going to be withdrawn immediately? A. Well, I believe I stated that in my previous question.

Q. So that if you have not stated it specifically, you wish that inference to be drawn from what you stated? A. That is right.

Q. Then, as a matter of fact, on the morning of February 11th, 1936, you knew that Schuster and Company was to be red carded, did you? A. I had not received official notice.

Q. But you were pretty certain of it, were you not? A. Not necessarily. 8013

Q. Have you not just testified that Mr. Post told you that in as much as the matter had been dragging on to this time, you were going to have your Declaration of Co-operation sent back? A. I do not consider that a telephone conversation is binding or has it any—or is it relevant to the question—the action taken afterwards.

Q. So that when you saw in "Womens' Wear" that the Declaration of Co-operation of Schuster & Company had been returned, were you shocked and completely surprised by it? A. It is pretty hard to say just how I felt.

Q. You expected it, did you not? A. I expected it, yes.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Mr. Liberman, you testified that Schuster & Company was a member of the Cavendish Trading Corporation? A. Right.

Q. Or—is that the correct name? A. Yes.

Q. How many stores are there in that group? A. Not 8015 being positive, I would like to ask a question of our Comptroller, who is present.

Mr. Haycraft: I object to that.

Mr. Albert: Certainly.

Mr. Haycraft: The witness does not know.

Examiner Bennett: If you do not know, well, say so.

The Witness: I don't know.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Would you say that there are approximately twenty stores in the group?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

8016 The Witness: I don't believe it.

Mr. Haycraft: He says he does not know. I object to any further interrogation; not relevant to the issues in this case.

By Mr. Albert:

Q. Is Stern Brothers a member? A. They are.

Q. Is Frederick Loeser a member? A. They are.

Mr. Haycraft: That is objected to as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Albert: Laying a foundation, your Honor, for another question.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer. Go ahead.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Was Scruggs Vandervort and Barney a member? A. They are.

Q. Is Harris Drygoods a member? A. They are.

Q. Is Berdyne's a member? A. They are.

Q. Is Ivy a member? A. Pardon?

Q. Is Ivy a member? A. J. C. Ivy, is it?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, they are a member. 8018

Q. Mr. Liberman, have you any objections if I ask your Comptroller how many stores there are in the trading corporation?

Mr. Haycraft: I object to it.

Mr. Albert: Your Honor, it seems to me a very simple point, that certainly the witness can ask the Comptroller who is in the store——

Examiner Bennett: I will let the witness inform himself through his Comptroller if he relies on that.

Mr. Albert: Yes, your Honor.

Examiner Bennett: You may ask the Comptroller, Mr. Liberman.

The Witness: I would like to ask Mr. Kuechenmeister the number of stores. 8019

Mr. Kuechenmeister: Thirteen stores.

The Witness: Thirteen stores members of the Cavendish Trading Corporation.

Mr. Haycraft: I move to strike out all of the testimony of the witness upon this point, up to this point, as to the membership of the Cavendish Trading Corporation.

Examiner Bennett: I will see——

By Mr. Albert.

Q. The Cavendish Trading Corporation is a co-operative organization, is it not? A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. Do you know how many members of the Cavendish Trading Corporation signed the Declaration of Co-operation? A. I do not.

Q. With the Fashion Originators Guild? A. I do not know.

Q. (Indicating) I show you Commission's Exhibit No. 542, which is headed "Returns of Dresses to Vendors, because Guild stated dresses were copies." What do you mean by "Guild stated dresses were copies"? A. A representative of the Guild came into our stocks and selected some dresses claiming that they were copies of Guild Fashions, and being a co-operative member we selected such dresses that were in our stocks and returned them to vendors.

8021

Q. Do you know upon what basis these dresses were declared to be copies? A. Only through the representative of the F.O.G.A.

Q. Have you any knowledge as to the methods by which dresses are adjudged to be copies? A. I am not entirely clear what the procedure is, no. I am not aware of the method or machinery that was used to select the merchandise.

Q. And since you are not aware of the methods, and since you sent back copies of which you were informed by the Guild shopper, is it fair to say that you have full faith and confidence in the information given you that the dresses requested to be returned were copies?

8022

Mr. Haycraft: Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial; no foundation laid here.

Examiner Bennett: I will let him answer.

The Witness: Whatever procedure, or whatever action was taken concerning these dresses was all done through the buyer, which I was not familiar with the particular circumstances.

By Mr. Albert.

Q. Do you mean that a buyer returned a dress without first inquiring of you? A. Absolutely.

Q. Did you give any instructions to the buyer that he was to first inquire of you as to whether or not a dress should be returned? A. Not necessarily.

Q. Did you give any instructions to the buyer that any inquiry was to be made by the buyer as to whether or not in fact the dress was a copy? A. No.

Examiner Bennett: We will take a recess of ten 8024 minutes.

Mr. Albert: Thank you, your Honor.

(Thereupon a short recess was taken.)

By Mr. Albert.
